The conference is scheduled to open at 1 p.m. President Louis G. Conlan will deliver the opening address.

Vetterlein said class presidents, vice-presidents, and an outstanding student from each high school will attend the all-day meeting.

After initial proceedings, delegates to the conference will be conducted on a tour of the campus and various workshops. Later, in a second joint meeting, delegates will finish orienting themselves on the college and will discuss its workshops.

Vetterlein said a dinner prepared by students of the Hotel and Restaurant division in the cafeteria would be held following the meeting.

After the dinner, the high school leaders will be invited to the Ram vs. East Los Angeles Junior College night football game in Kezar Stadium that evening.

Assisting Vetterlein with preparations for the conference are the following members of the committee: Jerry Slater, Charles Robertson, Dick Silveria and Dick MacFarland.

Vetterlein said he hoped the conference would bring closer relationships between the college and the city's high schools, and that it would serve to bind the high schools into a more concise unit of cooperation and understanding.

Intramural Touch-Football Entries Due Nov. 3

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Friday, November 3, according to Intramural Director Tom Wilson. Entries will be accepted by Wilson in the office of the men's gymnasium through Friday. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application below.

With Midterm Jitters Over Fraternities Open Pledge Week

WITH the strain of midterm examinations over, a group of men students on campus are now going through an even greater ordeal; for this is fraternity pledge week, more commonly known as "hell week."

As the title "hell week" implies, this is just about what these men are going through. Phi Beta Delta completed its first day with a dinner at 5:30 last Monday in the college cafeteria, followed by a meeting for members and newcomers.

Most of the neophytes take orders only from members of their respective fraternities, but the Beta Tau pledges have a doubly rough time, for they must obey the commands of their sisters, the Theta Taus, as well.

The Betas and Thetas held a joint meeting last night in Building 5, Room K, when the pledges put on a skit for those present.

Tri-Epsilon pledges will receive their bad times at a joint meeting with Alpha Lambda Chi tonight, as will the Alpha Sigma Deltas when they meet tonight with the women of Delta Psi. The same will happen when Gamma Phi Ypsilon meets with Zeta Chi.

Kappa Rho, which is also indoctrinating its newcomers this week, finally announces new officers for the semester. They are Bob Hoff, president; Bill Radcliffe, vice president; and Bob Church, secretary-treasurer.

Other groups in the Inter Fraternity Council which are pledging new members are Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Lambda Sigma, and Pi Delta Koppa.

The Inter Sorority Council announces that pledge week for the women will be during the week of November 13. So much for pledges.

Are college students fatalists? is the topic of this Friday's college hour meeting of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship. All students are invited to attend.

New officers for the Block SF are Rod De Christofaro, president; "Hook" Arata, vice-president; Carl Semonich, secretary; Allen Christie, treasurer; and Dave Weddington, CAB representative. Lou Williams is in charge of preparations for their annual dance which is coming up in December.

The Engineering Society announces the following officers: David Mehr, president; Lennart Stromberg, vice-president; Richard Cummings, secretary-treasurer; and Tomio Ozawa, CAB representative.

Members of the Chinese Students Christian Association meet on Monday evenings at 8:30. Their new officers are Sonny Ng, president; Clifford Poon, vice-president; Marian Leong, secretary; Stephen Yee, treasurer; and Albert Louie, CAB representative.

Omicron Phi Pi, the economics honor society, will meet tonight at the home of sponsor Michael Zarchin, 295 Urbano Drive.

Deadline time for club copy is at noon on the Wednesday preceding the publication of the paper.

Bogie Man Dance Set For Greenhouse Friday

A Halloween dance is scheduled for Friday, October 27, at 7 p.m., in the greenhouse, for the purpose of greeting new members, Geraldine Johnson, social chairman, stated.

Theme for the dance will be hard times, and everyone should dress accordingly, Miss Johnson added.

Admission will be free, but members are asked to bring food for the refreshments if possible, Beth Johnson, food chairman, stated.

—Stunts, games, and dancing will entertain those attending, Esther Scott, entertainment chairman, added.

Officers for the society are president, Charles Konigsberg; vice-president, Robert Kordon; secretary, Pat Haucke; treasurer, George Koch; and faculty adviser, Ray Peterson.

Woman's Affairs Consultant From Germany Hosted

By Georgia Watkins

City College played host last week to Dr. Helga Rosemarie Krueger, professional consultant of the Women's Affairs Section for the High Commissioner of Germany.

Dr. Krueger has been assigned to the U. S. Department of Labor under the exchange of persons program of the State Department and has been studying methods of vocational guidance and training.

She has been active in radio work in Munich and has worked as a consultant on a committee founded for the purpose of bringing full equality to women through revision of the German code.

Arriving at the college at 10 a.m., Dr. Krueger was taken on a tour of the campus that included visits to President Louis Conlan, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, and Hilda Watson, director of hotel and restaurant division.

At the completion of the tour, luncheon was served in the faculty dining room.

Those present included Dean Margaret Dougherty, Dr. Marsh, Mildred Barnard and Alva McMillan, counselors; Jackie Lantheaume, president of associated women students; Shirley Maritzen, vice-president of AWS; Barbara Thompson, merchandising student, and Cecilia Burg, secretary to R. Edward Burton, well known local attorney.

Dr. Krueger has a doctor of philosophy degree from the University of Munich.

Council Approves Three Resolutions

At a meeting of the Student Council last week resolutions were proposed concerning students called into the service, life time student cards, and inviting men from the veterans' hospitals to be guests at the City College vs. San Mateo football game.

The resolutions were as follows:

1. That the City College vs. San Mateo football game will be dedicated to those students called to the colors.

2. That honorary lifetime Associated Student cards will be issued to Jade Snow Wong, Trev Burrow and Slim Galliard for their service to the college.

3. That the college will invite men from the various veterans' hospitals to be guests at the football game between City College and San Mateo Friday, October 27.

All three resolutions were voted on and approved by the council.

Semi-Professional Type Training Gains Increasing Recognition

(Editor's note: This is the last of a series of two articles explaining the adoption of semi-professional courses to the college's curriculum.)

By Bob Rezak

The success of the semi-professional course program at the college can only be fully realized when it becomes able to meet the needs of every student, explained John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses last week, as the continued to outline the progress in his field.

"And of course, the degree of success in the semi-professional field here is measured by how many students trained are actually placed in fields for which they were trained. That's the only way to determine whether it is effective or not," Brady said.

While there was no real survey taken to determine the number of actual persons who found employment in the field for which they were trained, there have been interviews taken with employed persons who were asked how the training they received at the college benefited them and what suggestions for improvements they could offer.

"Few don't appreciate the training they received here," Brady declared.

Once a student has complete training in a semi-professional course, he is awarded a Certificate of Completion which states that he has reached certain standards by receiving satisfactory grades and by completing suggested courses.

Requirements for these certificates are established by the advisory committee of each course. The certificate identifies a student when he applies for employment in his desired field.

Brady said that the emphasis in teaching a semi-terminal course was strictly on training a man or woman for full-time employment when he finished his two year training at the college.

This specialized type of education is not given in a four-year university, Brady commented.

"The university is not interested in a two-year training program. What makes the semi-terminal work different from a university parallel course is that it does not duplicate any of the study given in the university."

As he leaned back in his chair, Brady made several conclusions.

"The semi-professional type training offered at City College is becoming more highly regarded. In some fields of occupation we can't turn out trained students fast enough to meet the demand. Why only recently we had a call for six people who were wanted to fill vacancies in the electrical field. The radio and technical engineering fields are likewise requesting more and more trained help."

Rams Underdog In Kezar Tilt With Huskies

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

One of the most fearsome powers of Southern California junior college football invades Kezar Stadium next Friday night when the Rams tangle with the terror of the Metropolitan Conference, the East Los Angeles Huskies.

ELAJC was the 1949 champion of the Metro Conference and is now the odds-on choice to do a repeat in 1950. So far this season the Huskies have scored 178 points in four games to their opponents' 40, an average of 45 to 10. With one exception, the Huskies have scored more than 40 points in every game.

This high-scoring steamroller seored more points in one game this season than they have ever scored before. Against Los Angeles Valley College three weeks ago the Huskies set an all time scoring record for one game by annexing an easy 61-19 win. The previous high was the 53-7 victory over the Rams last year.

Coach Al "Ace" Hunt has had plenty of material to work with this year. The pre-season turnout for the squad totaled 120, including more than two dozen All-City players from the high schools in Los Angeles county. From this vast assortment of manpower, he has assembled a team with the most widely varied attack in the Metro Conference.

The Green and White offense is under the guiding star of Ben Vartanian, a sharpshooting passer who led the league in pass offense last year. When not passing the opposition dizzy, he tells Lewis "Hustler" Williams, fullback, and Phil Johnson and LeRoy Franklin, halfbacks, just how and where to score. There seems to be no problem as to "when" to violate the enemy end zone.

Manuel Perez and Bob Hughes, the latter team captain, are the two best ends in the conference. Between them, the two have caught nine passes for touchdowns, almost all of them from Vartanina.

The balance of a tough line is bulwarked by tackles John Pulice and Wilber Cofield, guards James Joseph and Don Pennington, and Brad Pye, center. Joseph, who plays left guard, is a 158-pounder who has been out several other good, big men for a first string berth.

Unfortunately for Grover Klemmer's squad, the ELAJC strength does not coincide with their strength. The Ram secondary has proved to be comparatively vulnerable to an effective passing combination such as the Huskies possess. The Rams' main hope for a win seems to bank on their ability to hold the Huskies in the line.

Three Students Win Debut On TV Talent Shows

By Doug Hayward

Three musically talented students were selected to appear on KGO-TV as a result of winning in talent scout auditions held here at the auditorium, Thursday and Friday, October 19-20.

Leona Oddstad is scheduled to sing on the Freddy Martin try-out program of Friday. The two other winners, picked to appear on Martin's Band of Tomorrow audition shows, are Cynthia Burke, soprano vocalist, and Ted Worral, tenor saxophonist.

Talent scout Leon d'Usseau, who represented the band and a television company, conducted the college auditions. He said that from what Flossita Badger and Meyer Cahn had told him, there were still many students who had not auditioned.

"We want," d'Usseau said, "former City College singers and instrumentalists as well as current students, for our aim is to provide the video public with a first class piece of musical entertainment."

Further auditioning will continue every Saturday, from 1:30 to 5 p.m., and 7:30 to 10 p.m., at 15 California Street, suite 602.

Out of four contestants who take part in the television show, each Friday from 8:30 to 9 p.m., one is chosen to appear with a new band which has already been guaranteed a two week run at the Hotel St. Francis. Winners will receive pay for appearing on the show.

Water Film Scheduled For College Hour

College hour film series will feature Friday the film Water, Fountain of Life, at 10 a.m. and during college hour in Room 136, main building, according to Madison Devlin, visual aids director.

A rally, previously planned for the November 3 college hour, is uncertain, Bill Steiner, Rally Committee chairman, announced last week. Difficulty in providing entertainment is the cause of the possible cancellation, he said.

The movie, in technicolor, is a moving portrayal of the eternal water cycle. The processes of evaporation and transpiration and the beginning of life on earth are depicted and clarified by means of animation.

Scheduled for the following week, November 10, the audio-visual aids department plans to present a condensed version of Mutiny on the Bounty, complete with Hollywood actors Charles Laughton and Clark Gable.

Reduced Cost For Symphony Offered

Season tickets at student rates for the 39th regular season of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, beginning Thursday, November 23, are now on sale in the student bank and the auditorium, Meyer Cahn, college Symphony Forum sponsor, announced this week.

The season tickets include 16 Thursday evening performances featuring Pierre Monteux, conductor and musical director, and many outstanding guest conductors and soloists.

Sale of the season tickets is being handled by the Symphony Forum, and will continue through Friday, November 3. Reduced student rates for the tickets have been set at $21.60 for orchestra, grand circle, and dress circle seats; $16.00 for balcony and balcony circle seats.

Tickets for single performances are also available, and may be purchased from Jerry Barnes in the college auditorium. Cost of single performance tickets is $3.35 for orchestra, grand tier, and dress circle; $1.00 for balcony and balcony seats.

Navy Recruit Meets Scheduled This Week

Representatives of the United States Naval Reserve will conduct two general meetings here tomorrow in a campaign to recruit students who are not already in the reserve.

The meetings are scheduled for 10:15 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. in Room 30, Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, said.

Student Presidents Attend Three Panel Talks; Conlan Will Speak

The high school student government conference, sponsored by the Associated Men Students and the Associated Women Students here Friday, will start with the registration of members at 12:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Ralph Vetterlein, AMS president, announced yesterday.

Vetterlein will call the meeting to order at 1 p.m. and introduce President Louis G. Conlan, who will extend his greetings to the members. Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, is expected to deliver the keynote speech to the conference delegates.

A discussion group consisting of three panels will begin at 1:35 p.m. Included in the initial discussion group will be the president's panel, vice-president's panel, and the panel of the representatives.

The president's panel will deal with the duties of the president, rallies and assemblies, and school spirit. Among high school student body presidents attending will be Bob Foehr, Lowell; Bob Korte, Polytechnic; George Traubert, Lincoln; and Fred Berensmeier, Mission.

The vice-president's panel will study the duties of the vice-president, and lead discussions concerning; dances, publicizing, and attendance.

The third panel will discuss topics to be presented by the representatives to the conference. Included in this discussion will be the topics of increasing participation in school activities, and the boosting of student body card sales.

Following the general assembly, a second discussion group series will be held. This group consists of a conference on comparative governments, the enforcement of student laws, and inter-school relations, Vetterlein said.

Conclusion of the conference will involve general discussion of the preceding panels, with a review of progress made.

The work of the discussion groups is expected to bring many new problems into view, and it is hoped that the conference may prove an effective instrument in finding solutions, Vetterlein said.

The college will host the representatives at a dinner in the faculty dining room at 5:30 p.m. The dinner will be prepared and served by students of the Hotel and Restaurant division of the college.

Representatives to the conference will be invited to attend the football game between City College and East Los Angeles at Kezar Stadium, Vetterlein added.

AMS Sport Dance Set For Saturday

The Associated Men Students present their traditional dance Saturday night, November 4, from 9 to 12 o'clock, with the theme of Moonlight Serenade, Bob Lacanpagni, AMS vice-president, disclosed Monday.

Blue and white decorations will transform the west campus auditorium into a stardusted setting and Gary Evers and his eight piece band will place musical emphasis on songs referring to the moon, Lacanpagni said.

Proper attire for the dance is sport clothes, and admission will be by Associated Student card only, he added.

AMS President Ralph Vetterlein stated that though this dance is an annual affair, the theme is something completely different and new from the previous AMS barn dances.

Committee members assisting chairman Lacanpagni are Emmett Thompson, Dick Macfarland, Al Kane, and Jay Slater.

Deadline To Drop Courses Is Today

Students intending to drop classes must file their blue cards by 5 p.m. today, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned last week.

Today is also the last day to file petitions for graduation, she declared.

Cards for dropping courses, which may be obtained from the counsellors, must be filed in the registrar's office in Building 3, second floor, before the deadline, Miss Learnard said.

Graduation petitions must be approved by the counsellors, she added, before students file their petitions in Building 3.

RALPH VETTERLEIN, AMS president, and Jackie Lantheaume, AWS president, are figuring here the leaders' conferance at the college Friday. Included in the plans of the conference is a tour of the campus and a dinner in the cafeteria prepared by Hotel and Restaurant students. Following the dinner, the representatives will attend the Ram-Huskies game at Kezar.—Photo by Maritzen.

East Bay Students Face Daily Ordeal

Commuters Need Patience, Imagination, Eight Arms

By Don Johnson

A ride on a bus, a view of the San Francisco Bay from the lower deck of the bridge, or a sight of the store windows along Market Street from the window of a "K" line street car might well be enjoyable on a quiet afternoon, but for many students of the college these events are merely necessary evils to be overcome each day on the way to class.

The average student who commutes from the East Bay must not only have an abundance of patience to come with the late busses, traffic jams, and million-and-one other mishaps which delay him on his way to class, but he must also have an active imagination with which to invent plausible tales to explain his frequent tardiness to class.

Student commuters loudly bewail the fact that it takes from from three to six hours to arrive at, and return home from the college. To persons who argue that this time could well be spent in studying, the stock reply is that attempting to study on crowded, jolting street cars and busses is not only impractical, but utterly impossible.

Another problem facing the commuter is the task of arriving at the college with a minimum of books, for the task of riding (or rather standing) on a swaying street car would be difficult for anyone but an eight-armed juggler.

If the commuter awakes to a bright, sunny morning and dresses accordingly, the weather at the college will be cold and/or wet. If the weather in the East Bay is miserable, the student will find the weather at the college warm and sunny.

On the one morning the commuter decides to dress for the exact opposite type of weather to which he awakens, fate wills that the weather in the East Bay and at the college will be identical. It's a battle which has raged for years, and one which the commuter always loses.

So, if some warm, sunny day, you should see a poor soul wandering about the campus attired in a raincoat, loaded heavily with books, and with a tired, haggard look in his eyes, treat him gently. He is probably a commuter from the East Bay in search of an education.

Guardsman Clarifies Basic Editorial Policy In Elections

WITH the Nation's off-year elections coming up Tuesday, The Guardsman clarifies one of its basic points of editorial policy. The Guardsman maintains an impartial status in all elections, national, state local, and campus wide.

As the only official publication on the campus The Guardsman steers clear of all campaigns outside its news columns, of course, where only straight facts are presented.

Furthermore, as is the case with most metropolitan newspapers, The Guardsman gives [illegible] exists a free hand to praise or back any candidate they may deem to support in off-campus elections. This is done in the spirit of a free press and democracy.

Thus, readers of metropolitan dailies may, during the pre-election campaigns find articles supporting either Democrats or Republicans.

The basic editorial policy of The Guardsman, however, in matters of elections remains the same. That is, of complete impartiality.

HEAVY rains last week turned the Kezar Stadium turf into a sodden mess forcing cancellation of the City College-San Mateo football game. And with the cancellation and rain went the Associated Students' chance to gain on the financial front.

Unless Friday night's game with East Los Angeles Junior College in Kezar draws a goodly crowd the A.S. financial situation will rest in a precarious state, to put it mildly.

It seems to us that an all too goodly amount of hope was attached to the games. That is to say, in student government circles people were hoping it wouldn't rain and that a large enough crowd would attend to ease the dark financial picture.

Mere mortals can't thwart the weatherman. A wise move now for the Student Council would be to search for a more concrete, more tangible method or means to raise additional revenue. Leaving the miracle or "hope" angle out of it, of course, the council might endeavor to support a project that would insure some returns with a minimum of financial risk.

However, as a dyed-in-the-wool football fan we certainly "hope" rain doesn't spoil next Friday's game with East Los Angeles. We're not betting on clear skies, though; too much risk.

Larrick
The Spectator
solution to S. F. pigeon problem offered by New York falcons

AT last there may be a way to change Elmer's tune from Pigeon Go Way From My Door, to Happy Days Are Here Again.

Ever since Mayor Robinson was elected, the lowly pigeon has been plaguing him to the extent of laying eggs and raising its young on the window sill of his City Hall office.

This took place even after a city ordinance was passed with the idea of exterminating the particular breed who insist on infesting Union Square and City Hall.

When it was apparent that the pigeons had no regard for city ordinances—either that or they were just plain stupid and couldn't read—the fight was carried to the bird lovers.

They were instructed to cease and desist from carrying bits of bread and bags of birdseed to their feathered friends on pain of being charged with a misdemeanor and fined a peso or two.

PIED PIPERS

No one could figure out how the pigeons kept their girlish figures. It did look suspicious when shifty-eyed individuals were seen walking around Union Square on sultry days with bulging overcoats and a flock of pigeons trailing after them, but it would never do to have them stopped and searched. The people, that is.

In one last desperate attempt to punish the foul fowls, plastic owls were smuggled in and placed on poles to scare the pigeons away. They not only refused to be shooed but used the owls for vantage points to sight fowl feeders.

Although San Francisco is the city that knows how, it's obvious that it does not know how to do away with pigeons and has to be shown the way by the sometimes unwatered town of New "Yawk."

It seems that last week U.S. bird fanciers were keeping their eyes peeled for peregrine falcons which were making the yearly trip south from the northeastern U.S. and Canada to the Gulf area.

From a report by the New "Yawk" World-Telegram and Sun, it appears that a few of these falcons will cut short their flight and grab a penthouse atop one of Manhattan's skyscrapers. Not only does this suffice for a craggy mountain top but the menu is of the best, featuring fat and sassy Manhattan pigeons. Within the last sentence lies the answer to a San Francisco mayor's prayer.

SPORT OF KINGS

More than 4,000 years ago falconry was practiced by the Chinese (the art of falconry is directing the bird to take off, charge its prey, and return to the arm of its owner) and was the sport of kings throughout the middle ages.

What could be more efficient and satisfactory than for the Board of Supervisors to draft a letter to the mayor of New "Yawk" asking for a few of these birds to rid the city of one of its greatest problems?

If by chance the falcons should ask the mayor of New "Yawk" why they should go west, he could clinch the deal by answering the same as the chicken who crossed the road—"for some fowl reason, of course."

Purposes Of Silver Pole Are Varied

Students who have had to go around the "silver pole" in the middle of the main floor of the science building probably never gave it a thought.

About the only thing they could say was that this stainless steel column made a darn nice meeting place.

They will be surprised to find out that it was the end result of a sort of "one will get you two" game.

Some 15 years ago, when the city fathers met to plan the science building on Hill 29, the members of the science department were asked to help. The astronomy department, headed by Dr. Louis Berman, asked and got a 13 foot diameter observatory on the roof. Immediately the city architect, the late Timothy Pflueger, doubled the size.

Doubling the size meant a redesign in the structure. Column 186 was made larger to support the weight of the now 20 inch refraction telescope and the cast iron pier upon which it was to be mounted.

From the solid rock of Hill 29 to the floor of the observatory four flights up, column 186 makes it appearance in the main lobby much thicker than on other floors.

Luckily the planners found stainless steel was impervious to carving, else succeeding generations of City College students might have found their ancestors' names entwined with hearts.

Column 186 not only supports its share of the building load plus the weight of the observatory, but it also supports students who have leaned against it for relief from their weighty studies. Bless the city planners!

Drama Porridge

Tasty Dishes To Be Presented By Theatrical Cooks

By Howard Cumming

The oven is hot here at the college, for the traditional schedule of productions. The ingredients are on hand, and the first in the form of drama.

The mixing bowl is Room 28, known as the little theatre. It is slightly small for the best results, but adequate. Plays, comedies, tragedies, melodrama, are all as plentiful as raisins in a raisin loaf.

The preparation of the dish is simple: have all ingredients (1 mixing bowl, 1 medium ripe play, 2 handfuls actors, 1 tablespoon director, 2 scoops technical crew, 3 fistfuls hard work, 1 rehearsal baking pan, and 1 audience) handy. Mix well and serve.

The drama director this year comes in a package called Stuart Hyde. He is well versed in the job he is required to do. He works with actors from his drama classes and other interested students.

Stage, lights, properties, scenery, and make-up are all taken care of by students, home grown in the drama classes.

The all-important audience is the student body as a whole, and the public.

To date, four cup cakes (scenes from four plays presented to the public recently) have been served according to the foregoing recipe, and were found to be entirely satisfactory by the handful of people present to taste them.

At present, the fire is on under three one-act plays planned for November 15 through 17.

Mary Elizabeth Hughes' Frankie and Johnny, William Saroyan's The Hungerers, and Tennessee Williams' Auto-Da-Fe are the tit-bits in this theatrical pot porridge.

After these productions, the oven will be kept warm throughout the semester in readiness for other tasty dishes planned for all types of college entertainment.

Instructor's Art

Paintings Shown For Press Club

William J. Eckert, Art and Graphic Arts instructor, recently held a one-man exhibit at the Lucien Labaudt Gallery. This exhibit followed the private showing of 12 of his oils, portraits, still life and figure compositions at the San Francisco Press Club last month.

In a review in the October issue of The Trumpeter magazine, Eckert, artist and teacher, said of twentieth century art: "The revolt against twentieth century art has undoubtedly given us a new and more vigorous approach to design and color.

"We are on the threshold wherein new and re-discovered technlques will be applied to universal expression of basic human truths presented in forms understood by most people."

The well known artist and muralist has a long list of work to his credit. Notable among these is the work done in collaboration with Allan True on the murals in the Denver National Bank and the Missouri State Capital, and with Millard Sheets, on murals for the G.G.I.E., San Francisco.

Eckert is also well known for his work as a free lance artist and former member of the art staff of the San Francisco Examiner.

Student's Hopped Up Ford Wins Trophy

Roadster Races 120 Miles Per Hour

BOB WORKMAN'S '32 Ford roadster has rung up an impressive 120.16 m.p.h. at this year's Bonneville, Utah, time trials. Workman also tuned this same car through the traps on October 1, near Reno, by walking off with the Cal-Neva Roadster Association class "C" roadster record.

By John Dierking

With the roar of a hopped up engine, and the pungent fumes of the exhaust in his nostrils, Bob Workman of Alameda, representing the Oakland Roadster Club and the Cal-Neva Roadster Association, raced through the electric timer in his canary yellow '32 Ford [illegible] at the National Hot Rod Time Trials at Bonneville salt flats in Utah, at an impressive 120.16 miles per hour.

City College's 23-year-old engineering student has run up quite a record among Northern California hot rod enthusiasts by racing off with the first place trophy at the Modesto Century Toppers Hot Rod Show and Poker Run, as well as copping third place in Class B competition at the Santa Cruz drag races last October 8.

Workman has employed all the conveniences of a new automobile in his roadster, with custom yellow upholstery, black carson top, column shift, hydraulic brakes, and Lincoln transmission gears.

Under the hood it's very impressive, with all the extras chromed, a reworked 275 cubic inch Mercury engine, equipped with JE aluminum racing pistons, Weber super race cam shaft, Kong distributor and ignition, Offenhauser high compression heads, and Weiand dual carburetor intake manifold.

Closer inspection will unfold that the [illegible] front [illegible] springs and hangers, and the backing plates have been chromed.

Workman has started the painstaking job of tearing down and rebuilding of his roadster after this year's grueling lake meets. It will not be altered except when it makes its next appearance on the college campus with a new fire engine red paint job.

Having enough of lake competition with his roadster, Workman has started to build a competition '27 T Ford Coupe for next year's lake meets at Reno and Bonneville.

Anyone who has ever set his eyes on Workman's roadster and come away goggle eyed will be even more anxious to see this latest hot rod creation sometime next spring.

Northwood

Shots At RAMdom

last of the Mohicans are studied in anthro class; wise children rise early

SEVERAL City College students recently gave up a Sunday morning's rest and relaxation to go as spectators to an anthropology class.

This class is unusual as it is held in what could be correctly called a cemetery. The pencils, textbooks, and erasers were replaced by shovels, trowels and paint brushes, while the usual classroom procedure was forgotten.

NO QUIZ, NO PROD

There was no lecturing or quizzing and everyone present went earnestly to work without prodding from the instructor.

The scene was the ancient village and burial ground of a tribe of Indians who inhabited California before our ancestors knew there was a Pacific Ocean. They found the land on the Alameda side of the San Mateo Bridge to their liking and went on to live and die there, never imagining that some day shovels would cut into their bones.

Handling the course is Mr. Treganza, instructor of anthropology at San Francisco State College.

CRACKED CRANIUM

In full view in one corner of a ten by ten foot pit, five feet deep, was the remains of an Indian, perfect in every way except for a smashed skull. Directly above this poor soul were signs of a cremation with the obvious red ochre, used to line the bottom of the basket, exposed to the sun.

A tire pump was used to blow the soil from the bones, making a photograph possible. Samples of the burned material about the pieces of bone were collected, labeled, and boxed for placement in the new museum slated for State College.

Students finding burials first write a report of the body (position, etc.) then separate the bones, placing them in a paper bag, and then cart them home to be turned in to the instructor at the semester's end.

Those students finding burials are amused when they try to explain to astonished faces that fact that they have an Indian home in the closet.

EARLY TO RISE

A familiar sight to students who pass through Hurley Village to the main building in the early hours of the morning, are the little children that greet them with "Hello's" and "Hi's."

These little boys and girls are always smiling and happy while those passing by yawn, return the hello and wonder why in the heck children never appreciate the value of sleep in the morning until it's too late.

RAM'S HORN . . .
Pulse of the Campus

• student stuck with suit

Editor, The Guardsman:

Okay, Ram's Horn—you asked for it! I've got a gripe that's been burning me up all semester, and it not only concerns me, but every other male on the campus. I mean the ludicrous "gym-dandy" ruling.

At the beginning of this semester, I was lightly informed by a gym instructor to buy a gym suit. Not just a regular, run-of-the-mill gym suit consisting of shoes, trunks and sweatshirt, but a glorified, two-toned clown's outfit that would shock a color-blind bull.

Not only that, but this laughable example of clothing was to cost $3.50! Why? Well, er-r-r (and here my instructor flustered slightly) because USF and State have them! And besides, they can be turned inside out (blue or armadillo yellow) for purposes of playing on teams.

So I bought a sweatshirt, which cost $2.50, but not the trunks, and now I find that nobody else is buying them, besides which the instructors show no inclination to enforce their ruling. My objection lies, of course, not in this, but in the fact that we should even have to buy the things at all.

Disgruntled.

Huskies Seek To Mend Win Streak

THESE ARE the hard charging Rams that will be out to avenge last year's slaughter from East Los Angeles when they meet the Huskies Friday.

High-Scoring Huskies, Rams Renew Intersectional Series

East Los Angeles Junior College's once beaten Huskies, seeking their 17th victory in 18 starts, invade Kezar Stadium Friday night for their third game with Grover Klemmer's Rams.

By Hal Roach, ELAJC Sports Editor

This East L. A. team of 1950 has tried to continue on the victory trail blazed by the undefeated champions of 1949. The Huskies this season are bigger physically and the squad is much deeper than in '49, but so far it has lacked the spirit and precision of last year. Afternoon it could be much greater.

Coach Al Hunt's offensive unit has featured two lettermen at end, Captain Bob Hughes and Manuel Perez. Both are pass receivers who run like halfbacks. At tackle two newcomers, John Pulice and Wilber Cofield, have won starting berths on the attacking platoon. Lettermen dominate the middle of the line where Center Brad Pye is flanked by Guards James Joseph and Don Pennington.

Ben Vartanian, a southpaw passer, now holds down the T quarterback post. This job was wide open, none of last year's signal callers returning. So far letterman Louie Augustine has shared left halfback with speedy Leroy Franklin, while Phil Johnson has dominated at right half. Fullback provided quite a surprise. Lewis "Hustler" Williams, a third stringer from last year, has stamped himself as a regular.

The Green and White defense has never been outcharged and their specialty is causing fumbles and making recoveries. Highlight to date was stopping L. A. Harbor after a first down on the one-yard line. John Mayer and George Morrow are at ends, Jerry Porges and John Tripodi at tackles, Al Abajian and Tom Zaby at guards. Line backers are Dennie Gill and Morrie Tolmasov, Syl Garcia and Dave Diaz alternate at safety and almost every halfback has had a chance at defensive halfback.

(Editor's note: The Huskies opened the season with a 41-7 rout over Chaffey and followed with a 21-8 win over San Bernardino. Los Angeles Valley was their opponent in the league opener and the Huskies won that one in handy fashion, 61-19. Next came a one touchdown victory over the powerful Los Angeles Harbor. In their last game East Los Angeles had little difficulty in overcoming Santa Monica 55-6, their third conference win, without a setback.)

Basketball Turnout Set For Today At 3

A turnout for players interested in varsity basketball in Room G107 is called today at 3 p.m. by Coach Ralph Hillsman.

Hillsman further stated that there are to be workouts daily from 3 to 5 p.m. and that games have been scheduled with all of the major two-year colleges and some of the local university teams.

As well as regular contests, the cagers have three Cow Palace engagements and two tournaments scheduled for Modesto and Sacramento.

Last year's squad participated in the National Junior College finals in the east after winning the State title.

The college cafeteria opened its fountain service for the first time on September 3, 1940.

San Mateo Game At Kezar Rained Out; Field Soaked

Last week's heavy downpour forced Kezar Stadium manager Joe Hickey to cancel last Friday night's scheduled contest between the college and San Mateo College, but the game will definitely be played later in the season.

Jack Gaddy, athletic director of the college, is scheduled to arrange a game date with Hickey sometime this week. The new date, probably on a week day, will be announced in the next issue of The Guardsman.

The Kezar turf was wet and soggy Friday afternoon. Even though the latter part of Friday was dry, the field failed to drain, inducing Hickey to cancel the game.

Kezar's tarpaulin was not placed over the gridiron before the storm started. Consequently, the rain reduced the sod under the grass to a thick mud.

RAMblings . .

By Gene Kelly

Football has turned into a Frankenstein monster which may destroy its creators—at least, that's the impression by Marshall Smith and Richard Oulahan Jr. in an article for a recent issue of a national magazine.

The two authors quote some mighty impressive figures to support their conclusions. For example: the University of North Carolina pays more than $275,000 a season to keep its football team in business; the bill for adhesive tape ALONE at West Point runs to $3,000 a year (slightly more than half of the entire City College football budget); Ohio State purchases footballs worth $2,128 for one season, not counting those used on road games, which are furnished by the home team.

Yet these are not the largest items on big-college budgets; the largest item doesn't even appear on the books.

Athletic subsidies are easily the biggest drain on the treasuries. To quote from Messrs. Smith and Oulahan Jr.:

"One prize prospect had offers from 61 different colleges. He finally accepted one that sounded like the jackpot of a radio quiz show—board, room, tuition, books, free laundry, $300 a month pocket money, free transportation to and from games for his family and $5,000 cash in the bank." An undecutlled University of California fullback was quoted as saying that his blockers on one touchdown run were "the best money could buy."

A curious paradox may be found in the television situation. The large colleges such as Notre Dame, Pennsylvania, California, et al, have no trouble peddling their TV rights in case the gate receipts fall below expectations. Because of their size, they don't need the money. Yet the small colleges, which are continually going in the hole, find no market in TV.

Monterey Retains Southern Division Lead; Rams Last

Monterey Peninsula College continued to lead the field as conference play entered the fifth week of the season. The Lobos have yet to lose a game in three starts and presently lead the scoring column with 66 points, according to figures released by Paul Clymer, Athletic Director of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

The team records, in games against Southern Division teams, show Stockton and Modesto tied for second place with two wins and one loss, Hartnell in fourth spot with a split in two contests, and Menlo fifth, holding a single win in three starts.

City College hasn't come up to pre-season expectations, but they did put up a stiff battle against Monterey, coming out on the short end of a 19-27 score. Coach Grover Klemmer feels the potential of a winning team is in the squad.

After their non-conference opener with Vallejo, in which the club blasted out a 53-7 victory, the Rams had difficulty with Menlo and haven't come back up from that defeat.

Conference standings on October 25:

Soccermen Seek Second Win From S. F. State Tonight At Cox Stadium

By Jack Spalding

After a week's rest the college soccer team resumes conference play tonight at Cox Stadium where they encounter San Francisco State in the first game of a doubleheader.

The Gators from the Lake Merced fog slopes are currently in fourth spot in league standings and will be slight underdogs to the second place Rams. Against their only common opponents, the Rams lost a tough one to U.S.F., 3-1, while the State team was shut out by the Dons, 3-0, in the season opener.

In the feature of the evening, U.S.F.'s National champions are expected to win quite handily over the second-place California Bears, whose defensive play thus far this season has been anything but good.

The Dons should have a field day, for in three games they averaged almost four goals per game. The Bears have had seven goals scored against them in their three contests.

Other games for this week include Stanford at Santa Clara, Santa Clara at California, while on Saturday City College travels to Palo Alto to engage the winless Stanford Indians.

Conference standings:

	W	L	T	Pct.
U.S.F.	3	0	0	1.000
California	1	1	1	.500
C.C.S.F.	1	1	1	.500

WAA Elects Brewer, Navarro, Kay To Office

Officers for the Women's Athletic Association were elected during last Friday's college hour, Nancy Sparks, faculty adviser, said recently.

The elections went as follows: President, Madge Brewer; vice-president, Toni Navarro; secretary, Pat Kay.

During the meeting plans were also made to send a group of women to represent the college at a Sports Day being held by San Mateo on Saturday, November 4.

Grid Experts Choose Huskies To Bury Rams In Kezar Friday Night

This week's leading frays will pit undefeated East Los Angeles Junior College against a sadly slipping Ram eleven. The Huskies have rolled up some phenomenal scores in the early part of the season, being held only by Los Angeles Harbor, 14 to 7. The "experts" have picked the Huskies by a landslide.

Other tilts which loom as naturals are California against the Washington Huskies with the Stanford Indians battling the Trojans from Southern Cal.

"Future Major Leaguer" Enrolls At College

By Warren Northwood

City College's baseball team this spring will boast a catcher who has already been spotted and contacted by major league representatives.

The student, J. W. Porter, won national recognition along with several other students when they joined with a group of other bay area players under the auspices of an Oakland American Legion Post and brought the Legion National Championship to the bay area.

As a result the team won, among other things, a trip to view the third and fourth games of the World Series.

Porter flew to Chicago and worked out with the Chicago White Sox before training on to New York with the rest of the team.

When questioned on the series, he reported that Philadelphia should have fared better. He went on to say that both pitching staffs were great but that Yankee fielding made the difference on the scoreboard.

Of the Phillies, he was most impressed with Granny Hamner, the shortstop, and least impressed with their catchers.

Porter hopes to play with the college team and along with his Legion teammates should bolster Bill Fischer's nine.

Fischer expects the new men to make up for the loss of several of last year's stars.

One thing that Fischer hopes for is better attendance to give the team the necessary backing. He went on to relate that the probable reason for the poor attendance is the distance necessary to travel to see the games. He hopes in the near future a field will be built on the campus and then the attendance should increase.

Book Savings On Classics To Be Offered Here Soon

Book savings of from one to two-and-a-half dollars may be in the offing for college students sometime in the near future, possibly next semester, Richard Main, student store manager, reported early this week.

Paper-bound classics are being offered many universities and colleges throughout the nation by a large eastern publishing house at far reduced rates; among them, Toystoy's War and Peace at the standard price of only 65 cents.

However, Main declared, "We have not been approached with this offer," and further said that it was too late in the semester to take any action on the matter. Copyright questions are involved, the manager continued, which might make a comprehensive list of these new-style books unavailable for another five or ten years.

At present the college is stocked with what are called "trade books," which come nearest the new type, with such titles as Lust For Life, a Pocket Book of Popular Verse, Guilliver's Travels, and the English course blue-book classics.

Return privileges on these books do not exist, as is the case with Moby Dick, Faust, and Shakespeare's works now on hand at the store.

Current features for this semester include a subscription service for any magazine now on the market. Or, Main seconded, renewals will also be taken, which include the special Christmas gift subscription offer. Subscriptions and renewals must be turned in at the store by faculty and students alike, before Friday, November 15.

Single-semester calendars are also on sale, including four months, and are listed over the counter at 15 cents a copy. They come in sizes of 8½ by 11 inches and 9 by 6 inches, cut and punched to match any three-ring binders of those sizes.

Thompson Speaks On Business Careers

Dr. J. Leroy Thompson, director of the Educational Bureau of the Wall Street Journal, will speak tomorrow to students interested in journalism, business and financial careers, Edward W. Larson, instructor of business, said.

The address will be given twice at both 10 and 11 a.m., in Room 204.

Questions on organizing, editing, and publication of business and financial news will be answered following his 40 minute lectures.

An expert in the field of education, Dr. Thompson has toured the Nation addressing hundreds of colleges and universities on this subject.

These lectures are presented primarily for business and journalism classes, however all interested students are invited to attend, Larson declared.

J. LEROY THOMPSON speaks here tomorrow.

Ballet Usher Jobs Open

An opportunity to usher at the Sadler's Wells Ballet, which opened Monday at the Civic Opera House, is available to women students of the college, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced yesterday.

Interested students should apply in Miss Dougherty's office in Building 2 for further information.

Overdue CAB Petitions Need Okay By Batmale

Those organizations which have not filed their club petitions with the Club Activities Board this semester, must present a valid excuse to Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, or suffer the consequences, Frank Meyn, president of CAB, warned yesterday.

Although all these non-petition clubs are regarded as off-campus organizations, they will be permitted to apply for admission in the CAB if they give strong explanations for their tardiness, Meyn said.

The off-campus organizations to date, according to Meyn, are Delta Sigma Tau, College Band, Chinese Club, Cosmopolitan Society, Le Cercle Francais, Hillel Society, Hotel and Restaurant Society, Graduate Statesmen, Radio Club, Horticulture Society, Men's Glee Club, Strikes and Spares.

Phi Epsilon Rho, Pi Mu Gamma, Masonic Club, Ski Rams, Ram Cam, Pick and Hammer, Omicron Phi Pi, Mu Iota Psi, Lambda Alpha, Latin-American Club, Affiliated Students, Spur and Saddle Club, Inter Sorority Council.

The following clubs are represented in CAB, according to Meyn: Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Psi, Kappa Phi, Theta Tau, Zeta Chi, Alpha Sigma Delta, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Beta Tau, Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Pi Delta Koppa, Tau Chi Sigma, Tri Epsilon.

Alpha Gamma Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega, Block SF, Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Drama Society, Forum Club, Phi Rho Pi, Newman Club, Engineering Society, Chinese Christian Association, Phi Beta Rho, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Alpha Lambda Sigma.

Program Planning For Spring Starts Soon

Students may start planning their programs for the Spring semester on Monday, November 13, Alva McMillan, of the college counselling service, announced recently.

It will be to the student's advantage to make an appointment with his counsellor as soon as possible, McMillan said.

He pointed out that registration numbers are assigned to the student on a first-come, first-served basis.

Students may make an appointment with their counsellors in Building 3.

AGS Has Booth At Student Store

To provide useful information for students of the college and visitors is the purpose of the information booth which has been set up by Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, in the student store this semester.

The honor society hopes also to standardize the tours of the campus which are organized during the semester, according to Don Jensen, sponsor.

At present no two tours visit the same place at the same time, which leads to inconvenience for both visitors and faculty, Jensen said.

If the society's plans materialize, the faculty members could inform the booth of the hours which would be convenient for visitors. Thus the booth would be a starting point for tours.

Staff members of the booth are also interested in knowing the type of information students would consider useful, Jensen added.

Clubs Reveal Plans As Hell Week Ends

Once again, peace has temporarily descended on campus with the finish of fraternity "hell week," but this doesn't seem to stop the organizations from entering into activities with enthusiasm.

Special elections were held by Alpha Lambda Sigma recently, with the following results: Jim O'Shaugnessy, president; Richard Lewis, vice-president; Chuck Phillips, secretary; Charlie Witchurch, treasurer; Jack Cook, corresponding secretary; Chuck Barger, pledge master; and Pierre Brandelius, sergeant at arms.

A Halloween atmosphere will be the setting at St. Emydius for tonight's meeting of the Newman Club.

New pledges to the fraternities are top news, as Gamma Phi Ypsilon comes forth with its list of newcomers. They are John Tucker, Chet Moore, Joe Alessandri, Bill Swindler, Walt Sapling, Ray Nelson, Stan Bruni, Rex Ingram, Santos Beloy, and Libert Myers.

Phi Beta Delta pledges include Tom Percell, Ralph Marinelly, Bill Cain, Bob Valiquette, Bill Valiquette, Bob Clenner, Dick Wallace, Gene Short, Bob Bliss, Ken Forster, Jim Lyons, Ken Griss, Terry Conroy, Don Foley, Hal Longwell, Lou Williams, and Ted McHale.

The Phi Beta's officers for this semester are Jim Crough, president; Charles Robertson, vice-president; John Sarber, recording secretary; Robert Von Konsky, treasurer; and Walt Gull, CAB representative.

A new fraternity on campus, Alpha Phi Epsilon, sponsored by Dean Louis Batmale, lists their new officers. They are Ralph Griffin, president; Gordon Curry, vice-president; Emmett Thompson, secretary-treasurer; and Lee Scott, pledge master. They also subjected their newcomers to "hell week" last week.

Kappa Phi members held a joint Halloween meet with Phi Beta Delta last night and from all reports, everyone present had a terrific time.

At a recent dinner meeting members of the Music Guild elected new officers. Those elected were Bill Richmond, chairman; Loury Miller, assistant chairman; Odinne La Lanne, secretary, and Christene Cheek and Cynthia Burke, CAB representatives. The Music Guild plans to resume sponsorship of monthly noon concerts sometime in November.

Romance notes from Delta Psi announce that Pat Welch was recently pinned to Fred Pratt, while Alpha Lambda Chi's Bev Jank was pinned to Ed Botsford, Phi Beta Delta. The Delta Psis plan their spaghetti rush dinner for tonight at the Fox Hostess House. Chef for the occasion will be Alpha Sigma Delta man, Joe Gentile.

The Lambda Chis held their second affair, a "knick-Off," last Tuesday at the home of Joan Kruse. For their semester's service project, the Lambdas schedule a book drive from Monday, November 20, through Wednesday, November 22. Barrels will be placed at strategic locations on campus, where pocket books, magazines and regular editions may be dropped.

During Friday's college hour, the Ski Rams are sponsoring three movies, donated by Union Pacific. All students interested in seeing the thrills of skiing and Sun Valley are invited.

The Drama Club has postponed the variety show scheduled for November until some time in January.

Debate Team Preps For USF

In preparation for a debate with the University of San Francisco, the college debating team holds a practice session tomorrow, Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, reported this week.

Pat Wilson and Noel Anderson will be teamed against Dick Schnei and Victor Morales in the special session.

Other debate team activities on the agenda include the Northern California High School Debate Tournament. The contest will be held Friday and Saturday, November 24-25, on this campus, Griffin said.

To date, 24 high schools have responded favorably. This will constitute the largest representation any tournament has had so far. There are also a number of schools that will attend which have been inactive in the past. Among these are Galileo, Mission, and Mountain View.

The subjects will cover three types of declamation, dramatic, oratory, and humorous, as well as the other divisions, which will consist of debate, impromptu, extemporaneous, after-dinner oratory, and radio script reading, he added.

Library Hours Changed

A change in the hours of the west campus library were announced yesterday by Clement Skrabak, librarian.

The hours were changed from 8 a.m. through 4 p.m., to 8:30 a.m. through 12:30 p.m.

The change was made for various administrative reasons, Skrabak stated.

Dean Gets 'Ribbed,' - - - It's No Joke

Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, returned to his duties Thursday after incurring serious rib injuries while repairing electrical wiring in the attic of his home early last week.

Browne was absent from the college for two days, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week, while X rays were taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

He was allowed to return to his activities although heavily taped.

It was not until three days after the accident, when he felt sharp pains in his side, that Browne realized his ribs were injured.

Fountain Favorite Spot To Spend Leisure Time

By Ted Gould

Tradition used to be that the silver pole in the main building lobby reigned as the favorite gathering nook for students after and between classes. However, that was before the rise of the west campus fountain to the position it now holds in local students' esteem.

Since its establishment, shortly after the former WAVE center was taken over by the college, the fountain has enjoyed steady progress in the four years of its existence. In fact, according to figures released by Wendell Muntz, chef-instructor of the Hotel and Restaurant division, the daily volume of sales varies between 1300 and 1700; quite an impressive record.

Weather is an important factor influencing student diets, the six friendly waitresses will attest. During warm spells sales of ice cream, cold drinks, and malts are dominant, while during cooler weather hot coffee sales zoom skyward.

In fall and winter seasons it is not unusual for patrons of the establishment to consume as much as 500 cups of the steaming, delectable liquid. Chocolate appears to be the prevailing favorite in choice of flavors. It rules supreme in all fountain items sold, whether it be pastry, candy or ice cream.

The fountain cash register is not an accurate means of census taking, for countless numbers of students convene there for a great many reasons, the most common being to make new friends and meet old ones.

Here, amid the ear-splitting roar of a crowd that to the stranger is only slightly louder than the forever spinning platters in the juke box, the more enterprising male can always manage to find the right date for the weekend social affairs.

Like the cafeteria, the fountain is a city operated function of the college. As such it is not expected to make a profit or compete with private enterprise. It is solely for the use of college students and faculty members. A staff of six waitresses are all hired through regular civil service channels.

Two men students from hotel and restaurant division are assigned to work there for experience.

Alumni, Students Honor Former Publicity Chairman

Mary Lou Cooper, chairman of the publicity committee and Guardsman staff writer, now on leave of absence, was presented Friday with a life membership in the college's Alumni Association.

Presentation was made during a journalism department luncheon by Monroe Johnson, alumni liaison officer.

The life membership was given in recognition of Mrs. Cooper's "outstanding service to the college not only in the field of public relations but as a person who gave unselfishly of her time and ability whenever called upon."

Mrs. Cooper's by-line appeared regularly in The Guardsman, and Walt Heil, editor, said, "We regret deeply that through unforseen circumstances Mrs. Cooper will not be with us. However, the entire staff joins me in wishing her every success and happiness in the future."

In addition to the life membership, the Student Council passed a resolution recognizing Mrs. Cooper's service to the college.

She has now moved to Berkeley where her husband, former army officer recently returned from duty in Japan, is attending the college of Arts and Crafts.

Three Modern One-Act Plays Open Run In Little Theatre Wednesday

Tickets are now on sale for the three modern one act plays to be presented at 8:15 p.m. in the little theater next Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, November 15, 16, and 17, Stuart Hyde, dramatic director, said late last week.

Tickets may be purchased at the student bank, in front of the fountain, and from any drama club member. The price is 35 cents with an Associated Student card, or 70 cents without, Hyde said.

The Hungerers, first on the program, is a serious play by William Saroyan. The cast includes Ed Muivihill, James Colby, Ann Gilcreast, Mary Hadlich, and Don Powell.

The second one-act is Frankie and Johnny, a musical comedy by Elizabeth Wilson Hughes. The cast selected for the play includes Frank Mascarelli, James Stowers, Dolores Lampert, Mervyn Murphy, Dawn Kidd, and George Jackson.

Drama and tense emotion are depicted in the final selection of the evening, Auto-Da-Fe, by Tennessee Williams, with Patricia Wilson and Lloyd Spitainy the cast for this play.

The technical chores for the production are handled by Anne Maxwell, assistant director; Al Hernandez and Edwin Lytton, stage managers; Ken Wilson, sound; and Don Powell, properties.

Faculty, Firms Donate 664 Books To College Library

The college library was increased by 664 new books, through donations last semester, Clement Skrabak, librarian, said yesterday.

Books are usually donated by members of the faculty, students, industries, various government agencies, or persons with an interest in college welfare. Books, pamphlets, and periodicals arrive almost daily, Skrabak said.

Failure to return library books when due can run into expense and trouble, he said. Penalty for not returning two-week books is five cents per day. The library sends notices before any action is taken against the borrower, and if the book is still not returned, grades are withheld.

Reserve books, Skrabak declared, cost the "careless student" five cents an hour or fifty cents a day.

The library's busiest time is the period preceding midterm week. At this time the use of research material zooms far above normal. Few novels and other books for leisure reading are then used.

In 1946, shortly after the college acquired the west campus from the Navy, a branch was established in Building 2. This branch contains only research material.

Local Hospitals Seek 200 Nursing Students

Because of the urgent need for nurses, a campaign began last week to recruit 200 women under the auspices of all local hospitals, Kenneth Hobbs, director of nurse training, announced today.

Films on nursing will be sent to the college to stimulate interest in this profession, and various hospitals will hold "open house" to give potential nurses an idea on how a hospital operates.

Mt. Zion, which recently added a new wing, will be first on the list followed by the St. Francis Hospital. Dates will be announced later, Hobbs said.

College Vocalist Wins Spot On TV

Leona Oddstad, former college vocalist, won a place in the quarter-finals of Burt Winn's Talent Showcase, when she appeared on the weekly Sunday program, October 29.

For her performance on the show, seen locally, she was presented with a 21 jewel wristwatch by the sponsor.

Miss Oddstad lost in close competition Friday night for a seat on the Freddy Martin Band of Tomorrow show, also seen over a local TV station.

Miss Oddstad auditioned for the Martin show on campus three weeks ago. Saxophonist Ted Worral and Cynthia Burke, vocalist, also won tryouts on the show.

Talent scout Leon d'Usseau heard the auditions and graded the trio accordingly. Later she was notified to appear on the show. Worral and Miss Burke will appear on the show later, d'Usseau said.

Further auditions are scheduled every Saturday from 1:30 to 5 p.m. and 7:30 to 10 p.m., at 15 California Street, suite 602.

AGS Students Get Preference For Spring Classes

Alpha Gamma Sigma honor students will be given low registration numbers to permit preference of class hours when they register for the spring semester, Don Jensen, AGS sponsor, announced late yesterday.

Such preference is accorded as a means of recognition for high scholastic quality, he declared, advising AGS members to check with their counsellors to be sure they are assigned low numbers.

Non-AGS students will register on a first-come, first-served basis according to their pre-registration counseling appointments.

Such appointments are being made now at the counselling office in Building 3, Alva McMillan, member of the counselling staff said, with interviews to start Monday, November 13.

Following the interview and drafting of schedules of courses, the schedules will be stamped with a number. All returning students will register on the first day of the registration period, according to that number.

McMillan urged students to make their appointments early, stressing that best choices for times of classes come during the opening hours of the first registration day. Later, available classes are closed and students must choose from a limited list of class offerings.

Registration for returning students is scheduled for Wednesday, February 7, 1951, and new students will register Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9, McMillan said.

Ram Tackle Busts Jaw In Scrimmage Play-Hospitalized

First serious football injury of the Ram season came last Tuesday, October 31, when sophomore tackle Scott Amour was hospitalized as a result of scrimmage injuries.

Amour, as teammates later described the accident, attempted to throw an offensive block that resulted in a double jaw fracture, and gum and dental injuries. Coaches Bill Fischer and Grover Klemmer called for an ambulance, and within three minutes 19 year old Amour was being rushed to St. Luke's hospital.

According to the coaches, the second string lineman had been showing improvement during the past two weeks. A Galileo graduate, he played almost the entire Los Angeles City College game of Friday, October 20.

Fischer, who accompanied Amour to the hospital, said that this was the first time in his entire coaching career that one of his players had suffered injuries of this degree. "His parents," the coach said, "took the news well. Everything possible has been done for him. It was one of those rare, one-in-a-million things."

Conlan Says Friday Is Not A College Holiday

President Louis G. Conlan announced yesterday that Friday, November 10, will not be a college holiday.

The holiday applies only to public junior and senior high schools, whose faculty members will attend teachers' institute. Faculty institute at the college was held Friday, October 13.

President Conlan also named the following members of the administrative staff who will attend the California Junior College Conference at Yosemite, opening today and running through Friday: Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management; Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses; and John Brady, dean of semi-professional courses.

Newman Club Hop Friday Night

Tartan Twirl was chosen the Scottish theme for the Newman Club dance scheduled for Friday, 9 to 12 p.m., in the student lounge, John Lo-Coco, club vice-president, said early this week.

Sport dress will be suitable for the occasion, with plaids predominating to give the dance the proper atmosphere.

Tickets can be purchased from any member of the Newman organization or at the student bank in the main building. Mary Perry, faculty sponsor, declared. Tickets are 95 cents per couple or 50 cents stag.

Music for the occasion will be provided by currently popular records.

Other students assisting LoCoco in the preparations for the affair include President Rod Lorenzo, Nancy Quinlan, Ed Healy, Ed Conmy, Mary Kirk, Joan Morton, Dominick Mancuso, and Mickey DeGregorio.

John Selig is co-sponsor with Miss Perry for the group.

San Mateo Grid Clash Called Off

Controller Oscar E. Anderson yesterday declared that the San Mateo City College football game was definitely cancelled at a meeting with San Mateo athletic officials.

"However, should either team's league standings be affected by this cancellation, the game will be played," Anderson said.

The game was originally scheduled for Friday night, October 27, at Kezar Stadium. Heavy rains two days prior to game night swamped the playing field, forcing a postponement until cancellation proceedings were concluded.

Both the Rams and Bulldogs have prior football commitments until the first week of December.

The Rams play Hartnell College Saturday night at Cox Stadium, Stockton Thursday, November 16, and Modesto Wednesday, November 22. The Stoekton and Modesto games will be played away from home.

School Delegates Form Action Body At Conference

"I want to see our schools become virtual laboratories of democratic life." That's the gist of Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish's keynote address to the high school student government conference held here Friday afternoon.

Dr. Clish further stressed the importance of the college as a "community college which is ready to serve the needs of the individual student."

Meanwhile, the high school officers closed the conference with a better understanding of inter-school relations when they assembled for the final discussion of the afternoon.

The conference produced two concrete results, Associated Men Student President Ralph Vetterlein said late yesterday. Vetterlein said delegates became acquainted with each other and the methods of student government in the high schools.

The conference delegates formed an action committee with the thought in mind to merge student ideas and the promotion of better understanding of high school life in the city.

Dick Lingelsen, Commerce, heads the committee, and Boh Korte, Polytechnic; Diane Lister, Lincoln; and George Trabert, Lincoln, round out the membership.

The conference opened shortly after 1 p.m., with Vetterlein and Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare here, welcoming the delegates. Dr. Clish then spoke on the aims of the conference and how "democracy is served through the medium of student government."

Later the officers separated into panel discussions which brought an intermingling of ideas. Chairman Bob Foehr, Lowell, and the president's panel discussed high school rallies and spirit.

The group found that methods at the high schools hardly differ. They further found that the average length of rallies runs one hour.

Associated Student President Tom Dill suggested that rallies should be under student control.

After the two final panels, Vetterlein and Jackie Lantheaume, Associated Women Student president, suggested forming the action committee.

Following the conference, delegates adjourned for dinner in the faculty dining room and were invited to attend the City College-East Los Angeles football game in Kezar Stadium.

Barrels On Campus

Alpha Lambda Chi Has Book Drive

Sponsorship of a book and magazine drive for troops overseas was announced as the Fall semester project for Alpha Lambda Chi, Shirley Maritzen, president, said yesterday.

Barrels will be placed on campus for collection Monday through Wednesday, November 20 to 22. The books and magazines will be shipped to wounded troops in the Korean theater of operations and camps in Japan. Arrangements were made with the Merchant Marine library to ship the books, Miss Maritzen declared.

General reading matter like books, magazines, pocket books, comics are needed to supply the demand of servicemen overseas for diversion.

Help has been promised by the Inter-Sorority Council and other campus groups in the drive and in the packing prior to shipment.

The club, since 1938, has been sponsoring welfare and other projects. Indicating their enthusiasm, this semester's 12 members have already piled Miss Maritzen's basement with books gathered off campus.

Miss Maritzen urged students to bring in reading material during the collection drive's duration.

Movie, Club Meets For College Hour

Club meetings are scheduled for the college hour Friday, in previously assigned rooms, Frank Meyn, Club Activities Board president, said yesterday.

Groups accepted on campus by Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, although their petitions were late, are the Hotel and Restaurant Society and the Music Guild. Twenty-four clubs are still off campus, Meyn declared.

The Music Guild includes the A Cappella Choir, Band Association, Treble Clef, Orchestra, Symphony Forum, Lambda Alpha, Mu Iota Psi, and the Men's Glee Club.

Friday's college hour will also feature a condensed version of Mutiny on the Bounty, starring Hollywood actors Charles Laughton and Clark Gable. The film will be presented by the audio visual aids department, and students are invited to attend.

Club meetings will also be held during the college hour on Friday, November 17 in designated rooms, Meyn said.

School Government Conference An Intelligent Promotional Idea

THE high school student government conference, held Friday in the lounge and jointly conducted by the Associated Men and Women Students, was a farsighted and intelligent idea. The idea behind the meeting was to promote better understanding of the college's academic, athletic, and social affairs among the high schools of San Francisco.

By inviting high school officers to the campus, the college gained support and a valuable work of public relations was rendered the college. Further the [illegible] students carried back to their respective schools a concrete and lasting impression of the college.

Through this medium the city's high schools and the college will have far closer relations than in the past. Moreover, the conference provided an instrument in finding solutions to problems that plague student governments everywhere. To wit, finances, lagging loyalty or spirit, and greater social activities.

Of course the conference, during the course of its short sessions, could not solve, or even attempt to solve completely, all of student government problems. However, a step in the right direction was made.

To Ralph Vetterlein, AMS president, and Jackie Lantheaume, AWS president, and the committee goes our sincere applause.

We suggest that the government conference be held again next Spring. Or better yet, it could be made a semesterly event, something high school officers will look forward to attending.

ON Friday the Publicity Committee voted to install Georgia Watkins as chairman of the committee following the resignation of Mary Lou Cooper. Mrs. Cooper tendered her resignation for private reasons not relevant here. Needless to say we are sorry to see Mrs. Cooper leave for she is the sort of person who does her work with consistency and not with just mere flashes of work. In short, Mrs. Cooper, worked quietly and without fanfare.

To Mrs. Watkins we wish the best of luck in her new job. Being familiar with her work on The Guardsman we feel sure the Publicity Committee can expect another competent and reliable chairman.

trick-or-treat new tradition; elders give kids competition

IN the last few years a new type of legal extortion has become the vogue on that favorite day of all kids, Halloween.

The fad in our day was dumping garbage cans and heaving an occasional egg or bit of ripe fruit but it never entered our heads to make Halloween a day of plenty by ringing doorbells and giving the "trick or treat" call.

Feeling that the trick or treat routine has become an American institution we sent forth an emissary of our own on Halloween night to see what sort of a reception the general public gives a youngster who would accept an apple or a few cookies in place of throwing ripe vegetables.

The nearest thing to a child of gibble age at hand was a young man of 17 who stands 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighs a mere 200 lbs. With a long black robe, the mask of a giggling witch on his face and a large paper bag to gather in the loot, our emissary ventured forth to take the public's pulse.

WITCH WATCHED

A companion dogged the footsteps of our trick-or-treater and recorded the historic experience from the shadows of the background.

The calls at the doors were routine. The people who answered the door were at first surprised, then somewhat amused and finally slightly irritated if the interview was prolonged. They felt no compunction to add to the paper bag with even a niblet, and, at the end of the conversation gave a snort and slammed the door.

The only surprise our emissary received in the course of his travels was the fact that he wasn't the only over-aged or over-sized spook running from door to door to gather up the goodies.

After pushing only a few doorbells, he ran into some wicked competition in the form of an elderly lady, costumed, of all things, as an old lady, mask and all.

GAY GRANDMOTHER

Even with the disguise it was easy enough to tell by the ancient walk and the cackling voice, it was in reality an old gal out to join the kiddies in a night of gaiety. While she was being questioned about her surprise appearance, one got the not-so-faint odor of a beverage on her breath that surely wasn't sweet apple cider.

When asked why she was out wandering around, she replied she was a spirit from another strata who was free to enjoy the material world until the cock crowed the next morning.

When the witches, skeletons and elves on Halloween start growing beards and gray hair, it's time to lock the door and tell them to come back when they're of age.

Determined Dogs, Children Harass Reporters

Fantasy? Reality?

Job Seekers Find Varied Positions In Amori's Office

By Henry Loule

A point along the line where fantasy extends into reality can be found in the office of Joseph Amori, placement director.

Outwardly the office is an ordinary cubicle flanked by a waiting room in Building 2. This is where students go to seek work, either part-time or full-time.

In the memories of Amori and certain students are experiences that grew out of "just a job." Amori has been asked to find work for students desiring such jobs as female impersonating, deep sea diving, and other peculiar occupations.

On a long day, Amori interviews about 150 students, all of whom are seeking work. Sandwiched between these talks are calls from prospective employers.

A year ago a student was given a job with an Ocean Avenue pharmacy. He did his work well, never realizing that his employer was President of the Northern California Druggists' Association. To the student' surprise, he was asked to take over the association's insurance representation which had been vacated by the death of the former representative.

It is expected that this former drug clerk will have an income of $10,000 per annum.

Not so lucky in money matters was another student who worked the spotlight in one of San Francisco's night clubs. After the club closed the student would dive in the pool of the night club.

It was not for the enjoyment of swimming, but for the money. Patrons had made a wishing well of the pool, and in order to cinch their wishes, were very generous. He was doing very well until one night the manager got wise and threw the spotlight on the student.

In his report to Amori, the student complained that the manager was too selfish to share the profits.

Forgotten Men

Students Ignore Da Vinci, Edison

As schools go, City College is young and modern, lacking the ivy-covered traditions of such things omnipotent statues and the like have evoked through the hoary years.

In the case of the two huge heads flanking the south entrance of the science building, there are no traditions to date.

Sculptured in the modern classical form so popular during the WPA thirties, the identity of these two personages is not often recognized. To students who study and loll in the back of the building, the sculptured images of Leonardo Da Vinci and Thomas Alva Edison are non-existent.

The selection of Leonardo Da Vinci representing ancient science was more or less an accidental one. He was a yield from the San Francisco Exposition in 1940, Edison, because of his prolific contributions to modern science, was unanimously chosen for balance.

Da Vinci and Edison will remain partially anonymous until the time when the entire campus is located on the hill. With the future erection of the fine arts and library buildings adjacent to the science buildings, the students should "find" these two statues as a source for legend and tradition.

Hurley Village Tots And Parents Lead Busy Lives

By Georgia Watkins

First impression received by visitors to Hurley Village, the campus home of many married students, is usually of a confused jumble of dogs and children. The children are all sizes, all ages. The dogs are small and large, thoroughbreds and mongrels.

But children and dogs have at least one thing in common—they have definite minds of their own. This was proved last week when they were all assembled to have their pictures taken.

First the children would be all together, but no dogs. Then the dogs would appear but no children. Then dogs and children would finally be gathered only to have a "disagreement" develop among the dogs. This was no sooner under contral than a particularly strong-willed red-head stated firmly that he wanted his picture taken alone or not at all.

At the end of an hour the children —Mike Meserve, Gary Lammasson, Patricia Baker, Teeny Damon, Kathy McKeever, Harvey Smevald, and Sandy Caldwell, were bubbling over with energy, the dogs were wagging their tails in glee, while two reporters, a photographer, and numerous helpful neighbors were on the verge of collapse.

A visitor to the Village cannot but realize however, that the many happy children and dogs are actually a symbol of the sort of life lived in Hurley Village.

Children are welcomed, and in addition to dogs, pets range from cats and gold fish to birds and hamsters.

Life in Hurley Village is a busy one for all concerned, with the majority of the husbands working part-time in addition to attending college, and many of the wives working full-time.

To many of the occupants, the apartments and cottages are a first real home, and while to others the houses may seem plain or even drab, to the Hurley Village residents they are the equal of any mansion ever built.

Pulse of the Campus

• 1707 shatters happiness

Editor, The Guardsman:

With everybody so horribly happy here at City College I feel like a beast to shatter the silence which hangs like a weight around the neck.

First, it seems that someone and everyone is unaware that student street-car tickets were expressly intended to reduce rates for every individual who attends a school in San Francisco. To aggravate the wrong, here at CCSF many who cannot afford $5 for a Student Body Card are also denied the right to purchase reduced rate car tickets. Everybody happy?

Another giggly situation is the case of the lost Student Body Card. Its former owner finds himself excluded from all Associated Student privileges because he cannot produce a card, and continues until he decides to shell out an additional dollar to get a replacement card. A.S. membership is $5.00. Why must he pay $6.00? He doesn't, it is unconstitutional! It also doesn't make sense. Why must an additional dollar be paid in order to replace a lost receipt for $5.00? The problem of the conniving individual is only partially met, principles sacrificed, and all at the expense of the innocent. Everybody happy?

Shots At RAMdom

Navy declares show must go on; talented twins twirl on rainswept stage

MAKING that all important step from the rank of amateur to professional, Katherine Sheehan, student here on the campus, can boast the thrill of selling her first story.

The story, a human interest yarn, concerns a cop, his horse and the children to whom he gave rides. Miss Sheehan's first literary success will appear in the American Weekly, a Sunday supplement of the San Francisco Examiner.

BENEVOLENT NAVY

Here on the campus Frankie and Johnny, a production of the drama students under the direction of Stuart Hyde will go on as planned, will that is, if the United States Navy has anything to say about it.

They (U. S. Navy) notified "Johnny" (student Merv Murphy) to report to Treasure Island on the Friday night that "Johnny" should be on stage with "Frankie," and for awhile the problem of what to do stumped the experts, but a solution was neatly reached.

If "the show must go on," it must go on, even if it goes on a day late, so instead of the performances being held on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday nights, the Friday night show was shifted to Saturday night.

Immediately the Navy, not to be outdone by the students, gave notice that under no circumstances would they interfere with the stage tradition, so they gave Murphy Friday night off. Now the show will go on as scheduled.

Rain, which chased most students indoors a few weeks ago, evidently brought new life to the Seitz twins, Tani and Dranne, who normally may be found stunting the growth of the grass in front of Building 3.

The rain brought them to their feet, and sans makeup and surroundings, they proceeded to do what appeared to the onlookers as ballet steps.

The twirling circles of femininity brought new life into the eyes of all the male audience, while the women present shrugged their shoulders, evidently thinking of easier methods for contracting pneumonia.

The twins then proceeded to demonstrate their artistic ability by retouching the photo of Freddy Martin on the poster in Building 4.

SOGGY SARDINES

Complaints flew from tongue to tongue a few Wednesdays ago when the shuttle bus running to Forest Hill station appeared in front of the Main Building.

The bus arrived full to the brim and as the doors opened several dozen City College souls attempted to join the traveling throng. They had only been waiting upwards of 20 minutes to get home without drowning.

Of dozens only a lucky seven or eight could make it into the sardine-packed coach, while the others had to begin waiting all over again. Actually they were lucky for that same bus passed many a person wanting to pay his fare who had no shelter to stand under.

Peculiar Bookmarks Intrigue Librarian

Almost anything can be found in returned library books from playing cards to five dollar bills, Clement Skrabak, library head, revealed recently.

The recent loss of that picture of a favorite girl friend, or that small rose, picked the other day, or the package of hairpins, very likely may have been left in the last library book "the loser" returned, Skrabak suggested.

Students usually put these various items in the books as bookmarks and then leave them there, the librarian said.

Perhaps the oddest item ever discovered was a small envelope containing some very bright red hair and marked, "Ralph's when he was two."

Ram Soccermen Tangle With Undefeated USF Dons Tonight In Featured Conference Tilt

By Jack Spalding

Coach Roy Diederichsen's second place soccermen encounter the top dog U.S.F. Dons tonight at Cox Stadium in the feature game of the doubleheader.

The Rams are the only team able to score against the tight defense thrown up by the Hilltoppers, who are undefeated and untied in four conference tilts. The highscoring Dons have averaged better than four goals per game, a goodly amount in this low scoring college conference.

In last week's conference games the Rams coupled a 1-0 victory over San Francisco State and a 4-4 deadlock with Stanford to move back into second spot ahead of the University of California. The Bears dropped to third as they split with Santa Clara and U.S.F.

Tony Schindler scored the only goal in the Wednesday evening tilt with San Francisco State and the Rams held on to take the 1-0 win. Down on the Farm last Saturday it was a different story as the Indians came from behind to gain a tie with the locals.

Ahead 3-1 at one time the Rams couldn't contend with the absence of four of their more valuable players and the Indians came back to knot the count at 4-4. The defensive play of fullback Nick Vasileff was needed badly and the loss of three others also hurt.

Other games scheduled for this week are City College and Stanford on Saturday and San Francisco State at U.S.F. also on Saturday. The second game tonight at Cox will be between Santa Clara and San Francisco State.

Conference standings:

	W	L	T	Pct.	Goals F	Goals A
U.S.F.	4	0	0	1.000	18	1
C.C.S.F.	2	1	2	.667	11	11
California	3	2	1	.600	14	17
S. F. State	1	3	0	.250	5	8
Stanford	0	2	2	.000	11	18
Santa Clara	0	1	1	.000	2	5

Balboa Bucs Win Intra Hoop Title; Lyons Take Second

By Carl Sahm

The Balboa Bucs, by virtue of winning all seven of their league contests, were crowned champions of the 1950 Intramural Basketball League, last week.

Second place was not decided until the playoff of a tie between the Lyons and the Balboa Pirates last Tuesday, each team having a record of five victories and a single defeat. The Lyons won the playoff, 37-32, and from this score it would seem that the capturing of second place honors was not an easy matter.

Such was the case. The Pirates built up an early lead, but with seven minutes gone in the first half, the Lyons tied the game with a set-up under the basket.

A minute later the Lyons sank another two-pointer to put them ahead. They slowly built up their lead and led at half-time, 21-14.

The second half was more evenly matched. Jack Bettencourt and Bob Icorn of the Pirates scored two quick buckets after the jump, making the score 21-18.

A free throw by Terry McGovern brought the Pirates even closer to the Lyons, who hadn't scored a point as yet in the half. Senegal finally cracked the Pirate defense and scored the Lyons' first two-pointer of this period.

Local Women Hold Swim Clinic

Invitations went out last week to each San Francisco high school and junior high school requesting that representatives from each school participate in the annual Women's Athletic Association swim clinic.

The clinic is to be held at the Y.W.C.A. from 2 to 5:30 p.m. on Friday, November 17, according to an announcement issued by Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser.

The swimmers, after being divided into groups of six, are to be treated to demonstrations of various strokes and life-saving methods by the members of the City College swimming class, and will then receive 20 minutes of individual coaching from Poppy Perone, Roy Burkhead, and Jack Wallace.

San Mateo Junior College is to be the host of a badminton tournament scheduled November 15.

Experts Pick CCSF To Down Hartnell At Cox Saturday Night; Cal Over UCLA

Looming on this week's grid schedule as top games are City College's cleatmen battling the Panthers from Hartnell to get back on the victory road, and the Bears from Cal tangling with their little brothers from Los Angeles in a family fight. USF, Stanford, and San Jose State have been picked to win their respective games by the experts.

Jack Spalding, sports writer, is still topping the list of pickers with a count of 19 wins against 6 losses for a .750 percentage. Walt Heil, Guardsman editor, and John Dierking, sports writer, are tied for second place with 17 and 8 and .680 apiece.

Rams Lose 20-14 In Final Seconds; Try Again Against Hartnell At Cox

Two Clubs Tangle In Evenly-Matched Games Saturday

Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams will take to the turf at Cox Stadium next Saturday night against Hartnell's Panthers in their last home game of the season, one that is shaping up as the most evenly matched tilt of the 1950 schedule.

Hartnell has won three games and lost two in 1950. Taft, San Mateo and Menlo Colleges all fell by the wayside, while Fresno squeezed out a close 13-12 win and Stockton won by a not-so-close tally of 33-7.

Stockton, incidentally, is one of the top contenders for the southern division championship, so the loss to the Mustangs was not entirely unexpected.

Elliott "Ab" Wilson, University of Oregon graduate, now in his second year as Panther coach, has molded a well-balanced team that is noted for its ability to bounce. In addition, he has had good material to work with.

No less than four men from the Hawaiian Islands may be found in the starting lineup. Fred Swan, left end, Ken Dias, right end, and three starting backs, and Frank Paz at halfback, and Jim Miyasato at fullback, all came from Roosevelt High in the Pacific Territory.

Hartnell's attack is masterminded by another newcomer to California football, Johnny Gerard came to the Panthers from Beaver Falls High School, Pennsylvania, where he quarterbacked a team that made all-county for three years hand-running.

Outstanding Oregonian on the squad is Bob Burton, who handled the center chores for Hartnell so well that he was named all NCJCC center last year.

As in other home games, admission to the game is free to all Associated Student members. Kickoff time is 8 p.m.

Hillsman Greets Forty-Three In Cage Turnout

By John Dierking

Coach Ralph Hillsman's first call for varsity basketball practice last Wednesday looked very impressive as 43 hardcourt hopefuls turned out with more players expected to sign up this week.

Looking over this year's potential basketball hopefuls, who were classed as one of the eight best teams in the nation last year, Hillsman told them they had quite a job on their hands because every school in the conference will be out to get last year's NCJCC champions.

With only five returning lettermen at last week's confab, Hillsman also stated that all berths are wide open on this year's squad.

This year's basketball contingent will find themselves engaged in some 22 tentative games for the coming 1950-51 season, including conference games and excluding the Modesto and Sacramento Tournaments, when they go into their first game on November 29, at Hamilton Air Force base.

The Ram basketmen are now in the new Big Six Division of the NCJC Conference, which includes Modesto, Sacramento, Stockton, East Contra Costa, San Mateo, and recently added Santa Rosa who transferred from the Coast Division.

Also included on City College's itinerary will be preliminary games at the California-Washington and Georgia Tech encounters, as well as preliminary games at the Cow Palikes recovered. It was then that Varpalace during the Christmas holidays.

Before the Ram casabans get into full swing for their first conference games against Modesto on January 12, the basketball squad will be in Modesto for the tournament from January 3-6.

Following their last conference game of the year against San Mateo on February 23, City College will then junket to the playoff tourney in Sacramento.

All three divisions, Big Six, Coast, and Golden Valley, will engage for championship honors which entitles the winner to a trip to Kansas for the National Junior College Championships.

Sacramento, Cubs Top North League

Sacramento College and Santa Rosa College continued their winning ways in the Northern Division of the NCJCC last week by downing Yuba and Grant Tech Colleges, respectively, to remain undefeated.

Sacramento dumped fifth-place Yuba 20-7, while the Bear Cubs were rolling over Grant Tech 52-0.

Napa College, knocked out of the perfect-record column two weeks ago by Sacramento, held onto third place by squeezing by weak Marin, 32-19. The latter squad, which has played only the weak sisters of the Northern Division to date, is in fourth place with a two won, two lost record. Yuba follows close behind with 2-3.

Last-Second Pass, Fumbles Defeat Gridders At Kezar

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

City College of San Francisco's gridders pulled the greatest upset of the season—almost—Friday night when they held the visiting East Los Angeles Huskies through four quarters only to lose in the closing seconds, 20-14.

The Rams battled the southerners on even terms all through the game at Kezar Stadium until a fumble on their own 37-yard line gave the Huskies possession of the ball with one minute left to play. The third of three desperation passes by Husky quarterback Ben Vartanian to end Manuel Perez gave East Los Angeles the win.

There were only 30 seconds left.

Rams Drive 64 Yards

City College scored first early in the initial quarter. After East Los Angeles had punted dead on the Ram 36, the locals moved 64 yards in five plays. Ralph de la Torre passed to Dick Galliani from the Husky 33 for the score. Rod deCristofaro converted, Joe deCristofaro fielded.

Still in the first quarter, East Los Angeles came booming back. Stan Haan's fumble was recovered by the Huskies on the Ram 35 and they moved to the 14-yard line in four plays. Fullback Lewis Williams then scooted the remaining distance around his own left end.

City College held the lead, however. Guard Tom Zaby, who up to tonight had kicked 24 out of 28 conversions, had his extra point attempt blocked by end Belvin Gage, who dashed in and batted the ball to the turf. Score: 7-6.

Huskies Take Lead

In the second quarter the Rams held the Huskies on downs inside the ten-yard stripe, but the latter brought the punt back to the Ram 31. Four plays later Vartanian passed to Perez for the score. Zaby's kick was good this time, and the half-time score read 13-7.

After the ball had changed hands six times in the third quarter, de la Torre passed to Al Endriss, who made a pretty leaping catch on the goal line for the touchdown. The 23-yard play climaxed a drive of 48 yards. The deCristofaro brothers made the then-all-important conversion and the college gridders held a one-point lead, 14-13.

With a minute and ten seconds left, Bob McBride intercepted a Husky pass on his own 37-yard line, and Ram rooters gave a sigh of relief . . .

On the first play from scrimmage, Oscar Brown fumbled and the Huskies recovered. It was then that Vartanian started the passing which gave his team the victory.

defense: ex-trojan stars for pro club

RAMblings . .

By Jack Spalding

offense: drake fans high on bulldog back

IT isn't often, especially in this era of offensive-minded football, that a defensive star makes an appearance in the pro ranks.

Don Doll, former University of Southern California backfield ace, is one of the few exceptions to the rule. Currently Doll is being tabbed by Detroit sports writers as "Mr. Perpetual Motion," an apt title for the Lion back whose defensive coverage is, to say the least, exceptional.

Coach Bo McMillin placed Doll on the defensive platoon when the 185-pound Trojan reported to Detroit in 1949, and Doll responded with 11 pass interceptions for 301 yards. Already this season he has intercepted seven passes and at his present rate he will smash the National League record of 18 interceptions.

Doll was reported to have put in a request to play on the West Coast, preferably with the Los Angeles Rams. Coach Joe Stydahar heard the report and attempted to set up a trade.

To the trade rumors McMillin responded, "Sure we'll trade Doll, and all we want in return is Glenn Davis, Bob Waterfield and Dan Reeves' bank account." A jest of course, but McMillin is no douht happy the trade attempt was dropped.

On the other side of the platoon system the name of Johnny Bright crops up. Bright, a junior playing for Drake University, a member of the Missouri Valley Conference, is on his way to record shattering heights.

In 1949 the 192-pounder ran and passed for a total of 1,950 yards to lead the nation in total offense. That's a record in any league and Bright was awarded all-conference honors and All-American mention.

Already this season the Drake halfback has amassed 1,343 yards and he should crack his '49 mark with ease. There is also a good possibility that Frankie Sinkwich's marks, established in 1940 through '42 at Georgia, will fall by the wayside under the deluge of yards accumulated by Bright.

Recent figures show Bright leading the nation with 48 completions in 72 pass attempts and 627 yards by rushing in 82 tries. Bright is a fast as well as a powerful runner and reportedly a fine linebacker.

And while it may be a weak pun, Drake football fans are definitely seeing the bright side of things during the 1950 grid season.

AWS Honors Frosh Women, High School Seniors Next Thursday; Tea To Feature Fashions, Treble Clef

High school seniors and college freshmen will be honored at the semi-annual Associated Women Students' tea Thursday, November 16, from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., in the student lounge in Building 2, Jackie Lantheaume, AWS president, said yesterday.

Details for the program will include a fashion show and entertainment by the college women's chorus, the Treble Clef, under the direction of Gertrude Norgard.

Eilene Carroll, prominent San Francisco hushess woman, will supply the clothes for the fashion show from her Ocean Avenue shop, as she has done during past semesters, Miss Lantheaume revealed.

The theme for the fashion show is still uncertain, Miss Lantheaume explained, but there will be five models selected from the college to show the sports, date, dress, and formal styles.

Preceding the fashion show, which starts at 3:30 p.m., the members of the Treble Clef present their program.

Members of the committee working with Miss Lantheaume are the AWS officers, including Shirley Maritzen, vice-president; Marilyn Marr, treasurer; Karen Wolseth, corresponding secretary; and Delores Mirri, recording secretary. Faculty sponsor for the AWS is Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

More than 100 invitations have been sent out for this fashion tea, so a large group is expected to attend, Miss Lantheaume added.

DEAN MARGARET DOUGHERTY will preside over the semi-annual AWS tea tomorrow afternoon in the student lounge.

Council Approves New Monogram For Block SF Society

Members of the Student Council passed a resolution last week accepting a new style emblem submitted by the Block SF Society for their organization.

The new emblem for the society will be an interlocking block SF, the "S" in white with a red border, the "F" in red with a white border. The replaced emblem was white with a red border. Reasons for the change were for easier recognition and greater distinction, Rod de Cristofaro, club member said.

At the same meeting Thursday, Tom Dill, Associated Student president, made a report on the accomplishments of the California Junior College Student Government Conference at Sacramento on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, October 26 through 28.

Points stressed at the conference were the adoption of the Information Service into the constitution of the state organization, the appointment of Jim Crough of the college as the new information service chairman, and unanimous approval of the conference on a resolution condemning the cause of Communism.

The council also passed a resolution Thursday honoring Dr. J. Paul Mohr, former vice-president of the college and now president of Sacramento Junior College, with a life time Associated Student membership card.

Ushers Needed For Ballet Russe

Women interested in ushering for the Ballet Russe, scheduled to start its run at the War Memorial Opera House, Monday evening, November 29, should see Dean Margaret Dougherty immediately for passes.

An usher pass is issued for each presentation and women should plan the number of times and specific hours they want to work, so that they will receive the correct passes, Miss Dougherty said.

College women are currently ushering at the Sadler's Wells Ballet now being performed on the stage of the War Memorial Opera House.

The London Troupe opened early last week and is scheduled to play through Sunday evening, November 12. Two matinees will be presented on Saturday and Sunday, November 11 and 12.

Fire College Offers Atomic Warfare Course

Plans for the addition of a course in atomic warfare and radiology to the fire college are being made this week by Michael Lo Presti, fire college coordinator.

The courses will be offered here Lo Presti and William Gilmore, director of training, are studying the course at Treasure Island with plans for eventual introduction here.

They expect to add the course to those offered at the fire college.

Sorority Rushing Comes To Halt; Plans For "Hell Week" Underway

Now that the sorority rushing is completed, plans are under way for the feminine version of "hell week" which begins next Monday.

For their second rush affair, the women of Zeta Chi recently held a smorgasbord, complete with trimmings, at the Alameda home of Nadine Yoeman; while Phi Beta Rho gave a traditional Circus Party at St. Francis Church. Members were attired in clown suits to carry out the theme.

Delta Psi members are singing the praises of the Tau Chi Sigma men who generously helped them prepare a "spaghetti dinner," and recommend their work to anyone who needs chefs for similar occasions.

Beta Tau men and pledges proved themselves capable assistants when they aided the Theta Taus in decorating for their Luau.

Beta Tau's pledges include Stan "Skip" Ress, Frank Barranti, Len Rodney, Joe Maroni, Ralph Blumenthal, Al Weed, and Steve Lombardi.

Neophytes to Tri-Epsilon are Ray Nelson, Derroll Magee, Ron Lieman, Walt Conrod, John Conrod, Bob Bailey, Bill Conde, Amer Bilen, Spencer Sargent, and Gary Maslee.

Alpha Sigma Delta's newcomers include Jim Cress, Doug Dunn, Ed Hallett, Bob Lacampagne, Len Lundgren, Ted Neerenkaff, Fred Schram, Dick Hamhead, Bob Van Austen, Chuck Vosburg, and John Swett.

The Engineering Society announces that there will be an important meeting during Friday's college hour in Room 204. All students who are interested are welcome to attend.

At a recent meeting the Inter-Sorority Council voted to send a Care package to Europe in the near future. Groups participating are Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau, and Zeta Chi.

Wedding bells will ring tomorrow for former Theta Tau Betty Cartwright and Richard Myers, while another Theta, Peggy Rutter, plans to tie the knot with Russ Meehe on December 10.

With the resignation of president Joe Litcofsky, Bruce Kombaugh is the newly installed president of Gamma Phi Epsilon. Litcofsky is moving to Boston, where he will marry Barbara Sulkin, and take over the management of a Boston supermarket.

Alpha Phi Omega, the college service fraternity, announces the following officers for the semester: Eric Malmberg, president; McGregor Wilkinson, vice-president; William Louie, secretary; Gene Saypes, treasurer; and Richard Englensa, CAB representative.

Members of the Merchandising Club have scheduled a "Turkey Hop" dance for Wednesday, November 22. The group also gave a welcome dinner for freshman merchandising students.

The newly elected officers of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society are Charles Myerson, president; Klaus Schale, vice-president; Marilyn Hoberg, recording secretary; Gloria Naccarini, corresponding secretary; and Joe Azzolino, CAB representative.

Pi Mu Gamma had a bowling party Saturday at Lincoln Bowl, Sixth Avenue and Clement Street, for a group of 20 members and guests.

Band To Parade In Full Dress At Ram-Hartnell Game Saturday

BRIGHTLY UNIFORMED MEMBERS of the college band make their third appearance of the football season Saturday when they play at the City College-Hartnell College game at Cox Stadium. The 35 piece band under the direction of Mike Cahn, instructor, will perform during the half-time activities.

The band made its first appearance two years ago in the uniforms above at the College of Marin game. This picture was taken in Salinas during the same year, when the Rams and Hartnell played a crucial game in quest of the "A" division championship.

Saturday night's contest has little bearing on the conference race. The student band leader is Jerry Barnes, trombonist, who promises that the band will try to bolster spirit among City College rooters.

Friday Deadline For Symphony Season Tickets

Deadline for the purchase of season tickets at student rates for the Thursday evening performanees of the San Francisco Symphony has been extended to Friday, November 10, Meyer Cahn, Symphony Forum sponsor, said late yesterday afternoon.

The Thursday evening performances start November 23, and tickets are available at the bank in the main building. To purchase tickets, faculty members must meet the conditions printed on the back of the ticket.

The Musical Association of San Francisco stipulates that the ticket is for student use only. Proof of student status is required prior to admittance to the performance.

Season tickets for students range from $21.60 for orchestra, grand circle, and dress circle seats, to $16 for balcony and balcony circle seats.

Cahn further disclosed that single performance tickets are being sold in the auditorium. Prices here are $1.35 for grand tier, orchestra, and dress circle seats and $1 for balcony seats.

The Symphony Forum, which conducts the sale of the tickets on campus, is an organization of 30 Bay Are., colleges formed for the better understanding of music, Cahn said.

He also listed a partial tally of musical artists who will perform. They include Bruno Walter, Igor Stravinski, Pierre Monteux, and Yehudi Menuhin.

Social Committee Drops Post-Game Dance

Post-game dances have been permanently cancelled from the Associated Student social calendar of activities, according to an announcement released Monday by Social Committee Chairman Beverley Jank.

Decisive action to abandon the dances was taken as a result of low attendance at the Monterey game dance, October 14, and scheduling difficulties with other night dances so far this season.

Another dance, set for after the Hartnell game at Cox Stadium this Saturday, has been dropped because the game will be played in the afternoon. Afternoon dances, Miss Jank explained, don't get rousing turnouts.

Denman Award Winners Named

Denman scholarships of $125 each were awarded yesterday to Sondra Stull and Esther Ossin by President Louis G. Conlan.

Both winners are graduates of Lincoln High School and members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college scholastic honor society. Miss Stull is an education major, and Miss Ossin a letters and science major.

The scholarships are awarded annually to women students of the college who are graduates of San Francisco public high schools.

The scholarship offer is made by Judge William Denman and his sister, Mrs. Mary Denman Cheatham, in honor of their father, James Denman, who was superintendent of San Francisco schools and later President of the Board of Education.

Further stipulations provide that candidates intend to graduate from City College, and that their scholastic records both in high school and at the college be of high quality.

Plans Formulated For Floriculture Show Entries

Floriculture students are formulating plans for their entries in the California Spring Garden Show scheduled for April at the Oakland Exposition, Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor, said yesterday.

Approximately 2000 plants, whose final value will be about $500, are now being prepared for the garden show.

The college has been in floriculture competitions for four years and has won two first prizes and two second prizes.

First prize was recently awarded to the greenhouse management class for a plant exhibited at the California State Fair.

Pat Haucke, floriculture student, was awarded the Alice Eastwood scholarship for work done last semester. The scholarship, consisting of $100, was judged by the San Francisco Garden Club. Miss Haucke received high recognition for begonia plants which she grew on the campus.

Floriculture women students are now planting trees and plants which will eventually be placed around the campus.

Esther Scott has a rare collection of conifers (cone-bearing trees) which will be planted on the college grounds when suitable water systems are installed, Nelson said.

Fuchsia plants grown by Geraldine Johnson will soon be placed on the east side of both the women's and men's gymnasiums.

Beth Johnson has started some cacti plants which will soon surround the east side of the greenhouse. Plans are being made to terrace this side and also to have a small water fall which will be operated by a pump.

The college library subscribes to 250 periodicals and numbers more than 30,000 books.

Opera Workshop Cast Performs Aida For Music History Class Today

OPERA WORKSHOP vocalist Eileen Scott will sing today for music literature students in Room 1A of the auditorium.

Selections from the opera Aida are being presented today at 11 a.m. by Opera Workshop members to one of their smallest audiences, workshop director Flossita Badger announced, in Room 1a, auditorium.

Because of the smallness of the room, only a limited number of students, other than those of the music 30 B class which has the room at that time, will be admitted. Students wishing to attend must inform Miss Badger before 11 a.m.

The workshop cast will feature selections from Aida, with Cynthia Burke, Ruth Paxson, and Jean Bonacorsi in lead roles.

Soprano Eileen Scott and Danny Segrove, baritone, will be featured singing selections from La Boheme. Piano accompanist will be Robert Sproule.

Autumn Serenade Theme For Friday Night AS Dance

Members of the Associated Students will twirl across the floor of the Colonial Room in the St. Francis Hotel Friday evening, when the Associated Students present their Autumn Serenade dance, Beverly Jank, Associated Student vice-president, announced yesterday afternoon.

Music for the occasion will be furnished by Jackson Terry and his orchestra from 9 p.m. to midnight.

According to Miss Jank, the proper attire for the evening is street dress for the women and suits for the men. Admission will be one Associated Student card per couple, she said.

The Associated Student dance will be the second event of the semester held off campus, the first being the Freshman class dance which was recently held at the Fairmont Hotel.

BEVERLY JANK, Associated Student vice-president, heads the committee planning the Associated Student dance scheduled Friday night at the Hotel St. Francis.

College Hour For Friday Schedules Club Meetings

Clubs on the campus will meet in their regular rooms during the college hour, 10:40 a.m., this Friday, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, announced last week.

Groups that have not been chartered or filed petitions so far, are not entitled to any of the benefits of the campus facilities, Dean Batmale said.

Friday's college hour will also feature a football game between the Student Council and The Guardsman staff male members, the game to be played on the football field.

Also for Friday's college hour activities, Madison Devlin, of the audio-visual aids department, has scheduled the showing of a film entitled Flight For Fuller Life. Devlin urged all interested to view the film in Room 136 at 10 a.m. or later, for a second performance during college hour.

The following week there is a two-day Thanksgiving holiday.

Next meeting of the Club Activities Board is scheduled at 3:30 p.m. today in Room 9k, Frank Meyn, CAB president, said early this week.

There are now approximately 30 organizations represented in the CAB, including the recently admitted Hotel and Restaurant Society and the Music Guild; as yet no other tardy petitions have been accepted by Batmale.

AGS Plans Friday Lecture Series

A series of college hour lectures on various subjects is one of the plans Alpha Gamma Sigma society is developing, Don Jensen, faculty adviser, announced yesterday.

Members of the faculty will be invited to speak on almost any topic from sports to wildlife, he declared. This type of lecture has been going on at other colleges and universities but never before attempted at this college.

Every spring, AGS members invite honor students from San Francisco high schools to visit this campus. Plans are underway to invite students during the fall semester this year, Jensen said, and the event may develop into a semi-yearly tradition.

Alpha Gamma Sigma officers are engaged in organizing an evening social event for next month.

Amori To Accept Post-Graduation Work Petitions

Students planning to graduate at the end of this semester may apply for positions through the college placement service when they file petitions for graduation, Joseph Amori, placement director, said this week.

This was made possible through a request by the Alumni Association approved by the registrar's office, to include the following question, "Do you wish the City College Alumni placement bureau to aid you in obtaining a position?" in the official graduation petition.

Amori said that the inclusion of this question should open another avenue into the workaday world for potential graduates.

Prospective graduates should take advantage of the service offered to them by registering at an early date in the placement office in Building 2, west campus, he added.

Since the college placement program has been in operation, a period of over 10 years, thousands of students have procured both part time and full time jobs not only in San Francisco, but throughout the state.

Employers and personnel directors are relying upon the college placement service more and more for qualified applicants, Amori declared.

Since the labor market has become so highly organized, he pointed out, employers not only desire but demand that applicants be screened by reputable placement agencies.

Amori and other placement specialists believe that the day of hiring "from right off the sidewalk" is passing from the employment picture.

Members of the Alumni Association receive special attention when applying for jobs.

Council Reveals Contest To Name Student Store, Plans Committee

A vote by the Student Council last week gave Bart Dempster the seat vacated by Dick Schambach, freshman member, who was forced by circumstances beyond his control to take a leave of absence from the college.

In a close contest with his one and only opponent, Leonard Rodney, Dempster managed to win by a very close margin, according to Tom Dill, Associated Student president, who announced the results.

At the close of the election, Dill congratulated the council on their fine choice of candidates.

The Public Utilities Commission held a public meeting last Wednesday, November 8, to announce their final decision on the discontinuance of the K carline.

From a report given to the council by Dick Schnell, who attended the meeting, the commission has decided on the following steps: the K car will continue to run to the college on week days but will be substituted by buses on the weekends; the commission will clean up the refuse at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues and build a bus stop; Ocean Avenue will be repaved.

At the council meeting Thursday, November 9, a resolution was passed to hold a student store naming contest.

So far plans include mimeographing coupons which will be distributed to the students of the college. Contestants will submit their ideas on these coupons which will then be collected and judged.

The originator of the winning name will be presented with a $25.00 money order which will be honored at the newly named student store.

A committee was formed to organize definite plans which will be announced later, and the contest is expected to end next month.

At the close of the meeting, Georgia Watkins was appointed as the new Publicity Chairman to fill the vacancy left when Mary Lou Cooper withdrew from the college.

Little Theater Ticket Pre-Sales Hint Full Houses For Three-Night Stand

Drama Group Hits Boards With 3 Single-Act Plays

Pre-performance ticket sales show that the College Little Theater Players will present their three one-act plays to full houses tonight, tomorrow, and Friday, at 8:15 p.m., in the Little Theater.

Tragedy and comedy are combined in the evening presentations. The curtain raiser is The Hungerers, a realistic play by William Saroyan.

Ed Mulvihill is cast in the role of the writer, James Colby is the young capitalist, Ann Gilcreast is the girl, Mary Hadilch portrays the old woman, and Don Powell is the stage hand.

Powell will substitute for Colby as the capitalist in the Thursday night performance, Stuart Hyde, drama director, said last week.

Following The Hungerers is the musical production of Frankie and Johnny, by Elizabeth Wilson Hughes. The cast includes Frank Mascarelli as the piano player, James Stowers as the bartender, Dolores Lampert as Frankie, Mervyn Murphy as Johnny, Dawn Kidd as Nelly Bly, and George Jackson as Jojo Ned.

Between scenes in Frankie and Johnny, two dancers, Joan Whité and Andrew Hansen, will do a dance in silhouette in keeping with the theme of the play.

The finale for each evening's performance will be the dramatic and tense Auto-Da-Fe by Tennessee Williams. This play includes Patricia Wilson as Mme. Duvenet and Lloyd Spitalny as Eloi in the cast.

"Because of the size of the Little Theater, Room 28 in the main building, a total of only 300 persons will be able to see the production," Hyde said.

Tickets are now purchasable in the student bank and from drama club members. The admission price is 35 cents for Associated Student card holders and 70 cents for general admission tickets.

Drama students connected with the plays designed and constructed the sets being used. The set for Frankie and Johnny has been built permanently in place, while those for the other two plays are removable and ready for quick dismantling between plays.

FRANKIE AND JOHNNY were lovers. Then Frankie caught Johnny with Nelly and shot him dead. He was her man but he done her wrong.

The college players present this famous triangle love story, beginning tonight in the Little Theater at 8:15 p.m. and running through Friday night. Here Dawn Kidd, Nelly Bly; and Mervyn Murphy, Johnny, saunter into a tavern and are confronted by Dolores Lampert, Frankie; and Jim Stowers, the bartender.—Photo by Vipiani.

New Regulations For West Campus Parking

All Associated Student members who do not possess parking permits will be permitted to park on campus on Tuesdays and Thursdays until further notice, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced recently.

This is an experimental measure to utilize available parking space on those days, and this concession may be revoked at the discretion of the dean of men, it was pointed out.

Any student wishing to take advantage of this privilege must present his Associated Student card to the gateman in order to gain admission, Browne said.

This is not to be misconstrued as discrimination against those who do not have a card, but is merely the only method to identify the driver as a student, Browne pointed out.

Local Student's Poster Selected

The official poster to be displayed in San Francisco's observance of Printing Week, January 14-20, 1951, was selected from many submitted by a commercial art major, Pete Ledee, according to an announcement made yesterday by Don Harris, a member of the official citywide Printing Week Committee.

The leaders in the Graphic Arts industry further honored students here at the college by also announcing that the graphic arts and typography departments would also produce the official Printing Week poster.

Assisting Pete Ledee in the project were John Henshaw and Jacqueline Lantheaume, also of the art department.

Miss Lantheaume did the copywriting for the poster by giving it the title, The Art of Communication, The Printed Word, and Printers, Promoters of Understanding.

Ballet Authority Plans Lecture Here

Mrs. A. F. Twysden, secretary for the ballerina, Madame Danilova, of the Ballet Russe, will lecture to members of the music appreciation class, 27A, on the subject of the ballet at 9 a.m. tomorrow, Meyer Cahn, 27A instructor, said yesterday.

Students other than those of the 27A class are welcome to attend the lecture if classroom seating permits, Cahn said. Students desiring to attend must procure Cahn's permission before lecture time.

World War Kin Eligible For State Benefits

Widows and children of veterans killed in World War II are eligible for financial assistance from the State of California, the State Department of Veterans Affairs announced recently.

The legislature recently extended these benefits to the dependents of men killed in the current Korean action.

Students benefitting from this program are paid $20 per month while attending high school and $40 per month while enrolled in an institution above the high school level.

Students applying for this assistance must have attained their sixteenth birthday, and must have been a resident of California five years before applying for the benefits. It is not required that the veteran husband or parent was a Californian, it was pointed out.

More than 1800 students have been aided by this program since its inception in 1931.

This program is entirely separate, and apart from, and in addition to the compensation paid dependents by the United States government, the department said.

Any student interested in obtaining further information or in applying for these benefits may consult F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare.

Book Drive Opens On Campus Monday

That reading appetites of servicemen can never be satisfied was a declaration in the publicity on the book and magazine drive headed by the Alpha Lambda Chi sorority durinh November 20 to 22.

Help from William Eckert, art department instructor, to make this drive successful will be posters and barrels decorations.

"Permission has already been granted to place the book barrels by the silver pole in the main building, in the cafeteria and in the west campus student lounge," Shirley Maritzen, Alpha Lamlda Chi president, said.

Tops in reading for servicemen are pocket books, magazines, bound books, and comics. Students are urged to look around at home for any reading material for the book barrels, Miss Maritzen said.

The collection of books will be sent to the Merchant Marine library for distribution to the various rest camps in Korea and Japan.

Amendments Should Be Published In Guardsman By December Sixth

ALTHOUGH students on campus are still looking forward to the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays, the Student Council and Election Committee began, last week, to make plans for the Associated Student elections in early January.

This is a wise move on the part of the council. For in three weeks students here leave on a three week holiday vacation and do not return until January 2.

Present plans of the election committee call for the election on Wednesday and Thursday, January 10 and 11, or nine days after the Christmas vacation.

An important facet of the student elections are the proposed constitutional amendments which must be approved by the voters before being written into the constitution. Last semester several changes were proposed only to be wiped off the ballot at the last minute when they weren't published in The Guardsman at least two weeks prior to the election.

The constitution specifically states that all amendments be published in this publication for the express purpose of informing voters of their content. This was not done last semester, therefore the amendments were taken off the ballot.

Perhaps by the time this edition hits the streets, so to speak, the amendments will have been approved by this council—which they must be—thus allowing plenty of time for publication in The Guardsman.

However, in the event that the amendments are not passed by the council by today we would advise quick action.

THE Guardsman, because of a limited budget, will publish next week and on Wednesday, December 6. Amendments should be printed in The Guardsman no later than December 6. The editions to be published in January do not allow sufficient time for the two week notice as specified by the constitution.

We note that the Public Utilities Commission decided against removal of the K street-car line on days that the college is in session.

Original plans called for complete removal of the street cars from St. Francis Circle and students rushing to class would have to switch to buses. It goes without saying that we are pleased with the decision to run street cars during the days the college is in session and buses over weekends.

flag-waving days are gone; Korea is nothing like Paris

THE old days when a red, white and blue enlistment poster, a military band, or a patriotic speech by a flag-waving politician would cause thousands of young men to enlist in the armed services are gone.

The realization of this came as a surprise to those people charged with the responsibility of gathering manpower for the country's armed forces.

They pointed to the days following World War II when boys of 16 or 17 lied about their ages to get in the Army or Navy, and men from every walk of life crowded the enlistment centers to be among the first to repay the Japs for the attack on Pearl Harbor and wondered what had happened to the old American spirit of the "Minute Man," and the "we'll beat 'em in a couple of months and be back home" attitude.

MADEMOISELLE AND MEDALS

The explanation is very simple. At the start of World War II there had been 20 years of peace. The veterans had come home, found jobs, raised families, and their experiences during the war became a sequence of memories about the gay nights in Paris, the tough but good-hearted sergeants, and the day they had received a medal for outstanding service. These were the stories they told to the younger brothers and the sons who once again, 20 years later, were thrilled by the thoughts of far-away places, mademoiselles, and the cheering crowds as they pictured themselves being awarded the medal of honor.

But the situation in 1950 is quite a bit different. The younger brothers and sons of the veterans of World War II haven't had a 20-year period of peace to modify the horrors of war. They saw their brothers or fathers come home—if they came home at all—some whole, some half, some bitter, some just not giving a damn.

They read letters sent home from the Pacific and Europe describing the quarters and food, the terrible heat, the "chicken" officers and the dirty gooks. They saw newsreels to drive it home in the picture form of close-up shots of shocked Marine assault troops, screaming kamakazes sinking an aircraft carrier, and wounded lying in the mud and the Hollywood epics showed realistic films of men dying in every conceivable way.

VETERANS' ADVICE

All of these have had a powerful effect on the mind of the man of military age, but even more powerful is the veteran brother or father who gives such advice as "why be a sucker and enlist."

What is needed instead of posters showing handsome men in pretty uniforms, a military serenade, or a fast talking flag-waver, are hard cold facts and good reasons, if there are such things, as to why a 20-year-old should have to give up three or four years of his life and risk his neck to boot.

Common Ails Make Good Vaudeville

Doc Jones Salves Cuts, Bee-Stings

By Ted Gould

The importance of a physician's service is realized by everyone, once under his care. But few stop to analyze his position in community life until they have need of medical service.

Such is the case with Dr. Thomas P. Jones, the college physician. If a poll were to be taken, probably a large percentage of the college enrollment would be unaware of the presence of this short, somewhat roly-poly fellow whose face is always engaged in a friendly smile when talking.

Employed by the Department of Public Health, Dr. Jones has been administering to local students for the past five years. However, this does not hamper a flourishing private practice, in which his specialty is diagnosis.

The doctor received his basic medical education in Boston and spent two and a half years of internship in a New York hospital. He is a graduate of the United States Army Medical School.

After graduation, Dr. Jones spent several years serving as an Army doctor. His medical experience, however, has not all been along the lines of practicing. The doctor has taught medicine, autopsy, and pathology in both the Army and in an eastern medical school.

The doctor's experiences at the college have been many. In his words it has been somewhat similar to a gigantic vaudeville show, some routine cases being humorous.

However, this is not always the situation. For example: recently during an epidemic of bee stings, the area of the sting in one case had swollen into a red mass comparable to the size of a grapefruit. Most common types of cases include colds, sprained ankles, stomach disorders, cuts and bruises.

When talking to the doctor his fondness for youth becomes apparent. For the student with a problem, either personal or medical, the doctor is always ready to administer a remedy.

DR. THOMAS JONES, the campus physician, has treated everything from burns to bee-stings in his five years of experience at the college.

Psychologists

Counselors Must Analyze, Guide Local Students

Virtual "control" of the destinies of City College students is in the hands of 14 men and women. Important as these persons are, students are not fully cognizant of their presence until confronted with poor grades, change of studies, guidance and other scholastic problems.

These men and women are the counselors in Building 2.

A distinct feature of educational progress, these counselors are chosen in their field as statistician, psychologist, and for all-around social understanding to help guide the student into areas best suited to his ability.

Students, upon entrance, have a lot of paper work. Little do they know that these are indicative of character, background, interest and learning aptitude.

But counselors, in their analysis, can read into and foresee with fair accuracy how successful the student will be in his studies, qualitatively or quantitatively.

"For students who require special attention or help in determining their vocational aptitude, we have numerous interest tests. In this manner, we can, if necessary, help the student change his major before it is too late," Adolph Stoll, counselor, said.

He followed through with a startling statement. His contention was that about 50 per cent of the students drop out "during" their stay at City College.

Scholastic deficiency and attitude and their inability to meet the requirements of upper graduate schools is the chief reason.

Because of City College's beginning as a community school, parents and even junior and senior high school teachers have failed to understand that it is now an accredited two-year college. It is important to know that the college offers a degree rather than a place to go "to make up" deficiencies.

Shots At RAMdom

instructor: speak up students, silence is golden when in doubt

RECENTLY an instructor read midterm grades to his class and added a small lecture on the importance of oral response to his questions by students.

"In college," said the Instructor, "students are expected to make comments and formulate opinions on their own; these opinions aren't to be retained in the student's mind. They should be aired before the class in an adult manner, and if the student refrains from taking part in class discussion his grade will naturally be lower than that of the student who states his views. I can't understand why college students blush with embarrassment when called upon to answer orally."

From the rear of the classroom in an obvious whisper came this old, old quote, dating from the days of Benjamin Franklin, "It is better to keep your mouth shut and be thought a fool than to open it and remove all doubt."

LUCKY DOG

With all the dogs that inhabit the campus, a hard pressed young lady, Georgia Watkins, had to run from Building 4 to Hurley Village to retrieve her own pup to pose for a special publicity picture. The other dogs were evidently having a siesta or something.

The dog could be called lucky—for he posed between two lovelies representing the spirit of the college and advertising the new beanie appropriately named "Goofus"—could be called lucky, that is, until it was discovered that the dog was also a female.

Stewart Granger and Deborah Kerr team together to make King Solomon's Mines, soon to be released in San Francisco theaters, a better than average adventure picture.

The locality for the picture is Africa, and for once the natives and animals look, move, and sound like the real thing simply because they are the real thing.

NO LEOPARD WOMEN

The story takes place in the 1800's, with Miss Kerr, under the guidance of Mr. Granger, searching the jungle for her husband who disappeared. Soon, as expected, Miss Kerr's thoughts turn from husband to guide and so on.

The plot has been used before and can easily be recognized, but the movie still teems with thrills.

Those wanting escape into adventure can find it in viewing this version of the dark continent. It's different in that not one scene from a Tarzan movie can be found; also there are no Leopard Women to contend with or Tiger Men, but the mysterious and stranger-than-fiction realities of Africa are shown. This alone makes the picture different.

Student Nurses

Full Schedules Leave No Time For Study, Play

Velma Lai and Kalani Schutte, pre-nursing students from Mt. Zion Hospital, declare that nursing is a wonderful profession but also add that it takes a "lot of work."

Two hundred seventeen pre-nursing students from Franklin, Mt. Zion, St. Francis, Mary's Help, St. Luke's, Children's and French Hospital Schools of Nursing are studying anatomy, physiology, bacteriology, psychology and sociology courses here at the college.

This pre-nursing program is offered in conjunction with the several hospitals' training programs, and requirements in these subjects are uniform. Designed as general college courses, they are transferable for university credit with one grade point reduction.

Students attending the college are in the first year of their three year training period, and most of the hospitals require them to study two hours every weekday from 7 to 9 p.m. Even with these compulsory hours of study, Pat Hortung and Arline Myers, from St. Francis hospital, agree that there is still not enough time to study.

Living at the respective hospitals, the women, in addition to the courses offered here, attend classes at the hospitals and also put in hours of practical training. A few of the hospitals require their students to study on Saturdays also, and on Saturday nights these Cinderellas must be in by 12 midnight.

An urgent need for nurses has arisen, and a campaign to recruit 200 women under the auspices of all local hospitals was begun recently.

Kenneth Hobbs, director of the nurse training program, also announced that City College pre-nursing students have received an invitation from the Stanford University School of Nursing to attend a Thanksgiving Open House on Friday afternoon, November 17.

Open houses are being held by the local hospitals to stimulate interest and give potential nurses a general view on how hospitals are operated.

Derelict Auto On West Campus Branded Parking Nuisance By Faculty Member

By Doug Hayward

Gutted and rusting, nearly 3000 autos are abandoned in the streets of San Francisco. San Francisco, the city that knows how, has solved the problem of what to do with the derelicts by having them towed away and cut up for scrap.

San Francisco, the campus that is a bit worried as to just what to do, has the same problem on a lesser scale. A lone 1935 Chevrolet sits dejectedly in front of Building 2, west campus, crippled by a flat front tire. Seemingly forgotten, it has sat there for the past month and more.

"Its vintage is questionable," expounded one Building 2 faculty member, "but its character is not." Then, in proper order, came these maledictions: "It is an eyesore, a fire hazard, a derelict and a parking nuisance."

The owner is a dormitory resident, who, it has been rumored, is now the proud possessor of another, later model automobile that runs.

But the Chevrolet, like a gallant old warhorse run down, is dying. Rust bleeds from every crack; oil drips from slimy undersides; an odor of decay perfumes the air, and its three standing tires are slowly but surely sinking into the pavement.

The cost of refurbishing, the owner hinted, was not only more than he considered appropriate, but prohibitive as well. "No money," explained he.

Meanwhile, Dean Edwin Browne, the Building 2 faculty member, is growing restless. A letter concerning the matter has been sent, the dean reports, in which a final plea to remove the 'corpus delecti' is issued. The letter's text warns darkly of "police" and "tow-away" rulings.

Dean Browne's secretary, Connie Martin, bought the auto for her son late last week. Price: $20.

Locals Dump Hartnell For Initial Conference Win In Rugged Game, 20-0

Rough Play Mars Victory At Cox; Rejuvenated Rams Tackle Stockton Tomorrow Night In Valley City

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

City College's gridiron standard bearers broke two season-long jinxes Saturday afternoon at Cox Stadium when they shut out the Hartnell Panthers in a rough game, 20-0. They got back into winning form after losing every game since their 53-7 victory over Vallejo College in the season inaugural, and they only fumbled once.

The local gridders scored the first time they got their hands on the ball, early in the first quarter. Starting from their own 27, they marched 73 yards in 16 plays, picking up five first downs on the way. Bob McBride scored from the one.

Ralph de la Torre passed to Al Endriss for the second touchdown. Endriss snagged the ball on the Hartnell 20 and loped the remaining distance, the whole play covering 60 yards. The conversion was blocked.

Shortly after the second half opened, the Rams penetrated to the Panther 2-yard line, but the Salinas squad dug in and threw back the threat. They didn't throw back the threat in the last canto, however. De la Torre passed to end Dick Galliani for the TD after moving down to the 10-yard line.

The most surprising feature of the game was the Ram passing attack. Against the gridders from the lettuce capital, 214 yards were amassed through the air and ten passes out of 17 attempts were completed, the bulk of them by de la Torre.

On the ground, the locals fared just as well. Bob McBride spearheaded the land game, picking up 78 of the Rams' 196 yards on the ground in 11 carries, an average of better than seven yards per carry. The college gridders rolled up 18 first downs against Hartnell's six. The Panthers did not make more than two first downs any one time they had the ball.

The game unfortunately was not without its unpleasant aspects. Both teams, the Rams and Panthers, played "dirty" ball. Hartnell Coach Elliott "Ab" Wilson said after the game, "I'm glad our association with City College is over." (Because of the conference reorganization, Hartnell and City College will not meet on the gridiron in 1951.)

Wilson's remark was probably prompted by the injuries of Frank Paz, Panther halfback, in the second quarter. Paz was knocked into the stands when he was tackled and left the stadium in an ambulance. At first it was believed his right leg was broken, but X-rays at St. Luke's Hospital proved it to be nothing more than a bad laceration. He also received a serious shoulder separation and another Hartnell player picked up a fractured nose.

Score by quarters:

Hartnell	0	0	0	0— 0

HEAD COACH Grover Klemmer seems happy with the steady improvement his squad has displayed in its last few games. The Rams' offense so far has been held back mainly by their own fumbles.

Klemmermen Face League's Toughest, But Aims For Upset

Still in search of their first conference win of the 1950 season and their second victory of the season, Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams travel to Stockton tomorrow to engage the Mustangs in their third southern division game of the year.

The Mustangs, off their season record to date, will be one of the Rams' toughest tests of the eight game schedule. Earl Klapstein's charges have lost two close games to the two best teams in the southern division. They bowed to Modesto 7-6 a month ago, and lost two weeks ago to the champion-apparent of the southern league, Monterey Peninsula College. The Lobos scored twice in the second half to sink the Mustangs, 14-0.

In their season opener, Stockton dropped rugged Sacramento College 7-6. In the ensuing weeks, Placer fell, 34-0, San Mateo's Bulldogs succumbed, 18-13, Hartnell lost, 33-7, and Fresno College proved to be an easy victim, 37-14.

The Stockton offense is a high-geared affair. With the exception of the three defensively strong teams they have played, the Mustangs have proved consistent touchdown players. Mike Heraty guides the Mustang offense in a most capable manner from his quarterback spot. Henry Welch and Don Hay are fast runners at halfback. Both are exceptionally good at cutting in and crossing up the defenders. Roy Banducci, a 212-pound fullback, adds power and plenty of it, to the Stockton attack.

Up front the center of the line appears to be the toughest. Center Ed Mendonca, and Guards Charles Sullivan and Joe Roberts have made the going tough for every team the Mustangs have encountered this season.

Rams, Santa Clara Slight Favorites; Cal, Army In One-Sided Contests

Heading this week's list of grid battles will be of the first of the traditional big games, the Little Big Game, pitting Santa Clara's Broncos against St. Mary's Gaels. Other games slated are Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams versus Stockton's Mustangs, and Cal and Army have both been forecast to romp over their respective rivals, USF and Stanford.

Pulling farther ahead of the pack of experts is The Guardsman's Jack Spalding, who now boasts a record of 24 and 7 for .774 percentage. Editor Walt Heil still holds down second place, while Ken Gruss has moved into the third place slot.

San Mateo Host To WAA Tonight

The Women's Athletic Association will participate in a badminton meet tonight and a tennis tournament tomorrow afternoon, Nancy Sparks, adviser, said yesterday.

The badminton tournament is being sponsored by San Mateo Junior College. A group from the co-ed evening class will meet for dinner in the college cafeteria at 5 p.m. and proceed to San Mateo from there.

Tomorrow the college will send representatives to San Francisco State to take part in coed tennis matches scheduled for 3 p.m., Miss Sparks continued.

The coed tennis matches are a recent addition to the list of coed activities, she said.

These coed activities have been steadily growing since the war, and in addition to badminton and tennis, include, among others, horseback riding, folk dancing and archery.

One of the largest pairs of ram's horns in existence measures 16½ inches in basal circumference, 40½ inches in length, and weighs 38 pounds.

Former Merchandising Students Find Success

Alvin Johnson and Joan Brennen, merchandising majors, have received recognition in this field, Virginia Gohn, instructor, said yesterday.

Johnson, last semester president of the merchandising club, has been promoted to assistant manager of J. C. Penny's boys' clothing department. Johnson has set forth various innovations that have aided the department.

Miss Brennen has been modeling for the Emporium along with her selling position. She was previously the merchandising club vice-president.

Bowl Fever Hits Campus As Scribe, Orator Gridders Vie

Bowl Fever, a strange malady usually associated with the California Bears, Oklahoma University, Southern Methodist and the like, has suddenly swept City College.

The "Bowl" concerned in this case is the second annual Budget Bowl, the game which decides the superiority (in touch football) between members of The Guardsman staff and the Student Council.

This year's classic will take place Friday, November 17, on the Ram practice field, during college hour. A capacity crowd is expected to be on hand; rather they will be on feet because of the lack of stands at the field.

Last time these two power-laden clubs met, the Scribes were the victors, grinding out a 6-0 win over the highly favored Council squad. This year however, the penmen are expected to win in easy fashion over the stricken councilers.

While the Councilmen have a returning vet in the person of Tom Dill, their hopes dropped when it was disclosed that Rod deCristofaro has been declared ineligible. DeCristofaro performs on the Ram varsity and therefore is considered professional(?).

Coach Walt Heil has been conditioning his squad behind locked doors in The Guardsman office, but when approached concerning the game's outcome he remarked, "We won last year—we'll do it again." Heil definitely expects his team to extend its win streak to two in a row.

Council mentor Dill has given no indication of his team's possibilities, however odds quoted on this traditional are much the same as last year—8 to 5 that neither team goes the limit and even money that there will be no score.

TOUCHDOWN! Al Endriss (68) takes Ralph de la Torre's pass on the three-yard line over the head of Husky LeRoy Franklin (21) for the Rams' second TD. In the second panel, Bob McBride rambles for eight yards behind the blocking of de la Torre. Both plays took place during the third quarter. Soccermen Vacate Second Place As Dons, Indians Inflict Twin Losses

By Jack Spalding

Twin defeats, inflicted by USF, 3-0, and Stanford, 2-1, last week knocked the Rams from second place in Intercollegiate Soccer standings and dimmed their hopes of being 1950's runner-up team.

Man for man Coach Roy Diederichsen's squad is the second best in the league, second only to the National Champs from USF. But second best or not the Rams can conceivably finish the season much lower than second place. And all because of Saturday.

Saturday morning encounters have spelled disaster for the Rams whose week end record now stands at one loss and two ties. In mid-week games they have won two and lost two, both defeats coming at the hands of USF.

The big reason for this Saturday slump is the absence of many of the players who for various reasons are unable to appear at the games. Unfortunate, but not so for the opposition.

At Cox Stadium last Wednesday the Rams were at full strength, but the Hilltoppers pushed over three scores to win 3-0. Thus far the Dons have tallied 26 goals against only one for their opposition.

The Indians pushed two goals over during the early part of Saturday's contest and then held on to gain a 2-1 win. The Rams started the game with only ten men, which of course hurt them considerably, but they battled back against the rough and tumble Redskins. The Big Red was too hig and Dave Chavez made the only Ram goal of the game.

Tonight's doubleheader features a game between USF and San Francisco State in the opener, while City College meets Santa Clara in the second game.

Hillsman Cagers Put Through Daily Practice Sessions

Continually looking for more basketball stalwarts to show up for daily practice Coach Ralph Hillsman keeps his court hopefuls paced through a grueling workout of preparatory conditioning for 1950's tough and unpredictable basketball schedule.

With last year's impressive championship record hanging over their heads, this year's Ram cage team will be on the move more than ever with harder workouts and scrimmages facing them.

This month will be tougher than any Hillsman has had in previous years, because he must find a well calculating and smooth functioning organization from a turnout of 42 basketball hopefuls by their first scheduled game with Hamilton Air Force Base on Wednesday, November 29.

Ball handling, shooting, dribbling, and exercises have been the call of order during practice this past week. Last year's NCJCC champions have been put on a strict training schedule with the intention of being at the peak of condition by conference time during the first week in January.

Block SF Adopts New Monograms After Year Wait

The new, official block SF emblem, recently approved by the members of the Student Council, seems to have quite a history, according to Rod deCristofaro, the designer of the monogram.

As long ago as last December, members of the Block SF Society, as well as many of the students, felt that there should be a change made in the official emblem so that the individual letters might stand out more. DeCristofaro set out to design a monogram which would have the "new look."

After studying the block, he noticed that at a distance the white letters, on a red background seemed to blend together and were practically indiscernible. So he decided to have each letter, a different color, one red and the other white.

By experimenting, he found that if the "S" were white on a red background it would stand out even at a distance. Then if the "F" were red on a white background, he noticed that it appeared in sharp contrast to the "S." This seemed to be the logical design, so deCristofaro sought and received the approval of coaches, athletes, and students.

AWS Gives Freshman Tea

Fashions, Chorus Hold Spotlight Here Tomorrow

A fashion show highlights the semi-annual Associated Women Students' tea honoring high school seniors and college freshmen to be held tomorrow afternoon from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. in the student lounge, Building 2, Jackie Lantheaume, AWS president, said last week.

Selections by the Treble Clef, the college's women's chorus under the direction of Gertrude Norgard, will precede the fashion show, which will start at 3:30 p.m.

Deanne Saul, Tani Seitz, Jane Duffey, Shirley Rolph, and Joan Leach will model several styles ranging from sports clothes to formal wear under the supervision of Mrs. Muriel Cullen, English instructor.

All creations shown by the models will be furnished by Blene Carroll from her Ocean Avenue apparel shop.

Over a hundred invitations have been sent to the various public high schools, Miss Lantheaume expects a large attendance. All interested women students and women faculty members were urged to attend.

Other AWS officers assisting Miss Lantheaume and faculty sponsor Dean Margaret Dougherty include Shirley Maritzen, Marilyn Marr, Karen Walseth and Delores Mirri.

High schools attending the AWS tea will be Balboa, Commerce, Galileo, Lincoln, Lowell, Mission, Polytechnic, and Washington.

JACKIE LANTHEAUME, Associated Women Students' president, points to the calendar indicating the semi-annual AWS tea will be held tomorrow in the lounge. Four-dar members at the committee stand by looking interested. Music Groups Set For 16th Annual Christmas Concert

With the selection of the cast, including the two candle bearers, the 16th annual college-wide Christmas concert, scheduled for Thursday night, December 7, entered the rehearsal stage late last week, Flossita Badger, program director, said yesterday.

Having become as much of the college tradition as sleigh bells and Santa Claus, the concert will feature a combined cast of approximately 150 voices and instruments.

Choral numbers, which will be sung by members of the Treble Clef and Men's Glee under the direction of Gertrude Norgard and Harold Cunningham respectively, will open the program. The college orchestra, under the direction of Meyer Cahn, will accompany the chorus.

Following the choral numbers, members of the A Cappella Choir will march in the processional led by candle bearers Billy Mitchell, 5, and Jean Allison, 3, the nephew and niece of Miss Badger.

Miss Badger will be assisted in directing the program by Henry Leff, radio and opera workshop instructor, and Robert Morton, music instructor.

The concert is the creation of all the member organizations of the college Music Guild.

Member organizations of the Guild are A Cappella Choir, Treble Clef, Men's Glee, Band, Orchestra, Opera Workshop, Lambda Alpha, Mu Iota Psi, Symphony Forum, and Music Majors.

'Biggest' Soph Week Plans Open

Plans are now underway for one of the biggest sophomore weeks in the college's history, Lee Janover, class president, declared yesterday.

The week will be from January 15 to 20 and on Tuesday and Wednesday, January 16 and 17, voting will be done to select the Sophomore King and Queen. Pictures of the contestants will be hanging in the main building and Building 2 where the voting will take place. Any on-campus organization may compete.

During an extended college hour on Friday of the week, the annual Sophomore vs. faculty basketball game will be played.

Climax of sophomore week will be the yearly soph formal and the crowning of the king and queen. The ball will be held at Scottish Rite auditorium Saturday.

Recent Address Stresses Future Importance Of College Education

Dr. J. Leroy Thompson, Director of the Educational Service Bureau of the Wall Street Journal, told students in a recent address here that "America is the hope of the world, and you are the hope of America."

"From today's college students will spring the leaders of tomorrow," he said, "and their ability to guide America and all the world through chaotic conditions to peace depends upon their background of experience and learning.

"Get your background material now," Dr. Thompson urged. "The newspapers contain most vital, stimulating information. At least 30 minutes a day should be spent in studying current events, not comics and sports. An alert person, who has a comprehensive knowledge of current events is more likely to perceive an opportunity than one who is not."

Dr. Thompson declared that "opportunity in America is not dead; if you can't see it, you're dead. If you know nothing about world affairs and do nothing to compensate for your ignorance, you are like the young man who says 'there is no chance for me, it's all big business today.'"

Business is constantly fluctuating as are all other phases of modern life, he pointed out, and there is always opportunity for those who have the knowledge, foresight, and drive to realize it.

"If you are ignorant of current affairs, you will not be an able leader for tomorrow," Dr. Thompson emphasized, adding, "Since you are the hope of America, you must get your background material now."

This was Dr. Thompson's second address to students here, and arrangements were made by Edward Larson, business instructor, and the Wall Street Journal executives.

Campus Police Increased By 14

Fourteen new members were sworn in to the San Francisco Police Department November 7 as Special Police Officers assigned to the college to serve as Campus Police.

Flower Shop Holds Open House Tomorrow

Faculty and students of the college yesterday were invited to attend the flower shop open house in Building 5 tomorrow from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., by John Lawrence, instructor of the shop.

Lawrence said late yesterday afternoon that the exhibit would give observers an opportunity to see what students in the retail florist business can do with flowers.

A complete wedding decoration exhibit as well as others, all made with cut flowers, have been set up Lawrence added that each visitor will receive a free gardenia.

Graduates Need Math Credits

Students intending to graduate from the college should check their academic status with the mathematics requirements, Mildred Barnard, counsellor, said yesterday.

In order to graduate, students must either pass the entrance examination in arithmetic or pass math 51, which should be taken in the first or second semester.

Students who entered the college prior to the college year 1950-51, and who were not required to enroll in math 51 according to regulations in effect at the time of their first registration, may be exempt from this requirement, but only under special circumstances, Mrs. Barnard declared.

Formerly, grades were withheld in higher mathematics and science courses for failure to meet the requirement, but this is no longer the case.

There are several courses which may be taken in lieu of mathematics 51. These are business education 60, 61, or 65, and Hotel and Restaurant 51.

Ballet Needs Ushers

Women students interested in ushering for the Ballet Russe, scheduled to begin its run at the War Memorial Opera House Monday, November 29, may obtain ushering passes from Dean Margaret Dougherty.

Passes will soon be available also for the 39th regular season of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra beginning Thursday, November 23, and for the Pacific Opera Company which will begin its annual run during the latter part of this month.

Debate Tournament Scheduled Next Week; 24 Teams Entered

Plans for the Northern California Debate Tournament, scheduled for Friday and Saturday, November 24 and 25, are nearing completion, with more than 24 teams participating, Michael Griffin, debate team adviser, said last week.

High schools from as far north as Santa Rosa and as far south as Los Angeles, as well as San Francisco schools, will participate.

Local high schools that have not participated in the tournament before, but will do so this time, are Galileo, Mission, and Mountain View.

Subjects for the tournament include radio speaking, public speaking, after dinner speaking, and a debate. Subject of the debate will be the welfare state; other contests will be open to any theme.

Meanwhile, on the debate team's agenda are contests with Santa Clara, San Jose State, Mills, USF, and Stanford.

Previously the college debate team engaged Saint Mary's team at the Moraga campus. Taking part in this meeting for City College were Joe Schwab, Vic Morales, Noel Anderson, and Bill Shapiro.

Recently the team travelled to the University of California's Eshelman Hall for an engagement with the Bear team, Thursday, November 9.

Subject for this debate was: Should non-communist nations form an international organization. Taking the negative point of view for City College were Dick Schnell and Barton Dempster.

Representing the college last Saturday at a Forum at Los Angeles City College were Bill Shapiro and Schnell.

Experts Discuss College Training Here Tomorrow

Business, industry and education will meet on common ground at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the student lounge, west campus, when Are Schools and Colleges Training Students for Business and Industry, will be discussed by a panel of experts.

The program is sponsored by the National Vocation Guidance Association, Northern California Section, and is one of a series of similar programs initiated by educational organizations.

The first in the series was, What is the Best Type of Guidance Program for the San Francisco Public Schools.

The panel for tomorrow night's program will include George Johns, member of the San Francisco Board of Education and president of the San Francisco Labor Temple; Arthur Barr, personnel director, Columbia Steel Company; and Eugene Dils, director of placement, Stanford University, who will act as panel moderator.

The meeting is open to the public, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, said.

In reference to job opportunities, Amori said that because of the long Christmas vacation and the rise in the cost of living, there is an increase in requests for jobs.

Many faculty members and students have already been placed in part time work, Amori said.

The demand calls for wrappers, stock clerks, drivers, packers, sales, and general clerks.

City College students are being given first preference because Christmas vacation begins a week before other colleges.

JOSEPH AMORI, college placement director, notes increase in job requests and preference for City College students in Christmas work.

New Book Titles Go On Sale Today In Student Store

New titles in the college outline series already in use at the college are expected to be available to students in the student store starting today, Richard Main, student store manager, said recently.

There will be 28 choices in all to pick from, he said. These books are based on courses offered to college students.

Subscriptions for the magazine subscriptions service, recently instituted at the student store, are taken at any time, Main said. However, Christmas gift subscriptions should be entered by November 15 if they are to be available in time for Christmas giving.

Another Christmas gift idea suggested by Main is in the large supply of fountain pens on hand in the student store. The prices on these pens range from $2.00 to $12.50.

No bargain-offering new merchandise has been received by the store this week but new shipments are expected soon, Main declared.

Sales of Goofus (price 85 cents), the City College version of the new style hat for California junior colleges, have not been very good, Main revealed.

Opportunity is still open for students to request what merchandise the store should carry. The invitation for suggestions was first made by President Louis Conlan.

Round 'n About

Pledge hats and pledge cards are much in evidence this week, as member groups of the Inter-Sorority Council are subjecting their neophytes to the rigors of "hell week."

Kappa Phi started "hell week" last Sunday when they held an open house at the home of Betsy Steward to introduce their pledges to all who attended. Kappa Phi's pledges include Joan Chellero, Kathy Garner, Bev Gracia, Joyce Harper, Beverly Hughes, Jackie Jefferies, Joan Perrin, Shirley Rolph, Stasia Rocks, Janet Roach, Kathy Sheehan, Rosie Sharp, Charlene Verga, Karen Wolset, and Mary Ann Weaver.

Members of Zeta Chi held a pledge meeting last Sunday, and schedule a joint meeting with the men of Alpha Sigma Delta for tonight.

The Theta Taus also held their pledge meet on Sunday, and plan to meet tonight with the Beta Taus, when a show will be staged by the pledges for the entertainment of the members, while the Alpha Lambda Chis and the Tri-Epsilon men also plan to enjoy a similar evening tonight.

Phi Beta Delta held a joint meeting with Delta Psi to meet their new pledges last night. Other groups pledging this week include Phi Beta Rho and Delta Sigma Tau.

Turning away from the feminine neophytes to the men's side of the picture. Tau Chi Sigma announces the following men have survived pledgedom and have been accepted. They are Paris Reyo, Bill Davallis, Ray Tandi, Bob Marino, Roger Williams, John Dorse, Jack Concoey, Bill Hunter, and Lou Wiglie.

The Engineering Society will hold a meeting Friday during college hour in Room 204 for all members and interested students who wish to attend.

An informal meeting for new students and all club members who are interested in participating in the forthcoming college elections will be held today and tomorrow at 2 p.m. in Building 2, room B.

Roller skating is on the agenda for the Newman Club tonight, when members will meet at Skateland at 8 p.m.

In an exciting football game, which was held recently, the active members of Phi Beta Delta fraternity defeated the pledges by the close score of 18-16. From all reports, the pledges are anxious to achieve victory if a future game is played.

Zeta Chi member Mary Ann Johnson, recently passed the candy at a sorority meeting to announce her engagement to Richard Groger, student at the University of California.

Alpha Lambda Chi members will be aided by other sororities and clubs in their book drive which starts next week.

Debate Tournament Draws 300 Northern California Entrants Here Friday And Saturday

Thirty California high schools will send 300 representatives to the Northern California Debate Tournament to be held here this Friday and Saturday, November 24 and 25.

Participants will compete for honors in extemporaneous, humorous, radio, and after dinner speaking.

The debaters will be divided into two divisions, junior and senior, to give the student with little or no previous experience an even chance in the competition.

Edward Sandys, dean of general college courses, will be in charge of the judges officiating at the events.

The judges will be supplied by the Commonwealth Club of California, the Optimist Club, the Alumni Association, St. Mary's University of San Francisco, San Jose State, San Francisco State, Stanford, California, and IFC.

Arrangements have been made to house the out-of-town participants either on campus or at the Hotel Whitcomb. A light lunch will be served and two TV sets made available for the convenience of the visitors.

Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society will act as guides and hosts for the out-of-towners as long as they are here.

Thirty-nine trophies will be presented to the winners of the nine-event program, with the sweepstakes trophy going to the high school of the winning contestant.

Festivities will take place in the main building with the finals starting at 8 p.m. Saturday night in Rooms 130 and 136.

Those taking part in the direction of the activities are Bill Shapiro, festival director; Dick Schnel, host; Dean Sandys, chairman of judges; Joe. Schwab, assistant chairman of judges; and Michael Griffin, debate coach.

Student Election Petitions Must Be In By December 8

By Bob Rezak

Aspiring candidates for Associated Student offices for the spring, 1951, semester, must file petitions to run by Friday, December 8, John Allen, election commissioner, declared yesterday.

He listed Wednesday and Thursday, January 10 and 11, as election days, and expects that college hours will be held on both days to facilitate voting.

Petitions are available to qualified candidates at election headquarters in the student office, Building 2, or from Dean of Student Activities Louis G. Batmale. They must be returned with a three by five inch glossy photograph, to either the election committee or Batmale by 12 noon, December 8.

Candidates for Associated Student offices, which include six elected officers and 14 council members, must meet with qualifications specified in the AS constitution.

All candidates must have completed at least 12 units with a 1.00 grade average by the end of the second midterm period. The president and vice-president must enroll in or have completed political science 2a and/or 2b.

The election committee is yet to be appointed, Allen said. It must be approved by the Student Council, according to a provision in the AS constitution.

Posters, of which each candidate is allowed 10—five for off-campus display and five for on-campus use—must be approved by the election committee January 2, 1951.

Students interested in running for an office next semester were urged to see Allen or Batmale in Building 2 for further details.

Outline Series Increases Topics

Twenty-eight new titles have been included in the college outline series currently in use at the college, according to Richard Main, student store manager.

The books have not arrived yet but they will correspond to courses offered at the college.

Among the titles ordered are the following:

Bacteriology, Introductory Philosophy, German Grammar, History of the Middle Ages, Constitution of the United States, Principles of Sociology, Practical Use of the Slide Rule, Ceramics For All, American Government, Principles of Economics, Elementary Accounting, Algebra, General Psychology, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Play Production.

Store Heads Laud Former Students

College merchandising students have recently received high praise from managers of several downtown department stores, Virginia Gohn, merchandising instructor, said last week.

William Briare, former merchandising student, broke all sales records recently in a local department store's men's furnishing section.

Briare was graduate from the college in the spring '50 semester.

Briare was graduated from the "Thrifty Mac's" baby in a contest sponsored by a downtown department store. Miss Brannon was dressed in the typical baby attire at the store.

Dill Announces Student Store Naming Contest

Plans for the campus store naming contest are underway, Tom Dill, Associated Student president, announced last week.

The Student Council approved appointment of a committee which will work along with Dill during this contest. The members of this committee are Joyce Nelson, chairman of the committee, Bob Bailey, Joan Bayerle, Pete Chevrier, Bart Dempster, Ed Mulvihill, and Al Sebanc.

Posters will be placed at various points on the campus and at the store, and Al Sebanc is in charge of the distribution of these posters.

Mimeographed contest blanks will be distributed to the students of the college at various places, the council decided. The student is to put his choice of a name for the store on this blank and drop the blank into the box at one of the following places: the silver pole in the main building, the store, the student lounge, the gymnasiums, and the cafeteria. The Rally Committee will take charge of the boxes in which the contest blanks will be dropped.

Judges for the selection of the winning name are Dean Louis Batmale, George Mullany, Dick Main, manager of the student store, Beverly Jank, Associated Student vice-president, and Dill. The winner is to receive a $25 money order to be used at the student store.

The newly named store is expected to be dedicated before the spring semester starts.

To be eligible for this contest, participants must be registered students of the college. No appointed or elected officer of the Associated Students may participate, the council ruled.

Vending Machines Near Realization

Realization of the Student Council's proposal to place vending machines in key spots around the campus wns one step nearer aclunity when Superintendent of Schools Herbert Clish approved requisitions late last week.

"Location of candy and coke machines will be such that they will not be in competition with sales of these items in the student fountain in Building 12," Oscar E. Anderson, controller, declared.

Revenue derived from the machines employed will be placed in the Associated Student treasury.

Actual location of the vending machines will be decided upon today.

The Student Council approved the vending machines earlier in the semester after considerable discussion of the project last spring. However, the measure could not be carried out until the approval of Dr. Clish was secured.

Meanwhile the painting of the student store is expected to take place during Christmas vacation, as soon as financial matters are approved.

Queen Reigns At Block SF Hop Set For December 1

Yuletide Fantasy, the Block SF's semi-annual dance, is scheduled for 8:30 p.m., to 12 midnight, Friday, December 1, in the west campus auditorium, Rod de Cristofaro, Block SF president, announced early this week.

Highlight of the dance will be the presentation of queen Nancy Bedde, who was chosen by the society in celebration of their new Block SF monograms, de Cristofaro said.

Musical entertainment will be provided by Steve Facco and his orchestra, and Roddy Galli, vocalist. Tickets for this sport dance will be $1 per couple and 75 cents stag.

Club publicity chairman is Hook Arata; Lou Williams is heading the decorations committee which is responsible for transforming the auditorium into a Yuletide setting.

Others assisting de Cristofaro are Bill Rudemetkin, Pete Zasso, Jim Macauly, and Jim Fales.

As in preceding semesters, the proceeds from the dance will go toward the annual athletic banquet honoring men who earned block awards during the semester.

The society also sponsored a successful Holiday Hop last semester which ushered in the basketball season. The group's faculty sponsor this year is Coach Bill Fischer.

Turkey Trot Replaces Cross Campus Race

There will be no classes tomorrow and Friday because of Thanksgiving vacation, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced recently.

Miss Learnard also reminded students that Friday, December 1, marks the end of the second midterm period, therefore no college hour will be scheduled.

Christmas vacation will start Friday, December 8, and extend three weeks, instruction will be resumed on Tuesday, January 2, Miss Learnard added.

Because of the vacation period the next issue of The Guardsman will appear Wednesday, December 6. The Guardsman may be obtained in the lobby of the main building, and at the student store by members of the Associated Students.

Concert Features A Cappella Choir

Spotlighting the college A Cappella Choir, the Emporium presents a program of Christmas music on Thursday, November 30, at 6:30 p.m., Flossita Badger, choir director, announced yesterday.

For the occasion, an elevated platform will be built in the center of the Emporium's first floor, with ramps on either side upon which members of the choir will sing.

The program will feature soloists Cynthia Burke and Ruth Paxson.

The Emporium concert will be the first in a series of three Yuletide concerts in which the choir will perform. December 5 is the date for a performance for the Portal-Hurst Women's Guild. Two days later the choir will be seen and heard in the traditional Christmas concert.

Alpha Lambda Chi Book Drive Ends

Sorority Asks Volunteers To Help Pack Overseas Books

Volunteers are needed to help pack the books and mngazines donated by students during the Alpha Lambda Chi drive which ends today, Shirley Maritzen, club president, said yesterday.

Because of the enthusiastic response of the students, the decorated book barrels serving as containers for the deposit of books, periodicals, and pocket editions have had to be emptied several times during the drive, Miss Maritzen said.

There is still time for students to get in the holiday spirit by contributing books since the book barrels will remain in the student lounge, cafeteria, and by the silver pole in the main building until late this afternoon, Miss Maritzen declared.

With the help of the members of the Alpha Lambda Chi and the Inter-sorority council, these books will be packed for shipment to camps in the Far East war zone.

Cooperating with the City College book drive is the Merchant Marine Library, which has alloted space on a ship of one of the major shipping lines.

This fall, Alpha Lambda Chi, in search of a project, found the perfect solution in this book collection, Miss Maritzen said. "This should serve as a continuance of good wishes and as a reminder that we on the home front have not forgotten our men who are fighting for world peace."

Miss Maritzen expressed appreciation to all persons who have aided in making this drive successful and to the faculty for their cooperation.

Administrators Withdraw Teams From Nationals

Some 300 junior college administrators and educators, representing more than 60 California junior colleges, went on record to withdraw junior college athletic teams from participation in the National Junior College Athletic Association, President Louis G. Conlan said last week.

The new ruling, developed by the educators November 15-17 at a conference of state junior college administrators held at Yosemite National Parks, also [illegible] junior college teams will no longer play in out-of-state competition.

The ruling becomes effective September 1, 1951.

President Conlan said the conference delegates were in favor of developing some different athletic activities within the state, such as higher competition between colleges in track, boxing and basketball.

He further said that another factor considered was that most junior colleges are unable to finance teams entered in national competition.

He cited last season's Ram basketball team championship as an example. Had it not been for contributions from the public, Conlan said, the team probably would not have been able to participate in the National Junior College Tournament in Kansas, because the college itself could not finance such a venture.

Other junior colleges are similarly affected, Conlan said.

Attending the three-day conference with President Conlan were Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, Oscar Anderson, coordinator of educational management, and John Brady, dean of semi-professional courses.

Luckmann and Anderson attended separate meetings on vocational education and student finance respectively.

President Conlan was appointed to a legislative committee which keeps abreast of all junior college legislation.

Reports on student government were presented at the conference, Conlan added, and most administrators agreed student government was an important function in junior colleges.

Campus Policemen Enforce Standing Traffic Rulings

Law enforcement students who have been deputized as special police officers by the Chief of Police, are authorized to patrol the campus and enforce traffic regulations, President Louis G. Conlan announced recently.

The campus police have full police authority on campus and they are authorized to issue citations for parking and speeding on campus and adjacent public streets, President Conlan declared.

Campus traffic regulations are as follows:

1. No parking in white zones, although loading and unloading of passengers for not more than five minutes will be tolerated.

2. Parking for commercial vehicles will be allowed for 30 minutes in a yellow zone. Three minutes will be allowed for the loading and unloading of passenger vehicles in this area. Cars in this zone must be attended.

3. Parking for ten minutes will be allowed in the green zones.

4. Absolutely no parking will be tolerated in the narrow roads of the west campus. Signs have been posted to that effect.

5. No parking on the grass or unpaved areas of the main campus or on the ramps of the north or south entrances of the main building.

6. The speed limit for the campus and adjacent Phelan Avenue is 15 miles an hour.

7. All motorists must stop for pedestrians in a cross walk; pedestrians always have the right-of-way.

New Athletic Ruling Will Make For Better Budgets, Relations

FOR the second time within a year an important decision was made concerning the athletic program of two-year colleges in California. The first, of course, came in the Spring and concerned the division of the Northern California Junior College Conference into three leagues. However, this move was strictly a local measure within the confines of the conference.

Now comes a decision, by educators and administrators, that affects two-year colleges throughout the State.

Earlier this month two-year college administrators met in conference in Yosemite National Park. There they decided to withdraw two-year college athletic teams from National competition and at the same time build up rivalry within the State.

The move—a good one—from our point of thinking is to build up and stimulate competition within the confines of the California borders. Therefore, from September 1951 onward California two-year colleges will play each other rather that colleges outside the state.

College President Louis G. Conlan last week disclosed this information following his return from the conference. In his press talks last week President Conlan said most colleges can't afford sending teams outside the border to play.

CONLAN further declared that in the event that City College won a championship the team would be withdrawn from National competition and students wouldn't be allowed to go to the public for funds. Once is enough (last spring students raised $1500 to send the basketball team to the Nationals), Conlan said.

However, the educators agreed to build up competition in basketball, boxing, and track within the state. In light of this we note where the college basketball team is scheduled to play Los Angeles City College next season. This could be the first step in the direction outlined by Conlan.

On the whole the measure enacted at the Yosemite conference sounds like a good one. Increased athletic competition between California two-year colleges, especially the natural rivalry between the North and South, will make for better relations and a bigger athletic program with, perhaps, larger athletic budgets not to mention the same for other student activities.

The Spectator

American males told to beware shears of conniving Delilahs

MEN, dogs, and cats—watch your hair within the next few months. The hair stylists of the U. S. are about to start the worst epidemic of hair snatching the country has seen since the days of the wild and woolly West.

From latest reports the freshly scalped look that has been the vogue for American women's hair the last four years is finished. From now on the fair sex will trip about with a half a head of bristles not their own.

In the technical language of the feminine world it is known as a Chignon. It is worn pinned or tied onto the head of those who feel they must follow the fashions.

Fashion magazines, which decide whether or not American women will have any hair at all, are pushing the new fad for all they are worth. Falling in line with hearty cries of ecstasy are the milliners, and false hair procurers.

GARDEN QUALITY

The only trouble, it seems, is that the right type of hair is scarce. Oriental hair is too dark and coarse, and American women's hair has been ruined by following the advice of fashion magazines and pouring soaps, shampoos, and oils on it.

The only good stuff comes from Europe, according to wig makers such as Joseph Fleischer & Co. of Manhattan. Although it's very doubtful if it was meant as a compliment, a spokesman for Fleischer & Co. said solemnly; "The hair of European women is like a well fertilized garden, the quality is good but sometimes its fragrance is not too pleasant."

Within this shortage of the proper type of hair lies the danger to the men, cats, and dogs of the nation. American women have been caught with their hair down, or more likely they don't have enough to let down.

SAMSON'S BEWARE!

Our advice during the emergency is to stay away from all women until their hair has a chance to grow to the proper Chignon length.

Knowing that it is foolish to give such advice, we would suggest that you be on guard at all times. If a woman starts running her fingers through your hair—be sure to check first for concealed scissors, knives, and razor blades.

Wear a hat at all times when going out alone, be it night or day. If you have any pets that already have a luxurious winter coat, keep them under close surveillance.

We are sure that within a few months women's hair will be long enough for them to make their own Chignons and then relations will become "normal" once more between the sexes.

Radio Instructor Plays Villain, Hero

Henry Leff Performs And Teaches In Field Of Radio Dramatics

By Douglas Hayward

Radio dramatics is a field you have to keep your finger on, according to radio instructor Henry Leff, who has proved his point by not only holding down a position as instructor of the college's radio department, but by also performing on two prominent west coast radio shows.

Leff, who came to the campus three years ago from Samuel Gompers trade school, is currently performing on the Candy Matson show, KNBC, which features Natalie Masters and is written and directed by Monte Masters. He also appears on the Standard Hour broadcasts, written and directed by Margaret Wahlborg.

On the Candy Matson program, released to west coast listeners at 1:30 p.m., Sundays, Leff acts the part of Lieutenant Mallard, the girl-shy beau of Miss Masters.

In the past, he was featured in Darrow of the Diamond X, 8:30 p.m. on Fridays, as Snowden, the suave villain. After a period of 14 weeks, "I was killed dead," reports the actor-instructor. Author and director Samuel Dickson, however, is already planning a comeback for him in the form of another character.

Show business runs in the family, he says—his wife is the celebrated Bobbie Lyons, who is mistress of ceremonies on the Star-Times Theater Mondays, from 8:30 to 10 p.m.

LOTS OF PEOPLE sing in the bathtub, says radio department instructor Henry Leff, but whoever heard of anyone rehearsing his lines in front of a mike while shaving? He does just that and other things familiar to radio actors in Room 147, main building. —Photo by Weiss.

Leff's "classroom," the broadcasting studio, Room 147, first floor, main building, accommodates courses ranging from A Survey of Radio Broadcasting, to Radio Script Writing.

On one occasion a bustling fan approached Mrs. Leff with, "Oh! I'm so thrilled to meet a celebrity!" "Well, in that case, how would you like to meet my husband, Lieutenant Mallard of the Candy Matson show?"

The woman was delighted to meet the lieutenant, but couldn't quite express herself. "Are you Lieutenant Mallard?" Leff blushed back his answer. "But . . . but . . ." she continued, "you're . . . you're so ordinary looking!"

Two Men Receive Highest Marks In Home Economics

When Robert Sanders needs homework help in one of the 18 units of studies he is carrying this semester, he can turn to his wife and probably receive expert aid for his home economics cooking course.

Ralph Chin and Sanders are two lone men in the class who are taking the course to make up the 3-unit home economics requirement of their physical education majors. Both took the 2 unit G13 course last semester and learned about the nutrition requirements of normal adults, infants and children.

This semester they are enrolled in the 1 unit G14 class which is three hours of laboratory work to provide experience in food preparation and meal service. Incidentally, they are receiving the highest grades in the class, which meets each Thursday afternoon.

Two weeks ago the students learned how to create a cheese souffle. When asked about the result of his endeavors, Chin modestly said that his souffle "was edible." He believes the course is "a lot of fun" and thinks that it will probably lead to an interesting hobby of cookery.

Sanders too enjoys the course and thinks it very interesting. When asked about his culinary ability he also, in the same modest vein, replied, "I haven't died yet."

Jazz Audience Reacts To Concert Like Football Crowd After Long Gains

Early last week on one of those raw, blustery days, we were abruptly introduced to that great American phenomenum called Jazz.

It was a rude introduction, to say the least, quite unexpected. The folks that ran the show called it a concert, and with that in mind we threaded our way through a lobby filled with lavishly dressed young men and women.

After three or four ushers directed us to our seats we fidgeted around for 30 minutes, while several thousand additional people sought admission.

Finally things got underway and the hand was introduced to the audience, which stamped on the floor after every introduction. The band whipped off, one-by-one the wind instruments soloist.

The music was fast, swingy, and raucous. As the individual players ripped through their solos, the crowd, low and moaning and growing to a roar, went wild. We closed our eyes momentarily and the crowd noise could have been duplicated in Memorial Stadium when Johnnie Olszewski flips off a long gain.

However, to our unmusical, tone-deaf ear, the tenor sax alternately sounded like the bleating of a Ford V-8 horn and the whistle of the Super Chief when it grinds through Barstow, California.

The end of the program called for a combo piece and here again the audience went like a football mob. They were cheering for a crew cut young man named Buddy Rich, who plays drums with close to unequaled energy. The piece was slow in the beginning and the audience called on Rich to cut loose with his drums.

"Go, Buddy, go Buddy, go, go, go!" they screamed. This reminded us of a Stanford football crowd urging the team not to get stuck in midfield, or move the ball, as the case may be. But it certainly did not sound like a City College football crowd, however.

We left the show quite wide awake and not at all sleepy. Something new each day keeps the mind from going stale, they say.

If our memory serves correctly they did play one piece straight—the National Anthem.—by W. H.

Shots At RAMdom

midterms haunt turkey eaters; weaker sex invades football field

A few years back, a group of weary travelers from across the Atlantic Ocean got together and threw a little party to give thanks for the fact that they were alive and safe on a new continent. This seemingly insignificant incident, over the years, has developed into one of America's most personal holidays.

Among the ordinary bankers, laborers, and clerks, it's a day off from the dreary routine of the office and is accompanied by a large meal usually consisting of turkey, mashed potatoes, and mince pie with lots of extras, but to City College students it's a day to be spent studying, hoping and praying over midterms which, inappropriately enough, follow Thanksgiving by a few days.

To those in doubt over grades, Thanksgiving would be more appreciated if it fell at the end of midterm week giving the "near misses" something extra special to be thankful for.

PIGSKIN PRETTIES

During the suffrage period in our history, the male population worried about the important roles that women were assuming in the field of employment.

Until last week, everyone naturally assumed that professional football was one field that the weaker sex wouldn't invade, but now Mr. "T" had better beware.

The reason being the group of young ladies(?) that spend their spare time traversing the field opposite the bookstore in the galloping style of Red Grange. Knute Rockne probably flips in his grave every time one of the fair ladies catches a pass.

Led by such stalwarts as Vickie George, Gloria Rhors, and Bev Friede the young pigskin pretties are looking forward to the day that Buck Shaw passes by. After all, who knows, they would certainly draw a crowd and surely dazzle the opponents.

BAD "COLES"

From Dean Edwin Browne comes an interesting note containing a few of the many mistakes found on mistakes found on excuse slips handed in at the attendance office. "Of many attendance slips brought to the office for excuses, the following might be especially noted by instructors of English: 'Throat affection.' 'Tooth abstraction.' 'I was sprained in the knees.' 'Please excuse ..... for being late to school. He fell in the mud. By doing same you will oblige his mother.'"

Some instructors will swear that this is proof that an education proves valueless for many, but after all, it is different to suffer from a throat "affection" rather than the old illnesses like "bad coles."

Ring Vets Strengthen National Title Hopes

By Jack Spalding

With hopes of duplicating last year's fine record, Coach Roy Diederichsen's varsity boxing squad is conditioning itself for the long grind and their ultimate goal—the National Junior College championship.

The 1949-50 team wound up in third place in the National Tournament, with Len Gage, 125, and Jack Bettencourt, 150, reaching the finalist bracket. Both Gage and Bettencourt have returned to bolster this new group of ringmen.

The team as a whole should do a good job, for in the words of their mentor, "They're a bunch of pretty rugged characters." However Diederichsen hastens to include, "the team is very green, but they all show a willingness to learn."

Junior varsity material up for a crack at the varsity are much improved Joe Rockwell, who weighs in at 145 pounds, Bob Shepardson, 170, who was last year's Novice heavyweight champion, and Bob Moore, 145, from Balboa.

Returnees from the varsity are Chico Bettencourt, Ralph de la Torre, 135, Dick Fiore, 155, Roy Bruner, 145, and Carl Eckstein, a 155 pounder. These men show promise of continuing the record of past Ram boxing teams.

As yet no schedule has been set for the team, but tentative matches on tap for 1950-51 number the following among the most likely prospects: Placer College, Compton College, San Jose State Freshmen, Santa Clara, San Francisco State, Stanford, and several service teams.

Last year the Rams rated a top spot in Northern California boxing circles. As a two-year school they battled on even terms with the best in this area.

Diederichsen still feels the need of good boxing material and he has said, "I urge anyone interested in participating in the Novice Tournament on December 4, should contact me and come to the gym to start working out."

The Novice Tournament is an annual affair in which the winners of each weight division are given a chance to move up to the varsity squad. This is a fine chance for any pugilistically inclined men to get a shot at the varsity.

Hillsman Season Next Cagers Open Week With Hamilton Field Flyers

By John Dierking

Basketball gets off to a flying start next Tuesday, November 28, when Coach Ralph Hillsman sends his Ram charges against the Hamilton Air Force Base five in the Hamilton Field gymnasium at 3 p.m.

But the question as to who will start on the Ram cage squad will be unanswered until game time next Tuesday, for it's a mighty close race for those five positions on this year's squad.

Special attention is given to some newcomers who undoubtedly will knock out one or more of the five returning veterans for excuse slips handed in at the attendance office. "Of many attendance slips brought to the office for excuses, the following might be especially noted by instructors of English: 'Throat affection.' 'Tooth abstraction.' 'I was sprained in the knees.' 'Please excuse ..... for being late to school. He fell in the mud. By doing same you will oblige his mother.'"

RALPH HILLSMAN'S varsity cage crew opens the season next Tuesday afternoon in a game with the Hamilton Field Army Air Base Flyers, at Hamilton Field.

Returning lettermen are in a grave situation with such talent as Harvey Cranow out to grab that center position. Cranow, a lad of 6' 4", attended Washington High, and received his basketball experience while in the Army playing for the Second Infantry Division at Fort Lewis, Washington. Cranow can be classified as a "diamond in the rough" right now, but all he needs is a little polishing and he'll be raring to go when the conference gets underway in January, said Hillsman.

A pair of south-paws, Richard Greenberg and Allen Martino, will see plenty of action and possibly berths on this year's cage squad.

Fred Nieman from Piedmont, Jim McNeill and Bill Midyett, a 6' 4" flagstaff, are giving everyone plenty of trouble these afternoons at the men's gymnasium.

Rams Picked To Capture Finale With Cal To Knock Off Cards

This week is Big Game Week, and sees the big red machine from down on the farm driving headlong into the Berkeley Bear. The experts have picked Cal by a landslide.

Also slated for the final week in the season will be a highly improved Ram eleven taking on a very respectable Modesto squad in what should prove to be an interesting contest. USF is picked to drop Detroit by one TD, and the Loyola Lions should eat up a sad Bronco crew.

Rain Washes Out Ram-Santa Clara Soccer Contests

Rain and more rain caused the cancellation of both Ram conference soccer games last week. Last Wednesday the booters traveled to Cox Stadium to play the Santa Clara Broncos, but State officials feared that the field would be torn up too badly and so decided to call off the contest.

The second contest, again Santa Clara was the Ram opponent; has been postponed for the same reason and may be played at a later date.

The Rams had hoped to win a pair from the Broncs, who recently emerged from the conference cellar with a 4-2 win over San Francisco State. Tonight the soccermen will have a chance to repeat their early season 1-0 win over the Staters, whom they meet at Cox Stadium.

If the locals can win these three games, State and the two with Santa Clara, they will finish the season in second place. That's where they belong with this year's squad.

The league race has now narrowed down to a race for second place honors, among California, Stanford (who still has an outside chance), and City College. First place has been neatly sewed up by the USF Dons, who seem content to throw nothing but zeros at their opposition.

The Hilltoppers have to date played seven games, winning six by shutout scores. The Rams have thus far been the only team able to tally on the champs.

Tonight's doubleheader pits San Francisco State against the Rams and Stanford against USF in the second game. Saturday's lone game will be played at Berkeley where California hosts Stanford in a soccer "Big Game."

Block SF Awards To Be Presented At Annual Dinner

The Block SF Society's presentation of awards to athletes in football and soccer will be made at a dinner, with a tentative date set for January 10, Rod deCristofaro, Block SF president, announced yesterday.

The itinerary calls for some well known college football coach from the bay area to be the guest speaker.

There will be a new color combination for this year's blocks, deCristofaro also said, with the S being white and the F red, making the block much more striking in appearance over the previous blocks of solid white.

This year's block awards will be made according to the Associated Student constitution, which states a player in football must participate in one-fifth of the total number of minutes of games designated as letter games, with the letter games being conference games, and finish the season, except in case of injury.

Soccer awards will be made according to the same rules as football, except that a player must have participated in two-fifths of the total number of minutes in letter games.

As to who will receive the awards, that will not be determined until the close of the season when an estimate of some 50 City College athletes will be elicible, bringing the total membership of the Block SF Society to 75.

The society will sponsor a dance Friday, December 1, at the college auditorium.

Fischer Retains Dignity When Rain Cancels Budget Bowl Tiff

Heavy fall rains and a sloppy field Friday forced the cancellation of The Guardsman Scribes-Council Orators long awaited Budget Bowl football duel on the Ram practice field.

Line Coach Bill Fischer, speaking for the college grid team and the physical education department, declared that with poor drainage on the field the game must be called off. (The locals used the field in preparation for their season finale against Modesto today.)

As things stood, Fischer's dignity remained unmarred. The former St. Mary's All-American was selected to officiate last January's Orange Bowl game between Santa Clara and Kentucky. He also works games in the stately Pacific Coast Conference.

By volunteering his officiating services in the Budget Bowl game, Fischer did the college a great service. However, rumors immediately whipped around the campus that PCC Commissioner Vic Schmidt was set to levy a fine against Fischer. Furthermore, the officials union prepared to "strike" the college and "ban" Fischer from further games.

Meanwhile, Guardsman Editor Walt Heil, practicing signal calling in the typewriter room and tossing long passes of crumpled copy paper, said the game would have to be postponed.

Stockton Sinks Rams 31-7 On Muddy Field; McBride Scores Lone TD In Locals' Fifth Loss

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

STOCKTON, November 16. — Stockton College's Mustangs, a gang of opportunists if there ever was one, put on a brilliant show of running to defeat the City College of San Francisco Rams, 31-7, tonight in a sea of mud known as Baxter Stadium. The sloppy battle was witnessed by 300 hardy fans.

The Mustangs jumped off to an early, two-touchdown lead in the first quarter. John Burdue plunged over from the one after the Ponies had moved from the Ram 46.

Eight plays later they had another one. Ralph de la Torre's fumble was recovered by the Mustangs on the Ram 35, and they got down to the four, from which fullback Roy Banducci lugged the ball over. Quarterback Ken Carter ran the ball over for Stockton's only extra point of the game.

Late in the second period, the Rams struck back. De la Torre maneuvered his crew downstream to the Stockton three, but the Mustangs dug their cleats into the heavy goo and held. Then they fumbled. City College recovered, then sent fullback Bob McBride over for the touchdown. Rod deCristofaro kicked the extra point.

A fancy puddle-jumper named Roger Gartland applied the quietus to whatever hopes the Rams entertained of getting back into the game. Just before half time, he scooted 40 yards around his left end for the first of his three touchdowns. Early in the fourth canto, he did it again, going six yards around left end. A few plays later, the fleet maulder again scored, for the third time around left end. The play was good for 37 yards.

Baxter Stadium resembled a swimming pool, particularly in the center. Ralph de la Torre's passing excelled, however. He threw six completed passes in 14 attempts with a wet ball, good for 91 yards. The Rams out first-downed the Mustangs, 14 to 12, but the valley boys had a net offense of 312 yards to the local gridders' 271.

Score by quarters:

CCSF	0	7	0	0	—7
Stockton	13	6	9	12	—31

Co-ed Badminton Team Travels To San Mateo

Co-ed badminton participants at San Mateo College last week included Maurice Collins, Pat Couto, Edmund Hubberg, Joyce Harper, David Johnson, John Konrad, Delores Nyman, Christine Disibio, Dodie Fambrini, Ann Hulland, Edith Stern, Gus Ayers, and Charles McCardell.

Marin College will meet the team at a later date.

Other activities for the week included a swimming match November 17 at the YWCA. A tennis match with San Francisco State College, also scheduled, has been postponed to another date.

Dalmations, the "firehouse dogs," are born white. The spots appear when the puppies are two weeks old.

Locals Clash With Modesto In Final Conference Tilt

The curtain comes down tonight in Modesto on the 1950 grid season, but the college gridders have no chance for an even break even if they dump the Pirates. The loss to Stockton last week precluded that.

The Pirate attack is built around the passing of quarterback Don Tonkin and the running of halfback Orie Lee. The offense goes from both the "T" formation and the single wing, with the emphasis on passing. The line is light but tough, with not too many reserves.

The Rams and Pirates have met five common opponents this season, yet they indicate virtually nothing. Modesto took the measure of the Los Angeles City College Cubs and their ace tailback, Tony Novikoff, 20-12. City College pushed the Cubs all over the field but couldn't contain Novikoff, who scored two of the three touchdowns in leading the Cubs to a 21-6 victory.

Modesto, like many others, bowed to Monterey, 20-14. The Rams gave the Lobos two free touchdowns in the first quarter, and it cost them the game, 27-19.

Menlo's Oaks gave the Pirates a battle before being edged in the last quarter, 13-7. The week before Menlo had faltered to a 24-0 win over the college gridders in a sloppy game played in stifling heat.

Hartnell College, an outfit Kleinmer's gridders beat easily two weeks ago, 20-0, squeezed by the Pirates on the narrow margin of one conversion, 13-12. Off the Hartnell games, the Rams should — theoretically — beat Modesto by 21 points.

On the other hand, the local gridders could lose by 30 points. Off the Menlo games, that is. Modesto's margin of victory should be 23 points, when the games with Los Angeles City College are considered.

The Modestoans also bumped their traditional rivals, the Stockton College Mustangs, by a score of 7-6, two weeks ago.

All this proves nothing except that tonight's game should be very interesting. Both teams have proven offenses. Both are capable, at their best, of knocking over anyone.

Kickoff time tonight is 8 p.m.

Instructors, Students To Make Christmas Concert 'Greatest'

Approximately 150 students and eight instructors, representing 10 college organizations, will work together to make the 1950 edition of the college's annual Christmas Concert one of the greatest ever, Flossita Badger, concert director, said recently.

Curtain time for the concert, which is to be staged in the college auditorium, is 8:15 p.m.; Thursday, December 7. It will be open to the public, admission free, as well as to students and faculty members.

Included in the actual cast are A Cappella Choir, directed by Miss Badger, Treble Clef, directed by Gertrude Norgard, Men's Glee, directed by Harold Cunningham, and the college orchestra, conducted by Meyer Cahn. In addition, soloists from the Opera Workshop will be featured. Acting is directed by Henry Leff, Radio and Diction instructor.

Associated Women Students will furnish 24 ushers, composed of members of women's organizations. Robert Morton, music instructor, will direct the stage crew. The college publicity committee, sponsored by George Mullany, will handle off-campus publicity, with the graphic arts department, under William Eckert, producing posters and designing the program cover.

Meanwhile rehearsals are proceeding according to schedule, and a complete program of Christmas music is promised. A special event will be the performance of The Night Before Christmas, as arranged by Fred Waring.

The first Christmas Concert, staged in December, 1935, in the Galileo High School auditorium, was exclusively an A Cappella Choir affair.

As the years passed, and other organizations of the college were established, the concert became a firmly implanted phase of the college tradition. In recent years it has reached the status of a college-wide project.

Flower Classes Receive Special Lecture Series

Weekly lectures on the intricacies of the retail floral industry were started last week for flower shop students, John Lawrence, instructor of the shop, stated last week.

John Toso spoke to the group last Wednesday, November 15. Toso is presently in charge of the School of Design and director of the floral telegraph delivery. The Hogan Evers florist shop is owned by Toso.

Former students Richard and Yvonne Cross, and Eleanor Kerlin, have established a shop on Monterey Boulevard. Special rates will be made to college organizations for college affairs, the owners said. The shop is especially qualified to make corsages or to arrange decorations.

Members of the faculty and students were entertained last Thursday at an open house which the shop held. Exhibits of bridal, football, and Thanksgiving decorations were displayed. Gardenias were given to all those who attended.

The flower shop plans to compete in the California Spring Garden Show to be held in April. The college has won first prizes for three consecutive years. First prize was $100.00 which the students used to compete in other shows.

The shop has competed successfully in several other shows among which was the San Mateo Floral Fiesta in which it won first prize in the two events it entered.

Former Instructor Praised By Press

Francis J. Colligan, former City College English department instructor, was cited recently by the San Francisco News for his outstanding achievements as head of the Student Exchange Bureau.

Colligan, who established the college library in 1935, helps to administer the Fullbright Act, providing for the exchange of students between foreign countries. Exchange programs have now been set with 20 countries.

During the 1950 fiscal year, 2056 students, teachers, lecturers, and research scholars were exchanged under this program.

California schools and colleges are educating some 3000 foreign students, more than any other state except New York. Many California students and teachers are studying and teaching abroad.

Colligan joined the State Department in 1942 and has the power to negotiate treaties with foreign countries.

Colligan began his diplomatic career in 1942 by serving as cultural attache to Ecuador under the Rockefeller program. Before attaining his present post, he was assistant head.

Repair Job

President's Office Gets Redecoration

President Louis G. Conlan's office in the main building got its face lifted last week.

The walls have been painted a soft, pastel green (President Conlan calls it "eye-soft green") and the woodwork has also been done over.

And to enhance the beauty of the office, a new rug, a deeper shade of green than the walls, has been added to complete the redecoration job.

Commented President Conlan, grinning: "It really needed it."

Theater Offers Low Prices To Students

Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, a five-act comedy, can be seen by the college students at a special rate of 90 cents per ticket, at the San Francisco Repertory Theater, located at Bush and Jones St., Maurice Powers, English department instructor, said recently.

Curtain time for the evening performance is 8:45 o'clock nightly, except Monday. A Saturday matinee will start promptly at 2:45 o'clock.

Deadline Set For Sophomore King, Queen Nominees

Any on-campus organizations wishing to nominate a king or queen for sophomore week, January 15 to 20, are urged to choose their candidate before Friday, December 8, Lee Janover, class president, announced yesterday.

Individual candidates are requested to give their names to Janover before that date. He may be located in the Associated Student office, Building 2, at 12 on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.

Candidates must have completed at least 30 units of study, Janover said.

The A. Walter McMurray Portrait Studio, 1401 Van Ness, corner of Bush Street, will take portrait pictures of the candidates free of charge. The deadline for this service is Friday, December 15. The pictures will be displayed in the showcase in the main building before elections.

Contestants are allowed 10 posters. Five may appear on campus, five off. The cost is not to exceed $15.

Winners of the contest will be announced at the sophomore formal, Saturday, January 20, at the Scottish Rite Auditorium. They will each be presented with individual loving cups. The Theta Taus and Beta Taus will present the king and queen elect respectively with perpetual trophies upon which the winners will have their names inscribed.

The contest election dates for Associated Students will be January 16 and 17. Voting will be done in Building 2 on those days, from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Men vote for women; women vote for men, Janover said.

Batmale Requests Clubs To Back Up Activities Board

The Club Activities Board could be one of the most powerful organizations on the campus if only the clubs would cooperate in participating in the function of the CAB, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, stated at a recent CAB meeting.

Compared with last semester, when there were more than 60 on-campus organization, the fall's representation of 35 clubs shows a "lack of vitality" by the students, Batmale said.

Through the CAB, the clubs come together to work for the general welfare of the college and to abolish the problems common to all clubs, Batmale continued.

If the ideas and complaints of the clubs were stated at the meetings, Frank Meyn, CAB president, said he would place them before the Student Council.

The next meeting of the CAB will not he until January 3, 1951, Meyn announced.

Because of what he called indifference to student government, Bart Dempster proposed, at the meeting, a plan to start a second party which he said would help generate enthusiasm for the coming Associated Student elections. Dempster said this proposed independent party would represent all of the Associated Students.

Greatest Team Ever . . .

. . . that's what the experts say about City College's great football team of 1948, the producer of two All-Americans in Ollie Motson and Burl Toler and winners of three different championships. Well stocked with former San Francisco high school players, the Rams that year trompled all opposition in sight, and at the same time gained Statewide acclaim. Guardsman by-liners like Sports Editor Gene Kelly, Jack Spalding, John Dierking, and Carl Sohm bring this and other stories together into The Guardsman Special.

On other fronts of campus life Columnist Dick Lorrick explores the heretofore little known aspects on choosing the college's present site . . . while Feature Editor Don Johnson finds that the college is a community in itself.

Opportunity Knocks At Library For Students Wishing Work Experience

Students wishing to get practical office or library experience are afforded an excellent opportunity in these fields at the college library, Katherine Pedley of the library cataloging department, announced recently.

Volunteer workers are needed in the library. Although students are not remunerated financially for this work, it is possible in some cases for students to earn academic credit from this source, Mrs. Pedley pointed out.

Students have been very cooperative in volunteering for such work, and two organizations, Delta Psi sorority and Alpha Phi Omega fraternity, have also volunteered to assist the librarians.

Fifteen students from Business 85 are gaining credit for library work this semester. This work offers the student valuable experience in typing, filing, cataloging, and library and office techniques in general, Mrs. Pedley said.

Library work also offers an opportunity to students aspiring to become librarians. It is an excellent testing and proving ground, Mrs. Pedley declared.

The following Delta Psi pledges are working one hour per week in the library: Irene Schimmel, Julie Andretty, Gloria Carillo, Beverly Huck, Barbara Lucas, Shirley Schaumleffel and Betty Susman.

Volunteers from Alpha Phi Omega are Robert Charles Bruce Hood, Earl Weger, Nick Lazareff, Stanley Joslow, and Tom LeMieux.

Any student wishing to volunteer for library work may apply to Mrs. Pedley in the main building library any weekday.

Music Department Presents Morning Concert Today

A Chamber Music concert will be presented free under the combined auspices of the college Music Guild and music department today, in the auditorium, at 11 a.m., Bill Richmond, Guild president, announced yesterday.

Featured in the concert will be the Beyer String Quartet. Members of the quartet are Helen Beyer, first violin; Leo Ahramjian, second violin; Erwin Gordon, viola, and Elaine Beyer, cello; Guest soloist will be Gene Merlino, clarinetist.

Program for the concert will consist of compositions, the first being Quintet No. 6, for clarinet and string quartet, by Mozart. The second selection is String Quartet in B-Flat Major, Opus 18, No. 6, by Beethoven.

The concert continues the series started last spring of free, mid-day concerts featuring Bay Area artists.

The purpose of the Music Guild is to coordinate the functions of all music organizations of the college and to promote wider interest in good music.

Symphony, Opera Usher Jobs Open

Passes are now available for women students interested in ushering for the San Francisco Symphony season beginning tomorrow night, Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty announced yesterday.

Maryla Jones, pianist, will be presented Monday, November 27.

The season lasts through April 28 and will include 16 Thursday evening, 13 Friday afternoon, and 16 Saturday evening performances.

Passes are also being issued for the Pacific Opera Company which will begin its annual run at the War Memorial Opera House from November 29 through December 17. Performances will not be given every night and there will be an average of three performances a night, Miss Dougherty said.

Carmen, Rigoletto, Madame Butterfly, La Boheme, and The Barber of Seville will be among the operas to be presented.

Forty-two passes have been given out to women students by the Dean's office for the Ballet Russe, which will open at the Opera House, November

New Positions Open For Women

New labor shortages have created a demand for trained young women to fill managerial, chef, business, and technical positions in the hotel and restaurant field, Hilda Watson, Hotel and Restaurant division head, announced yesterday.

The expected increase will permit women students in the field to take a variety of courses ranging from restaurant operation to labor relations, Mrs. Watson declared.

The women must he properly qualified, Mrs. Watson said, because the work is very difficult, the hours long, and many hours of "standing on your feet" is commonplace.

The increase in opportunities for women in this type of work was stressed at the recent hotel convention in Yosemite, Mrs. Watson added.

AMS President Plans Smoker For January

A men's smoker has tentatively been scheduled for the month of January in the college auditorium, Ralph Vetterlien, Associated Men Student president, said yesterday.

Co-sponsored by both the AMS and the Rally Committee, this smoker would aim to bring together the men students of the college, including Block SF members and the football team, and athletes on all of the San Francisco high school grid teams.

Included in the evening's program will be movies of football games and if possible pictures of the 1951 Rose Bowl game.

'A' Bomb Pictures Featured December 1

Operation Crossroads, a Navy color film, will be shown at 10 a.m., Friday, December 1. This movie depicts the Able and Baker tests of the A Bomb at Bikini.

Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, has asked that any one interested in operating movie equipment should see him in Room 155 from 9 to 12 o'clock each week-day morning.

Survivor List Of ISC 'Hell-Week' Announces New Sorority Pledges

Lists of new pledges keep coming in, as members of the Inter-Sorority Council announce the newcomers who survived the ordeals of "hell week."

Theta Tau neophytes include Helen Dabacher, Ann Chevrier, Ruth McCall, Pat O'Neill, Gloria Naccarini, Beverlee Brannon, Marlene Vilas, Nancy Stelling, and LaVerne McMillan. The Theta pledges were honored by the alumni members last Sunday at a Mother-Daughter Tea given at the King George Hotel.

Pledges to Phi Beta Rho include Carol Aurich, Aurilla Doerner, Helen Freitzeche, JoAnn Jermain, Lois Martini, Diane McGuirk, Nancy Provance, Elaine Schwalb, Sherly Sharp, LuAnn Solari, Joan Sullivan, Loretta Tighe, Bonita White, Nancy Moore, and Jean Vanderwark.

Delta Sigma Tau's pledges are Doshia Gilmer, Ezola Parks, Cary Alice Johnson, Earnestine Belinda Jackson, Mary Bayeman, Eula Baylor, Marion Batiste, Gracie Wilridge, Jerdine Cobb, Pearl Grace, Jewel Jones, Frenchyela Foster.

Officers of Delta Sigma Tan include Ethel Marie Smith, president; Sylvia Henderson, vice-president; Mineola Ruff, historian; and Alean Coleman, Alpha Lambda Chi neophytes include Nan Kellermann, Shirley Metcalf, Phyllis Schuman, Marilyn Benson, Janet Bray, Jeanne de Curtoni, Corienne Weiman, and Martha Plasner.

Block SF members recently got together with the entire football team to present Scott Amour, injured City College football star, with an official Block SF jacket and monogram.

Newcomers to Delta Psi this semester are Vicky Carfagni, Caroline Cirimele, Robena Deepenbrook, Frances Dickey, Rheta Fleming, Violet Litras, Joanne Middleton, Joan Marton, Dolores Winant, Dorothy Williams, and Nancy Wiggins.

Pledges to Zeta Chi include Joellen Ainsebrey, Pat Collins, Evelyne Delore, Lyla Gale, Jeanne Hanford, Ronni Heard, Audrey Madison, Norma Peterson, Dathy Reinhertz, Joan Skinner, Joan Speck, and Norma Stahl.

Turning from pledge news to party news, the members of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society are now planning a party to be held during the Christmas vacation.

Tonight, the Merchandising Club schedules a dance, appropriately entitled Turkey Hop, for members at Sebright Hall. The social and publicity committees includes Chairmen Louis Sabennis and John Martin, assisted by Beverlee Brannon, Betty Johnson, Virginia Griffin, Gene Stile, Dick McCarthy, Lorry Mirri, and Jerry Mitchell.

Voters To Decide On Ten Amendments In AS Elections

Associated Student voters will have additional decisions to make when they go to the polls Wednesday and Thursday, January 10 and 11, to elect officers to represent them in student government.

Election Commissioner John Allen released a list of ten amendments to the Associated Student constitution which voters must decide. These, he said, are fairly simple amendments, but important in helping to shape the future of student government at the college.

The amendments, approved by the Student Counell last week in a two-hour session, are as follows:

1—Delete office of yell leader as an elective office and make it an appointed office.

2—Change vice-presidential requirements from 30 to 45 units of work completed prior to term in office.

3—Change name of Club Advisory Board to Club Activities Board.

4—Add student card sales chairman, information service chairman, and corresponding secretary as members of the President's Cabinet.

5—Relieve the Publications Board from duties of approving posters and printed material used in election campaigns, and place this duty in the hands of the election committee. (See proposed amendment number six.)

6—Give the election committee power to approve campaign literature.

7—Delete Welfare Committee as a standing committee. (Actually, this committee has been non-existent for several semesters.)

8—Delete the sentence, under awards, which limits the number of awards which may be presented to injured athletes to two. This would mean that certain players deprived of earning a block award may exceed more than two as it is now specified in the constitution. These awards, however, are subject to judgment and discretion of the coach of the particular sport.

9—Delete section under awards, which states that red sweaters may be worn by individuals winning block letters for some particular sport.

10—Restate the section in the constitution which deals with championship awards, so that it reads as follows:

"White sweaters will be awarded to and worn only by members of teams winning a recognized conference championship who fulfill requirements for block letter awards except in sports where there are less than four conference games in competition. (Words printed in bold face type are proposed changes in the amendment as it now reads.)

Meanwhile, Allen reminded potential candidates for AS offices, which include 14 council seats, to have completed petitions filed with the election committee in the student office, Building 2, or with Dean of Student Activities Louis G. Batmale, by Friday, December 8.

Further information to potential candidates is available from the committee or Batmale, Allen disclosed.

"Both parties (the Fraternity Party and the Affiliated Students For Better Government) are working to get candidates lined up," Allen declared, "and from all reports they have some good people in mind. These will be the two main parties. However, there will be independents, also."

Allen encouraged independent candidates to run, and added that they "shouldn't be discouraged because they aren't represented by a party. Many independents have won in previous elections, and the final outcome of the election depends in many cases on who is running independently."

Plans for an election rally in the auditorium, Friday, January 5, during college hour, to introduce candidates to voters are now being completed, Allen said.

Mistletoe Hop Scheduled Friday

Dancing in a yuletide atmosphere is the theme for Beta Tau fraternity's forthcoming dance, Mistletoe Mingle, to be held Friday, December 8, in the Crystal Room of the Hotel Whitcomb.

Nine to twelve are the hours for dancing to the music of Gary Evers and his orchestra. Dress requirements are informal, suits and cocktail dresses respectively. Cost of tickets is set at $1.50 per couple.

Beta Tau President, Pete Chevrier, said that the dance promises to be "the best of the semester."

Heading the dance committee are Tom Killilea, chairman and vice-president of Beta Tau, Lee Janover, sophomore class president and publicity chairman for the affair, and Ray Sullivan, who is in charge of decorations. "The entire fraternity," said Killilea, "is joining in the work and preparations to make this dance a success."

Students Flee Classes, Santa On Way To Town

Santa Claus has come to town, officially ushering in the Christmas season with its hustling shoppers and festive decorations.

Students will have a three week Christmas vacation this year, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said last week. The holidays commence next Monday, December 11, and end Monday, January 1, with classes resumed Tuesday, January 2.

Miss Learnard also reminded students that Friday, January 5, is the last day to file petitions for leaves of absence.

Friday Declared Deadline In Store Naming Contest

Deadline for the student store naming contest has been set at 2 p.m. Friday, December 8, Joyce Nelson, contest committee chairman, announced yesterday.

Mimeographed entry blanks are being distributed in the student lounge in Building 2, the silver pole in the main building, the student store, the gymnasiums, and the cafeteria. At deadline time the entry containers will be collected by members of the Rally Committee and selection of the winning entry will be made soon thereafter.

Judges for the contest will be Dean Louis Batmale, George Mullany, journalism instructor, Dick Main, manager of the student store, Beverly Jank, Associated Student vice-president. A $25 merchandise order will be awarded to the contest winner.

Guest speakers for the occasion will be Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish and President Louis G. Conlan, the committee said.

Eligible participants must be registered students of the college and cannot hold any elective or appointive office in Associated Student government, the Student Council ruled.

Meanwhile, news of a special sale of pennants was announced by Main. The pennants, spelling out the title of the college in white letters placed on a red background, are priced at $2.50, a saving of one dollar, he said.

Chenille letters featuring the words RAMS of CCSF spelled out in either red or white, are currently on sale for 95 cents. These letters may be used on sweaters or jackets, he added.

Traditional Christmas Concert Opens College Holiday Season Tomorrow Night In Auditorium

By Ted Gould

Heralding the approach of the Christmas season, the college music department ushers in the yuletide spirit tomorrow night at 8:15, when the curtain goes up on the 16th annual Christmas Concert.

Having become a tradition as old as the college itself, the concert features a combined cast of 150 voices and instrumentalists.

The overall director of the concert is Flossita Badger, who directed the A Cappella Choir in the inaugural concert staged in 1935.

Assisting Miss Badger in the production are Meyer M. Cahn, orchestra director; Gertrude Norgard, Treble Clef; Harold Cunningham, Men's Glee; Robert Morton, stage crew William Eckert and George Mullany, publicity. Acting in the concert is directed by Henry Leff, radio and diction instructor.

The program will consist of both classical and familiar Christmas music performed by vocal groups and the college orchestra.

In the processional, the A Cappella Choir will sing the traditional Adeste Fideles and will be led by candlebearers Billy Mitchell, 5, and Jeanne Allison, 3, nephew and niece of Miss Badger, and eight soloists, from organizations throughout the department, will be featured.

Featured soloists will he Cynthia Burke, singing Jesu Bambino; Andrew Stathis, singing Nazareth; Ruth Paxson, singing O Holy Night. Eileen Scott, accompanied by violinists Christine Di Sibio and Quentin Anenao, will sing Ave Maria.

A special event of the concert will be the singing by the choir of The Night Before Christmas, as arranged by Fred Waring. In this musical number Donato Alvisi portrays Santa Claus and James Colby appears as the father, with the two candlebearers on stage.

Twenty-two Associated Women Students, headed by AWS President Jackie Lambeaume, will usher for the event. Those serving on the ushering staff include Shirley Maritzen, Marilyn Marr, Dolores Mirri, Karen Wolseth, Noel Anderson, Angie Azzolino, Caroline Cirinele, Pat Corito, Mary Ann Holland, Evelyn Delore, Kathy Garner, Sylvia Henderson, Beverly Jank, Roberta Jackson, Pat Kay, Barbara McAuley, Pat Miller, Sydney Mumford, Ethel Smith, Mary Ann Weaver, and Nadine Yeomans.

Faculty Dinner Set As Concert Prelude

The annual college faculty Christmas party is scheduled for Thursday, December 7, as a prelude to the Christmas Concert, Howard Benninghoff, Faculty Association chairman, said yesterday.

Announcements for the affair, which will begin when refreshments are served in the front office classroom of the faculty cafeteria at 5:30 p.m., were mailed to faculty members last week.

Christmas dinner will be served at 6 p.m. in the faculty dining room. Tickets for the occasion have been on sale in the registrar's office, Building 3, and in the telephone operator's booth in the main building since Monday, November 27, and will continue on sale through today, Benninghoff said. Price of the tickets for the dinner are $1.50 per person.

Balboa Students Join Flower Shop

Twenty students from Balboa High School are currently engaged in planting vegetables and flowers on the hillside of the floriculture grounds in an unprecedented move which allows high school students to attend a college horticultural class and receive college credit, according to Harry Nelson, instructor.

The students, who are attending class every day from 1:30 p.m. to 3:15 p.m., are under the supervision of instructor James H. Peterson, who expressed the hope that the unusual plan would be adopted by other San Francisco high schools.

The California Spring Garden Show has been scheduled for the last week of April when the floriculture department will enter the landscape garden contest. Wildflowers are now being planted for an exhibit.

Meanwhile, Fred Suelberger, prominent East Bay florist, will demonstrate the flocking process to the flower shop students tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. in Building 5, according to flower shop instructor John Lawrence.

Repair Job Slows Astronomy Class

Though the equipment for the college's new planetarium has arrived, work cannot be started until the silver dome of the main building is repaired, Louis Berman, astronomy instructor, said late last week.

The crates containing the apparatus cannot be unpacked until minor changes such as weatherproofing have been made. The cloth covered dome on which the stars will he projected is 20 feet in diameter and the projecting machine will be placed in the center. Berman hopes demonstrations can be started at the beginning of the year.

Though the planetarium is an important instrument of education it is also a source of entertainment to visitors and students, Berman said.

Because of the intensive war preparation effort, an increased demand for navigation courses developed this semester, according to Berman. Consequently, a marine navigation course was formed.

Opera Workshop Advisory Board Pledges Support

By Bob Rezak

The college's Opera Workshop advisory board pledged its full support for opera productions and workshop activities at a special meeting here last week, President Louis G. Conlan disclosed yesterday.

The board, composed of leading citizens representing San Francesco's musical activities, met for nearly three hours in the college cafeteria to assure the workshop of support for major college grand and light opera productions.

At the same time it agreed to enlist the aid of other musical organizations in San Francisco toward the same cause.

Flossita Badger, workshop director, pointed out that the advisory board will assist in the production of light and serious opera presentations.

"The advisory board was tremendously enthusiastic about our entire program," Miss Badger commented.

The advisory board also discussed plans whereby light and grand opera productions would be presented on an alternating basis.

The board is composed of the following members: President Conlan, chairman; Charles M. Dennis, director of music, San Francisco Board of Education; Albert Elkus, chairman, University of California music department; Mrs. Dan London, president, San Francisco Opera Guild; Mrs. Thomas Carr Howe, Jr., director, San Francisco Opera Guild.

Mrs. Harold Kemp, president, San Francisco Musical Club; Mrs. Harry Steele Haley, president, Pacific Musical Club; and Margaret Girdner, director of texts and libraries for the San Francisco Board of Education.

Representing the college are Edward Sandys, dean of general college courses; Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses; Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator, division of instruction; Henry Leff, stage director; Robert Morton, technical director; Meyer Cahn, orchestra director; Miss Badger, and the Opera Workshop instructional staff.

Signup Begins For Retailing Classes

Because the enrollment is limited, students interested in obtaining college credit for work experience (Business 147) in retailing, should contact Samuel Ziegler, instructor, during his office hours, 10 a.m. daily in Room 249, he advised yesterday.

This course, which offers up to four units of credit, is available to students who are either enrolled in general merchandising management, or who plan to major in this course In the spring semester, Ziegler added.

Amendment: Election Board Must Protect The College's Name

IN a two hour session last week the Student Council passed ten amendments to the Associated Student constitution. These ten amendments will be placed on the ballot for approval or disapproval, as the case may be, by the Associated Students in the election on January 10 and 11.

One amendment concerns approval of election posters and other campaign material by the election commission. Approval of such materials now rests with the chairman of the Publications Board. Giving the work to the election commission strikes us as being a smart move to centralize and facilitate all election campaign material.

The election commission should have the regulation of posters and campaign handouts, as it is part of the commission's job.

The Publications Board was primarily established to protect the name of the college in all printed and hand lettered posters on the campus. Now then, the election commission, in future elections, and provided the measure passes, will have the same responsibility, namely to protect the college's name in election posters.

As aforementioned this will add to the facilitation and centralization of the election procedure here. No publications board chairman, who also happens to be the editor of The Guardsman, likes to be burdened with the overpowering task of approving the posters of the many office-seekers on campus.

WE hope, therefore, in the event the amendment is passed, of course, that the election commission assumes the same staggering responsibility of protecting the college's name during the course of often-times heated campaigns.

Furthermore, we would like to warn the election commission of June, 1951, if the amendment passes, that often certain, unscrupulous persons seeking office tend to deviate from the straight and narrow, using the format of a GuardsMEN (sic) to lure unthinking voters into the polls—with a vote for them.

This, of course, is strictly out of bounds, as the saying goes in the elite circles of modern society.

A handout of this type was published twice since the college was established and the folderol it raised was something to behold.

The Spectator
tv advertisers combine Junior and Joneses to sell products

THE big noise heard recently about a certain television advertisement which claimed that Junior was on the verge of collapse because he didn't have a TV set, shows that a majority of people will still fall for almost anything if it is displayed large enough, made loud enough, and documented by a big name.

For many years now advertisers have been making outeasts of various types of humans. They tell Clara she won't have a date Saturday if she doesn't use a certain soap. So what? She can stay home and look at television. They tell Harry if he has dandruff, Minnie will give him the air. So what? He can stay home and look at television.

They tell Mrs. Whitewash if she has tattle tale gray clothes her friends will forsake her. So what? Her friends are so busy watching her television they don't even know if she's wearing clothes.

The public didn't yell about Clara, Harry, or Mrs. Whitewash, because the ads were too idiotic to seem real. They know a lot of Harry's who have a little dandruff and they still like them.

The glib noise about the television ad was heard because it was a full page, done in a bold and loud manner, and was documented by a big name in the child psychology field. The ad was based on an idea that's as old as the hills. It's called "keeping up with the Joneses."

By combining the social outcast theme with the "keeping up with the Joneses" idea, and putting Junior in the middle, the advertisers had one of the hottest ads that's been put together in quite awhile. The trouble was it got too hot because there was a little too much truth in it.

PAINFUL REMINDER

It not only reminded parents of the time that Junior came squawking for a bicycle like that kind down the street had, but it made them feel like heels for all the other things they had to deny them because of economic conditions.

This same type of advertising is used by insurance companies. Pictures of auto wrecks, houses burned to the ground and unexpected death illustrate them, but they never put Junior in the middle, and insurance is not a luxury.

Advertising is a form of salesmanship, and one of the cardinal rules of salesmanship is never make the customer feel like a heel. The advertising executive that thought this ad up must have left his book home.

Art Majors Win City-Wide Acclaim

Business Men Select Students' Poster As Printing Week Theme

A project that began as "just another routine job" has ended in city-wide recognition for Pete Ledee, commercial art major at the college. A poster, depicting printing as the Eighth Wonder of the World, was submitted by Ledee in competition with many other posters, and has been chosen by the Printing Week Committee to be displayed in San Francisco's observance of Printing Week, January 14-20, 1951.

Ledee considers the choosing of his poster an honor, but when asked how the idea for the winning poster originated he explained, "It was just one of those things. On a project such as this you just get an idea and work on it until it comes out to what you want."

After the theme for the poster was decided upon, Ledee said, it was a matter of making rough sketches, a final sketch in color, and submitting the final product to the San Francisco Junior Chamber of Commerce selection committee for possible acceptance.

JACKIE LANTHEAUME AND PETE LEDEE, commercial art students, study the poster selected to be displayed during San Francisco's observance of Printing Week, January 14-20. The poster was designed by Ledee, and Miss Lantheaume did the copywriting.—photo by Jones.

The copywriting for the poster was also done by an art department student, Jacqueline Lantheaume, who gave the poster the titles of The Art of Communication, The Printed Word and Promoters of Understanding.

Ledee received more than recognition and a feeling of accomplishment through the selection of his poster, for after the Eighth Wonder of the World had been chosen, he checked on the other wonders and found that there were, in fact, only seven. "I thought that they had already discovered an eighth one someplace," he exclaimed with a grin.

Further work on the poster will take place at the college, for the Printing Week Committee has announced that the graphic arts and typography departments will also produce the poster for city-wide distribution.

Grand Hotel
Waldorf Is Elite Of Campus Dorms

It's no great shakes, this "Grand Hotel" of City College. Fourteen cubicles in size, but 28 students on the top deck of Building 13 whimsically call it The Waldorf.

Living a semi-monastic life on the campus (there's a "No Women Allowed" sign), students of the Waldorf might be considered high on the ecclesiastical order. For this was the elite of all the dorms, the others being Buildings 7 and 8. Building 13 was once the WAVE officers' barracks, hence its many features aided the dormitory set-up.

History can well be written around the development of Building 13 to its final metamorphosis. Originally planned for the WAVE officers in training, the barracks were turned over to married veterans attending the college in 1947. After Hurley Village was built, the Waldorf, having received its name in the interim, was then alloted to veterans living in Buildings 7 and 8.

Unlike their former quarters, this was the ultimate in comfort. No open type of barracks, each had privacy, a room and mate, with study desks, wash basin, lockers and a fine view of either the main building or the wide expanse of the west campus. A Bendix washer, a large drying room with gas heater and ironing boards, and a lounge complemented this small community.

Two proctors supervise and temper the observance of individual rights and regulations of the dormitory. This semester, Robert Camp and his assistant, Louis Mittleman, are in charge.

The trend of the times can be seen in the transition of this building. With the decrease in numbers of veterans, the demand for living facilities have likewise decreased.

Pistol Packin' Counselor Finds Pecan Shooting Pleasant Pastime

A "pistol-packing" counsellor here at the college is also the holder of the Women's Southern Amateur tennis title.

Helen Huffman held that title for two years and has won 126 trophies out of 200 tournaments. The soft spoken former Louisianian has also taken championships in 15 states.

Mrs. Huffman began playing tennis in high school at the age of 13, and through hard work and the persistent coaching of her instructor, Mercer Beasley, a tennis great, played her way to amateur standing. She has traveled the country with such tennis stars as Bitsey Grant, Bill Tilden, and Frank Parker, with whom she played doubles.

She taught tennis at Centenary College, Louisiana, where she received her A.B. degree, and also at Louisiana State where she acquired her master's degree in psychology. Besides her counselling duties at the college, Mrs. Huffman instructs two psychology courses.

Leaving the professional field of tennis, this southern lady turned to the more gentle, as she describes it, sport of shooting with her .38 Smith and Wesson "hair trigger" revolver. Her sharpshooting career started at the age of five when she did her first bit of shooting.

One of her favorite pastimes in college was shooting pecans off a fence post, and she is willing to challenge anyone to such a contest. If any foolhardy soul accepts her challenge, perhaps she could be persuaded to substitute California almonds here.

Her advice to aspiring tennis champions is to begin at an early age and to practice constantly. "Tennis offers the highest standards of sport," she stated, "and consideration and fairness to your opponent are prime requisites."

And when one tires of acquiring tennis titles, the pecans are patiently waiting to be shot off their perches.

instructor devises effective halt to feminine giggles

IN cooperation with universities and junior colleges, the National Students Association is sponsoring a foreign students' tour of California. For those students from other countries (excluding Texas), a complete view of the state may be had for the unbelievable price of $30 including transportation and insurance.

Food and lodging is being supplied by host communities along the travel route. The trip will orginate and terminate in Los Angeles and will cover the state, giving vistors a thorough knowledge of the industrial, agricultural, and governmental systems of California.

Further information concerning the trip may be had by writing to Martin Rosen, Room 222, Kerkhoff Hall, UCLA, Los Angeles 24, California.

ROSS HALTS GIGGLES

Adding humor to the local scene, John Ross, social science instructor, has finally devised a way to prevent the giggles of students outside the building from interfering with the routine of his class.

When disturbed recently by the giggles of bits of femininity below the window of his classroom, Ross threw up the window and joined in the laughter, much to the amazement of his students and embarrassment of the two guilty women. Blushing furiously, they withdrew from his presence and allowed the class to return to its normal tranquility. Ross' theory seems to be "If you can't shut 'em up, join 'em!"

Students who are forever throwing away bits of paper, cigarette butts and the like, seldom notice the man-behind-the-scenes who cleans up after hours what has been done during the day.

One of these unsung workers is no longer with us. He died last week after many years of hard work spent at making our trip through college a little cleaner and easier. Although it's a bit late, we'd like to thank and bid goodbye to William McCarthy, who indirectly helped make education easier.

There is a man who, for 15 years, has been an institution within an institution. His name is Rudolph Pohlner, and he was here with the first classes at the college. He remembers when A. J. Cloud first took over as president and when he retired in June, 1949.

When the city fathers planned a new junior college back in the early thirties, Pohlner was a student at Commerce High School night school, and was waiting for the opportunity to go a step higher on the educational ladder. When the college came, "Rudy," as he is known to his friends, came too.

Although he never registers for his classes, he attends regularly and is never tardy, a lesson he could teach to many younger students. His seemingly ageless figure can be remembered by graduates from years past and will probably be remembered by the present and future also.

Instructors who are always impressing the fact on students that it is never too late to learn and that no one can ever learn enough, can cite "Rudy" for their example.

Project 60
Floral Program Features Fuschia

At present, unknown to many students, the age-old process of flower cultivation is taking place on the campus under the very noses of everyone. The operation goes on beneath the humid-aired aluminum and glass structure known to all horticulturalists as the greenhouse. (Actually, it isn't really green, it just looks that way.)

This entire flower-growing project, cloaked in exotic smells and still more exotic names, has been given the ominous and impressive title of PROJECT 60. Something is NOT rotten in Denmark, however, because the entire program is open and above-board.

As one might easily deduce, this new experiment is concerned with the raising of flowers. Not just any smelly old flowers. Nor are they radical new development such as "red" carnations or "budding bolshiveks," but delicate, pink-tinted fuchsias.

Still not impressed with the "project"? Then maybe the two-fold purpose of the program will do the trick. The major reason is to enter the finished products, alive and beautiful, to officials of the 18th Annual Spring Garden and Flower Show which is to be held at Oakland's Municipal Auditorium late next April.

Not a few hopes have been raised for walking off with first prize in this division, since the college has been awarded blue ribbons for the past three years.

Under the sponsorship of floriculture instructor Harry Nelson, any and all plants grown and nurtured during the lean winter months have proved successful entrants at the exhibitions.

against contestants from the entire Pacific area, including Hawaii.

Cagers Meet Napa Tonight, Dons Friday

Locals Win 61-40 In Opening Game With Hamilton

By John Dierkling

With all the huff and puff over football completed here at City College, basketball gets into full swing tonight when the Rams tangle with Napa there, and the USF Frosh in the men's gymnasium Friday at 3:30 p.m.

The opening whistle was heard last week when the college five downed Hamilton Air Force Base, 61-40, with Coach Ralph Hillsman using every member of the squad.

Banging out five field goals and six free throws was Harvey Cranow, to take top scoring honors with 16 markers, and Al Martino following with 11 points.

The Rams showed little court talent in the first half, with the score ending at the half, 23-21.

Most impressive moments of the game were the 23 free throws attempted by the Rams, the dropping through of 19 of the attempts, and Hamilton Field's 18 of the 22 free throw attempts.

Looking somewhat better in the second half, Cranow and Martino led the attack against Hamilton Field, which had little of the offensive ability left when Bill Coffey, tall and lumbering star of the air force base five, left the game on personal fouls.

The Hillsman clan will need plenty of polishing before they expect to knock down an aggressive and determined squad from the Napa Valley college, as well as the Don frosh.

Hillsman said he has his work cut out for him to try and correct the mistakes that were made last week against Hamilton Field, because there was plenty that needs correcting.

Following is the basketball schedule for the Christmas holidays:

Dec. 6	Napa	There
Dec. 8	USF Frosh	Men's Gym
Dec. 12	LACC	Cow Palace
Dec. 13	El Camino	Men's Gym
Dec. 16	JC Blues	There
Dec. 29	UC Frosh	Cow Palace
Jan. 3-6	Modesto Tournament

The 175 days in the City College academic year of 1950 and 1951 is .000478 per cent of the twentieth century.

AFTER KNOCKING OFF their first season opponent, Hamilton AFB, 61-40, last year's NCIC Conference Champions will be out for their second win of the season over the Napa College Chiefs when they travel to Napa tonight.

Ralph de la Torre Captures All-Conference QB Position

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

Ralph de la Torre, City College's able field general, was selected to quarterback the southern division's all-star team in the 16th annual Guardsman all-Northern California Junior College Conference squad.

Al Matthews, Monterey's powerful fullback, and Stockton tackle Charles Washington were unanimous choices, and have been named co-captains of the "dream team." Stockton dominated the first team, garnering six positions in all, five of them in the line.

The northern division has four repeaters. Ted Dunbar, Santa Rosa quarterback, captured a first-team berth last year.

Pete Arrigoni, Marin back playing for a northern division weak sister, was highly thought of by those who saw him play, for he got only one vote that did not place him on the first squad. Dave Devoto and Gene Wellman, both ends from Santa Rosa and Napa, respectively, were the other two repeaters from last year. Jerry Mikacich and Bob Perry, Sacramento and Santa Rosa centers, wound up in a tie for starting honors.

In the tabulations, three points were given for a first-team vote, two for a second-team vote, and honorable mention was worth one point. Selection forms were sent to every coach and football writer in each of the 15 colleges in the conference.

Sports Candidates To Hold Meeting Tomorrow

Coaches Bill Fischer and Grover Klemmer of the baseball and track squads, respectively, will conduct an informal meeting at 3:15 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the men's gymnasium, Room 168, to acquaint prospective candidates with the organization of the teams. The two mentors have extended a blanket invitation to all men interested in trying out for the squads to attend.

Neither sport begins until the Spring semester, but the coaches are anxious to look over the athletes as well as explain the different aspects and requirements of each.

Intramural Volleyball Entries Due January 4

Those interested in intramural volleyball must have their entries in by January 4 according to Intramural Director Tom Wilson. Entries will be accepted by Wilson in the office of the men's gymnasium. Managers of club or independent teams should fill out the application below.

Volleyball Signup Due By January 4

Applications for intramural volleyball, slated to open play next January, have been requested by Director Tom Wilson. All applications for this sport should be given to Wilson in the gymnasium before Thursday, January 4.

The application blank should contain the names of the eight men who constitute the team. Each team must provide itself with a manager besides the six regular and two substitute players. Anyone interested is eligible to compete in this intramural actlvity.

Fraternities and independent organizations are welcome to enter teams for the league which will be run on a round-robin basis. Championship awards will be made to the winning squad, and each member of the championship team will be awarded belt buckles. Runnerup awards will be silver medals for each member.

1950 Grid Review

Ram Gridders Harassed By Costly Bobbles

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

The 1950 record of the Ram gridiron machine was spoiled almost exclusively by fumbles, a bugaboo the locals were not able to shake until their final games of the season. Blessed with a good passing game and an excellent running attack, the Rams had most of their TD drives stopped by fumbles.

Against 1950 opponents the college gridders:

Defeated Vallejo College, 53-7. The locals hung onto the ball long enough in the second half to rack up 40 points and a convincing victory.

Lost to Menlo College, 24-0. Playing in 93-degree heat, the gridders appeared sluggish and out of condition. Menlo's rugged line was enough to hold the college backs.

Lost to Monterey Peninsula College, 27-19. They say charity begins at home, and the Rams had plenty of charity in their first home game of the season, giving away two touchdowns in the first quarter on fumbles. Al Matthews scored three of the four Lobo touchdowns.

Lost to Los Angeles City College, 21-6. Tom Novikoff, the Cubs' All-American, scored all three TD's while the Rams were holding his mates. The Klemmermen accumulated 19 first downs to LA's nine.

Lost to East Los Angeles College, 20-14. A real heart-breaker. The heavily favored Huskies were held on even terms in Kezar Stadium, even though the Rams lost the ball six times on seven fumbles. The Elans pulled it out of the fire on a TD pass with only 30 seconds left.

Defeated Hartnell College, 20-0. The much-thought-of Panthers proved to be without a scoring punch. For the first time this season, the college gridders didn't lose the ball once on a fumble.

Lost to Stockton College, 31-7. The Mustangs deserved the win, although the score isn't indicative of each team's relative talent. Roger Garland scored three touchdowns in a game played on a field inches deep in mud and water.

Lost to Modesto College, 13-6. Another perfect game as far as fumbles are concerned. The Rams didn't drop the ball once in a fine game which was hardly visible, because of thick tule fog.

Al Endriss Tops Team In Scoring, Ball Carrying

Al Endriss, left half on the Ram grid machine, topped the list of scorers in 1950, and also gained more yards per carry than any other back on the squad. The powerful speedster scored his first three from scrimmage, then developed into one of the better pass receivers on the squad and scored the last two on passes. His average gain was 8.7 yards [illegible]

Bob McBride ranked third in scoring with 18 points and third in average gain with 4.5 yards. He outgained all others on the squad with a net total of 252 yards.

The statistics below do not include the 21-6 loss to Los Angeles City College except in scoring. The figures for that game were not complete, but would probably boost the yards gained figure for every back, as the running game was at its best against the Cubs.

Varsity Boxing Coach Calls For Ring Candidates

Still searching for varsity boxing candidates, Coach Roy Diederichsen recently sent forth a plea for more men to try out for the team. His hopes of a successful season rest on the strength of only four men from the 1949-50 team, and to date most of the spots on this season's varsity are still open.

Although the Novice Boxing Tournament is out for new signups, Diederichsen asks that "Anyone interested in trying out for the varsity squad and especially those with previous ring experience should contact me as soon as possible."

All weight divisions are still open and two strings of pugilists are usually carried through the boxing season. Thus far the only returnees present on Diederichsen's roster are Len Gage, 135, Jack Bettencourt, 155, Ralph de la Torre, 160, Ray Nelson, 165, and Joe Rockwell, 145. Gage and Bettencourt were runners-up in the Nationals last year.

Tentative arrangements have been completed for bouts with local schools and to date the schedule includes home and home meetings with Yuba and Placer Junior Colleges, Santa Clara, San Francisco State, and San Jose State Freshmen. Compton College has also been approached in hopes that the Rams can battle the Tartars, who usually field a strong group of boxers.

Soccermen Shutout Gators 2-0 To Grab Runnerup Honors

By Jack Spalding

The City College varsity soccer team wound up conference play last week with a 2-0 shutout victory over cellar dwelling San Francisco State and thus played itself into a second place tie with the University of California Bears.

The Rams whipped up their second win against the Gators in a hastily arranged contest which gave them their third win against three losses and two ties. The possibilities are good that they could have bettered the conference position had it not been for inclement weather.

Two contests with the Santa Clara Broncos, currently commuting between last and fifth place, could have gone to the Rams, but they'll never know now.

First place honors went to the University of San Francisco Dons who did nothing but throw shutouts upon shutout against all their opposition. The Ram varsity squad was the only group to mark the zero string of the Hilltoppers. In the second game of the season the Rams counted one goal, going down before the National Champions, 3-1.

There is a possibility that the Dons will get another crack at the National title again this year. It is rumored that another playoff, such as the one last year, is in the offing, but nothing definite is set.

Throughout the greater part of the season the squad was hurt by their play on the weekends. Saturday found the Rams short of players, through a series of unfortunate circumstances—mostly that the absent players were working.

League play ended last week with the final standings of the teams in this order: University of San Francisco, City College, Cal, Stanford, Santa Clara and San Francisco State. Rain ruined the home-and-home series set up under this year's schedule. Something like eight or nine contests were unplayed because of the weather.

GLENDA ASHER flashes a smile of surprise as she is told that her meal of corned beef and cabbage, potatoes, tomatoes, salad, cake, and milk is "on the house." Miss Asher, the 500th student to pass through the cafeteria last Wednesday, is being presented with the check by Ed Borton while Wilmer Martin, student manager, stands by to pick it up. The two envious onlookers in the background will get their chance for a treat this afternoon when the cafeteria will again pick up the check. This time for the 650th patron.—Photo by Matthes.

Petitions Of Soph King, Queen Candidates Due Friday Noon

With elections for sophomore king and queen slated for Tuesday and Wednesday, January 16 and 17, candidates must turn in their petitions by this Friday noon, December 8, Lee Janover, sophomore class president, declared yesterday.

Portraits of candidates, which will be placed in the showease in the main building several days prior to the elections, may be taken at the A. Walter McMurray Portrait Studio, 1401 Van Ness Avenue at Bush Street, before Friday, December 15. There is no charge for these pictures, Janover said.

Candidates, who are to be sponsored by any on-campus organization that wishes to select a student to run, must have completed 30 units of work at the college to attain sophomore standing.

Campaign costs for each contestant must not exceed $15, Janover pointed out, and the number of posters is limited to ten per person. Five of these may be placed on-campus and five distributed off-campus.

King and queen winners will be crowned at the sophomore formal, which will take place at the Scottish Rite Auditorium on Saturday, January 20.

At that time the king and queen will be presented with individual loving cups, Beta Tau fraternity and Theta Tau sorority will also present the winners with perpetual trophies, upon which the royal names are engraved.

According to tradition, the women vote for the king, and the men vote for the queen. The elections will take place from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Building 2, on the aforementioned dates.

As in the past, the attire for the dance will be formals for the women and dark suits for the men, with corsages optional.

Air Corps Offers Sophs Training

By Bob Reilly

Two U. S. Air Force officers, Captain Donald Nelson and Lieutenant Raymond Hutchins, will be in the student store between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. tomorrow and Friday to interview sophomores interested in Air Force training courses, Major Vance H. Larrabee announced last week.

Major Larrabee, who made arrangements for the visit, said this Aviation Cadet Selection Team is able to process immediately qualified applicants for any of three courses. These courses are Aviation Cadet Pilot Training, Cadet Navigation Training, and Officer Candidate School.

As a Cadet in either Pilot Training or Navigation, men will receive a year's intensive schooling during which they will be paid $103 a month. Upon graduation they will be awarded a second lieutenant's commission. Applicants must be between the ages of 20 and 26 and a half years old, single, and citizens with two years of college completed.

Air Force Officer Candidate School consists of six months of training in administrative and technical subjects. Students — men or women — receive pay equal to that of a staff sergeant. Upon graduation the rank of second lieutenant is awarded.

Two fitness tests will be given to applicants on the campus. Audio-visual testing will be done in the Graphic Arts photography dark rooms and mental testing will be held in Building 3, upstairs.

All-Stars Tangle With Castlemont In Oak Bowl

A squad of 25 City College grid All-Stars will take to the field on Sunday afternoon, December 17, against the Castlemont Athletic Club Cavaliers in the 1950 Oak Bowl. The game will start at 2 p.m. on the Castlemont High School turf in Oakland.

Members of the squad taking part in the post-season encounter will include quarterbacks Ralph de la Torre and Dick Carillo, halfbacks Al Endriss and Rod deCristofaro, and fullback Bob McBride. The tackle posts will be held down by Paul Zgraggen and Alex Grosswird, while Diek Saccani and Jim Kotler will perform at guard.

General admission for the game will be $1.00.

Spring Job Plan Offers Students Clerical Work

A work experience program featuring clerical job opportunities which will allow students an option of working in business and industry either in the mornings or afternoons will be initiated when the spring semester begins in February, 1951, Joseph Amori, placement director, said recently.

Leaders of business and industry, representing banks, insurance companies, and public utilities, met with City College administrative officials last week and laid plans for the job training program.

The following business and industrial firms attended the education-business conference called by Dean Jaek Brady: Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company, Hartford Fire and Indemnity Company, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Bank of America, Wells Fargo Bank, and American Trust Company.

The work experience program will allow students to work a minimum of four hours for which they will receive the current wage scale and attend classes for four hours. The program will be very flexible in nature and calls for both men and women students who are qualified for and show an interest in, the various job opportunities available.

In addition to the work experience feature, the new program will present excellent opportunities to students to learn at first hand what types of jobs are available in the world and to earn while they learn, Amori said.

Book Drive Fills Campaign Barrels

By Henry Loule

Alpha Lambda Chi's campaign for books for the Korean wounded during the week of Thanksgiving netted several barrels of reading material.

The drive, sponsored by the sorority as its fall project, gave every student on the campus an opportunity to express his concern for the U. N. armed forces wounded in the Far East theater of war.

However, for Alpha Lambda Chi, the campaign is not quite over. Shirley Maritzen, club president, said, "Christmas vacation will be an extra busy holiday for the members, friends, and volunteers. The huge pile of reading matter must be packed and shipped before Christmas."

Unable to tabulate exactly how many books, pocket editions, magazines, and other reading material had been gathered, Miss Maritzen declared that her basement was stacked to the brim.

The Merchant Marine library, cooperating with the sorority, has found cargo space on a ship of one of the well-known lines. These barrels of books will be dropped off at the different rest camps along its route.

Because of midterms and the holiday distractions, Miss Maritzen has not yet the time to appraise and classify the books for their recreational value.

Santa Rosa Wins Top Team Honors In Debate Meet

Winners of the Phi Rho Pi debate tournament were announced last week by Michael Griffin, adviser to the debate team and organizer of the tournament, with Santa Rosa High School winning first place.

Santa Rosa walked off with top honors in both the general sweepstakes and the interpretation sweepstakes. They were followed by Lowell and Bellarmine.

Copping debate sweepstakes honors was Lowell High, followed by St. Ignatius, both of San Francisco.

Individual sweepstakes honors went to Carey McWilliams from Merced, who stood out by walking off with top honors in both oratory and impromptu speaking.

John Heilbron from Lowell, and Bob Wallach from Los Angeles High were second and third respectively.

Edward F. Sandys, dean of general college courses, was in charge of the judges, who were supplied by the Commonwealth Club of California, Optimist Club, and several other organizations.

The next scheduled college debate will be Friday at St. Mary's on the national debate subject, Griffin said.

Two teams will take part in the event, with Joe Schwab and John Wilson taking the affirmative viewpoint, and Diek Schnell and Bart Dempster airing the negative side of the subject.

Last Friday the debaters travelled to USF, where they took part in the regularly scheduled panel discussion.

Of college-trained, successful professional and businessmen interviewed by George Gallup's American Institute of Public Opinion, 70 per cent said that they would gladly go into the same profession if given a chance to start over again.

Women Ignore Paint Course Opportunities

By Howard Cumming

College women are missing a good occupational chance when they pass up Paint technology, Francis K. Wilson, paint instructor, declared recently.

Paint technology was started as a once-a-year course in the Fall of 1947. Since the time of its inception there has been only one woman enrolled in its classes, Wilson said. The reason for this is not clear, since women are employed all the time in the paint industry, he added.

Paint technology students receive practical training in a laboratory superior to those used in many plants in the industry, Wilson said.

Students get training in theory and practice in paint formulation, enamels and varnishes, synthetics and lacquers, and color and decoration in a modern scientific laboratory in step with the latest developments in the industry, Wilson said.

Apparatus is available here for the latest methods in cooking varnishes and for mixing pigmented products. A modern spray booth permits students to apply finishes in the best professional methods.

The laboratory includes precision equipment for use in studying chemical reactions involved in studying paint application.

Another feature of the laboratory, Wilson said, is that it is designed to keep in step with industrial and scientific developments in manufacturing and testing.

Paint technology was established in the college under the sponsorship of the education committees of the Golden Gate Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association, the Golden Gate Paint and Varnish Production Club, and the Oakland Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association.

These organizations consist of the leaders in the paint industry and have helped the college keep abreast of the times and thus prepare students for successful employment in the field, Wilson said.

Scenes Of Amazon Basin Featured In Film Friday

Amazon Awakens, a color film of the Amazon Basin, will be presented at 10 a.m., and again during college hour, Friday, December 8, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, announced yesterday.

The film, which runs 23 minutes, will feature scenes made during a trip through the Basin, and will picture the inhabitants of the Basin, their ways of life, and their products.

The college film series, now in its third year, has been very successful, Devlin said. The college has been fortunate in obtaining good movies of such a variety that there has been no need for showing the films more than one time.

A definite need for movie equipment operators has arisen, Devlin announced. Students who have had some experience in the operation of motion picture equipment, and plan to remain at the college for at least two more semesters would be preferred.

Students would be paid for this work at the rate of 75 cents per hour, he added. Any student who has free hours during the week, and who is interested in this type of work should see Devlin in Room 155 from 9 to 12 o'clock any week-day morning.

Students Urged To Make Counselling Date

Students who plan to return to the college, but have not yet made counselling appointments for the Spring semester, are urged to do so as soon as possible, Alva McMillan of the college counselling staff, said yesterday.

Approximately 1,850 students have received their programs and registration numbers already, he pointed out.

Appointments may be made in Building 3, McMillan added.

campus clubs plan many events to usher in the winter season

Now that mid-terms are over, and vacation time is close at hand, campus clubs are planning many events to usher in the winter season.

Members of the Ski Rams schedule a meeting tomorrow night at the home of their president, Ted Hamm, 960 Guerrero Street, to discuss plans for future ski trips and events. Any students interested in joining the group or in attending this meeting should notify Hamm by calling VAlencia 4-6420. There is a $2 initiation fee for new members, and dues are $1 per semester.

Other officers for the Ski Rams include John Swett, vice-president; Nancy Provance, secretary; and Sherly Sharp, treasurer. The group will also hold a meeting on Friday during college hour in Room 212.

Alpha Lambda Chi pledges recently gave senior members a turkey dinner at the home of Shirley Metcalf. A 16 pound turkey was given away as a doorprize, which was won by Chloe Sheldon. The Lambda Chis also had a party with the men of Tri-Epsilon on Friday, November 24. Both the San Francisco and San Mateo chapters of Tri-E were present.

John Brix, English instructor at the college, recently became the new co-sponsor of Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity. He will work with the group's regular adviser, Kenneth Thunem.

Members of the Newman Club attended a formal "Snow Ball" dance in the Colonial Room of the St. Francis Hotel last Friday evening, which was sponsored by the University of California chapter. Tonight, the Newman Club will hold their annual Christmas party at 8 p.m. at St. Emydius. Everyone who attends is requested to bring a 25 cent present.

Beta Tau men held a recent pre-Thanksgiving joint meeting with Kappa Phi women. From all reports the meeting started the holiday off in excellent spirits.

Incidentally, the Betas are being aided in preparation for their Mistletoe Mingle dance, which will be held Friday at the Hotel Whitcomb, by members of Theta Tau. The women are devoting time to making wreaths of holly and mistletoe for decorations and are selling bids to the affair.

The Forum Club will hold its next meeting after the Christmas vacation. Topic for discussion is whether the 20th century crisis was due to a weakening of moral standards.

New members of Kappa Rho include John Leavell, Stan Treshaell, Bob Clancey, Diek Sehnel, and Howard Webb.

Phi Beta Delta men will celebrate the holiday season at a "Tom 'n Jerry" party on Sunday, with the Kappa Phis.

Horseback riders of the Spur and Saddle Club will hold a horse show at the St. Francis Riding Academy sometime in the latter part of next January. Members are practicing for the event, and any interested students are invited to participate.

Opera Production List Released By Workshop Director

With the appointment of an advisory board, composed of leading music-minded San Franciscans, Flossita Badger, Opera Workshop director, yesterday announced forthcoming productions for the spring semester.

Two serious works will highlight the opening of the college's music season. They include the premiere performance of Christopher Smith, an original one act tragedy by Robert Morton, workshop instructor, and Gian-Carlo Menotti's Amelia Goes to the Ball.

Miss Badger said a light opera, possibly Roberta by Jerome Kern, will be presented probably in June as a climax to the music department's spring attractions.

At the same time, she said evening classes in the workshop will be held for the first time beginning with the spring semester. Classes will be held from 7 to 9:30 p.m. every Tuesday.

Auditions were held last week in the auditorium to determine singers eligible for enrollment in the Opera Workshop for the spring semester.

Meanwhile, the workshop's advisory board continued to assure the workshop of support for major college productions. They are currently devising plans whereby light and grand operas can be presented on an alternating basis. Under this plan, a light opera would be presented one semester, and a grand opera the following semester.

The advisory board includes the following:

President Louis G. Conlan, chairman; Charles M. Dennis, director of music, San Francisco Board of Education; Albert Elkus, chairman, University of California music department; Mrs. Dan London, president, San Francisco Opera Guild; Mrs. Thomas Carr Howe, Jr., director, San Francisco Opera Guild; Mrs. Harold Kemp, president, San Francisco Musical Club; Margaret Girdner, director of texts and libraries, San Francisco Board of Education.

Presses Roll Via Mails, Telephone

Staff members of The Guardsman skirted the dangerous rocks of publication last week with aid and suggestions coming from Joan Nourse, faculty adviser, who is absent on sick leave, via Uncle Sam's post office.

Miss Nourse is recovering from a recent operation and was unable to be present when the staff worked on today's edition, and put the finishing touches on next Wednesday's special. Phone lines and mail routes were kept busy as Miss Nourse answered technical problems on putting out a newspaper.

She expects, however, to be on hand when The Guardsman resumes publication next semester.

Sophs Elect King, Queen Next Week

With sophomore king and queen election slated for Wednesday and Thursday, January 17 and 18, the college's biggest sophomore week will get under way, Lee Janover, class president, declared yesterday.

Elections will take place in Building 2 from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., with the men students voting for queen, and women voting for king.

Among the candidates are Pete Chevrier, Diek MacFarland, and Monroe Johnson for king, and Jana Neill, Beverly Jank, Annette Hinson, Lois Hoffman, and Janet Cirimele for queen. Posters of the candidates are now on display at various points on the campus, as well as off-campus places.

Another highlight of the week is the annual sophomore formal, which will be held in the Scottish Rite Auditorium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Saturday, January 20. Bids are two dollars per couple and may be purchased from salesmen throughout the campus.

The dance will be semi-formal, dark suits for men and formals for women, and music will be supplied by Jackson Terry and his orchestra. Corsages for the women are optional.

Highlight of the dance will be the crowning of the king and queen at midnight, and the coronation waltz, which the royal couple will lead.

When the king and queen are announced, they will each receive individual loving cups; and will be presented with the Beta Tau and Theta Tau perpetual trophies, upon which their names will be engraved.

Candidates for sophomore king and queen are sponsored by on-campus organizations, which nominate a man or woman to run. Each candidate is allowed only $15 for campaign costs, which includes the ten posters each person is allowed to place on and off campus.

The traditional sophomore formal, which climaxes Sophomore week, is the last major social event for the Fall 1950 semester. A large turnout is expected, Janover said.

Election Race Hits Polls

Constitutional Amendments Go To Voters Today

Ten amendments to the Associated Student constitution were placed on the ballot for association members to vote on today and tomorrow when they go to the polls.

The amendments, according to John Allen, election commissioner, are fairly simple, but are of importance to the future of student government at the college. All ten proposed amendments were approved for placement on the ballot by the Student Council early last month.

The include:

1. Delete office of yell leader as an elective office and make it an appointed office.
2. Change vice-presidential requirements from 30 to 45 units of work completed prior to term in office.
3. Change name of Club Advisory Board to Club Activities Board.
4. Add student card sales chairman, information service chairman, and corresponding secretary as members of the President's cabinet.
5. Relieve the Publications Board from duties of approving posters and printed material used in election campaigns, and place in hands of the election committee.
6. Give the election committee power to approve campaign literature.
7. Delete Welfare Committee as a standing committee.
8. Delete the sentence, under awards, which limits the number of awards which may be presented to injured athletes to two.
9. Delete section under awards, which states that red sweaters may only by members of teams winning a recognized conference championship who fulfill requirements for block letter awards except in sports where less than four conference games are played.

Oral Sophomore Exams Under Way

Speech testing for second semester students began Monday and will continue through January 26 in Building 19, Anthony Paolotti, director of speech testing, announced last week.

All tests will be given by Miss Lucile Meredith, speech instructor, and Paciotti in Room 4 of Building 19, according to the following schedule: daily, 9-10; Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 11-12 and 1-3; Tuesday, Thursday, 10-11.

Voting Polls In Main Building, Lounge

Voting will take place today and tomorrow in the Student Lounge, Building 2, and in the study hall of the main building, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and during a special college hour tomorrow, John Allen, election commissioner, declared yesterday.

Voters must show Associated Student membership cards before they may be allowed to cast their ballots.

Aiding Allen in the elections are Klaus Schale and Stan Ross, assistants to the commissioner.

Dean of Student Activities Louis Batmale has officially approved tomorrow's college hour. He also said a college hour will be held Friday.

Clish May Dedicate Store Next Friday At Open-Air Rally

By Joan Bayerle

Dedication ceremonies announcing the new name of the college's student store are tentatively set to be held in the west campus parking lot during college hour next Friday, January 19.

At that time, as a part of the dedication, the winner of the naming contest will be announced and awarded $20 in credit slips for use at the store and an Associated Student card by Associated Student President Thomas Dill.

The new name was chosen from among more than 700 submitted during the contest period by a special judging board consisting of Dean of Student Activities Louis Batmale, George Mullany, journalism instructor, Diek Main, student manager, and Beverly Jank, Associated Student vice-president.

After more than two months of preparation and promotion by the Student Council, the climax will be reached at the ceremonies where the student band is scheduled to blow appropriate marches and dedication music.

Dignitaries for the event are expected to include President Conlan, and Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools.

Bill Steiner and his Rally Committee members have been working on preparations for the occasion for the past two weeks and have assured the council that the program slated has been carefully planned and will go off like clockwork.

The store became a reality after a planning period of two years last September 5

Ralph Vetterlein, Joe Azzolino Vie For Presidency

By Bob Rezak

Polling places in two locations on campus opened at 9 a.m. today to receive voters in today's and tomorrow's Associated Student elections for the Spring semester student officers.

They will remain open until 3 p.m. both days, with a special college hour slated for tomorrow to ease voting.

Voting will be done by automatic election machines in the Student Lounge, Building 2, and in the study hall of the main building.

Election Commissioner John Allen released the official list of candidates for both parties, the Inter-Fraternity Council Party and the Student League Party.

Ralph Vetterlein, this semester's Associated Men Students' President, is presidential candidate for the IFC, while Joseph Azzolino, Associated Student card sales chairman this semester, opposes him on the Student League ticket.

Noel Anderson received endorsement of both parties as candidate for vice-president.

Other candidates on the IFC ticket include the following:

Sophomore Council: Kenneth Graham, Marilyn Jacobs, Lee Janover, Esther Ossin, and Leonard Rodney.

Freshman Council: Frank Barranti, James Cress, Roy Landi, Nancy Provance, Eugene Short, Joan Skinner, and Howard Webb.

Other candidates on the Student League ticket include the following:

Allen said he believed the results of the election would be "very close—the closest in quite some time because both parties have evenly matched candidates."

Allen indicated that names will be placed on the voting machines in alphabetical order, according to office, but not according to party.

He also urged voters to vote on the ten proposed amendments to the AS constitution.

Candidates for both parties were introduced to voters during an election rally held in the auditorium last week.

Hill 29 Lunch Service Opens

Snacks Now Available For Students In Main Building

By Alvin Guthertz

A new quick-lunch service, located in the basement lounge of the main building, has recently been opened, Gordon Carrol, chairman of the project, announced yesterday.

The quick-lunch counter will serve milk, coffee, doughnuts, and sandwiches. As yet, regular hours have not been set, pending demand of students. Popular demand by students and faculty originated the idea for the counter, and it should be of great value to those students unable to use the west campus fountain, Carrol said.

The idea was begun by several men students working in the cafeteria. After permission to establish the service had been obtained, the lounge was surveyed and the service started on its way to reality.

A student committee, headed by Carrol, began preparations. The amount of equipment needed, and the source for this equipment had to be found, and a complete, workable budget established.

After these details had been ironed out, the committee's report was put before a college committee meeting. Outcome of this meeting was the establishment of the service.

Meanwhile, the west campus cafeteria, in keeping pace with the nation, has made slight food increases. Coffee and milk prices boosted one cent. The milk price increase was made only after three national milk price hikes had been made.

On the whole lunch and dinner prices remain practically the same. Some of the "luxury" items that were occasionally found on the menu (i.e., turkey) will how have to be served a la carte.

News of the price increase was received by some students with a slight grumble, but most students had anticipated the rise for some time.

Irwin Herlihy, sophomore student from George Washington high school, claimed it was good to see the college keeping in line with the rest of the nation.

Hilda Watson, head of the hotel and restaurant division, explained that the increase was done along with other colleges and universities and visibly necessary. City College was one of the last Bay Area colleges to make a price boost, she said.

Students and faculty are awaiting the student report on the first week's new quick-lunch sales. As soon as this report is made, members of the committee will know just how many students they will accommodate, the hours of operation, and other matters of importance.

Mardi Gras Theme Next College Film Attraction

Mardi Gras time comes to the college at 10 a.m. and during college hour Friday, January 12, when the audio-visual aids department under the direction of Madison Devlin, resumes the college film series in Room 136.

This week's production, a film of the 1949 New Orleans Mardi Gras, was produced by the college's photography department, headed by Beverly Pasqualetti.

The film will show colorful floats, exciting costumes, and an overall picture of the festive multitude, taken during the gala Mardi Gras.

Only A Minority Will Vote If Election Rally Is Indicative

EARLY last Friday morning a handful of students were on hand in the auditorium for the traditional Associated Student election rally. Things were rather cold, gloomy, and quiet inside the auditorium because there were barely 100 persons in attendance.

This figure doesn't include the candidates and members of the band.

Last June only 696 Associated Student members bothered to vote. The semester before only 641.

If the attendance at the election rally is indicative, and to our way of thinking it is, then the number of voters will drop to a bare two or three hundred.

In all sincerity we hope that the poor showing at the election rally is not indicative of the turnout at the polls today and tomorrow. In other words, we hope that enough Associated Students are interested enough in student government to make the supreme effort and vote.

But in light of the pitiful showing Friday we think this is unlikely.

There are several factors that enter into this situation. The conscription of men into the armed forces, the global situation, and apathy toward Associated Student affairs.

The first two factors were not prevalent in the early June election. Therefore apathy and lethargy on the part of A.S. members is the prominent factor.

THIS is hardly news. It has been going on for several semesters whether the student leaders realized it or not.

Actually, then, the student leaders of City College are put into office by a minority. The majority doesn't bother to vote for many reasons—apathy, indifference, studies, carelessness, forgetfulness, and a "to hell with it" attitude.

The Guardsman, official campus publication, supports no candidates. But this newspaper urges students to vote.

We urge all members of the Associated Students to vote in the elections, either today or tomorrow.

Increased interest will make for better student government and a student government elected by a majority and not by a minority.

Election details will be found on Page One.

season's 'greetings' unwelcomed by draft-prone college men

COLLEGE students of the male species all over the country trudged back to the old Alma Mater recently with lowered heads and a feeling that New Year's greetings were edged in black.

The feeling of impending doom is well founded. With the Air Force picking off men as they enter student stores, the Naval Reserve snatching them out of classes, and our national leaders singing "The Draft Man Will Get You If You Don't Watch Out," college men are beside themselves as to which way to turn.

CONGRESS SPOOKY

As far as can be ascertained, college men are supposed to be deferred until June of 1951 with the added stipulation that if at the end of that time they are in the upper ten per cent of their class scholastically they will be deferred indefinitely. But as every good college man knows, it's only a federal law and with Congress in a spooky mood it will undoubtedly be a thing of the past in the near future.

The best they could come up with was giving tests to determine who is the brightest and setting up government boards to sift the results. The bright ones would stay in school; the others would go into the service.

One gentleman even proposed that the government should decide, on the basis of tests, who would go to college, who would go into the industrial army, and who would go into the service after graduation from high school, not only during the present national emergency but for all time to come. How pink can you get before you become red?

The only plan that would be fair to everyone would be the drafting of one and all. Then if the government needed scientists, doctors, and engineers let them be sent to school after induction into the service.

NO NEED FOR TESTS

As for testing there is no real need for it. The college record of every student is available to everyone else, why not the federal government? It's doubtful if there is any test yet devised that could give such conclusive information as a record of what the student has done in the past.

As much as it may be hoped for, nobody should get his hopes too high for a well thought out and sane plan. If you are studying engineering and getting straight A's you had better learn to drive a truck, for from all indications there is still the right way, the wrong way, and the way the government will do it.

Experience, Education Here Aid Former Student Construction Field Wide Open, Says Oddstad

Educational training plus practical experience are the factors which lead to success, according to Andres F. Oddstad Jr., President of Sterling Building Company, and former City College student.

"There are unlimited opportunities in the construction field," Oddstad said recently. "It is a field in which you are competing with men who have little or no training in the construction field."

Oddstad graduated from the college in 1938, and then graduated from the University of California in 1941. He was employed at the Timber Engineering Company during 1940 and 1941, the Acme Tank and Tower Company from June 1940 to the latter part of 1942, and entered the U.S. Navy in 1943.

He and his partner Chris Finson started with the Sterling Building Company in January 1946, and have seen it grow from small scale operation to a company which was ranked third in the production of homes in the Bay Area during 1950.

Included in projects which the Sterling Company has constructed, or is now constructing are Hillside Manor in Daly City, Sterling Terrace in South San Francisco, Sterling Park in Colma, Sterling Manor in Daly City, and Sterling Highlands in Redwood City.

Oddstad, who knew when a small boy that he was going to be a contractor, describes the construction field as one in which men, matcrials, and machinery are moved to a site, and the methods of the contractor are used; however, it is actually a manufacturing field.

ANDRES F. ODDSTAD, JR., president of the Sterling Building Company and former student of the college, smilingly looks up from his desk to declare that there are unlimited opportunities in the construction field for qualified individuals.—Photo by Hilmer.

"The construction field is perhaps the only industry in the United States that is wide open," Oddstad said. He could not stress too strongly the opportunities open to men who have the educational background, and are willing to spend time gaining practical experience in the field.

Oddstad considers the training he received at the college invaluable, and employs many City College students at the Sterling Company. These include Elma Oddstad, his secretary; Gerald Johnson, Richard Boone, and Gordon Hanson, assistant superintendents; and Peter Pira and Nasli Bana, Architectural Draftsmen.

Periodical Room

Men Read Esquire In Library Haunt

By Sumi Kanaya

Men students who study in the periodical alcove of the main library where women seem to be tabu will be interested to learn that the library was recently sent a gift subscription of Esquire magazine for men only.

Seemingly by an unwritten rule, women students who use the library for study and research do their knowledge-pursuing in the large, main room, leaving the periodical room where current magazines are placed as a strictly masculine retreat.

But feminine students should not feel slighted, Clement Skrabak, chairman of the library committee said, for Mademoiselle magazine is included in the 300 monthlies to which the library subscribes.

He observed that Dale Carnegie's How to Stop Worrying and Start Living, and Peace of Mind by Joshua Lichman are currently among the books most in demand.

A glance at the records of the books checked out last December 8, shows that a number of students seem to have determined to start 1951 with good intentions. The number of volumes borrowed that day was almost double the amount of an average day.

Young Journalist Lost By The Wayside When Complexities Of Reporting Become Confusing

By Douglas Hayward

A good reporter, says some antiquated tome on the field of journalism, must be as objective as the day is long. Further, this criterion for top-notch snoops avows, he must have a wide background of knowledge from which to draw at will, consisting of such trifles as English, history, political science, geography, a working knowledge of at least two languages and an "in" with the city editor.

But for a young college newshound, barely acquainted with life, let alone the arts and sciences, the problem of reporting is tenfold in complexity, for he must on occasion delve into polytechnics. Take, for instance, the plight of one young neophyte fresh out of Journalism 31, the printer's-ink dew still fresh on his upper lip:

This unfortunate was offhandedly instructed to find out just wot'n'el was going on in one of the branches of the electronics course. On his way to his source, the youngster, displaying a pitiable faith in dame fortune, must have recited to himself the lines from Article IV, Section b of the Reporter's Manual: "I shall never shirk an assignment nor turn my back on duty!"

And so, timidly (this is partly conjecture, partly a collection of the facts which trickled in weeks later), he approached the slide-rule bedecked instructor who, soldering iron in hand, had masterfully wedged himself between a high-fidelity amplifier and an RF television receiver.

"Pardon, sir, but may I ask some questions of you?"

"I thought I explained all that to you last week," came the reply, "If the filament won't work . . ."

"But I'm from the paper, and we're trying to find out just wot . . ."

"Look, boy. This is no information center. I don't care what kind of paper you're writing; the catalogues are back there." (He waved airily at a ceiling-high stack of technical volumes.)

"Please, sir, remove that soldering iron from my chest; you're ruining my shirt!"

"I'm afraid you don't understand, sir. I am not here to learn, I . . ."

The instructor must have been dismayed. His jaw dropped, his face took on the look of incredulity which must have greeted Oliver Twist at the orphanage when he asked for more porridge. "Not . . . here . . . to . . . learn . . ."

This was heresy against the religion of electronics! The instructor turned, dazed, muttering about the ionosphere and frequency modulation, and wedged himself once more firmly between the apparati.

The gangling youth, pencil poised and notebook agape, turned and stumbled from the scene of utter confusion.

Two days later the lost newsman straggled in Under his arm were five massive volumes of Modern Electronics. He spoke briefly and brokenly with a few trusted friends, then shuffled bookishly out.

At last report he was an A student in basic electronics, and had given up writing of all sorts, except for an occasional diagram note and letters home.

But old timers around the paper will still tell you, should they be asked, that he will return once more to his typewriter and community desk. "Like the good book says," they will recite, "'Journalists have traditionally stood staunchly in the face of all danger. Once a journalist, always a journalist!' Article IX, Section d."

Shots At RAMdom

exhausted collegiates conclude merriments, return to quiet lives

WITH the beginning of the New Year and mellowness all around, most of the students on the campus are settling down for a new start as far as school and studies are concerned.

The main conversational topics among the men students, before vacation started, were draft status, reserve status, draft status, and draft status. Upon returning from vacation students will find the conversational topics have changed to draft classification, reserve status, draft classification and draft classification.

Even the women students are starting to worry. One was overheard to say, "They're getting too old or too young again."

STRENUOUS YULETIDE

Many seats in many classes stared vacantly up at instructors and students alike as it became obvious that not a few had either left campus for good on one errand or another, or were still recuperating from a strenuous and extended vacation. Christmas spirits were in the air as many puffed back to college.

During the Christmas vacation period many college students were plugging away at part time jobs earning enough money to underwrite the Christmas expenses.

Although the department stores made a large dent in student unemployment the Post Office stood supreme as a hiring agent for those in debt.

Seen fighting the dull routine of daily jobs were Al Endriss, Jim McAuley, Gene Kelly, Dick Larrick, Rod deCristofaro, Mary Bernie, Kathrine Sheehan, Tom Meehan.

Spotted on the job was deCristofaro directing traffic around that stalled Post Office wonder at Polk and Golden Gate while picking up an hour's overtime; and from an irate, very excitable parking lot owner came the report that someone, evidently a dastardly lout, had driven off with his tents, or was it fence?

At any rate a very familiar face about the campus was seen, truck, fence, and all, careening pell-mell over Nob Hill.

Rumor has it that the Fraternity party, which faced several very near splits as a result of factional feuding, and the new Student League will have a real tussle over who gets where and just exactly why.

HOLIDAY TRAGEDY

To move to the sometimes sad part of life the news has come in that two former City College students serving with the Marine Corps have met with fate over the holidays.

Pfc Nick Antonis, former band member, was reported missing in action with elements of the First Marine Division on the Korean battlefield.

Pfc Jack Vanderbilt, former member of The Guardsman staff, was killed in an automobile accident on December 16 while returning to Camp Pendleton, Oceanside, California from liberty in San Diego.

Sophomores Meet Faculty Profs In Third Casaba Tilt

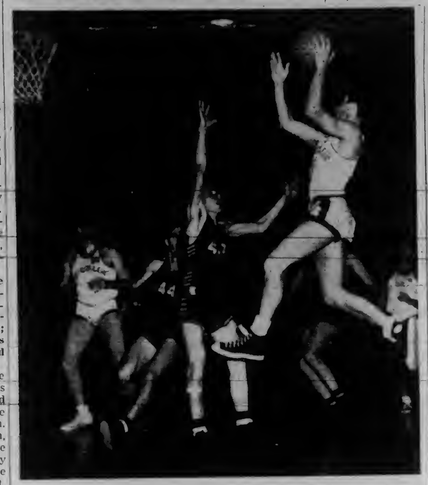
An ancient (three years) rivalry gets a new test on Friday afternoon, January 19, in the men's gymnasium during an extended college hour when the sophomores tackle the faculty in the third annual soph-faculty basketball game(?).

The sophs will again be the underdogs, and with good reason. They haven't won yet from the aging profs.

The series was initiated in January, 1949, when the profs issued the first challenge. They won going away, 15-12. Lou Batmale paced the winners with 5 whole points.

Last year it was much closer. The tutors won 15-13 in an overtime period. Roy Diederichsen and Tom Wilson each sank a free throw to vanquish the harrassed sophomores; Diederichsen took top scoring honors with 9 points, Wilson was second with 4.

The same old faces will again be evident on the faculty squad this year. "Hot Shot" Diederichsen and "Golden Boy" Wilson will be in there giving their all for the home team. "Rover" Klemmer, Ralph Hillsman, Jack Gaddy, Georgie Stewart, Mike Monaco, Harry Buttimer, and Roy "Our Boy" Burkhead also will be competing, if that's the word for it.



New strategy is the watchword for the sophs. Rumors floating around the men's gymnasium indicates that the sophs are going to try and force the faculty stalwarts to foul out before game's end. Then the sophs will win by default.

On the basis of this rumor, the faculty members will probably install a secret weapon of their own. Insiders say that Jack Gaddy is going to climb up on the shoulders of Ralph Hillsman. Then his teammates will pass him the ball, and he'll drop it through the charmed hoop. If the plan works out, Gaddy bids fair to become the highest scorer in the ivy-covered history of the series.

"Iron men" for the Sophomores are Dick Jackson, Charlie Andres, Frank White, Jack Breskey and Bob Freeze.

The above-named youngsters will be out to crack another record. Not content with racking up their first win, they want to overtake their senile opponents in total points scored in the series. The record stands now at 30 points for the oldies, 25 for the infants.

Rams Grab Consolation At Modesto

AL MARTINO, 10, City College forward, goes into the air for a last shot in the final 30 seconds of the game for the dramatic two points which broke a 51-51 deadlock to win over holiday barnstorming El Camino Junior College.

In the background watching the shot being performed are City College's star center Harvey Cranow, 20, and guard Mauro Lombardi, 8.

Rams Lose One While On Holiday Court Excursion

By John Dierking

The City College cage crew romped through the yuletide vacation period with not a too impressive four win, one loss record.

Still looking somewhat sloppy in their second encounter when they went up against Napa at Napa on Tuesday, December 5, the Hillsmen, paced by center Harvey Cranow's 26 points and Dick Greenberg's impressive four straight field goals in the second half, dropped the highly touted Chiefs to their knees to the tune of 60-56 in a see-saw, lead-changing, photo finish ending.

With two wins under their belts, the City College hoopmen were out for their third when they downed the USF Frosh at the Men's Gymnasium, Friday afternoon, December 8, in a close 51-46 finale. High scoring Ram center Cranow was held to only two points in the first half; that was the reason for the low half-time score of 21-17.

The second half was somewhat different when Cranow uncorked his phenomenal hook shot for 14 points. Guard Bob Wilson racked up 13 digits on the scoreboard for the winning difference, but the Rams were continually in danger with Joe Evanscho dropping ten field goals through the hoop at will for the Hilltoppers.

Trailing all the way until the final three minutes when the Ram cage squad faced the barnstorming El Camino College club one week later at the Men's Gymnasium, the locals finally eked out a 53-51 thriller that had the fans out of their seats down to the final horn. Cranow was top man for points again with 11, followed by Fred Niemann's five field goals in the second half.

First Season Loss

With no score during the first six minutes of play when they traveled the next night, Saturday, December 16, to Berkeley and clashed with the Cal Blues, the City College basket men were not in the ball game all evening when they dropped their first loss of the season in a had passing, uncoordinated game, at 40-46. Greenberg was high point man with six field goals, while Cranow was held to only six points.

The only time the Rams came within a breath of tying the score was when the half ended and the scoreboard read 18-20, with the Blues still leading. The Rams were without the services of their regular starting guard Bob Wilson, who was injured the previous night against El Camino.

Cranow Top Scorer

Taking on the Cal Frosh at the Cow Palace in a preliminary game Friday night, December 29, Niemann paced the squad with 24 points to take an easy 78-41 win from the Cubs.

Cranow Top Scorer

Averaging 14½ points per game for the first six games of the season was Cranow with a total of 87 points. Following in his footsteps is Greenberg with 50 points for an average of eight and a third points for the past six games. Next on the list is Niemann with 49 points for an average of eight and a sixth points, and Al Martino is in fourth spot with 42 points for an average of seven points per game.

Tomorrow Is Boxing Deadline For Varsity, Tourney Hopefuls

By Gene Kelly, Sports Editor

Final selection of the Ram boxing varsity will be held in the latter part of January at an all-college tournament to be held in the men's gymnasium, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen.

The tournament will probably be held on Friday, January 26, preceding the basketball game between the college quintet and the team from Contra Costa West Junior College.

All boxers, however, who have not yet contacted Diederichsen should do so before the deadline, which has been set at 4 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Participants will include returning veterans and several novice champions and runners-up. Among those present will be Len Gage, 125, and Jack Bettencourt, 155, both of whom reached the finals in last year's national tourney before being eliminated. Other veterans are Dick Fiore, 155, and Roy Bruner, 145.

Novice boxers shooting for a place on the 1951 varsity are Joe Rockwell and Bob Moore, both tipping the scales at 145, and Bob Shepardson, 175.

The schedule for the 1951 season has not yet been definitely set, but Diederichsen said it will probably include matches with Placer and Yuba Colleges, both newcomers to the schedule. An early match with the DeWitt Portal's perennially tough San Jose State Frosh squad is also pending.

A change in college boxing has been announced. This year, junior colleges in California will not participate in the national championships. Instead, those junior colleges in California will enter a new tournament, the California State Championships. The tournament will be held sometime in April, but neither the time nor the place has been decided on as yet.

Block SF Dinner Awards Delayed

The Block SF dinner, originally scheduled for this evening, has been postponed, according to sponsor Bill Fischer.

Fischer was unable to say whether or not the dinner would be held later this semester. The presentation of block letters, which were to be awarded after the banquet, was also postponed.

One block has already been presented to a member of the 1950 Ram football team. Scott Amour, a tackle whose jaw was broken during a mid-season scrimmage, received the coveted emblem after a special exemption was obtained from Louis Batmale, dean of student activities. The 19-year-old Galileo graduate suffered a double fracture and gum and dental injuries on October 31 while throwing an offensive block.

Amour's teammates pooled their funds to purchase a jacket for him.

Big Moment

Hillsman Ranks 1950 Title Win As Most Thrilling Event

By Don Stephens

Coach Ralph Hillsman, all-conference forward on the college's championship team in its initial year (1936) and developer of two successive conference champions since his appointment as head basketball coach, recalls in the following account the outstanding event in his career at City College:

"Last year we had just completed a successful season and were scheduled to play an outstanding opponent, Placer College, for the Northern California Junior College Conference championship in a two out of three series.

"The first game was slated for the Men's Gymnasium and the remaining games at Auburn. Placer, with all their height and a 33-game winning streak behind them, were conceded to be a strong favorite, despite the fact that they were playing their opponents (us) on our court. Their positions as favorite was justified when they whipped us decisively, 56-42.

"The team was down, and felt that the trip to Auburn was futile. They didn't think they could compete with Placer on Placer's court when they didn't even come close here in the city.

"As we entered the court for the warm-up prior to the supposed slaughter, an incident occurred that was to change the team, as a group, from a 'lamb' to a 'lion.'

"The game was a sellout despite the shellacking we suffered in the first game. A college administrator was in the stands asking people to sit closer together so as to provide more room for spectators, and, in turn, 'more money when the team goes to Hutchinson, Kansas, for the national playoffs.' This little display of cockiness made our boys feel like 'spoilers.'

"From the opening tipoff, the game was hard-fought and even, but with the determination stimulated by the remarks of the Placer official, we managed to pull ahead and win a closie, 48-47.

"The third game was the rubber game of the series and the one that determined the conference championship. We still had that edge, however, and won the third and deciding game by a slightly bigger margin, 52-46.

"After that we went on to become regional champs in the Sacramento tourney and represented this area in the national playoffs, where we got as far as the semi-finals before being eliminated.

"It was all brought on by the unwarranted presumption that we were beaten before we started.

"Incidentally, before the second and third games at Placer, the townspeople, who knew who we were, gave us a terrific ribbing. After we won the second game of the series, they bent over backwards to tell us how lucky we were. But after we won the championship, they were sure nice—offered to buy our breakfasts, and helped us out in all sorts of ways.

"One of the folks even remarked that if Placer didn't win the Sacramento regionals, he hoped we did because we had a fighting team. Gee, they sure were nice."

Porter Signs Contract With Professional Club

J. W. Porter, top catcher on the national champion Oakland American Legion baseball team, has signed a contract with the White Sox of the Chicago American League team for a bonus reported to be $50,000.

Porter, a student at City College, is rated one of the best catchers in amateur baseball. Coach Bill Fischer of the Ram nine tabbed him as the brightest prospect for the '51 season on the college varsity in its attempt to hold the division championship won in 1950. Porter's contract with the White Sox, however, precludes further amateur competition.

Panthers Drop Locals In First Tournament Tilt

MODESTO, Jan. 6.—In what has been heralded as the best crowd pleasing Modesto State Junior College Tournament in 13 years of tournament history, the City College cagers were knocked out of first round competition by Sacramento Junior College in a close 56-52 struggle. The Rams came back to grab victories in the next three tilts by close margins to win consolation honors.

Leading at the half with a fairly comfortable nine points with the scoreboard lights registering 34-25, the Ram hoopmen blew their lead with only seven minutes to go in the ball game when the Panthers forged ahead 48-47 with an attack led by rangy Tom Sekul who tanked 21 points for Sacramento.

Making up a half-time deficit of four points, forward Fred Niemann and Al Martino led their City College cagers with 10 and 11 points respectively to their first win of the tournament over Reedley College, 51-50.

The Rams were always in hot water during the contest as they were unable to make simple lay-in shots as well as center Harvey Cranow being unable to register any points with his hook shot specialty, but Tony Petersen came through as he registered 12 points for his losing Tigers.

Out to stop College of Sequoia's Monte Gonzales, who broke the individual scoring record at the tourney with 43 points, the college hoopmen were unable to do so in the first half as he registered 14 points, but the Rams went on to drop the Sequoia Giants 55-47.

Mauro Lombardi led the Ram cage crew through the first half with his impressive scoring and court play but the Rams were still behind at the half, 32-31. Forward Dick Greenberg and Cranow unleashed the second half for eight points apiece as they went on to stop Gonzales cold in his tracks for only three free throws for the Giants and a total of 17 points for the game.

In their second game on the same day, and behind at the half 23-22 for their third straight game, Niemann made a beautiful lay-in shot for the Rams with a foul called, dropping it through the basket in the last minute and a half to break a 46-46 deadlock and win 49-46 while staging a freeze in the last minute of play against Los Angeles City College.

Intra Volleyball Now Under Way; Boxing Finished

Intramural volleyball, last of the intramural sports for this semester, got under way Monday afternoon with the first game of a round robin series.

The games, under the direction of Tom Wilson, director of intramural sports, are played in the Women's Gymnasium every afternoon at 3:10. Games will be played until the schedule has been completed.

Upon the completion of the tournament, each member of the winning team will be presented with a belt buckle. Winners of second place honors will receive silver medals.

The novice intramural boxing championship was held at the close of instruction for the Christmas holidays in ten three-round events. There were no knockouts or tko's.

Winners in the ten weight divisions were as follows:

Night College Courses Offered Here For First Time Starting In Early February, Conlan Says

Evening classes offering college courses will be given for the first time beginning with the Spring semester, Monday, February 5, President Louis G. Conlan disclosed yesterday.

The classes, he said, are open to all high school graduates and persons of mature years who by experience or otherwise are prepared to undertake college work.

Veterans who have been honorably discharged from any branch of the Armed Services are also eligible for enrollment.

Registration and enrollment in the evening division is conducted by each instructor during the first three meetings of the course, beginning February 5.

President Conlan stressed that instruction is free, although students must supply their own text books.

Students may receive college credit in a course if they are regularly enrolled and perform all assigned work. They may register for evening classes which do not include more than eight units of work.

If a student does not desire college credit, provision is made for enrollment as an auditor with exemption from all written assignments, President Conlan emphasized.

He asked students to "remind their parents and friends of the opportunities in this extension division."

A total of 42 courses, ranging from astronomy, business, and chemistry, to English, mathematics, speech, foreign languages, and music are offered.

Radio, social sciences, paint technology, physics, photography and political science are also included in the program.

Complete information about the extension division is available from the Registrar in Building 3.

Classes will be held on Mondays through Thursdays from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

Kappas Slate Dance For Friday

Stag or drag constitutes the theme of Kappa Rho's annual sport dance, which will start off the new year's social season in the west campus auditorium Friday evening, Bob Hoffman, Kappa Rho president, announced yesterday.

Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 12 midnight to the music of Johnny Henderson's orchestra who have played numerous engagements around the Bay Area and Nevada.

Tickets are a dollar per couple and [illegible] stag. Each will be presented with bids, Hoffman added. Sport clothes will be the proper attire.

All members of the fraternity are assisting in making this affair one of the group's most successful dances, Hoffman declared.

Originally scheduled for the latter part of last October, the dance had been postponed to this month.

Cal Instructors Lecture Here

Special evening adult classes in horticulture have recently become more inclusive, Harry Nelson, instructor in charge, said recently.

University of California instructors and specialists from various fields, as well as Nelson and E. M. Young, college instructors, now lecture to the evening classes.

To aid the class member in his present job or to prepare him for an examination which will lead to better jobs is the aim of these fundamental horticulture classes, Nelson said.

Nelson directs the Monday-Wednesday sessions in advanced vocational horticulture.

The class, being divided into groups of two to five, has the semester project of preparing a complete report on any chosen field. State workers, who are studying drought resistant plants, and a camellia propagation group are two of the specialized groups.

Young instructs the Tuesday-Thursday classes of basic horticulture.

The adult horticulture classes are scheduled on Monday, Wednesday and Tuesday, Thursday, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m.

Ira Dowd, owner and operator of a wholesale florist supply house, will lecture to flower shop students this month on the selling and buying of florist supplies, John Lawrence, flower shop instructor, declared.

College To Aid In Air Raid Defense

An air raid warning siren will be installed on the college campus as soon as possible, Chief J. H. McLendon of the San Francisco Disaster Corps, said recently.

Following installation of the siren there will be city-wide tests every Friday at 11 a.m. to determine the coverage and adequacy of the blasts.

In the event of an actual attack, the college students, being situated in a relatively safe zone, would be required to come into damaged areas to aid relief work, Chief McLendon added.

Meanwhile, President Louis G. Conlan has appointed a committee at the college to make adequate plans for the safety of the students in the event of an air raid.

Oscar Anderson, controller, is chairman of the committee.

Riding Club Sets Horse Show For Sunday Noon

The annual fall horse show sponsored by the college coed riding club will take place at St. Francis Riding School, Sunday, January 14, Laurine Bergin, director of women's physical education, said last week.

Starting time will be 2:30 p.m. with events scheduled to run throughout the afternoon. The events are listed as follows: jumping obstacle course, beginning horsemanship, bareback riding, intermediate horsemanship, pair class, advanced horsemanship, beginning games, fancy dress.

Mrs. Bergin added that the events will be announced by a member of the college's radio class.

Trophies for winners will be presented by various business firms with an interest in the sport of horseback riding.

Colleges who have been invited to take part are: University of California, Stanford, Mills, San Francisco State, San Jose, College of Marin, San Mateo Junior College. Contestants will be both men and women students of Freshman and Sophomore standing.

Refreshments will be served to contestants and their guests at the completion of the afternoon's activities.

Lucille Bucher and Tom Moore are members of the club in charge of arrangements.

The horse show was first held before the war and, although temporarily discontinued during the war, has since been resumed on an annual basis with the college sponsoring it in the fall and San Mateo in the spring.

CAB Nominations Slated For Today

Nominations of officers for the Club Activities Board will take place today at 3 p.m., Frank Meyn, president, announced yesterday.

Meyn stressed the importance of all representatives attending since nomination of officers is of increased importance this year due to the planned expansion of the CAB into an actual course with credit toward graduation being given to the representative of on-campus clubs.

In line with the increased activities of the board, meetings will be scheduled every Tuesday and Thursday at 1 p.m.

The meetings will be considered as a section of political science 5A with one unit of credit granted to the representatives.

Grades will be determined by the quality of a term paper and the participation of the student in the board.

Meyn added that every nominee must be a member of the board at the present time.

Announce Garden Show

Outdoor living has been selected as the theme for the California Spring Garden Show of 1951, scheduled for the week of April 27 to May 4, in the California Exposition Building.

Fraternity standard bearer

1. The Student League was organized to give interested individuals an opportunity to participate in student government. As such, it represents a cross-section of students associated with campus activities, as well as those students not affiliated with an organization.

2. The Student League believes that if student government at City College is to be successful, it must have the wholehearted support of all students. This support has been lacking in the past because student government has been out of touch with the average student.

3. The Student League proposes to remedy this situation by offering a program which can satisfy the needs and wants of the students.

—(Signed) Joseph Azzolino.

To make any contraction towards such a thing as a "perfect college" is not the job of one person, a single program, or any group of persons. It requires the interest and participation of each and every individual at City College.

With good public relations we can stimulate and encourage participation for all students.

Our athletic program is the key to school spirit. Our teams must have all the support and protection that the Associated Students can provide.

With these thoughts in mind we cannot help but to make City College outstanding as a place for education, friendship, and cooperation.

Fingerprints Used In Ancient Times, Noted Instructor Says

By Henry Louie

Using fingerprints for identification is not a recent development as one might naively think. It has existed since the beginning of recorded history. As proof, the noted authority in the college law enforcement department gave several examples.

Bert C. Bridges, author-instructor in criminal identification, explained that "Even before the Bible's record of Apostle Paul signing a note with his fingerprints, the kings of the cradle of civilization used their thumbprints as official signatures on clay tablets.

World's Leading Textbook

Genial six-footer Bridges, retired after 25 years' service as a police executive in Alameda, taught criminal identification at University of California for a number of years.

Today he devotes his time to writing in the law enforcement field, and is author of many short stories, books, and articles. His Practical Fingerprinting is the world's leading textbook on personal identification.

Many of his articles and stories have been published by the Federal Bureau of Investigation Journal and other leading police publications.

He tells a story about a lawyer using modern methods of deduction to win a case of a blind son accused of murdering his father. Bloody fingerprints along the wall pointed circumstantial evidence to the accused.

The lawyer in a dramatic finale showed the very nature and size of the fingerprints were not that of the son but the stepmother's. This happened not today, but almost 2000 years ago, in the annals of Marcus Quintillion, a Greek lawyer.

In his interest of police identification methods, Bridges has compiled a huge collection of pictures and photographs on every phase of criminology. Among them is a rare photograph of a clay tablet during Nineveh's era.

It was a deputy sheriff's report regarding the payment of a contracted debt. After the inscription, the deputy sheriff used his thumbprint as his signature. Bridges, through ardent study of the Babylonian dialect, has been able to read the message orally.

Ancestor Makes Ride

Another of his varied interests is that of his family ancestry. In tracing his heredity Bridges found the motto, "I stand on guard" inscribed on his family shield. He also found that the ride of Paul Revere, perpetuated by Longfellow, was a myth. An ancestor, Sam Prescott, was the one who gave warning after Revere was stopped by the British and the other rider was thrown off his horse.

Eminent in the public eye today are his cousins, Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire and Dr. Ronald Bridges of the College of the Pacific.

Amori Begins New Placement Service

Job opportunities for several hundred February graduates will be available soon as the result of a new Personnel Placement Service launched this semester by City College of San Francisco Placement Service Director Joseph A. Amori. Many prospective graduates have already signed up for the program.

As the defense program gets under way, many job opportunities are becoming available, among which the majority are in the clerical field.

All secretarial graduates, clerk typists, stenographers, bookkeepers, file clerks, accountants and the like should file their applications in the Placement office, Building 2, at the earliest opportunity.

Positions exist in Civil Service and private industry and applications must be made in advance in order that sufficient time is afforded for testing and processing.

But for those who are not graduating, the Placement Service has instituted a special Work Experience Program, which allows students to work part-time while simultaneously attending classes in their field.

The program has been so arranged as to give interested and qualified students an opportunity to attend college four hours a day and work for the same period of time at the current wage scale. Actually, this new branch is a "learn-while-you-earn" course, preparing the individual with valuable work experience.

Drama Club Presents Variety Show Tuesday

Skits, satires, and song and dance routines are in rehearsal by Drama club members and students in preparation for the variety show to be presented at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, January 16, in the auditorium in Building 1.

Miss Patt Wilson, student director of the production, said that the large cast has been rehearsing daily and that the program is well varied and includes two skits from Stanford University stage shows plus two production numbers with the whole cast.

The show, tentatively called Nuts and Bolts, has in its east most of the actors seen in the three one-act plays and other talented students from the college ranks.

Tickets will be on sale soon.

Club Members Reminisce Vacation Parties; Reveal New Year Plans

Now that classes have resumed after a three-week vacation, club members are looking back on their holiday activities with many pleasant memories.

Members of Alpha Phi Epsilon and their dates enjoyed a Christmas party at the home of Booker Anderson on Christmas Eve. From all reports, everyone had a terrific time.

The Zeta Chis also held a Christmas party on December 14 in celebration of the success of their pre-vacation toy drive for underprivileged children. The Zetas also held a joint meeting with Phi Beta Delta on January 8.

Informal singing of Christmas carols by many members of the Music Guild on the Friday before Christmas was greatly enjoyed by residents of St. Francis Wood and Lakeside Village. Music Guild members also appeared on KPIX television on Christmas Eve.

Vacation time also brought engagement rings to many campus co-eds. At a recent Phi Beta Rho meet, Donna Hardie announced her engagement to Jack Brickley, of the college; and Pat Edwards announced her intentions to wed Herbert Neumeister, of the United States Air Cadets, who is now stationed in Texas.

Theta Tau members were happy to hear of member Norma Moebes engagement to Beta Tau Pete Chevrier; while Alpha Lambda Chi Jackie Wood, passed the candy to announce her engagement to Ensign Robert Eustice of the U. S. Navy.

Alpha Gamma Sigma honor students also enjoyed a Christmas party at the home of Vic Rammonzia. Incidentally, because of a heavy schedule, the AGS has had to postpone its tour of the campus for high school honor students. The new date for the tour has not yet been announced.

Kappa Phi pledges gave senior members a fish casserole dinner on December 22, at which time all members exchanged gifts.

The holidays were celebrated by Alpha Lambda Chi, when they held Christmas parties with Phi Beta Delta and Tri Epsilon. They also held their pledge dinner recently at the Willows in Orinda.

Forum clubbers will meet Friday evening at 8 p.m. to discuss plans for next semester's Forum Magazine. Dates for submission of manuscripts will be announced at the beginning of next semester. Address for the Forum meet is 2251 Jackson Street.

New Year's Eve was happily celebrated by Beta Tau men and their guests at a party given by their alumni, Omega Chapter.

Next Wednesday evening at 7:30 p.m. Newman Club members will meet at St. Emydius Hall to discuss plans for future activities. Any interested students are invited to attend the meeting.

Members of the Drama Club are still practicing very hard for their Variety Show next Tuesday night. Rehearsals are under the direction of drama student Patt Wilson.

Students attending any of the high school basketball games at Kezar Pavilion will see Block SF members attending the coke concessions, for the Block SF now has complete charge of the refreshment stands for all these games.

City College: A Community In A Community

By Don Johnson

Though generally referred to as City College of San Francisco, there lies within 60 acres of Balboa Park a community; a thriving community, brought to life by active citizens, and maintaining all the many diverse activities found in any community throughout the United States.

The average length of residence in this community is a mere two years, yet crowded into this short space of time, the citizen of City College finds activities and events which make him more aware of his role as a citizen not only of the college community, but of the community in which he lives as well.

As soon as a student enters the college he begins a new vocation, that of acquiring a college education. He soon sees examples of community life at work: the student store where he may buy books and supplies, the cafeteria and fountain where he may purchase meals or between-class snacks, the fully-equipped library, and the student bank.

Government within the college community is handled in much the same way as in other communities. Officers are elected by the citizens of the community, and the citizens are urged to take an active part in the campaigns which are a semesterly part of the college community life.

Citizens are able to follow the news of college community life through the pages of The Guardsman, official publication of the community.

Intramural Sports Too

Through a program of intra-mural sports, the citizen is enabled to meet with fellow citizens of the community in many and varied sports programs.

Entertainment within the community is designed to meet the appetites of the individual. If the citizen desires sports, the community offers a choice of football, basketball, baseball, soccer, boxing—in fact almost any sport the sport-minded citizen may desire to witness.

If the citizen desires plays, the community answers his desires with the presentation of many productions ranging from comedy to tragedy.

For the lovers of music the community presents musical programs, concerts, and operas of such a variety as to satisfy the varied tastes of nearly all its citizens.

To those who seek enjoyment through the media of art and literature, the community has a planned program to help the citizen further his appreciation in these fields.

Social life in the college community does not go neglected. Dances, teas, and affairs such as the annual Mardi Gras allow the citizens to get together socially, to make new friends, and enjoy the diversions that social affairs offer.

Through the more than 50 different organizations that exist within the community, the citizen finds good-fellowship with his neighbors, and is enabled to take part in activities which meet his desires and wishes for social life.

Community Peace Officers

No community could exist without a police force, and the college community meets this requirement with the Campus Police, a group of Law Enforcement students responsible for enforcing the laws laid down by the community.

The community of City College is not without a housing problem. Here the problem has been partially solved with the erection of a group of apartments and dwellings located within the community. This group of houses —Hurley Village—serves as the campus home of many of the community's married veterans.

It can be seen by the foregoing that City College of San Francisco has faced many problems found in many other communities. It has met most of these and continued to grow and give its citizens as much as it possibly can in the way of community life, as any young and enterprising community should.

Though located within the community of San Francisco and bearing the name of City College of San Francisco, it is much more than that—it is, in fact, a community within a community.

Eight San Francisco High Schools Graduate To City College

City College is composed of 4535 students, 1775 of whom are graduates of San Francisco's eight senior public high schools, according to enrollment figures released for this semester by registrar Mary Jane Leonard.

George Washington High School again tops the enrollment statistics list with 312 graduates in attendance at the college.

Washington has consistently had more student representatives at the college for the past five years. This semester the runners-up are Lowell, with 253, followed by Lincoln with a total registration of 228.

Balboa, 222, is fourth in numerical strength on the campus, a scant six students behind Lincoln. And on down the list, in enrollment order: Polytechnic, 215; Mission, 211; Commerce, 169; Galileo, 145; Girls High, 29; and Samuel Gompers, 17. (Girls High School is in the process of reorganization to a junior, coeducational high school.)

Private San Francisco schools, taken as a whole, total 387, while Alameda and Contra Costa counties sent 819 students here. Other California schools tally 430, and other United States schools, foreign students, and non-high school graduates total 1089 collectively. The grand total is 4535.

Veteran attendance throughout the nation has been dropping with predictable regularity. Here, veteran enrollment took a sudden nosedive this semester, slipping below a predicted 700 to 621.

Prior to February of last year the high school standing read, from top to bottom in the big three: Washington, Lincoln and Balboa. Then, suddenly, Lowell unexpectedly swelled the spring registration total and took second place, for outdistancing both Balboa and Lincoln.

The ratio of men to women this semester is 2.7:1, more than 2½ men per woman.—Photos by Guardsman photography staff.

Solid Future Seems Imminent, Says Conlan

Need For Community Interest Stressed

Notable accomplishments at the college since the Fall 1949 semester have included the establishment of the student store, progress of the new building program, success of the basketball team in the 1949 season, and the development of new offerings in the education field, President Louis G. Conlan declared in a recent interview.

All of these accomplishments have been made, he believes, as a result of cooperation between the administration, the faculty, and the students.

"I consider the college to be a cooperative organization where students, faculty, and administration work together on problems," President Conlan said. "I compliment the students on the unselfish attitude they have. They work on projects which may not benefit them personally, but which will benefit students who attend the college in the future."

In regard to the student store President Conlan declared, "When the need for the store was made known by the students, the administration made it possible for the students to get it. The store's success has been due to the joint planning of students, administration, and faculty.

DR. LOUIS G. CONLAN, president of City College of San Francisco.

"A fine spirit was indicated when the students set out to raise funds to send the basketball team to the tournament. The way in which the drive was handled made a good impression on the community.

Faculty, Students Together Make Team

In looking forward to the next 15 years of development at the college, President Conlan said, "I would like to see a greater development in the field of vocational education in order to provide more opportunities for students who do not intend to go on to four-year colleges.

"I also think that free public education should be available to citizens in the community unable to attend day school. At the present such work at the college level is being made available to San Franciscans. I look forward to a further extension of the day program of the college into an evening program.

"I would like to see a complete campus," President Conlan continued. "Since the founding of the college we have been housed in temporary quarters. An auditorium, permanent classroom buildings, and complete facilities for physical education programs would make a great difference in the program of the college."

"One of the most effective means of demonstrating the work of the college to the community is through the accomplishments of those who have attended the college—their success in their chosen fields."

Conlan Submits Plan For Summer Session

College President Louis G. Conlan last week requested authorization from Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish to offer a summer session at the college.

President Conlan and his administrative staff drew up a set of plans earlier in the month and submitted them to Dr. Clish for submission to the Board of Education at an early date.

The plans were formulated in lieu of increased student demand for a summer session as well as advice from the Department of Defense.

The City College, With Sound, Smooth Educational Curriculum, Leader Among Two-Year Colleges

SINCE the college first opened its doors in the Fall of 1935 under the leadership of Dr. A. J. Cloud, it has risen to a position of scholastic leadership of two-year colleges throughout the State and the Nation.

Much has been accomplished at the college since those first hectic days. Except for the war years, when all colleges suffered decreases in enrollment, the college has experienced a steady growth which is indicative of its strength and reliability. The courses offered here point that out.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish has said that he expects a gradual, steady, and sustained growth. Observers of the two-year college system support this statement. Officials of admission at the University of California urge students to attend this college before entering the University.

FURTHERMORE, they point out that enrollment here, prior to entrance at California or other four-year institutions, is to the student's advantage, scholastically and otherwise.

We have always felt that students attending college here get as fine an education during the first two years as they can find anywhere. This isn't a biased statement. It is a fact, based on facts and figures together with statements from college educators and administrators. Ours is an incidental opinion, but when it is echoed by Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, and H. A. Spindt, director of admissions there, weight is thrown behind the statement.

City College is open to students desiring to continue their education, to students desiring instruction in specialized fields of business and industry, and to students seeking a general education. The university parallel courses prepare students for further work, while terminal courses prepare students for highly skilled jobs with the training to go with such jobs. The general education courses are designed in part to bring out the hidden-interests of students.

All three make City College a sound, smooth, educational plant under the leadership of President Louis G. Conlan.

SINCE the college was first established the various departments have all contributed greatly to its growth. For example, the music and drama departments, both from small beginnings, have risen to great stature. Under the leadership of competent instructors, both departments are recognized, not only by the students, but by the general public and the downtown newspaper critics, who, through their reviews of shows, hold the two departments in high esteem.

Then too, the Hotel and Restaurant division has grown from a limited enrollment to the point where students from all parts of the Nation and distant points of the globe, not to mention San Francisco and Northern California, seek admission. Facts bear this out also.

The other departments, as presented in this publication, have contributed richly also. Thus, our belief that City College of San Francisco is as fine as any college anywhere.

THE Editor of The Guardsman took a break from a busy routine last week—a break to pause and reflect. It was the Editor's last month at the college and that was the factor behind his pause.

During his two-and-a-half year stay at the college the Editor sought to serve the best interests of the college and at the same time develop his own abilities as a journalist. The Editor, furthermore, constantly strove to serve the college through the newspaper, though others at times thought differently.

With journalists like Herb Levy, Roy Pasini, Dick Brennan, Larry Baldocchi, Walt Roessing, Bob Quinlan, Frank Monte, Keith Gardner, Bill Thomas, Bob Rezak, Don Johnson, Rose Hardie, Gene Van Dyke, and the others in his proximity, the Editor did indeed prosper. This then, is a way of saying, "Thank you."

College Men Vital

Military Depends On College Men To Fill Officer Positions

Recent statements issued by Navy and Air Force officers especially for this Guardsman special edition point out the vital needs for college trained men in the modern armed forces.

Major General A. C. Kincaid, Commanding General of the Fourth Air Force, declared, "The Air Force has always encouraged capable young men to pursue their education to the highest profitable level."

"The Air Force depends a great deal," he said, "upon college graduates for filling many of its officer and airmen positions."

Scientific development in the field of military aviation requires technicians and administrators with solid educational foundations, Major General Kincaid explained.

Therefore, he believes, in whatever capacity the young men of the future may be called upon to serve, "Their value to this nation increases with their educational development."

Rear Admiral B. J. Rodgers, Commandant, Twelfth Naval District, declared that the navy needs college-trained men.

The young man of today should reflect on the fact, he said, that the vast accumulation of experience, skills, and knowledge of mankind must be passed from one generation to another.

Rear Admiral Rodgers believes that no one man can possess the "broad knowledge of today's civilization."

The United States Navy has kept the pace in all the fields of human endeavor, he pointed out.

As one of the largest organizations in the world, the Navy requires skills and knowledge second to none in all fields, he continued.

"The Navy requires college-trained men," the Admiral stated.

In fact, in order to meet its needs for a reserve of officers with the necessary educational background, the Navy sponsors higher education through its college training programs.

He feels that not only the future of the Navy but that of the entire country depend, in no small degree, upon the response of today's young man to the appeal that he obtain a college education.

Thus, the Navy and Air Force feel that the capable high school senior should continue his educational development for the good of the nation and the armed forces.

High school seniors who wish to advance in the Navy or Air Force should take advantage of college training because trained technicians and administrators are needed in the highly scientific military service.

Northwood

Shots At RAMdom

cafeteria, women rise to face National crises

WITH the country gradually going on a full war-time basis, it is without surprise that the effects of the national emergency are slowly making their appearance on the campus.

First of all, students are disappearing into the armed services more rapidly every day. Recently two campus football stars, Ralph De La Torre and Stan Haan enlisted in the air force, along with many other students from all phases of college life.

Even the cafeteria is arising to meet the situation and the increasing wholesale cost of foods. Coffee and milk are up one cent and, although the plate lunch price will remain the same, Hilda Watson, campus restaurateur, assures the students that the a la carte dishes will soon go up.

The facts can no longer be ignored: lunches are causing a financial crisis among the students.

Recently we opened the files to see what happened on the campus during the beginning of the last world crisis and much to our surprise found everything much the same as usual except among the women. There just weren't enough men to go around and a date bureau had to be set up.

The veterans on campuses the country over are reported to be licking their chops with all the young eligibles bidding a fond farewell to civilian life.

"Does youth change with the times?" is an often-asked question and thanks to journalism instructor George Mullany we now have a clue to the answer.

Upon intense research through the newspapers of the roaring twenties, (Ma's and Pa's heyday) nothing could be found indicative of the moods of the present-day youth.

Party crashers in the good old days were those dare-devils who attempted to sneak into private parties given by people who knew people who knew the crasher very well and the crasher was received with the elegancy given to a foreign ambassador.

Today, teenagers still crash parties. They arrive in jalopies in groups of 20 and 30 and know little about the host and care less. They cheerfully proceed to level the house brick by brick and the guests chin by chin.

Now for Mullany's clue—an interesting article printed in the Richmond Banner giving four methods for handling crashers. The last of which includes the rash act of notifying the local gendarmes in case the owner, an innocent product of the roaring twenties, should question the identity of the crashers and be murdered in his tracks.

An interesting phase of this college's entertainment cropped up in 1940 and it can be remembered by a few of the instructors, when Ruth Somers, English instructor, directed a group of thespians in a series of plays given during the hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., and were designed to entertain the students having free periods with no place to go.

So while eating lunch the average student could enjoy a play and absorb some culture without even trying.

Several days back an article appeared in this column describing the threat the weaker sex was putting on pro footballers.

Well, to substantiate the noted increasing strength of the hapless female comes an article from the Breeze, Santa Maria Union High School's newssheet.

It seems that columnist Otis Logan also used several lines of type to describe the rock-and-sock-'em type of physical activity the younger women of the species is indulging in.

Draft Policy

College Trained Men Essential To Nation's Future

By Clarence Whitcomb

Educators and professional persons recently expressed the belief that the current selective service policy of postponement and deferment for college men is favorable to the growing need for more highly trained people.

Under current selective service policy draft boards must postpone drafting a student until he has completed the academic year or until he ceases satisfactorily to pursue his courses of study.

In August 1950 General Lewis B. Hershey, selective service director, issued instructions to boards that they may defer any promising student until the end of his college course—even if this means four years—provided the student is in the upper half of his class.

Deferment is decided by the individual boards, however. Most boards are currently going along with top educators and are deferring the more promising students.

Seven committees of the nation's scientists, educators, and scholars have recommended to General Hershey that capable students be allowed to continue their college education.

The committees believed that:

"There is now a larger recognition than formerly of the wide variety of fields of higher learning which were called upon in World War II.

"The engineering sciences, the humanities, and the healing arts all made significant and essential contributions to the successful prosecution of the last war and will continue to be as vital to the national defense as to the national welfare. If we are to maintain our civilization we cannot permit any one of these areas of knowledge to be seriously crippled."

World War II, the retirement and death of present professional people, and unlimited drafting, would probably give the United States a serious shortage of trained workers in the future, the committees believed.

However, under the postponement policy men students will be able to continue their education until they prove their scholastic abilities.

If the draft boards believe the student will contribute more to his country by continuing his education, the board may grant a deferment.

This present policy will assure an ever-growing group of young college-trained, professional people to handle the expanding economy of the United States.

Men students who have received a notice from their draft board should report immediately to Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, for a letter to the board stating their status at the college. The draft board will take into consideration the student's college standing in its final decision.

The Spectator Footsore Students Urged Choice Of College Location

By Dick Larrick

ONE of the most interesting aspects in the history of City College is how it came to rest on the site it now occupies.

The story goes back to the days when the need for a two year college became so vital that one was organized without even a building to house the students.

They walked or rode from one classroom to another located in over 10 different locations in the city and submitted to the ridicule and smart cracks of the students of other colleges because of their homeless wanderings.

Classes were held mainly at Galileo High School and the University of California Extension building on Powell Street.

As the moans and groans, gripes and subtle curses grew in volume, and the pressure became intense for a place the students could hang their hats the Board of Education searched at a feverish pace for a suitable site on which to build the new college.

When every worthy site had been sought out, the board was faced with the task of choosing from among 15 of them.

Of the 15, two were considered as real possibilities: the 10 acres of the Lincoln site at 23rd and Rivera and the old county jail site in the Ingleside district.

Meanwhile, someone thought it might be a good idea to ask the students who were going to attend the new college what they thought about the locations. A straw vote was taken on campus, and the results were compiled and released one week before the board was to take its final vote.

Of the 118 ballots cast by the students, 96 were in favor of the Ingleside district. Of the five cast by the board, four were for Ingleside, one dissenting.

So at last the orphan students at least had a bit of land to call their own, but the battle was far from over for them.

Although they were assured of one building without delay, the question of whether they would get appropriations for gymnasiums, tennis courts, and a football and baseball field was up to the public on election day in the form of a two million dollar bond issue.

Students and faculty got together and put on a fine display of sincere, effective cooperation. It had every politician in San Francisco licking his chops in envy.

Out of the six propositions on the ballot for that election, the school bond issue was the only one passed and that was by a landslide.

With this in hand as a show of good faith by the people of San Francisco, the city made application to Washington for federal aid in developing their tremendous educational program.

Shortly thereafter Harold Ickes, then Public Works administrator, put the O.K. on the application, and San Francisco was allotted more than two million dollars in federal aid. The new college was to have one-quarter of this amount for its share.

From its hectic beginning 15 years ago, the students and faculty of the college have built one of the nation's top two year colleges—not only in enrollment, but in scholastic achievements and the world of sports.

Student League Captures 14 A. S. Offices

Vetterlein Elected Spring President

Final tabulations in last week's campus elections gave Fraternity Party Candidate Ralph Vetterlein the Associated Student Presidential office for the Spring semester, while the Student League party scored an upset by grabbing 11 of the 14 Student Council seats as well as three other top offices.

Vetterlein, a graduate of Polytechnic High School, where he was student president, received 268 of the 507 total votes cast, while his opponent, Student League candidate Joseph Azzolino received 211.

Azzolino is a graduate of Mission High School.

Total vote cast in the two-day election was nearly 200 votes short of last semester's tally, which numbered 696.

Two of the ten proposed amendments to the AS constitution, meanwhile, were defeated. These concerned raising vice-presidential requirements from 30 to 45 units of work completed prior to term in office, and making office of yell leader an appointed position.

The other eight amendments all passed with sizable majorities.

Results of other offices and votes cast for winning candidates are as follows:

Vice-President, Noel Anderson (F, also supported by SL), 386; Associated Men Students' President, Douglas Smith (SL), 158; Associated Women Students' President, Gloria Naccarini (SL) 109; Sophomore President, Maurice O'Brien (F, also supported by SL), 381; Freshman President, John LoCoco (SL), 387; Yell Leader, Jim Stowers (F, also supported by SL), 384.

Freshman Council: Pat Couto (SL), 280; Dean Haferman (SL), 232; Douglas Hayward (SL), 242; Nancy Provance (F), 212; Nancy Quinlan (SL), 230; Barba Templin (SL), 204; Nancy Wiggins (SL), 216.

Runnersup are as follows:

AMS President, Bob Lacampagne (F), 123; AWS President, Marilyn Marr (F), 74.

Sophomore Council: Duane Belcher (SL), 209; Kenneth Graham (F), 163; Lee Janover (F), 223; Leonard Rodney (F), 192; Kitt Sornborger (SL), 221.

Freshman Council: Frank Barranti (F), 166; James Cress (F), 138; Roy Landi (F), 168; Eugene Short (F), 184; Joan Skinner (F), 182; Howard Webb (SL), 144.

Student Government

AS Government Expands With College Activities

It has been said many times that taking an active part or interest in the government of the United States is every citizen's privilege and duty, even if it is only voting and keeping up with current events.

The background and training for this is acquired in high school and college. If every student would take an active interest and an active part in the administration of student government much of the apathy that has been shown in national and local elections in the past could be overcome.

Dean Louis Batmale, who has guided student government here since 1949, said, "As many people as possible should take part in the activities of administering student government. The functions that these people carry on while in college act as a laboratory to train leaders and active citizens for later life. There is no course in any institution that has a finer training potential than an active part in student government."

By taking a look at the history of student government at the college, it can be seen that it has developed from a political infant to a smooth running and efficient system.

On September 13, 1935, the Associated Students of City College became reality. On that date a mass meeting of the students was held at the University of California Extension building to approve a constitution drawn up by the members of the first group entering the new college.

The first constitution provided for a great deal of faculty control, but as the college became more organized and it was seen that the students were capable of governing themselves these controls were loosened.

In 1938 and again in 1946 the constitution was amended to keep up with the advancement and growth of the college.

The constitution that the government of the Associated Students now works under is composed of legislative and executive branches titled the Student Council and President's Cabinet, respectively.

The Student Council enacts the laws; the President's Cabinet carries them out.

The President's Cabinet is made up of elected officers representing every phase of student activities. It is their job to present to the council all business of their representative departments.

Besides the cabinet and the council, the government includes representatives groups and five standing committees.

The representative groups carry on and supervise the major activities of the association. The standing committees are appointed by the president when he deems there is a need for such.

After a more liberal constitution was put in effect on campus, politics came to life. Two parties sprang up almost immediately, and the political battles that ensued have become part of the tradition and history of the college.

It might be noted that the constitution specifies no set number of parties that may run candidates for offices in the student government. The two party system came into being spontaneously and has developed as a tradition of its own accord.

It might be noted also that any student may run for an office as an independent without party affiliation so long as he has the necessary qualifications to petition.

"Your future can be all that you wish for, if you remember that scholastic achievement alone does not prepare you for all the experience that you will meet in the professional world," Tom Dill, Fall, 1950, Associated Student president believes.

RALPH VETTERLEIN, left, Fraternity Party president-elect, and Joe Azzolino, defeated Student League candidate, early last week bonded in their petitions to Election Commissioner John Allen, seated, declaring their intentions to run for the Associated Students' highest office. Vetterlein triumphed by a count of 268 votes over Azzolino's 211.

The Student League, in a stunning reversal of campus politics, swept 11 of 14 council seats and three top officer positions.

Meanwhile, eight of the ten proposed amendments passed into law by the voters' mandate. The defeated measures related to raising vice-presidential requirements from 30 to 45 units of work completed prior to term in office and making the yell leader office an appointive position.—Photo by Hilmer

First AS Leader: McGuire Led Early Pioneers Over Pitfalls

By Howard Cumming

Old man Time has a way of slipping by unnoticed, even when history is in the making.

A quick glance at the old files of this newspaper show that 15 years have passed since a student named McGuire . . . Bennett McGuire . . . led 1500 pioneers over the pitfalls entailed in establishing the first junior college in the city—City College of San Francisco now.

McGuire was a baseball player from Lowell High School who became the college's first Associated Student President.

The job of AS president is not an easy one in any case, but the task of being the first president is a chore not too many people would care to tackle.

Besides the usual problems heaped upon a president, McGuire had such problems as drawing up a constitution and organizing the officiating student officers in order to set an example for succeeding governments.

Perhaps the greatest of these original problems involved the puzzle of having two main campuses, one at Galileo High School and the other at the University of California Extension building at 540 Powell Street.

Fortunately, however, activities were centered in the "headquarters" location at Galileo High School.

While he was here, McGuire took a major part in college activities. He played baseball and turned out for track. He sang in the choir and glee club and participated in the Christmas program.

He stayed at the college for a year and then went to Stanford where he majored in Health and Physical Education. While there he played baseball.

He helped put himself through college by working for the San Francisco Recreation Commission, for which he was location manager at Sigmund Stern Grove.

Teaching being his aim in life, he instructed physical education at Half-moon Bay High School from 1944 to 1947, after which he left to become Superintendent of Recreation at Burlingame until 1949.

San Mateo High School now claims him; he is in his second year as an instructor there.

While at Stanford he married and now has two children.

High School Leaders Discuss Problems In Conference Here

Representatives of the city's high school student governments met here at the college last November as guests of a conference sponsored by the college's Associated Men Students and Associated Women Students collectively.

Purpose of the conference was to discuss student government in all its phases, from high school to college. Two discussion panels were formed and titled, respectively, the president's panel, and the vice-president's panel.

In the first, duties and requirements of the president of any student government were discussed. The vice-president's panel dealt mainly with dances, publicizing events of that sort, and attendance.

On the whole, debate, discussion and comment were centered around methods of increasing attendance at activities and raising necessary funds.

Keynote address of the opening ceremonies was delivered by Superintendent of Schools Herbert C. Clish. He said: "I want to see our schools become virtual laboratories of democratic life."

Production Keynote For Music

23 Major Phases Of Instruction Open To Students

From a somewhat modest beginning 15 years ago when it consisted primarily of a 32 member A Cappella Choir, a 15 member Men's Glee Club, and a full curriculum of theory and musicology courses, City College's music department has grown steadily since that first day in October 1935.

Those organizations served as a nucleus around which were formed the Treble Clef (women's chorus) and the band and orchestra. In recent years the department has entered into all major phases of music instruction with a total of 23 courses offered to all students as well as music student majors.

In addition to the solid musicology and theory courses given on the university level, there are general college courses in music appreciation and performance experience leading to professional careers.

The annual Christmas Concert, and similar attractions, has become a firmly implanted part of the college's tradition. Though the concert was originally staged by members of the first A Cappella Choir in December 1935, it has become a college-wide affair with all music groups represented and Associated Student and Faculty Association sponsoring.

The Opera Workshop was established in the Fall of 1948 to satisfy a widely expressed need for a number of types of training to supplement the private vocal study of young singers preparing for professional work in the opera and allied fields of vocal performance.

The first opera production, Rudolf Friml's Vagabond King, directly preceded establishment of the Workshop. With four productions, the production signified for the first time the college working as a community.

College organizations as well as all music groups joined forces to produce the show.

MUSIC STUDENTS together at City College: Melva Niles, 1944, star of Civic Light Opera Company, and Mary Jane Gray, '1945, now studying and singing in Italy, met again in San Francisco in 1949 when they appeared in the Edmund Lester production of The Great Waltz, with Miss Niles singing the lead role.

Proceeds went toward construction of adequate playground facilities at Hurley Village, where student veterans and their families are housed in Quonset huts.

The idea was conceived by The Guardsman and was developed into a campaign that drew city-wide interest and praise.

Other opera productions closely followed the success of The Vagabond King. They included Mozart's Marriage of Figaro, Victor Herbert's Naughty Marietta and Kurt Weill's Down in the Valley and concert presentations of Von Flotow's Martha and Verdi's Aida.

Public support and interest in these attractions mounted steadily.

Marjory Fisher, reviewing Figaro for the San Francisco News, wrote: "A lot of young people (at City College) proved they had gained a sound knowledge of the Mozart music . . . these opportunities are exactly what an opera workshop should provide."

And S. F. Chronicle music critic Alfred Frankenstein said: "City College of San Francisco joined the procession of local schools . . . doing things of importance by way of public musical performances. The Opera Workshop gave a lively, intelligent, and immensely enjoyable presentation of Mozart's 'Marriage of Figaro' . . ."

The music training received at City College has proved invaluable to scores of artists who are now writing their own success stories and who have made use of City College experience as a background to their musical careers.

Raymond Keast, '37, appeared in the Broadway production of Allegro, recently took a leading role in the New York revival of Song of Norway, and is presently on tour with the Robert Shaw Chorale. He is also a featured recording artist with that group.

Lorraine Gay, '46, received the president's plaque for services to City College, is a member of Phi Beta Kappa at University of California, and is also on the teaching staff of that university in musical theory.

Elmer Dickey, '48, former choir manager and soloist, won the Municipal Chorus scholarship in 1949 and is now on a long term Boston University scholarship which includes study with world-famed tenor, Roland Hayes.

The music faculty has grown to six with other faculty members involved in certain workshop courses.

Headed by Flossita Badger, the department includes Gertrude Norgard, Meyer M. Cahn, Robert Morton, Harold Cunningham and John French.

Golden Gate College Offers "Work-Study" Program

To the junior college graduate who wants to complete his upper division work and get practical experience at the same time, Golden Gate College offers its program of Cooperative Business Education. This program is on arrangement between the college and selected San Francisco business firms.

The student works toword his degree and gets the education he needs for his business career by ottending college during the mornings.

During the afternoons, the student works at o preorranged poid job closely allied to his ocodemic program.

Thus the student learns procticol opplicotion os well os theory. At the same time, he corns money to help poy for his educotion.

The Cooperotive Business Educotion progrom, formerly ovoiloble in the Schools of Accountoncy and Monoge-ment, is now olso offered in the School of Insurance.

217 Housing Units

Student Veterans And Families Reside In Campus Hurley Village

By Doug Hayward

Housing for student-veterans, their wives and children, became a living reality on October 8, 1946, after six years of effort on the part of city, state and college officials, when the key to Hurley Village was formally presented to the new home-makers.

State and Federal housing heads combined facilities and climaxed the long standing plans for Hurley Village, which was located on the north campus of the college's acreage.

The area was named after the late Major John J. Hurley, a former instructor at the college. He had partlelpated in the African and Sicilian campaigns, during which he was awarded the Silver Star for bravery. In January, 1944, he was killed in action in Italy.

Normal building regulations were set aside in order to speed up the construction of the original 50 units, which are now four years old. Rental costs are reasonably low, according to inhabitants of the village, and average out to about $1.20 per day for a full three-room unit, with bath.

William A. Wyatt, Federal Housing administrator, declared, at the presentation ceremonies, "Major Hurley did not die for, and would not approve of, housing only for those who have the money to afford expensive homes."

Two years later, in 1948, more than 160 separate two-room units were added to the village by federal, state, and local organizations, totalling the number of homes to 217 in all.

The college has taken an active interest in Hurley Village, and at one time provided a $500 playground for the village children, who, according to a Guardsman editorial of the time, were otherwise endangered by passing autos.

Nationally Known Hotel, Restaurant Division Turns Students To Experts

By Henry Louie

Careers of high potentiality are offered in the Hotel and Restaurant Division at City College. Students seeking well-paid, steady positions in the field of public service should consider this course which supplies the demand for experts in their vocation.

Since its inception in 1936, under the California Plan for Trade and Industrial Education, the two year program at City College has gained national recognition for its methods of training and preparing students for careers in hotel work.

Names of places where graduates now work sound like an atlas, fanning from Winthrop Hotel, Tacoma, Washington, where Harold Chavis is catering manager, to Shado Mt. Club, Palm Desert, who manager is Thorne Holmes, and Paul Klinger is Pan American Airways Flight Service's superintendent.

Many other graduates now operate their own restaurant or catering service like Jack and Richard Andrewson, Andrew Gilardi, William Leis, Dave Massingham, Russ Upton and Herbert Pound. The new Hippo Restaurant on Van Ness and Pacific Avenues is managed by graduate Ben Street.

With unlimited instructional resources covering every particular phase of hotel and restaurant, and with the cooperation of industry and union, this course has snowballed from two instructors and eight students to 30 instructors and 100 students.

"Among the chief requisites for a student seeking this line of studies are ability, hard work, and sincere interest. Because of the selectivity, I believe our fully qualified two year students have had no unemployment problems," Hilda Watson, division director, said.

Under an advisory committee made up of top notch hotel and restaurant men, the program is in continual flux to introduce new methods and procedures for instruction. The present curriculum covers not only the culinary arts, dining room management, but it also enters allied fields of study such as sanitation, interior decoration, taxation and leases, law, labor relations, cost control which is pertinent to the maintenance of such types of public service organizations.

Of the 22 members of the committee, Chairman George D. Smith, Hotel Mark Hopkins; Ernest Drury, Fairmont Hotel; Charles Horrworth, director, American Hotel Association, New York; P. Tremain Loud, Hotel Californian; Joseph Sullivan, Hotel Employers' Association president; John Toutze, Cooks' Association; and Harry Troupe, secretary, California Northern Hotel Association, have served since the division was established.

Instructors particularly versed in these diversified areas are selected with the cooperation of San Francisco hotelmen and the union.

On the campus, the students operate the cafeteria, fountain, and faculty dining room while rotating from the various types of work as busboy, waiter, cook, server, manager and cashier. Their slogan is "By the students, for the students." They are thus afforded practical application for complete understanding of work involved.

Typography And Offset Is Part Of Art Courses

Graphic arts and its allied subjects is taught and treated as one of the fine arts at City College.

Contrary to established procedure, however, the graphic arts courses have been integrated with hand typography, lithographic plate making, operation of lithographic cameras and the offset process, with a view to giving the student a wider knowledge of composition as a whole.

In line with curricular expansion is the recent acquisition of the graphic arts building on the west campus. Here may be found the camera room, plate room and press room for the actual physical production. The composing room for layouts is part of the art department in the main building; the composing room for metal type is across the hall.

The graphic arts building on the west campus, dedicated by men in the industry, contains the presses and cameras. The camera room also contains the vacuum printing frame, ATF whirler, dryer, opaquing tables, drawing boards, and other accessories used in plate making.

The press room, adjoining the camera and plate room, houses two Multilith presses, a model 40 and a 1250, which are used to instruct classes of artists in the principles of offset reproduction.

On the north end of the building is the letterpress room containing a Chandler and Price platen press, complete with the regular complement of furniture, galley and chase racks, where the letterpress process is taught and demonstrated.

The prerequisite of the two-year curriculum is a knowledge of art, thus limiting students to those with a knowledge of basic design. The background of the art-typographer is a welcome addition to the knowledge of any compositor.

Successful graduates are represented by Gloria Clavora, artist-designer with the Steeher-Traung Lithography Co.; George Albertus, advertising, Roos Bros.; Earl Thollander, staff artist, S. F. Examiner; Paul Pease, lithograph artist, Kaiser Lithograph, Oakland; Victor Lee, advertising, Wank and Wank Advertising Agency.

Dolores Cabeceria, artist, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.; Felice Quast, artist, Granat Bros., jewelers; Marjorie Arata, copywriter - artist, Liebes.

Little Theatre Group, Developed From Humble Beginnings, Now Performs Many Varied Plays

By Georgia Watkins

"The Play's The Thing" could well be used as the motto of the college drama group from the time of its first, difficult beginnings up to the present.

It was only 15 years ago that the drama department was first organized under the direction of Ruth Jensen Sommers, but the progress has been sure and steady.

A drama student 15 years ago was required to have many attributes in addition to talent. Chief among these were ingenuity and patience, as the college drama students of those days had much in common with the wandering players of the 16th century.

They were not only completely without lights, wardrobe, makeup, all the customary and supposedly essential equipment needed to present a play, but they did not even have a theater, only a bare classroom in Galileo High School.

The first offerings presented were in the form of radio productions, one of the more memorable being The Life of Lincoln, written by Mrs. Sommers and heard over KYA.

From the radio production the group progressed to the presentation of plays in open, informal rehearsals.

One of the most remembered of these productions was Ransome Redout's Boots, presented in the Extension building study hall of Galileo.

In 1940 the group moved into what is now known as the main building and was given Room 209, the only available room in the overcrowded building.

However, they were still without a theatre, equipment, curtains, lights, or scenery, but as in the past, they carried on, presenting a long series of productions.

Many of the early day students are still active in the field of drama. Jerry Hooper majored in drama at Montana University and has had two of his settings published in Theatre Arts magazine; John Blauer works as makeup man for the San Francisco Opera Company; Bob Vinson is with Wayfarers Theatre and San Francisco Municipal Theatre.

Ralph Bergendorf is dancing with Beatrice Lillie's company of Inside USA, and appeared in San Francisco last year; Eugene Carlson takes an active part in local light opera and community theatre projects; Walter Mahoney is in charge of costumes at Goldstein Costume Co.; Earl Percera acts and directs in the Martinez Little Theatre.

During 1947 Paul Ellison, of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre, London, England, joined the faculty, and in 1949 a true milestone was reached when, under the direction of Ellison, the initial Shakespearian production at the college, Twelfth Night, was staged.

In 1949, Blithe Spirit and The Late Christopher Bean were presented, and then in November of that same year another Shakespearian work, Much Ado About Nothing.

As his first production, Stuart Hyde, new drama instructor in November of last year, presented a group of three one-act plays.

The one-acters were received with enthusiasm, and the players themselves carried on the drama tradition of the college, according to campus observers.

College Offers Law Enforcement, Fire Training

Law Enforcement and methods of fire fighting are two of the most unusual courses offered by City College.

Law Enforcement covers such subjects as delinquency, traffic control, and criminal investigation. The students are given the opportunity to gain practical experience by serving on the Campus Police Force, members of which are sworn in as special officers in the San Francisco Police Department.

A majority of students, upon successful completion of the course, have secured positions with various city police forces.

City College is one of the only colleges in the nation which sponsors a fire college that works in direct cooperation with a city fire department. The Fire College is distinctive in several ways: it runs 52 weeks a year, accommodates approximately 70 students a week, and the students are actual firemen from San Francisco.

Lasting two days, the course is designed to keep the firemen informed on all the new techniques of modern fire fighting.

New Techniques Taught In Photo Class

Modern techniques of the camera in newspaper reporting is part of the training that prepares a student at City College who seeks a career in photography. Instruction in the methods used in press photography is by one of the top men in the field.

Chronicle staff photographer Joe Rosenthal won international fame while on assignment for his stirring picture of marines raising the American flag on Mount Suribachi at Iwo Jima.

Students in photographic journalism carry out classroom methods into the field. As part of The Guardsman staff, they are assigned to cover the pictorial angle in news, sports, feature reporting. They must learn the who, what, where, when and why of journalism in order to tell the story in a hurry.

This year's staff, watching Rosenthal, above, are Norwood Burdon, Kay Wood, Shirley Maritzen, Fred Matthes, Betty Jones, Ing, staging, tiding, and editing to Ken Hilmer, Al Vipiana, Herb Weiss.

Taught by exponents in their specialization, the School of Photography is a two year, four semester major leading to an Associate of Art degree. Tuition-free, the course is divided into three fields of interest: commercial, sales and laboratory technology.

On the faculty are B. J. Pasqualetti, co-ordinator and instructor of elementary, intermediate, workshop, police, and motion picture; Rosenthal for newspaper journalism; Charles Lanp instructs commercial, portraiture and darkroom; Emmett E. Smith for composition and creative photography with Ken Reichard as instructor in photo illustration.

Specialized courses in photography such as motion picture, involves a class project of writing scripts, directing, make-up, shooting, staging, tiding, and editing to cover every possible area found in movie-making.

A City College first, the School of Photography is at present the only two-year college major offering a degree in Northern California.

Among successful graduates of the school are William Terrell, '47, specialist in industrial "oil" photography in Tulsa, Oklahoma; Robert Feldman, '49, winner of a scholarship for further study at the Los Angeles Art Center; Donald Palmer, '50, whose one-man show is soon to be on display at the S. F. Museum of Art; Betty Langston, '50, laboratory assistant and technician at UC Hospital.

Frank Johnson, '49, photostat operator, Oakland; Dolores Courant, studio photographer, Milton Mann Studios; Edward Fong, photographer, Raymond Studios.

Fifteen Years - Guardsman Records College's Growth

By Clarence Whitcomb

The Guardsman, serving as the official newspaper of the Associated Students of this college, has reported the large and small happenings of the growing college since its first issue was distributed to the students on August 26, 1935.

In keeping with the development in educational philosophy that makes production activities an integral part of the curriculum, publication of a student newspaper is part of the journalism curriculum.

The full two year program of lecture-laboratory work involved in the publication of The Guardsman starts with practice in techniques of newspaper writing and continues with reporting, copy-desk, and editorial management experience.

Since the spring of 1936, Joan Nourse has been faculty adviser to The Guardsman and instructor of the newspaper courses. In 1945, George Mullany became adviser to the publicity committee and instructor of the public relations course.

Julian O. Goodell, St. Ignatius High School graduate, was the first editor of the paper. Under his editorship the policies of the college newspaper were formulated. As a matter of policy, The Guardsman has consistently held to the theory that it should, to the best of its ability, report the interests of the students.

Goodell, who majored in journalism and advertising while attending the college, is now in the advertising business in Los Angeles.

Lumbert Meyer, '37, is currently in the advertising business in San Francisco; Don Mix, '38, is area manager in public relations with Standard Brands in Sacramento; Jerry Flamm, '38, is in public relations.

Dick Simpers, '39, is with the SF Call-Bulletin; Bill Hall, '41, Claire Leeds, '42, and Paul Lindstrom, '47, are with The Examiner; Bob Cuthbertson, '42, is with the Oakland Tribune; Bill Brownell, '45, is with KNBC; Edmund Wunsch, '41, is Merchandising Advertising Manager, The Chronicle; Ray Berns, '38, city desk, Associated Press; Henry Tweith, '48, Lodi Sentinel; Dick Brennan, '49, Sports Editor, Ukiah Redwood Journal-Press Dispatch.

Borrie Hyman '41, now Vice-Consul of the United States in Noumea, New Caledonia; Marge Wheatly '46, currently a reporter for a Stockton newspaper; Arnold Wechter '46, reporter-photographer for a Santa Cruz newspaper; Trev Burrow '48, Assistant Executive Secretary, California Association of Insurance Agents, and Managing Editor, California Agency Bulletin; George Lajeunesse '48, reporter, San Jose Mercury-Herald; Herbert Levy '48, completing graduate study at UC and editor of the Mission Enterprise.

Recent journalism graduates from the college who are now attending San Jose State College are Jack Hulse, Ed Roper, Nancy Loughlin, Keith Gardner, Bob Quinlan, Cy Donaldson, Frank Monte, Roy Hurlbert, Bob Jones, and Gene Ellison.

A few of the recent graduates now attending the University of California are Roy Pasini, Larry Baldocchi, Bill Thomas, Rose Hardie, and Bob Johnson.

Early in its career, The Guardsman became a member newspaper of the Associated Collegiate Press, whose headquarters are located at the University of Minnesota. In its first semester of membership, the newspaper won an All-American rating.

The Guardsman, as part of the curriculum offered by the college, has an impressive total of 17 of these highest ratings in 19 semesters of membership in the ACP. Since 1947 it has been judged in competition with four year college and university newspapers.

Leadership, Expansion, Cooperation Highlight

DR. A. J. CLOUD, president-emeritus of City College.

Scattered Beginnings: School Grows From Plan To Campus, Now Essential To San Francisco

By Clarence Whiteomb

Fifteen years ago a new community was founded in the city by the Golden Gate when students began attending the scattered classrooms of the San Francisco Junior College. The community was dedicated to development of the mind through education and social growth.

It grew rapidly and soon the scattered classrooms were united into a single campus overlooking the Pacific Ocean on the west and the towering peak of Mt. Diablo on the east.

This development began in February 1935, when the college was authorized by the Board of Education.

Pioneer: President A. J. Cloud Laid Early Foundations Of College

President Archibald J. Cloud closed the first era in the history of the college when he became President Emeritus in June 1949.

Before Dr. Cloud became the college's first president, he had experienced many years in the field of public education as teacher, later as head of the English Department of Lowell High School, as Deputy Superintendent of Schools, and then Chief Deputy Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Edwin A. Lee, then Superintendent of Schools, invited Dr. Cloud to be president of the college. To him fell the tremendous task of molding and unifying a student group into a college.

However the first semester brought about 1,450 students and 70 instructors together.

"At the start we took the attitude that the college was a community project," President Emeritus Cloud said. "We wanted all men and women entering its doors to be able to take courses that would prepare them for life."

Dr. Cloud recalled that student government was encouraged to develop in a democratic manner.

"The student government has always been, fair," former President Cloud emphasized.

High school seniors, he believes, can derive great benefits by attending a two-year college.

"I consider that City College and other junior colleges in the state present advantages to high school graduates that cannot be met by the universities and four year colleges."

Dr. Cloud then presented four reasons he feels are important in educational development:

1—City College instructors are highly trained.

2—Practical experience in the student's chosen vocation can be obtained.

3—Universities and four year colleges have a more limited curriculum.

4—City College, on the whole, has small classes, thus giving instructors and students more personal contact. Also the counselling and testing services offered by the college are an outstanding achievement in student development.

College organization ceremonies were held in August 1935, at the War Memorial Opera House with Dr. Archibald J. Cloud the first president. To him fell the task of making the college with its 1450 pioneers, into a known institution.

April 25, 1937 saw the late Mayor Angelo J. Rossi turn the first shovelful of earth in Balboa Park, and construction got underway. In January 1938, tractors were set to work clearing the grounds for the new campus.

By 1939 more than 3,100 students were meeting in 25 different locations throughout the city.

The Science building opened for classes at the start of the Fall semester, 1940, with instructors "shouting" above the noise of carpenters running rampant through the halls and painters whistling while they worked. The final touches were completed on October 6, 1940, when the last hammer resounded through the halls.

Unveiling of Frederick Olmstead's limestone statues of Thomas A. Edison and Leonardo Da Vinci in the east court climaxed the first homecoming day at the new college. After months of planning on the part of students and faculty, the special homecoming day included a tour of the campus, entertainment, and refreshments.

Dedication ceremonies were held on November 10, 1941, and amidst many excited exclamations, Dudley C. Carter's one-ton redwood Ram was given to the college as a mascot. But it wasn't for several more years that the Ram found a permanent home.

In 1942 wartime needs for night and day education found the college open from early morning until late at night, with almost one-third of the faculty in the service.

A Victory Garden program was instituted in 1942 and classes were larger than ever before.

In 1944 the government awarded the college a victory garden certificate and a cement letter monument was planned by the students. Talk around the campus said that Navy barracks would go up in front of the college.

1946 found the wartime naval installations on Phelan and Ocean Avenues become a part of the expanding campus to handle the 5,000 students now enrolled.

The symbol of the college, the redwood Ram, finally found a resting place in 1947 when the mascot was placed in front of the auditorium on the west campus.

On February 12, 1948, the college changed from short pants to long pants when the name "junior" was removed and the official name became City College of San Francisco.

November 1948 found the voters passing a vitally needed bond issue to increase the college's plant. Men far outnumbered women students, and social events were again in full swing.

Students crowded the first on-campus student store when it opened its doors in September 1950. The college's building program gained momentum and final drafts were mapped out for the combination library and classroom building with preliminary plans for a fine arts building underway.

Way Years Made Definite Changes In College Scene

War came to the campus in December 1941, as it did throughout the nation, driving deep inroads into the normal life of the college.

Life at the college was much the same as on other home fronts during the four war years. Students and faculty departed for the service, bond and blood donor drives were held here, victory gardens sprouted on the grassy slopes of the hill, and the activity slate shrank.

By September 1942, 31 faculty members were in the various branches of the armed forces, and the war procurement board visited the college to spur enlistments in the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Coast Guard ROTC.

Among other things the enrollment, from a top figure of 3,000, dropped fast and didn't rise until the war was won. Along with the general trend, The Guardsman shrank to a small five column tabloid weekly and later became four columns in size, slightly larger than a sheet of typewriter paper.

Late in the Fall of 1942, more than 500 signed up on campus to donate blood, while in January 1943, a war bond drive, featuring night club and theatre personalities, headed by Maxie Rosenblum, was held in the El Rey Theatre.

The war bond drive, chairmanned by Bob Bisio, smashed, by over $5,000, the quota of $15,000 set for the college.

With enrollment at its low ebb of 800, the manpower situation forced the cancellation of The Ram-USF junior varsity football game. The Dons couldn't field the necessary 11 men.

By early 1944 only 327 new students, women predominating, registered at the college out of a total enrollment of 975.

Dean Edward Sandys, in charge of a pre-induction training course, announced its success. Two hundred and sixty men took the training in preparation for induction into the army.

It was to be just short of a year before Europe was "secured." And with the tide of Allied victories, the college began slowly to return to its normal living procedure.

With the war tide turned, enrollment, an index of this factor, picked up to 1,280 in Fall 1944. By the Spring of 1945 the enrollment hit 1450 and it was announced that football would return to normal play in the fall after three years of informal schedules. In May 1945, a V-E Day song contest was held here with the winners announced at the Music Festival, climax of the Seventh War Loan Drive.

One-Time Students Now Instruct Here

City College has an instructional faculty numbering 258, according to figures released by President Louis G. Conlan's office.

Ten instructors attended the college while students before completing their instructional training.

They include the following: Doris Henried, foreign languages; Gloria Swiegood Dunn, Ralph Hillsman, physical education; Don Jensen, counselling; Edward Nylund, Lawrence Wong, Hotel and Restaurant division; James Schon, engineering; Wilbur McKenzie, mathematics; Harry Freestuck and George Stewart, business.

H. A. Spindt

Attendance Here Beneficial To High Schoolers

By Herb Levy

Berkeley, California

H. A. Spindt, University of California Director of Admissions, urged San Francisco high school graduating seniors to attend City College of San Francisco — unless positive reasons warrant their attendance at the university.

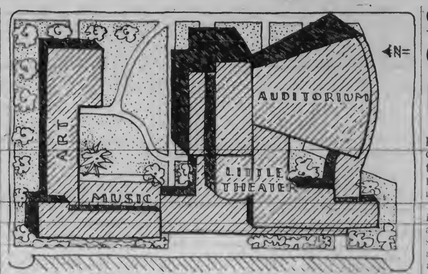
"Not only for those not eligible to attend the University of California because of scholastic deficiencies," declared Spindt, but equally so for those students most able to attend the university.

Spindt cited the fact that transfer students from City College to the university have attained a scholastic record of better than 1.3 to rank alongside the average university student.

The differential between the grading standards of City College to the university is only at the slightest varience, the director added.

Spindt said that City College ranks among the top two years schools in the state according to university standards and otherwise "is one of the best two year colleges in the state."

He pointed out that City College is supplying more transfer students to the University at Berkeley than any other two year college in California. In 1948, the latest up to date file available on transfer students, 375 matriculated at Berkeley from City College.



"Every indication points to a comparable ratio during the past two years," Spindt said.

Spindt explained that 30 years ago 60 per cent of the new students at the University were freshmen, but now that figure has dropped to 40 per cent. Of the 60 per cent now transferring to the University, one-half are coming from two year colleges.

"The two year college scholastic records are such," said Spindt, "that high school graduating seniors will gain much by attending a good public two year college in California before attending the University."

Spindt added that over the past ten years City College has consistently ranked among the first ten two year colleges in transferring students to the University.

(Herbert M. Levy was Editor of The Guardsman in Fall, 1948. As student manager of the music-drama production, The Vagabond King, in Spring, 1948, he worked with Editor George Lajeunesse in increasing opera proceeds directed to the Hurley Village Playground fund. He is now completing work for his MA degree at University of California.)

A COPY of architect Milton Pflueger's plan for City College's $500,000 Fine Arts building is shown above. An auditorium, little theatre, and complete facilities for chorus, band, and actors will be included. Note at the very bottom of the drawing the parking space, indicated by the diagonal lines, which edges Phelan Avenue.

Clish Sees College Keeping Attuned To Changes In Business, Industry

A college whose program is in pace with business and industry and shows awareness of the present global situation is the visualization of City College described in a recent interview with Dr. Herbert C. Clish, San Francisco's Superintendent of Schools.

Dr. Clish pictures City College as "attuned to changes in business and industry" and in the process of "developing an accelerated program to enable students to complete work faster and prepare for greater service during this period of emergency."

The underlying function of City College, which Dr. Clish believes is "service as a community college which meets the need of the individual student," remains constant, in his opinion.

That function, he defines, "is to provide university parallel courses and semi-professional work to serve business and industry."

As City College carries out this function, a further constant value is offered citizens of the bay area. This is the assistance through the college's counselling program in helping each student to determine his individual future.

College Develops Abilities

"Where parents are uncertain about their children's future careers," Dr. Clish said, "City College is instrumental in helping them develop their best abilities."

With the establishment of a two-year college in Contra Costa County and the future prospect of a similar college in Alameda County, Dr. Clish expects a gradual level in City College enrollment that will be in proportion to its campus facilities and community needs.

The Superintendent declared that he hopes to continue negotiations with the Public Utilities Commission to retain use of the west campus property beyond its present lease, if necessary.

College Building Plans

Classroom-Library Building, Fine Arts Unit Near Reality

With the plans for the college's proposed three-story library and classroom building approved by the Board of Education, the building program of the college has moved a step closer to reality.

The new classroom-library building, which will include such features as individual cubicles for work on speech, four visual education rooms, a large student study room, and ample locker space, will be constructed at the foot of Hill 29, located directly behind the present main building.

Distribution of classrooms and offices in the building will be as follows:

1st Floor: Maintenance offices, business department, and two visual education rooms.

2nd Floor: Drafting and architecture departments, home economics department, two visual education rooms, speech rooms, and the Fire College.

3rd Floor: Faculty offices and the library.

The proposed library will be one of the finest in the United States, President Louis G. Conlan believes, and will contain a reserve and general reading room for 700 students, three small conference rooms to be used for student and faculty committee conferences, display, and storage of maps and rare books, a periodical room, a cataloging and workroom for the library staff, a faculty reading room, library office, and a book capacity of 75,000 volumes.

To insure full utilization of desirable classroom features in the new building, many colleges throughout California were visited and notes made of new and useful facilities which will, as incorporated in the new classrooms, insure a maximum of teaching efficiency.

This plan will be followed further as instructors are called in for expression of their views, criticisms, and ideas concerning the new classrooms.

Plans for a Fine Arts building which will include complete facilities for the music and art departments, an auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,200 persons, a little theater with a seating capacity of 300 persons, a lecture hall with a seating capacity of 200 persons, and office space for 10 instructors, have also been approved by the board.

Music department facilities in the Fine Arts building will consist of three classrooms, a choir room, a band and orchestra room, individual practice rooms, and a storage room for choir gowns, band uniforms, record albums, and sheet music.

Art department facilities will be made up of two art laboratories, a ceramics laboratory with kilns, a drawing laboratory, and a recreational leadership and jewelry design laboratory.

The new buildings will be erected as a result of the bond proposal approved by the voters in the 1948 San Francisco elections. Of that sum $1,700,000 has been allocated for the erection of the combination classroom-library building, with the remaining $500,000 available for the Fine Arts building.

It is estimated that the Fine Arts building, which will be constructed in stages, will reach a total cost of $1,300,000.

The completed Fine Arts building will include many new features found in such buildings in colleges throughout the state, and will serve as an easily adaptable unit. Again, full utilization of the building will be insured by calling in instructors for criticisms and comments.

OVER THE PORTALS of the college an appropriate phrase was needed to convey a meaning to the students. Many phrases were appropriate, and debate was widespread over which one to choose. Finally six perfect words were taken from the New Testament, "The Truth Shall Make You Free." The portals were unveiled in September, 1939.

Busy Week Ahead

Soph Week Gets Under Way Today, Ends Saturday At Ball

Royalty Crowned At Scottish Rite

Sophomore Week gets officially under way today and tomorrow with the election of the sophomore king and queen, continues Friday morning on the floor of the men's gymnasium when the soph-faculty fives meet for a basketball tussle, and concludes Saturday night at the Scottish Rite Auditorium with Sophomore Semi-Formal.

Voting for the king and queen, who will be announced at the formal Coronation Waltz, began this morning at 9 a.m. in Building 2, will end at 1:30 p.m., this afternoon, and follow the same schedule tomorrow. The winning majesty and highness will be presented with twin loving cups as well as the perpetual trophy from the Betas and Theta Taus.

During Friday's extended college hour, the two factions will continue their semesterly feud. Last spring the faculty men were triumphant in a softball clash. No rumors of a grudge fight have been authoritatively confirmed.

Bids to the Saturday night semi-formal are priced at two dollars, and may be purchased from salesmen throughout the campus. Music is by Jackson Terry and his orchestra.

Class Elects King, Queen For Formal

Elections for sophomore king and queen begin today and continue through tomorrow in Building 2, from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Lee Janover, class president, announced recently.

Among the candidates are Pete Chevrier, Beta Tau; Monroe Johnson, Phi Beta Delta; Dick MacFarland, Alpha Sigma Delta; Jana Neill, Theta Tau; Beverly Jank, Alpha Lambda Chi; Annette Himson, Phi Beta Rho, and Lois Hoffman, Kappa Phi.

Posters of the candidates are still on display at various points on campus, as well as on off campus places. According to tradition, the men students vote for the queen, and women vote for the king.

The names of the winning couple will be announced during the sophomore formal, which takes place Saturday evening from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Scottish Rite Auditorium.

At that time the royal couple is presented with individual loving cups, and the Beta Tau and Theta Tau perpetual trophies, upon which their names are recorded.

The Associated Men Students' Mardi Gras, now a tradition here at the college, was once the theme of a Freshman class dance.

'Store Reception Great,' Main

Work, Planning Pays Off For Store In Increased Sales

The two years of planning and work which were necessary to make the student store an actuality have paid off with increased sales and good student reception, according to Richard Main, store manager.

"In fact, the reception has been even better than we had at first anticipated," Main added. "I can see no reason why the store should not continue to grow as time passes, and in time carry all the supplies and novelties the students desire."

These sentiments were echoed by President Louis G. Conlan who said, "The operation of the store to date has been more successful than we thought it would be. It is hoped that in the future the amount of merchandise will be expanded, and new types will be offered."

It is important that the store get a student reaction to the type of merchandise wanted in the store, President Conlan added, "For it is the students' store and what happens will affect their program at the college."

The student store had its beginning during the 1949 Junior College convention in Pasadena.

On September 5, 1950, the City College Student Store reached reality and opened its doors for business.

The two-year interval separating these events represents the hard work, planning, and foresight which was necessary before the student store, now serving the students of the college, could become a reality. Jack Brady, then dean of men, was instrumental in laying the groundwork for the enterprise.

Many meetings between President Conlan, who had succeeded Dr. Cloud, and members of the administration, and Superintendent Herbert C. Clish and has staff were necessary before all the problems concerning the store's operation could be solved and the actual construction of the store begun.

Cost of setting up the store was estimated at $35,000 by Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, college controller. Included in this sum was the cost of books purchased on a consignment basis, the construction of the store, salaries and insurance on the store.

Student Store Name Revealed Friday

The student Store will operate under its new name after Friday, January 19. Until the dedication ceremony, which will be held during college hour on January 19, the prize winning name and the name of the winner are to remain a mystery.

Tentative arrangements have been made to have Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, and President Louis G. Conlan to appear as honorary speakers.

The Rally committee is all set to rope off a section of the West Campus parking lot in front of the student store, and to give its support to the ceremony. The Band has also lined up a few musical numbers which will be appropriate for the ceremony.

The store became a reality after a planning period of two years. It opened its doors September 5, 1950.

The dedication climaxes more than two months of planning and promotion.

Past Guardsman Editor Appointed Aide To U.S.D.A.

Former Guardsman editor Donald B. Constine early last week was appointed Assistant United States District Attorney by Frank J. Hennessy, U. S. Attorney in San Francisco.

The appointment came Monday, January 8, after Constine had served a year on the legal division of the Public Housing Administration. Constine served as a special investigator on the staff of former San Francisco District Attorney Edmund (Pat) Brown before being appointed to the FHA legal department.

Law Practice

He started his law practice in January 1949 following his graduation from Hastings Law College in June 1948.

Constine was editor of The Guardsman for three semesters in 1944 and 1945 and graduated from the college in 1945.

"I found my work on The Guardsman staff most invaluable," declared Constine. "It certainly helped me in my studies at Hastings Law College. The work and the time spent working on The Guardsman helped me a great deal while I was at Hastings."

The former Guardsman editor also said work on the paper made his studies at law school easier.

Enrolled in Political Science

He further declared that he enrolled in political science courses offered here under John Selig and history courses from Claude Silva.

"I took political science from John Selig and history from Claude Silva. Both courses prepared me for my law practice and proved invaluable to me," said Constine.

Constine, 25, resides in the Stonestown housing area. He is married and has one child.

Many Organizations Sponsor Successful Dances Off, On Campus

By Sumi Kanaya

On campus dances of the college are held in either the west campus auditorium or the student lounge while the traditional Sophomore Formal and other off campus affairs are held at such large downtown hotels as the Fairmont, St. Francis and the Sir Francis Drake.

Name bands and orchestras who also play for the University of California and other colleges are engaged for these dances.

During the semester almost all organizations sponsor a dance or get-together of some sort. Several groups sponsor a dance with an annual theme such as Tau Chi Sigma's House of Blue Lights, Phi Beta Delta's Shipwreck Dance, the Chinese Club's Sweetheart Ball and Beta Tau's Mistletoe Mingle.

The first official college dance, a rally dance held at the Gold Ballroom of the Palace Hotel on October 25, 1935, was given a unique touch by reporting by direct wire to the ballroom the progress of the football team then playing at Modesto.

A date bureau had been set up for this first dance and the still popular I'm in the Mood For Love was the current hit of this original affair.

Last semester many of the campus organizations such as the Masonic Club, Ski Rams, Block SF, Alpha Phi Omega, Chinese Club, Cosmopolitan Society, Latin American Club, Newman Club, Le Cercle Francais, Filipino Club and the Women's Athletic Association sponsored a successful benefit dance.

Traditional Mardi Gras Grows From Small Beginning To City-wide Fete

By Warren Northwood

The Associated Men Student Mardi Gras, held last May, was perhaps the most successful in its four year existence.

The Mardi Gras attracted persons from all parts of the bay area, was shown on television, and brought new attention to the college. It is the outcropping of a theme for a freshman dance staged in 1946.

The first Mardi Gras was held in the college auditorium, under the auspices of the AMS, and was designed to provide entertainment for students and their friends.

The following two festivals followed along the same line, but added booths where food was sold or various entertainment provided, and featured a dance which was appropriately called the Silver Ball.

In 1949 the Mardi Gras rose to new heights when the public was invited to join in the fun. A bandstand was erected in the west campus parking lot, and booths lined the walking ramps. Contests were held for the best booth and for King and Queen honors.

A parade was added to the long list of interests and marched up Ocean Avenue with many bands, floats, and cars participating.

In 1950 the Mardi Gras reached even greater heights when films of the carnival were shown over television station KPIX. An estimated 2,000 people made an appearance and danced to the music of Ben Watkins and orchestra.

The carnival is the work of the students themselves and is led by the AMS President. Profits go to the clubs sponsoring booths and shows.

Booths in last semester's festival sold food and offered hoop throwing, target shooting, and miniature golf games to persons there. Dancing was free and the parade before the carnival included some 35 units with representatives of the army, campus organizations, high school bands, the college band, floats, and marching units.

College Parallel

Transfer Grads Lose No Credits

Graduates of university parallel courses from the college transfer to any university or college with no loss in credits.

University of California, Berkeley, for example, will accept any student from any class level if he has met the prerequisite of a 1.5 grade average in the proper subjects. Otherwise, 60 units and the necessary courses are required for admission.

Transfers to the university from this college have done consistently well, according to Lloyd Luckman, dean of university parallel courses here. In fact, the dean said, "They have done as well as and better than native University of California students."

Courses Here Prepare Student For Future

Curriculum Stresses Individual Values, Needs

By Bob Rezak

As a community college designed to meet the needs of the individual, City College is equipped to serve more than 5000 men and women students whose objectives and interests fall in the presentation of a curriculum divided broadly into the following three categories:

1—Semi-professional courses of a terminal nature, which prepare students directly for jobs;

2—University parallel courses equivalent in subject matter and standards to the first two years of university or four year college study;

3—General college courses designed to discover "hidden" abilities of the individual student.

The semi-professional course, embraced in six months to two years of study, which four year universities do not offer, has molded itself into a vast occupational training unit.

Of the 37 courses offered in this field, many afford on-the-job training, besides courses which give the student a better understanding of the world he lives in.

Many of the semi-professional programs have been inaugurated in direct response to the demands of industrial and business employers of the Bay Area, who also give advice and assistance in setting up the suggested programs of study.

Semi-professional or terminal courses prepare students for future positions such as the following: Business administration, which includes accounting, advertising, general business, insurance, general merchandising, management, cooperative merchandising management, real estate, secretarial training, and transportation.

Commercial art, with training offered for positions in advertsing agencies, art services, and the free lance art field.

Food technology, which relates to employment as technicians and routine analysts in chemical industries.

Engineering technology, including architectural drafting, mechanical technology, radio and electronic technology, surveying and map drafting, refrigeration, air conditioning, and operating engineering.

Floriculture, which prepares students for management and operation of private florist shops, regular garden maintenance workers, greenhouse operators and managers, and nursery practice.

Graphic arts, including offset plate making and lithography.

Hotel and restaurant, which prepares students for any phase of hotel and restaurant management, operation, and service.

Law enforcement, planned to offer students successful careers in various law enforcement agencies.

Music, whose curriculum is designed for basic preparation for vocal performance with emphasis on studies relating directly to operatic performance.

Paint technology, with preparation for fields in paint research, production, technical sales and management.

Recreational leadership, the supervision of recreational activities.

Through the vocational guidance given throughout the semi-professional program and through the service of the college placement office, the student may look forward to employment in his chosen field with the assurance he is well trained and qualified to enter the civic and economic life of the community.

University parallel courses, as the title implies, parallel work given in the four-year college, which includes letters and science, physical science, pre-medical, pre-dental, pre-nursing, pre-forestry, pre-legal, and home economics.

Because many students attend college with the aim of graduating with an Associate in Arts degree after two years without specializing in any specific professional field, a third division of the curriculum at City College is offered.

Here, in the general college course, the student is provided with an introduction to various vocational and cultural fields to acquaint himself with his cultural heritage and understanding so that he may be a contributing citizen to his community.

Courses which relate to the wide field of general education offered at the college include life science, natural science, certain phases of specialized chemistry, communications, and an appreciation of music, art, and literature.

February 7, 8, 9, Set For Registration

Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of education, last week announced the dates for Spring 1951, registration with returning students registering Wednesday, February 7.

New students will register on Thursday and Friday, February 8 and 9, Dr. Marsh declared. Applications for entrance are available to high school students at their high school or at the college, Building 3.

A good night's rest, a hearty breakfast, and a fountain pen are recommended to applicants before starting the registration line-up.

ROBERT MILLS, Associated Student president for two semesters in 1945, and "father" of the present student constitution, transferred to Stanford, and after graduation from there continued study in science. He is now engaged in chemical research with the Hooper Research Laboratories, affiliate of the University of California.

Former Students Hold Top Jobs

Business education, with its many separate fields, sends City College graduates into every type of business. Accounting prepared Richard Cronce '49, for his position as accountant in finance and trusts, North American Investment Trust; Louis Bertolucci '37, Assistant Merchandising Manager, Acme Breweries.

Business administration graduate Howard Cloud '38, is Lieutenant-Colonel Cloud, aide to the General of the Army Air Force Base, Indiana; Charles Meyers '42, is Assemblyman, 25th district; Charles O'Gara 39, is Assistant United States Attorney, San Francisco district office; Gene Powell '41, left the Associated Student presidency for naval aviation and is Commanding Officer, Anti-Submarine Patrol Squadron, Pacific Fleet.

Merchandising study led to positions as branch store managers for Enzo Belle '42 and Dale Brown '47; prepared as store buyers Dorothy Del Monte '42, William Fahey '46, Shirley Glass '42, Eugene Jansen '48, Clifford Moody '39, Lillian Nielsen '41, Phillis Pabst '35, Sally Prosser '48, and Fedora Romiti '42.

From retail merchandising here, Robert Bell '48, went to Moore, Inc., where he is traffic manager.

Majoring in transportation, Rose Marie Farber, became secretary to the Personnel Director, Pan American Airways; San Francisco; and Muriel Schumacker '49, is hostess, United Airlines, and won the highest rating of any candidate at the United Airline School in Wyoming.

Work-School Plan Nears Completion

Work on a business training program which will enable City College students to work four hours and attend classes four hours, is nearing its final stages.

The new program will assist students in two ways. It offers short "brush up" courses in clerical, secretarial, and skilled subjects for students who have already graduated from high school or the college and desire further training for greater proficiency.

Many Graduates Continue Education, Become Successful

Typical of City College graduates of the university parallel division who transferred to University of California, Richard Kelley, DDS, pre-dental major here in 1940, is practicing in San Francisco and is first President of the college's Alumni Association.

David Stern, '36, is also a San Francisco dentist; Jim Neal '37, is City Manager of Oceanside, California; Mary Frances Malone Wines '41, Phi Beta Kappa, is teaching English at Golden Gate College; Arthur Friesche '42, is a UC Ph. D. and lecturer in English there.

Phyllis Jane Anderson, history major here, holds a degree in librarianship and is head librarian, Pan American Airways; William Lilly, political science major here, Phi Beta Kappa at UC, is budget analyst at Inyokern Naval Ordnance Testing Station.

Donald Lahman, science major here, is working toward his Ph. D. in zoology; John F. Regan is an optometrist in San Francisco.

Pre-legal study here prepared Nancy Stookey '47, for Stanford, where she is now in her last year in Stanford Law. school; Don Constine '45, and Henry Buckingham '45, are Hastings Law graduates; Clint Logas '48, is an honor student in Stanford's graduate school of business administration.

Home economics study prepared Beverly Thompson and Jean Carasco for air-stewardess positions with United Air Lines.

The 1940 class salutatorian, Jade Snow Wong, ceramist-author, majored in social sciences and won an Alpha Gamma Sigma scholarship as the outstanding woman student in two-year colleges in California, before transferring to Mills College.

San Francisco State College has countless City College graduates, of whom Reginald Alexander '47, now employed by the city Board of Education in distributive education, is typical.

Paul Green, on the other hand, political science major here, completed his work in 1937, and is now Mayor Paul Green of Daly City. Mayor Green continues his association with the college by keeping up with the political science classes.

Floriculture Program Unique In U. S.

Exhibit Entries Win Top Honors

In the floriculture training field, City College is the only U. S. college other than Michigan State that offers complete and practical training for the industry.

The curriculum, started by Harry Nelson, embraces the field of horticulture from preparation of the soil to the finished product in the form of a plant or flower.

Work with the finished product may lead to flower arrangement, design, retail flower shop operation, to landscaping, or to prize-winning exhibits.

Entrants in the annual San Mateo Floral Fiesta since 1947, college floriculture students have won top prizes each year.

In the Oakland Spring Garden Show, entries have won top honors in 1948, 1949, and 1950.

Representative graduates include Bert Bertolero '39, Naylet Seed Company in Oakland, and leading nurseryman in Central California; and Arthur Menzies, La Rochette Nursery, San Francisco, and expert in the handling of unusual plants.

At the city's Golden Gate Park, Jack Spring is director of the main nursery; Peter Pardo is chief propagator for the nursery; and William Maitland is head nurseryman for the conservatory.

Frank Hilton '50, is an azalea grower for the wholesale market; Marylope Cummings is designer for Albert Stein Florists; and Lucila MacIntosh is in corsage sales at Podesta & Baldocchi.

William Irvine, Alice Eastwood scholar here, is at California Polytechnic working for a degree in Ornamental Horticulture; Jules Rodigou '49, with the State Department of Agriculture, Nursery Service, is in charge of strawberry inspection from San Jose north; Robert Coehlo '41, is landscape designer with Roberto Burle-Marx, Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Graduate Engineers Now Key Men Of Local Companies

San Francisco is undergoing a face-lifting in its southwestern area with the development of large residential, apartment, and business sections, and a City College graduate, has been a leading figure in that progress.

From the engineering department, Andres Oddstad '38, went into the building business, designed large structures such as Stonestown Apartments, and is now President of the Sterling Building Company, and one of the largest bay area contractors.

Through work here in architectural drafting, Gordon Hanson '50, became general manager for the same company.

John Fallis '48, received payroll credit for his pre-college work experience as a structural steel field worker, when, after study in architectural drafting here, he secured a drafting job with Morrison-Knudsen.

From the same study field, Miguel A. Cifuentes '50, qualified number one of a list of 76 men in the San Francisco Civil Service test, and is now working for the city.

All City College graduates taking the test ranked in the upper 25 per cent of those passing the examination.

Charles A. Harmon '49, went directly into a San Francisco teaching position in electronics and drafting, when no credentialed applicants were available. He is continuing study at State College.

George Sinnot '50, is engaged in drafting work with Ward and Bolles, architects.

'48-'49 Gridders, Cagers Made History

ALL-AMERICAN honors were awarded to Kev Duggan, one of the college's greatest, for his play during the 1949-50 cage season.

Trio Of Locals On All-American

Unlike the major college All-American selections, two-year college all-star units mean something. Only one such selection is made and only one can be official.

In recent seasons City College athletic teams have been blessed with three such players—Ollie Matson and Burl Toler in football, and Kev Duggan in basketball. These men were true all-everything choices, displaying ability in their sports.

Matson, as a Washington High prep star, had shattered the AAA scoring record in 1947. He did the same in 1948 with the Rams, scoring 114 points on 19 touchdowns to set the all-time City College record. Toler's defensive work was of the same caliber as the ball carrying of Matson. Toler was named All-American center for that same 1948 season.

The All-American forward position went to Duggan for his play in the 1950 National Tournament held at Hutchinson, Kansas. His play during the season had been sensational and he was chosen on the Northern California Junior College All-Conference team earlier in the year.

Power, Like A Mack Truck, Plus Speed, Brings '48 Grid Crown

Unless it's a Mack truck rumbling down Market Street at high noon, there is nothing quite as awesome as the record generated by City College's football team of 1948.

Composed mostly of former San Francisco high school players the Rams swept through a ten game schedule undefeated, took the loop title, won the post-season Gold Dust Bowl game, and piled up 296 points to their opponents' 62.

The Rams, classed by observers as the college's best-ever, coached by Grover Klemmer, were easily the best two-year college eleven in Northern California in 1948. And the record proves the argument, if there is one.

From the very first day of practice in that halcyon year the locals had the material. The squad was graced with Bob Taquino, Jack Myers, Roy Giorgi, and Ben Albrecht, from Mission; Ollie Matson, Washington; Don Stillwell and Ken White, Lincoln; Julian Bala, Commerce; and Burl Toler, McClymonds, Oakland.

These luminaries and their mates provided the drive that shot City College to the top in the National rankings among two-year college teams. That year Matson racked up 119 points while Toler was the defensive standout.

The locals started the season by overpowering Monterey, 37-0, and followed with an 18-0 triumph over Vallejo. Matson suffered a chest injury when the Rams drubbed Sacramento, 25 to 7, thus seeing little action, but scoring once, as the local team edged Marin, 13-0.

Matson, the former Washington High Flyer, came back to tally twice as City College routed San Mateo, 26-0. He repeated the performance and tossed a TD pass for goot measure while his mates racked East Los Angeles, 48 to 6.

The Darlings of Ocean Avenue squeaked past Los Angeles City College, 13 to 0, with Matson dashing 44 yards to score. The season's crucial proved a dud when the Rams whipped Hartnell 20-7 after a close first half. Next came Stockton and Matson scored all four TD's, the locals winning, 27 to 7.

Earlier that week college officials signed the pact that put the Rams into the Gold Dust Bowl.

Modesto fell, 25 to 19, in a close battle and City College was "in." Then Menlo was dropped, 24 to 9, and the Rams took the title. They climaxed the big season with a 20 to 7 triumph over Chaffey, a strong Southland club in the Gold Dust Bowl.

BURL TOLER, Ram center, and defensive standout, was among the luminaries who graced the memorable 1948 grid team.

Matson didn't score or rip off any long gains that night, but the next semester he and a host of other local stars enrolled at the University of San Francisco.

Orange, Rose Bowl Local Faculty Men Handle College Officiating Jobs

By Jack Spalding

Several members of the faculty here at City College handle two jobs instead of one during a great part of the college year. This group, which includes four coaches, one instructor, and one college president, constitutes part of the local clan of football and basketball officials.

These whistle-tooters, ever before the eyes of bay area fans, do their work up and down the Coast, but are more often confined to the playing surface of Kezar Stadium, Memorial Stadium in Berkeley, Stanford Stadium or in the Cow Palace.

Football officials present at the college are the one college president, Louis G. Conlan, found mostly in P.C.C. contests, the four coaches—Roy Diederichsen, Bill Fischer, Jack Gaddy and Tom Wilson. The instructor is Lee Eisan, former head football coach for the Rams.

Bill Fischer handles mostly independent tilts, while Jack Gaddy does his work for the National Professional Football League. Tom Wilson and Roy Diederichsen work local high school leagues and Cow Palace basketball games.

Probably the biggest single day for this group of college officials came last New Year's Day when three of them officiated Bowl Games over the nation. In the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, President Conlan was chosen as the head linesman for the game between Ohio State and California.

In the Orange Bowl, Bill Fischer officiated, and in the annual East-West Shrine contest in Kezar, Lee Eisan tossed the coin and did his part as referee.

THE STARTING BACKFIELD for the famous 1948 Darlings of Ocean Avenue that shot the Rams to the top in National rankings included Bob Taquino, Ken Faehr, Ray Giargi, and All-American Ollie Matson.

Champ Players Rated All-Star Squads In '49

By John Dierking

Basketball at its greatest chronicle can be classified with the squad of 1948-49 with the starting five being awarded positions on all three teams of the Northern California Junior College All-Conference squads, besides copping the conference championship.

Led by Captain Jim Caldwell, the '49 squad had the remarkable record of 32 wins and 2 losses, besides winning the Modesto Tourney and the Cow Palace Two Year College Tournament.

Averaging some 55 points per game to their opponents' 44, the Rams showed the versatility of their attack with all players being able to hit the basket when the time need be. Bob "Mr. Inside" Matheny and Dud "Mr. Outside" Truelsen showed the opposing teams how to get a man under the basket with their fast-breaking attack.

The Payne twins, Bob and Don, were ever aggressive guards, who didn't know the meaning of letting up on the pressure when pursuing their opponents on the courts through Northern California.

Annexing some 1850 total points for the season, as to their opponents' 1350 showed well enough that shooting that ball through the basket was no handicap.

The closest to being dumped from the ranks for the conference championship was in a game with Modesto, when an aggressive Modesto player got careless in the last few seconds of the game, fouling Duggan when attempting a layup shot.

With the game tied at 41 all, the pressure was tremendous on Duggan who stepped to the free throw line and proceeded to put the ball through the hoop for those decisive two digits that won them the ball game, 43-41.

The irony of it all came when the Rams encountered Grant Tech for conference playoffs in a two out of three series. At this the club walked all over Grant by downing them in the first two games, 60-45 and 64-55. But the payoff came later when they faced Grant Tech again in the Sacramento Tournament, only to have the North Sacramento college eke out a close 56-50 win over the City College hoopsters, and thus win the right to represent this district in the National Tournament at Hutchinson, Kansas.

Former Cage Star, Hillsman Now Coach

Back in 1936, just a year after the college was established, a husky young man named Ralph Hillsman captained the college basketball team to its first championship.

That same year Hillsman was also named to the All-Conference team as guard. Since then Hillsman attended the University of California, playing the cage sport there also, served in the Navy during World War II, and then returned to the college as head basketball coach.

This month Hillsman's cage team seeks its second consecutive Northern California Junior College Conference championship.

Since the day he shed his Navy blue serge, Hillsman brought the college five tournament titles, two conference crowns, and fifth ranking nationally last season.

RAMblings . . .

By Gene Kelly

THE five years which have elapsed since the surrender was signed aboard the battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay have seen the college varsity athletic teams literally go championship-crazy. In that period, Ram squads have won ten different titles, as compared with nine for the preceding ten years.

Most prominent teams of recent years were the 1948-49 and '49-50 basketball and boxing varsities. Just before that, the great football teams of 1946 and 1948 brought the college national recognition as a breeding ground for championship teams.

TUMBLED IN PLAYOFFS

Hillsman's '48 team wound up with a seasonal record of 30 wins against only one loss. In the playoffs with Grant Technological College, Northern division champ, the Rams won the first two game of a 2-out-of-3 series to determine the conference winner.

CAGERS ROLL TO TITLE

The following year the Rams were not to be denied. They rolled to the conference title easily, then, after losing the first game 56-42, came back to dump Placer College 48-47 and 52-46 to win the conference championship. San Mateo's Bulldogs succumbed in the state Regional playoffs, and the Rams were "in" the National Playoffs held in Hutchinson, Kansas.

Roy Diederichsen performed a similar feat with his boxing squad those two years. During the '48-49 season, the college mittmen won the NCJCC title and came within a scant three points of winning the national championship at Pasadena.

The baseball diamond also saw the Rams running wild. In the 1944 and '46 editions the locals smeared all competition in annexing the conference title. Last year Bill Fischer's squad won the southern division laurels, winning out over Modesto in the last inning of the last game of the season, 8-6. Santa Rosa's Bear Cubs showed little mercy in the conference playoffs, however.

Grover Klemmer, who guided the 1948 team to the greatest season in college gridiron history, coached the Rams to their first and only NCJCC track crown in 1946.

SOCCERMEN ON TOP

Soccer marks another high-water point in college athletic history. 1936 and '37 saw the NCJCC title resting on the Phelan Avenue lingstaff. For the past two years, the local booters have placed third in the California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference, a group which is composed solely of four-year colleges—City College excepted.

The tennis squad holds the distinction of being the only major sport to account for three championships in a row. That was back in 1936-37-38, when every opponent fell.

Ralph Hillsman's golf team rounds out the honor roll of champions. The linksmen captured both the division and conference titles during the athletic banner year of 1949, when they became the third college team in one year to win a conference crown.

College Offers Varied PE Program

"A coaching staff which is equal to that of any bay area college." That statement is the impartial belief of Athletic Director Jack Gaddy. This is supported by the fact that the college has, in its 15 year existence, either won or shared 21 championships in the major sports of football, basketball, baseball, track, tennis, soccer, and boxing. Golf, swimming, and an extensive intramural program is also offered.

City College is a member of the Big Seven of the Northern California Junior College Conference. Included in this division are San Mateo, Modesto, Sacramento, Stockton, Santa Rosa, and Contra Costa.

The soccer team, however, is in a somewhat unique conference. City College, along with USF, Stanford, California, Santa Clara, and San Francisco State, is the only two-year college member of the California Intercollegiate Soccer Conference.

Block letters are awarded to all athletes who have sufficiently participated on one or more of the major teams, as well as circle letters awarded to those who engage in the minor sports, including junior varsity football, basketball, baseball, golf, skiing, badminton and swimming.

Local Cagers Face Sacramento Tonight

Hillsmen Clash With Stockton In Gym Friday Night

Northern California Junior College Conference basketball swings into high gear tonight and Friday night when the defending champion City College Rams tangle with Sacramento and Stockton in the newly formed Big Seven loop.

Tonight the locals face the Sacramento Panthers in Sacramento, returning home Friday to square off against Stockton College Mustangs in the men's gymnasium. Starting time is 8 p.m. for the home game.

A fortnight ago the Rams lost to Sacramento, 56 to 52, in the opening round of the Modesto Tournament, reports indicate that the locals need to apply polish to their attack in order to win over the Panthers.

Information received here late last week indicated that Santa Rosa looms as the biggest threat to the college club. Contra Costa's fast-breaking team also has shown that it will definitely be tough in the race for the title.

Santa Rosa has the services of Curt Gardere and Marion Sims, both named to the Modesto Tourney's all-tournament team. Jim Brown leads the Contra Costa cagers. He too was named as an all-tournament player.

San Mateo is expected to provide the leaders with additional competition for the championship.

Last Friday night saw the opening of the Northern California Junior College Basketball Conference when the Rams played the Modesto Pirates in the men's gymnasium. The Guardsman went to press before the score of this opener was announced.

Since their return to competitive boxing with other two-year and four-year colleges in 1947, City College boxing teams have become one of the top flight squads, being recognized as the second best on the coast in 1947 and second among U. S. two-year schools in 1948.

In 1948 the locals knocked off San Francisco State in their opener and went on to win over U.C. and Santa Clara. In the Northern California Junior College Tournament they were crowned champions and then went on to cop second place honors in the nationals.

Last year, paced by Len Gage and Jack Bettencourt, both of whom reached the finals in the National tournament, the Rams had a tough time during the early part of the season but wound up fourth in the Nationals.

The biggest reason for the boxers' success is the large intramural setup which is directed by Coach Roy Diederichsen. The culmination of each year's boxing instruction classes is the Novice Boxing Tournament in which prospective varsity ringmen are matched against each other in bouts which are well handled, close and which usually draw a good crowd.

Diederichsen estimates that in the time he has been the director of the Novice Tourney, more than 1000 men have been instructed in the sport of boxing and as many as 150 in one tournament year.

These novice matches form something like a farm system from which Diederichsen draws his recruits for varsity competition.

Baseball, Boxing Prospects Bright; Veterans Shine

Three major sports—baseball, track, and boxing—open their 1951 seasons shortly after the Spring semester opens, and the outlook in at least two is most promising.

Bill Fischer's baseball squad is bolstered by the return of several veterans and two players from the Oakland American Legion squad which won the national American Legion championship. Last year Fischer's team won the southern division championship, only to lose the conference title to Santa Rosa College, northern division titleholders.

This year, due to the reorganization of the conference, City College and Santa Rosa are included in the same division, the Big Seven.

Roy Diederichsen takes his ringmen against several tough opponents, but feels confident his squad will win more matches than it loses. Four boxers have returned from last year's championship varsity, and several newcomers; one a Golden Gloves champion, will make the Ram varsity a tough one to beat.

Little is known at this date of Grover Klemmer's track team. The thinclads will meet, among others, the California and Stanford frosh, and will participate in the state relay events.

GI Education Deadline Approaching Student Welfare Coordinator Warns

Deadline for starting GI Bill courses of education and training for most veterans is July 25, 1951, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, stated recently.

This coming spring semester will be the final semester when most veterans may enter or re-enter GI Bill training.

Most veterans must be in actual training by the deadline if they desire to continue afterwards.

The VA will consider a veteran to be in training, even though he has temporarily interrupted his course for summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

Once he completes or discontinues his program of training after the 1951 date, he may not start another course.

He may change his educational objective only while in actual training and then only for reasons approved by the Veterans' Administrator.

The July 25, 1951 date daes not apply to veterans discharged after July 25, 1947. These veterans have four years after their discharge in which to begin GI Bill training. They must, however, finish trining before July 25, 1956.

Any person wishing to obtain more information in this matter may contact the Veterans Affairs Office at the college. This office is located in Building 3.

Clubs Expand, Meet College Social Need

With the birth of a new college in 1935, there also came a need for clubs, to gather together students for social, service and scholastic purposes.

Among the first clubs to organize were the Women's Athletic Association, the Filipino Club, the Chinese Club, Pi Mu Gamma, and a service group called Hickory and Jeans, from which the Block SF Society developed the following year.

Beta Phi Beta and Beta Tau were the first active fraternal organizations on campus, while Phi Beta Rho was the first sorority.

Today there are numerous organizations suited for every interest. While most groups place service to the college among their primary aims, these clubs can be classified according to their particular purposes. There are scholastic honor groups, departmental groups dealing with various major study interests, cultural groups which are affiliated with religions and lodges, groups stressing various sports and hobbies, and social organizations including the sororities and fraternities.

All incoming students are invited to participate in the clubs which offer their special interests, and newcomers are eligible for rushing to the sprorities and fraternities.

Turning now to recent events, it is reported that members of the Ski Rams spent the New Year's holiday at the Alpine Ski Lodge on Donner Summit. They are also planning another trip between semesters to the same place. Any interested skiers may apply for the Ski Rams during college hour in Room 212.

Dorn, a member of the band, orchestra and choir, was a promising student in Morton's class of music composition. He was called to active service with the First Marine Brigade shortly after the outbreak of the Korean War.

Finals Schedule Posted On Hill

Dean of University Parallel Courses Lloyd Luckmann late last week announced that final examinations will take place during the week of Monday, January 29, and will continue until Friday, February 2.

Because of space limitations The Guardsman was unable to publish the final schedule in today's paper.

However, Luckmann said that the main building next to the offices of instruction, Room 101.

Luckmann urged all students to check the bulletin for information pertaining to final examinations.

Information regarding registration dates for the Spring semester, 1951, is on Page nine of today's Guardsman. Further data on the registration dates is listed in the college bulletin of courses.

In 1939 ice skating was a part of college activities and several ice carnivals were held inviting students from bay area schools.

Encourages Good Will

WAA Open To All Interested Women For Sports Activities

By Sumi Kanaya

The Women's Athletic Association, with membership open to all women, enables any interested women students an opportunity to find some activity that will increase her sport ability, gives an opportunity to meet students from other colleges and local high schools, and also encourages good will and sportsmanship, according to Nancy Sparks, adviser.

Miss Sparks said that almost any sport in which the women show a particular interest is offered. A student may join a team sport such as hockey, softball, basketball, volleyball, and speedball or an individual sport of tennis, badminton, archery, riding, bowling, swimming, fencing, or the modern dance group.

Each year early in the fall all the two-year colleges in the Bay Area hold a meeting here and formulate plans for approximately six large sports days to be held during the year at the different colleges. The colleges of Napa, Santa Rosa, Marin, Contra Costa, San Mateo, Hartnell, Vallejo and Monterey attend these conferences.

San Mateo hosted the colleges in a November sports day featuring a coed badminton tournament.

In addition to these sports days more informally organized meets are held with San Mateo and Marin Colleges, especially in the coed badminton groups. Usually held on Saturdays, Sports Days last an entire day with participants bringing their own lunches.

Play Days Held

The organization also attempts to have each high school in San Francisco here for a play day during the year. Players frequently go to one of the high schools and engage in sport activities in the afternoons after classes, or the high school women are invited here.

The annual field day for women's sports, which was to climax competitive activities of the year back in 1935 evolved later into a Tourney Week. An entire week was devoted to women's sports with a banquet winding up the festivities.

Highlights of the annual banquet are the announcement of new officers and the presentation of awards. For one semester of participation the student receives a WAA shield; two semesters of activity will earn the athlete a block award. The next award is a star, Miss Frewer explained.

In previous semesters the requirements were attendance of three-fourths of the weekly sport meetings, a C average and satisfactory sportsmanship.

In 1939 men who joined the coed WAA riding, archery, badminton, and fencing groups were termed reluctant "converts." At present Miss Sparks states that there are more and more interest being found in the coed activities which now include bowling, riding and daneing.

WAA women also join the Spur and Saddle Club to participate in the annual intercollegiate horse show. Riders from the University of California, Stanford, Mills College, San Francisco State, San Jose State and San Mateo Junior College participate in this event.

Clinic Sponsored

A clinic is also sponsored by the WAA each semester to which all high school students are invited to participate. Successful swimming, badminton, riding and dancing clinics have been presented.

Experts from bay area colleges act as judges to point out the students' flaws and to give constructive criticism to the players. A swimming expert from Berkeley demonstrated several diving techniques during the swimming clinic held last month.

Other officers besides president Madge Brewer include Toni Navarro, vice president, and Pat Kay, secretary.

A third semester student, Miss Brewer is a secretarial major and has already earned her block awards. Though she is currently interested in badminton she has no special sport preferences and enjoys them all.

Card Sales Fair; Drive Continues For Two Weeks

Sale of Associated Student cards for the Spring semester has been "fairly good," Stan Ross, card sales chairman, announced recently. The card sales drive will continue for two more weeks, during which time cards will be available at the Silver Pole, Ramporium, the student lounge, and student bank.

In stressing the importance of the drive Ross said, "College activities require funds, and the sale of Associated Student cards is the largest factor in how much money will be available, and thus how many activities may be presented to the students."

Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president, further stressed the importance of student card sales by adding, "Student cards are the only way of insuring yourself a complete college education. There is much more to college life than just books and grades.

"The Associated Students have always been well supported in the past," Vetterlein continued, "and without that type of support in the Spring semester there may be some drastic changes made on the campus."

Among advantages presented to student card holders, Ross said, are admission to the college basketball and baseball games, various dances, rallies, and other social activities on the campus, discounts at various merchants, and discounts at certain Bay Area college sports activities.

Assisting Ross and Lee Janover, co-chairmen of the drive, are the members of the student council, Joe Azzolino, last year's card sales chairman, and the members of the college public relations committee, under the direction of George Mullany.

Rally Features Student Talent

The first rally of the Spring semester will be held in the auditorium during college hour this Friday, February 16, Dick Silveria, rally commissioner, announced recently.

Student talent will be spotlighted at the rally, and the college yell leaders will put in their first appearance of the new semester.

The rally committee is working on a program for future rallies which includes plans for acts from the variety show headline professional talent.

"We hope to make this semester's rallies better than any held in the past," Silveria said.

In order to insure top-flight student talent for future rallies the committee would appreciate suggestions from persons who know of any student talen which will be available for rally entertainment, Silveria added.

Silveria or members of the rally committee may be contacted in the Associated Student office in Building 2.

Extension Division Enrollment Nears 700

Enrollment in the college's evening extension division totaled 618 at the close of last week, according to figures released by the administration.

Registration for the tuition-free program, which has been inaugurated for the second time in the college's history this semester, closes in two weeks.

(Evening classes were previously scheduled from 1943 to 1945.)

Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, said he was "very gratified" at the response to the new program, and that the enrollment figures indicate that enrollment in evening sessions should reach 1000.

Over 40 courses are being offered in the extension division.

Campus Sites Set For Guardsman Distribution

The Ramporium, student fountain, and cafeteria will serve as the three west campus distribution points for The Guardsman this semester, Don Johnson, Guardsman editor, announced yesterday.

Further distribution will be made in the lobby of the main building.

Issues of The Guardsman will be available at these four points by 10 a. m. each Wednesday of publication.

Ramporium Offers Used Books At Reduced Prices

Students intending to buy used textbooks from the Ramporium, college student store, are advised to do so immediately, inasmuch as a complete variety of used texts in limited quantity are rapidly selling, Richard Main, Ramporium manager, warned today.

Students are also to be cautioned, Main continue, to keep their cash register receipts so that books may be returned for dropped courses. Return privileges are good only for a two-week period, and all books must be accompanied with a student store cash register receipt. Full purchase prices are given for such returned books.

No trade-ins are accepted at any time; however, highest cash prices are offered.

A complete stock of all syllibi is available In addition to numerous materials for drafting and engineering students.

Regulation physical edueation clothes for men are also featured here, and men can now buy either the white T shirts in sizes small, medium or large; or they can purchase the regulation Blue and Gold shirts installed last semester as part of the regulation suiting.

Gymnasium shoes and socks in various weights are included in the wearing apparel on sale.

Student shore hours are posted as 7:30 a. m. to 5 p. m., Main said.

Yell Leader Tryouts Scheduled Tomorrow

Tryouts for Associated Student assistant yell leaders will be held tomorrow in the auditorium beginning at 2 p. m., according to word received from head cheer leader Jim Stowers.

Stwers and members of the Rally Committee will judge the prospective candidates and vote for their choices. The head yell leader also urged all men and women students interested in being assistant yell leaders to attend the tryouts.

The yell leaders will make their first appearance at Friday's AS rally.

Student-Faculty Groups Plan For Opera Production

Workshop productions scheduled for April 20 and 21, came several steps nearer to reality yesterday as student and faculty committees [illegible] spring, for the [illegible] sions.

This, coupled with an announcement from Faculty Manager Edwin C. Browne, was disclosed by Flossita Badger, workshop director.

Browne said that financial contributions toward the operas—which include Gian-Carlo Menotti's Amelia Goes to the Ball and the premiere of an original contemporary opera, Christopher Smith, composed and written by Robert Morton, musical department instructor—were mounting rapidly.

Morton recently dedicated his opera to the memory of Conrad Dorn, former music composition student at the college who was killed recently in Korea.

The premiere performance of the opera, to be held April 20, will be presented in his honor, Morton said.

At the same time, Miss Badger announced the appointment of Bob Rezak, Guardsman managing editor and college publicity director, as student manager for the productions.

Other student groups, she said, will be formed later.

Meanwhile, the opera advisory board, headed by President Louis G. Conlan, and comprised of leading music-minded San Franciscans, pledged their full support in aiding the productions.

(Subscribers to the operas, as released by Browne and Miss Badger, will be found on page 4.)

Vets Must Enter GI Training Soon

The present spring semester will be the final semester when most veterans may enter or re-enter GI Bill training, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, stated recently.

Deadline for starting GI Bill courses of edueation, he said, and trainng for most veterans is July 25, 1951.

Most veterans must be in actual training by the deadline if they desire to continue afterwards.

According to Marsh, the Veterans Administration will consider a veteran to be in training, even though he has temporarily interrupted his course for the summer vacation or for other reasons beyond his control.

Once he completes or discontinues his program of training after the 1951 date, he may not start another course.

He may change his educational objective only while in actual training and then only for reasons approved by the VA.

Marsh will answer further inquiries regarding this matter in the Veterans Affairs Office located in Biulding 3.

Spring Social Calendar Will Give Students Large Variety

The Spring social calendar is crammed with events, Associated Student Vice-president Noel Anderson announced yesterday.

The first activity is slated for this Friday—a basketball game against Stockton on their home territory.

There are two basketball games on tap the following week, Santa Rosa here on February 20 and San Mateo there on February 23. Washington's Birthday and the following day, February 23, are holidays.

Freshman Week, starting Monday, March 5, will be culminated by the Freshman Dance at Aquatic Park on Friday, March 9. Easter Vacation is scheduled for March 21-23. Midterm will be given the following week, March 27-30.

The drama department takes over April 3-6 with a series of plays. The Inter-Fraternity Council plans a dance for Friday, April 6. On the next Saturday night, April 14, there will be an Associated Student dance at a downtown hotel.

The Opera Workshop will stage two operas—Christopher Smith by Robert Melton and Amelia Goes to the Ball by Gian-Carlo Menotti—on April 20-21 in the Riordan High School auditorium.

The high school tea, given by the Associated Women Students, is scheduled for April 26. The student government conference is also slated for that week, April 26-28. The following week, May 1-4, is set aside for midterms.

The Inter-Sorority Council plans a dance for Saturday, May 12. Friday, May 18, is the date for the faculty show. The Mardi Gras is set for May 25-26. Memorial Day, Wednesday, May 30, is a holiday.

The Sophomore Formal will be held on Saturday, June 9. The week of June 11-15 is set aside for finals, and commencement is June 15.

Regulations For Campus Listed

The campus police, law enforcement students who have been deputized as special police officers by the Chief of Police, are responsible for the enforcement of campus traffic regulations, and have full police authority on the campus, President Louis G. Conlan announced recently.

Campus traffic regulations are as follows:

1. No parking in white zones, although loading and unloading of passengers for not more than five minutes will be tolerated.

2. Parking for commercial vehicles will be allowed for 30 minutes in a yellow zone. Three minutes will be allowed for the loading and unloading of passenger vehicles in this area. Cars in this zone must be attended.

3. Parking for ten minutes will be allowed in the green zones.

4. Absolutely no parking will be tolerated in the narrow roads of the west campus. Signs have been posted to that effect.

5. No parking on the grass or unpaved areas of the main campus or on the ramps of the north or south entrances of the main building.

6. The speed limit for the campus and adjacent Phelan Avenue is 15 miles an hour.

7. All motorists must stop for pedestrians in a cross walk, pedestrians always have the right-of-way.

'College Obligated To Meet City, State, National Needs'

DR. LOUIS G. CONLAN, president of City College of San Francisco

"The college is obligated to meet community needs. Unquestionably, the needs in this community, state and nation are changing. Under such circumstances, we owe it to our country to keep abreast of inescapable obligations, responsibilities and opportunities which world events have brought about."

Thus, in a special statement to The Guardsman, President Louis G. Conlan last week outlined essentially the college's position during the present national emergency.

"City College," he said, "is a community college which exists in, and is supported by, a society. Its educational objectives must therefore include service to social needs.

"It is our obligation to keep alert to every development and to provide educational services for the community, and, if we keep alert, I expect we can find more needs than we can actually meet."

The tone inflicted in the president's voice served as a reminder to the serious portent and importance of the role of the college in the present situation.

(Last week, he similarly addressed the faculty as to the college's position in the forthcoming semester.)

He said the college will continue to offer the kind of programs which will render various community services. Such programs, he pointed out, are already in progress.

Hunters Point and Presidio training programs, now carried on by the college, are examples of the type of services President Conlan has considered.

The evening extension division and summer session opening June 18, further emphasize means by which the college is already meeting community needs.

President Conlan said it was his "fondest hope" that the college, "together with the highest possible degree of cooperation, will deviop the kind of educational program that will accomplish such ends."

Meanwhile, the president left late last week to attend a convention of the American Association of School Administrators at Atlantic City, New Jersey.

The trip, which he said would make it necessary for him to be away from the college for two weeks, will carry him through New York on a tour where he will study new developments pertaining to education.

He said he was interested primarily in a new program of television education after exploring such possibilities here.

Requests from the garment industry in San Francisco for the college to offer a training program in this field, will also be studied while in New York, he said.

President Conlan will also attend a session of the United Nations at Lake Success before returning to San Francisco.

Guardsman Editorial Policy Serves Interests Of College

WITH the beginning of each new semester The Guardsman has maintained a practice of issuing a statement of editorial policy to its readers. This is a good practice in that it gives the readers an insight into what to expect within the pages of The Guardsman, and serves to remind members of The Guardsman staff of their responsibilities to the reader.

The primary purpose of any newspaper is to present news. This rule serves as the basis of The Guardsman's policy. We shall at all times attempt to present full coverage of activities within the college in an objective and impartial manner, with emphasis and amount of space devoted to such news in direct ratio to its importance and/or news value. At no time will this news be slanted or opinionated by the writers.

Through signed columns various subjects, events, and activities will be discussed. These opinions are the writers', who are allowed a free hand in expression of their views. In all cases such columns are reflections of the columnist's thinking and not necessarily those of The Guardsman.

For the reader who finds fault with the views expressed within The Guardsman, or wishes to make known his views on any subject, a letters to the editor column, The Ram's Horn, is available. Here, again, complete impartiality will be exercised at all times.

THROUGH the use of feature stories, cartoons, and columns, The Guardsman will, at times, present humor and the lighter side of the news. These articles will always be selected carefully in an attempt to reach the interest of the majority of The Guardsman readers.

In retrospect, the following things are what the reader may expect to find in The Guardsman:

Complete, impartial news coverage which informs.

Columns, and letters to the editor which express opinion.

Features, columns, and cartoons which entertain.

This coverage, always presented in the light of good taste, should partially reach the interest of all readers of The Guardsman, and by adherence to this policy The Guardsman is able to serve the college, its readers, and members of The Guardsman staff.

"quickie" degrees by colleges add to confusion of students

INSTEAD of helping college students in this time of need, some of the leading universities in the nation are adding to their confusion by coming out with what might well be termed the "quickie."

An explanation of the process is very simple. It consists of cramming four years of college into three years. Some of the institutions even make it possible to get a full degree in two years.

This new move is not for the benefit of the student, by any means, but is actually a way to make more manpower available for the armed forces in a shorter time.

NO HALFWAY MEASURES

It would be much better for the student and for the country to interrupt the education of the nation's youth rather than inflict upon them the disadvantages of any halfway measures.

It might be possible to make a chicken lay more eggs by introducing artificial light, or to make a better wine by using artificial climatic conditions, but it will be a cold day in hell when you can turn out mature, intelligent thinking, and well educated people from a college by cramming four years of education down their throats in half that time.

* * *

The country doesn't need a good five-cent cigar half as much as this college needs a good two-bit humor magazine.

The only student magazine publication the college has at this time is the Forum. As a type the Forum is very good, but it caters too much to the so-called intellectual style of writing.

NO ROOM FOR CORN

A man with an idea for a good cartoon or a bit of pure college corn takes one look at the stories in the Forum and decides that he had better replace his bit of "yuk" material with a poem about a blind poet and a beautiful blonde.

A couple of good examples of college humor magazines are the University of California's Pelican and Stanford's Chaparel. They not only have the type of material the majority of students like to read, but they are able to pay their own way through wide circulation and advertising.

It wouldn't be necessary to copy either of these magazines down to the last line of type, but they would make valuable models.

Of course the first criticism of such a project would be that California and Stanford can make a go of such magazines like this because of their large student bodies and the greater attraction to possible advertisers. No one can deny that, but if the idea of serious creative writing was combined with plenty of pure college corn and a few stories of the in-between variety, the sales could be doubled.

With increased sales the difficulty of getting advertisers to take space would be decreased and at the same time the price per issue could be cut.

If a good college humor magazine could be developed at the college it would give it a lot of free publicity, and who knows—there might be an H. Allen Smith or a Max Shulman lurking about.

The Ram—10-foot Giant On West Campus

King Without Kingdom Was Six Years In Exile

By Doug Hayward

A giant, weighing one and a half tons and measuring 122½ inches in height, is on the campus. Four years ago as of last Monday, this benevolent monarch of City College took his rightful place on the west campus, and has since become known as The Ram.

King Ram made his first public debut at the 1939 World's Fair held on man-made Treasure Island. There, the 3000 pound redwood statue was exhibited by sculptor Dudley Carter in one of the California handicraft exhibits.

But after his two-year stay in the limelight, Mr. Ram became, so to speak, a white elephant. Because he is the product of a redwood stump and therefore impregnable to most disease and pestilence common to other woods including dry rot and termites, Ram could look forward to an appalling longevity.

He was a king without a kingdom, or a home, and was furthermore a storage problem.

So the architect who planned City College presented him, along with appropriate bows and scrapes and sighs of relief, to former college president, Dr. A. J. Cloud, who retired in 1949.

A Long, Damp Wait

However, the hulking 10 foot monster still had no place to go and finally entrusted to a dank, dark corner of the men's gymnasium. There he stayed for six long years, hibernating and resisting rot beautifully. It was a long, damp wait to see sunlight.

The sun also rises, though, and on March 12, 1946, his majesty stepped forth, perspiring in the heat and staring with sightless eyes in the morning light.

A symbol had arisen. He was placed on a concrete base, painted with the college's colors, red and white, and ceremoniously situated so as to stand sentinel at the west campus entrance gate.

Since that time, he has led an uneventful life, except for occasional splatterings of rival college colors. Most recent of these desecrations occurred last semester shortly before the Monterey Peninsula College-City College football match. The sacrilege was quickly removed however, and Ram was dressed up anew with the proper colors.

Source of Admiration

And to show just how much of a symbol Mr. Ram College has become, his photograph adorns the cover of many college publications, including the handbook, he has lent his good name to the college athletes and at one time or another at least two columns in this paper and is a constant source of admiration on the part of visitors.

His living counterpart is Sammy the Ram, mascot-by-proxy at many games and ceremonies.

Thusly, the inanimate hunk of wood that once had no home and very few friends is now claimed by some 4000-odd students and instructors as their own, and has a bright, pest-free future ahead in the years to come.

Valentine's Day

Wrens & Cooing Doves Started The Whole Thing

By Sumi Kanaya

Wingholding wrens and cooing doves started the whole thing—the handholding couples and the exchange of sweet and sentimental stuff which marks today, the 14th of February.

Originally, the people of the middle ages used to believe that the birds began to mate in the middle of February and later connected the day with human lovebirds.

Almost all sources on Valentine lore stress the fact that the connection between Saint Valentine's Day and lovers is purely accidental. Saint Valentine was a Christian martyr, put to death way back in the year 270 by the Romans, on February 14th, and is now regarded as the patron of sweethearts and lovers.

Another theory of how the day came to be observed stems from an ancient Roman idea of a "blind date for a year." At one of the Roman festivals in the early spring it was the custom of the young men and women to draw lots from a box filled with names of the opposite sex.

The couple exchanged gifts, and later on the lad gave a gift to the lass. Afterwards, this developed into the idea of sending sentimental messages to the favored ones and as the post offices were established in America and postal rates reduced, the mails began to bulge with sweet nothings.

All of the communications however were not so sweet, for in the early part of the century the Chicago post office rejected 25,000 comic valentines as matter not fit to be carried through the mail.

The people of the early centuries who associated the birds and "People" weren't too far from wrong. In the classroom, in the lounge, in the "K" car, one hears or sees the unmistakable sound of cooing.

Many fair ladies will win themselves some faint hearts today and several strange afflictions of the cardiacal region will be given miraculous cures through the use of sentimental valentines and such other weapons of the chubby cherub.

Magna Carta—Queen of England???; term report plucked out of air

WITH the start of a new semester, a new scene of college life begins with all its tribulations.

New students will soon have the feel of the campus, and the old students will soon be forgotten. Let's hope the departed remember the good times they had here along with the bad, and that the college has helped them get closer to where they are going.

Despite all the grumbling over instructors, grades, and the cross-campus hike, the campus is a pretty nice thing to have been a part of.

During last semester we had a chance to study a bit closer the little insignificant phases of daily routine and humorous events, and tried to bring them to light in this column.

Looking back at the instructors, brings the sight of Fred Foultz's natty bow ties, Ruth Somer's classical hats, Don Snepp's two weeks in the Army and George Mullany's quizzical smile, all parts of a scene.

* * *

Acts fitting into the scene included the students. Then the plot thickens and branches into something like this:

Irving Witt, sociology instructor: Have you turned in your term report yet?

Student: What!! I brought it to your office a couple of days ago.

Witt: Are you sure? Today's the last day of college and I have no record of receiving it.

Second Student: He took it to your office. I was with him. He took it to your office in Building 3 and left it on the desk.

The finale of this act lies in the inevitable. Of course the student lost —his buddy spilled the beans. Witt's office is in Building 4.

And now we relate that we hate to have to part with this column, but duty calls and we move to page three where new boundaries open before us and a new column is offered.

* * *

This is the time when instructors usually sit back and chuckle over some of the so-called prize answers given by students in final examinations. History Instructor Russell Posner adds this choice tidbit to the file:

A student, when asked to explain what the Magna Charta was, scribbled down: "The Magna Carta was the queen of England during the sixteen hundreds."

Okay, okay, we get the hint....

A Weekly Garden School series is currently meeting each Sunday on the campus, and attendance has been such that greenhouse classrooms are too small and the class has moved to the auditorium.

The Sunday, February 18, session, scheduled at 1:30 p.m., is to be presented by the San Francisco Rose Society.

Tonight the San Francisco Gardeners' Association, an organization of professional gardeners, meets at the greenhouse classrooms at 8 o'clock.

Ram's Horn . . .

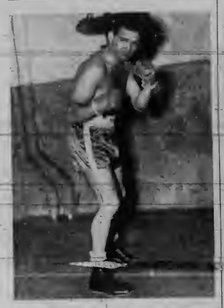
Pulse of the Campus

• here's your chance

Students, City College:

The Ram's Horn has been a feature of The Guardsman since the founding of the college in 1935. For fifteen years it has been a medium through which students of the college may express their opinions on various and sundry subjects.

The amount of space devoted to the Ram's Horn each week depends entirely on you, the students of the college, for The Guardsman will make an attempt to publish any and all letters which reach it.



The only rule which must be followed in submitting letters is that they must be signed. The name of the writer will be withheld if requested, but it must be known to the editor.

All letters will be handled with impartiality, and no change in the meaning will be made through deletions of any part of the letter. Lack of space may demand that the letter be shortened, but the meaning will remain clear in any case.

Letters may be left in The Guardsmen office or with the telephone operator in the main building.

Sincerely,
The Editor

Baseball, Track, Boxing Open Spring Sports

THE COLLEGE'S spring sports program gets rolling this week and next when the coaches of baseball, boxing, and track hold signups in the men's gymnasium to enable prospective candidates to affix their names to the roll. Here Roy Damas, varsity boxer of a few semesters back, symbolizes Coach Roy Diederichsen's varsity boxing squad. The local fistic men have consistently been leaders among two-year college boxing teams in California. In 1948 they placed second in the National meet in Pasadena.

STILL IN THE RACE for the Northern California Junior College Conference Big Seven basketball title, City College's cagers are shown, left, as they walloped Santa Rosa last spring in the Sacramento Regional tourney. The Rams whipped the Bear Cubs 55 to 40 and in the picture Kev Duggan snares a rebound while Al Munn, 11, and Pat Boyle, 20, watch. Boyle and Duggan are playing for State and USF respectively this season.

Above, shot-putter John Bologna prepares to toss the shot in the NCJCC track opener last season against Sacramento and Modesto. In baseball last season, Coach Bill Fischer's club emerged as Southern Division winners only to lose against Santa Rosa in the playoffs. Bob McGovern, right, was the locals' leading maundsmon and carried the hurling load for the Rams. He personally accounted for four victories among the locals' ten winning efforts.

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

TO open the new semester in the sports department we feel the best thing to do is to acquaint the new prospects for the sports parade with a rundown of the athletics presented by the college.

To participate in sports here at the college, the new student will find he has to prove his physical ability in trying out for a team and prove his mental ability by keeping up his grades.

This being the spring semester, we shall start off with basketball and offer a brief look into each of this semester's sports.

City College's basketball team is coached by Ralph Hillsman, who has received many laurels from sports writers for his championship calibre teams. His teams won the Modesto State Junior College championship in 1948-49, the Rams won the Modesto Tournament chafpionship, the Southern Division Conference Championship and the Conference Championship.

In the 1949-50 season the team won the Southern Conference Championship, the Conference Championship and the State national playoffs and represented this section of the country in the national playoffs.

The City College basketball team is a member of the Big Seven Conference which includes San Mateo, Modesto, Stockton, Sacramento, and Contra Costa West.

FISCHER FOR BASEBALL

The baseball team is coached by genial Bill Fischer, and under his wing the team brought home the Southern Division Championship last spring. The conference is split into two sections, the coast and the valley.

Track is coached by Grover Klemmer, and the Rams brought home the conference championship in 1946. The team competes in the major meets in this area, meeting freshmen at Stanford and California and also competes in state relay events.

RAM BOXERS SHARP

Both boxing and tennis fall to Coach Roy Diederickson, whose boxing team in 1949 won the conference title and came within three points of winning the nationals in 1950. The Ram boxers wo the Northern California Junior College Conference championship and placed fourth in the nationals.

This takes care of the major sports, and for information the coaches will be happy to oblige.

Minor sports make their appearance here on the campus including golf and swimming. Individual clubs handle some athletic events such as the Ski Rams and the college bowling club.

Adding together the major, minor, individual club sponsored sports, and intramural activities, everyone on the campus will find an athletic activity suited to his taste.

Ram Five Show Sharp Defense In 54-33 Win Over San Mateo

The Ram cagers, paced by Dick Greenberg's 18 points, had little trouble in walloping the San Mateo J. C. basketeers, 54-33, in the college gymnasium last Friday night, February 9.

Held at long range by a tight zone defense which appeared to bewilder them, the San Mateo five had difficulty finding the net. The Rams, meanwhile, employed a sharp-shooting long range game which took them into the half with a 27-17 bulge.

Greenburg was high point man of the evening, with seven of his 18 points being scored with southpaw hook shots.

The locals throughout the game showed the form that took them into last year's championship, and a marked improvement over their last two losing efforts was noticed. A continuance of this type of play should make the Rams' remaining games further wins.

San Mateo's Brown showed the best of an unimpressive squad, his eight points being tops for the losing netmen.

Pugilists Set For San Jose Matches

City College boxers have gone into earnest training for the first bouts of the season, to be held at the end of the month against San Jose State College, Roy Deidrickson, boxing coach, announced last week.

With the return of such veterans as Len Gage, 130, last year's winner of the Outstanding All-College Boxing Trophy, Jack Bettencourt, 145, runner-up in the 1950 nationals and winner of the Manager's Perpetual Trophy, manging seven winners and three second place boxers for a total of 44 points; Dick Fiore, 155, and Robert Shepardson, 175, City College's chances of winning are good, Deiderickson said.

Adding strength to the ranks are up and coming pugilists Roy Devincenzi, 130, Gil Casarez, 125, Dick Topham, 155, and Nap Guaidzis, heavyweight.

The first of two matches with San Jose will be held there, with a return match scheduled here for March.

Coach Deiderickson's team, if judged on past records, should make an impressive start. In the past years his teams have brought home several conference championships and have come within three points of winning the nationals.

Hillsman Hopes For Conference Honors Shattered

Coach Ralph Hillsman's hopes for bringing the Northern California Junior College Conference Championship to City College for the second consecutive year were shattered when his basketball team dropped two straight games.

The losses were dealt the Ram squad by Contra Costa West and Modesto.

Against Contra Costa the loss was a real heart-breaker. After leading at the half by an eight point margin, The Ram five went on to lose the game in the last few minutes to a fast charging Comet team.

Nat Bates, Contra Costa forward, broke the Rams' backs when, with important point to bring his team to a thrilling 65-64 win.

ing 65-64 win.

Dick Greenberg, City College forward, led the scoring with a total of 24 points.

Against Modesto, Greenberg again led Ram scoring, tallying 11 points to no avail, as the team bowed 58-51.

Modesto, who handed the Rams their first conference defeat several weeks ago, again proved their might in the last two minutes, when they exploded from a slow control game to smother the college cagers and move farther toward the conference title with a 5-1 record.

The red and white clad hoopsters' next foe will be Stockton College, whom they meet this Friday night there. Against Stockton January 19, Hillsman's team pulled out with a victory.

The cagers need the win and should find the going easy against a team having an unimpressive record and a team that was recently upset by a weak San Mateo five.

The Ram cagers' impressive victory over San Mateo last Friday night gives further evidence that Hillsman's hoopsters' efforts should prove winning ones in their coming encounter, and thus continue their winning ways.

The two straight losses leave City College with a 4-3 conference total.

It is estimated by the Bureau of Education that more than 7,000 high school boys are taking courses in Home Economics.

Hoop Tourney To Open Intra Play

Jam-packed schedules for the forthcoming intramural athletic season are anticipated by intramural director Tom Wilson. The tournament, which opens on the tentative date of February 28, is expected to be flooded with renewed fraternity competition.

Competition in the club, fraternity, organization, and individual games will last throughout the spring season, beginning with basketball late this month. First day of court play is not definite because of uncertainty of varsity schedules.

When the gymnasium is finally cleared of varsity men, however, intramural play begins, from 3:10 to 5 o'clock each afternoon, stretching out in length according to the number of teams in competition. In the past as many as 49 intramural hoop teams have gone on for as long as six weeks until final playoffs for the college trophy.

Hard on the heels of basketball come volleyball, touch football, soccer and softball. Most of these sports are dependent on the whather, though, Wilson says, and the order may be changed around to suit play.

Individual sports, not dependent on nature, are tennis, badminton and ping pong. These will be run off according to individual needs. All students are eligible to compete in any of these, except men who have earned their varsity block in a particular sport.

Trackmen Prepare For Coming Meet; Prep Star Enrolls

Trackmen began limbering up Monday, February 12, under the watchful eye of thinclad coach, Grover Klemmer, as the Spring semester ushered in the 1951 track season.

Prospects for the coming season, which begins in the latter part of March, cannot be judged until tryouts have progressed to a point where individuals will begin to show their ability, Klemmer said.

However, the return of some of last year's lettermen, and the signup of many ex-high school trackmen show some signs of promise.

The enrollment of Ron Bauer, Washington High graduate, and holder of the mile prep record should aid the team greatly. Klemmer said Bauer's time of 4:23.7 in a high school meet last year was tops for the nation.

Other tracksters who had signed up for the team by February 8 include Bob Keefe, Sol Mascatelli, Scott Amour, Carl Roeder, Harry Wade, Alfred Wycoff, John Stone, Cecil Bledsoe, Theodore Worrall, Bill McCandlish, Bruce Hood, Belvin Gage, Lambert Ray, Murry Ford, Roger Mulkeen, Ralph Kellogg, Frederic Marx, and Harry Sander.

WAA Offers Varied Sports Activity

With a membership open to all women, the Women's Athletic Association, according to Nancy Sparks, adviser, enables any interested women students the chance to find some activity that will increase her sports ability.

Miss Sparks said that almost any sport in which the women show a particular interest is offered.

A student may join a team sport such as hockey, softball, or an individual sport such as tennis, bowling, badminton, archery, riding, or the modern dance group.

All two-year colleges in the Bay Area meet here each year to formulate plans for approximately six large sports days to be held during the year at the different colleges.

A clinic is sponsored by the WAA each semester to which all high school students are invited to participate. Successful swimming, badminton, riding and dancing clinics have been presented, Miss Sparks said.

Experts from Bay Area colleges act as judges to point out the students' weak spots and to give constructive criticism to the players.

The annual field day for women's sports, which was to climax competitive activities of the year back in 1935, evolved later into a Tourney Week. An entire week was devoted to women's sports with a banquet winding up the festivities.

For one semester of participation the student receives a WAA shield; two semesters of activity will earn the athlete a block award, while the next award is a star.

Heading the WAA this semester is Gloria Naccarini.

Baseball Tryouts Begin; Rams Eye Championship

Tryouts for the City College baseball team started with a bang this week as Coach Bill Fischer's hopefuls competed for team berths.

Filling the air with swinging bats and flying balls, his bright prospects will try to bring the conference championship to the campus.

Fischer's squad, bolstered by several returning veterans, will be further strengthened by the spring enrollment of two players from the Oakland American Legion team which won the National American Legion Championship last year.

Last year's Ram nine brought home the Southern Division championship but lost the conference title to Santa Rosa College, Northern Division champions.

The Ram squad is a member of the Big Seven conference and will play conference games against Santa Rosa, Sacramento, Stockton, Contra Costa West, Modesto, and San Mateo.

Job Opportunities Increasing; Summer Work Signup Begins

With the rapid acceleration in the war build-up, there has been a corresponding increase in the number of job openings in business and industry, Joseph E. Amori, placement director, for the college, stated recently.

JOSEPH AMORI, college placement director, notes increase in job opportunities.

Amori pointed out that this is especially true in the clerical field where the shortage is becoming acute despite the fact that wages have gone up and requirements have been lowered.

Governmental agencies are in need of office workers and are paying premium salaries including time and one-half for any work over 40 hours. He added that the college placement bureau works closely with the governmental agencies and has placed about 100 clerk-typists.

Amori stressed the fact that the individual who has competency in a specific skill will not have any trouble finding employment. He urged that students develop occupational skills in office work since this field has so much need of skilled people.

Amori also disclosed that students may receive college units for working in the following four areas: clerical, retail sales, transportation and insurance. To receive the units the student must work a minimum of four hours. Student workers are under the supervision of a faculty member.

Amori said that with night classes now in session, many students are going to college at night and working full time during the day.

The choice is not to leave college completely but rather to adjust a work schedule to college classes.

Students who wish to work this summer should sign up now, Amori said. The placement office is located in Building 2 on the west campus.

Devlin Issues Plea For Film Operators

Student operators of the college's motion picture projectors are needed, Madison Devlin, audio visual aids director, announced this week. Previous experience is not necessary.

Students wishing to learn can be trained, Devlin said, but city ordinances require residence in San Francisco and American citizenship. First or second semester students are preferred.

Operators will be paid 75 cents an hour, and the work can be done during the student's free hours. All interested persons should see Devlin in Room 155 of the main building.

Devlin also announced that though the college film series will not begin until after the first midterm in March, some excellent films will be shown.

Soph King and Queen Get Crowns at Ball

Janet Cirimele and Dick MacFarland were hosted as the royal couple during the Coronation Waltz of the semi-annual Sophomore Ball held as a climax to Soph Week, Saturday, January 19. Festivities took place at the Scottish Rite Temple.

Miss Cirimele and MacFarland were presented with individual loving cups and the Beta Tau and Theta Tau perpetual trophies, upon which their names were recorded.

Floriculture Will Use 2000 Plants In Show Entries

Approximately 2000 plants, whose final value will be about $500, are now being prepared by floriculture students of the college for their entries in the California Spring Garden show, Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor, revealed yesterday.

The show is scheduled for April and will be held in the Oakland Exposition building.

Nelson said that in the four years the college has been in floriculture competitions, two first and two second prizes have been won with a first prize recently being awarded to the greenhouse management class for a plant exhibited at the California State Fair.

Nelson declared that women are very active in the floriculture department and now have trees and plants under cultivation which will eventually be placed around the campus.

Among them are Esther Scott who has a rare collection of cone-bearing trees which will be planted on the college grounds when suitable water systems are installed, Geraldine Johnson who has grown fuchsia plants to be placed on the east side of both the women's and men's gymnasiums and Beth Johnson who has started some cacti plants which will soon surround the east side of the greenhouse.

Board Approves New Summer Session Plans

Plans to offer a summer session at the college were approved at a recent meeting of the Board of Education, President Louis G. Conlan announced yesterday.

The session, which will run for an eight week period from June 18 to August 10, will provide an accelerated program that will enable many students to get as far along the educational ladder as possible before being called into the armed services, President Conlan added.

President Conlan and his administrative staff drew up plans for the session earlier in January and submitted them to Dr. Herbert C. Clish for submission to the Board.

The plans were formulated because of increased student demand for a summer session, as well as advice from the Department of Defense.

CAB Group Gets College Credits

The Club Activities Board now meets as a section of Political Science G5A on Tuesday and Thursday at 1 o'clock, Louis G. Batmale, dean of student activities, announced yesterday.

Clubs wishing representation in the CAB should appoint one of their members to enroll in the class; the course offers one unit of college credit, Batmale added.

The CAB promotes the club activities program and affords a common meeting ground for the exchange of ideas. It also helps new clubs get on their feet.

In addition to exchanging information that will be beneficial to all its members, the CAB reviews all organization constitutions annually and if it approves them, recommends that the Student Council grant charters of official recognition.

It also determines active or inactive status of existing organizations.

Bart Dempster Named Welfare Chairman

The Student Council chose Bart Dempster as chairman of the welfare committee, Dean Louis G. Batmale announced last week. Dempster was selected in recognition of his outstanding work as head of the Freedom Seroll drive at the college last October.

With the mounting importance of the war effort, the group realized the need for a chairman to co-ordinate Red Cross and Blood Bank drives at the college, Batmale explained.

Budding Horticulturalists Offered New Special Dish Gardening Course Here

Budding horticulturalists are confronted with a new special course opportunity being offered in a four-session lump by instructor J. R. Herman at the college's Horticulture center this semester.

In the pre-signup information released by Herman last week, it was announced that the course, called dish gardening, required the following laboratory equipment: ". . . a small bowl or dish and slips of an ice plant, or hens and chickens (for) . . . the first session of class."

The last two items stimulated many confusing interpretations and a flat statement from administration sources that the horticulture department definitely does not have a poultry subdivision.

Consulting gardening experts finally revealed that hens and chickens are a form of succulent plant, low-growing and having thick, watery green leaves.

The class, which is to be a laboratory course and not a series of lectures, meets today for the first cruelal session, then next Wednesday, February 21, the following Wednesday, February 28, and finally, after a week's recuperation period, on Wednesday, March 14. All four of the laboratory sessions are from 10 to 12 a.m.

AlphaGammaSigma Elect Officers, Seek Members

Alpha Gamma Sigma, the college honor society, recently elected officers for the Spring semester. Don Jensen, AGS sponsor, announced recently.

They include Joe Azzolino, president; Gloria Naccarini, vice-president; Liz Bertram, secretary-treasurer; and Len Rodney, CAB representative.

Returning students having a "B" grade average and at least 30 grade points are eligible for membership in AGS this semester, Jensen added.

New students who graduated from high school with CSF honors are eligible for associate membership in the society during their first semester here.

Students who believe they meet the requirements, and wish to join the society should consult Jensen in Building 3 for further information.

Among activities offered by the society is a coaching service to students in need of academic help.

Round 'n About

Club Activities Meet Student Needs

SINCE the new college semester is only officially one day old, Round 'n About would like to take this time to welcome all prospective club members and cast a casual hello to the old timers of the various campus groups. Round 'n About would also like to proclaim a hearty invitation to these new college citizens to participate in the college clubs and their activities.

Although each individual student's interest is varied, there is a club to fit his particular needs. He may find a keynote to his campus relaxing moments in special interest groups such as the Amateur Radio Club, Band Association, Drama Society, Engineering Society, Forum Club, Horticulture Society, Hotel and Restaurant, Le Cercle Francais, Men's Club, Merchandising Club.

Mu Iota Psi (music), Music Guild, Phi Epsilon Rho (women's athletics), Pi Mu Gamma (science), Phi Rho Pi (debate), Pick and Hammer, Ram Cam, Spur and Saddle, Strikes and Spares, Ski Rams, Symphony Forum, and Women's Athletic Association.

Others include the Chinese Club, Cosmopolitan Club, Filipino Students Club, Collegiate Christian Fellowship, Hillel Society, Masonic Club and the Newman Club.

Honor societies on campus include Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic; Block SF, athletic; Lambda Alpha, music; Omicron Phi Pi, economics; and Phi Rho Pi, debate.

Fraternal organizations are listed as Alpha Lambda Sigma, Alpha Sigma Delta, Alpha Phi Omega, Beta Tau, Tri Epsilon, Gamma Phi Epsilon, Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Phi Delta Koppa and Tau Chi Sigma. Sororities include Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Psi, Delta Sigma Tau, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Theta Tau, and Zeta Chi.

This column is an outlet for news about clubs and their activities, and items should be left in the basket "club notices" in The Guardsman office.

Home Study Course In Music Now Available Via Air-waves

Musical education through radio was added to the college curriculum this semester as the first in a series of broadcasts entitled Making Music was released as a home study course by the college last week over the school department's FM broadcasting facilities.

Meyer M. Cahn, band and orchestra instructor at the college, is the instructor of the program, aired over radio station KALW-FM each Monday night at 7 o'clock.

First of its kind on the west coast, the show has borrowed the east coast theme of radio education.

Enrollment deadline for the one-unit, 16 program course is next Tuesday, February 20. All enrollments by mail should be postmarked on or before that date in order to be acceptable, Cahn said.

So far, two sessions have been broadcast, the most recent last Monday, February 12.

Composed of a four-man staff, the show is tape recorded at the college in order to assure as letter-perfect a program as possible.

Cahn, Making Music instructor, has also been musical director on KPIX-TV's Talent Showcase, Sunday evenings, 8 to 8:30. Henry Leff, college radio instructor, directs the FM educational show. Outside the classroom Leff is Lieutenant Mallard of the Candy Matson show, 8 p.m. Sundays, on KNBC.

Two City College students also take part in the show. One, Larry Johsens, announces, while the other, Marvin Anmuth, is in charge of controls.

AS Card Holders Park On Campus

Parking will be available on the west campus for Associated Students holding cards numbered from 1 to 2,000, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced this week.

Under the plan, students who show their Associated Student card at the Ocean Avenue entrance to the college, and are driving either their own or their family's car, will, when identified, be entitled to parking space on the west campus.

The offer is limited to student members who drive automobiles, and is not transferable to non-student card holders, Browne said.

In the past west campus parking permits were made available to student card holders through drawings held on campus.

Two Scholarships Now Available to Women

Two scholarships, each consisting of $25 and an Associated Student card, have been made available to women students of the college.

The scholarships, one given by Theta Tau Alumnae, the other by a woman student of the college, will be given to two women students who have completed at least 30 units of work with at least a "C" grade average.

Students interested in applying for these scholarships should make application in writing to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, before March 1.

'Get-Acquainted' Dance Welcomes New AS Students

A welcome mat placed at the steps of the west campus auditorium was used to signify an extended greeting to all City College students at a get-acquainted dance held Friday night, February 9.

The dance was under the sponsorship of the Student Council members, according to statements issued by Skip Ross, general chairman of the evening and Associated Student card salesman.

Decorations were unique inasmuch as benefits of owning an Associated Student card were shown including pictures of merchants who offer discounts to card holders, issues of The Guardsman, displays of athletic activities and illustrations of car ticket profits mounted on the walls of the auditorium, Ross said.

Providing the musical footnotes for this first Associated Student event of the season was Jerry Barnes and his orchestra. Cokes were sold and informal sports attire was the dress for the evening. Admission was free to student and registration card holders.

Assisting Ross were cabinet officers and student council members and Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president. This same group is currently entertaining ideas for the big Associated Student dance tentatively planned to be a spring festival type affair, according to Vetterlein.

Cafeteria Lists Operating Hours

With the exception of no-dinner hour on Friday, the college cafeteria will follow the same schedule as last semester, Hilda Watson, director of Hotel and Restaurant division, announced yesterday.

Breakfast will be served every college day from 7:45 to 10 a.m., luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and dinner, with the omission of Friday, from 5 to 6:15 p.m.

Plans for making the customers feel more "at home" and establishing greater personal contact between customer and worker are now being made. For family customers there are high chairs available as well as a special children's plate. The dinner service is open to anyone connected with the college: veterans living on campus, residents of Hurley Village, faculty members, or students with late classes.

Mrs. Watson also advised that, because of popular request, the snack bar recently established in the basement of the main building will be continued.

Guardsman Faces Reduction As Activity Budgets Get Ax

WITH this issue The Guardsman presents its final five column paper of the semester. Due to a budget cut a reduction in size to four columns has become necessary. To our readers this means a cut of approximately fifty per cent in coverage per issue. This step is being taken in order to insure as many issues of The Guardsman as possible during the semester, for it is our opinion that regularity of publication, even in a reduced size, is more valuable in its service to the college than a regular five column paper printed at irregular intervals.

This latest reduction follows a trend that saw a twice-weekly publication in the spring of 1950 drop to a once-weekly publication in the fall of 1950. Now, for the third straight semester, a drastic cut must be made. Should the trend continue it is conceivable that the college may, in future semesters, see cuts made to such an extent that it might lose entirely in representation through a campus publication. As drastic or far-fetched as such a step may appear on the surface, it is not entirely impossible. And this applies not only to The Guardsman, but to each and every other campus activity as well.

THERE are a number of reasons for the present situation, but by far the most important is the apathy of students attending the college. Too large a percentage of students are content to sit back and criticize the activities program here, when it is through their refusal to participate actively in the college that more and better activities cannot be presented. As in the past, those who criticize the loudest are those who do the least.

It is time for every student attending the college to take stock of the situation and ask himself what he is doing to help. It is time for the perennial "freeloaders" to give to the college as much as they expect the college to give to them. It is time for every student to realize that membership in the Associated Students is the first step in insuring himself of a complete and well rounded activities program. And it is well past time for the students to snap out of their lethargic state, and become cognizant of the fact that the future of City College activities lies in their hands.

Administrators Discuss Video For Education

Possibility of a radio-television station, devoted exclusively to education, being established in this area was discussed at the convention of the American Association of School Administrators, according to President Louis G. Conlan, who returned last week after attending the convention and touring New [illegible] where new developments pertaining to education were studied.

The convention, held at Atlantic City, New Jersey, was attended by 14,000 delegates representing colleges throughout the United States. Among speakers who addressed the convention were Charles E. Wilson, president of General Motors; General Carlos P. Romulo, secretary of Foreign affairs and permanent delegate to the United Nations; George C. Marshall, Secretary of Defense; Allan Shivers, Governor of Texas; and Harold Stassen.

Romulo's address, a plea for the continuance of the United Nations, established him as the outstanding speaker at the convention, President Conlan said.

Another feature of the convention was exhibits of school supplies by more than 300 firms. Assembled showings of school equipment, classroom tools, and teaching aids were presented, and experts in the field of each were available for consultation.

One discussion dealt with television and its use as an educational medium. It was pointed out that some 2,000 television channels will soon be distributed, and the possibility of obtaining some of these for the exclusive purpose of education was discussed.

Hearings are now being conducted with the Federal Communications Commission for this purpose. The outcome of these meetings gives rise to a possibility that in the future a television station dedicated to educational purposes may be established in this area, President Conlan said.

Deadline Friday For Graduation Petitions

Deadline for filing petitions for graduation is Friday, March 9, Mury Jane Learnard, registrar, warned today.

Students wishing to apply for their Associate in Arts degree should file petitions with the registrar in Building 3, Miss Learnard said.

Friday is also the last day to remove incompletes from the previous semester.

Miss Learnard explained that students who neglect to correct incompletes now will receive a "p" or "F" grade for the course.

Wednesday, April 11, is the last day for filing petitions for dropping courses, Miss Learnard added.

Brubeck Trio To Appear In Friday College Hour

Following through on the policy of making student rallies more entertaining, Dick Silveria, rally commissioner, announced Friday that the Dave Brubeck Trio will make their first appearance at the college during the rally scheduled for next Friday, March 9.

The trio has gained nationwide fame for the manner in which they play progressive jazz and their hit recording of Body and Soul is numbered among the best selling records.

Silveria went on to say that it was less than three years ago on the Jimmy Lyons radio show that the group first gained prominence. They have since made a steady rise in popularity, having only recently returned from a successful tour of the country. They can now be seen at the Club Blackhawk.

Appearing with them will be Raynetta Clay, local singer who is gaining wide popularity in the Bay Area. Miss Clay is a graduate of Oakland Technical High School.

This rally and all those scheduled for the future will require an Associated Student card for admission, Silveria stressed. He added that at least four more are planned and that the talent presented will continue to be top flight.

Silveria said that the first rally of the semester was very successful and that Johnnie Pantalon, who served as master of ceremonies, was instrumental in securing the talent presented. He will continue to emcee the rallies.

Silveria again stressed that the rally committe is interested in all student talent, and any who feel they would like to appear should apply to either him or any member of the committee in the student office located in Building 2.

Card Sales Short Despite Discounts; Activities Cut

Approximately 900 Associated Student cards had been sold as of noon, March 3, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, announced yesterday.

That the Associated Student card sales must increase in order to permit full student activities, was stressed last week by Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president, and Noel Anderson, vice-president and activities chairman. Accented was the importance of all students joining to make a success of their college activities, Vetterlein added.

It was pointed out at this time that Associated Student cards may still be purchased at the Ramporium and in the bank in the main building.

Almost 50 stores on Ocean Avenue are willing to give AS card holders discounts on various purchases. This is a far greater advantage than many of the Bay Area's leading universities offer, Dean Batmale said.

Some parking permits are still available and many plans for coming events have already been submitted to the student council for judgment. Many of the events are beginning this week, and below is a calendar showing activities dates through March 14:

- Intramural basketball: March 7; last day for filing intramural basketball applications.
- Club meeting: March 9, first club meeting day of the new semester, in college hour.
- Freshman Week: March 5 to 9; week to initiate all incoming students to City College.
- Freshman dance: March 9: Freshman dance at the St. Francis Colonial Room. Music by KGO's TV dance land of tomorrow. Admission free to AS card holders.
- Guardsman: March 14, next issue of Guardsman free to Associated Students.

Fraternity Aids Injured Student

Phi Beta Delta fraternity brothers of Kenneth Gruss, Guardsman reporter, injured last week in an automobile accident, have donated 16 pints of blood on his behalf, according to Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student President.

Gruss suffered a ruptured spleen and severe back injuries in an accident that took place on the outskirts of Sacramento. He was returned from the Sacramento County Hospital Saturday, and information as to his present whereabouts may be obtained from Vetterlein.

In addition to the donation of blood, the fraternity is seeing that he has regular visits from the members. Students wishing to donate blood for this cause should consult Vetterlein in the student government office.

Cafeteria Offers Discount Coupons To AS Members

A saving of 10 per cent will be offered all members of Associated Students by the Hotel and Restaurant Division, Hilda Watson, head of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, announced yesterday.

Coupon books containing $9.00 worth of coupons will be sold with a discount of 10 per cent for the price of $8.10 to members of the Associated Students.

Sale of the books will be carried out at the Ramporium, the student store on the west campus, the cafeterin, and the bank in the main building. However in order to buy the coupon books for the discount, proper identification must be established through the AS office, Mrs. Watson stressed.

The Hotel and Restaurant students themselves introduced their plans for the sale of these books.

Meanwhile, for the purposes of furthering certain phases of the educational program of the Hotel and Restaurant department at the college, which is not covered by local public school budget appropriations, 50 hotel men of the Pacific Coast have handed their checks in the amount of $100.00 each, to the treasurer of the department Foundation Fund.

Specific uses toward which this money will be used will be determined by the Board of Trustees of the fund. President of the Board is P. Tremain Loud, operator of the Hotel Californian. San Francisco Treasurer is Carl Ruttledge, alumnus of the department and now operator of commissaries for the U. S. Navy at Hunter's Point Dry Docks and Shipyard. Other trustees of the fund are hotel men, college administrators and alumni.

The Snack Bar, now operating in the basement of the main building under the supervision of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, continues to be successful, Mrs. Watson said.

Atwater Kent Aids Opera Workshop

An Atwater Kent Foundation grant of $500.00 was forwarded to the college's Opera Workshop Monday, to support production costs not included in Public School Funds.

The grant was presented to Mrs. Thomas Carr Howe, Jr., member of the workshop's advisory board by Charles Henderson, representative for the Atwater Kent Foundation.

This marks the first time that such a grant of this type has been presented in this part of the state. The major portion of previous grants have gone to individual singers through annual auditions, and have been used to further the enjoyment of music throughout the state.

Four students of the college have appeared as finalists in these contests. They include Irene Sherman, Eileen Scott, Joan Welton, and Jean Bonacorsi.

Honor Society Sees Increase In Members

Alpha Gamma Sigma's membership is expected to reach its highest percentage in recent years this semester, Don Jensen, sponsor, said yesterday.

Since few of last semester's members failed to return, Jensen feels confident that the honor society's enrollment will exceed previous membership.

All interested students with the necessary qualifications are welcomed to consult Jensen in Building 3.

The requirement for membership is a "B" average with no less than 30 grade points and 12 units of work, Jensen said.

Students Vote Tomorrow For Friday Frosh Dance Queen

Elections for the freshman queen who will reign over the freshman dance this Friday, March 9, will be held tomorrow in Building 2 from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., John LoCoco, freshman president, announced Monday.

With the theme Colonial Nocturne, the dance to be held at the St. Francis' Colonial Room will climax Freshman Week, which began Monday.

The KGO-TV Band of Tomorrow with vocalist Gloria Craig, former student here, will furnish music for dancing from 9 to 12 p.m. Dress will be informal and admission is one Associated Student card per couple. Tickets for a dollar and a half will be sold at the door for non-card holders.

A poster and picture of candidates Barbara Hasett, Joan Morton, Diane Clark, Karen Walset, Ann Chevelier, and Norma Peterson, are posted in Building 2. All Associated Students, both men and women, will vote, LoCoco said.

The queen, who will be announced at the dance, will receive a crown of blossoms from LoCoco and a trophy donated by Malkenbuhr Brothers' jewelry store.

Two large thermometers were placed on the west campus yesterday to show the progress during the day in a two-day contest between freshmen and sophomores of card sales. Monday was set aside as "Hello Day" for all old students to become acquainted with new students.

LoCoco asked all freshmen to wear dinks, available at the Ramporium, this week for it will add, he said, "a great deal of spirit to the entire student body." This week is expected to be one of the highlights of future semesters.

Students assisting LoCoco in making this a memorable week are Violet Liatrice, Pat Couto, Nancy Quinlan, Gloria Rotando, Bobbie Normandy, Lorrie Mirri, Vicky Carfagni, Connie Webb, Carolyn Cirimele, and Joe Azzolino.

Student Council Cooperation Should Help Solve Problems

MEMBERS of the student council will find a good testing ground for their roles as student administrators during the remainder of the semester if the problems which have already arisen are any indication of what is yet to come. With the budget of every activity on the campus facing cuts, the presentation of a good activities program becomes increasingly important and increasingly difficult. The problem of creating student interest in the college will also take on an ever-increasing importance, and the task of building that interest will fall mainly on the shoulders of the council. It will prove a difficult task, but it must be solved if the apathy which has become greater with each semester is to be stamped out.

During last week council members, together with all persons interested in student government, put forth an intensified drive to sell Associated Student cards. Results of the drive are important, of course, but not so important, in our mind, as the amount of cooperation shown by the people working on the project. Petty politics, which have typified student government for many semesters, were forgotten, and a spirit of working together on a project designed for one purpose—helping the college—prevailed.

This cooperative spirit is a good sign, and one which should have put in an appearance many semesters ago. If followed for the remainder of the semester it will aid the council greatly in the problems which are bound to arise. If the council can instill some of that spirit into the other students of the college, their problems may be well on the way to solutions.

THE forthcoming opera productions received a setback last week when a briefcase belonging to Bob Rezak, student opera manager, was stolen from The Guardsman office. The briefcase contained many important papers pertaining to the opera; papers that represented many hours of work which must now be redone. The value of the briefcase and the few dollars worth of stamps contained therein are of less value than the papers inasmuch as the opera is concerned, although to the person who took the case the papers are worthless. Should the person possess any conscience at all, he may mail the papers to Bob Rezak, c/o The Guardsman, and help make amends for the trouble he has caused.

Yesterday's Headlines Today

OLD Uncle Sam was casting nervous glances out at the world from beneath a shell of isolationism in 1936. It was not a very pleasant view: the League of Nations had been abandoned and the threat of Hitler was a dark smudge on Europe's horizon.

The college, born in the midst of chaos, depression and international unrest, was one year old.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

And in the Galileo high school cafe, virile young City College men met that year for the beginning of a "Whiskerino Week."

Car tickets were a problem. The Market Street Railway Company was going to "do something to stop that chiseling!" (Seems the cards were being passed around or something.)

Free vacations were offered to all young men interested in a "one month outing, all expenses paid," with the Citizens' Military Camp at Monterey, California.

Scorching attacks were being launched against a newly formed national organization of students called "The American Students Union," branded at the time as subversive and so forth. The group replied to the criticisms with an announcement of its intentions: "To refuse to support any war conducted by the U. S. government, even a DEFENSIVE war."

Shades of Henry David Thoreau, who once wrote an essay on Civil disobedience! Universal Military Training was a gleam in some congressman's eye at the time.

Everywhere, it was a question of money, money, money—and college activities were operating on a budget of $9110, possibly a little more than the Associated Student budget of this semester—only it was 1936 and 1936 prices.

TEN YEARS AGO

In the nation's capital, nine short months before the attack on Pearl Harbor in December, the main issue was again, money. How much was the U. S. going to give Great Britain, and how would that affect our neutral status? Opponents of the lend-lease aid bill still flatly refused to OK it even after its backers had agreed not to send American troops outside the Western hemisphere.

On campus, parking was the main issue. "Auditorium Lake," situated on the west campus beside the present auditorium, was a common eyesore. The "parking lot" to the south of the Science building was a morass of mud, in which at least one student driver could be seen struggling to extricate his car every day.

These old familiar things sound a little like today:

Defense, war, money, the Atlantic Pact, now being wrangled over in Congress. Should we send a couple billion more, and what about troops? Finally, parking, the budget, card sales (which aren't what they should be), and lack of interest.

Do things go in cycles or are they happening all the time while Mr. Small just doesn't keep his bi-focals on?

Stickler

Car Drivers Find 'Little Red Tabs' Pretty Important

By Ted Gould

Though insignificant when being examined, the tiny red stickers, so zealously sought after by those who wish to park in the west campus area, exert a tremendous influence on the students of City College.

For many, the possession of a parking sticker can spell the difference between being tardy and being on time to classes. For numerous others it means that their autos can be parked in an easily accessible area, where they can store books and visit with friends between classes.

However, not just any student can procure one of the treasured permits. To qualify one must be the owner of an Associated Student card numbered between 1 and 2000.

Once in possession of an AS card, the applying student must then present it, together with his auto's registration slip, to Constance Martin, secretary to the dean's office, who distributes the prized stickers to those who have proved their eligibility.

As of last week 380 permits had been issued. However, this does not account for all vehicles parking in the area; faculty members will continue using last semester's permits.

As usual the majority of students appear to be sincere in their wish to comply with regulations regarding parking, according to gatekeeper Richard Medland. "In most cases students are eager to cooperate with those in direction of the operation," says Medlin, "but there are always a few who disregard the rights of others for their own convenience."

Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, is the individual responsible for distribution of permits. Nearly every morning the dean can be seen assisting gatekeeper Medlin in the tedious job of regulating the steady flow of autos into the west campus area. And it is he who is the recipient of the many complaints and vexed glances from dissatisfied motorists as they fleetly enter the gate.

EDWIN C. BROWNE, dean of men, has charge of distribution of west campus parking permits, available to all persons holding Associated Student cards numbered from 1 to 2000. Browne spends many morning hours in helping gatekeeper Richard Medlin regulate the steady flow of autos into the west campus area.

A REPLICA of San Francisco's first public school house has found a new home at the college. Though the first instructor in the original schoolhouse deserted the classroom to search for gold during the rush to Sutter's Mill, such a fate seems unlikely for its counterpart here. The building lacks such schoolhouse necessities as instructors, students, and a bell but its present occupants—greenery and fertilizer of the gardening staff—seem quite content with the facilities and have shown no desire to deport for greener pastures.—Photo by Jones.

Minus Instructors, Students, Bell, First SF School Moves To Campus

By Bob Reilly

Currently residing in unobtrusive coldness behind Building 9 on the west campus is a replica of San Francisco's first public school house. The building has been on campus for a good three weeks and is now serving a new purpose—as a lowly storehouse for sundry plants and soil fertilizer.

The replica has been moved to its new temporary home here at the college because of a shortage entailed in the building of its new home at the Sunset Community Center.

At this juncture the old school house must feel somewhat mystified at its modern-day counterpart in the form of the college. The immense size of Hill 29 in comparison with this somewhat dwarfed antecedent residing on the campus proper is a stark indication of the progress which has been made in the short century since this replica was king.

A shadow of the past, it represents the days long gone by in San Francisco and about it in twentieth century splendor (as compared to this rude structure of the gold rush days) is the typical modern form as exemplified by City College.

The first instructor at this cornerstone of San Francisco education, a gentleman by the name of Douglass, earned the somewhat dubious distinction of being the first of his kind to be lured to greener pastures.

The greener pastures were those personified in Sutter's Mill, and the lure was the hue and cry of gold fever which manifested itself over the somewhat motley group of residents in early San Francisco.

His class was left in the lurch as Douglass set out for Sacramento and the gold fields. However this was not to be typical of the later teachers who landed on this coast with the pure intent of panning out the rough smudges of culture from the tow-headed set of miners' sons.

This building was spotlighted recently by the state in its 100 year centennial celebration, and now its future has been determined. But for the moment it is a ghost of the past sitting complacently behind Building 9 and storing fertilizer. Quite a come down.

Like the grandfather living among his progressive grandchildren, the facsimile of the past must feel quite proud of its descendant which is spread out before it on Ocean and Phelan Avenues.

Turkey, Armenia

Foreign Students Cross Ocean For Hotel Instruction

By Al Guthertz

With a slight twang of excitement and intrigue which is often connected with the small and mysterious cities of the world, an aura of interest has arisen at the college over the recent arrival of Mahmut Alpgiray, native of Istanbul, Turkey, and Dro Amirian, a native of Armenia.

Mahmut Alpgiray is taking several courses in the hotel and restaurant division with plans of returning to Turkey to work in a hotel Conrad Hilton, American hotel magnate, is about to build there.

The hotel will be patterned after American hotels, and thus Alpgiray decided to study in this country. He supports himself with money he earned while a captain in the Turkish army.

Dro Amirian has also come to the college, from Armenia. Much like Alpgiray, Amirian, too, is taking courses in the hotel and restaurant division.

George Mardikian, owner of Omar Khayyam's, had been friendly with Amirian's parents, and helped Amirian secure work at his restaurant. The youth would like to continue working there after graduation.

Both students, Mahmut Alpgiray and Dro Amirian, are enrolled in the division full-time.

'Wit Lightens, Makes Magazine More Readable'

Forum Seeks Student Literature

By Sumi Kanaya

The staff of Forum, the college's literary magazine, which will appear some time in May or June, is particularly anxious to have students submit more humorous material, Dorothy Mercer, adviser, said in a special Forum interview.

Wit not only lightens the magazine but makes it more readable.

The varied contributions include translations, poetry, short stories, short dramas, essays, art work, and humor. Drawn from the general student body in an effort to collect the most representative of student writing throughout the academic year, the purpose of the periodical is to provide students an outlet for creative writing and art work.

Back in 1936, when the college was scattered all over San Francisco, the small original group of Forum Club members had a difficult job obtaining contributions from students attending classes all over the city and an equally difficult job of selling the magazines to farflung students.

Ever since then the magazine has been underwritten financially by the Associated Students. With approximately a thousand issues sold each year, the Forum is an activity of wide appeal.

Though the responsibility of the Forum Club, the magazine is a college project, the advertising department and various members of the English department have contributed assistance. The art department has been most cooperative, and The Guardsman staff usually contributes several writers.

The first and second Forums of 1937 and '38 were mimeographed. During the three ensuing years, it was printed and illustrated in black and white. It returned to its mimeographed state during the war years, and in 1947 was printed again as it has been ever since.

The editorial committee is composed of members of the club who select the material to be published. Names of writers and artists are removed from contributions and a number substituted by which the various works are judged for publication.

The number of contributions used depends on the length and type of articles submitted. Out of 200 to 500 contributions submitted, approximately 30 to 50 are printed.

Budding artists and blooming writers who have not yet seen their works published are urged by advisers Miss Mercer and John Gerstung to again contribute. Many times there is an overabundance of the same type of material, making it impossible to use them all or, as the saying goes, "It never rains, but it snows."

COACH ROY DIEDERICHSEN will be seeking his third boxing championship in a row as the season opens against traditionally tough San Jose Frosh in April. To help the team defend the title are two veterans from last year's conference champions, left, Bob Shepardson, 175 pounder, and right, Jack Bettencourt, 145, who was runnerup in the 1950 National Junior College Boxing Tournament.

Ram Boxers Set For San Jose State In Ring Season Opener

Ram boxers are ready and waiting, in condition and in training, as the first contest of the year draws near, Coach Roy Diederichsen announced last week.

Because of a lack of competition, this semester's schedule is still in question, Diederichsen stated.

Both Modesto and Yuba have withdrawn from the Northern California Junior College Conference because of coaching difficulties and lack of good prospects, leaving CCSF and Placer to carry on.

A tentative bout is set with San Jose State College's Frosh for the first week in April, the exact date to be released later.

The Ram squad was scheduled to meet San Francisco State's Gator team last night here on the campus hut, as this issue of The Guardsman went to press before the bouts, full coverage could not be made.

State's team recently fought to a draw with Chico but lost to San Jose's Spartans by a 6½ to 1½ point margin.

Diederichsen - coached teams won the conference title in 1949 and in 1950 came within three points of winning the nationals.

This year's squad, sparked by veterans Len Gage, 130, last year's winner of the outstanding boxing trophy; Jack Bettencourt, 145, runnerup in the 1950 nationals and winner of the managers' perpetual trophy; Robert Shepardson, 175; and Dick Flore, 155, should prove tough for all opponents.

Up and coming members of the team are Roy Devlneenzl, 130; Nap Guaidzis, heavyweight; Gil Casarez, 125; and Dick Topham, 155.

Santa Rosa Hosts WAA At Play-Day

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will meet for a basketball play-day at Santa Rosa on Saturday, March 10, Nancy Sparks, WAA sponsor, announced yesterday.

Other visiting colleges will be Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo, Napa and Vallejo.

Selected as officers for WAA are Pat Kay, president; Jackie Smith, vice-president; Frenchie Foster, recording secretary; and Edith Stern, treasurer.

A co-ed badminton class is currently being sponsored by WAA Wednesday nights at 7 o'clock. Beginners are welcome, Miss Sparks emphasized. Badminton tournaments have been scheduled for the present semester with both Marin and Santa Rosa colleges.

All women students interested are invited to attend the Friday college hour meetings.

Basketball Season Closes

Ram Hoopsters Settle For Second Place Tie

Coin Toss Throws Cagers Out Of Tournament Play

Ram cagers stayed in the running for a share of the Big Seven Conference basketball laurels by defeating the San Mateo Wildcats, 58-52, at San Mateo, Friday, February 23.

But the college five hopes of dominating second place were lost when Contra Costa West clinched a second place tie by triumphing over Santa Rosa, 79-56, Tuesday, February 27.

Contra Costa, by virtue of a flip of the coin, will represent the Big Seven Conference along with first place Stockton at the Sacramento Junior College tourney.

The winner of the tourney will represent Northern California at the Kansas City National Junior College Tourney, to be held later this month.

The local cagers, who are renowned for their "quitless" style of play, were led by their "watch-charm" guard Mario Lombardi, as they rolled up a slim 25-20 margin, and had to battle the remainder of the game to come through with a victory.

The tilt swayed back and forth until two minutes to go. With the score 50-50, Greenberg and Lombardi each potted a field goal to establish a working margin and the victory.

The San Mateo triumph was the last game for the team, and left them with an 8-4 conference record and a 16-6 overall seasonal total. Lombardi was high scorer with 14 points.

Final standing for the Big Seven Conference:

	Conference Games			Games
	W	L	Pct.	F	OP
Stockton	9	3	.750	734	590
San Francisco	8	4	.667	658	624

Dick Greenberg Sparks Hillsmen To Santa Rosa Win

By Don Stephens

City College hoopsters romped home to a 51-46 victory over Santa Rosa after a blistering 15 point first half barrage by Dick Greenberg, here in the men's gymnasium last February 20.

After a point-amassing first half, which left them at the one with a 32-23. advantage, the locals coasted during the remaining half, making only 19 points to Santa Rosa's 23.

The invaders from apple land started to fashion a point spree of their own at the half's outset, but faded because of the ball control antics of Mario Lombardi and Ken Ferguson. This duo, along with Harvey Cramow and Dick Greenberg picked the backboards clean with their aggressive rebounding.

During the initial quarter the lead never extended beyond five points but during the second half with Greenberg, who garnered 20 points for high point honors, dominating the scene, the lead boomed to a comfortable half-time bulge.

The following two quarters saw the Santa Rosa cagers make a valiant effort to sway the tide, but their wrong-doings of the first half were left unmended, and Coach Ralph Tillsman's basketballers stayed in and out-hustled their foe down to the wire.

GENIAL BASEBALL COACH Bill Fischer puts on his best smile as he looks forward to a good season in the newly formed Big Seven Conference. His team last year brought home the Southern Division title.

Sixty Try Out For Ram Nine; State Traditional Tuesday

More than 60 men have signed up and are trying out for possible positions on the college's baseball team, now that practice rolls into its second week at the Ocean View diamond, Coach Bill Fischer said recently.

As in the past, competition is wide open, and players will come to the front as practice progresses.

These eager baseball enthusiasts will try to bring home both the Big Seven division title and the Conference title, which was won last year by Santa Rosa.

This year's squad has seven returning veterans—McCarthy, catcher; Panteleon, second base; Cuddy and Driscoll, first base; Wall and Rudimetkin, outfield, and LaCosta, third base. The team will also be well sprinkled with stars from Oakland and San Francisco high schools.

The Rams are first to play intra-squad games and are then to tackle Galileo, George Washington, Commerce, and Mission High Schools before opening the actual season with their traditional rival, San Francisco State, Tuesday, March 13, at State's field.

This will be the first of a three-game series with the second game to be played here April 24.

The Ram schedule includes practice games with Santa Clara, the University of San Francisco Frosh, California Frosh, and a two game series with the Alameda Naval Air Station Hellcats.

The Rams open their season in conference competition March 31 with a game at Sacramento Junior College. It is the first baseball game for the Rams in the newly formed Big Seven conference.

The first home game will be against Contra Costa West, April 7. The site will probably be Golden Gate Park on Saturday afternoon, Fischer said.

The college will play conference games in a home and home arrangement with Santa Rosa, Sacramento, Stockton, Contra Costa West, San Mateo, and Modesto.

Applications For Intramural Hoop LeagueDueToday

Participants interested in intramural basketball should turn in their applications by 5 p.m. today at the physical education office, in the men's gymnasium, Thomas Wilson, intramural director, warned yesterday.

All men students are eligible except those who have played currently for the college five or those who have earned a block letter in basketball here.

The games, in which general basketball rules will be used, will be scheduled from 3:10 to 5 p.m. every day except Friday. However all teams must be on the floor within ten minutes of the scheduled time or a forfeit will be declared.

The tilts, which will be refereed by recreational leadership students, will last 40 minutes, with the clock running during all free throws, substitutions, jump-balls and time-outs, Wilson emphasized.

As an added incentive a gold belt buckle will be awarded to each member of the championship team, and a silver medal to each member of the team in the runner-up spot.

Netters Ready To Start Play Friday

The current tennis crop, now in preparation for a first conference match with Sacramento this Friday at Golden Gate Park, have more balance and promise than the second place conference team of 1947, according to Coach Roy Diederichsen.

This year's team, his first since 1947, is well manned, through the timely additions of two prepsters, Jack Hines, formerly of Lowell High, and Kevin Merrick, from Berkeley High, Coach Diederichsen added.

The netters are now participating in ladder matches to determine the status of each player, according to ability, for the forthcoming matches.

In between their conference matches they plan to take on other frosh teams located in the Bay Area.

"The Truth Shall Make You Free," motto over the portals of the main building, is from the New Testament, John 8:32.

Kev Duggan—Tribute To Coach Hillsman

OF major importance to sports enthusiasts the country over at the present time is the effect that the draft will have on college sports.

Remembering the days of 1942 and 1943, when championship quality players in all sports were gobbled up by the armed services, the fans are again expecting the days of fly-by-night All-Americans to set in.

The Pacific Coast Conference has already condoned the privilege of using freshmen on the varsity squads, indicating that after June, when college deferments expire, a large percentage of young eligibles are expected to depart for work with Uncle Sam.

Although things look dismal at the present time, the situation may get brighter in the near future, but until next fall no one can be certain of the outcome.

* * *

A tribute to Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman: Former City College student and star on the 1949 basketball team, Kevin Duggan, was recently voted the most valuable player in Northern California.

It has often been said and proved that good fundamentals develop stars, and Duggan certainly is a star. He received his fundamentals from Coach Hillsman.

Louis Fight Hints Gold On West Coast

Boxing interests the country over stood agog when Louis, boasting a waltzy comeback trail with nary a knockout to his credit, met a not-so-hot California State Champion and outdrew several of his championship fights, which were held in heavily populated eastern cities.

Andy Walker hardly recovered from Louis' punches, and the fight crowd returned home when the downtown sports writers started screaming for more copy paper to handle the intended bouts headed this way.

That unimportant fight between a once great champion and a cake walker brought boxing back from a slow death, at least on the West Coast, where fight promoters think they might find gold after a long long search.

Thinclads Meet Stockton Friday

With an experienced group from last year's team, and newly enrolled prepsters to form the nucleus of the track team, Coach Grover Klemmer prepares his troops for the opening meet with Stockton Junior College, at Stockton, this Friday, March 9.

Klemmer's men have been hampered in training by inconsistent weather, but with a few meets under their belts they should be ready for the Northern California Junior College tourney.

The newly enrolled Washington track star, Ron Bauer, who was All-American prep in the mile for his record shattering 4:23.7, can run, if necessary, in the 440 and 880, the former 440 title-holder added.

Along with Bauer is Vernon Chambers, also from Washington, who runs the 220 low hurdles and the 120 high hurdles and may also attempt a stint at the sprints along with Oscar Brown, a returnee from last year.

Running the gruelling two-miler, is Sol Mascatelli, also from last year's team.

In field events the following men and their best record from last season are: Cecil Bledsoe, pole vaulter—12 feet; Bill McCandlish, shot put—42 feet; Bob Revilla, broad and high jumper—21 feet and 6 feet 2 inches respectively.

Block SF Society To Elect Officers Friday

The Block S.F. Society will hold its first meeting of the spring semester this Friday during college hour, Rod DeChristofaro, spokesman, announced Monday.

The purpose of the meeting will be to elect officers for this semester and to plan spring activities. Special emphasis will be placed on the forthcoming Mardi Gras.

A highlight of the meeting will be an address by President Louis G. Conlan.

Semi-annual activities of the Block S.F. include participation in the annual Mardi Gras, scheduled this semester for May 25, a Block S.F. dinner and the presentation of a dance.

Members sponsor a Block S.F. rally each semester, aid in presenting other college rallies, and in organizing social functions at the college.

Round 'n About

NEXT to the recent snowfall and the sale of Associated Student cards the biggest thing round 'n' about is the announcement of club officers.

Neophytes for Alpha Lambda Chi are Jacque Woodd, president; Joann Ellefson, vice-president; Jeanne DeCurtoni, corresponding secretary; Shirley Metcalf, recording secretary; Marge Peterson, treasurer, and Joan Roberts, historian.

Undertaking their new responsibilities as officers, the Phi Beta Delta dignitaries are Bob Von Konsky, president. Diek Silveria, vice-president; Ralph Marinelly, corresponding secretary; Lou Williams, recording secretary; Ralph Vetterlein, treasurer; and Ken Forrester, historian.

Le Cercle Francais announces that their officers are Armand Zimmerlin, president, and secretary-treasurer, Phil Franek. The French club, which meets Tuesday nights 7:30 to 9 p.m., has been classified as French G11 for which two units of credit are offered.

Aiding and abetting Virginia Ely, president of Kappa Phi, are Jeanne Gammill, vice-president, Cathy Sheehan, corresponding secretary; Gracene Brown, recording secretary; Bev Gracia, treasurer; Kathy Garner, historian.

Student League has launched a drive to increase its membership to 230 from the present number of 63. The League is open to all students at the college. Officers for this semester are Bart Dempster, president; Noel Anderson, vice-president; Pat Couto, secretary; and Duane Belcher, treasurer.

Novices for the offices of Gamma Phi Ypsilon are George Korbay, president; Con Davidenko, vice-president; Bruce Tombaugh, secretary; and George Goodyear, treasurer.

Zeta Chi's new leaders are Barbara McAuley, president; Nadine Yeomans, vice-president; Evelyne Delore, corresponding secretary; Joan Speck, recording secretary; and Jackie Avy, treasurer.

Goals for the Canterbury Club, which has been chartered this semester, are better fellowship, devotions, study, and recreation. Under the chairmanship of Bill Stevens, the club is open to all Episcopalian students of the college. For information contact Katherine Pedley, library assistant.

Music Guild Honors Patrons, Opera Board At Tea Sunday

Patrons and advisory board members to the Opera Workshop productions scheduled for next month will be honored at a tea sponsored by the Music Guild in the Student Lounge Sunday, March 11, Flossita Badger, Workshop director, announced yesterday.

TREV BURROW, former editor of The Guardsman in 1947, and Stanford University graduate, was elected President of the City College Alumni Association at a recent meeting of the executive committee. He succeeds Dr. Richard Kelley, who resigned after serving three years.

More than 200 persons, many of them representing leading San Francisco musical organizations, are expected to attend, Miss Badger said.

They will be introduced to workshop and production personnel, and will be entertained by workshop singers. Meyer Cahn, band instructor, said a small string ensemble will provide background music.

Gertrude Norgard, music instructor, is handling arrangements for the tea with the aid of Dean Edwin C. Browne, faculty production manager.

Members of the Hotel and Restaurant Division will serve refreshments.

Miss Badger said that work on the two operas to be presented Friday and Saturday evening, April 20 and 21, was under way, but that full rehearsal schedules would not go in effect until next month.

The two operas include Amelia Goes to the Ball, by Gian-Carlo Menotti, and Christopher Smith, by Robert Morton, college music instructor.

Casts for the productions, Miss Badger said, will be announced soon.

Additional subscribers to the productions as of last week include the following:

Mr. George Crothers, Mr. Phillip S. Ehrlich, Mrs. Daniel G. Volkmann, Mr. Michel D. Weill, Mrs. A. H. Brawner, Mrs. T. S. Petersen, Mrs. Eminel Halsted, Mrs. James Jackman, Mr. Frederick J. Koster, Mr. George Stimmel, Mrs. Marshal Fisher, Mrs. Roland Tognazzini, Mr. A. E. Schwabacher, Mrs. Carlos J. Maas.

Greater Number Of Students Work In Downtown Jobs

The business department's work experience program for the spring term was fully initiated this past week when the college placement servisor experienced a record high placement of well over 100 students who had registered for the program, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, said yesterday.

While work experience credit has been given for a limited program during the past, the current program which includes four fields of activity, marks the first time in the history of the college when such large numbers of students were concerned.

The students were carefully screened by Amori, assisted by Glenn Mercer, Harry Frustuck, William Marsh, and Samuel Ziegler, of the business department. The selected students have been placed with business firms in San Francisco.

Each worker will receive credit in proportion to the total number of hours worked each week. The credit ranges from one to four units.

"The employers are highly gratified with the excellent results already obtained, and wish to extend the program to include a larger number of students next semester," Amori added.

All workers are supervised on the job by their respective faculty instructors in conjunction with Amori. Their semester grades are assigned on the basis of the student's competency on the job in which he has been placed.

Fraternity Gains Affiliation With National Chapter

Alpha Phi Omega fraternity was installed into the national organization of that name Sunday, February 25, in ceremonies conducted by the University of California, Gamma Gamma chapter.

For the first time in the college's history a local fraternity has achieved affiliation with a national organization. The affiliation is the climax of three years of efforts on the part of the local fraternity, Madison Devlin, sponsor, said.

C. J. Carlson represented the national organization, which maintains headquarters in Kansas City, Kansas, and presented fraternity president Eric Malmberg with the official charter. The City College chapter was designated as Iota Pi.

Purpose of the fraternity is service to the college, Devlin added.

Requirements for membership are as follows: all members must be former Boy Scouts of America, a qualification of the national organization. Students interested in membership should contact a present member or one of the five faculty sponsors.

Faculty sponsors for the fraternity are Devlin, chairman, Jules Fraden, Robbin Crizer and James Ripley.

Florists Plan For Spring Garden Show

The college floriculture department is making plans for an annual college exhibit in the California Spring Garden Show to be held at Oakland Exposition Auditorium Arena and surrounding area.

The show will begin Friday, April 27, and end Friday, May 4, 1951, Harry E. Nelson, floriculture department supervisor, announced yesterday.

Theme for this year's California Spring Garden Show is Outdoor Living. The college exhibit is sponsored by the Horticulture Society and will be held entirely outdoors, featuring mostly practical type plants for small home owners, Nelson said.

Several classes in the floriculture department are now carrying out definite plans for the exhibition. The landscape design class has surveyed the exhibit plot at the Oakland Exposition Auditorium and is drawing up plans so that the landscape construction class can construct the plot. Seeds have been sown by the class in plant propagation and the nursery practice class is transplanting the exhibit plants, Nelson explained.

Last year the Horticulture Society took first prize in the pre-professional exhibit.

Final value of the 2000-odd plants being prepared for exhibit has been estimated at about $500. Last year, more than 60 floriculture students took part in the show, working in two-hour shifts of four students per shift. This system, explained Nelson, helps all.

AS Store Profits Hit All-Time High

The Ramporium, college student store, had its best semester in the way of sales since its establishment, Richard Main, Ramporium manager, announced yesterday.

Bill Gosland, Jim Stowers, James McCarthy, and Vance Kmiski have been added to the list of employees working for the Ramporium. Virginia Bader and Bob Mickalske are carry-over members from last semester who are still employed in the store.

Main also said that the store will take in many new articles of interest to the students. Stationery with a picture of the Ram and the college seal stamped in the corner has been ordered but has not yet arrived. A small pin with the college seal upon it will be introduced soon. The price of these articles has not yet been determined.

A complete stock of all syllibi is available in addition to numerous materials for drafting and engineering students.

Regulation physical education clothes for men are also featured and white T shirts in small, medium, or large sizes are available. Gymnasium shoes and socks in various weights are also included in the wearing apparel on sale.

Hurley Village, the housing project of quonset huts to the northeast of the campus, is named for the memory of Major John J. Hurley, former faculty member who was killed in action in Italy, January 2, 1944.

Local Students Eligible For Foto Festival Competition

By Barbara Egolan

Registered City College students will have an opportunity to compete in the San Francisco Foto Festival "Pictures of San Francisco" competition, under the direction of the San Francisco Recreation and Park Department with more than 40 civic sponsors, Beverly Pasqualetti, chairman of the photography department, announced today.

Entry blanks with complete rules and regulations can be obtained in Building 9 from Pasqualetti. All students, whether enrolled in photography classes or not, are invited to participate. Those competing will only have to take shots of "San Francisco —the Meeting Place," theme of the contest, as processing and developing are not included in the judging.

The college photography department will be awarded a special trophy with all registered students eligible to compete for it. Entries will be judged here and the winner's work will be sent to the Foto Festival contest.

Members of the Foto Festival committee recently sent word to the college that four to eight background sets will be set up for the Mardi Gras celebration, May 24. The background sets will be complete with models and free entertainment suitable for photographing.

During the Festival activities, members of the college photography department will be soliciting high school entrants. Instructors of the photo staff here will do the judging and those composing the committee include Joe Rosenthal, Kenneth Reichard and Emmet Smith. Five prizes and five honorable mentions will be awarded to the group of high school participants. A trophy will be awarded, to the winner's school and he will be entered in the regular Festival competition.

Prizes will be awarded at the Foto Festival Breakfast, climaxing Foto Festival week, which will be held at the Whitcomb Hotel Sunday, May 27, 1951, at 10:30 a.m.

FRED MATTHES, former photography department and Guardsman photographer, recently joined the staff of International News-Sound Photos in San Francisco. Matthes' work appeared regularly in The Guardsman. His name has now been added to the long list of photography department graduates employed in photography fields.

Vets Should Apply Now For Housing

Veterans interested in obtaining either campus dormitory or Hurley Village housing are urged to apply well in advance of scheduled residence to get on the list of applicants, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced today. Applications are taken in Building 2, Room 2.

Campus dormitory facilities have been restricted to men veterans since last semester when the San Francisco Board of Education passed a bill on the issue. Rental fees for the rooms are $12.50 per month and a few vacancies are still available.

Women students desiring residence near the college are asked to see Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, for accommodations. Some rooms in private homes are still available, and those interested should consult Dean Dougherty immediately.

Married veterans who want to acquire residence in Hurley Village must apply through Browne. Because of the annual decrease in veteran enrollment at the college, housing facilities for this particular group will decrease accordingly during the coming semester, Browne concluded.

Drama Students' Parts Cast For Maugham's, Rain

With the island of Pago Pago as a setting, Rain, adapted from a play by Somerset Maugham, will be presented by the Drama Club on April 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7, in the little theatre of the main building.

According to Stuart Hyde, director of the group, this is one of the most successful plays ever produced by little theatre groups in America.

In the college production, special emphasis will be placed on costumes, lighting, sound effects and sets.

Members of the cast include Dawn Kidd as Sadie Thompson, Lloyd Spitalmy as the Reverend Davidson, Morris Kilgore as Dr. McPhail, Vivian Breslin as Mrs. Davidson, Pat Wilson as Mrs. McPhail, Dolores Lambert as Menna Horn, Jerald O'Connor as Bates and Ed Mulvihill as Sgt. O'Hara.

Main Building Show Case Made Available

The display case in the first floor of the main building is available to instructors and organizations who wish to show displays, William Eckert, advertising instructor, said last week.

The display must be planned well in advance, he said, and those wishing to reserve a date should see Eckert in Room 347. An architectural display is currently being shown.

Intramural Basketball Entries Due Today

Those interested in the opening intramural round robin must have their entries in by Wednesday, March 7, according to Intramural Director Tom Wilson. Initiation Dinner Honors New AGS Members Tonight

New members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, will be honored this evening when the group presents its semi-annual installation dinner in the faculty dining room of the cafeteria, Don Jensen, faculty adviser, announced yesterday.

Officers elected during college hour last Friday were Joe Azzolino, president; Gloria Naccarini, vice president; Elizabeth Bertram, secretary; Napoleon Argueta, CAB representative.

More than 60 persons including many distinguished guests are expected to attend the banquet this evening, Jensen said, and all members of the AGS and high school honor graduates in their first semester at the college are invited to the dinner.

Installation ceremonies will take place immediately following the dinner. This evening's activities are just a few of the many planned for the society this semester.

At the first meeting of the semester on March 2, nearly 100 students were acquainted with purposes of the organization and filled out applications for membership.

One of the distinguished guests who attended last semester's dinner was Jade Snow Wong, author-ceramist, and former honor student here.

AWS Entertains High School Seniors At Tea; Treble Clef To Sing

Prospective women students of the college are scheduled for entertainment here at a fashion show and tea, Thursday, April 26, sponsored semi-annually by the Associated Women Students.

As in the past the organization will play hostess to the high seniors of various Bay Area high schools. Fashions for the affair will be presented by a local store and models will be selected at random from among women students of the college, Gloria Naccarini, president of AWS, said.

Assisting her in this event is her newly appointed cabinet: Georgia Farmer, vice-president; Lee Williams, corresponding secretary; Mary Anne Weaver, recording secretary; and Pat Collins, treasurer.

Members of the Treble Clef, women's chorus, will provide a musical setting for the fashion show, Gertrude Norgard, faculty director of the group, said. They will sing their songs during fashion and scene changes.

Also on the agenda is a women student-faculty volleyball game. The purpose of this game, Miss Naccarini said, is to arouse more interest among women students. It will be held in the women's gymnasium on Friday, April 13.

Easter Vacation, Mid-Term Dates Set

Easter vacation has been scheduled for Wednesday, March 21, through Friday, March 23, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said yesterday.

Immediately following the Easter vacation, midterms are scheduled for Monday, March 26, through Friday, March 30.

Deadline for filing petitions for dropping courses has been set for Wednesday, April 11, Miss Learnard warned.

Next issue of The Guardsman will be published Wednesday, April 4.

Sophomore President Previews Activities For June Soph Week

Sophomore week activities were previewed last week by Maurice O'Brien, president of the sophomore class, as part of the agenda tentatively scheduled for the Spring semester.

The week, held June 4-8, will feature the annual Sophomore Formal on the night of June 9, at which time the king and queen, as determined by election earlier in the week, will be crowned and be presented with perpetual trophies by Beta Tau and Theta Tau, O'Brien disclosed.

Also taking place during the week will be the annual baseball game between faculty members and a selected team of sophomores, he said.

Former Students Find Instruction Valuable

Former flower shop students Richard and Evon Cross, having profited from the instruction received at the college, have opened a florist shop, the Monterey Florist, located on Monterey Blvd.

Monterey Florist is hiring students from the floriculture department on a training basis and for the necessary experience. Students will be hired for the Easter trade.

Cross had previous experience in a shop which he owned in Cleveland, Ohio, but was forced to close in order to serve Uncle Sam in the Air Force during World War II. At the present time he is employed by Philco Company and is working on the east coast while his wife, Evon, is managing the shop.

'Very Satisfied Customer'—Story Gets Results

Twenty men applied to Madison Devlin, audio visual aids director, for work as student operators of the college's motion picture projectors, within one hour after the February 14 Guardsman had been distributed to students.

"'Chronicle Want Ads Bring Results,' but nothing could have been more effective than that Guardsman article," Devlin declared. "Chalk me up as a very satisfied customer."

The regular staff of operators now numbers 13. Ten of the recent applicants were placed on a reserve list, which has become increasingly necessary because the draft is digging into the regular force, Devlin said.

Student operators are paid 75 cents an hour, and the work is done during the students' free hours.

Clubs, Organizations To Hold First Meeting Of Semester In Assigned Rooms Friday During College Hour

Campus organizations are scheduled to meet this Friday at 10:40 a.m. during college hour in club rooms assigned to them last semester, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, announced last week.

Meanwhile, announcement concerning petitions for the annual Mardi Gras king-queen contest and for club booths was made in a recent Club Activities Board meeting by Associated Men Student President Doug Smith. Petitions will be distributed at the CAB meeting scheduled Tuesday, March 20. A committee of San Mateo Junior College students will serve as judges for the king-queen contest, Smith added.

Organizations planning a Mardi Gras booth must be prepared to pay a rental of five dollars, and all persons tending booths must be attired in costumes, Smith said.

Rooms to be used are as follows: Faculty Association, 100; Tri Epsilon, 111; Cosmopolitan Club, 113; Alpha Lambda Sigma, 133; Alpha Phi Omega, 140; Band Association, 190; Theta Tau, 193; Phi Beta Rho, 194; Collegiate Christian Fellowship, 200; Engineering, 204; Kappa Phi, 205; Delta Psi, 208; Nurses, 209; Pi Mu Gamma, 211; and Ski Rams, 212.

Faculty Donates Books To Library

More than 600 books, including novels, periodicals and classics have been recently added to the college library, Clement Skrabak, chairman of the library committee, announced last week.

The majority of the donors are members of the faculty and include Ruth Gavin, Carolyn Riedeman, Eleanor Blinn, David Everall, Marcus Skarsted, Jules Fraden, Fred Kelly, Marjorie Baihache, Eric Moeller, Mervin Slosberg, and Louis Berman.

In addition several new books have been added to the faculty honor collection. This collection consists of books that have been donated to the library in honor of former faculty members. Each set of books deals with the course that he taught.

For the benefit of the students of the newly inaugurated evening classes, the library hours in the main building are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and 6 to 9:30 p.m.

Present State Of World Adds To Importance Of Role As Student

WITHIN the past few months students of the college have become increasingly aware of the serious world situation, and their place in it. With approximately one-third of the male students classified 1-A, and the calling up of 18-year-olds nearing reality, the situation has become more real and important to students throughout the United States.

A sense of insecurity seems to be creeping into the lives of the students, and as a result, interest in college activities, classes, and grades appears to be waning.

The prospect of being called into the service at the end of the current semester is certainly not a bright one, and many of the students facing that situation find it hard to concentrate on such trivial things as books. The average attitude of these students is one of "Why should I worry about my college work, when in a few months I may be in Korea?"

Such an attitude is a very bad sign, for it appears to us, that now, more than ever, students should take increased interest in their college work, and therefore be more capable of dealing with the situation in which they now find themselves. Surely no one can argue against the fact that a well-educated person is more capable of viewing the situation with a fuller understanding, and is therefore better equipped to help set it right.

THINKING about the present situation is a good and healthy thing, but forgetting about the importance of acquiring an education while doing so is very unwise.

Many students will desire to continue their education after leaving the service, and their present record will have a large bearing on how long it will take them to accomplish that. The present world conflict is extremely important and should not be overlooked, but the future and the importance of education in that future should not be disregarded.

The role of a student is an important one, and to those who are now engaged in that role, it would be wise to remember that the present situation cannot last forever. A little foresight at present should make them realize that though they may not appear so now, grades and studies will have an important bearing on the outcome of their lives in the years to come.

Debaters Enter Hearst Contest

Plans for two alumni-sponsored general elimination contests to determine which student will represent the college in the Hearst Speech contest, were disclosed last week by Michael J. Griffin, speech coach of Phi Rho Pi, the college speech society.

An initial elimination will take place Tuesday, April 3, and will be open to students of the college who are not members of Phi Rho Pi, Griffin declared. From this contest, three finalists for the final competition will be named.

These three will be met by three Phi Rho Pi members who, Griffin pointed out, will be selected from inner-society competition to be held Thursday, April 5. The alumni-sponsored final competition will occur in the auditorium during college hour, Friday, April 13, in which three prizes will be awarded to first, second and third place contestants.

The first place contestant will represent the college in the city-wide Hearst Speech Contest, in which the first prize is $200, with additional prizes of $100, $75, $50 and $25.

Phi Rho Pi members who will represent the college include Dick Schnell and Joe Schwab, first team; Bart Dempster and Victor Morales, second team; Len Rodney and Jim Stowers, third team.

Each team will prepare for debate on either side of the following debate subjects: Resolved: That the non-communist nations should form a new international organization; That the federal government should guarantee a college education for the intellectually superior high school student; That the libeling of racial and religious groups should be made a national offense.

The debate group is currently participating in an elimination-type contest with the University of California, Stanford University, Stockton College, and five other colleges.

Look-Alikes

Double Images Really Ray And Norm De Nardo

In the event that any City College students are under the impression they need glasses, let them be assured, 'tain't so! Those double images they've been seeing are really the De Nardo twins, Norman and Raymond.

This is the second time in a year the college has had identical twins on the campus. First ones were Tani and Dranne Seitz, the unusually talented blonde sisters who are rapidly gaining prominence in the Bay Area through their numerous appearances with little theatre groups and on television.

The De Nardo twins are also majoring in a course that will possibly lead to the entertainment field, since their major is music.

They are friendly, rather quiet but with an obvious sense of humor and the impression is that they have always enjoyed their somewhat unusual status.

When asked if they ever confuse people on purpose, they exchanged a glance and admit, they do; "especially when girl friends are involved," they add with a smile. They not only look alike but their voices are identical, and this leads to much confusion over the telephone.

Norman declares that from the time they were old enough to get into mischief one has frequently been blamed for something the other did. Asked if they remain silent under the circumstances, they laughed and said, "depends upon what it is!"

The twins also have another claim to being unusual, as they are not only native Californians but native San Franciscans as well.

While attending Balboa High School they were prominent in all sports but will be unable to participate in such events at the college because of working part time in addition to attending classes.

As in their previous schooling, they are taking identical courses and share the same interests. There is a slight difference in their personalities, however, as one is somewhat quieter than the other. In appearance Norman is taller and slimmer than Raymond.

As with all young men their age, plans for the future are rather indefinite, but they have hopes of continuing their musical education upon graduation from the college.

Library Branch Stresses Vocations

The west campus library, a small branch of the hilltop library, boasts a wider selection of material on vocations than many other larger libraries.

Students from the University of California occasionally come to the desk of Betty Lundgren, librarian, to ask for material on careers.

Students who use the library are mainly those whose classes are all on the west campus or those who come in to make use of the reference books kept on hand.

The hours between 10 and 12 find most of the chairs occupied and occasionally students arrive with an armload of books to find "no vacancies."

In recent semesters the library closed at 4 p.m., but the hours are now 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Reflections . . .

By Doug Hoyword

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Ethiopia's king was quaking in his boots during the week of March 14 in 1936. Mussolini just kept advancing and preparing, while the League of Nations stood by with its mouth open the same apple 2 the Rhine land and Hitler, who had been told to move himself and his stormtroopers.

In reply to France and England, the little dictator replied: "Nothin in the world can move us to renounce this sovereignty." He proved his point by not only NOT moving, but preparing for an all-out offensive on France herself, who was in no position to tell anyone to go away and leave her alone.

On campus, the whiskerino, started a week before, appeared to be failing far short of expectations: only 20 virile young males had bothered to sign up.

(At least that many bearded nonconformists could be picked from among the student body right now without even announcing a contest.)

Charges were being levied thick and fast against the bookstore of that time, located downtown and privately owned, concerning prices and refunds.

Charges included: prices too high; the re-sale percentages were not fair as regarding cash and credit allowances for used books; the bookstore operator was refusing a full refund on books purchased for wrong or dropped classes. Out of this came the twinkling of a suggestion from student sources which was heartily approved by the administration: why not have a co-op bookstore?

Fourteen years later, last year, the college got its co-op bookstore, which is just now beginning to operate in the black after two semesters of operation.

10 YEARS AGO

Things were shaping up fast toward a head as Congress gave the President its full support for a cash loan of $7,000,000,000.

In San Francisco, two Stanford University students, while conducting research for a sociological paper on skid row, were beaten and hospitalized for their pains—by, not the skidders, but two San Francisco policemen!

Transportation was a problem to students: buses just didn't run their way that early in the morning (8 a.m.). The Muni didn't have enough equipment to spare from the early-morning work runs.

Well—they've got 'em now. Why aren't there any seats?

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

WITH basketball season finally over here at the college, the time has come, as an aftermath of a good season, to pick an All-Conference five.

The selections are being handled by both Modesto and San Mateo Junior Colleges, and the choices are to be made by the sports editors of the various Big Seven college papers.

As our choice, of course, we would include Harvey Cranow and Dick Greenberg from the Ram squad, but to pick from the other teams is a tough job.

Just who did "the dirty work best" against us over the whole season is too hard a decision to make, so we are dumping the task into the lap of Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman, who we feel is better qualified to decide just which five of the opposing players showed the greatest against us.

The official results will be released by Modesto and San Mateo in the near future when the tallies are totalled.

As basketball fades, baseball comes into the spotlight as a major sport on the college program and in the past it has been noticed that the attendance at Ram baseball games falls short of any expectations no matter how small they are.

Bill Fischer last semester commented on the noticeable empty stands when the Ram nine ventured forth to meet opponents and captured the Southern Division title.

Feeling that possibly it was because of the distance necessary to travel to see the team play, he is making a bid to have a baseball diamond built on the campus when construction starts on the new buildings.

Bill Fischer may be right, but we put the blame on the students. Remembering last football season when the attendance reached a new low, we feel that the spirit is just plain lacking.

It would be nice if the team felt it was being backed up by lots of student support, but the sad story is that the students who are failing to back up the team are also falling short on equipping a team.

The fall-off of student card sales indicates of course a disinterest in student activities, and this disinterest is having its individual effect on all sports here at the college.

Student funds are spent to equip the teams and transport them to games but if card sales continue falling off in future semesters athletics at City College will reach an all-time low with neither equipment nor transportation available.

Block SF Announces New Officers, Plans

New officers of the Block SF Society were elected at a meeting during last Friday's college hour. The officers are Rod De Cristofaro, president; Jim Fales, vice-president; Bob Marcus, secretary; Harvey Cranow, treasurer; and Al Endriss, sergeant at arms.

Highlight of the meeting was an address by President Louis G. Conlan, who spoke of the role of athletes in college and business life.

At present Block SF members are planning the construction of a scroll honoring members who have entered the armed services, De Cristofaro announced.

Ram Nine Earns 7-1 Victory In Practice Game

On the strength of a one hit pitching performance by Ray Pandolfi, City College beat the Galileo varsity 7 to 1 in the team's first practice game of the 1951 season.

City College scored 7 runs on 5 hits and 2 errors, as Galileo tallied 1 run on one hit and two errors. For the Rams one hit apiece was gathered by Driscoll, La Costa, McCarthy, Panteleon and Selling.

Galileo's only hit was from the bat of Hobles. The pitching of Pandolfi proved to be the difference between the teams, as he struck out 7 men.

Rain has played havoc with practice lately and has forced the cancelling of a game with Washington High.

Three of the players who have been outstanding in practice so far are Zucca and Tivio, shortstop and pitcher respectively, from Mission High in San Francisco, and Baglietto, a pitcher from Oakland Tech High.

The Rams' next two games are scheduled with the Bank of America tomorrow, and the Cal Frosh, March 20. The first game will be at home, and the second on the road.

The complete schedule is as follows:

Cal Frosh—March 20—There
Washington—March 27—Here
USF Frosh—March 28—There
Alameda Naval Air Station—March 29—Here

Intramural Hoop Slate To Be Posted In Gym

Team managers will find their new opponents and their intramural basketball league standings on the glass bulletin board in the men's gymnasium today, according to information released by Tom Wilson, intramural director.

Teams not meeting this schedule should see Wilson for revision of the schedule if possible, or cancellation of games, or a forfeit will be declared.

The schedule consists of leagues, the winner of which will play the winner of other leagues for the intramural crown.

Ping pong, tennis, and badminton signups will be due this Friday at 5 p.m., Wilson added, and there will be a singles and doubles elimination on a two out of three basis.

Wilson also stated that games will suit the participant's own schedule as much as possible, and that everyone is eligible for intramural play except those who have earned a tennis block at the college or are currently playing on the varsity tennis team.

As an added incentive there will be a permanent trophy awarded to the student who has gained the most points in intramural participation.

The point system is on an individual or team basis, with first place counting 100 points, second 85, third 50, and fourth 35.

Track Team Breezes Over Stockton By 46 Points

Highlighted by 12 first places, the local tracksters smashed Stockton Junior College into the turf, 83½-37½, in their Big Seven Conference debut at Stockton last Friday night.

Vernon Chambers, who triumphed in the 120 high hurdles with a 16.4 effort and a 27.3 in the 220 low hurdles, was the meet's only dual winner.

In distance races, Ron Bauer brought home a seemingly effortless 4:47 victory in the mile and Lambert Rax flashed by all competition with a 2:09, performance in the 880. Off this meet, the Rams could produce a Big Seven Conference crown.

Thinclads Take On Santa Rosa Next

Coach Grover Klemmer's thinclads' next encounter on the conference schedule will be an out-of-town meet against the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs this Friday, March 16.

The complete schedule, as released by Klemmer, provides for nine meets during the season against conference and nationally prominent teams, including the Santa Rosa meet at Santa Rosa this Friday.

Because of lack of proper facilities, the three home games are scheduled at Bay Area Colleges. The Contra Costa meet, which can very well be a "grudge" match because of the current basketball mix-up, will be held at the San Francisco State field, located on Nineteenth avenue.

Sacramento and San Mateo meets will be held at California's Edwards field and the Stanford oval, respectively. Klemmer's forces are expected to show well despite the fact that practice has been hampered by poor weather.

Golf, Tennis Head Minor Sports

Tees Ready For Hillsmen Start

The golf team, under the sponsorship of Ralph Hillsman, has begun practice for another season with hopes of bringing a championship to the college as they almost did last year.

Veterans back from last year's squad are Rodger Artole and Danny Banford.

Newcomers to the squad are Wes Coulbert, Bob Conlan, Dick Rainfield, Stan Keep, and Dick and Al Carver. Tryouts are still open to any golfer who can shoot in the low 80's, Hillsman said.

Ann Chevrier Wins Frosh Queen Election

Ann Chevrier was elected Freshman Queen at the elections held last Thursday and received a crown from freshman President John LoCoco at last Friday's freshman dance, held at the St. Francis Hotel.

Miss Chevrier was also presented with a trophy donated by Malkenbuhr Brothers' jewelry store.

The KGO-TV Dance Band of Tomorrow furnished music for the affair, and former college student Gloria Craig was vocalist.

The first freshman week to be held here since the war was an extremely successful week because of the cooperation of the students, LoCoco said.

Netters Prepare For San Mateo

The first Ram tennis team since 1947 is slated to meet San Mateo in the second match of the season Friday at Golden Gate Park, Coach Roy Diederichsen announced last week.

Hopes for a championship team were dealt a severe blow last week, when it was learned that two star racket men, Bob Elies and Stan Sexton, were declared ineligible for the season, Diederichsen said.

Five men were lauded for showing exceptional ability in practice meets so far. They are Jack Hymes, outstanding net man from Lowell High, Kevin Merrick, from Berkeley High, Al Robinson, Monroe Kaplan, and Robert Lacampagne.

Work Commences On College's Planetarium

Work for the completion of the planetarium, which is situated on the fourth floor of the main building, has started, Louis Berman, instructor in astronomy, announced yesterday.

The structure should be completed by the end of the present semester, Berman added.

Astronomy courses include a night laboratory session which meets from 7 to 9 o'clock Wednesday nights.

Special courses in astronomy are offered to those Interested in air and marine navigation.

Boxers Set For San Jose Frosh Match March 24

City College's belligerent Rams, the leather-slinging charges of Coach Roy Diederichsen's boxing contingent, will receive their first taste of battle March 24, when they enter the ring against the San Jose Frosh in a preliminary to the San Jose-Gonzaga University varsity match.

Four outstanding battlers, returning from last year's club that came within three points of being crowned national champs, will form the backbone of a formidable group that should prove dangerous in any company.

Len Gage, 130, Jack Bettencourt, 145, Robert Shepardson, 175, and Dick Flore, 155, will instill experience into the squad that consists chiefly of hopefuls from last year's novice contingent, Diederichsen said.

As reported last week, schedule planning has become a matter worthy of serious attention since Modesto and Yuba withdrew from the Northern California Junior College Conference. For that reason no schedule is available at this date, he said.

The match between the Ram team and San Francisco State's Gator squad, scheduled for Tuesday, March 6, was called off when it was learned that State was journeying to Idaho to attend a tournament with Gonzaga and Idaho Universities.

Coach Diederichsen's men are in high hopes of annexing their third straight Big Seven Conference Boxing title.

Registrations for all registered City College students interested in entering the San Francisco Foto Festival are now posted in Building 9, Beverly Pasqualetti, chairman of the photography department, announced today.

The college photography department received word Monday that a first prize trophy from Brooks Photographic store will be awarded to college entrants here in addition to the regular scheduled awards of the city and national competition. Entries for this special trophy will be judged by a faculty committee of the college and the winner's effort will be turned in with all other submitted entries to the city's Pictures of San Francisco Competition.

All 8 by 10 inch unmounted prints must be turned in with regular entry form by Tuesday, May 1. There is no limit on the number of prints to be submitted, but they must be left with Pasqualetti in Building 9.

All students are eligible to enter the city's Foto Festival under the direction of the San Francisco Recreation and Park Department.

Pasqualetti further announced that A. J. Shelton of the Camera Club department for Ansco Film and the former district manager for Ansco in England, will lecture on Better Color Pictures and How to Take Them, when he visits the college Tuesday, May 8.

Accompanying the lecture will be a projection of a series of original Ansco color transparencies illustrating most all fields of photography to which color can be applied.

Members of all photography clubs in San Francisco as well as persons interested—either amateur or professional—are invited to the demonstration.

Vending Machines Prove Profitable Source Of Revenue

In the few months since they have been in operation, the newly placed vending machines are already showing signs of profit, Oscar Anderson, controller, announced last week.

During the month of January, the vending machines made the greatest profit to date, approximately $90. If this profit is kept at the same level, the Associated Students may prosper by almost $400 this semester, Anderson said.

Newest addition planned for the vending machines is a coke machine which will be placed in the men's gymnasium, Anderson revealed. At present the machines may be found in the main building, Building 2, and in the gymnasium.

They include coke machines, cigarette machines, and candy machines. In agreement with the cafeteria, vending machines have not been placed near the dining room.

Little Theatre Group Presents Maugham's 'Rain' Here April 2-7

With the production of W. Somerset Maugham's Rain scheduled in the Little Theatre April 2 to 7, search is still under way for a necessary part of the atmosphere, a live monkey.

According to Stuart Hyde, director of the group, the monkey will lend an important air of reality to the forthcoming production. The play is a tense story of emotional conflict on the tropical island of Pago Pago.

In general the plot concerns itself with a small group of people isolated on the island, and traces their emotions as the rainy season of the year gradually wears their nerves to the breaking point. In particular it develops the struggle between Sadie Thompson (Dawn Kidd), and the Reverend Davidson (Lloyd Spitalny).

Additional members of the cast are Lew Wigley as Joe Horn and Nick Malenkos as Griggs. Bob Dunn will replace Morris Kilgore as Dr. McPhail.

Admission prices were not available at press time.

Registrar Releases Enrollment Figures

Enrollment figures for the spring semester, released yesterday by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, include 3815 regular day students, and 646 in the Evening Extension Division.

The special officers' training program, now under way at the Presidio, has 108 students enrolled. The program, which affords an opportunity for men to work toward their Associate in Arts degree, offers Political Science 36, English, Law Enforcement 62 and Music Literature.

Fall enrollment, which included only day students, reached 4535. Miss Learnard attributed the 720 drop to broadening employment opportunities and the draft situation.

Vocation Association Meet Discusses Varied Educational Training

The Council of California Vocational Associatigns composed of the five vocational associations in California, met at the Hotel Leamington, Oakland, California, on Monday and Tuesday, March 12-13, to discuss local, state and federal issues as they relate to vocational education and training.

The college was represented at the conference by Joseph A. Amori, placement director, representative of the Vocation Guidance Association; Dr. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare; and John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses.

The Council of California Vocational Associations, initiated two years ago in response to a demand from the State Department of Education, consists of the following organization; 1—Vocational Guidance Association; 2—California Business Education Association; 3—Industrial Education Association; 4—Agricultural Association; 5—Home Economics Association.

Representatives from these associations convened with the five State Department of Education Bureau Chiefs, and the State Director of Vocational Education in closed sessions in an attempt to solve current issues.

The two-day program considered problems relating to administration, personnel, curriculum, finance, teacher credentials, college degrees, general education, and special education, work experience for teachers in vacation education, job and career planning, and the implications for counselling and guidance.

Merchandising Clubs Will Convene Here

The Merchandising Club is currently making preparations for the 1952 meeting of the state convention of distributive education clubs which the college will host, Ray Hutton, president, said last week.

Five members of the club, including Hutton, Brunhilde Lange, Joan Brenan, Dick McCarthy, Joyce Holbrook, and Virginia Gohn, adviser, attended the first statewide convention which was held in Bakersfield last month for the purpose of forming the first statewide organization.

Miss Lange was elected historian while Hutton addressed the convention as chairman of the planning committee to announce plans for the 1952 convention.

The club is now working for a greater unity of the eight prominent merchandising clubs of the Bay Area. Joint meetings have been held in Oakland and Contra Costa.

In past semesters the club has sponsored banquet dinners at which executives from downtown stores have spoken to the group.

Hutton said the organization will sponsor a dance soon.

Leaders Choose College For Home Garden Parley

Leading representatives of garden and horticulture groups of the Bay Area met at the college recently with B. S. Picket of the Agriculture Extension Service, Washington, D.C.

Purpose of the meeting was to discuss an extensive campaign to interest people in raising vegetables for their own use.

The college was chosen as the meeting place because of its prominence in the field of horticulture. The horticulture department of the college is the largest on the West coast.

During World War II the college directed many victory gardens throughout the city and on-campus.

Forum Sets Deadline For Contributions

Deadline for all contributions to Forum magazine will be Monday, April 23, Kit Sornborger, chairman of the Forum Club, said yesterday.

The magazine will be published in May or June and all students who are interested in any type of writing or art work are urged to contribute, she added.

Material may be given to advisers Dorothy Mercer, Building 19, or John Gerstung, in Building 4.

The City College Amateur Radio Club has its own "ham" station, W6FJL, which operates from the college.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Gracene Brown

WITH the advent of spring just around the corner, Dan Cupid has been shooting some arrows before the big rush starts next Wednesday.

Passing the traditional box of candy, Joan Perrin, Kappa Phi, announced her engagement to Charley Blinkeo, Phi Beta Delta, at the last business meeting of the Kappa Phis.

Meanwhile, Nan Kellerman, Alpha Lambda Chi, was selected as the Tri-E sweetheart of this semester.

Announcement of club officers still holds the limelight in clubdom.

Kappa Rho dignitaries are Bob Clancey, president; Howard "Connie" Webb, vice-president; John Leavell, secretary-treasurer. Kappa Rho will have a new spark of life when they receive their new pins. Old ones will be given to the pledges.

Going down Latin way, the Latin-American Club announces that its leaders are Napoleon Augueta, president; Joe Tara, vice-president; and Gloria Rumirez, secretary.

Tau Chi Sigma officers are Charles Taggart, president; Bud Pate, vice-president; Clayton Richards, recording secretary; Duane Ward, corresponding secretary; and Vic Morales, treasurer.

Newman Club officers are Noel Nilsson, president; Gloria Rotondo, vice-president; Edward Healy, treasurer; Bev White, recording secretary; Nancy Quinlan, corresponding secretary.

Recently elected Delta Psi notables are Esther Ossin, president; Barbara Lucas, vice-president; Frances Dickey and Joan Morton, secretaries; Gloria Carrillo and Vi Lucas, treasurers; and Caroline Cirenele, historian.

The Ski Rams will present a 30-minute color and sound movie, Skiing is Fun, at their meeting in Room 209, during college hour next Friday. Plans for the annual Ski Olympics and intra-college ski meet will be discussed. Interested students are invited to attend.

Students who wish to particlpate in student activities should attend the next Student League meeting tomorrow, March 15, at 3 p.m., in Room 2B.

Cards 998,950 Short Of One Million Mark

Sale of Associated Student cards reached a total of 1050 by the close of Student Card Sales Week, last Friday, card sales committeemen announced recently. Cards will remain on sale at the Ramporium and student bank for students still wishing to procure them.

Reduced rates at three downtown theatres brought the total number of discounts now offered to AS card holders to 29, with further discounts still being obtained.

Assorted Items Find Way To Lost And Found

Anything from missing umbrellas to unused binders may be found in the lost and found office in Building 2.

When articles are found, students usually turn them into either the telephone operator in the main building or to the lost and found located in Room 5, Building 2. The student in search of his lost article is then required to fill out a regular form and his missing article, whenever possible, is returned.

Students who have misplaced objects frequently find them in the office weeks, perhaps months later. However, many lost articles haven't the owner's name on them and it is often difficult to get in touch with the right person.

Lost books, clothing, pens and pencils, binders and a score of other items keep the lost and found a thriving department.

Talent, Baseball Rally To Feature Connie Jordan

Connie Jordan will be featured at Friday's college hour rally. Jordan will share the spotlight with Joe Burns and Jerry Lotter, comedians from Lowell High School.

Campus clubs will not meet Friday during college hour so that members can attend the baseball rally in the auditorium.

The first of the college hour film series will be shown also during college hour in Room 136 in the main building. Two films on San Francisco —San Francisco, the Queen of the West, and San Francisco, Metropolis of the West—will be presented, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, said.

Jordan's vocal stylings have earned him quite a reputation in the music world, rally committee members said. He has developed his own unusual style in presenting his numbers, featuring a fast and slow modulation.

Among other engagements, he has been appearing nightly at San Francisco's Say When Club, where he has performed for over a year. He also cuts records for Decca.

Jordan's companion performers, Burns and Letter, have appeared on local television programs.

Dick Silveria's rally committee has written a new college pep song to bolster the spirit of Coach Bill Fischer's baseball nine. It will be sung at the rally.

Admission to this and all future rallies will be by Associated Student cards only, Silveria stressed.

State, City College Intramural Sport Contest Planned

Thomas Wilson, college intramural director, in conjunction with William Harkness, State intramural director, issued a joint statement last week, stating that tentative plans for competition between the college and San Francisco State may begin today.

The plan is slated to begin at the end of the present intramural basketball season, which runs concurrently with State's, with the three best teams from each college competing for a gold trophy—symbol of intramural superiority among the colleges.

The three teams to represent the college will be the victors in each of the three basketball leagues, made up from the 20 entered teams, which started their play last March 13.

The outstanding contenders, according to first round results, are the Five Sleepers, who defeated The Boys, 54-20, and the Lyons who are also rated contenders from the 55-37 triumph over the Wildcats.

Hay Loft Hop Scheduled For Friday Evening

Inter-fraternity Council members will transform the west campus auditorium into a barnyard setting for their Hayloft Hop planned for 9 p.m. to 12 midnight, Friday, April 6, Bob Smirle of Alpha Sigma Delta and chairman for the evening's festivities, announced yesterday.

Typical "hayseed get-up" will be the proper dress for this country style dance, Smirle added, while Charlie Stern and his nine-piece orchestra will set the pace.

Tickets are priced at $1.50 per couple. Smirle warned that students coming stag will not be admitted into the auditorium.

During the intermission, fraternity pledges will entertain the group.

Collaborating with Smirle in the arrangements for the dance are the following: Steve Hirsch, Tri Epsilon, in charge of publicity; Jim Guss, Alpha Sigma Delta, in charge of ticket sales; heading the decorating committee are Bob Von Konsky, Phi Beta Delta, and Maurie Hart, Beta Tau.

They are assisted by members of the remaining fraternities, Kappa Rho, Alpha Phi Epsilon, Teu Chi Sigma and Gamma Phi Ypsilon.

Patience! All Things Difficult Before Easy

Adorning the window sill in Coordinator F. Grant Marsh's office are six little cards imparting a bit of philosophy to the many persons who come there seeking advice.

There is one, however, that receives a place of honor on the wall. It says, "Have patience, all things are difficult before they are easy."

Club Activities Board Declares 22 Clubs Officially On Campus

Clubs submitting petitions to the Club Activities Board for on-campus recognition totaled 22 by petition deadline time (March 29).

All clubs that failed to file petitions are now officially off campus, Webb said. Clubs desiring to regain on-campus status, must consult Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, for procedure.

Clubs officially listed as on-campus, are as follows:

Drama Society, Pi Mu Gamma, Kappa Phi, Forum, Student League, Women's Athletic Association, Zeta Chi, Beta Tau, Tri "E," Alpha Lambda Chi.

Phi Beta Delta, Delta Psi, Phi Beta Rho, Le Cercle Francais, Newman Club, Theta Tau, Inter-Fraternity Council, Latin-American Club, Alpha Gamma Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega, Canterbury Club.

Tickets For Last Four Nights Of Little Theatre Production Of Rain Still Available At Student Bank

Tickets are still available for the remaining performances of W. Somerset Maugham's Rain, which opened last night at 8:30 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the main building, director Stuart Hyde announced.

Tickets may be purchased at the student bank, at the door of the Little Theatre before the performance, or from any student wearing a badge inscribed "Rain."

General price of admission is one dollar or 50 cents with an Associated Student card, Hyde announced.

The play, which stars Dawn Kidd as Sadie Thompson, and Lloyd Spitalny as the Reverend Davidson, is scheduled to run each night through Saturday, April 7.

Bob Dunn as Dr. McPhail, Vivian Breslin as Mrs. Davidson, Patt Wilson as Mrs. McPhail, Dolores Lambert as Menna Horn, Jerald O'Connor as Bates, Ed Mulvihill as Sgt. O'Hara, Lew Wigley as Joe Horn and Nick Malenkos as Griggs, also have important parts in this tense drama.

The story which reveals human conflict on the island of Pago Pago, was first presented on the New York stage and was later adapted by the silent screen as a starring vehicle for Gloria Swanson.

In later years it was made into a sound film and starred Joan Crawford in the role of Sadie Thompson and Walter Huston as Rev. Davidson.

Technical crews for the college's production are Barbara Bassett, stage manager, Noel Nilsson, technical head, Bud Lytton, lighting director and Ann Gilcreast, sound director, who is also understudy for Dawn Kidd.

Properties are under the auspices of Nick Malekow and costuming is being handled by Kathleen Morrissy.

Educators To Meet Merchandising Club Leaders Here

Bay Area distributive education instructors, coordinators, and state officers have been invited to a meeting here by the Merchandising Club this Friday, April 6, Virginia Gohn, adviser, announced Monday.

The meeting has been called to discuss preliminary plans for the 1952 statewide convention of distributive education clubs which will be held in San Francisco.

The president of the state organization, who is a student of Contra Costa Junior College, and the vice-president of this district, who attends Vallejo Junior College, will attend the meeting.

"This will be a Bay Area effort," Miss Gohn said, "and we hope to interest other San Francisco schools, including high schools, in this project."

Contributions For Forum Due April 23

Students interested in submitting contributions to Forum Magazine are expected to meet the deadline, Monday, April 23, Kit Sornborger, chairman of the Forum Club, announced recently.

Members of the editorial committee for the organization have specifically stressed the need for humor and poetry.

Material may be given to Dorothy Mercer, Building 19, or John Gerstung, Building 4, advisers.

Cooperative Effort By Students Could Bring Much Needed Change

TRADITION at the college this time of the year provides that the subject of Phelan Avenue widening be considered.

Since the repetition of controversy year after year gets monotonous, this year it might be interesting to suggest something else, something of community interest, something in which every student of the college could work together, bringing a real sense of unity, cooperation, and friendliness to the campus.

Any suggestion of this type necessarily involves a small amount of planning, a small amount of discussion, and a great deal of good, hard work to carry it through to a successful conclusion.

The amount of work involved is the hub around which this plan revolves, for it would bring all students of the college into a creative effort which would benefit both the college and themselves. More important, it would give the students a spirit of working together for the good of all.

OF course there will be objections to this plan, for constructive ideas always find factions which oppose them. However, students desiring to carry through such an idea can, by community effort, overrule this opposition and develop the idea in spite of opposition.

So much for background. The plan itself is this:

The area just east of Building 19 and the cafeteria has long gone unused. If cleared of weeds and debris and planted with lawn it would make an ideal spot for students to spend leisure time between classes, and for intra-mural softball and football games. It would draw student interest in intra-mural games for it could be easily reached from all classrooms on the campus.

The work could be done by the students, thus giving them the feeling of doing something for the college, and helping to build a community spirit and it might perhaps provide the one common meeting ground for some of the activities here.

'The Gate Without A Keeper'

Students Make Their Own Way

Of the five gates through which the west campus can be entered, the one facing Plymouth Avenue is the least conventional. Though this gate near Building 9 is officially locked and closed, there are individuals whose arrival and departure from the campus is unhampered by the rusty lock.

Once long ago some enterprising soul cut a passageway through the wire screen just large enough for a small person to creep through. Students who live in the neighborhood and attend a nearby high school find the gate quite convenient as a short cut.

In the social circles, it is better known as the "gate without a keeper," since no pass, badge, or identification is needed.

Now and then a canine co-ed, her thirst for knowledge evidently slaked, hops through the opening and departs to impart her knowledge to less learned acquaintances.

The narrow gate on the far west corner of the west campus near Building 8 experiences heavy traffic and the ground beneath it has been worn into a groove by the hurrying feet of students sprinting from the K car to west campus 8 o'clock classes.

Those privileged ones who possess both cars and Associated Student cards drive through the portals which face Ocean Avenue, the main gate.

The two gates at the bottom of the hill on Phelan Avenue admit students hurrying from the main building to classes in the remote spots of the west campus within ten minutes. And students from the west hurry to classes located on the hill and down in the gymnasiums. As has been reported before, this is where east meets west.

College Men Agree: It's Women By Majority Vote

Men prefer women!

This conclusive fact was starkly illustrated last week when a sharp percentage of the inter-fraternity council decided by an overwhelming official vote that they would prefer only couples at their forthcoming Hayloft Hop, thus excluding the perennial "stag."

This precedent-setting action comes as a rude slap in the ego to the usually complacent line of men who are socially designated as stags.

The Hayloft Hop, scheduled Friday, April 6, will find only couples present.

Girl Has Close Calls And Learns To Fly On Own In Mid-Air

By Al Guthertz

Birds fly from birth, but Shirley Lewis, a freshman student here whose home is in Oakland, is probably one of the youngest women to "soar into the clouds" on record.

Interested in planes since she was 14, Miss Lewis has had her share of exciting moments ranging from near crack-ups to having to "bail out."

There was the time when she was forced to land in a small emergency field. The plane missed the field and landed in a small potato patch.

Another time everyone was told to bail out over the Sierra-Nevada mountain range; and then there was the incident with the stunt man pilot.

Miss Lewis gave the stunt man a dollar to take her up into the wild blue yonder. En route and in mid-air, something went wrong with the plane. The stunt man bailed out and Miss Lewis was left in the twisting, turning sputtering plane.

Did the young lass scream and jump? No! She took over the controls and nervously brought herself and the plane down to earth in a somewhat bumpy and shaky landing.

People gathered on the field cheered with delight; everyone patted Miss Lewis on the back; and the stunt man lost his license.

At present Shirley Lewis is a member of the CAP, along with several other City College students. Her plans for the future? Well, she would like to be a woman test pilot.

Camera Artist Exhibits Works At Art Shows

By Bob Reilly

Those who visited the Stage Door Theater Art Gallery at any time from February 15 to March 19 may have seen several lithographs by Carl Beetz, art anatomy instructor at the college and nationally recognized in the field of lithography.

Carl Beetz is also an instructor at the Academy of Advertising Art and the School of Arts and Crafts located in Oakland. He still finds time to display his work, however, and has done so at several one-man exhibitions and group showings.

In presenting a "one man show" at the De Young museum in the Golden Gate Park in 1944, Beetz's work was described by critics as "starkly realistic views of the 'backstage' life of jockeys, pugilists, race touts and shabby joints . . . which were portrayed with strength and drama."

Faculty member Beetz has also shown his skill at shows in the Los Angeles Museum and at the Chouinard Art Institute where he has held two individual shows and was an art instructor for approximately 10 years.

Other exhibits by lithographer Beetz include showings at the Water Color Show at the Denver Museum in 1938; the California Artists Drawing Exhibit in Los Angeles and the American Artists Congress Show.

Besides having his work presented in exhibits, Beetz received the honor of having two of his pictures accepted by the Library of Congress in 1945 as part of the Pennel Exhibitions of Prints.

They were titled, In the Bleachers, and Poker Players. For his pictures of this type, Beetz was complimented by the Christian Science Monitor for presenting "unadorned and truthful sketches of sporting life."

Beetz was born in San Francisco, studied at the Grand Central Art Students' League in New York, and has traveled in France, England and Italy.

Alfred Frankenstein, of the San Francisco Chronicle, has complimented Beetz for "a suhtle and very thorough understanding of lithography as a medium."

Old Timers Gone

Modern Policemen Have Diplomas

The activities of a modern day policeman are quite different from the billy club swinging, apple stealing cop of the Keystone Cop era, according to Fred Fitzgerald, head of the college's law enforcement department.

Fitzgerald, a ten year veteran of San Francisco's police department, is typical of the modern peace officer because he is a trained criminologist, having obtained his Master's degree at the University of California.

Through the cooperation of the downtown police department, he organized the campus police in the spring semester of 1948, the members being students in his law enforcement classes.

The course was first offered in 1939 but by the police department, under the direct supervision of the director of personnel of the department.

Today's campus policeman has the full police power of a blue-uniformed patrolman, the only exception being that his power is limited to the confines of the college area.

His chief duties, for which he receives compensation, are directing traffic, plus enforcing the observance of parking regulations.

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

EVER since Gertrude Ederle manipulated her plumpish five foot five body across the English Channel, women have been on the uprise in sports.

Nothing the male can do or say seems to discourage the weaker sex.

Babe Diederickson made her fame and fortune pushing a golf ball over a mild obstacle course to the dismay of old pros like Bobby Jones; and Sonja Heinie received more publicity gliding over a cake of ice during the last decade than any two male athletes, save Man of War.

The situation has come to the point where sports writers can no longer ignore the hapless woman but must resort to the recognition of her athletic prowess despite the boos of old and not so old enthusiasts.

Even here at the college, the fact that the woman in sports is up and coming finds proof by the decrease in the ratio of men to women; the boxing team, stroug and willing, can no longer find worthy opponents. There just aren't any.

An athlete is a peculiar animal. He reaches his peak during his early twenties and tapers off slowly, so with all teen-age men being drafted for an indefinite period, it seems that lace shorts will soon replace muscled legs off and on the gridiron.

We recently read where a new rubber football has been tested to carry on after the old pigskin (cowhide) has long petered out.

Sellers of the new football claim it will do better than the pigskin and has many sharper and enticing features. For instance, it will retain its shape longer, wear for years, and will be easier for the passer to grip.

It sounds good, so good we understand that Buck Shaw is going to try it out on Frankie Albert to see if his passing will improve.

Our opinion on the situation differs from that of the sellers. In the first place the pigskin represents tradition of a hundred years; in the second place the tricky bounces caused by a ball's flaws and the uncertainty of punts add innumerable thrills to the game, and in the third place Otto Graham needed no special type ball to pass his way into top National conference honors last year.

If the leather is taken out of the football, why not supply track teams with roller skates and replace the iron in shotputs with aluminum. Let's keep rubber balls on the touch field.

Tracksters Aim For Modesto Win Friday Afternoon

Returning from a 64-60 loss at the hands of Santa Rosa and a promise-filled, 86⅝-37½ victory over the University of San Francisco, the local tracksters aim their sights toward their meet this Friday against the powerful Modesto squad at Modesto.

The tracknien from vine-land are rated favorites on the basis of the 119-2 smashing they gave Stockton. The locals, in their first outing of the season, defeated Stockton 83½-37½.

The Santa Rosa meet, up in apple land, was a thriller down to the final tape-breaking. The Santa Rosa Bear Cubs behind, 60-59, with only the relay, the last event, necessary for a Ram triumph, came charging ahead for first place and victory.

Ram Lambert Rax's eight-yard win over teammate Ron Bauer in the mile run, highlighted the college's smashing victory over USF's Dons. Rax who showed great form and stamina when he came back to win the 880, won the mile in 4:44.9.

Running the 440 for the third time of his career, Fred Marx flashed by all competition to register a 53.6 win in the grueling event.

Vern Chambers, who is undefeated in meet competition, came through with his usual double victory in both hurdles as did Harry Wade's time-improving victory in the sprints and Cecil Bledsoe's triumphs in the pole vault and broad jump.

The USF win brought the season's total to two wins and one defeat.

WAA Hosts Badminton Play-Day Saturday

Members of the Women's Athletic Association will participate in a badminton play-day here on Saturday, April 21, Nancy Sparks, adviser, announced last week.

Miss Sparks said that play-day visitors will participate in both archery and tennis games.

Visiting colleges include Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo, Napa, and Vallejo.

Also planned for May 4 is a sport day at San Mateo, with golf competition the main feature.

Golf Team Triumphs Over SF State; Tennis Team Readies For Stockton

Fresh from registering a stinging 7 to 0 victory at the expense of Contra Costa Junior College, the local net squad will take the road Friday for a meet with the Mustangs of Stockton.

From the results of early season matches the backbone of the squad appears to be the doubles combination of Jack Hymes and Kevin Merrick. Teamed together for the first time in the Sacramento meet, the pair displayed outstanding ability.

Hymes and Merrick recently participated in a tournament held at Berkeley and reached the finals, being eliminated by a Stanford team that went on to win top honors.

Coach Diederichsen pointed out that the team's dismal record was caused by a lack of depth.

City College's golf team, under the sponsorship of Ralph Hillsman, won their first match of the year by thoroughly trouncing San Francisco State 27½ to 6½.

Low man for the Rams was Rodger Artoe who shot an 80.

Danny Banford and Bob Conlan who both shot 81's, beat State's third and fourth men eight and one.

Dick Rainfield and Dick Kuesh made the best win by beating a Gator twosome, 8½ and ½. They shot 90 and 88 respectively. Al Carver, who scored an 87, downed State's last man 6 and 4.

The scores were good, particularly since the team practices on its own time, and the meet was held on a temporary practice field, Hillsman declared.

Greenberg, Cranow Mentioned On All Conference Basketball Five

Selections for the 1951 Big Seven All-Star basketball five have been released by both San Mateo and Modesto Junior Colleges.

The picks were made by team coaches and sports editors of the conference newspapers and are as follows:

COACH SELECTIONS		EDITOR SELECTIONS
Dick Greenberg—CCSF	Forward	Dick Greenberg—CCSF
Ted Romanoff—Stockton	Forward	Jack Holmquist—San Mateo
Bob Albo—Contra Costa	Center	Curt Polzine—Modesto
Gene Sosnick—Stockton	Guard	Gene Sosnick—Stockton
Erv Bonner—San Mateo	Guard	Erv Bonner—San Mateo

The only other player from the Ram squad to be cited for season teamwork was Harvey Cranow who received honorable mention by both coach and editor selections.

Lack Of Opponents Ends Ram Boxing

By Ted Gould

City College participation in intercollegiate boxing has been cancelled for the balance of the semester because of the extreme difficulties of schedule planning, Roy Diederichsen, boxing coach, announced last week.

It will be the first time since 1916 that the college has failed to send forth a boxing contingent. The move was first anticipated last February when four colleges belonging to the Northern California Junior College Conference withdrew because of a shortage of talented material.

Action of the four colleges brought about the virtual death of the boxing conference.

Retirement of boxing as a major sport in the college's athletic program is not to be permanent, Diederichsen said. The sport is expected to be reinstated next year.

The move is expected to strengthen the position of intramural boxing considerably, he added, and the athletic department is now formulating plans for an impressive intramural program to be climaxed by a mammoth tournament scheduled for late May.

Ram boxing teams, under the coaching of Diederichsen, have been recognized as among the top flight squads on the coast in recent years.

Block SF Awards Go To Hoopsters Friday

Basketball Coach Ralph Hillsman will present members of the basketball team with their blocks at the rally scheduled this Friday, Rod DeCristofaro, Block SF president, announced Monday.

DeCristofaro also announced the beginning last Saturday of construction of a scroll near the west campus gate commemorating the Block SF members who have entered the armed services. The scroll will be dedicated upon completion in several weeks. Work is being done by Block SF volunteers.

Change in the society's officers was made because of the resignation of Phil Marcus, secretary, who was replaced by Al Endress.

State Trounces College Nine 7-6

A pepped up college nine, bouncing off a 7-6 loss to San Francisco State last Tuesday, hopes to reverse the situation against the Bank of America team today.

Facing the Banksters for the second time this season, the Ram squad should be able to throttle their opponents with but little trouble. The first game was called because of darkness and ended in a 4-4 tie.

The game with State came to a thrilling close, as in the ninth inning the Rams held the lead by a 6 to 3 margin and then the impossible happened when Joe Palfino turned a double play into a State victory, hobbling the ball as he caught a steaming horsehide off the hat of State's Hook Arata.

For the Rams, Rudimetkin and Palfino knocked out two hits, while Al McCarthy, Dick Krueger and Al Nicora collected one each.

This afternoon's game will precede an important game with Contra Costa scheduled this Friday for Golden Gate Park.

The Contra Costa game will mark the Rams' debut against top-notch competition.

Volleyball Team Signup Due Today

Intramural volleyball signups will be due today at 5 p.m., according to a statement released by Director Tom Wilson.

The teams are limited to from six to eight players, with all men in attendance at the college eligible for competition in the event.

Participants must be on the courts in the men's gymnasium within ten minutes of the scheduled times of 3:10 and 4:10 p.m., or the team will be disqualified by forfeit, Wilson warned.

All members of the championship team will be awarded gold-plated belt buckles.

The champs, along with the runners-up, will probably face State in another inter-college rivalry for the intramural volleyball crown.

CIRCUSES, smorgasbords, and international dinners hold the spotlight as selected themes for the second affairs of campus sororities.

Straight from the big top, Phi Beta Rho will have hot dogs and all the other goodies to be had at any three-ring circus. The first show starts at seven tomorrow night.

Delta Psi plans an Italian dinner for tonight at the Fox Hostess, while Alpha Lambda Chi staged its Fiesta Merienda last night.

Rushes to Kappa Phi will be trying to manipulate chop sticks this Sunday, April 8, at the home of Betsey Stewart, when the Kappas hold their traditional Chinese dinner.

Zeta Chi held a smorgasbord dinner last Sunday, April 1.

Still more officers!

Tri-E dignitaries are Steve Hirsch, president; Ed Woodhouse, vice-president; Gary Maaske, secretary; Ray Nelson, treasurer; and Ron Lienau, historian.

Alpha Sigma Delta leaders are Bob Smirle, president; Don Moseley vice-president; John Swett, recording secretary; Fred Schrani, corresponding secretary; and Dick Topham, treasurer.

Beta Tau announces that its officers are Maurice O'Brien, president; John Allen, vice-president; Dick Szukalski, recording secretary; Pete Chevrier, treasurer; and Steve Lombardi, historian.

Newman Club plans a meeting for tonight at 7:30 at St. Emydius Hall, Jules and DeMonford Streets.

Election of officers and a movie on electricity are scheduled for this college hour, Friday, April 6, for the Engineering Society, in Room 204.

City College Hillel and State Hillel will hold a joint dance at the Sherith Israel Temple House Sunday evening, April 22.

Monterey High School Group Visits College

Students from the cooking class of Monterey Union High School will visit the Hotel and Restaurant Department Thursday morning, April 5, Hilda Watson, department head, announced.

This tour was arranged by Arnold J. Edman, Director of Guidance at Monterey High School, for the purpose of interesting students in Hotel and Restaurant work as a career to meet the demand for trained workers in these fields in the Peninsula area.

A party of 19 students and faculty from the School of Hotel Administration, Washington State College, arrived in San Francisco Sunday night, April 1, and had breakfast at the college Monday, April 2, at 8:30 a.m., as guests of the Hotel and Restaurant Department.

Mardi Gras Booth Petitions Available

Petitions for Mardi Gras booths and the king-queen contest may be obtained in the Associated Students office, Building 2, any Monday or Wednesday at 11 a.m., Doug Smith, Associated Men Student president, announced yesterday.

Quartet Returns Here For Concert Tomorrow

The Beyer String Quartet will appear for a repeat performance by popular request tomorrow morning, April 5, at 11 a.m., as a feature of the free concert series in the west campus auditorium, Meyer Cahn, orchestra director, announced today.

Helen Beyer, violin; Elaine Beyer, cello; Erwin Gordon, viola; and Leo Armajian, violin, compose the quartet. Aramjian is a former City College student.

All A Cappella Choir members will be excused from regular class to attend the concert. Cahn invited all students to attend the performance.

Production Manager, Workshop Director Set New Opera Dates

Dates for the two Opera Workshop productions originally scheduled for Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20, were changed last week to Friday and Saturday, May 18 and 19, according to an announcement from Flossita Badger, workshop director, and Edwin C. Browne, faculty production manager.

A recent flu epidemic which hit the campus necessitated the change of dates, Browne and Miss Badger explained.

"While it would have been possible to go on with the performance as originally planned," Miss Badger said, "we did not feel it was fair to the cast and to those concerned to go through too extensive a rehearsal schedule."

The two operas, Amelia Goes to the Ball, by Gian-Carlo Menotti, and Christopher Smith, by Robert Morton, college music instructor, will be presented at Riordan High School Auditorium, Phelan and Judson Avenues.

Meanwhile, faculty and student groups met with Browne and Miss Badger last week to formulate plans for the operas. Ticket sales, make-up, publicity, ushering, and other committees were formed to handle the work connected with a venture of this type.

Brown released a list of additional patrons to the operas. They include the following:

Mrs. George E. Bennett; Mrs. Louis Benoist; Dr. L. S. Cherney; Grover A. Magnin; Mrs. Norman Livermore; Mrs. Leon C. Smith; James Schwabacher; Mrs. Benjamin H. Swig; and Ione Pastori Rix.

National Guard Unit Urges Students To Join; Classified Men Ineligible

The 112th Anti-Aircraft Artillery National Guard unit offers students of the college a chance to join a reserve outfit without any immediate threat of mobilization, John S. Breed, chief of the intelligence section of the brigade, revealed yesterday.

Because of the new draft law which will permit the inducting of 18-year-olds into the service, Breen declared that there probably will be no rush on mobilizing the National Guard units.

Since young draftees will possibly be the greatest sources [illegible] ment in the front line, eligible students would benefit by joining the 112th AAA unit, Breed added.

If complete mobilization does occur, this particular unit would most likely remain in the United States because the brigade is set up as an instruction unit, he said.

Complete information is obtainable at the administration office of the National Guard Armory, 1800 Mission Street.

When the new law goes into effect, men already classified by the draft board will not be able to join any reserve organization, Breed emphasized, therefore all interested students are urged to look into the National Guard immediately.

The 112th unit meets every Monday from 8 to 10 p.m. and also once each month weekend drills consisting of 10 hours of drill, are held. A private in the Guard receives a regular base pay of $2.50 for every two hours of drill.

A two week summer camp at Camp Irwin is also included in the activities with full army pay and allowances.

Advancement will depend more on attendance and completion of at least one sub-course including eight hours of work during each general army ten-series, Breed declared, than on knowledge.

Total Enrollment 3824 Day Students

Enrollment figures released by registrar Mary Jane Learnard last week show that the number of regular day students registered at the college has reached 3824.

Men outnumber the women about two to one. The total number of men on the campus is 2642, and women 1182.

There are 456 first semester men students at the college, 683 second semester, 317 third semester, and 1186 fourth semester.

Women students in their first semester number 240, second semester 453, third semester 119, and fourth semester 369.

Registrar's Office Announces Deadline For Dropping Courses

Last day for filing petitions for dropping courses is Wednesday, April 11, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned students [illegible]

Students intending to drop a course should visit their counselor and obtain a petition for dropping the course, Miss Learnard explained. The petitions should then be filed with the registrar's office on the second floor of Building 3, she added.

More than 500 petitions for graduation have been filed with the registrar's office, she said. Although the deadline for filing petitions was March 9, they will still be accepted, she added.

Counsellors will begin to interview students on Monday, April 16, for enrollment in the summer session in addition to the fall semester, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

Students can make appointments for interviews immediately by going to the counselling office, Marsh continued.

Enrollment will be conducted numerically, and a special block of numbers has been reserved for the members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, he added.

In the past two weeks counsellors of the college have been visiting senior classes of Bay Area high schools to help students plan their college schedule and tell them about the college's two-year technical and vocational education.

Debaters Meet Gaels Speech Contest Set

A debate was held March 27 between University of California and City College on the topic, Should Federal Government Subsidize College Students of Outstanding Ability. Today the same topic will be debated by college students with Saint Mary's.

The speakers representing the college are Joe Schwab and Bill Ratcliffe.

This year's Annual Speech Tournament will be held at Bakersfield, California, between the college and Bakersfield College on Friday and Saturday, April 13 and 14. The tournament will be divided into four kinds of speaking: debate, extemporaneous speaking, impromptu speeches and original oratory.

The glamour and glitter of television will combine efforts with the talents of the college photography department to produce a 13 week photography show designed for the ordinary amateur beginning Sunday, April 15, Beverley Pasqualetti, chairman of the photography department, announced today.

Operation Education is presented by KRON-TV, who will carry the program featuring Pasqualetti as co-ordinator, producer, director, and master of ceremonies. The college photography department is now scheduled to appear for seven of these weekly shows on every alternate Sunday.

The first show offers a general presentation on how to handle the camera and necessary equipment. Although the show is designed primarily for the true amateur, professionals and avid fans will be able to learn a good number of pointers, Pasqualetti added.

During the program an announcement for Vacations in San Francisco, photographic contest, will be made. Rules for entry to the contest include name, address and phone must be on back of prints; no prints will be returned; all judges' decisions are final; awards will be made for the best shot of San Francisco.

The winner will be awarded a cup for his work on the television show of Sunday, April 22. Deadline for prints will be Wednesday, April 18.

Pasqualetti will accept entries in Building 9, Room 4d. In addition to the contest announcement, Walter Swanson, president of the San Francisco Convention and Tourist Bureau, will appear as guest speaker.

Year-Old 100 Per Cent AS Ruling To Go Before Referendum Vote During College Hour Friday

Opera Workshop Presents Preview Of Productions

Members of the Opera Workshop gave the American Association of University Women a short resûme of the workshop's May productions that are scheduled for Friday and Saturday, May 18 and 19.

Three of the opera casts were present as vocalists and did excerpts from the productions, Christopher Smith and Amelia Goes to the Ball.

The three, Irene Sherman and Cynthia Burke, sopranos, and William Mosley, tenor, appeared with Robert Morton, director of the workshop and composer of Christopher Smith, and Flossita Badger, Opera Workshop director, who gave a brief summary of the operas.

Along the same lines, the A Cappella Choir, under the student direction of Bill Richmond, will be the guests at a luncheon given by the Kiwanis Club, Tuesday, May 8. This appearance of the choir has become almost an annual event since the choir was begun, according to Miss Badger.

Also on the music department's agenda, is the cutting of the record of the college's new fight song, played by the band and sung by a group of male voices. The words, written by Charlie Robertson, a band member, are sung to the march, Our Director.

Program Set For Public School Week Observance

A special observance to mark the annual San Francisco Public Schools Week will occur Monday, April 23, here on the campus in Building 1, according to information received last week from Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses at the college.

Several lodges will be feted at a dinner here. Among the lodges in attendance will be the Masonic Lodge, San Francisco Lodge, Alta Vista Lodge, Forest Hill Lodge and Occidental Lodge.

To further observe the event, an art display exhibiting the work of several art students will appear in one of the windows of the Emporium, William Eckert, advertising art instructor, announced.

Displays from the ceramics, architecture, graphic arts, photography, and commercial art classes of Roy Walker, Wilton Weldman, George Mullany, Beverly Pasqualetti, and Eckert, will be shown during the entire week.

Marsh Announces Summer Courses

Summer session courses are posted on various bulletin boards throughout the campus and in the counselling office, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, said yesterday.

More than 500 graduation petitions have been filed with the registrar's office in Building 3 since March 9. Refusals for granting graduation have been made if the student has not met the stipulated requirements, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, warned last week.

These denials may be changed by meeting the requirements at summer session or in another semester at the college, she added.

It is now too late to file petitions for removing incompletes, graduation, and dropping courses, she concluded.

World Conditions And Draft Influence Summer Employers Of Students

Unsettled world conditions and the draft are influencing employers in their hiring of summer help, placement director Joseph A. Amori revealed in an interview last week.

In certain industries personnel shortages may be reflected in late hiring for summer jobs, Amori said, as those who were hired earlier are called up by the draft.

A special demand for personnel with clerical and typing skills, knowledge of office machines, stenography, and an aptitude for figures has been made by business and governmental agencies in the Bay Area, Amori said.

The Commerce Department on April 7 issued a revised list of essential activities to act as a guide for deferment of military service, which excludes printing and publishing (newspapers included), government activities, wholesale and retail trade, banking, real estate, tobacco products and the textile and motion picture industries.

Medical Verification Of Absence Necessary

All students applying for permits to return to class after doctor or dentist apointments, are urged to remember that some verification from the doctor or dentist must be brought to the attendance officer, according to an announcement issued by Edwin C. Browne, dean of men.

All excuses must be applied for within one week of the absence at the attendance office in Building 2, Room 2.

Cardholders Will Decide Validity; Two Thirds Vote Needed For Change

By Bob Reilly

A referendum to put the validity of the 100 per cent ruling up to the Associated Students in a college hour to be held Friday, April 20, was suggested, and recommended to members of the Student Council, in a meeting held April 12, by its author, Finance Chairman Pete Chevrier.

Chevrier said that in view of the present situation it is the duty of the student leaders to get the necessary 10 per cent of the Associated Students to sign the referendum and put it before all A.S. card holders in assemblage at the special college hour.

He ascertained that it would require exactly 113 signatures to bring about the machinery for a referendum.

"It was thought that if it (the referenduin) was brought to the students and two-thirds of them vote to repeal the 100 per cent law then it is justifiable if the law goes down the drain," Chevrier continued.

"If, however, a small amount of the vote goes to throwing out the measure then the council is justified in taking a stand against violators of the ruling."

Bart Dempster added an opinion in stating to the council members that before the council can take action to force anybody to buy an Associated Student card, it is best to take the issue before the Associated Student organization so it can decide the Student Council's future steps. It was later pointed out that if two-thirds of the vote expresses its opinion, the council does not have the last word.

The final but unofficial word was echoed by Joe Azzolino who said that it would be best if the issue were left to the vote of the assembled Associated Students at the special meeting.

Nation's Capitol In College Hour Film

"Washington, Shrine of American Patriotism," will be shown students on Friday, April 20, through the college hour film series, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, announced yesterday.

The color movie, an Associated Film, takes students on a tour of the nation's capital, Devlin said. Historical monuments and air shots of important sites like the Pentagon building, the White House, and the Library of Congress will be featured, he continued.

The film will be run twice in Room 136 of the main building for the students who are busy during college hour: the first showing is at 10 a.m. and the second during college hour, 10:40 a.m.

AS Members To Make Ballot Vote

Associated Students will voice their decisions as to the validity of the controversial, now one-year-old 100 per cent law ruling Friday, during college hour, in the auditoriun, Ralph Vetterlein, AS president, said late last week.

Only AS card holders may vote in the referendum, which is expected to settle the current dispute on campus. The ruling, passed March 2, 1950, says any organization drawing funds from the Associated Students, must have 100 per cent AS membership before they can draw such funds from the AS budget.

A two-thirds majority of votes cast at the AS membership meeting Friday, according to the AS constitution, is needed to rescind the law.

Printed ballots will be used to count votes on the referendum, Vetterlein said.

Finance Committee Chairman Pete Chevrier said he was circulating the petition calling for the referendum, and that 113 signatures were needed before such a petition could be submitted by Vetterlein to the Associated Students Friday.

The 113 signatures is 10 per cent of the total AS membership. (Membership this semester is 1123, according to council spokesmen.)

The current dispute broke out this semester because 12 members of The Guardsman staff, according to a report from Vetterlein and Chevrier, were not AS members.

As a result—and according to the 100 per cent law—The Guardsman budget was frozen Thursday, April 4, resulting in suspension of last week's issue, and until settlement could be reached.

The Referendum—One Hundred Per Cent Rule Up For Vote

ASSOCIATED Students vote on the controversial 100 per cent ruling Friday, in referendum.

Provisions for referendum by the Associated Students are included in the AS Constitution. A referendum, according to the Constitution, requires first, signatures of ten per cent of the AS members before it may be presented at a meeting of the association for a ballot vote.

The referendum before the association this Friday concerns the 100 per cent rule which states that anything financed by the Associated Students must have 100 per cent membership in its personnel before drawing funds.

Steps that have led to this referendum are (1) the difficulty of enforcement; (2) interruption or cancellation of activities; (3) lack of any consistent provision for earning cards for those who cannot financially afford to pay $5 for membership.

The Guardsman believes there is no question that the year-old ruling came because AS finances were dangerously low. But in view of the difficulties of making this rule fair and equitable to all, the question of its wisdom is likewise before the 1123 Associated Student members in a student body of nearly 4000.

THROUGHOUT its fifteen and a half year history, The Guardsmas has consistently promoted its belief that EVERY STUDENT PROFITS BY JOINING THE ASSOCIATED STUDENTS.

The 100 per cent rule, however, because of the aforementioned enforcement problems, amounts to personal coercion, and has at no time seemed to The Guardsman to be of reasonable assistance to the rapidly decreasing finances of the association.

IT HAS SEEMED TO PREVENT, RATHER THAN TO ENCOURAGE WIDESPREAD PARTICIPATION IN COLLEGE LIFE AND ACTIVITIES.

Tragedy Of Young Lovers

Instructor Composes Opera

By Nini Algeltinger

Not many colleges can boast that their forthcoming opera production was composed by one of their own music instructors. City College is one of the few.

Credit for Christopher Smith, being presented by the Opera Workshop on May 18 and 19, goes to Robert Morton, instructor of music history, harmony, and composition at the college. He wrote the story then wove the libretto and orchestration around it.

Christopher Smith, a one-act tragedy, tells of a lovesick painter. He is thwarted in his suit of Louisa, with whose portrait he is obsessed, by the over-possessiveness of his only surviving relation, an older sister, Margot.

The tragic opera is dedicated to the memory of Conrad E. Dorn, one of Morton's most talented students here, who was killed during the retreat from the Chungam Reservoir in North Korea on November 28, 1950.

Twenty-one-year-old Dorn wrote, during his two and one-half years at the college, two string quartets, two chorus numbers, four piano pieces, one song, two fugues, one sonata, and a number for oboe and piano.

In addition to composing Christopher Smith, Morton has written choral pieces, sonatas, string quartets, and small piano and violin pieces.

Maintenance Head Raises Orchids

Orchids are not usually thought of in connection with maintenance, but at this college the two are almost synonymous.

Reason for this is the fact that Phineas Schlesenger, who has headed the maintenance department for five years, raises them as a hobby. He first became interested in flowers when a child, because his parents always had elaborate gardens.

Varieties of orchids run up into the thousands and they come from all over the world, but to import them into this country requires a license, which is very difficult to obtain. Schlesenger's high standing in the orchid field is revealed by the fact that he does have a license.

Schlesenger never sells any of his orchids, since he raises them for the sheer enjoyment of it. However, friends will frequently find themselves presented with a corsage or bouquet of the expensive flowers.

TV Mother

'Mom' Loves To Talk About The Children

True to the mother's creed, Pat Rand, a journalism student at the college, enjoys talking about her children.

She has two: a boy and a girl, and is just as proud of one as the other. And the daughter, 12 years old, is a television and stage actress.

Young Miss Rand plays the role of "Janie, the Gossipy Cat," on "Aunt Lolly's" television program. The show, presented Mondays through Thursdays each week over KGO-TV each evening at 6 p.m., is a great favorite of the little ones, according to Mother Rand, but as yet has no sponsor.

The daughter studies under "Aunt Lolly," at the San Francisco Repertory theatre.

At present the young man of the family is ill with influenza, which prompted an important decision on Mrs. Rand's part: she is giving up college for her children.

"Being a mother," says Mrs. Rand, "is a full time job. And when I say job, I mean work."

Wandering Minstrel

Lost-Found Gets The 'Shirt Off His Back'

By Al Guthertz

Strong evidence exists that a wandering minstrel has recently enrolled at the college, Bob Connolly, head of the lost-and-found department, announced recently.

Bulk of the evidence is contained in a bright plaid shirt that was recently brought to the lost-and-found department.

Although there is nothing out of the ordinary about the shirt itself, there is some source of amazement about the pockets of the shirt. The contents of the pockets, to be exact.

Apparently planning to stay around the campus for a short time, the roving vagabond who lost the shirt had carefully filled his pockets with his daily needs.

The items found included: cigarettes, a handkerchief, soap, no money, tooth-paste, tooth-brush and a small, battered razor. The other pocket had everything from shoelaces to aviator's goggles.

At last report the shirt was still in the department's safekeeping. Plans were being formulated, rumors indicated, for a circular asking students to report all shirtless and bathless persons.

Students Hear Tale Of Gems And Murder

By Chester Pennington

Behind the glamor of madame's diamonds lurks a sinister tale of anguished toil and slavery in the diamond mines of the Belgian Congo and The Union of South Africa. In the early days of the diamond industry, rulers of India waged wars and treacherously murdered helpless victims for these glittering gems.

Students of the college learned all kinds of interesting tales about diamond history from Gladys Hanniford during her recent lecture here. Miss Hanniford makes lecturing tours throughout the universities and colleges of the nation, representing De Beers Consolidated Diamond Mines.

Reflections . . .

By Doug Hayward

TWO or three hundred thousand 18-year-olds are up against the wall in America today. They can read magazines and newspapers and go to lectures and listen to the radio and discuss the whole thing, and so what.

What's done is done, and all that indulging in the favorite American pastime (criticizing the "administration") will get them is a set of sore tonsils and maybe even a nasty letter from Dean Acheson if they're lucky.

But here's a thought that maybe no college male has thought of yet: isn't it being slightly over-done? Aren't the potential draftees feeling a little too sorry for themselves in particular, when the problems of today belong to everybody? Why all the fuss about college males, high-grade averages, I.Q. tests and determents when the prospect of war belongs to everyone in the world today.

Instead of griping about being drafted, why aren't the students at this college forming clubs to investigate today's problems and holding forums to discuss them?

For instance, William O. Douglas, a justice of the Supreme Court, instead of crying "Atom Bomb!" and "War Is Inevitable!" said just recently: "The United States will not head into another war . . ." And Eleanor Roosevelt commented in the American press only a few days ago that she was disgusted by the apparent delight Americans took in the day-by-day announcements of Chinese killed.

Humanity and hope for peace are dead when people begin to rejoice at the news of "napalm" being dropped on North Korean troops.

Incidentally—about that I.Q. deal: has it been brought out that the tests are inconclusive in the first place, and unfair in the second place? Ever punished an animal for being dumb? Or a human for not being bright?

When control gets to the point that people can be told to fight because they aren't extra-deluxe smart, it's a step along the road toward discrimination, segregation and the theories laid down by the "little corporal" in Mein Kampf.

And if you can't say so, then that's totalitarianism, too.

Speaking of 18-year-olds (and don't they wish that everyone would just go away and leave them alone) the Massachusetts State House of Representatives had quite an argument on whether or not a man old enough to fight is old enough to vote. No, said the rep's. Keep 'em out of bars and off the streets at night and let 'em fight, but don't give them the right to vote.

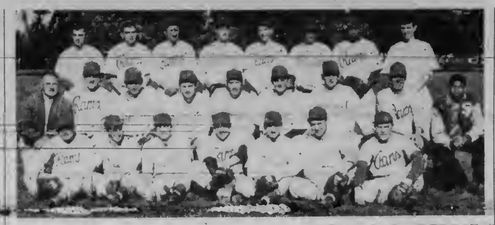
RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

SO far this year the Seals and the Rams have closely paralleled each other on the baseball diamond. The Seals, losing their first 13 games, finally, last week, came through with several victories after everyone had given them up for lost.



So as did the Seals, the Rams also began to pull victories from the air and as of last week had won 3 out 4 in a row, giving Fischer's loyal followers a ray of hope. We are sure that the team will now be respected in conference play despite the poor showing so far, as the Seals are beginning to do to the wonderment of all loyal fans and the not-so-loyal fans, particularly from Oakland.

An interesting aspect of sports that never receives enough publicity is the use of the natural yearn in men to participate actively in competition, in the rehabilitation of disabled veterans.

To instill the feeling of confidence in a man who lost an arm or leg posed quite a problem and was partially solved by handicapped men who had gone through similar situations who offered their experience as examples.

An outstanding example of a man who succeeded despite a handicap was Bob Tomlinson of the college, who despite the loss of an arm in an accident, became a member of the golf team and proceeded to whip the stuffing out, of his seemingly physical superiors.

With the coaching of Ralph Hillsman he went on to become not only a member of the golf team but an important member, holding his own against all competition and helping to bring second place honors to the college.

HOPING to pull forth with victory and repeat as Southern Division champs, the Ram squad poses in force. The team, led by smiling Bill Fischer, although off to a slow start, has just begun to "bring home the bacon" by winning three in a row.—Photo by Weiss.

Ram Nine Bounces Off Losing Streak; SF State, Modesto Next On Schedule

By John Baird

Riding high on a three out of four winning streak, the score-hungry Rams face stiff competition in the form of the Gators from State Francisco State this Tuesday at Big Rec, Seventh and Lincoln Way, in Golden Gate Park.

The Ram's next conference game will be a double header against Modesto Saturday, April 28, at Big Rec. City College has a 1-3 record in conference play, while Modesto has exactly the opposite, 3-1. So far in season competition, the Rams have won six, lost eight, and tied one.

In games last week and the week before the Rams edged the Bank of America 7-5, the Presidio, 4-3, and Contra Costa in a return match 4-1; then they slipped against the Cal Frosh, losing by a 19-3 margin.

It was the hitting of George Zucca and the pitching of Al Tivio that gave the locals the victory. Zucca got two timely hits, a double and a single, and Tivio gave up only five hits and whiffed seven Contra Costa swatters.

Nicora, Rudimetkin, Pantoleon and Tivio each got a single apiece. The Rams also sparkled afield as well as behind the bat, they pulled three double plays and committed only three errors.

The Bank of America game was an easy victory as the Rams outhit the Bankers 14-6.

Combined, the teams made nine errors, five for City College and four for the Bank of America. La Costa and Robertson pitched for City College.

In the Presidio game, Martin went the whole way giving up only seven hits.

Fischer expressed hope that the team will launch itself into a sustained drive for conference honors after a faulty start.

'Pappy' Waldorf Cancels College Hour Visit Here

Lynn "Pappy" Waldorf, who was scheduled to attend a meeting of the Block SF Society last Friday, expressed his deep regret that due to other commitments he could not be present.

He sent in his place pictures of the 1950 Rose Bowl game between the University of California and Michigan. Waldorf also stated that he hopes to be able to visit the college at a later date.

Members of the society are holding their next business meeting Friday, April 20, during which time they will discuss plans for this year's Mardi Gras, Red DeCristofaro announced last week.

A joint meeting with the Delta Psi sorority will be held at the home of Harvy Cranow Wednesday, April 25, DeCristofaro also stated.

Work on the society's honor roll will begin this week-end in earnest, providing the lumber arrives as scheduled. The roll is to be situated near the west campus gate and will bear the names of ex-members who are now in the armed services.

Netters Prepare For Santa Rosa

Ram netters, by administering a 7 to 0 shellacking to the Modesto Mustangs Friday, April 6, signed a lease on the first division of the Northern California Junior College Conference.

The local contingent, boasting a record of three wins and two losses, is currently resting in fourth place with the hopes of nailing down a loftier position as the season progresses, Coach Roy Diederichsen declared.

At the Stockton meet, Al Robinson replaced Jack Hymes, who in previous matches had performed with Kevin Merrick in the number one doubles position. Hymes now teams with Monroe Kaplan in the second doubles spot, while Frank Evans challenges Bob Lacampagne for the number five spot, Diederichsen said.

The team also collided with Santa Rosa Junior College on the latter's own court, but results were unavailable at press time.

Tentatively scheduled by the local squad is a journey to Modesto the first week of May to partake in the conference championship tournament, providing the team maintains first division standing, Diederichsen added.

Conference standings to date are as follows: first place, Modesto, the defending champion; tied for second, Sacramento and San Mateo, followed by City College, Santa Rosa, Contra Costa, and Stockton in that order.

Intramural Football Signups Due In May 1

With intramural volleyball newly underway, and tennis, badminton, and pingpong nearing completion, intramural director Thomas Wilson announced Tuesday, May 1, as the tentative deadline date for intramural touch-football signups.

Touch-football, a popular medium for active intramural participants, will be officiated by recreational leadership students, who will use the usual football regulations with a few exceptions.

The games, played on the full length and width of the college's field, will be divided into 25 minute halves, starting at 3:10 and 4:10 p.m., with a ten-minute maximum before a forfeit will be called.

Teams, who will be allowed five downs for a 20-yard gain first down, will consist of eight players with two or more as substitutes. Cleated shoes are prohibited in all the contests.

Cindermen Meet San Mateo Here In Season Closer

As quickly as it came, the college conference track schedule will end next Friday, May 20, against San Mateo at the Riordan High School oval here.

The Rams, following the San Mateo meet, will devote themselves to the all-important Big Seven Conference meet at Stockton, May 4 and 5.

Despite their losing performance against the "USC" of the conference, Modesto, in a triangular meet with San Jose Frosh, the locals are favored because of the improved results registered by the team.

Going into the Modesto meet, dual hurdler Vern Chambers' best time in the 120 high hurdles was 15.6, but since the "conditioning" weather has set in, the former all-city ace was able to register a 15.1 time and break the existing school record of 15.5 for the event.

Quarter miler Fred Marx, running in his sixth 440 this season in conference play, was able to erase two seconds off his old time and come through with a 51.1 achievement.

Last year's state mile champion, Ron Bauer, also registered his best time of the current season. The former Washington High flash upped his mile time to 4:41 for third place in the event behind Modesto's first placer, Curtis Casey, who ran the mile in the conference season's best time of 4:31, and Paul Bowen of the San Jose State Frosh.

WAA To Attend Mateo Play-Day May 4

The Women's Athletic Association will participate in a play-day at San Mateo Junior College on Friday, May 4, at 3:30 p.m., Nancy Sparks, adviser, announced yesterday.

Miss Sparks said that the play-day will consist of tournaments in badminton and tennis. The golf competition which was originally planned has been cancelled because of the lack of golf players.

If any students are interested in golf, they should sign up down in the women's gymnasium, Miss Sparks said.

From White Belt To Black Belt—Judo Hopefuls Have Capable Teacher

By Don Stephens

Competitors in sports, as an incentive, are constantly striving to achieve the pinnacle of success in their respective sport.

Diminutive "Duke" Moore is the college judo instructor and is an outstanding example of a person who has achieved his deserved reward.

With size as a handicap, but with brains as an asset, "Duke" went through all the phases of judo nbility awards from White belt, the newcomer's award, to the Black belt—symbol of superiority in the age-old sport of Japanese wrestling.

His prize pupil, who followed him from Moore's formerly owned American Judo Academy, is Black Belter Emello Augustine.

Augustine sparked the college judo team to an unprecedented victory over competing bay area colleges and several Japanese judo clubs in a tourney last year.

Moore and his men have had a tough time in establishing themselves as a group capable of recognition. Although their equipment is relatively sparse (mats and robes), they are without Associated Student funds.

When they won the match over bay area colleges and competing Japanese judo clubs, they were without official sanction to represent the college.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Gracene Brown

STEP right inside and have your fortune told, be married by ever-loving Marrying Sam, and win as many prizes as you can carry.

Club organizations are launching plans for the annual college Mardi Gras scheduled for Friday, May 25, which is contrary to the English translation of Mardi Gras—fat Tuesday.

Save a few pennies for it won't cost you two dollars to be "married" by Alpha Sigma Delta's justice of the peace, Marrying Sam alias Bob Van Austen.

Looking inside the crystal ball Delta Psi's Madame Zara promises to reveal the past, present and future this coming gala night, so step right up for immediate consultation.

What would the Mardi Gras be without a penny pitch? Kappa Phi assures the would-be venturers of a fair game with many pennies to be won.

Pick and Hammer society was recently versed upon the geological region of Antarctica when Dr. Howard of Stanford University lectured to the group during his visit to the college. Dr. Howard also showed slides of the region.

Pledges of Tri-E entertained members of both Tri-E and its sister sorority Alpha Lambda Chi, at a joint meeting held at Dick Hughes' home during hell week.

The Inter-Sorority Council announces that its annual dance will be held Saturday night, May 12, at the Palace Hotel.

For a closer fellowship, the Canterbury Club met for mass with a breakfast immediately following, at the St. Francis parish last Friday, April 13.

With the rigors of hell week over, Phi Beta Delta announces that the Spring semester pledges are Jim Allan, Carl Greenly, Jerry Ryan, Dick Thomas, Dennis Hull, Don McClean, Don Stephens, Gene Perry, Lee Fauts and Mel Watkins.

Newman Club meets tonight at 7:30 at St. Emydius Hall, Jules and De-Montford streets.

Variety Show Heads Mardi Gras Program

One of the featured activities scheduled for the Mardi Gras Friday, May 25, is a variety show put on by the drama department of the college, Doug Smith, Associated Men Students president, announced yesterday.

During the evening there will be two performances of the production, Smith said.

Other activities set for the festival include a dance in the student lounge and more than 25 carnival booths placed around the west campus parking lot.

Ushering Jobs Open To Women Students

All women students are welcome to assist with the ushering at the Opera House and the Civic Auditorium, whenever an affair is going on at either of these places, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced recently.

There are available free passes for those students who are interested in ushering. Any student interested may apply in Building 2.

Air Raid Signal Systems And Rules Listed, Clarified

An air raid siren, recently installed by the city of San Francisco, has now been placed atop the main building, Ca[illegible] controller, stated yesterday.

All students should become acquainted with the various air raid signals, Anderson warned. The warning itself is five long blasts, repeated several times. When students hear this warning, they should proceed to places of shelter.

For students in the west campus, the auditorium, the lower floor of Building 3, the upper floor of Building 4, and other such locations offer the best security. Best protection is afforded in places with a minimum amount of window glass, and students should not remain out in the open.

In both gymnasiums, the drying rooms make excellent shelters.

Rooms 100 and 136 afford good shelter in the basement corridors of the main building.

When students reach shelter, they should remain at their post until the all clear is sounded. This is one long ring on the various campus bells.

Students are reminded to remain at shelter until the all clear is sounded, and should hurry to shelter at the first sound . . . the five long blasts.

The air raid warning system does not come under the supervision of the campus at all, but is under the control of the San Francisco Police department, Anderson concluded.

Summer Cottons Will Be Featured At AWS Fashion Tea April 26

Cottons in the Sun has been selected as the theme for the fashion show and tea, Thursday, April 26, honoring prospective women students of the college, Gloria Naccarini, president of the Associated Women Students, announced.

The affair, which is presented semi-annually by AWS, will feature current spring fashions from Hastings store for women.

Playing hostess to the high seniors of various Bay Area high schools, the organization has selected Ester Ossin, Norma Paterson, Joan Norman, Joan Spencer, Marlene Vilas, Pat Wellman, Diane Bickles, Mary Lee Jenkins and Odell Woods as their models.

Substitute models, who were chosen at random, are Barbara Lane, Jacqueline Jeffries, Marilyn Vogel, Thelma Doelger, Ilene Hare and Pat Kloth.

Members of the Treble Clef, women's choir, will provide a musical setting for the show, Gertrude Norgard, director of the group, announced. They will sing several selections during fashion and scene changes.

Patt Wilson, who appeared as Mrs. McPhail in the college's version of W. Somerset Maugham's Rain, will also give a short skit.

Contestants for the student-faculty volleyball game Friday, April 20, have already been selected, Miss Naccarini said.

Modernized Draft Deferment Exam Due To Be Given At College In May And June; Application Dates Set

Selective Service tests, which will disclose a student's aptitude for college work and thus his eligibility for the draft, will be given here May 26, June 16, and June 30, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare announced late last week.

This statement was made in accordance with Major General Lewis B. Hershey's plans for the nation-wide test. The results of these tests will determine whether or not a student is eligible for deferment, Marsh added.

Under this new plan, deferments will be based on the student's capacity to learn as shown by the results of the test, or by his scholastic achievements shown in class work.

Instructions and applications may be obtained through the local boards on or about April 21. Over 1000 examination centers throughout the United States have been designated for these tests.

High school graduates and other prospective college students will not be allowed to take the test until they have commenced their first year of college work. In order to be eligible to take the test, the following rules are also necessary.

The applicant:

(1) Must intend to request occupational deferment as a student;
(2) Must be under 26 years of age at the time he takes the test;
(3) Must have begun and plan to continue his college studies;
(4) Must not have previously taken the test.

Outdoor Living Is Garden Show Theme

It's that time of year again when a young man's fancy turns to love, but in Building 5, the Flower Shop, thoughts are turned in the direction of the California Spring Garden Show which the college is entering for the fifth consecutive year.

The last four years they have walked off with first prize, and if past performances mean anything, we can plan on another blue ribbon for our green-thumbed associates.

The theme of this year's show is outdoor living, and in keeping with this, the college will put on a display entitled "Patio Wedding."

The flower shop will make the floral decorations, which consist of the arbor, head piece, bouquet and basket.

The show, which is the biggest of its kind in the country, will be held from April 26 to May 4 at the Oakland Auditorium.

Ramporium Receives New Spring Stock

New articles, including pins and charms in the form of little Rams, were received by The Ramporium last week, Richard Main, manager, announced recently.

These pins and charms sell for the price of $1.50, and are metal with a Ram in red and white enameled on the front of them.

Also taken in with the new stock is a supply of sweaters and all-wool jackets, Main said.

The coupon books for the students who trade at the cafeteria are on sale in the Ramporium, with discount to Associated Students.

Honor Society Sponsors Dance Friday; Members Now Total Ninety-One

April Showers will be the theme of the dance sponsored by Alpha Gamma Sigma in the student lounge this Friday, April 20, from 9 to 12 midnight, Joe Azzolino, president, announced Monday.

No tickets will be sold and admission will be by Associated Student card only. Jerry Barnes and his band will provide music, Azzolino said, and sport dress will be the proper attire for the evening.

Don Jensen, faculty adviser, also announced that 91 students are members of the honor society this semester.

Diane Deuberry, Stephen Diamant, Mildred Dowdy, Irene Erickson, Alice Ferraris, Charles Gardiner, Donald Goldstein, Georgie Hamming, Margie Harms, Dorothy Havlish, Donald Hedgpeth, Roland Hess, Edward Hirata.

David Johnson, Kaz Kawaguchi, Eleanor Lange, Edward Lark, John Lark, Robert Lawson, Nicholas Lazareff, Dorothy Loo, Samuel Lewis, Robert Lyons.

Dolores McLaughlin, James Montrose, Kathleen Mortissey, Norman Null, Pat O'Neil, Joe Ortez, Tuan Phan, Joseph Rhodes.

Marion Smirl, William Sturgeon, Milton Sue, Jim Sullivan, Hilda Sweeney, John Tarpley, Robert Webb, Diane Wells, Claire Williamson, Donald Woll, Henry Wong.

Second semester members are Ruth Adelson, Napolcon Argueta, Eli Berger, Elizabeth Bertram, Joseph Blank, Elizabeth Floyd, Walter Hueston, Sumi Kanaya, Robert Kerr, Walar Moran, Robert O'Connor, Takahiko Oda, James O'Shaughnessy, Mary Shoji, Ronald Pelsinger, Tom Pomposp, Walter Pudinski, Leonard Rodney, Douglas Smith, Sondra Stull, Helen Treiner.

Third semester members are Claire Barker, Ralph Howis, Ed Mulvihill, Esther Ossin, Gloria Naccarini, Josephine Roberts, Toshi Tanaka, Itsuo Uenaka.

May 1 Deadline For Photo Participants

Students interested in participating in the San Francisco Foto Festival "Pictures of San Francisco" competition are urged to remember that the deadline for turning in prints is Tuesday, May 1, Beverly Pasqualetti, chairman of the photography department, announced earlier this week.

Prints for the competition must be submitted with regular entry blank forms obtainable from Pasqualetti in Building 9.

AWS Honors High Schools Tomorrow At Fashion-Tea

Associated Women Students will be hostesses tomorrow at a fashion show and tea honoring prospective women students.

Women seniors from more than 12 bay area public and parochial high schools will attend the affair from 2 to 4 p.m. in the student lounge, Gloria Naccarini, AWS president, announced yesterday.

Theme for the semi-annual fashion-tea is Cottons in the Sun. Current spring fashions from Hastings Store for women are featured.

Models for the fashions are Esther Ossin, Norma Paterson, Joan Norman, Joan Spencer, Marlene Vilas, Pat Wellman, Diane Bickles, Mary Lee Jenkins, and Odell Woods.

The men's glee club, directed by John French, and the Treble Clef under the direction of Gertrude Norgard, will sing several songs during fashion and scene changes.

Patt Wilson, who appeared as Mrs. McPhail in the college's production of Somerset Maugham's Rain, will present a short skit.

Substitute models are Barbara Lane, Jacqueline Jeffries, Marilyn Vogel, Thelma Doelger, Ilene Hare, and Pat Kloth.

Arrangements for the fashion show and tea were made by AWS president, Miss Naccarini, and her cabinet, Georgia Farmer, vice president; Lee Williams, corresponding secretary; Mary Anne Weaver, recording secretary; and Pat Collins, treasurer.

College Hour Film Series Features Arizona, New Mexico

Colorful Arizona and New Mexico dominate U.S.A. — Southwest, which will be presented to students on Friday, April 27, through the college hour film series, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids director, said yesterday.

The film will be shown in Room 136 in the main building. For students who cannot see the movie during college hour, the film will be run twice: at 10 a.m. and again at 10:30 a.m., Devlin said.

Campus organizations will conduct meetings during Friday's college hour in club rooms assigned to them at the beginning of the semester, Louis Batmale, dean of student activities, said.

Ramporium Awaits New Stationery Supplies

New bond stationery which is expected momentarily in the Ramporium, student store, has not yet arrived, Richard Main announced recently.

An outline series now being used in the new selective service tests is expected to arrive soon, he said.

Students Approve 100 Per Cent Law At Special Referendum Meet; Final Vote Tally 136 To 32

In a special college hour assembly in the auditorium last Friday it was decided by a vote of 136 to 32 to keep the present 100 per cent rule, which was adopted by the Student Council last spring, in effect.

The opinions of those present were called for by AS President Ralph Vetterlein, who presided over the meeting called to put the ruling to a referendum before the Associated Students.

After various viewpoints were given by several students, Vetterlein asked those who were going to vote to do so as they left the auditorium.

The ruling states that only an organization which has 100 per cent membership in the Associated Students may draw funds from the AS budget of the Associated Students.

Printed ballots were used in the referendum, and were counted following the meeting.

Although only Associated Student card holders were entitled to vote at the meeting, non-card holders were invited to participate in the discussions.

Summer Session Offers Variety of Subjects

More than 67 courses, ranging from business to zoology, will be offered in the college's summer session, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

Approximately 750 students are expected to enroll, Marsh said. Further information can be had at the counselling office in Building 3.

Languages, social sciences, mathematics, music and business are among the courses which will be offered.

Marsh Investigates VA Student Dues

F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, is in Washington, D.C. this week representing Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, to discuss a controversy with the Federal Government over payment of student association membership dues by the Veterans Administration.

The government's Central Accounting Office has suspended payment on veterans' Associated Student card dues, and wants to call back all dues paid out this year, Marsh said. The duty of the accounting office is to pass on the legality of payments made by the Federal government.

Accompanying Marsh at the meeting are J. Paul Mohr, president of Sacramento Junior College, two representatives of the State Department of Education, and two representatives from Los Angeles City College.

The dispute arose last August, when the Central Accounting Office issued a ruling stating that payment by the Veterans' Administration of student membership dues in colleges where membership is voluntary was illegal. The accounting office directed the VA to cease payments and to collect all payments made since 1947.

Over 50 colleges throughout the state were affected by the ruling, and Oscar E. Anderson, college controller, informed students that the college owed the VA $46,000 for payments made into the association during the period 1946-1950.

The VA had discontinued payment of student card dues in February, 1947, but reversed itself in October, 1947, and continued payments until the August, 1950 ruling was adopted.

Jade Snow Wong Is 'Portrait' Subject

Jade Snow Wong, salutatorian of the 1940 graduating class, made the news again recently. She was the first subject to sit for a word portrait by Basil Woon of the San Francisco News in his series on leading San Francisco cosmopolites.

Miss Wong now operates her own shop and factory at 1320 Powell Street where she molds handmade Chinese pottery. Her product is known especially for its simplicity, for its purity of shape and line and lack of artificial ornamentation.

Her signed pieces — earthenware and copperware fused with vitreous jewelry enamels are in museums all over the world and in many private collections.

She is best known for exquisite enameled copper work, achieved by a multiple process of glazing and firing. In this branch of her craft she is probably the leading living exponent. The New York Museum of Modern Art recently featured some of her work.

Woon's article on Miss Wong appeared in the April 4 edition of the San Francisco News.

Midterms Start May 4

Two-thirds of the spring semester will be over on Friday, May 4, as the second midterm period ends, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, declared yesterday.

Although the deadline for submitting graduation petitions to the registrar's office is past, they will still be accepted, she said.

Flower Exhibits Represent College In Oakland Show

By Chester Pennington

Two exhibits, representing the college floriculture department and flower shop respectively, will go on display for one week beginning Friday at the California Spring Garden Show at the Oakland Exposition Auditorium.

The flower shop exhibit will be held indoors and will include floral decorations, consisting of an arbor, head piece, bouquet and basket. This central portion of the exhibit is entitled Patio Wedding.

A student will be present at all times throughout the exhibit, cutting and arranging flowers. The student will answer questions and explain the college role in the show as he demonstrates flower arrangements, John Lawrence, flower shop instructor, said.

The exhibit for the floriculture department will be held both inside the Oakland Exposition Building and outdoors in the surrounding area.

Itsuo Venaka is the chairman of the Horticulture Society exhibit this year, and other students taking part in the exhibit include Kazuko Kawaguchi, Louis Samuel, Tak Hamai, Charles Konisberg, and Albert Winters. Raymond Peterson is adviser.

Classes in plant propagation, nursery practice, greenhouse management, landscape design and construction also played an important part in growing the plants and preparing the exhibition area plots, Peterson said.

Last year the floriculture exhibit sponsored by the Horticulture Society took first prize in the pre-professional entry. The college flower shop exhibits in the last four years took first prizes.

Joe Schwab Places First In Hearst Preliminary Contest

In the Hearst Oratorical contest eliminations Friday, April 13, during college hour in the auditorium, Joe Schwab took first place and will represent the college at the regional meeting next month, Michael J. Griffin, sponsor of the college honorary debate society, announced last week.

This was the third elimination contest for determining the representative for the college in the regional meeting. Bart Dempster was second winner, Ezra Hunter stood third, and Charles De Witt was fourth in the elimination, Griffin declared.

A debate on group libel with Stanford University is scheduled for Tuesday, May 1, with Dick Schnell and Dempster representing the college.

Welfare legislation will be the topic of a meeting of the Student Congress to be held at Stanford University on Saturday, May 5, with City College and Stanford University participating, Griffin said.

Action Now Could Help Solve Phelan Avenue Traffic Problem

FOR a period of over three years The Guardsman has called attention to the death trap located at the foot of Hill 29—a speedway commonly referred to as Phelan Avenue.

In January, 1948, plans were made to widen Phelan Avenue into four lanes with adequate parking space on both sides. The plan was then, and still is, a good one; however, accidents are not prevented by plans alone, and it seems to us that three years should be sufficient time to put such plans into action.

The widening of Phelan Avenue would not, in itself, solve all the traffic and safety problems which now exist; it would not end all the hazards now confronting students who must cross Phelan Avenue each day on their way to and from classes in the main building. But it would be a start toward a solution of these problems.

The campus police, by directing traffic between classes, have done a good job. The problem of crossing Phelan Avenue has been somewhat eased by their alertness, but they alone cannot cope with the situation.

IT will take planning and action to solve the problem completely, and that action should be taken now—not after a death or serious injury drives home the fact that Phelan Avenue is, as it now exists, a dangerous hazard to the students of the college.

The only complete solution to this situation is to: (1) Continue to have campus police stationed on Phelan to direct traffic between classes; (2) Place speed limit signs on Phelan, and enforce these speed limits rigidly; (3) Place signals at the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues, and (4) Widen Phelan Avenue into four lanes to handle the heavy traffic.

These four suggestions, if followed, could end once and for all the dangerous conditions now existing, and lessen greatly, if not entirely prevent, the chances of a dangerous accident occurring. Surely the safety of City College students is important enough to warrant action which would insure this safety.

Fishy Stares For Trapped Specimens

Peepers Give Classes The Hard Look

By Bob Reilly

More than once a student will casually look up from his notes during a lecture period and see framed in the classroom door portal an interested face which is delightedly surveying the other students in the room.

This practice is more widespread on the west campus, because on Hill 29, classrooms offer not a chance for such peeping.

Frequently, packs of individuals drift by the window casting fishy stares at the uncomfortable specimens who are on display in the classroom.

The beginning peeper must have an elastic neck to enable him to get full coverage. His eyes must be stubbornly noncommittal so as not to betray any confidence he may relay to an unknown compatriot within the four walls. Also, his visit must not last too long in order not to wear out his welcome.

Often classroom habitants welcome an occasional silent visitor at their door, but if that loiterer overstays his leave, the students become distracted and resentful.

The usual procedure for instructors is to ignore the persistent visage at the window. However, more than once an instructor pauses and shoots a freezing glare at the window, focusing the intruder in a spotlight of attention.

No doubt the practice is harmless. In general, students are seldom aroused enough to spill blood. They are commonly amused and frequently annoyed by the window peeper. A subject yet to be studied is the window peeper's viewpoint.

Family Builds Spring Home Out on a Limb

Spring officially arrived last week at the college, when a family of sparrows set up housekeeping on a limb of the pine tree inside the west campus near the main gate.

Immediately a report on the family was filed with the Kefauver committee because of suspicions of subversive activity. The family is currently engaged in sneak bombing attacks on helpless students walking below.

Whether the sparrows attack to protect their home or to enjoy the resulting show of swinging arms has not been determined.

The Registrars

Office Is Grand Central Station Of College Life

By Nini Algeltinger

The registrar's office on the second floor of Building 3 is a mighty important place to every student enrolled at the college.

The ten women who, from their glass-windowed sanctuary, smile sympathetically at confused students, don't lead as easy a life as many imagine.

Women in the registrar's office are Jills-of-all-trades. Their office is a "Grand Central Station," continually humming with activity throughout the academic year. They take care of the preliminary applications of prospective new students, compile enrollment figures, keep detailed attendance reports, issue transcripts, file permanent records of the graduates, and record grades.

Their routine duties are punctuated by miscellaneous telephone requests. Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, recalled a time when she was registrar at Sacramento Junior College. A group of firemen at the local firehouse were playing cards as they waited for a call.

Somehow, they had gotten into an argument about who was the author of the poem, The Boy Stood on the Burning Deck. The first source of such valuable information that occurred to them was the college. The switchboard operator, bewildered by the query, connected the call with the registrar's office.

"After we recovered our wits," Miss Learnard said with a laugh, "we called the college library and were able to tell the men it was Mrs. Dorothea Hemans."

Grades go through several complicated channels before they finally reach students. The instructors grade the papers and submit two lists of the grades to the registrar's office. Then the women "throw" all the cards into a sorting machine. The cards come out in little bundles for each student. Then the bundles are fed into the IBM machine which records the grades.

"I love my work," says Miss Learnard. "I can work with students without having the responsibility of grading them."

Potter's Wheel

Base Clay Gets Creative Touch

Common clay and active hands combine in the college ceramics course to produce decorative ornaments and useful objects for the home.

"Pottery making is satisfying as a creative accomplishment, just as painting, drawing, singing, and playing an instrument are," Roy Walker, instructor, declared, and ceramics students nod in agreement.

Household wares are developed through the mixing and firing of ordinary clays. Such objects as plates, casseroles, vases, pitchers, and sculptures, are made in this fashion.

Many different types of processes are employed to produce pottery, including coil and slab building, clay slip casting, sculptural form, and advance throwing on the pottery wheel.

Methods of decorating the objects include underglaze and color slip pattern. Many colors are made from metallic oxides.

All-Weather Student Faces Rain And Snow

By Bert Kenny

If awards were given to those students who go through the most hazardous experiences to reach the gates of the college, a majority of the honors would be bestowed on those brave individuals from the East Bay.

Through rain, wind and even snow, these courageous men and women still venture to travel miles between their homes and this "foreign" college.

Often rain-soaked and half-frozen, they trudge bravely up the steep hill to classes in the main building.

Day after day, autoless transbay students are forced to ride in an overcrowded bus or train at dawn, and when they finally reach San Francisco, insult is added to injury because waiting for them are the city's famous streetcars which take vagabond students across the city to the college in a seemingly century-long journey with many bumps and curves.

The lucky students who either possess autos or who know some students that do, also have their troubles since the hay bridge is like an obstacle course, especially at peak hours.

Students Satisfy 'Wanderlust'

At long last, those City College students who have "gypsy" blood running through their veins, who are filled with a desire to travel and vibrate with "wanderlust," are about to have their travel dreams become a reality.

Bill Daniels, student here, has recently begun a campus aid to students who desire to travel. Daniels arranges trips anywhere: from Kansas City to Paris or Berlin.

He plans the trips, gets the tickets, arranges schedules, and helps the student in any way possible. The service is done without charge.

Trips are arranged with various types of transportation: bus, automobile, bicycle, or horseback. Mexico, Hawaii, Europe, and Japan are among the foreign countries Daniels arranges trips to, and some of these tours actually allow college credits.

For the student filled with that "wanderlust," Daniels suggests that he take a trip to Building 2, Room 8, to see Daniels. He may be found there any day at 2 p.m., and is the first stop in a possible trip around the world.

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

THE major leagues opened with a bang last week, as bad-choice Boston lost once again to the New York Yanks in a sad, sad opening for Boston at least.

In the National League, Philadelphia turned the scribe picks sour with a win over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

From the opening performances, it appears that all the picking over the past month by sports writers from here to China has gone hay-wire. Both of last year's champs resumed where they had left off.

Baseball season, unlike football season, leaves nothing certain in the standings until June or July and keeps all followers in the dark until the final out.

Last year's race in the Nationals took on the aspects of a horse race when the Phillies, with an eight-game lead, made Brooklyn look like a Stymie by losing continually up to the wire.

This year only one thing so far is certain—Happy Chandler won't get the chance to suspend Lippy Leo again.

As a reply to several requests, the complete story on the law forbidding all California's two-year colleges from competing in national events will appear in this column next week.

'20 Point' Duggan Enters Pro Ranks

By John Baird

"Another 40 points for Duggan, what a ballplayer." This is the story repeated all over the bay area by coaches about sensational Kevin Duggan, basketball wizard.

Duggan was a star on the '49 and '50 City College basketball teams which won the NCJCC Region Two championship in 1950, and then placed second in '49. Duggan was the flash and spark that won several games during the team's trip to the championship playoffs at Hutchinson, Kansas.

He then transferred to San Francisco State where he played the '50 and '51 season. Duggan was less of a star in '50, but last season he broke all Far West conference scoring records with 666 points in 32 games, an average of 23 points a game.

His highest totals were against Redlands and Humboldt State with 40 points each time.

At the end of last season, Duggan was grabbed by the Oakland Blue and Golds of the National Industrial Basketball League, which includes such teams as the Phillips' Oilers and The San Francisco Stewart Chevrolets. Duggan will continue to play for them next season.

Block SF Honor Roll Under Construction

Block SF members have been assigned to bring in a complete list of names of members now in or entering the armed services for placement on the society's honor roll, Rod De Cristofaro, president, announced recently.

The scroll will be placed on the west campus and will be dedicated at a special ceremony, De Cristofaro added. The society is paying for the scroll out of their own funds and have already purchased the lumber. Work is being done by the members themselves.

Touch-Football Deadline Slated Next Tuesday

With the "net" games nearing completion, Intramural Director Thomas Wilson yesterday slated Tuesday, May 1, as the deadline for intramural touch-football signups.

Badminton, tennis, and volleyball pairings, now posted on the glass bulletin board in the men's gymnasium, will close, tentatively, near the intramural touch-football deadline date, Wilson added.

There will be a maximum of ten players, with two of the total to be used as substitutes.

The teams, who must be cautioned against wearing cleated shoes and arriving within the forfeiture time of ten minutes of the scheduled game, will be allowed five downs to obtain 20 yards for a first down.

Recreational leadership students will officiate the games, which will be played on the college football field.

Along with the 25 minute halves, will be the continuous running of the clock while unlimited substitution and time-outs are in process.

Competition will be scheduled on a round robin basis with the only undefeated team emerging as victor.

The champion will probably represent the college in an intramural touch-football tourney with San Francisco State, the date to be announced later because State is moving their athletic facilities from the downtown campus to the 19th Avenue site.

Boxing Interest Gaining Rapidly

Revival of intramural boxing as a substitute for inter-collegiate competition, is rapidly gaining student support and interest, Roy Diederichsen, boxing instructor, declared last week, when he set the tentative tournament date for May 29.

Virtually the entire complement of this season's ill-fated boxing contingent is expected to compete in the program, Diederichsen said.

The list of local "pros" expected to compete includes such stellar performers as Jack Bettencourt, runner-up in the 1950 nationals and winner of the manager's trophy; Robert Shepardson, Dick Fiore, Roy Devincenzi, Nap Guaidzis, and Dick Topham.

Approximately 70 students from the novice boxing classes and the college at large are expected to compete in the program, Diederichsen added.

In 1933 Homer Prouty, of Portland, Oregon, shot an arrow 478 yards, which is three times farther than Babe Ruth ever hit a baseball, much farther than anyone every hit a golf ball, and farther, too, than an ordinary revolver bullet will travel.

Refs Pick Coach Diederichsen As New President

Elected president of the Northern California Basketball Officials Association at a recent meeting of the organization was Roy Diederichsen, the college's tennis and boxing coach.

The president-elect succeeds Lloyd Leith, basketball coach at Mission High School. Diederichsen's official duties will include presiding at organization meetings, interpreting rulings, and assigning members to officiate at Northern California basketball games.

While attending San Jose State College, Diederichsen was an all-around athlete, his specialty being boxing.

Prior to his arrival on the local scene in 1947, Diederichsen coached the varsity and thirties basketball teams as well as the boxing contingent at Lincoln High. He has officiated at basketball games throughout Northern California for the past nine years.

Diederichsen-coached boxing teams have been among the nation's best in the two-year institution division.

Other new officers elected are Bill Rockwell, vice-president; Saul Madres, secretary, and Charles Faulkner, recording secretary.

Klemmermen Set For Bear Cat Run

Prior to the Big Seven Conference meet scheduled Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5, the local trackmen will sharpen themselves for the San Mateo Bear Cats in a battle for the "Peninsula championship," this Saturday, April 28, at the neighboring Riordan High School, here.

With the season nearing a climax, the two squads will undoubtedly put on an "all-out" effort.

However, the locals are in bad shape. Several members have been injured, and their loss will be felt as far as depth is concerned.

Now that Vernon Chambers has finally "marked" himself in the records by his 15.1 performance in the 120 low hurdles against Modesto, he will undoubtedly strive for a win and a better mark.

Lithe Ron Bauer, who has fallen short of his 4:23.7 state mark, will be out to revenge his mediocre season and pave the way for a victory in the all-important conference meet.

Fred Marx, 880 man, who has shown continued improvement all season, entered his season best of 51.1 in the event. Max has run the 880 six times in his career—all this season.

Local Nine Drop Four Straight By One Run Margin

After losing four heart-breakers by one run, the Ram ball nine returns to Golden Gate Park this Saturday to take on the Modesto Pirates. So far the Rams have a 1-4 record in conference play, while Modesto boasts a four wins and one lost record.

During the game with Alameda Naval Air Station, which the Rams lost 4-3, the Hellcats got four runs and six hits, while the locals got three runs on three hits. Martin whiffed three and walked four, while McNeil, who relieved him in the eighth inning, struck out one and didn't walk a man.

Shetter, the Hellcat pitcher, struck out five and walked three. Dick Greenberg, John Shuyler and Bob McCarthy got the hits for the Rams.

In the U.S.F. Frosh game, the college nine outhit the Donlets eight to seven but lost 5-4. Tivio and Baglietto did the pitching for the Rams.

A doubleheader against Santa Rosa turned out with the Rams losing both ends of the twin bill, 3-2 and 5-4. In the first game there were five runs, five hits and no errors for the Santa Rosans, and four hits, four runs and one error for the Rams. Tivio struck out three and walked six, while Tierney struck out nine and walked nine for Santa Rosa.

The second game featured a tight pitchers' duel between Jerry Pandolfi of the Rams and Lee Walker of S.R. Pandolfi gave up three runs, five hits and Walker gave up two runs and three hits.

Each team committed three errors. Pandolfi whiffed two and issued a free pass to four batters, while Walker struck out two and walked four.

Golfers To Face San Mateo Friday

After winning two straight matches, one by forfeit, the golfing Rams face tough competition in the form of San Mateo at Harding golf course this Friday afternoon.

The Rams won a forfeit match from Santa Rosa last Friday and then went on to beat Sacramento 9 to 6.

Wes Coulbert beat his opponent, 3 to 0, and the No. 2 man, Roger Artoc, lost to his competitor, 2½ to ½; Danny Banford also lost to his man 2½ to ½.

Dick Cueich took all three points from his man; and Bob Conlan in the No. 5 slot took two out of three points from his foe.

Cueich was medalist when he shot a one over par 73. Coulbert and Conlon shot 80's, while Artoc shot an 83.

Meanwhile, in the tennis department, Roy Diederichsen's net squad will take on Santa Rosa in the conference finale Friday, May 4. The team will then busy themselves in preparation for the conference championship tournament to be held at Modesto May 18, 19, and 20.

The local team is currently clinging to a third place tie with Sacramento in the conference standings. Favored to repeat as conference tennis champs are the Modesto Pirates.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Gracene Brown

PLEDGE hats, cards and pins were recently presented to sorority pledges in preparation for this dreaded of all weeks—hell week.

Alpha Lambda Chi staged a get-together at Martha Foote Home to indoctrinate its pledges and also to warn them of the regulations which are undoubtedly not altogether unknown to them at present.

To introduce the Kappa Phi pledges to other campus organizations, an open house was held at the home of Marlene Sylva last Sunday, April 22.

With the feminine version of hell week in full swing, fraternities named those pledges who have overcome the obstacles of a few weeks ago, when hell week a-la-male was in progress.

Jim Hecht, Bill Mosely, John Molloy, and Dick Hughes are the surviving few of Tri-E who are now anxiously awaiting full-fledged membership.

Pledge master Bob Van Austen announced that Alpha Sigma Delta pledges are Jim Jurik, Robert Conlan, Herb Reese, Pete Mohr, Buzz Chernaiausky, Dick Gommeringer, Don Monteleone, Gene Cummings, Ed Hallen and Jack Kennedy.

Marine veterans, both men and women, are organizing into a club which will promote social activities as well as service to the college. Immediate goal of the club will be to present a plaque to the college honoring those students of the college who have been or are Marines. Interested students should inform Bill Falkowich or Ron Zimmerman.

Faculty Prepares For June 1 Show

Stuart Hyde, Michael Griffin, and Edwin C. Browne will team up on Friday, June 1 as director, producer, and master of ceremonies respectively of the annual faculty show.

Plans for the show, which will be held in the college auditorium, are moving ahead, and announcement of date of ticket sales and price of admission will be made in the near future.

Last year's proceeds went to help add to a college scholarship fund for students and this year's show promises to be just as good if not better.

Director Hyde brings his experience as director of the student production of Rain to this year's production. Michael Griffin, Phi Rho Pi speech coach, will handle production.

Workshop Singer Makes Professional S F Debut

Joan Bonaeorsi, former Opera Workshop student, makes her professional formal debut in San Francisco Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 26, 27, and 28, with the San Francisco Symphony under direction of Pierre Monteux.

Miss Bonaeorsi will sing the contralto solos in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Last week she appeared in concert in Los Angeles.

Miss Bonaeorsi was associated with the workshop from Fall, 1949 for a year and a half, and appeared in last Spring's Opera Showcase program as featured soloist and in the quartet which presented several excerpts from Von Flotow's Martha.

Freight Trains, Sharp Turns, Rock-Filled Roads

Gymnasium Parking Presents Variety Of Problems

By Al Guthertz

Parking on or about the west campus has its trials and harrassments.

Parking about the main building is often hectic and full of torment.

But parking at either of the two gymnasiums is sheer horror!

An obvious course that would be the Marine Corps proud has become a part of the difficulties in parking near the gymnasiums.

First, the driver must pass a few idle freight train cars. If he is adept, the driver may possibly manage to squeeze by the train. Otherwise he may find himself driving his automobile at a slant, with one wheel on the road, and the other in the railroad bed.

After this first obstacle has been defeated, the driver has to make a very sharp turn to the final stretch of road leading to the gymnasiums.

Finally, after all other obstacles have been passed, the motorist is ready to search for a parking place. Finding none he discovers the trip back to the main building is over a bumpy, rock-filled, dirt road.

Is it any wonder then why so many students leave their vehicles about the main building and walk to the gymnasiums?

Deadline For Foto Festival Prints Scheduled May 1

Deadline for submitting entries to the San Francisco Foto Festival's Pictures of San Francisco competition, under the direction of the San Francisco Recreation and Park Department, with more than 40 civic sponsors, is definitely scheduled for Tuesday, May 1, Beverly Pasqualetti, chairman of the college photography department, announced this week.

All registered college students are invited to participate and are required to take shots only of San Francisco. The Meeting Place, theme of the contest. Processing and developing will not be included in the judging. Photos must be entered with regulation entry forms available in Building 9.

The college photography department has been assigned a special trophy for this competition by Brooks Photographic department store, the award designated for a winner among entrants of this college.

During the festival festivities, members of the college photo group will solicit and judge high school entrants. Faculty members of the photo department will compose the committee for judging.

Prizes for the Foto Festival will be awarded at a Sunday morning breakfast on May 27 at the Hotel Whitcomb.

A. J. Shelton of the Camera Club department for Anseo Film and former district manager for Anseo in England, will lecture on Better Color Pictures and How To Take Them, when he speaks at the college Tuesday, May 8.

KCBS Relations Director Says Radio Not Dead

That radio is not "dead" and still offers opportunities to qualified young college men and women was accented during a recent college hour address to members of the college public relations group by William Nietfield, public affairs director of Station KCBS in San Francisco.

Nietfield told the group that anyone who has a pleasing voice and a good delivery can announce for radio, but he also emphasized the fact that the belief that not many women are used in radio other than as secretaries and women commentators is mistaken.

Several women employees at KCBS help to gather news for the various shows and do the necessary filing and stenographic work, Nietfield said.

Many times, he added, the necessary foothold is gained in radio work by getting into the business on the ground floor and working up.

Cast Set For May Opera Productions; Tickets Available Starting Tuesday

Tickets for two Opera Workshop productions scheduled for May 18 and 19 will go on sale Tuesday, May 1, Edwin C. Browne, faculty production manager said yesterday.

Prices are a dollar for adults and 50 cents for students. Tickets will be sold at the student store and student bank, Browne said.

Tickets will also be sold up until curtain time of both performances.

Meanwhile, Flossita Badger, Workshop director, named principal players for the two operas. Irene Sherman portrays the lead role of Amelia in the first production, Amelia Goes to the Ball, by the Italian composer, Gian-Carlo Menotti, who has done such other works as The Telephone and The Medium.

Irene Halicki, contralto, portrays Amelia's friend Sherry Stevens is understudy for Miss Halicki. The remainder of the cast includes the following:

First maid, soprano, Barbara Orsi or Kathleen Kerrigan; second maid, soprano, Margaret Robbins or Pauline Golden; Amelia's husband, baritone, Donald Warner; Amelia's lover, tenor, William Mosely (understudy, Elmer Delany); first gendarme, Normap De Nardo; second gendarme, Raymond De Nardo.

The title role of Christopher Smith a modern-day study in tragedy by Robert Morton, college music instructor, will be played by Raoul Brazele, baritone. Margo, his foster sister, dramatic soprano, is Ruth Paxson, while Louisa, lyric soprano, is Cynthia Burke. Claudia Orsborne is understudy for Miss Burke.

UP Staff Member Speaks To Journalism Class

Malcolm Boyd, United Press staff member in San Francisco and a former student at the college, addressed members of the journalism 31 class last week on the role of the United Press in journalism.

McCall And Azzolino Complete AGS List

Two members of Alpha Gamma Sigma whose names were inadvertently omitted in the list published in The Guardsman last week are Herb McCall and Joe Azzolino, fourth and fifth semester members respectively.

Majoring in social science, Azzolino is the society's president and Student Council member.

McCall is a general letters and science major, and will continue his studies at the University of California.

Don Jensen, AGS sponsor, revealed possibility of the society's affiliation with the national honor society, Phi Beta Kappa, is under consideration.

College Art Exhibit Now On Display At SF Department Store

The art work currently displayed in the windows of the Emporium in observance of Public Schools week, from Monday to this Friday, April 27, features products of the commercial art, photography, architecture, graphic arts and ceramics classes.

In describing the posters which depict various phases of art, William Eckert, advertising art instructor, declared that the work is from the advertising art and commercial art classes which feature work done by the students and representative of design, advertising layout, commercial art, figure drawing and figure composition.

One poster shows the types of courses offered at the college in a tree-branch form. Another spotlights courses offered in advertising-design lines.

The photography department has representative photos from their advertising, portraiture and commercial classes.

Eckert also called attention to a display of a model home which was designed and built by students of the architecture class, complete with its planned drawing.

Extent Of College Placement Explained

Joseph A. Amori, placement director, outlined the scope of the college's personnel placement bureau to San Francisco businessmen who visited the college on Education-Business Day, April 19.

Amori's speech was part of the Education-Business Day program at the college. Similar observances of the day were held in other San Francisco schools.

As part of the program, the group was taken on an informal tour of the campus. Since the objective was to acquaint the businessmen with education in action, the visits were entirely unscheduled.

Although this marks the first Education-Business Day, a similar affair was held last year when Business-Education day was sponsored with the aim of acquainting education with industry.

This year's program was jointly sponsored by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Education.

Army Test Primer On Sale Here; Few Takers

By Georgia Watkins

"Of making many books, there is no end."—Ecclesiastes, 12:12.

The Ramporium, student store, has on its hands this week the hottest thing since Hadacol!

Practice For The Army Tests it's called—a 151-page book in the College Outline Series published by Arco Publishing Company. It's a 1951 edition selling for $2—a steal, says Richard Main, store manager.

It serves two purposes, he said. First, it will help college students now deferred from the draft to pass the Selective Service Qualification tests which will be administered on campus May 26, June 16, and June 30.

On the other hand, if the student is planning to take the tests, recently set up on the basis of exemption, the book also serves this purpose.

So far, Main added, there had been no great demand for the book (Ramporium has but three copies available now) but store personnel said they would not be caught shorthanded should the demand take an unexpected upswing.

Twenty-nine subjects ranging from mathematical fractions to geometry, from cube counting to reading interpretation are covered in the bulky, paper-bound classic.

Answers are given at the end of each test on a given subject. Sample tests as well as suggestions as to the best means of achieving a good score on the test are presented.

In event the student is drafted, the book's authors solemnly advise that rather than take part in the customary farewell festivities, the inductee stay home, get several good hours of sleep in preparation for the vigorous and rigorous activities that are in store for him.

"Old books never die," one student said. "They just fade away, but this one—who knows?"

BULLETIN!

All students anticipating taking the Selective Service Qualification test to be given here May 26, June 16 and June 30, are expected to attend a meeting on the subject Tuesday, May 8, at 3 p.m. in Room 100.

Associated Student Cards Not Compulsory For Writers For Forum, Student Council Votes

Writers or artists whose material is selected for Forum, college literary magazine, are not required to be Associated Student members, as a result of a ruling by the Student Council in a meeting held last week.

However, magazine staff members will be required to be Associated Student members, as the magazine falls under the publications stipulation of the 100 per cent ruling clarification.

The action by the council came after a lengthy discussion, when the word "contributors" as applied by the 100 per cent ruling, was removed by a council vote. Its removal excludes Forum from the 100 per cent ruling, and the action by the council also released the Forum budget.

(Publication of The Guardsman, suspended April 11 because of the 100 per cent rule, will continue as scheduled, Editor Don Johnson said, because the staff is 100 per cent.)

Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president, released the names of the newly formed Advisory Committee members for the student store Monday.

Committee chairman is Esther Ossin, and other members are Duane Belcher, Nancy Provance, Carol Cannto, Bob Von Konsky, and Jim Stowers.

Purpose of the committee, Vetterlein said, is to formulate student store stock and policy and to serve the best interests of the students.

Audio-Visual Film Series Pictures Progress Of South

New Horizons, a story of the South and its people, will be shown Friday, May 4, in the college's weekly film series, Madison Devlin audio-visual aids director, said yesterday.

The movie illustrates the growth of new industries like textiles and soybeans to replace the staple cotton—a one crop industry that wrought the downfall of the South. New Horizons, an Associated Film, tells its story in color, Devlin said.

Because May 4 marks the end of the second midterm period, there will be no college hour. Therefore, New Horizons, Devlin declared, will be run only once, at 10 a.m., in Room 136 in the main building.

Yellowstone is the subject of the film for the following Friday, May 11, Devlin announced.

The Ford Film depicts, in full color, a raging forest fire as well as the well-known Old Faithful and perennial tourist attractions of boiling hot springs, bubbling paint pots, erupting black mud volcanoes, plunging waterfalls, and mighty canyons.

Automobile Accident Fatal to Student

John C. Bigelow, fourth semester student in terminal business, was killed in an automobile accident Saturday night, April 21.

He was graduated from Fremont High School in Oakland and had entered the college in September, 1949.

Mardi Gras Royal Duo To Reign At Annual Carnival

The honor of reigning over the Mardi Gras will be bestowed on two of the 14 students entered in the queen-king contest, Doug Smith, Associated Men Student president, announced yesterday.

Trophies will be awarded to the royal pair on the night of the festival, Friday, May 25.

Free entertainment in connection with the contest will be provided, Smith said.

Contestants for the queen honors are Ann Brady, Nancy Kellerman, Violet Litraes, Audrey Madison, Winnie Schmale, Nancy Stelling, Sondra Stull.

Candidates for the king's crown are Richard Engeseth, Ralph Howes, Rex Ingram, John LoCoco, Art Pappas, Dick Topham and Dick Wallace.

Approximately 25 booths, set up in the parking lot, will add to the carnival atmosphere, offering various foods and games. A trophy will be given to the organization with the best booth, Smith said.

To add color to the festivities, Smith asked that every student wear some sort of a costume. A trophy will be given for the most original attire.

From 8 p.m. to 12 midnight, Jerry Barnes and his orchestra will play for a dance in the student lounge and the Drama club will put on two performances of the variety show during the dance.

For the convenience of the public, the student fountain, operated by the Hotel and Restaurant division, will remain open for the celebration.

Frosh Picnic Cancelled

Tentative plans for a freshman picnic were cancelled this week, and the class committee is now cooperating with the AMS in preparation for the Mardi Gras, John LoCoco said today.

Balboa Leads Frosh Enrollment

Students who claim Washington, Lowell, Balboa, and Lincoln as their alma maters lead the campus in overall student enrollment.

Balboa takes the lead in new enrollments for the spring semester, with 88 graduates here, while Washington is second with 76, and Lowell third with 61 representatives.

Eas bay high schools sent 148 new students to the college this semester. A total of 1153 new students have enrolled here since the beginning of the spring semester.

Veterans number 1094 of the total enrollment and are divided: Army, 668; Navy, 288; Marines, 57; and Coast Guard, 23.

A percentage survey of registration shows 47 per cent of the students hail from San Francisco, 14 per cent from the East Bay, 10 per cent from other California schools, 14 per cent from other states, 6 per cent from foreign countries, and 9 per cent from various miscellaneous sources.

Enrollment for the spring semester totals 4674, including 850 night class students, according to the figures released early this week by Registrar Mary Jane Learnard.

Guardsman Wins 14th Consecutive All-American

Pronounced a "professionally-written newspaper with a lot of variety in student news coverage and good spirit," The Guardsman was awarded its 14th consecutive All-American honor rating by the Associated Collegiate Press last week.

The ACP, which critically evaluates some 800 college newspapers as to writing, editing, content, makeup and special features, made the award to last semester's volume and to a staff headed by Walter Heil, editor, and Clarence Whiteomb, managing editor.

Present Editor Don Johnson was feature editor; present Managing Editor Bob Rezak was staff editor, while Douglas Hayward handled the news editorship. Gene Kelly, now employed by the San Francisco Examiner, was sports editor.

Present staff members Georgia Watkins, Ted Gould, Gracene Brown, Warren Northwood, Joan Bayerle, Al Guthertz, Barbara Egoian, Ken Gruss, Bob Reilly, Katherine Sheehan, John Baird, and Nibi Aigeltinger rounded out last semester's staff.

ACP's professional newspaper personnel, who acted as judges, complimented the staff on what it called "nice work" (one of the highest compliments that can be awarded journalists) on the January 17 special eight-page edition.

This marks the 18th All-American award received in 20 semesters of membership. ACP headquarters are at the University of Minnesota.

Discontinuance Of Art Shows Results From Recent Theft

Recent disappearance of several water color pictures taken from a display in Building 4 has resulted in cancellation of art exhibits in that building, Wilton Weidman, of the architectural department, announced yesterday.

The pictures were discovered missing late last week when one of the artists, Jun Lee, asked for his drawing. Pictures by Jose Soundy, Hank Look, and Goldstein were discovered missing at this time, Weidman stated.

The three artists, as a result of the thefts, suffered personal "setbacks." The pictures were needed by the students when they wished to transfer to the University of California Architectural school, to show work accomplished while at City College.

Operas, Mardi Gras Will Put College In Public Spotlight

WITHIN the next few weeks City College will be spotlighted to the public through two events which will give Mr. and Mrs. San Francisco an opportunity to see activities of the college in operation. On May 18 and 19 the Opera Workshop will present two operas, Christopher Smith and Amelia Goes to the Ball, and on May 25 the Associated Men Students will sponsor their annual Mardi Gras.

These two events, though quite different in scope, will both serve one common purpose—presenting worthwhile entertainment to the students and the general public, while focusing the eyes of the public on City College.

All too often students fail to realize the amount of problems which must be met and solved in preparing campus preparations; too often they think that such presentations, like Topsy, "just growed." Such thinking is anything but true.

Many hours have been devoted to preparation of these events, and many more hours will be devoted before their presentation. To the persons who have put in their time and energy, the college owes a vote of thanks. Without the cooperation and hard work shown by these persons behind the scenes the presentation of events such as the operas and the Mardi Gras would be impossible.

Students of the college could find no better way of expressing their appreciation to the people who are working to make these presentations successful than to support both events wholeheartedly. At the same time students would insure a large turnout and show the public that City College students are interested in City College presentations.

Pink Passports To S. F. Courthouse

Parking Violators See Red

By Alvin Guthertz

When one sees the little pink slip stuck on his windshield it is only then that he begins to see red.

This startling fact was revealed, along with a number of other facts concerning the City College law enforcement office and their traffic tickets, just recently.

For instance, it seems these tickets entitle one to a first hand "Cooks tour" of the City Hall as their owners search for the office to pay for their "pink passport to heaven."

Furthermore, local students who receive these pink tags are allowed the same courtesy as given to other San Franciscans who get tickets. The price is the same, whether an AS card holder or not, and the "punishment" is also the same.

It seems tags are usually given for parking in a green zone too long, or leaving a car in a red zone.

"I was detained by my instructor," one student blurted out when he received a tag for a green zone violation, while another student claimed the red paint on the curb had been put there only after he had parked and left his car. It seems there just isn't justice to these individuals.

Getting a ticket can be easily avoided by simply reading signs and painted areas as explained in the state motor vehicle pamphlet.

Missing Person Goes To Greener Pastures

Some instructors have a difficult time taking roll call in over-crowded classes, but a recent incident in a history class turned into a suggestion of vaudeville dialogue.

After calling one student's name, there was silence. The instructor repeated the name.

Suddenly, a voice in the room blurted out, "Haven't you heard? He's riding the ponies at Bay Meadows."

The instructor was silent for a second, and then answered, "Well, I'm certainly glad to see that my students go on to better and worthier heights of ambition."

Extra-Curricular

Teaching Major Sings On T-V

By Joan Bayerle

Still another student here has broken into the entertainment world of professionals, adding more praise to the college's extensive drama and music departments.

He is Jim Bogue, 20-year-old Mission High School graduate, who is now appearing as vocalist on the KGO Jay Gifft Show.

The program, cooperatively sponsored by Sun Blest Foods and Margaret Burnham Cottage Candies, is televised over KGO-TV's channel 7 from 10:30-11 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays.

Bogue, a popular and semi-classical baritone, has appeared at the Club Lido in San Francisco, won top honors on Buddha's Amateur Hour program, 8-9 p.m. Saturdays, KFRC.

Last semester, he sang in the Opera Workshop concert, but despite his vocal talents is a teaching major. A member of a family of 11, he comments, "I love singing and the entertainment business, but the only future I really plan on is teaching."

Young-But-Old

College Gets Trees 50-Million Years Old

Stashed away on a shaded shelf in the floriculture department are two small offspring of a 50-million-year-old ancestor whose fossils are under the very foundation of the college.

In 1944 the forbearers of the present California coastal redwoods were discovered in the interior of China, but remained unreported until 1948, when Dr. Ralph W. Chaney, of the University of California, brought back a few seeds.

Dr. Chaney's experimental trees in Siskiyou County, in Northern California, did well, for within two months the trees grew from 8 to 10 inches.

Perhaps in a few years the two little Redwoods will grace the campus. Their roots are now creeping downward into the particles of their forbears, over 20 million years 'extinct in California.

Newcomer Finds French Class Highly Enjoyable

A pooch with a French poodle somewhere in his family tree joined a French 2 section here last week where students were reading and translating a short selection in French on life in Paris.

"Je vous aime beaucoup," threw the little black dog into ecstasies. He scratched and whimpered emotionally at the door of the classroom.

The scholar didn't go for the unromantic English language. He maintained a stiff silence during each English translation.

The instructor spoke French to the dog when class was over. The pooch responded with a wagging tail, barked "Merci, Monsieur. Au revoir," and trotted down the hall.

Reflections . . .

By Doug Hoyward

If that "tired, listless, run-down" condition isn't the result of overdieting or a "night-before" party, a prominent eastern bodyologist may have come up with the answer to your problem: you're not running a temperature and should be!

Dr. James Klaideman, after long research, arrived at a simple solution of why some students are "rarin' to go" at a certain hour of the day and then fall flat on their posteriors at the mention of work or play a few hours later. This is perfectly natural, said he, but:

It seems that the human body changes temperatures in cycles during a roughly 24-hour period. When the temperature soars, so does the person's energy: the body is gobbling up fuel and practically going haywire throwing off energy, which makes for heat and temperature.

When the temperature is down, though, the sufferer is looking at anything and everything with a very jaundiced eye.

So the doc's suggestion to persons (namely students) who run temperatures at the wrong hours, say late at night instead of during class hours, is that they either exercise for a short time or take a steam bath before tackling a tough job or instructor.

Some people, such as Walter (Let's Go To Press) Winchell, or Oscar (Coffee By The Quart) Levant, reach their energy peaks late at night or during the wee hours of the morning. Not everyone (namely students) can do this . . .

One Hollywood movie magnate took to the idea of hopping up his temperature with such enthusiasm that he had one steam bath installed in his home, another at his office.

Well—look like 30 deep knee-bends every morning, eh sport?

The researcher suggested that anyone interested in conducting a temperature and energy test on his own, simply chew on a thermometer every three waking hours or so for a week or more, then compare figures and schedule their work or play hours to fit.

One final word of advice, though, according to doc: "Don't choose a mate or companion whose "on" and "off" hours are not parallel to yours. This sort of thing leads to strained marital and companionship relations.

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

Last November 17, 300 administrators representing 60 California junior colleges met and decided to withdraw California two-year colleges from participation in the National Junior College Athletic Association.

This ruling will become effective September 1, 1951.

The ruling resulted in the fact that although the association is on a national basis, California colleges worked mostly with the meets and controlled almost everything to do with the contests.

California supplied most of the teams in the association, and it seemed senseless to face the difficulty of raising enough money to send a team across country when the competition was almost always against a neighboring college.

Instead of supplying the national organization with the largest per cent of representatives, it was decided that to withdraw from the association and develop inter-state competition on a stronger level would better benefit the colleges and the teams.

Until such time that the national organization is prepared to offer better competition and a better program with representatives from a greater cross-section of the country, California administrators will hold all meets within the state.

The financial aspect of the situation caused by out-of-state meets was well understood when the basketball team under Ralph Hillsman won conference honors and a chance to represent Northern California in a tournament in Kansas. Money that was necessary to send them on their way to Kansas wasn't available.

After a publicity drive, the funds necessary were raised from donations by bay area businessmen and merchants. Meanwhile the team stood by and watched their cause blown to great heights and went east faced with the responsibility of paying their debt to the alma mater and fans with victory. They didn't get the victory, perhaps because of the tension placed on them by the unsympathetic fans.

Fischermen To Invade Stockton Home Grounds

After a week's rest from conference play the Ram baseball team invades Stockton's home grounds this Saturday for a double-header.

Following games will include a home and home series with San Mateo, with the first game at Golden Gate Park and the final game of the season at San Mateo.

In two games played last week, the Rams gained a split, winning the first in 10 innings from Hamilton Field, 6-5, and dropping the second game to the Alameda Coast Guard, 4-3.

The Hamilton Field game featured a tenth inning rally by the Rams to win the game, Al Nicora, John Shuyler and Buffistrassi each got two hits for the Rams, Martin and Tivlo pitched and combined to strike out seven and walk three.

The Rams had six runs, eight hits and one error; Hamilton Field had five runs, seven hits and committed two errors.

Al Tivlo did the pitching once again for City College, giving up five hits, three walks, and striking out three.

The thrill of the game was a two-run homer off the hat of Joe La Costa in the second inning.

Average Student Overlooks Hard Work Of Coaches

By Ted Gould

The influence of the local staff of athletic coaches and instructors, both those past and present, upon the success of Ram teams through the years is seldom acknowledged by students other than the selected few who comprise the teams.

Athletic Director Jack Gaddy's current crew of coaches represents individuals who have excelled in various sports during their college days and are now applying their talents daily when fielding formidable intercollegiate squads.

Former All-American guard Bill Fischer entered the local scene in the spring of 1946 when he took the helm of the Ram baseball team. Before him Lee Elsan held the post from the inaugural year, 1935, to the season of '36.

Ralph Hillsman assumed mentorship of the college cage contingent also in 1946, when he became the third individual in the college's history to hold that position.

He succeeded Tom Wilson, present intramural director, who had guided the hoopsters through five seasons starting in '41, the year Louis G. Conlan, known to most as "Dutch," left the local basketball coaching scene.

Grover Klemmer, the "splinter sprinter" from Cal, arrived on the local coaching scene in 1947 and helped Elsan in his last term as head pigskin coach.

The next year Klemmer assumed the head coaching position in both football and track, succeeding Jim Jensen as head man in the latter sport.

San Jose State grad Roy Diederichsen has, in the last three years, established much prestige for the college in intercollegiate boxing circles. At present Diederichsen, once head basketball brain at Lincoln High, coaches both tennis and boxing.

Roy Burkhead is well qualified in his track and football coaching as he was an all-around athlete at USF.

Golfers Bounce Off Sixth Straight Win

On the strength of a 9½ to 5½ victory over Stockton, the golfing Rams have won three straight in conference play and are eyeing the Big Seven conference title.

Games remaining are with Modesto at Modesto next Friday, and Contra Costa the week after.

If the Rams beat San Mateo, Modesto and Contra Costa, they will have gone through conference play undefeated and will have six straight wins in conference play.

In the game against Stockton, which the Hillsman-coached team won 9½ to 5½, Wes Coulbert was medalist with a 75; he also took 2½ out of three points from his opponent.

Rodger Artoux shot an 82, but lost three points to his man, Danny Banford also shot an 82 and garnered two points from the Stockton man.

Ram, Gator Intra Play Merges; Hoop Tourney Will Start Tomorrow Night

By Don Stephens

San Francisco State's and City College's intramural programs will merge tomorrow night when the Extramural Basketball Tourney starts at State's gymnasium on the 19th Avenue site at 8 p.m.

The brainchild of Thomas Harkness, State intramural director, and Thomas Wilson, college intramural director, will be the initial step in a program that may combine the neighboring colleges and universities in the bay area together to form a collegiate intramural tourney.

Tomorrow night's tourney, which will feature the three best intramural basketball teams from each college, will be divided into three sections with two rival teams constituting a section.

The college winning two of the three contests will be given the Extramural Basketball Trophy, which will be awarded, along with already earned medals for the competitors' performance in their respective colleges, immediately following the tourney.

Referees from the Northern California Basketball Coaches and Officials Association, according to newly elected NCBCOA president Roy Diederichsen, will be on hand to officiate the contests.

The teams from City College, headed by the champion Lyons, runnerup Young Lions and the Jokers, and State will play 15 minutes of "running" time to each half and will be allowed 10 minutes during each game's intermission, Wilson added.

Basketball Practice Opens Next Monday

Spring basketball practice will open next Monday, May 7, and continue for three weeks, Ralph Hillsman, coach, announced last week.

All persons interested in playing varsity ball are urged to attend the opening session or apply to Coach Hillsman in the men's gymnasium. Each candidate will receive full attention in the tryout for berths, Hillsman added.

Practice will be held every Monday and Wednesday from 3 to 5 p.m. in the men's gymnasium.

Trackmen Meet Stockton Friday

With last Saturday's pasting by Sacramento Junior College and the California Frosh behind them, the Ram thinclads await the Big Seven Conference meet this Friday and Saturday, May 4 and 5, at Stockton.

Minus the services of key men, the locals placed third in a quadrangular meet with the Cal Frosh, who placed first, second place Sacramento Junior College, and fourth place College of Marin.

Led by Ben Wade, who copped two second places in the dashes, the Rams were able to score 11 times, mostly third and fourth places.

Steady George Hayes shotputted near his usual 44 foot mark, while placing fourth behind a winning heave of 47 feet 4 inches.

Pole vaulter Cecil Bledsoe, who, off past performances could have placed better, withdrew from the event when he incurred injuries causing him to place in a tie for third.

Vernon Chambers, the loose-limbed hurdler, placed second in the 120 highs, as Cub Steve Turner skimmed a 14.9 and broke the existing Frosh record of 15.3. Chambers, who placed third in the 220 low hurdles, broke the college record of 15.5 by running 15.1 in the short hurdles event at the recent Modesto meet.

From past performances, the local trackmen should place a third or fourth in the Big Seven meet. Modesto should take top honors, with Sacramento and Santa Rosa battling for second or third. Contra Costa and the local squad will battle for fourth. Stockton and San Mateo will round out the remaining places.

Total points—California Frosh 124, Sacramento '59, City College 26⅓, College of Marin 9¼.

Former Band Student Red Prisoner

War Department, Red Cross Confirm Capture Of Antonis

News received from the American Red Cross last week disclosed that Nick Antonis, a member of the college band last spring, had been captured as a prisoner of the Communist forces in Korea.

This was confirmed last week by Antonis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Antonis of 4416 California street, who relayed the following story:

Antonis was wounded in action in the Korean fighting and had been returned to active duty after recovering. He was later reported to have been missing in action in the Inchon Reservoir area.

The Red Cross in Korea subsequently learned through a Communist propaganda radio broadcast, in which his name was mentioned, that Antonis is now a prisoner of the Communist forces.

The War Department recently confirmed the fact by telegram to Antonis' parents.

Antonis, former student at Lowell High School where he was a lieutenant in the ROTC, was a member of the Marine Corps Reserve band at the outbreak of action in Korea, and like many other reservists, was called to join his outfit at the Marine Corps training center at Camp Pendleton, California, for active duty.

As a member of the famed Marine First Division, he was called to duty in the Korean area where he partook in the history-making Inchon landing.

According to his friends in the hand here, Antonis had formed his own hand and planned to continue his music training at the college.

His twin brother, Gus, is also in the service. He is in the Navy stationed at Mare Island Navy Yard.

Phi Rho Pi Society Represents College In Debate Series

Dick Schnall and Bill Ratcliff represented the college in a debate here Yesterday with Stanford on the question of Group Libel. This debate was part of the series with other colleges and universities in California. Michael J. Griffin, sponsor of Phi Rho Pi, the honorary debate society, announced.

Bart Dempster and Victor Morales, will represent the college in a debate on the national question with San Francisco State College on Tuesday, May 8, at San Francisco State, Griffin disclosed.

Discussion of the topic, Is the President's Loyalty Order a Threat to Freedom, will take place Saturday, May 5, at 3 p.m., with San Jose State College, City College, San Francisco State, and College of the Pacific.

Welfare Legislation will be the topic of a meeting of the Student Congress to be held at Stanford University on Saturday, May 5. The Student Congress is modeled after the Congress of the United States.

Gift Presented To Exhibit Chairman

Louie Alherti, president of the Horticulture Society, is presenting a gift on behalf of the society membership today to Itsuo Uenaka, chairman of the Horticulture exhibit in the California Spring Garden Show, Harry Nelson, floriculture department supervisor, disclosed yesterday.

Members of the Horticulture Society decided to present to their chairman, Uenaka, a cashmere sweater as a token of their appreciation for his tireless efforts in contributing to the success of the Horticulture exhibit this year in the show, Nelson said.

Prospective Grads Warned To File

With the semester easing into the final stretch at the end of the second midterm period Friday, May 4, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, issued a warning to prospective graduates.

Those students who have not filed their petitions for graduation with the registrar's office in Building 3 had better do so at once, she said. Although more than 500 petitions have been filed and checked by the registrar's office, all prospective graduates have not filed theirs. It is imperative, she emphasized, that the "laggards" file their graduation petitions at once.

Campus Police Appoint 8 New Members To Direct Traffic On Phelan Avenue

The campus police have a complement of 20 men with the recent appointment of eight new members, Fred Fitzgerald, director, announced yesterday.

The men are Merrill Barnes, Merle Benneche, Al Curtaz, George Ferris, Ed McMills, Charles Phillips, Robert Mazeres, and F. Blainsdell.

The stage of training which the men are now going through is as follows: Directing traffic on Phelan Avenue between classes. A speed detail to cut down on speeding along Phelan (the speed limit on Phelan and other streets frequented by students is 15 m.p.h.)

The group is scheduled for qualification in firearm training at the San Francisco Police range at Lake Merced Monday, May 7.

The criminology classes are scheduled to have as prominent guest speakers Captain John Meehan, San Francisco Police Juvenile Bureau; Probation Officer Forrest Peterson from the Youth Guidance Center; and Sergeant Joseph Murry of S.F.P.D.

Scottish Rite Set For Soph Formal June 9

The Scottish Rite Auditorium will he the scene of the Sophomore Week Formal to be held Saturday, June 9, according to Maurice O'Brien, president of the sophomore class.

O'Brien said that a double college hour will be held on Friday, June 8, for the annual Faculty-Sophomore baseball game.

Art Student Designs Modern Forum Cover

The cover design for Forum magazine, which goes on sale Monday, May 21, was done by Peter Ledee of the commercial art classes, William Eckert, instructor, said Monday.

Opera Production Casts Now On Full Rehearsal Schedule

With less than three weeks left before actual performances, casts of the two forthcoming Opera Workshop productions moved into a full rehearsal schedule this week.

Flossita Badger, workshop and production director, said the productions were coming along smoothly and should be in top shape by opening night, Friday, May 18, and Saturday, May 19.

Amelia Goes to the Ball, the farce by the Italian composer Gian-Carlo Menotti, tells the story of a socially-minded woman who centers her ambitions on one project, that of attending the first big ball of the year.

Just exactly how Amelia, played by Irene Sherman, gets her wish and finally goes to the ball is wrapped up head over heels in laugh provoking scene after scene, Miss Badger said.

And she added: "Menotti's sharp-edged wit and exaggerative imagination makes Amelia a sparkling farce enjoyable to see and hear."

Music Instructor Robert Morton beamed as he gave a short preview of what to expect from his contemporary opera, Christopher Smith, presented for the first time anywhere by the workshop.

According to Morton, plot, counterplot, psychology and a realistic story blend together in smooth combination to form the structure of this, his first opera.

Tickets for both productions went on sale Monday at the Ramporium, student store, and at the bank.

They will remain on sale both nights of the performances, which will be presented in Riordan Auditorium, Phelan and Judson Avenues, near the college campus.

Tickets will also remain on sale at the auditorium box office on both nights, faculty production manager Edward C. Browne said.

General admission is one dollar while students will be admitted for 50 cents.

Air Raid, Drill Rules Posted

Signs containing complete information on action to be taken in case of air raid warnings or drills have been posted in all classrooms and at various spots around the campus, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, said recently.

Students have also been asked by Anderson to distinguish between an air raid warning and the fire warning, and to act accordingly. The directions for a fire are to get outside as quickly as possible, while in an air raid the student is expected to seek shelter of any kind away from glass.

The posters currently being placed in the classrooms give the directions to the best shelter, while the campus posters give the directions to the nearest shelter, Anderson said.

Anderson again stressed the importance of getting to shelter in an air raid.

"Even though it may be nothing more than a drill," Anderson said, "gaining shelter would be a good habit to get into, as the greatest danger would be from broken glass."

Sororities Announce Accepted Pledges; Neophytes Settle Down For Midterms

Hell week again? It can't be, was the retort offered to the first pledge who sauntered up to the fountain counter last week in search of a glass of water for a member.

With the campus now settling down to the more serious business of midterms, sororities are taking this opportunity to announce this semester's pledges.

Zeta Chi heads the list with Elaine Benas, Edith Carlson, Rita Colivas, Lois English, Beverly Firehack, Beverly Fowler, Marina Scobbin, Joanne Smith and Odette Troullet as pledges.

Pledges of Delta Psi will be presented to both the fraternities and Block SF Tuesday, May 8, at the Fox Hostess. Pledge mistress Vicky Carfagni announces that Diane Clark, Bev Lopez, Joan Kahn, Nancy Christenson, Carol Vache, Joelle Ramonte, Betty Gallaher, Gloria Rotando, Joan Spenser, Eleanor Lange, and Barbara Casselli are pledges.

Elaine Stamos and Barbara Grover, the two lone Theta Tau pledges, really had their hands full preparing a dinner for over 20 members at Miss Stamos' home last Sunday, April 30.

Alpha Lambda Chi pledges entertained their brother fraternity, Tri-Epsilon, with song and dance at a joint meeting held during hell week. Joan Roberts, Lambda Chi historian, lists the pledges as Lorraine Cerf, Gloria Delucchi, Joan Favorman, Rene Lachman, Betty Halliday, Jean Monosmith, Carol Rosenblatt and Maryanne Silva.

Breathing a sigh of relief that hell week is over are Kappa Phi pledges, Helen Cassimus, Bev Grimm, Thelma Doelger, Bev Lyons, Claire Lacy, Dolores Von Konsky, Joan Norman, Carol Bauer, Stephanie Pearl, and Diane Lister.

Delta Sigma Tau pledges are Dorothy Matthew, Essie Young, Dolores Gayles, Louise Durden, Hattie Irene Smith, Barbara Horn, Doshia Gilmore, Eva Jean Robison, and Hortense Edwards. The Sigma Taus have planned a picnic for May 30.

Le Cercle Francais has organized tours of San Francisco for French sailors en route to French Indo China. Many of the sailors attended the last meeting of the club. Association with the French sailors has offered an invaluable opportunity for the club members to develop better speaking ease with natives of France.

Two Big Weekends Ahead

Work On Opera Productions And Mardi Gras Now In Full Swing

Operas Scheduled For Two Nights

Final arrangements on the two forthcoming Opera Workshop productions were being completed this week, according to Flossita Badger, workshop director, and Edwin C. Browne, faculty production manager, in preparation for what they called a gala opening of the college's 1951 opera season.

Miss Badger said rehearsals would continue throughout the rest of this week and up until Thursday, May 17. Opening night is Friday, May 18, at 8:15 p.m. at Riordan Auditorium, Phelan and Judson Avenues, near the City College campus.

The productions, Amelia Goes to the Ball, by Gian-Carlo Menotti, and Christopher Smith, by Robert Morton, will be presented again Saturday, May 19.

Meyer M. Cahn, conductor, said his orchestra was going through its final rehearsal stages in readiness for the opening.

An additional box office for ticket sales, in addition to those in operation at the Ramporium, student store and at the student bank, has been opened at Sherman Clay and Co., Sutter at Kearny streets to take care of the demand for seats, Browne said.

General admission is one dollar, while a special student price of 50 cents has been put in effect.

College organizations and spirited students swung into operation this week in completing work on the two operas. Some 200 posters and 10,000 handbills were distributed advertising the two-night performance as "the San Francisco premiere of two great contemporary operas—at popular prices."

Meanwhile, Robert Morton, composer of Christopher Smith, was honored yesterday by the Kiwanis Club at a luncheon in the Red Room of the Fairmont Hotel. Morton, a protege of the club, won a scholarship from that organization while he was a student.

He was presented a gift in honor of his newly composed opera.

The college's A Cappella Choir, with Miss Badger directing, performed for the club members. Cynthia Burke and Andrew Stathis, featured in the two opera productions, were featured soloists.

Conlan To Teach At USF

President Louis G. Conlan will teach at the University of San Francisco during part of the summer months.

At the university's summer session, President Conlan will teach the scope, function, curriculum and organization of the American secondary schools.

Campus Will Have Carnival Spirit

All petitions for booths to be operated by on-campus clubs at the May 25 Mardi Gras have been submitted, Doug Smith,, president of the Associated Men Students, announced yesterday.

The concession booths, which will be set up on the west campus parking lot, and the organizations which will run each booth, are as follows:

Merchandising Club—hit the bottle; Phi Beta Delta—amusement booth; Tau Chi Sigma—refreshments; Delta Psi—maze of mipury (fortune teller); Alpha Sigma Delta—Marryin' Sam; Engineering Society—machine gun; Gamma Phi Ypsilon—Hoop-O-Win.

Theta Tau—Candy Lane; Student League—grape howl; Hotel and Restaurant Division—cotton ball and cake and pastry; Beta Tau—dunking booth; Kappa Phi—Pitch a Penny; Filipino Club—native attire; Phi Beta Delta—pool game; Epsilon Epsilon Epsilon—Play Ball; Zeta Chi—The Drips; Kappa Rho—bell ringing; Block SF Society—basketball; Women's Athletic Association—refreshments; Newman Club; fish bowl; Alpha Phi Omega—Bowl-'em-and-Win.

Le Cercle Francais will have a traveling flower shop via a jeep.

Elections of the king and queen will take place Wednesday, May 23, in Building 2, Smith said, and trophies will be awarded the winning pair Friday, May 25, at the dance to be held in the student lounge.

Jerry Barnes and his orchestra will provide music from 8 p.m. to 12 midnight. The public is invited to the affair.

The freshman class is also working on publicity for the festival, John LoCo, freshman president, said.

Committee members Evelyn Delore, Bobby Caselli, Caroline Cerimele, Violet Litras, Joan Morton, Dolores Von Konsky, Ed Healy, and Dean Heferman, have been visiting public and parochial high schools, LoCo said, inviting students to the Mardi Gras.

Graduates Reminded Of Student Card Benefits

Graduating students were reminded yesterday by Oscar E. Anderson, controller, that caps and gowns, and announcements for graduation exercises are provided free to Associated Student card holders.

Estimated cost to non-AS card holders for rental of caps and gowns is opproximately five dollars, Anderson said.

AS card sales are still below the estimated 1,300, he added, and in order for the budget of more than six thousand dollars to balance, more student cards must be sold.

Dates For Speech Tests Announced

Students otherwise eligible for the Associate in Art degree at Commencement from the college should plan to take the required speech tests Monday, May 14, through Friday, May 25, Anthony Paciotti, lustructor, said yesterday.

The test will be given in Building 19, Room 4, from 1 to 3 p.m., Monday, Wednesday, and Friday. Students who cannot meet this schedule are asked to make special arrangements with Paciotti.

The test is given in accordance with a graduation requirement listed in the college catalog.

Planetarium Will Be Opened Soon

Located in the silver dome of the main building, the college's planetarium, which has taken about a year to complete, will be officially opened sometime before the end of the semester, Louis Berman, astronomy instructor, said yesterday.

A muslin canopy, 20 feet in diameter and 16 feet in height in the center, resembling a large white umbrella, has been placed in position.

The instrument which will project 1500 pinpoints of light, representing stars, upon the canopy will be placed in the center underneath it. With the room in complete darkness except for the projector, the effect will be that of the sky at night. Audiences can be seated in concentric rows around the projector.

Posters Call Attention To Air Raid Signals

Posters urging students to obey the air raid warning were recently made by graphic arts students, George Mullany, instructor, announced yesterday.

Depicting the themes, "Use your head now or you may lose it later," and "Air raid warning means business," the placards stress the importance of following raid regulations.

Petition For AS Office Candidacy Due May 17

Candidates in the coming Associated Student elections must submit their petitions to the election committee on or before May 17, Duane Belcher, election commissioner, declared in a report to Student Council members last week.

Petitions are now available from the committee with the elections scheduled Monday and Tuesday, June 5 and 6, in the student lounge and the basement of the main building.

Aiding Belcher on the committee are Noel Anderson, Dick Schnal, Joe Azzolino, Bob O'Conner and Bob Smierl. Council members approved the commissioner's appointments.

Belcher added that an election rally will take place on Friday, June 1, during a double college hour. For this purpose the council sanctioned a $25 appropriation for the Phi Rho Pi, speech society, to the Rally Committee to get entertainment for the rally.

Posters for each candidates must be approved by the election committee before Monday, May 28, Belcher said. A limit of five posters, none of which may exceed 22 by 28 inches in size, is stipulated by the committee. He added that between May 15 and 28, each candidate will be allowed one picture of himself in the main building display window case.

June 4 was set by the council as the final date by which an itemized list of expenditures may be turned in by each candidate to the election committee. A limit of $15 is the most which may be spent by each candidate on his campaign, Belcher said.

Tea Honors Skarstedt

Dr. Marcus Skarstedt will be honored at a tea hy the faculty and administration for his services to the college as coordinator of instruction, Friday, May 11.

College Hour Rally, Film

Local talent will entertain at Friday's college hour rally, and a film on scenic Yellowstone is also on the same agenda.

On the rally program is a six-piece combo, a female vocalist, a novelty singer, and a piano virtuoso, Dick Silveria, rally commissioner, announced yesterday.

Featuring some lively music will be band member Jerry Barnes' combo, the Franciscans.

Also on the program is a vocalist from Freddy Martin's Band of Tomorrow, Gloria Craig, former student here. In addition to Hollywood offers and appearances on local television and radio networks, Miss Craig currently sings with the Martin group.

Novelty numbers will be given by another former music student at the college, Kathryn Bullaro, pianist and finalist on the Buddha Amateur Hour radio program.

Yellowstone National Park scenes will be shown on the screen in Room 136 in the main building, as the audio-visual aids department plans a tour of the scenic wonderland via its film, Yellowstone, director Madison Devlin announced.

The color film will be shown twice; the first program is at 10 a.m. and the second during college hour, 11:30 a.m.

Student Interest Important In Associated Student Elections

ELSEWHERE in this issue is a story on coming Associated Student elections regarding filing of petitions by students desiring election to AS offices. This seems the proper time to express some opinions and thoughts on those elections.

First, through sixteen years The Guardsman has maintained a policy of supporting no particular party, candidate, or issue. Interest has been taken in each of these elections, but that interest has remained, and will remain, one of presenting news and not of attempting to pass judgment on candidates or issues.

Secondly, The Guardsman would like to see an increase in student government interest. Quite often students who do not participate in student government have expressed opinions for or against particular issues. This interest is a good and healthy thing, but if carried no further than a handful of fellow students it is not benefitting either the individual or the college.

WE should like to see all students who have interest in student government take an active part in the campaign of the coming elections.

Thirdly, we should like to see an increase in the number of votes cast in the elections. City College students too often find excuses for not going to the polls, when quite often their only legitimate excuse is either laziness or complete lack of interest in their college. Officers who are elected in the coming elections will be the student representatives during the Fall semester, and issues passed at the election will effect students attending the college during the coming semester.

Students owe it to the candidates, to the college, and to themselves to express their opinions on candidates and issues—if not by taking an active part in election campaigns, then at least by expressing their opinions at the polls.

Lounge Singers Rush Cool Summer Nights

Summer is just 'round the bend!

Several City College students proved this point last week on a lazy, sunny, afternoon. They gathered in a small circle in the lounge in Building 2 and gave that small section of the campus an atmosphere of sandy beaches and cool summer evenings.

While one student in the center of the group had a ukulele and was playing his heart out, everyone else in the crowd sang his heart out.

One onlooker summed it all up with a deep sigh as he said, "It sure won't be long now."

Dean Saves Dog From Pound Man

It's not every day that a dean of women gets to help save a life, even if it is a dog's life, but that's what happened to Dean Margaret Dougherty here a few days ago.

Corky, a young boy dog, had been separated from his master, who is with the Red Cross in Korea, and his mistress who is waiting in Santa Barbara for her husband to return.

He lives with some friends who are taking care of him 'til his owner returns.

So Corky, being a dog, and a young one at that, got confused and took to roaming the streets. He finally roamed too far, was spotted by the local pound man, and was promptly hustled off by the scruff of his neck to the dog bailiwick.

But it so happened that Corky's care-takers, except for a young woman of the family who attends this college, were all cooped up with the flu, and couldn't post bail.

The home-bound family called the college, located Dean Dougherty, who located the college woman, who located the pound, which released Corky, who probably said to himself, "Saved at last!"

STOP! DON'T PULL THE TRIGGER, says a recent note to instructors regarding mid-term grades. Things aren't really that bad, hints the bulletin: "A mid-term grade is strictly a progress report. That is, the grade earned up to that date." Instructors have been asked to tell students this, thereby saving a sudden drop in population.

'Patience And More Patience'

Auditorium Janitor Werner Gets The Best Opera Seat In The House

By Bob Rezak

When the Opera Workshop opens its 1951 season with a two night stand at Riordan Auditorium May 18 and 19, out front applauding and acclaiming the productions will be probably one of the staunchest supporters the workshop has ever had.

He's Max Werner, janitor, who arrived in this country eight months ago from Czechoslovakia.

During the long and agonizing hours of rehearsals (when he isn't seeing to it that the auditorium is kept in good order) Werner sits up in the balcony, clad in overalls, in what he calls the best seat in the house, listening and feeling every moment of the rehearsal.

First he rests his chin on his elbows, cocking his head to one side, then to the other as if he were keeping time to the music.

Finally he sits back, in a relaxed pose, and soaks up the blending of voices he says he admires so much from the chorus of Amelia Goes to the Ball, or the solos from Christopher Smith, the two workshop productions this season.

Love for the opera and music in general is widely expressed in Czechoslovakia too, Werner said.

"Here the singers seem to have patience and more patience," he said, grasping for words. "If they don't get it right the first few times they have patience and more patience and try again. But always patience."

Few people, perhaps, realize the endless hours of work that go into making a production a success. But not Max Werner. He knows differently.

Violent Contrast Calls For A Psychiatrist

Even an untrained observer can formulate comparisons quickly here at the college. The quickest way to find sharp contrast is to compare the student lounge with the fountain.

The lounge is either a refuge from the weather or from the fountain. An atmosphere of apparent peace is present.

He who turns his gait into the fountain finds seemingly hundreds of pushing, milling, coffee-balancing humans.

This is where a psychologist should step in, and the observer should step out.

'Sleepers' Perfect The Art Of Dozing

By Al Guthertz

A new type of art, created by those students who dare throw caution to the winds, has been developed at City College. The art of sleeping in a lecture.

Now of course, this type of student activity has been going on since the dawn of schools, but many students here have perfected the art.

There are a number of different "types" of persons who sleep in class rooms.

One is the type of student who manages to fall into slumber with the palms of his hands cupped above his closed cyclids. This gives the instructor the impression that the student is in deep thought, and not in dream.

Another is the type of student who just doesn't give a gosh durn, and goes to sleep with no special actions.

He folds his arms, throws his head on top of the arms, as one would fall into a soft pillow, and begins to sleep.

And then there is the student who sinks very low into his desk, and shuts his eyes. He is a very light sleeper, and when the instructor's voice stops, the silence awakens the student.

This type of slumber proves to be an excellent alibi when the instructor catches the culprit.

"But I was listening with my eyes closed," is the classic reply.

To combat this form of juvenile crime, many instructors have devised a cheery, delightful saying. "There is the door," they calmly explain, "now use it!"

Perhaps one of the world's greatest mysteries connected with "class sleepers" will never be answered: how do those students who manage to fall so deeply into slumber awaken so easily when the class lecture has ended?

Guardsman SPORTS

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

IN the spring of 1950, George Campbell, general manager of Winterland, offered student card holders reduced rates on professional hockey game tickets.

The offer was good for exactly two months. Then, as was expected by sports followers along the west coast, the hockey league broke up.

On the east coast hockey was making the backers a fortune, houses were filled, and the thrills were provided by both players and fans.

No one could say hockey didn't fill an evening with thrills. The game was hailed as the fastest in the world and perhaps the most dangerous. Why? Because of the flying pucks and skates that in a flash could and did cut gashes in the bodies pushing the puck.

Reasons for the failure of hockey on this seaboard were many and varied, but perhaps the most outstanding was the lack of provision for proper publicity, the most important asset to a money-making sport.

This fact has been proven here at the college. For several years college teams have been fielded that took all championships in sight yet following by the people of San Francisco has been nill.

These same people support the school with taxes; and the school belongs to the city yet even the downtown papers give more publicity to high schools in the area than to the college.

Campus Teams Bring Home Victory In First Extra-Mural Contest With State

By Don Stephens

Winning two of the three Extra-Mural Championship Series games between San Francisco State and City College, the locals were able to win the first trophy awarded for such activities in the Bay Area last Thursday night at State's new gymnasium on the 19th Avenue campus.

In the first game, the Jokers from City College, led by Bob Brown's 12 points, romped to an easy 25 to 6 win over Delta Gamma Phi fraternity.

The following tilt proved more interesting as the score of 25 to 23, in favor of State's East Bay A.C., will indicate. Sparked by Al Endris' consistent rebounding and lay-ins, the Young Lions managed to lead by a slight margin going into the final stanza, but a spurt of eight points and ball control enabled the men from the East Bay A.C. to gain and maintain a lead until the final gun.

With the Extra-Mural Championship Trophy resting on the final contest, the Lyons, whose play bears resemblance to the Harlem Globetrotters, came from behind a 11-2 deficit to earn themselves a 15-15 half-time score.

When the second half began the Lyons were off and winging, raising a 20 to 15 advantage before their opponents scored. The Lyons scored again and again, and with the score 28-23 they went into a game-winning stall.

After the final gun, Thomas Harkness, State intramural director, awarded the Extra-Mural Trophy to Tom Wilson, college intramural director. The trophy will be placed, permanently, in the Ram collegiate trophy case.

Rams Place Third In Non-Conference Meet, Enter Fresno Relays

By Don Stephens

City College, in its last non-conference track effort of the season, was defeated by the Stanford Frosh and Menlo College in a triangular meet last week at Stanford's Angell Field.

The Rams enter the West Coast relays at Fresno this Friday.

Stanford completely overwhelmed their peninsula neighbors by garnering nine of a possible 14 first places. The locals took only one first place.

The meet, postponed from the previous weekend because of rain, was the Rams' last meet prior to the Big Seven Conference meet at Stockton last Friday, May 4. (Results of the conference meet were unobtainable for this publication date.)

Vernon Chambers, who established the college record of 15.1 for the high hurdles, placed second in both hurdle events.

Although behind his State record of 4:23.7, miler Ron Bauer's consistent improvement was evidenced by his second place behind a 4:37.0 performance.

Running his seventh 440 of his career, all in league competition, Fred Marx came from behind to finish second with a 52.4 effort.

Again hovering near the 44 foot mark, George Hayes shotputted to a second place behind a 46-7 throw by Don Carlson of Stanford. Dick Candlish placed fourth in the "heave" event for the locals.

Iron man Lambert Rax, showed his stamina when he placed in the 880 and the grueling two mile event.

Pole vaulter Cecil Bledsoe, who was injured in the Sacramento meet, leaped 12 feet for the Rams' only first place.

San Matean "Hot" Golf Defeats Locals

The local golf team, which must defeat Contra Costa and Modesto to gain a conference tie for championship, lost to San Mateo last Friday, 11 to 4 at the peninsula college's course.

Modesto, San Mateo and the locals, are involved in a race for the championship, which can be decided when the college clubbers tangle with Contra Costa this Friday on the Harding Golf course.

San Mateo shot some of the hottest golf in that college's history when their first three men shot 68, 72 and 68, respectively, to surpass a par of 72 for the course.

Wes Coulbert, Rodger Artoux, and Dick Kucish, top three Ram golfers, who lost no prestige by shooting 74, 77, and 73, respectively, to lose by nine points to their opponents.

Blocks For Big Seven Members Now Uniform

Blocks awarded to players in the Big Seven Conference will be of uniform size in the future for all colleges, Ralph Vetterline associated student president, stated recently.

This resolution was adopted by the Junior College Athletic Panel in a meeting in Long Beach two weeks ago.

Only the blocks themselves will be of uniform size, the colors and letters will be printed in the school colors and are to be emblematic of the school and sport no matter what the sport is.

Local Nine Ends Season Friday Against Mateans

Coach Bill Fischer's baseball team closes the regular season this Friday, May 11, against San Mateo, although a game remains against Modesto that was cancelled earlier because of bad weather.

In several games last week, the Rams held their traditional rivals, San Francisco State, to a 4 to 4 standoff, but lost to the Stanford Frosh 14 to 4. These games bring the season record to date to 8 wins, 16 losses, and two ties.

In the State game, Ram pitchers, Jerry Pandolfi, Al LaCosta and Jack Martin held the Gators to seven hits. The State pitcher Kamp gave up only four hits and three of these came in the sixth inning when the Rams scored three runs.

Al Nicora and Johnny Pantolean singled, George Zucca walked, and then Bob Cuddy cleaned the bags with a triple. They picked up the other run in the seventh when Jack Martin walked and then Nicora drove him in with a two base hit.

The Stanford Frosh game was one sided, with City College getting four runs on six hits, while the Stanford Frosh got 14 runs on 11 hits.

Martin, Tivio, and La Costa pitched for the Rams, while Page did the twirling for the Redmen. The Rams picked up three runs in one inning, when Dick Greenberg and George Zucca singled and Nicora hit a home run tallying three runs.

Deadline For Boxing Tourney Is May 17

College boxing enthusiasts will start on their long trek to the championship round, scheduled for May 23, when they sign up for the intramural boxing tournament, deadline for which is Thursday, May 17.

The former intramural boxing set up of just one novice division has been changed to include two novice divisions, each consisting of inexperienced and experienced pugilists.

There will be eight classes ranging, every ten pounds, from 125 pounders to 175 pounders and heavyweights in the novice or inexperienced class. In the experienced or senior novice class there will be four divisions, the weights of which are undecided.

Signups should be in the hands of Thomas Wilson, college intramural director, or Roy Diederichsen, college boxing coach, who will advise participants on the proper training methods and division placement, as soon as possible to facilitate training.

Elimination trials, which will run two days, May 21 and 22, starting at 3 p. m. will determine contestants in the finals.

The college placement office, in addition to placement of students in the Bay Area; assists students in obtaining summer employment in resorts, camps, forests and recreational agencies.

Recall Many Topflight Teams, Athletes

College's Greatest Years In Sports

By Ted Gould

Great athletic teams, through the years, have written an illustrious chapter in the history of City College, but not until the '48-'49 athletic year did the college reach its peak in production of outstanding inter-collegiate squads.

Many exceptionally fine athletes graced rosters of teams that year, several graduating to four year institutions where even greater fame awaited.

Students attending the college then witnessed possibly the greatest grid machine that ever competed in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Led by such stellar performers as Rey Pozenckoff, Ben Albrecht, Burl Toler, and the incomparable Ollie Matson, the Jayskinners racked up an undefeated season, the conference title, and a victory in the Gold Dust Bowl. Matson and Toler were named on the two-year college All-American eleven.

But the porkhiders were not the only team to be lavished with glory. Ralph Hillsman's hoop brigade placed first in league standings by the sensational work of Dud Truelsen, Bob Matheny, Bob Payne, Kev Duggan, and Jim Caldwell. The entire first string of that year's basketball squad made all-conference teams.

Roy Diederichsen's boxing contingent had a banner season that year also, placing five pugilists in the national finals, where Jerry Stern won a national title.

Diederichsen's and Bill Fischer's soccer and baseball squads fared well too, both annexing third place conference positions. Soccer stars Vic Solorzano, George Volkoff, and Francis Granadino, were named on the conference team.

City College has had some great years in sports, but undoubtedly the '48-'49 year will long remain in the record books as the college's greatest.

Engineer's Council Hosts High Schools In Career Day Here

Initiating a long-range plan for vocational guidance in engineering for high school students, the San Francisco Engineering Council recently conducted a career day at the college.

More than 300 San Francisco public high school students were informed of the opportunities in the various engineering fields.

Prominent engineers were procured by the council to present the students with clear understanding of engineering as an occupation. These experts answered questions put forth by the prospective engineers in group discussions.

D. H. McLaughlin, former dean of engineering at the University of California, was the key speaker at the general meeting which began the activities. Following this, group discussions were held in the main building.

Speeches were also delivered by Louis G. Conlan, president of the college, and John J. Brady, dean of semi-professional courses.

After lunch another general meeting was used to inform the assembled students of the education in the engineering fields.

The rest of the day was spent inspecting the engineering and science laboratories while faculty representatives answered the questions of the students.

The council found the experiment very successful and expects to continue the career day as an annual event.

Reward For Paintings; No Questions Asked

A reward of $20 has been offered for the return of paintings taken from Building 4 last week, Jun Lee, one of the artists whose work is missing, announced yesterday.

The returned pictures may be given to Wilton Weidman, head of the architectural department, in his office in Building 4. No questions will be asked, Lee said.

The pictures were part of an art exhibit in that building and are needed by students in order to complete their transfers to the University of California architectural school.

Because of their disappearance, Weidman said that further art exhibits in that building are canceled.

Palace Hotel Site For Annual ISC Dance

The annual Inter-Sorority dance will be held this Saturday in the concert room of the Palace Hotel, Dean Margaret Dougherty announced last week.

Theme of the dance this year is Enchanted Evening and the bids are selling for the price of $2.50. Bart Whiting's orchestra will provide music for daneing from 8 p.m. to midnight, and dress will be informal, Marilyn Maar, chairman of the dance committee, said.

Posters will be placed at various points on the campus to promote the sales of tickets.

VA Book Store To Close Doors Friday

Joseph Howell, bookkeeper for the veterans' storeroom, announced yesterday that Friday, May. 11, will be the last day that the veterans' storeroom will be open this semester. Students who have back orders, or are waiting for books, should complete their orders at the storeroom in Building 6 before Friday, he said.

Camera TV Show Assists Amateur Photographers

Camera Comments, current KRON television show featuring the college photography department on alternate Sundays, will discuss the problems of Planning a Picture, Sunday, May 13, at 12:30 p. m., Beverly Pasqualetti, photography department chairman, announced early this week.

The show is designed to help the amateur photographer with the primary elements of shooting pictures and is scheduled to explain a new feature of photography each time it runs. Camera Comments features Pasqualetti as host, Henry Leff, producer; Lloyd Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, intermission commentator; William Eckert, art instructor; and Al Constant, KRON program director.

Students from the college photography department assisting include Ken Hilmer, former properties man, now with Civil Service; Lillian Desmond and Kathryn Wood.

Jack Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, will be guest speaker for Sunday's program. Emmet Smith will also comment. The show is presented as a public service.

Photograping The Outdoors will be the subject of the following appearance which is scheduled for May 27.

Merchandising Club To Sponsor Picnic Sunday

The Merchandising Club will sponsor a picnic at Adobe Creek Sunday, May 20, Ray Hutton, president, announced yesterday.

Cost of the affair will be $1 for club members and $1.20 for any friends whom they may wish to bring, Hutton said.

Members assisting Hutton toward the success of this outing are Virginia Bader, Rosemarie Sharp, Joan Sullivan, Claire Diaz, Joan Brennan, and Bob Lyons. They are working on transportation and publicity plans.

Last month Hilde Lange attended the national convention of merchandising clubs in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Miss Lange was one of three delegates representing California at the convention.

Here's A Twist—Police Going To San Quentin

The law enforcement department is planning a field trip to San Quentin during May.

This is a regular trip planned by Fred Fitzgerald, instructor, for all law enforcement students. When the men first arrive they will be given details of the functions of the prison by Warden Cliton Duffy.

A tour of the prison under the direction of the warden is planned.

VA Asked To Cancel Request For Back AS Dues Totaling $46,000

Although the government's Central Accounting Office will not pay for veterans' Associated Student cards in the future, the Veterans Administration has been asked that their decision as to the repayment of money formerly given the college be withdrawn, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced upon his return from Washington, D. C., last week.

The decision by the Central Accounting office had been brought about by a ruling that membership dues in colleges where membership is voluntary is illegal. More than 50 colleges throughout the state had been affected by the ruling, and City College would have owed the VA $46,000 for payments made to the campus in the past few years.

Marsh was sent to Washington as a representative of Dr. Herbert C. Clish, and was joined by leading representatives of other California colleges.

State school law bans compulsory payment of student dues in tax-supported schools.

Meanwhile, Marsh made the following statement concerning military leaves:

"Any student whose entry into the Armed Services makes it necessary for him to leave the college during the final mid-term period will be granted a military leave of absence and will be entitled to receive full credit for the courses in which he is enrolled, with grades earned by the student up to the date of withdrawal."

Application for leave of absence should be made in the usual way, by the student through his counsellor, Marsh said. This will be certified to a military leave when the student presents his orders to active duty to Marsh in Building 3.

Final grades for students granted a military leave will be reported by instructors to the Registrar at the end of the semester in the customary manner.

Horiculture Department Wins First Prize In Oakland Garden Show

An exhibit by the college horticulture department took first prize last week for the fifth consecutive time since the college entered the California Spring Garden Show in 1947, Harry Nelson, floriculture department supervisor, announced last week.

The Horticulture Society sponsored an indoor exhibit of Coleus plants and was awarded first prize in competition with other educational exhibits.

Along with the potted plants were a chart and diagram demonstrating the methods used in potting and cutting the plants after reaching maturity, Nelson said.

The second prize was brought in by the floriculture department exhibit of California wild flowers, sweetpeas and pansy bed in competition with garden clubs and organizations. This section of the Horticulture Society exhibit was held outdoors, Nelson declared.

Students responsible for the success of this year's exhibit are Itsuo Uenaka, chairman of the Horticulture Society, Kazuko Kawaguchi, Samuel Wewis, Tak Hamai, Charles Konisberg, and Albert Winters.

Greenhouse management, plant propagation, landscape design and construction classes also worked on the development of the exhibit, Nelson added.

Outdoor Living was the theme of this year's California Spring Garden Show.

Club Cavalcade . . . Joint Meetings, Football New Fads

By Gracene Brown

COOPERATION is the key word among campus sororities as the Inter-Sorority Council diligently prepares for its annual dance—An Enchanted Evening, Friday, May 11.

Marilyn Maar, Phi Beta Rho, is in charge of the dance committeee. which includes the sorority presidents.

Publicity committee consists of Barbara McAuley, Zeta Chi, Esther Ossin, Delta Psi, and Ethel Marie Smith, Delta Sigma Tau.

Joan Brady, Theta Tau, and Jacque Wood, Alpha Lambda Chi, have been appointed to promote the sale of tickets.

Newman Club plans a bowling party at the Downtown Bowl for tonight. All such social activities will immediately follow the business meetings at St. Emydius Hall.

Joint meetings appear to be the vogue around the college. The Tri-Es and the Alpha Lambda Chis will meet next Wednesday, May 16. These two clubs will work together on their Mardi Gras project, a baseball throwing concession.

Phi Beta Rho and Beta Tau have scheduled a joint meeting for tonight. The Beta Rhos will also meet with Phi Delta May 16.

Mardi Gras grounds will be graced by Le Cercle Francais' members strolling about selling old fashioned bouquets. The French club members will be attired in peasant costumes for the fete.

An early attack of the football bug has started off a pre-season series of football games. Most recently plagued were the Phi Beta Delta and Alpha Sigma Delta pledges, who played a game at Fairfax, April 30. Alpha Sigma Deltas emerged victors over thePhi Delts. The Sigma Deltas are now the proud owners of the perpetual trophy, a little brown jug, for having won the fraternity football championship.

Slightly belated but nonetheless important is the listing of the Theta Tau officers—Joan Brady, president; Sondra Stull, vice-president; Betty Johnson, recording secretary; Anne Chevrier, corresponding secretary; and Nan Stelling, treasurer. The Theta Taus have scheduled a joint meeting with Alpha Sigma Delta for tonight.

Just how far can we go department: Employ a slave girl auction to raise funds for the college. Pete Chevrier, finance committee chairman suggests that the college adopt a similar plan. Chevrier admits that the idea sounds funny, but with the cooperation of sorority women the plan would be very profitable financially, he said. This proposal was set before the Club Activities Board.

College Opera Season Opens Friday

SET FOR THE 1951 SEASON of the college Opera Workshop productions Friday and Saturday are Sherry Stevens, "the friend," William Mosely, "the lover," and Irene Sherman, who plays the title role in the Menotti comedy, Amelia Goes to the Ball, which shares honors with Morton's Christopher Smith.—Photo by Burdon.

Menotti Farce, Morton Tragedy In Premiere Performances Here; Alumni Honor Korean War Vets

By Bob Rezak

The college's Opera Workshop bows in full dress Friday and Saturday nights as its 1951 season opens with the Bay Area premiere of Menotti's comic opera, Amelia Goes to the Ball, and the world premiere of Robert Morton's tragedy, Christopher Smith.

Friday night will be filled with activity, expected to increase in color and excitement as the clock ticks nearer to the 8:15 p.m. curtain time.

Twenty-five veterans of the Korean war will be hosted by the college Alumni Association at a dinner prior to the performance in the Hotel and Restaurant Division. Trev. Burrow, alumni president, is principal speaker.

The dinner marks the official dedication of Morton's opera to Conrad Dorn, former City College music student who was a December Korean casualty.

And all the glamour and glitter usually accorded an opening night performance will be duplicated in a colorful spectacle as workshop patrons, alumni, campus organizations, students and Bay Area opera goers join the procession to Riordan Auditorium, located at Phelan and Judson Avenues. Associated Women Students will usher.

This martes the first time a public performance has been given in the new auditorium with its carpeted floor and velvet-covered seats.

Raoul Brazaele, Cynthia Burke and Ruth Paxson play lead roles in Christophere Smith, contemporary opera which concerns a young artist whose possessive sister tries to thwart his love for another woman.

Sharing top honors in the Amelia production are Irene Sherman, Irene Halicki, Barbara Orsi, William Mosely, Donald Warner, Andrew Stathis, and the DeNardo twins, Raymond and Norman.

Those who share alternate or double casting roles will be announced at the performance. Flossita Badger directs the productions, while Meyer M. Cahn conducts the college orchestra.

Tickets are on sale now at the Ramporium, student store, student bank, and Sherman Clay and Co., Sutter and Kearny Streets.

Draft Meetings Aid Students In Tests

A series of meetings, designed to aid students in taking the selective service qualification test, has been scheduled every Tuesday, 3 p.m., in Room 100 of the main building, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced recently.

The meetings will act as an aid to students intending to take the draft tests, and various tests will be given to acquaint students with the mechanics of the qualification test.

Students desiring to take the qualification test must make arrangements through their local draft boards. Tests will be given at the college on May 26, June 16 and 30, and July 12. Male students between the ages of 19 and 26 who are currently enrolled in college are eligible to take the test. City College's code number is S123.

Litfle information is available on the qualification test except that it will cover a student's ability to do college work. No student taking the test may be inducted until after the test has been corrected, and the tests will be given at 8 a.m. on the announced dates. In the past, grades alone determined a student's draft eligibility, but now the tests will prove an extra aid in determining classification.

During the first Tuesday meeting, held last week, several questions were asked by students, covering subjects ranging from essential industries to a student's status in class. Students were advised to contact Marsh in his office in Building 3 in event of difficulty with their draft boards.

Special Photos Today

Two full picture pages hailing the May 18 and 19 Opera Workshop productions and next weekend's Mardi Gras celebration, appear with today's issue on pages 3 and 4. Photography for the special insert was done by Guardsman photographers Norwood Burdon and Herb Weiss.

Students Invited To Attend Open Meetings Of Student League, IFC

Both the Student League and Inter-Fraternity Council parties last week issued invitations to students to attend open meetings today relative to Associated Student elections, scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday, June 5 and 6.

The meetings will take place today and are open to all students of the college. Duane Belcher, publicity chairman of the Student League, announced that the league will hold its nominating convention in the college auditorium at 1 p.m. and will feature the band and a color guard.

In turn, the IFC invited all students to attend an open meeting to be held in the student lounge at 7 p.m., where the coming elections will be disussed.

Bob Smerl made the Inter-Fraternity Council announcement, urging interested students to come to the lounge gathering.

Belcher declared that the league convention this afternoon will be the first such open convention for all students of the college ever held. He said all students will have an opportunity to participate in the convention.

Poster Wins Praise

An example of the qualities personified in graphic art designs is found in Frank Bauer's Mardi Gras poster, George Mullany, graphic arts and journalism instructor, said yesterday.

Artist Bauer did all the work on this lithographic print, including the mixing of the colors, Mullany declared.

San Francisco Set As Site For 1952 NCJC Convention

San Francisco will be the scene of the next California Junior College Student Government Conference, to be held in the Spring semester, 1952.

Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president, reported this information to the Student Council last week upon his return with the college delegation from this year's meet at Long Beach.

He stated that the conference, to be held at a main downtown hotel in San Francisco, "Should do more to increase student interest, enthusiasm, and spirit at this college than anything held previously."

Every department of the college is expected to be coordinated for participation in the 1952 conference, according to Vetterlein.

It was his hope that the college could have the Mardi Gras the same weekend of the conference and have the delegates feted as guests at the event by bringing them to the campus in a large motorcade in which each college would be represented by a color-bedecked convertible.

Leave Of Absence Request Due Friday

Students who intend to file petitions for leaves of absence for the Spring 1951 semester, have until Friday, May 18, to do so.

Registrar Mary Jane Learnard advised students yesterday that they should start the process with a visit to their counsellors.

Open Meets By Student League, IFC Should Prove Sound Policy

AN innovation in student government politics will be presented to students of the college today, when both the Student League and Fraternity Party hold open meetings to discuss the coming elections. This policy should prove sound if City College students take advantage of the meetings to express opinions and create greater interest in the elections.

In the past many students failed to express opinions simply because they had no direct interest in either the Student League or the Fraternity Party. Given the opportunity to express their views, these students should aid both the parties and the college in gaining wider representation and expression of opinion.

In regard to the elections, it is regrettable that, because of holidays and other scheduled events, they must be held at such a late date in the semester. A larger turnout of voters could be anticipated if elections had been scheduled earlier, for June 5 and 6 will be spent by many students in preparing for final examinations scheduled the following week.

ELECTIONS in past semesters have shown that students must have voting made as convenient as possible or they will stay away from the polls in large droves. The late scheduling of elections will provide a further excuse for students not interested enough in their college to spend a few minutes in casting a ballot.

Further, the names of winning candidates will not be published in The Guardsman until the first issue of the Fall semester, as the final issue of this semester will be distributed on June 6, the last day of the elections. This will mark the first time in our memory that election results have not been presented to student readers before the end of the semester.

Assistant Conductor Knows His Notes

Band Student Teaches, Too

By Ken Gruss

Good composers and conductors must be familiar with several different instruments if they are writing group compositions. Quentin Aninao, assistant student band leader, has gone the requirements one better—he can play nearly all the instruments he directs.

Aninao, who majors in music here at the college, was born in the Philippine Islands. During World War II he served in the army for a period of five years and became a sergeant. While stationed at Camp Beale he was director of the First Filipino Regimental band.

Former sergeant, present student Aninao has turned the experience into a profitable background. He now directs the Filipino Federation band in San Francisco, aside from studying and teaching violin, piano and other orchestra instruments privately.

As a result of studying at the Chicago Conservatory of Music and his studies and teaching practice, he has composed marches and other numbers for the various groups with which he has become connected.

Aninao is orchestra concert master for the opera productions this Friday and Saturday nights.

Students And Religion

Fellowship Group Discusses Problems

Topics on daily living which are close to the average college student are being discussed every Friday during college hour in the main building by the newly formed Lutheran Discussion Club. The club is under the guidance of Reverend Donald Deffner, an ordained pastor of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran church.

In the words of Reverend Deffner, the purpose of the group is "to bring about mutual discussion of common religious problems and Christian fellowship."

His group has not yet had its constitution officially recognized, but is expecting word of it at any time from college authorities.

Reverend Deffner is an ordained pastor in the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church and calls his home Wichita, Kansas. He received his master's degree at Michigan University and later graduated from Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Missouri.

All students are welcomed to come up to Room 256 to attend any meeting of the club and are under no obligation whatsoever to join the group, according to Reverend Deffner.

Interested students are invited to call Arthur Blake at Overland 1-9904 for further information.

REFLECTIONS . . .

By Doug Hayward

CARS are very interesting things. They are very useful. They tell all about a person in one ride, one look, one listen. A college student's car is slightly more interesting than normal people's cars, mainly because college students aren't quite normal themselves.

This is a subject worth serious thought. Some cars are very shiny and very neat, very clean and very quiet. This means that the student himself is very neat, clean and quiet, or he is very interesting in giving other people the impression that he is all those things he really is not.

Since this obviously does not change grades or bring them up, that lets the instructors out. They surely wouldn't be impressed.

And since (if it's a male college student) he can't very well hide the fact to other college men if he is not all those things his car is, then it isn't to impress or draw admiration from other college males.

This brilliant logic is cleverly constructed to allow only one possible answer: it's for the women. Tsk. (With apologies to Herb Caen.)

The antique-type wreck, which usually rattles in 10 minutes after the first bell and is towed out under cover or dark at night, is frowned upon these days. Bright splotches of paint announcing "Engine Room," and "Oh you Kid" went out with Frank Merriwell comic books and now attract nothing but flies. Color blind.

Some of the wrecks, though, are really General Sherman tanks in disguise. Outside: dirty, rusty and worn looking. Inside: eleven-teen rows of multi-color dash board lights giving all sorts of fractional engine readings, four carburetors, 345 cubic inches of souped up motor and a little red sign that lights up and says "Danger—now doing 150 miles per hour."

Finally, there is the loud, racy, bright looking car. It is not really a car at all. It is a show-place and a palace, a home away from home, a pride and joy. In short, a dazzling exhibition of the owner's talent, imagination and prestige. This fools nobody but the girls, who are extremely susceptible to things of that sort.

Former Floriculture Student Brings Back Souvenir From Seoul

By Chester Pennington

Visions of Seoul, probably the most war-torn city in modern history, came to the college recently in the form of a souvenir flag.

The purple emblemed cloth was spirited out of what was once the Tokio Central Agricultural and Forestry College building in the razed, now Allied-held Korean city, by a former floriculture student turned Marine.

Edward Hetzer, who was attending the college just a few short months before his Marine Corps unit occupied Seoul, was bunked in the formerly Japanese sponsored school. Contained in the building was a greenhouse with some dead and dying plants and the flag. Hetzer took the flag.

Somehow, miraculously, neither the South nor the North Koreans had touched the flag since the Japanese troops left. This does not follow the general pattern of reaction for a liberated country.

When his unit was sent home after its stay in the battle zone, Hetzer presented the flag to Harry Nelson, his floriculture instructor, and the Floriculture department. Somewhat faded but still impressive, it hangs on the department's office wall now.

Early Birds Get Classes

By Bob Reilly

To the experienced student of the college, the matter of signing up early for the next semester's classes is an important one. Students might well follow the old adage about the bird who couldn't sleep when it comes to registration.

Anyone fortunate enough to get in early and receive a low registration number is guaranteed a spot way up in front of the line come the beginning of next semester. And then, after standing in line for only a short while, all that is needed is a pair of sturdy legs, reasonably good wind and a fast writing hand. It's a matter of personal initiative.

The frenzy of rushing during the first days of a new semester is old stuff to experienced rat racers (although it may still terrify them until the ordeal is over and forgotten), but to the fledgling, this semesterly cross-country race for signatures may prove quite disturbing.

The profits of starting early and finishing ahead of the field include choice hours and the right days.

Workshop Set For Gala Premiere

ALL THE GLAMOUR and glitter usually accorded a first night premiere will be duplicated Friday night as the Opera Workshop bows in full dress for the opening of its 1951 opera season.

ON HAND for the performances, in addition to the scores of opera-goers who have already reserved their seats, will be a group of Korean veterans. They will be hosted at a special dinner prior to the performances as part of dedication ceremonies honoring Conrad E. Dorn, former City College music student, to whom Robert Morton has dedicated his first opera, Christopher Smith. Dorn was killed in action last year in Korea.

Local Tracksters Place Fifth In Season Closer At Modesto

By Don Stephens

Despite Ram Vernon Chambers' winning performance in the high hurdles, City College was able to garner only a fifth place in possibly their last track showing of the season at the Big Seven Conference meet at Modesto on Tuesday, May 8.

In placing third behind Modesto's Warren Emm's record-breaking 9:45.2 effort in the two mile event, Lambert Rax managed the quarter mile with a rush to push Emm to the new conference record. The former Conference record of 9:59.5 was set by local Seward Chapman in 1918.

Shotputter George Hayes, who, off his past performances, never goes beyond the 41 foot mark, again hovered near his mark by heaving the shot 41 feet 4 inches for second place honors. He was 5½ inches shy of the winning throw.

Dashman Ben Wade, failing to place in the 220 event, ran a 10.1 race in the 100 yarder, behind Modesto's Perry Peightal's 9.9 victory, for third place.

High enough for third place, Cecil Bledsoe's 12 foot efforts in the pole vault failed to break a 13 foot stalemate for first.

Miler Ron Bauer, who should have run his mile last year when he registered a 4:23.7 mark, placed third behind a 4:25.8 effort by George Blackwood of Sacramento Junior College.

The final scores were: Modesto, 51-3 20; Sacramento, 30-7 10; Santa Rosa, 24-3 4; San Mateo, 19-2 5; City College of San Francisco, 18; Contra Costa, 10. Stockton Junior College failed to register any places.

Friday Deadline For Intra Signups

With intramural basketball climaxing with the Extra-Mural championship over State, softball takes over the intramural spotlight with signups to be presented to Tom Wilson, intramural director, before 5 p.m. this Friday, May 18.

Touch football got underway last week and the "net" games, (tennis, badminton, pingpong) are still in the final stages, because contests are arranged on an individual basis, making it difficult to arrange playing dates and times.

The usual baseball rules will prevail during the softball contest, which will be limited to seven innings and slated to start within ten minutes of the scheduled times of 3:10 and 4:10.

Participants will be limited to 10 players and will be furnished with catchers and first basemen gloves, conversely contestants are permitted to use other equipment, including cleats.

Awards, consisting of a gold belt buckle for the softball champions and a silver medal for the runnerup, will be awarded following intramural play.

With the finish of football contests intramural activities for the spring semester will end.

Completion of Block SF Scroll Draws Near

The City College Block SF Society honor scroll is near completion and is expected to be presented during a future college hour, Rod DeCristofaro, Block SF president, announced last week.

Bill Rudimetkin, honor roll committee chairman, is directing the scroll's construction. It will be placed near the west-campus flagpole, and bear the names of exmembers now in the armed forces.

Other members are in the process of checking past files of the college for the names to be placed on the plaque.

Following the Mardi Gras, which is slated for Friday, May 25, the Society will hold its annual Block SF banquet in the cafeteria, DeCristofaro also stated.

Golfers Lose Second Match In Two Weeks

For the second straight week Ram golfers ran up against red hot competition and were nudged by Modesto 9½ to 5½ at Modesto, and low scores were again in abundance all over the green.

This defeat by Modesto gives the Hillsman-coached team second place in the league standings and throws Modesto and San Mateo into a first place tie.

The next competition for the golfers is the Medalist meet at Stockton to see what golfers out of the Big Seven Conference will be eligible for the State meet at Stanford.

Ram golfers were leading going into the final nine holes, 4 to 1, but a hot Modesto team came back and walked off with the match. Wes Coulbert and Rodger Artoux shot 78's but could only garner ½ and 1 point from their opponents, who shot a 76 and a 77.

Dick Kucich and Danny Banford shot 79's but only picked up 1½ points between them while the Modesto men both shot 77's. Andy Barbera picked up the most points for City College, shooting an 84 and picking up 2½ points on his man.

Netters Shellac Santa Rosa 7-0 To Close Season

The local net squad closed a mediocre tennis season on a victorious note last Thursday when they administered a 7 to 0 shellacking to the netters of Santa Rosa on the latter's home courts.

Next stop for the Ram contingent is the Big 8-Sen tournament at Modesto, May 18, 19, and 20.

By virtue of their triumph at Santa Rosa last week the locals ended the season in fourth place on the strength of a three wins and three losses record. Top three teams in the Big Seven circuit are: Modesto, last year's champs, San Mateo, and Sacramento. All three teams measured the Rams in conference play.

Favorite again this year to win top honors are the Modesto Pirates, with San Mateo offering them their stiffest competition.

This season's net team, the college's first since 1947, was paced by Kevin Merrick, formerly from Berkeley High, and Jack Hymes, graduate of Lowell High, net coach Roy Diederichsen said. Other outstanding players on the team are Al Robinson, Monroe Kaplan, Frank Evans, and Bob Lacampgne.

City College Riders Capture Third Place

Riders from City College, Dominican College, Mills College, Stanford University, and the University of California at Berkeley and Davis competed in the third annual collegiate Horse Show held at Mills College on Sunday, May 6.

Representing the college were Noel Anderson, Carol Dawson, Audrey Madeson, Shirley Metcalf, and Patricia Ponten.

In the intermediate English class, Audrey Madeson captured the blue ribbon, while Patricia Ponten placed second. The college's team of four placed third, topped only by the Mills College and Stanford teams.

The Collegiate Horse Show is given annually with a desire to establish organized riding competition among colleges and to formulate standards for equestrian competition.

WAA Starts Work On Mardi Gras Booths

With the completion of the last Thursday's playday at George Washington High School, the activities of the Women's Athletic Association has come to a close, Nancy Sparks, adviser, announced last week.

The playday, consisting of tennis and badminton, which took place at San Mateo May 4, proved to be a big success as well as the playday which took place here on April 21.

Right now the Women's Athletic Association is busy working on a booth for the Mardi Gras.

Baseball Closes Against Modesto

By John Baird

Ram horsehiders under the tutelage of Coach Bill Fischer, bring the conference and regular season to a close this Saturday at Golden Gate Park when they lock horns with the Modesto Pirates in a doubleheader that was previously postponed due to bad weather.

In conference play the Fischer-coached team split with Stockton on their home grounds and took the first game of a home and home series with their Peninsula rivals, San Mateo. This gives City College three wins and six losses in conference play and if they take the remaining three games they can end up the season with six and six.

Al Tivio pitched the locals to a 9 to 5 win in the first game of the doubleheader against Stockton but the Stockton team took the nightcap 9 to 4.

Al Nicora hit a home run to spark the college's victory. Costly errors defeated the home town nine in the second game, but Johnny Pantoleon made two circus catches in left field that still have the Stockton fans talking. He also hit a home run but it was for a losing cause.

Against their traditional rivals from the Peninsula Tivio again pitched the Rams to victory allowing only seven hits. The San Mateo pitcher gave up eight hits, but the Fischermen capitalized on these to produce five runs and win the game 5 to 4.

Recreation Of Past Events Stirs Fans

By Warren Northwood

BOREDOM, an interest in radio, and a vivid imagination have brought to sports fans the most interesting radio sportscasts to be produced since Marconi first tinkered with electricity.

The bored man was Gordon McLendon, son of a Texas millionaire, who with his own money and mind borrowed from the past the greatest events in all sports and made them part of the present.

McLendon and his re-creation of these past thrillers is the man responsible for the Liberty Broadcasting System where on most afternoons Babe Ruth or Red Grange can be heard scoring the runs that brought them fame.

Being discharged from the service after World War II, McLendon turned to his lifetime ambition, radio. To start from the bottom would require time and to McLendon time was important, so he bought outright, with his father's backing, a small station in Texas.

He realized that a small station sometimes has a hard time gaining listener interest so he decided to try something new on the public. This something new was the rehash of old events brought up to date with a few sound effects and a snappy script.

Soon after his first few programs radio interests the country over noticed the loaded potential in McLendon's experiment and he was besieged with offers from all networks.

Today the Liberty Broadcasting System run by "The Old Scotchman," as he bills himself, comprises, including affiliates, some 315 stations in all 48 states.

Students To Select Mardi Gras Royalty

King, Queen Will Rule Over Gala Carnival Night

Selection of the Mardi Gras king and queen will be determined by a vote Wednesday, May 23, in the student lounge, Building 2, with voting possible throughout the day, Doug Smith, Associated Men Student president, announced last week.

Smith urged all Associated Students to vote for the persons whom they feel deserve these honors. To enable the students to know the candidates, individual pictures will be placed around the campus this week.

Royal Contestants

King contestants are Richard Engeseth, Ralph Howes, Rex Ingram, John LoCoco, Art Pappas, Dick Topham, Dick Wallace.

Queen candidates include Ann Brady, Nancy Kellerman, Violet Litraes, Audrey Madison, Nancy Provance, Jane Rouche, Winnie Schmale, Nancy Stelling, and Sondra Stull.

The drama club's variety show will run several times during the Mardi Gras, starting at 8 p.m. with a half-hour interval between each performance, Smith said.

Festive decorations will adorn the student lounge, Smith said, and the dance orchestra goes to the bandstand at 8 p.m.

Students and the general public are expected to wear costumes to help add to the carnival spirit.

Photographic Jamboree will highlight the college photographic department's activities in the festivities, Beverly Pasqualetti, chairman of the department, announced.

Background setting and models for photography are scheduled to arrive at the college from the committee working on the current Foto Festival competition.

Tentative plans made thus far include arranging four sets each containing a Hawaiian scene, models in a new automobile, character study, and Miss San Francisco, respectively.

The booths will be set up so that all photographers, amateur or professional, will have an opportunity to take some shots, Pasqualetti said.

Summer Employment On Upswing, Students Should Apply Now

Summer employment opportunities for college students have expanded, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, declared yesterday.

Employers are now hiring students for part-time work until the end of the semester, if they agree to work full-time during the summer, Amori said.

Summer counsellors for camps both in and out of San Francisco are needed. Students with proficiency in arts and crafts, music, dramatics and sports are preferred. The pay ranges from $200 to $300 for the season.

Hundreds of students were interviewed for summer work on April 20 by the Yosemite Park and Curry Company in their San Francisco office.

Job openings include everything from bus boys to hotel managers, and the pay ranges from 90 cents an hour with meals, to $300 a month with all expenses paid.

Ex-Guardsman Editor Writes Fortnight Story

Word was received at the college last week that Richard Brennan, former Guardsman editor, is author of an article published in the latest issue of Fortnight magazine.

Brennan, who held the editorship of The Guardsman in Fall '49, said it was a shorter version of what he called "the best news story I ever wrote."

The article concerned a trial in Mendocino County.

He also had published in a recent issue of the same magazine a story dealing with the merger of the San Francisco Press Club and the Union League Club.

Brennan is currently employed as public relations officer with a Southern California airlines company.

College Hour To Have Movie, Club Meetings

The story of the construction of the natural gas pipe line from Texas to California will be told in the weekly film offering of the audio-visual department this Friday, May 18, director Madison Devlin announced yesterday.

Super Inch, a color movie produced by the Pacific Gas and Electric Company, will be shown twice, Devlin said. The first show is at 10 a.m., and the second during college hour, beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Club meetings are also scheduled for college hour, in rooms assigned earlier in the semester, Dean Louis Batmale said.

Music Department To Host High School Choral Groups Friday

Music department faculty and students will play host to San Francisco high school choral groups Friday, May 25, when the groups meet here in the third annual High School Choral Festival, according to Flossita Badger, music director.

A dinner for students participating in the festival as well as an invitation to the Mardi Gras, will be part of the day's program.

The festival is scheduled to start at 2 p.m. and will last an estimated three hours. Each school participating in the program is alloted 15 minutes to present its individual program, and the college choir, Treble Clef and Men's Glee Club appear in the latter part of the program.

Purpose of this concert is to acquaint the high school students with the college and its facilities. Members of the college's music groups act as hosts and guides for tours around the campus, and are hosts at the dinner.

Another purpose of the festival, an annual affair, is to provide inter-relationship of choral singing in San Francisco public secondary schools.

This program will be open to the public, and those interested will be admitted free to the auditorium.

During a scheduled field day at the Seals' ball park Saturday, May 26, a special roped off area will be opened to photographers and prominent city officials will pose with baseball officials, members of the Foto Festival committee announced recently.

A $25.00 U. S. Savings Bond will be awarded for the best shot of the day, and all camera fans are invited to attend.

Camera Comments will appear at the new time of 1:30 p.m., Sunday, May 27. Topic for the show will be Photographing the Outdoors and Kenneth Relchart will be presented as guest speaker by Bev Pasqualetti, college instructor and host of the show. Programs appearing each alternate Sunday previous to May 13 were shown at 12:30 p.m.

Eight Students Eligible For Eastwood Award

Decisions to present the Alice Eastwood Award to outstanding students in the floriculture department are being determined by the San Francisco Garden Club this week, Harry Nelson, floriculture department instructor declared yesterday.

Sponsored by the San Francisco Garden Club, the Alice Eastwood Award is presented annually to outstanding floriculture students.

Students under consideration attended a luncheon with the San Francisco Garden Club committee during the week of April 30. This week the committee will consider grades to aid in selecting the students for the award.

Students nominated for the Eastwood Award are Eleanor Lange, Herman Layer, George Koch, Charles Konigsberg, Jack O'Shea, Joan Spencer, and Elane Tragitt. Patricia Haucke was presented with an award last year and is also eligible for consideration this year. She is now working part time at Plath Nursery, Nelson said.

The award is named in honor of Alice Eastwood, a pioneering botanist who has contributed much to California's cultural advancement. During the San Francisco fire and earthquake of 1906 she was the botanist of the Academy of Sciences and saved most of the important plant specimens from the endangered building by loading them onto a wagon.

Instructors Star In Gone-With-Windski

The faculty show, which hasn't received its official name as yet, will be presented Friday night, June 1, in the auditorium at 8:30 p.m., director Stuart Hyde announced last week.

The show, which is comprised of two skits, Gone with the Windski, a story of the Russian Revolution, and Time Out, Hey What, star faculty members Howard Benninghoff, Harry Frustruck, Elmer Patterson, Robin Dunn, Mervin Slosberg, Russ Posner, Trudy Somerville and George Gould.

Variety Is Spice Of Campus Life; Organizations Plan Busy Week

Variety is the spice of campus life this week as the club organizations emerge into individual activities.

Kappa Phi pledges plan a dinner for members tonight at the home of Stephanie Pearl. Jacque Jefferies, Kappa Phi, has recently been pinned to Jim Cress, Alpha Sigma Delta.

Canterbury Club members will meet at the St. Francis Parish for a 7 o'clock mass, with breakfast immediately following, this Friday, May 18. Canterbury pins may be obtained from Ron Llenau, member of the club.

Phi Beta Delta and Alpha Sigma Delta pledges recently received their pins and are now full-fledged members of their respective fraternities. The Phi Delts will go picnicking with the Phi Beta Rhos Sunday, May 20.

Forum Club members will discuss the question, "Is student government necessary?" this Friday night at 8 o'clock, at co-sponsor John Gerstung's home, 157 Kensington Way.

Campus clubs will attend the college opera, May 18 and 19. Sections have been expressly reserved for the organizations.

Theta Tau alumnae association members held their semi-annual mother-daughter tea at the Fox Hostess on Mother's Day, Sunday, May 13. Theta Tau formally initiated their new members recently at the home of Betty Johnson.

Omicron Phi Pi, economic honor society, staged their semi-annual dinner recently at the French Normandie Restaurant.

Tau Chi Sigma pledges are Frank Goodwich, Morris Kilgore, Erwin Boxer, Mike Riley, George Coultz, Ed Hulsberg, Bob Giesse, Bill Ellison, and Dean Haferman.

Drama Club dignitaries are Dawn Kidd, president; Bud Lytton, technical head; Vivian Breslin, production manager; Beverly Bowling, public relations head.

The Lutheran Discussion Group and the ex-Marine Association, Epsilon Mu Alpha, are seeking on-campus charters. Epsilon Mu Alpha now has 20 members of both women and men students.

Engineering Society members are urged to attend a business meeting this Friday during college hour, in Room 204.

Motorcade Opens Mardi Gras Festivity Friday Night

By Bert Kenny

A motor parade will be the signal Friday evening, for the frolic of the Associated Men Student sponsored Mardi Gras to start, Doug Smith, AMS president, announced yesterday.

Starting at 6 p.m. a caravan of 25 autos, escorted by two motorcycle officers, will begin its journey at Haight and Laguna Streets, proceeding west on Haight to Stanyan Street, south on Stanyan to Lincoln Way, west to Seventh Avenue, south to Dewey Boulevard, then to Claremont, Portola Drive, Junipero Serra Boulevard and Ocean Avenue to the college, and Smith requested yesterday that only organizations recognized by the Club Activities Board enter cars in the procession.

Concession booths operated by campus clubs will offer refreshments and entertainment. All types of carnival games will amuse the crowd, while circus food is served. As an added service, the fountain will remain open for the celebration.

Dancing is scheduled to start at 8 p.m. in the student lounge.

High spot of the evening will be the crowning of the King and Queen of the carnival.

Voting for these will be carried on today in the lounge, Building 2. In the auditorium several performances of a Drama club variety show will be staged.

Besides the King and Queen trophies, Smith announced that prizes will be awarded best costumes and booths.

Assisting Smith in final preparation for the festival are Lou Allen, Bob Lacampagne, Dick Szukalski, John LoCoco, freshman class president, and his committee, Gloria Naecarini and the Associated Women Students' committee, and Dick Silveria's Rally Committee.

DOUG SMITH, AMS president, and Shirlee Wentzel display a poster advertising the annual Mardi Gras before the college symbol, the Rom. The gala fete is scheduled for Friday night, May 25, at 7:30 p.m.—Photo by Weiss.

League Platform

For some colleges, the sale of Associated Student cards is only part of the source of their income. For us it is nearly the only source. The finance of the Associated Students must be put on a sound economic basis. This is the thing I shall try to do if elected. Also the spirit of the college needs a boost, which, I think, a more self-supporting Associated Student organization would give it. And if I am elected this is the program I would inaugurate.

Selective Service Extends Date For Test Applications

Deadline date for receipt of Selective Service College Qualification Test applications has been extended until this Friday, May 25, by the Selective Service, the government Educational Testing Service announced yesterday.

All test applications must be in the hands of the Educational Testing service by that date, and the extension applies to all draft tests, June 16, June 30, and July 12.

Applications are no longer being processed for the May 26th administration, and no further tickets can be issued for May 26, the Selective Service examining section announced.

Students who wish to take the test must secure, complete, and mail all applications at once.

Meanwhile, City College has been giving Tuesday practice examinations. These tests, regular City College aptitude tests, have been given to acquaint students with the mechanics involved in the draft test. The tests are given in Room 100 at 3 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Student Lounge, Main Building Sites For June 5-6 AS Elections; Belcher, Chevrier To Try For President's Post

Associated Student elections will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 5-6, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the student lounge and the main building basement, with voting machines for student voters, according to John Allen, election commissioner.

Parties to be represented in the student elections include candidates for the Inter-Fraternity Council. Student League and the Non-Partisan Party. The last named party came about as a result of the efforts of students who have no political affiliations but "are more interested in the betterment of the college," according to its President, Ron Zimmerman.

Pete Chevrier and Duane Belcher have been named as the AS Presidential candidates for the Fraternity Party and Student League respectively.

Allen urged the participation of the students in the elections in order to set a new record vote and indicate the amount of college spirit. Commenting on the candidates for the student offices Allen declared, "There are very good candidates for government positions, and as there seems to be such an even match, the elections should prove to be very close."

Students wishing to vote in the election will have their AS cards punched by the election committee before voting, Allen said.

Allen assumed the post of Election Commissioner after the resignation of Belcher who was formerly Commissioner. His appointment was made by Ralph Vetterlein, Associated Student president, "on the basis of his past service in the Fall semester in the post of Election Commissioner."

No amendments will appear on the ballot as amendments were not approved by the Student Council in time for publication in The Guardsman as stipulated in the AS constitution, thus cancelling amendments for this election.

Double College Hour Slated For June 1, 8

Mutiny on the Bounty, movie starring Clark Gable, will not be shown Friday during college hour as originally scheduled, Madison Devlin, audio visual aids instructor, announced yesterday.

The film has been reissued to commercial theatres, Devlin explained.

Charles Dickens' David Copperfield, Man and Boy, will be shown in its place.

A double college hour is scheduled for Friday, June 1, Coordinator F. Grant Marsh announced. The purpose of the June 1 college hour is to facilitate voting in Associated Student election, he explained. In order to make the double college hour possible, 10 o'clock class will be cancelled.

A double college hour will be held the next Friday, June 8, Dr. Marsh said, when 11 o'clock class will be cancelled so that the Soph-Faculty baseball game can be played.

In regard to programming for the Fall semester, Dr. Marsh urged all students who have not made appointments for counselling to do so immediately.

Open house and demonstration of the new planetarium in the main building have been scheduled for students both Friday, June 1 and June 8 at 10:40 a.m., Louis Berman, astronomy instructor, said.

IFC Platform

The ideal Associated Student program is one which continually strives to increase the interest, membership and participation in the activities of the college.

This situation can be brought about only through careful planning by people who are familiar with the promotion of good activities.

In choosing these candidates, this party has considered and selected students without regard to their political or social affiliation. Consideration has been given only to those qualities which are necessary to bring about an activity program which will interest every student.

Eight High School Choral Groups Sing In Festival Friday

With eight San Francisco high schools scheduled to participate, the college's third annual city-wide choir festival starts at 2 p.m. this Friday, in the auditorium, Gertrude Norgard, Treble Clef director, said yesterday.

Choirs or choruses expected to appear are from Girl's, Washington, Commerce, Lincoln, Lowell, Galileo, Balboa and Polytechnic High Schools.

Mission High School's choir was unable to take part this year because May 25 is the last night of Mission's presentation of Reginald De Koven's Robin Hood.

At the festival here, each group is allotted 15 minutes, with the college's Men's Glee Club, Treble Clef, and A Cappella Choir rounding out the program, Mrs. Norgard declared.

Following the festival itself, a dinner is slated for all participants in the college cafeteria, with Music Guild members acting as hosts.

Missing Of Deadline Keeps AS Constitution Changes Off Ballot

WHEN students cast their ballots in the elections June 5-6, they will not have an opportunity to vote on proposed amendments to the Associated Student constitution. Failure of amendments to appear on the ballot was brought about by the student council failing to submit proposed amendments in time for publication in The Guardsman.

Article VII, Section 2 of the constitution states that, "Such proposed amendments shall be published in The Guardsman AND posted in a public place at least one week before the voting takes place." Deadline for amendments to reach The Guardsman in time for publication for this issue was set at noon, Thursday, May 17. Failure to meet this deadline caused cancellation of the amendments.

This action is nothing new—the Spring 1950 semester saw the same problem arise. Twice in the period of one year students have been denied the right to express opinion on amendments through failure of persons responsible to meet AS constitutional requirements.

TWO courses of action could prevent a repeat of this problem in the future. The first would be for the council to meet publication deadline by preparing amendments earlier in the semester. The second would be to change the constitution to read—as it did in 1936—that "amendments shall be published in The Guardsman OR posted in a public place."

The second course would be the wiser, for it would give The Guardsman more space to devote to the elections themselves, commencement, the Mardi Gras, and other events which occur near the end of the semester.

Bad scheduling, as expressed in previous editorials, could have an effect on the voting, and The Guardsman would like to reiterate its stand that the few minutes students take during June 5-6 to cast their ballots are important ones. The Guardsman urges all members of the Associated Students to take those few minutes to express their views in the coming AS elections.

Redhead Gets Wolf Calls

Vivacious Model Tours The West Campus

By Ken Gruss

A gorgeous young redhead will usually get a stare or a whistle just about anywhere, and this campus is no exception. This particular redhead stands out in gatherings of unattached men students, for she is a lovely little photographer's model.

Having finished her day's chores, she frequently tours the campus, last week visiting, among other spots of major interest, the journalism stronghold in "sumptuous" Building 4.

Undaunted by the fact that newspaper makeup was in progress, this impetuous young lady proceeded to plant her lovely little posterior on the most convenient lap—then reclined under the copy desk.

She is always the center of attraction wherever she goes, and upon being questioned, stares straight at her questioner and barks that her name is Ginger.

Ginger has had quite a career, in her short but boisterous life. She has traveled through most of the states in the Union from Alabama to California since she was six weeks.

She has posed for many of the promising photographers of this area, and recently consented to be the subject for Beverly Pasqualetti's advanced photography class.

Ginger is either more or less Pomeranian, more or less vivacious Fox Terrier. She is very young for a model being only four years old, but she possesses a charming personality.

Set Man Works At Making Show Good

Robert Segrin, stage manager for last week's opera productions, will verify in a modest sort of way that producing two operas is a tumultuous job, and one that takes endurance, ingenuity, and elbow grease.

Segrin saw that the show was hung properly (theatrical parlance for set construction), that lights were beamed in the right places, and that the hundred and one other jobs of a technical nature went off like clock work.

Any amount of effort exerted by Segrin, or any praise due him is nothing but a mild understimation, members of the college janitorial staff assert. Never, they said, has the stage (at both auditoriums) been kept in such professional order.

Duck—Low Bridge

Six Footers Have Drinking Trouble

By Bob Reilly

Drinking fountains at the college, besides serving as docile instruments in lubricating the voice, also boast of having three distinct personalities.

Men students, particularly those whose frames extend over six feet, have a diffieut time manipulating the distantly placed drinking founts in the men's gymnasium.

The fountains are frustratingly located well down the side of the wall so that the mere possibility of getting the head down to it represents a feat of physical activity in itself.

(It is generally believed that this is what the sadists who installed them had in mind.)

In the main building, a dry throat causes another search.

Finding the water fount set inside the wall is striking at first, but as anyone who has received a shocking squirt in the proboscis knows, the likelihood of getting out of the way has been cleverly hindered by the unique placement of three walls about the thirst-ridden student's head.

The west campus uprights (as they are affectionately called by their rabid following) involve no straining of the sacroiliac or humiliating imprisonment of the head. All that is required is a deft turn of the handle.

Audio-Visual Shows 50 Films Per Week

Since its modest beginning four years ago, the audio-visual aids department has rapidly expanded until it has become an integral part of college life.

Audio-visual aids is a term which is frequently misunderstood by many people who think of audio-visual aids as movies; this is only part of the program. A much more descriptive term is learning aids. Madison Devlin, instructor in charge of the department, defines it as "supplementary material."

More than 50 films are made available for classroom use each week by the audio-visual aids department.

Science students see the most films. Hygiene, nurse, and physical education classes use the ten most popular films.

Movies constitute the visual part of the term audio-visual. The audio portion includes phonograph.

The audio-visual aids department has its headaches. There's always the problem of a film not arriving on time, and of the absent-minded instructor who forgets he ordered a movie.

Reflections . . .

By Nini Aigeltinger

RIGID college routine yields to the reckless abandon of the annual Mardi Gras celebration this Friday night.

Carnival spirit prevails, as crowds are expected to throng the west campus where concession booths, operated by on-campus clubs, and the dance music combine to lure every San Franciscan away from his television set and to guarantee a rollicking good time.

Though a pre-lenten festivity actually, the Mardi Gras has a universal appeal which has made it the theme of social affairs during the entire year all over the country.

City College's Mardi Gras resulted from a 1946 freshman dance with that theme. The Associated Men Students expanded the theme into a carnival staged in the auditorium the following year. Since 1947 the Mardi Gras has become a tradition of the student activity year.

Mardi Gras itself is an old custom, perpetuated today by the now world-famous New Orleans extravaganza. Introduced to America in 1699, by Iberville and his men on the banks of a Louisiana stream which they named Bayou Mardi Gras, Mardi Gras embarked on a career of alternate public encouragement and suppression.

Early street celebrations on Mardi Gras were disorganized, but everyone had a wonderful time. Today in New Orleans the festivities have achieved huge proportions; elaborate parades and costly balls transform the period from January 6 to Shrove Tuesday into a perpetual carnival.

In 1949 more than 60 balls took place. At each ball there is a tableau, the grand march of the king, queen and court, call-out dances and general dancing. The court departs at midnight for supper at an exclusive restaurant or private home.

Theme song of the New Orleans Mardi Gras is, If I Ever Cease To Love, which was adopted in 1872.

Where City College has only one king and queen, New Orleans revellers have almost 20 sets of royalty.

Where the New Orleans Mardi Gras has become an elaborate, commercialized extravaganza, City College Mardi Gras is a carefree carnival that appeals to all ages.

Forum Magazine On Sale This Week; Edition Only 500

Forum, the campus literary magazine, went on sale Monday at various locations about the campus. Price is 50 cents, and the edition is limited to 500 copies.

The staff this year is under the editorship of Joanne Tuohey.

Literary editor is Robert L. Seward; business manager is Joyce Nelson; art editor is Katherine Reinhertz, and the associate art editor is Mary Quartaroli.

The editorial staff is composed of Duane Belcher, Irene Erickson, Henry Loule, Dorothy Moor, Kitt Sornborger, and Dorothy Mercer and John Gerstung are sponsors.

Cover of this year's Forum was designed by Peter L. Ledee, who also designed the title page. Material published includes humor, satire, poetry, and short stories.

Helene Mayer, Fence Of Olympic Fame

Champion Now Teaches Political Science Here

By Ted Gould

Internationally famous foil-artist Helene Mayer, who doubles as a political science instructor here at the college, is a woman not to be crossed when she is wielding a needle-like fencing weapon.

Recognized as one of the leading women fencers of the world, Miss Mayer's skill was apparent at the early age of 13, when she won the German national fencing title. While still at high school, she won fencing honors at the Olympic Games at Amsterdam in 1928, and was runner up in the 1936 Olympics in Berlin.

Born in Germany, she came to the United States for the first time in 1932 as an exchange student, spending one year at Scripps College in Pomona.

Miss Mayer stayed in the country by choice to become a naturalized citizen in 1941.

She received her doctor's degree in modern languages and philology at the University of California, and after two years of language instruction here, she is presently teaching Political Science 36.

Miss Mayer is probably one of the most winning competitors in the history of fencing; she has won the German National title 15 times, the American title nine times, along with her Olympic honors.

"Attempting to create student interest, Miss Mayer instructed aspiring students in the sport for several semesters until a shoulder injury forced her retirement from active participation last year."

Her pet cocker spaniel, who seemingly loves the resulting noise caused by clashing foils, has been given much credit for spurring on the masked, foil-gladiators.

Modesto Practice Game Saturday Set For Ram Nine

A new edition of the local baseball nine will take the field Saturday when the locals engage the Modesto Pirates in a practice double header at Graham Field, Coach Bill Fischer said last week.

Ram men who played prep ball together at Mission High will grace the first game line up, with Captain Bob La Costa directing, while catcher Bob McCarthy guides the horschiders who matriculated to City College from high schools in the East Bay in the seven inning nightcap.

Coach Fischer, in announcing the new, somewhat unarthodox method of college baseball, said, "This is something that I have been wanting to do for 20 years, but never got around to it. I will have nothing to do with the coaching or team management, but instead will sit in the stands as a spectator and keep score."

The locals lost two games last week in two outings. The pro-laden Alameda Coast Guard nine trounced the college's diamond darlings by a 13 to 6 score. In the last conference game of the season, the Rams were again dumped by San Mateo on the strength of outfielder John Olcese's three-run homer.

The legitimacy of Olcese's circuit clout is questionable; centerfielder Johnny Pantoleon fielded the ball deep among the trees and attempted a throw to second base. However, the ball hit a tree and bounced back farther than it had gone in the first place.

Box score for the Rams totaled three runs, six hits and three errors, and for the Bulldogs from down the peninsula, seven runs, nine hits and they also made three miscues. Jerry Pandolfi started for the locals but was relieved by Al Tivio in the seventh.

Spring Basketball Signup Impresses, Sets High Hopes

With a spring basketball signup of 33 players working, Coach Ralph Hillsman feels that the '51-'52 season could end in a conference championship.

Since May 7, the signup date, 18 players have been released to provide a working margin.

Dick Greenberg, Mario Lombardi and Bob Nieman, first team players last season, along with regulars Jim Marshall and Jim McNiel, will probably form the starting line-up. However, Vern Beur, Hank Costa from Sacred Heart, Ike Walker, all-city from Commerce, and possibly Galileo's Jerry Tamalier, may "bump" one of the tentative regulars.

At the close of spring practice June 5, at 3 p.m., an intra-squad game, which is open to everyone, will be held.

Golfers Sharpen Up For All-Conference Meet

Hoping that they have found the winner's route, the Ram golf squad under sponsor Ralph Hillsman is preparing for the Stockton tournament next week.

If they qualify they will end up in Stanford for the State tournament two days later.

The clubmen shot their way to a 10 to 5 victory at the expense of Contra Costa last week at Harding Park, thus making their conference record four wins and two losses. In final season standings the locals ended in third place behind Modesto and runner-up San Mateo. Both teams beat the Rams in conference play.

In the Contra Costa game, golfer Wes Coulbert started slowly for the locals, shooting a 79, and lost three points to visitor Dick Keyser, who was medalist with a 74 for the East Bay contingent.

Low man for the Rams was Dick Kucich with a score of 75. Rodger Artoux and Danny Banford shot 85's to win a total of four points from their opponents.

Top five men for the coming Stockton tournament are Wes Coulbert, Dick Kucich, Rodger Artoux, Danny Banford, and Andy Barbera.

Intra Boxing Tourney Slated For Men's Gymnasium Tonight

By Don Stephens

Going into the final round, 26 qualifiers from the senior and inexperienced novice divisions will battle for the championship gold belts in the Intramural Novice Boxing Tournament tonight, 8 p.m., in the men's gymnasium.

There will be eight bouts ranging, every 10 pounds, from 125 pounders to 175 pounders and heavyweights in the novice or inexperienced class.

In the experienced or senior novice group, the weights vary to suit the participants, who will engage in the 125, 135, 155, 175, and heavyweight divisions. Three rounds, each lasting one minute, will be the maximum bout length to decide the winners in each weight division.

Signups, according to Roy Diederichsen, college boxing mentor, and Thomas Wilson, local intramural director, up to last Tuesday numbered 18 pugilists, who include the following:

Senior Division: Ashberry Butler, 125; Joe Rockwell, 155; Bob Shepardson, 176 and Ray Nelson, heavyweight.

Novice Division: Bob Brierley, 130; Ken Stallings and Jim Clynn, 135; Bill Ellisen and Charles Andrews, 145; George Jenson, Nathan Sohel and Mack Dyle, 155; Laverne Grant, 165; Charles Brown, 175; heavyweights John Longar, Ralph Blumenthal, Al Bragnara and Ed Hayes.

Associated Student card holders will be admitted free; however, there will be a 60 cent charge to anyone else except students holding student cards from other schools. These will be given a special discount rate.

Block Society To Honor Spring Athletes

Block SF awards for spring semester athletes will be awarded during the annual Block Society banquet to be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday, May 28, in the college cafeteria, Bill Fischer, faculty sponsor, announced last week.

All athletes eligible for blocks are invited to attend. Highlight of the affair will be an address by President Louis Conlan; high school coaches from schools sending eligible athletes to City College have also been invited to attend, Fischer stated.

Bill Marcus, former treasurer, is expected to take a leave of absence from college because he won a summer scholarship to the University of Oslo, in Norway, Rod DeCristofaro, Block SF president, said last week.

Otherwise the members of the society are continuing work on the Block SF scroll.

A complete list of members receiving rewards for their respective sport will appear in this paper's next issue. Sports sending members to the society are tennis, golf, baseball and track.

Klemmer Issues Call For Football Players

Spring signups for football players and managers should be in the hands of Coach Grover Klemmer by Friday, June 8, to be eligible for pre-season practice next fall.

Following the signup a meeting will be called to advise the players and managers with full particulars as to training and the pre-season practice date.

A completely new squad is expected to turn out, with most of them being comprised of prep standouts from San Francisco and the surrounding area.

New Zealand Offers Sportsman Paradise

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

WITH summer vacation approaching and travel agencies making their bid to lure college students on school tours, here's a suggestion on how to spend a vacation loading up on thrills and sport in a healthy life away from civilization and the draft.

Richard Tregaskis, of Guadalcanal Diary fame, on a recent trip around the world hails New Zealand as "a sportsman's paradise."

He tells of deer so plentiful all year round that professional hunters are hired by the government to bring in skins at $1.04 per pelt to try and rid the island of the pests.

Fishing offers everything from lake trout to Marlin. According to Tregaskis, one lake became so overcrowded with fish a pro fisherman was paid to thin out the fish in order to supply the trout with enough food. They were dying from malnutrition due to the population.

Game seasons last all year round and the cost of living is cheap, food and lodging costing around $5.00 per day. So if the money is around, and the ship available along with an interest in game sports, New Zealand is the place to go, according to Mr. Tregaskis.

Sophs, Profs Prepare For Biggest Battle

Here on the campus all major spring sports are coming to a fast close.

Boxing, track, tennis, and baseball are fading, but an important event is still to come, when the top greats of the faculty and the soph stars meet in their semi-annual softball game.

Bearing a resemblance to a nine-act comedy, the sophs will again attempt to defeat the oldsters, a thing which hasn't been done in the past few semesters. The game is still several weeks off, but The Guardsman sports staff is preparing to give the game full and close coverage.

Club Cavalcade . . .

By Gracene Brown

MAY baskets have brought both the Mardi Gras and the recent opera to the campus as well as a huge basketful of activities for clubdom.

Zeta Chi and Gamma Phi Ypsilon will travel to Adobe Creek for the Memorial Day holiday. Formal initiation of Zeta Chi pledges will be held at Jackie Avey's home on Thursday night, May 31. The pledges are planning a dinner for members Tuesday night, May 29.

Tri-E and Tau Chi Sigma pledges both received their pins on Sunday, May 20. The Tau Chi formal initiation was staged at the home of Jerry Slater.

Club Communion at the 10 o'clock Mass is in store for the Newman Club-ites on Sunday, May 27, at St. Emydius Church. After the Mass a breakfast has been scheduled. Tickets, priced at 75 cents for the breakfast, should be purchased from the officers of the club.

The Alpha Sigma Deltas and Delta Psis will gather for a picnic Sunday, May 27. A joint meeting is planned for the Sigma Deltas and the Alpha Lambda Chis on Tuesday, May 29.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon is formulating plans for the pledge banquet to be held in June. Gamma Phi pledges are Don Anderson, Marce Bugautet, Julius Macke, Mike Pietro, Norm McNamara, Phil Guerrero, and Stan Brunie.

Alpha Lambda Chi members enjoyed a surprise dinner prepared by the pledges last Sunday, May 20, at Carol Rosenblatt's home. Pat Miller, Alpha Lambda Chi, and Ken Graham, Tri-E, exchanged pins at the recent inter-sorority dance.

Beta Tau pledges are Lou Shepherd, John Borogno, Bob Shank, Joe Scofidi, John LoCoco, Vern Annon, Bill Meyers, Joe Ferrar, Bob Crosby, and Joe Diez.

Phi Beta Delta members staged a welcoming dinner for new members at San Ramos last Saturday, May 19.

Le Cercle Francais received congratulations from the French Consul General, Jean de la Garde, for the fine performance of members, Armand Zimmerlin and Odette Troullett, in a French play given at the 2000th anniversary of Paris celebration at the Legion of Honor.

No Classes May 30, Summer Classes Posted

No classes will meet on Memorial Day, next Wednesday, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard announced yesterday.

Because of the holiday, the next issue of The Guardsman is scheduled for distribution Wednesday, June 6, Editor Don Johnson said.

Late graduation petitions will not be accepted now by the registrar, Miss Learnard said, because the list of graduates has already been sent to the printers.

Official time schedules for the 1951 summer session are now available in the registrar's office, Building 3. Registration for the summer session, which will extend from June 18 to August 10, is scheduled for Monday, June 18. Last day to drop a course is Tuesday, July 10. Leaves of absence from the summer session may be taken prior to Wednesday, August 1, Miss Learnard said.

The Fall 1951 semester begins on Tuesday, September 11, with registration, and ends on February 6.

Scottish Rite Set As Site For Soph Semi-Annual Ball

The Sophomore Ball will be held Saturday night, June 9, at the Scottish Rite Auditorium in San Francisco and will feature the music of Gary Evers and his orchestra, according to Maurice O'Brien, president of the sophomore class.

Attire for the event will be semi-formal, and bids will be two dollars per couple, O'Brien declared. Other events in Sophomore Week will include the annual Sophomore Student-Faculty baseball game scheduled Friday, June 8.

O'Brien warned that petitions for the King and Queen contest for the Sophomore Ball must be submitted to him or to any Club Activities Board meeting on or before this Friday, May 25.

Accompanying the petition must be a 5 by 7 photograph of the candidate which, O'Brien said, may be obtained from A. Walter McMurray Studio on Van Ness Avenue and Bush Street.

Soph Class Proposes Graduate Scholarship

Inaugurntion of a Graduate's Scholarship which would aid a deserving student of the college in future semesters was announced last week by Maurice O'Brien, president of the sophomore class.

Donations of 50 cents from each graduating member of the present sophomore class preceding the commencement ceremonies will, in the opinion of O'Brien, set a precedent which would establish "a living memorial" to aid deserving students who would not otherwise be able to graduate from the college.

To make certain that a really deserving student receives the scholarship award, O'Brien said he hopes to see established "a committee composed of one college administrator, one faculty member from the Student - Faculty Relations committee and one Associated Student officer (presumably the president) which would administer the fund."

Aside from a mere physical landmark left to succeeding classes, Sophomore President O'Brien hopes that because of the scholarship fund the present class "can be remembered in the annals of City College as the class that started a fine tradition."

Opera House Setting For Commencement

More than 1000 Fall and Spring semester graduates will receive their diplomas at the 16th annual commencement exercises which will be held at the Opera House on Friday evening, June 15, Lloyd D. Luckmann, dean of university parallel courses, announced early this week.

Caps, gowns, and invitations will be furnished without charge to all Associated Student card holders, Luckmann said.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Clarence Coonan, president of the Board of Education, plan to attend the commencement exercises with Dr. Clish as a speaker, he said.

Student speakers for the commencement are now being selected, he added.

Faculty 'Vaudevillians' Hide Out In Preparation For All-New Show, Unveil 1951 Frantics June 1

Loaded with skits, song routines, playlets and blackouts, the third annual Faculty Frantics will be presented Friday night, June 1, at 8 p.m., in the college auditorium, Michael Griffin, producer of the show, announced last Friday.

Final dress rehearsal will be held on the Memorial day holiday, and plans call for the cast to spend the entire day in the college auditorium whipping the show into final shape.

The Frantics this year will not have an over-all theme but will be modeled instead on a variety show basis making use of the "art of surprise." With this in mind, the cast members have been rehearsing in private and will come together for the first time on Memorial Day.

However there have been some bits of information gathered, such as the fact that Henry Leff and Meyer Cahn are preparing a blackout, that Nancy Sparks, Gloria Dunn, Edward Hare, George Baffico, Bill Culver, Maury Power, Evelyn Kerkhof, and Mary Jane Learnard will present a "History of the Dawnce" and that a special revue will be staged by Mildred Jensen, Nina Tucker, Daisy Toy, Kay Shorb, and Pat McCarthy.

As in the past, the college band, under the direction of Meyer Cahn, will furnish musical accompaniment for the show and will also provide intermission entertainment.

Griffin insists that the Frantics this year are entirely new and original in every respect. The show is under the direction of Stuart Hyde, produced by Griffin, and Bill Culver is in charge of the various committees.

Price is one dollar general admission and 50 cents with an Associated Student card.

DEAN EDWIN C. BROWNE will act as Master of Ceremonies at the annual Faculty Frantics to be presented Friday, June 1, when faculty members temporarily forsake their roles as instructors to assume roles as actors.

Joint Dinner To Be Held By Merchandising Club

Merchandising Club members are currently making plans for a joint dinner to be held in Oakland with Contra Costa and Vallejo Junior Colleges, Ray Hutton, president, said yesterday.

Students from the three colleges will hear prominent bay area retailers as guest speakers.

The group also sponsored a picnic for club members and their friends at Adobe Creek last Sunday, May 20.

Virginia Gohn, club adviser, announced also that the 1952 state convention of merchandising clubs will be held here in San Francisco sometime in February. Commerce High School has been tentatively set as the meeting place, she said.

Demand Continues For Camp Counsellors

Though the outlook for seasonal employment in summer resorts is good, the over-all summer market picture is not promising, Joseph A. Amori, placement director, declared yesterday.

Employers prefer full-time workers to part-time summer help who habitually "quit" when colleges resume in the fall, Amori explained.

The demand for summer camp counsellors continues, he said. Both men and women are needed to staff camps both in and out of San Francisco.

Skill in arts and crafts, photography, music, dramatics, program directing, swimming, horseback riding, and sports of all kinds is required. These jobs pay $100-$125 a month with all expenses paid.

Part-time jobs as shipping clerks and file clerks with work from 5 p.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday, and as typists and stenographers are available, Amori said. Most part-time jobs are 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Typists and stenographers are greatly in demand for full-time rather than temporary summer work.

Full-time positions are available in the engineering field.

TV Show Features Camera Techniques

Camera Comments, college television show, will feature varied techniques of shooting indoor, outdoor, and flash scenes on the next two performances coming Sunday, May 27 and June 10, Beverly Pasqualetti, photography department instructor, announced today.

Plans for Sunday's program include arrangements of shrubbery and background scenery from the floriculture department; tips on taking shots of family, children and babies out of doors; and Harry Nelson, floriculture department chairman as intermission speaker. Kenneth Reichart will preside as guest speaker.

The program of June 10 will highlight shooting the indoors with the camera. Models will be provided for illustrations, and Charles Lamp, also photography instructor here, will be the guest speaker.

Aerial photography will serve as the topic for discussion of the July 8 appearance. Members of the Photographic Squadron of the Naval Air Supply unit in Oakland will assist on this informative viewing, Pasqualetti said.

825 To Receive Degrees June 15

Conlan, Clish To Make Major Speeches In Sixteenth Annual Commencement Ceremonies

By Nini Aigeltinger

City College's graduating class of 825 Fall and Spring semester students receive Associate in Arts degrees at the 16th annual commencement ceremonies in the War Memorial Opera House on Friday, June 15, at 8 p.m.

The college orchestra, under the direction of Meyer Cahn, will open the ceremony.

Greetings will be delivered by Mrs. Clarence Coonan, president of the San Francisco Board of Education.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, will address the graduating class.

The A Cappella Choir, directed by Flossita Badger, will sing Marches of Peace, Now the Day is Over, and Oh, Light Divine, with Andrew Stathis as soloist.

Dr. Clish, assisted by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, will make the presentation of awards, which include the Scholastic Cup, the President's Plaque to the outstanding man and woman student of the graduating class, the Alice Eastwood Award for achievement in floriculture, the Harlan Award and the Nuodex Award for paint technology, and the Wall Street Journal Award to a finance student.

President Louis G. Conlan will speak, and Dr. Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator of instruction, will assist him in the awarding of the Associate in Arts Degrees to the graduating class.

As the conclusion to the ceremonies the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of William Richmond, choir manager, will sing the traditional college hymn, Alma Mater.

Ralph Vetterlein, president of the Associated Students, will preside at the commencement.

The valedictorian and the salutatorian will be chosen from the five top scholars of the graduating class who are Harry Goldsmith, Lillian Desmond, Ralph Howes, Ruth Erickson and Herbert McCall.

Invitations, free to graduating members of the Associated Students, are available in Dean Lloyd Luckmann's office in the main building. The black caps and gowns are also furnished without cost to all Associated Student members, while the cost to non-members is approximately $5.00.

Final rehearsal for the commencement exercises is scheduled for Friday, June 15, at 1:30 p.m., Dean Luckmann announced.

Goldsmith Wins Scholastic Cup

Harry Goldsmith, with a 2.90 average, wins the Scholastic Cup awarded annually to the graduating student with the highest academic average of his two years here.

Lillian Desmond, with a 2.79 average; Ralph Howes, Fall 1950, 2.78; Ruth Erickson, 2.68; and Herbert McCall, Fall 1950, 2.67, were the next four top scholars.

Goldsmith, a Lowell graduate and a chemistry major here, plans to attend the University of California.

Depending upon their final examination marks, the following students, in addition to the above mentioned, may graduate from the college with honors: Robert Kerr, Toshi Tanaka, Ed Mulvihill, Josephine Roberts, Napoleon Argueta, Elisabeth Floyd, Sumi Kanaya.

Adele Adler, Arthur Brinner, Charles Meyerson, Joseph Ravazzano, Klaus Schaie, Paul Schumacker, Elizabeth Bertram, Peter Chevrier.

Samuel Lewis, Florence Louis, Daniel Mendelsohn, James Montrose, Russell Greer, Roland Hess, Gloria Nuecarini, Tom Pomposo, Itsuo Uenaka, Claire Williamson, and Catherine Wood.

Victor Kirichenko was named recipient of the Harlan Award, a five-volume set entitled "Protective and Decorative Coatings," presented annually to the student who has made the best two-year record in the day paint technology classes.

H. A. Berman won the Nuodex Award, given each year to the outstanding student in the night paint technology classes.

Schmale Wins Wall Street Journal Award

Robert E. Schmale will be presented with the Wall Street Journal Award for high scholastic standing and promising ability in the field of finance during commencement ceremonies, Edward Larson, business instructor, said yesterday.

This annual award, granted to the outstanding business students in 200 colleges throughout the nation, consists of a silver medal encased in a plastic block and one year's subscription to the Journal.

A board consisting of college instructors selected Schmale as the graduating student most deserving of this honor.

A family of four girls, including a set of twins, makes it necessary for Schmale to hold a part time job at the post office while still completing his education.

Mateo Students Will Elect Soph Ball King, Queen

A committee of San Mateo Junior College students will select the Sophomore Ball king and queen from pictures sent down to them, thus ending a ten-year-old tradition which saw Soph royalty selected by Associated Student vote, according to Maurice O'Brien, Sophomore Class president.

O'Brien said this action was taken because of tight scheduling whereby Soph king and queen elections might have been confused with the general Associated Student elections which end today.

The crowning of the Sophomore king and queen will highlight the Soph Ball, which will be held at the Scottish Rite Auditorium Saturday night, June 9, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Bids for the semi-formal affair are $2, tax included, and may be purchased either at the student store or the bank. Music for dancing will be supplied by Gary Evers and his orchestra.

King contestants are Lou Williams, Doug Smith, Bob Barlen and Ralph Howes. Candidates for queen are Ione Perone, Giorin Naccarini, Pat Jones, Maggie Earl, Joyce Nelson, Virginia Ely and Esther Ossin.

The king receives the Beta Tau trophy, and the queen the Theta Tau trophy.

Assistants on the Soph Week activities committee are Joyce Nelson, secretary; John Pantoleon and Murray Hart, who are co-chairmen, and Waddington Blair and Rose Kraft, class advisers.

Apathy

Prospect Of War Is Major Cause

"The morale of youth is at a low ebb because of the uncertainty of the world. The young men have the attitude, 'What's the difference, I'll be drafted anyway.'

"They wonder if they will come back from the war alive. With the atom bomb and other inhuman means of destroying life, they doubt it.

"The young women do not want to live in this hellish world without young men."—Marian Smith, City College '52.

Fall Registration Opens September 11

The Fall 1951 semester begins on Tuesday, September 11, Registrar Mary Jane Learnard announced yesterday.

Returning students will register September 11, and Wednesday, September 12, she said. On September 11, students with registration numbers 0001-0499 will register at 12:30 p.m., 0500-1099 at 1:30 p.m., and 1100-1699 at 2:30 p.m.

On September 12 at 8 a.m., students with numbers 1700-2299 will register, and at 9 a.m., numbers 2300-3000.

Official time schedules for the 1951 summer session are now available in the registrar's office in Building 3. Registration for the summer session, which will extend from June 18 to August 10, is scheduled for Monday, June 18.

Last day to drop a course is Tuesday, July 10. Leaves of absence from the summer session may be taken prior to Wednesday, August 1, Miss Learnard said.

Graduates not attending commencement may pick up their diplo-

VA Urges Notice In Changing Address

To avoid any delay in processing final payments, the mailing address of veterans who leave college should be forwarded to the local office at 49 Fourth Street, so as to become a matter of record before payments are issued, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced recently.

Veterans, whenever possible, should furnish the Veterans' Administration with their new addresses as soon as possible and no later than June 15, Marsh added.

Tragitt, Uenaka Win Eastwood Garden Award

Elaine Tragitt and Itsue Uenaka were named winners of the Alice Eastwood Award of $100 yesterday and will meet Miss Eastwood and the scholarship committee of the San Francisco Garden Club this Friday, June 8.

Mrs. Donald de Fremery, chairman of the Garden Club committee, yesterday released the names of the winners, the first time two are so honored, and an additional list of nine floriculture students given honorable mention.

Patricia Haucke, last year's award winner, and Harry Nelson, Floriculture department instructor, will accompany the winners to the meeting Friday.

The awards themselves will be presented at June 15 commencement ceremonies.

The Alice Eastwood Award is presented annually to outstanding students in the field of floriculture and is sponsored by the San Francisco Garden Club.

Students receiving honorable mention for the award are as follows: Eleanore Lange, Herman Layer, Sam Lewis, Kazuo Kawajuchi, George Koch, Charles Konigsberg, Jack O'Shea, Joan Spencer, and Franklin Watanabe.

Layer, an exchange student from Stuttgart, Germany, was sponsored by the California Farm Bureau Service. Richard Nelson, Layer's adviser at the Farm Bureau, directed him to the floriculture department here. Nelson also aided him in getting part time employment at Plath Nursery.

CAB Elects Officers For Fall Semester At Tomorrow's Meeting

Nominations for Club Activities Board offices for the fall semester were made at the CAB's Thursday meeting last week, and elections are scheduled tomorrow. Offices for which candidates were nominated were those of secretary, vice-president, and president.

Nominated for secretary are Evelyn De Lore, Clair Debacher, and Lydia Sequirria, and those for the office of vice-president are Lorri Mirri, Violet Litras, Henry Calvert, Len Lundgren, Pat Collins, and Dean Haferman.

Presidential candidates are Napoleon Argueta, Dean Haferman, John Lo Coco, Pat Collins, Clay Richards, and Evelyn De Lore.

Miss De Lore, Miss Collins and Haferman were nominated for two offices each.

Former Students Here Make Phi Beta Kappa

Named to Phi Beta Kappa membership on the University of California campus recently were three transfer students from City College.

Al Abramson, a spring '49 graduate from the college, and Alan Bonapart, a fall '49 graduate, both were active members of Alpha Gamma Sigma and honor graduates, Don Jensen, AGS sponsor, said.

Frank Eugene Sherman, also named to Phi Beta Kappa, was here only a year.

Student Store Plans To Remain Open During Summer Session Here

The Ramporium, student store, will remain open during summer session, Dick Main, manager, announced last week.

Although the operating hours will be somewhat shortened, opening time will remain at 7:30 a.m., with probable closing time between 2:30 and 3 p.m.

Main added that students who intend to turn in their used text books should do so as soon as possible because reduced enrollment, plus the the necessity of having some guide to go by in ordering new books, has made it essential to set a designated quota.

Main added, however, that if the quota has not been filled by the beginning of the fall semester, students may still turn in used books at that time.

During summer session the store will continue to receive additional supplies, particularly any original items such as letterheads, college stationery, Main said.

He also advised that the store will again employ students as clerks. Those who are interested should secure an application blank from him.

Main added he prefers students who intend to continue their studies for at least two or three semesters.

Polls Close At 3 Today For Student Elections

Polls in today's Associated Student elections close at 3 p.m. today, thus ending the two-day election.

Voting began at 9 a.m. yesterday and resumed this morning at the same time. Automatic election machines are being used.

Voting may be done in the student lounge, Building 2, or the basement of the main building.

Candidates made a last-mirute appeal for votes last Friday at a special election rally in the auditorium.

Dr. Marcus Skarstedt, Coordinator Of Instruction, To Retire

By Sumi Kanaya

After 11 years of service to the college, and having seen the college grow from an enrollment of 2500 to almost 6000 students at one time, Dr. Marcus Skarstedt, coordinator of instruction, will retire on July 1.

As the coordinator of instruction, Dr. Skarstedt has worked with the faculty and also with instructional problems of students. He feels that students here are particularly fortunate in having such exceptional instructors—men and women with such keen interest in their students.

One of the highlights of his years here occurred during the war yenrs when the enrollment dropped to approximately 850 at a time when the faculty was quite large. He considers it a remarkable feat that the whole staff was kept on, resulting in the present capable group of instructors.

The college instituted a city-wide program of victory gardens which was conducted by faculty members. Large gardens were planted here, at Laguna Honda, and other points in the city.

Having been head librarian before succeeding Dr. J. Paul Mohr, who is now President of Sacramento College, Dr. Skarstedt is particularly happy about the fact that he has had a hand in building up the college's library, now considered one of the finest junior college libraries in the country.

Before joining the faculty in 1940, Dr. Skarstedt was a professor of mathematics and librarian at Whittier College in Southern California. He received his Ph.D. degree from the University of California and has earned other degrees from the University of Iowa, Augustana College, and the University of Illinois.

After July 1, Dr. Skarstedt will "be at home" in Sebastopol, where he expects to keep busy corresponding with his two sons.

Dr. Skarstedt believes the college has been particularly fortunate in having been guided by President Emeritus A. J. Cloud and Dr. Louis G. Conlan.

He has enjoyed working with an "exceptional faculty and some mighty fine students. It has been a thrill to have been with an institution which has come so far in such a short time."

DR. MARCUS SKARSTEDT, coordinator of instruction, will retire on July 1 after 11 years of service to the college.

Student, Faculty Opinions Aid College In Solving Problems

CITY COLLEGE has long had need for opportunity for students who have constructive ideas to express themselves. Failure of students to participate in discussions and present ideas has deprived the college of many sound opinions which might have made solutions to problems much less difficult.

Many reasons are given for this failure to express opinions, the three main ones being a complete indifference to campus problems, a lack of knowledge of campus problems, and the absence of a means of expressing thoughts where they will be heard.

In an effort to discover whether one or all of these stumbling blocks could be overcome, The Guardsman undertook an experiment last week, the results of which you see on this page.

Students in three classrooms—Journalism 31, Political Science 1, and Psychology 1a—were asked to express their views on an existing campus problem, its reasons for existence, its causes and effects. Representatives of student government were asked to express their views on the problem, as were members of the college faculty.

Response Shows Student Interest

RESPONSE to the experiment was both surprising and gratifying, and proved that indifference or lack of knowledge of campus problems were not the factors which have kept students from expressing their ideas. The amount of thought and the constructive ideas which came about as a result of the survey showed that City College students have an awareness of college problems and will help to solve those problems if given an opportunity to make themselves heard.

In view of the overwhelming response and interest, The Guardsman feels that its experiment has proved the value of a page devoted to expression of student and faculty opinion on problems facing college students.

Should this response continue during the coming semester, such a page would prove of immeasurable value in bringing new and constructive ideas to the attention of other students and aid greatly in solving problems which may arise.

Through such a page, students who would otherwise remain silent, will be afforded an opportunity to air their thoughts on various subjects, and a means of creating wide discussion on matters concerning the college could be obtained.

Wide Sampling Of Opinion Possible

SUCH a page could cover subjects and problems which pertain not only to this campus, but to subjects which affect college students everywhere. By maintaining as broad a sampling of opinion as possible, every student group would have an opportunity to give opinions on various topics, with the result being a wider knowledge of overall opinion on campus affairs.

It would aid students in keeping abreast of campus developments, would aid student government representatives in knowing the feelings of the students, and by not only expressing ideas on topics, but by offering suggestions for discussions and ideas for improving the page, it would develop greater participation in the college and give students an opportunity to work in a democratic way to strengthen and build the college through exchange of ideas.

Pulse Of The Campus

Ram's Horn

• Grade Standards Up

Editor, The Guardsman:

I feel that the morale of our students has climbed greatly since the low point during the confusion of last December and January. There is, of course, considerable cynicism among the students that government policy on college deferments may change again, at any time. However, many students are working harder to maintain grade standards to remain in college.

Russell Posner

• Up To The Individual

Editor, The Guardsman:

Webster says: Apathy—unconcern, lack of interest.

No one thing or person can cure this feeling. It's up to the individuals. If the students would take the time to survey the opportunities open to them, they would find that City College can be a wonderful place to be.

The student, however, has to make it a wonderful place by taking an interest.

Pete Chevrier

• Progression Urged

Editor, The Guardsman:

I believe one of the quickest ways of curing apathy on the part of the majority of the students is to allow all students the right to vote—whether they have an Associated Student card or not. As all students are affected by the legislation enacted by the members of student government, they should have the power to place the members of student government in office.

This act of "good will" on the part of the student government would go a long way in establishing interest in student government and its activity, as far as the majority of the students are concerned.

If the present form of program does not interest the majority of the students, change it. Let there be progression instead of retrogression—to continually force upon these students government and activities that do not interest them is certainly an indication of retrogression.

Apathy: Students Probe Problem From Several Viewpoints; Opinions Compose Press Forum

The word apathy is used today to characterize the attitude of young persons toward their future. It is heard daily on this campus, and appears in almost every college newspaper in the country.

Webster defines apathy as a permanent state in which one is unfeeling, phlegmatic, without hope.

Webster lists another word, indifference, which is defined as the absence of interest or attention, "often a transitory lack of feeling."

On this page today, The Guardsman presents several aspects of the problem of apathy.

The factors contributing to apathy among young persons in general were considered by students in Journalism 31. Statements as to the causes of apathy on this campus are from students in Psychology 1A; effects of apathy on the campus are from Political Science 1A students.

Suggested methods of combatting apathy on the campus, and a faculty member's observation, are presented as letters to the Ram's Horn.

Together they compose a forum, a sampling of student opinion, that may turn apathy here into indifference then banish them both.

As Royce Brier said in his column, This World Today, in the May 30 Chronicle:

"A newspaper is also a forum in which many advance their opinions (which are news), and these may be trivial, fairly important, or crucial, in accord with their content and the character and status of the person advancing them."

(Raymond Tauber's cartoon gave program-cover sendoff to last Friday's Faculty Frantics. The cover, in four colors, was a product of graphic arts instruction.)

Insecurity, Lack Of Faith, War Are Top Factors

Prospects of war and Communist aggression, with the human accompaniments of insecurity and lack of faith were indicated as major factors contributing to apathy in young persons through a pre-Memorial Day sampling of opinion from freshman journalism students here.

"The young people of today have lived through one war, and the idea of another more deadly war is enough to dampen the spirit of the most fun-loving group," wrote John Minto, '52, while classmate Elaine Benas commented,

"Youth has always been a time to dream of conquering the future . . . with present times so uncertain, young people can see only a world where love, promising careers and all that makes life good take second place to wars."

"Will we be able to finish our college work or will Uncle Sam need us before then?" asked Pete Mohr, '52.

"That the 'Heavy hangs over thy head' realization . . . of college students has had damaging effects on their morale is a very real problem to the nation's educators," Dick Fay, '52, emphasized, "and well it should be, because these young people make up the nation's future leaders."

Charles Lane, '52, pointed out that studying has become a useless burden with the possibility of draft becoming more apparent day by day . . . "this morale will only improve when world conditions improve and the future becomes more certain."

"Just quarreling goldfish in a glass bowl!" Curtis McGuire, '52, said, declaring, "Uncertainty has been lowering the morale of the youngsters to such a degree that it would be a terrifying sight to the casual observer in outer space."

Responsibility for controlling peace and bettering the world was placed before youth by Evelyn Delore, who cited disillusionment and said, "History and time will tell whether youth will be able to put the world back on its feet."

Mary Jones, '52, deplored materialism, and said, "Man is destroying himself. They gather around the council tables trying to find a solution to man's problems. They will find peace of mind only in the Prince of Peace."

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the individuals who have written them, and do not necessarily represent the college as a whole, the Associated Students as the official student organization, or The Guardsman as the medium of campus information.

Causes, Effects Of Apathy

Psychology Class Cites Absence Of Friendly Relation

That the causes of apathy on this and other campuses throughout the Nation arise from a number of local, national, and world conditions, was learned last week in a pool of reaction to the problem from Psychology 1A students.

In written, voluntary statements, students reported that the present world situation and a lack of real and genuine college spirit are major factors leading to the causes of apathy here.

Gino Barlotolli said he felt one cause of apathy here is "due to the lack of knowing each other; that is, there is not a friendly relation between the students as there was in high school . . . when we graduate, we don't even know who's who."

"You have to have a student body card to breathe in this school," was the explanation offered by Alice Jacobs. "Most of the people who are here cannot afford the money to go to any other college or their grades are too low.

"The only thing you have to have to get into this place is warm blood, but to get out you have to be a genius," she added.

One student blamed the problem on "a growing tendency toward the actual and attempted suppression of the free exchange of ideas," while still another listed immaturity and activities centered in what he called "special groups," rather than on a broad, college-wide level as other contributing factors to be considered.

In general, the poll significantly revealed that worry over the world situation and the draft coupled with insecurity and an uncertain future has made decided differences affecting normal college life.

Poly Sci Student Asks Faculty, Student Unity

Students in Political Science 1 last week took the problem of apathy on this campus and its effects and turned up with constructive remedies to the situation.

In general, these students, through written statements, agree that apathy here means a lack of feeling, want of passion or emotion, and indifference toward both activity and academic programs, and that it likewise places them in a perpetual state of "spring fever."

Indicative of student response was a statement from Cynthia Chiang, who said:

"The college should have an organization to direct all social activities of students. This organization should be placed above all the fraternities, sororities, and other clubs . . . (and) should sometimes link all the clubs together, taking the same action, doing something for the social welfare of all students, including students who do not belong to any of the clubs."

Miss Chiang said she believed the clubs should not be independent units which could compel students to concentrate their interests in any one club.

Along the same lines, another student declared that "there is the idea of using the Jacksonian spoils system in the campus organizations with a reluctance to admit all students.

"To this," the student pointed out, "many students have an aversion."

In a serious mind, another student said he was personally planning to transfer to another college "because of the discouraging environment" at the college.

Still another student foresaw a

Faculty, Students Get Set For Semi-Annual Bout This Friday

Sophs Favored To Annex First Win In Three Years

The sophomores, after two years of waiting, will meet their professors on even ground in the annual Soph-Prof soft-"brall" game this Friday, June 8, on the college football field, located near the men's gymnasium, during a double college hour starting at 10:40 a.m.

With youth, plus a revengeful dislike of the dreaded examinations and assignments given by the merciless Profs as added incentive, the lowly Sophomores could produce a victory over the "learned ones" who haven't been able to lose a game in three years.

The brave Sophs, who have their success or failure in finals riding on the game's outcome, promise an all-out effort from each partielpant.

In a move to lower the Profs'-morale and raise their own hopes, Maurice O'Brien, Sophomore president, said that "we had planned to use Sophomore women in the game, but declined their participation for fear they might overwhelm the chivalrous Professors with a victory unmeritous of previous Soph-Prof contests.

"However," O'Brien added, "their value as 'distractors' is not overlooked."

Besides their natural hatred for the "demons of pneumonia gulch," and to spurn them, the Sophs will try to remove the stigma of bribery.

(During "crime-buster" Senator Estes Kefauver's stay here, it is alleged that he uprooted a bribe perpetuated by the professors on the Sophomores to throw the annual affair for a "highly respectable" mark in the final exam. But the Senator is not expected to rule on the affair until the contest has been played and the "win at any cost" Professors have regained their so-called propriety.)

Players, as released by O'Brien and John Pantoleon, co-captains for the Sophs, are Ralph "Yippy" Vetterlein, Lou "Wracker" Williams, John "Socker" Sarber, Lee "Jar 'em" Janover, Doug "Alias" Smith, Jack "Cuddles" Cuddy, Al "Nick 'em" Nicora, Bob "Lucky" Lacosta, John "Pants" Pantoleon, Bill "Rummy" Rudometkin, Bob "Clem" McCarthy, and Maurice "Mad Man" O'Brien.

The starting batteries for the friendly foes are Janover, pitcher, and Williams, catcher, for the Sophs; Roy Diederichsen, pitcher, and Roy Burkhead, catcher for the Profs.

Friday College Hour Lengthened For Fray

In order to accommodate the annual Soph-Prof softball contest, there will be a double college hour this Friday, June 8, starting at 10:30 a.m. and ending at 12:10 p.m.

The tilt will be played on the college football field and will feature, the graduating sophomores and their "ageless" opponents, the profs.

Phi Beta Delta Fraternity members will present the winners with the perpetual Soph-Prof Softball Trophy following the game.

Blocks Presented To 34 Eligible Spring Athletes

By Ted Gould

Honored at the annual Block SF Society spring awards dinner held Monday, May 28, were society President Rod DeCristofaro and 34 college athletes.

Society sponsor Bill Fischer presented DeCristofaro with the meritorious award plaque for his leadership in fostering and promoting the athletic affairs of the society.

Guest speakers for the occasion were Louis G. Conlan, college president, Fischer, and coaches from several bay area high schools.

Tennis players Kevin Merrick, Jack Hymes, Al Robinson, Monroe Kaplan, Robert LaCampagne, Frank Evans; tracksters Vern Chambers, Harry Wade, Lambert Rax, Ceeil Bledsoe, Ron Bauer, Fred Marx, Edmon Hayes, Steve Newland, Robert Oliver, and Monoy Ford.

DeCristofaro was a prep star for Sacred Heart high school before coming to City College. He was a stellar performer last season on the Ram football team.

Golfers Finish Third On Ladder

The local golf squad, under Coach Ralph Hillsman, wound up second and fifth in the two post-season tournaments at Modesto and Stanford.

In regular season play the clubbers wound up in third place behind Modesto and San Mateo. Sacramento, Contra Costa, Stockton, and Santa Rosa finished out the standings.

In the Medalist tourney, held at Stockton's home course, Modesto took first place honors followed by City College, San Mateo and Sacramento. City College's five-man team consisted of Dick Kucich, Andy Barbera, Wes Coulbert, Roger Artoux, and Dan Banford.

At Stanford 22 teams started out for the 36 hole medal play event and only 12 finished. This meet was the first to ever be held there for two-year colleges and featured teams from all over California.

Hillsman's Ram foursome, consisting of Artoux, Kucich, Banford and Coulbert, finished fifth behind Modesto with 675 points. Modesto won the meet with a score of 642 followed by San Mateo with 650, Santa Monica and John Muir with 670, and then Long Beach, which tied with the Rams for fifth place with 675. Sacramento, the other Big Seven participant, finished seventh with 695.

Expected to return to strengthen next year's squar are Kucich, Stan Rainfield and Barbera.

The team should be as strong or stronger next year, Hillsman believes.

Footballers Meet In Gym Today At 3

To acquaint football players and managers with training procedures and the pre-season practice date, a meeting will be held today at 3 p.m. in the men's gymnasium, Room 107, prior to the fall football signup.

A football film, one of last year's games, will be presented to the group following today's meeting.

In addition to their conference and extra-conference games, the City College cagers will participate in three tourneys next basketball season, Coach Ralph Hillsman revealed last week.

The Rams have been invited to compete in the newly established Glendale Tourney, which will be held between Christmas and New Year's, and the traditional Modesto Tourney following New Year's.

After the regular season, if the locals possess an impressive record, Hillsman declared, they will undoubtedly attend the State Tourney, the site of which is undecided.

Because of their consistent victories in the National Junior College Championships, the California two-year college teams will not participate out of their own state, Hillsman added.

Profs Confident Of Easy Victory In Classic Tilt

Out to make three wins in a row, the "ho-hum" Professors take on the pesky, graduation-bound Sophomores in their annual "grudge" match, the Soph-Prof softball tilt, this Friday during a double college hour.

Since their "questioned" 7-4 loss in '48, the "wisemen" have come back to win two straight, 9-8 in '49 and 15-12 in '50.

Despite their age, the Profs, with their experience plus their obvious "scholastic" advantage, rate the favorite's role. But with another year gone by, the Sloane's Linament boys may have lost their touch.

A report from a usually reliable source, located in the Prof's pre-game Seal's Stadium training site, finds the "boys" in fine shape, despite their 54-0 practice game pasting from the P.C.L. cellar-dwelling Seals.

However, the report stated, a few injuries occurred when Bill Fischer, local baseball coach, aggravated the gout when he allegedly kicked an umpire, and Louis Batmale allegedly incurred "injuries" when he called Seals' manager Lefty O'Doul a "marble-head."

"Since the 'closie' with the Seals," Prof Coach Jack Brady said, "I feel the men, because of their fine performance, should discontinue practice until just before we play the upstart sophomores. However," Brady continued, "the practices will be in 'effect' only to our wives. (We have to get out somehow," he added.)

The Profs' starting lineup includes: Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, Louis "Slugger" Batmale, Egbert "Cement" Brix, Harry "Quitless" Buttimer, Mike "Pro" Cahn, Robin "Hoblin" Dunn, Lee "Charger" Eisan, Don "Fencin" Jensen, Mike "Spike" Monaco, Tom "Slider" Nesbitt, Maurice "High" Power, Jack "Stonewall" Brady, Roy "Buck" Burkhead, Roy "Dutch" Diederichsen, Clem "Scare 'em" Skrabak, Joe "Arms" Amori, Glenn "Mighty" Mercer, Bill "Slugger" Fischer, Jules "Ima" Fraden, Mike Lo "Co" Presti, and Jack "Ah Got 'em" Gaddy.

Tom Dutcher, now in the service, who hit two home runs to spark the Profs' 15-12 win over the Sophs, is one of the many faculty stars unable to participate in the tilt.

College Student Wins Scholarship

Block SF man Bill Marcus was named recently one of ten United States winners of a summer session scholarship to the University of Oslo in Norway.

Marcus was awarded the scholarship for his essay on why he wanted to attend the University of Oslo summer session.

He plans to study the relationship between Norwegian, and American economies, Norwegian history, and the history of Norwegian art and music. The summer session courses are given in English.

Jointly sponsored by the University of Oslo and the Norwegian and American Lyon Steamship Company, the contest is an annual competition.

Marcus toured Europe last summer, visiting Italy, France, Germany, Portugal, Belgium, and Holland. He also attended the Sorbonne University in Paris.

His sister, a previous winner of a summer session scholarship to the University of Oslo, now works with the Marshall Plan in France. Marcus hopes for a United Nations job with the American Delegation in Paris.

A June, 1951, graduate, Marcus majored in history and physical education at the college.

Sophomores vs. Professors

FEELING confident of a victory, Baseball Coach Bill Fischer must face his students in the semi-annual Soph-Prof game Friday.

MAURICE O'BRIEN, prospective grad and Soph president, smiles as he looks forward to helping trounce the faculty.

Ray Nelson Takes Feature Bout Over Shepardson In Intra Novice Tourney

By Don Stephens

Ray Nelson, Diamond Belt and Golden Glove champion, captured the show when he nudged Diamond Belter Bob Shepardson in the feature bout of the Intramural Novice Boxing Championships, Wednesday, May 23, before an estimated crowd of 250 spectators.

With the fight evened at one round each, Nelson went into a goint-getting punching spree that Shepardson couldn't match or ward off.

In the other feature fight, Jack Bettencourt, also a Diamond Belt champion and National Junior College runner-up, was upset by the tall Golden Glove champion, Joe Rockwell.

The bout, the decision of which would have rated jeers no matter who was the winner, was a sparkling performance, featured by the crisp, hard punches of Bettencourt and the "dancing" of Rockwell.

Bettencourt, at least three inches shorter than Rockwell, evened the bout with an onslaught in the second round that left Rockwell reeling at the bell. However, the Golden Belter, using his height and reach advantage, came back in the third and final round to win on a close decision.

In the inexperienced division, 155 pounder Dick Fiore TKO'd Leo Lemon, for the best display of potential, according to observers, in the novice group.

In the first round both boxers "sized" each other, and in the following two rounds, Fiore completely dominated as he tagged Lemon with murderous lefts and rights. The fight was called in the middle of the third round.

Results of the Novice Boxing Championships for 1951: 130, Ashberry Butler dec. Robert Brierly; 135, James Glin dec. Ken Stalling; 140, Burl Walker dec. William Ellison; 145, Mack Dyle dec. Charles Andrews; 150, Nat Sobel dec. George Jenson; 155, Dick Fiore tko'd Leo Lemon; La Verne Grant dec. Jakob Szpak; 175, Charles Brown dec. John Longar; and Hvy., Ralph Blumenthal dec. Aleo Brugnara.

Because of finals and un-coordinated intramural boxing programs, San Francisco State and City College will probably refrain from holding their previously planned Extra-Mural Boxing tournament. The event, along with basketball and possibly softball, will be held next fall.

Intramural team members, who have been on second and first place teams, should see Director Tom Wilson for their awards before the close of the semester.

Modesto Hands Ram Nine Double Loss

Closing out one of the unlucky seasons, Ram horsehiders, under Coach Bill Fischer, lost a practice double-header to Modesto by scores of 13 to 5, and 14 to 4, May 26.

This gave the Rams a 3-9 mark in the conference and left them in fifth place in conference standings. The locals collected eight hits while the Pirates garnered 11 blows off Jerry Pandolfi and reliever Dave Tivio.

In the second game, the seven inning nightcap, the college batsmen got seven hits while Modesto made 13 hits off Tivio who worked the first game in relief and pitched the entire second game.

Outfielder Bill Rudometkin tripled home two runs in the first game for the Rams, and in the second game Johnny Pantoleon and Dick Greenberg smashed triples to account for the four tallies of the seven inning nightcap.

RAMblings . .

By Warren Northwood

FINISHING out the semester, the Soph-Prof fray, following tradition, should prove a comical affair. In the past the Sophs have always had trouble in downing the oldsters, but this year may see the change.

On other spring sports here at the college the curtain is down. Tennis came back with a bang after a three-year lay-off, to finish fourth in a field of seven—not bad for Coach Diederichsen, who saw his boxing team fall short because of lack of competition.

Diederichsen no doubt felt as though his first love had flown the coop after bringing home championships the last few years and coming within three points of winning the nationals in 1950.

His team this year looked great, but other California colleges in the Big Seven could neither field representative teams nor find proper coaching.

Next year may find the Rams on the upswing once again if Diederichsen has anything to say about it.

This semester the campus teams fell short of championships in all sports. Perhaps the squad falling farthest from pre-season expectations was the baseball team, which last semester under Bill Fischer brought home the Northern Division championships.

PRE-SEASON HOPES

To bolster Fischer's pre-season hopes, several players from the Oakland American Legion National Champion baseball nine signed up as Ram players, but to no avail as the baseball team went right on losing steadily, week after week. No explanation for the team's hard luck can be offered, for on paper the squad looked good. Could be lack of support.

About the greatest event coming out of this semester's work was the Extra-mural contest with State College—the work of Thomas Wilson, who programmed an intramural contest with State teams, which contest he formulated after months of paper work and scheduling.

The plan, if it continues, may start a backyard rivalry missing for a decade, between schools on a college level in San Francisco.

The best feature of the affair is that players do not have to be outstanding in their sports as on varsity squads, but may enter the contest by banding together with classmates and competing against similarly organized teams.

Stepping off the first games with a victory over State, the City College teams, led by the Lions, took a fairly easy win to reward Wilson for his efforts.

RAM ATHLETE KILLED

Over the weekend a former Ram athlete met death. Frank Zelaya, who participated in soccer under Diederichsen for two years, was killed in an automobile accident.

Zelaya was an active member of the Latin-American Club here on the campus and a first string member of the soccer team. He was in the process of transferring to U.S.F.

College Serves Community Needs

Conlan Lauds Recent Progress

By Bob Rezak

President Louis G. Conlan last week said he believed the college has been able to fulfill its function of a community college this semester and had made notable accomplishments in many fields of education.

"We have begun to serve the needs of the community and at the same time alter our program as new developments arise in the community," he declared.

"Our evening program is evidence that we are meeting community needs. Some 850 individuals are enrolled, and yet we offered but a very limited program.

"As we expand this program next semester," he said, "we should expect the enrollment to double itself. The 850 enrollment this semester was beyond all expectations."

There were contributions in other areas, too, the president said. The Hunters Point training program, offering instruction in electronics and physics, he pointed out, is meeting a very important need there in advance concepts of radar and electrical engineering.

A new program in business training, where students will be given instruction in machine accounting and IBM operations, is in the offing for next semester, also.

"Our summer session program is another outstanding achievement in development," the president declared. "And still another important phase of development is our new work experience program where we shall supervise on-the-job work correlated with class work given here at the college."

An announcement of this program will be made next semester with complete details available for interested students, he said.

"One of the most important achievements many of us fail to realize is that we have been able to reduce class size, that is, having less students per classroom. That," the president emphasized, "contributes toward more effective teaching.

PRESIDENT LOUIS G. CONLAN

"In the past, many sections were larger than they should have been for desirable teaching purposes. And furthermore, with this in mind, we have been able to keep all of our instructional faculty placed with jobs."

The new college building program, calling for construction of a classroom-library and Fine Arts building here as a result of the bond proposal approved by voters in the 1948 elections, is going ahead "by leaps and bounds," according to President Conlan.

"It won't be before November, however, before we can go out for bids for construction. This always takes a lot of time because there is so much red tape involved in any gigantic building program of this size."

President Conlan said he thought the Ramporium, student store, had done a volume of business that went beyond earlier expectations, and at the same time he predicted that gross sales will be greater this semester than last semester when it was officially opened.

According to the president, the store made a profit of $3000 last semester, mainly because interest in the store expanded and more items were being stocked.

But, he declared, use of any profits now for student activities is questionable.

"We have to have $10,000 working capital before we can release any funds for any purpose. I think by Spring, 1952 some of the money will be available for student activities."

He estimated a $4000 profit by the end of this semester and "the Fall, '52, should be well up over that."

At the same time, President Conlan somewhat reluctantly foresaw a possible cut in student activities next semester in view of a smaller enrollment, brought about by the draft and world situation, and a probable low volume in Associated Student card sales.

He said he was not advocating any curtailment of activities, but that it was practically inevitable with all facts considered.

Further Advance Seen In Future

Rally Committee Formulates Plans For Fall Semester

Organization of the fall semester's rally committee is already under way, according to Dick Silveria, this semester's rally commissioner.

He stressed that students interested in all variety of courses will be needed as the plans call for use of radio announcers and radio engineers to work with the public address system, graphic arts students to work on posters, and a Guardsman reporter and a member of the publicity committee to work on publicity. He added that it takes students from all these fields to keep the rally committee in good shape.

"Football season will be here before you know it," Silveria declared, and next semester's committee will have to be a good one to carry on the duties and spirit of that season.

Silveria has made a plea to all students who would like to help bolster college spirit and back next season's grid squad, to inform him or the new Rally Commissioner, who is yet to be chosen.

To those interested, one unit of credit toward graduation will be given for a regular attendance in class for rally committee members, Silveria added. This course is listed as Political Science 16.

Train Films On Today

With Whistle in the Night and On the Track, on Friday, June 8, the college hour film series ends its spring semester run, Madison Devlin, audio-visual director, said yesterday.

Both secured from the Association of American Railroads, Whistle in the Night, a black and white movie, and On the Track, in color, will be shown twice: the first at 10 a.m. and the second at 10:30 a.m.

The oldest school in continuous operation in the United States is the school built by George Washington in 1785. It is still in use by the Public School system of Alexandria, Virginia. Robert E. Lee was a pupil in the school from 1818 to 1824.

Enlistments Open For National Guard; Summer Camps Available With Need For Specialists Cited

The ban prohibiting classified men from joining National Guard units has been lifted and students may still join the headquarters and headquarters battalion of the 112th Anti-Aircraft unit in time for its summer encampment at Camp Irwin from July 8-22, John Breed, intelligence section chief, announced yesterday.

This ruling which applies to only college students, will permit men classified 1-A by their draft board to apply for admission in the headquarters battalion, Breed declared. However, these men must have perfect attendance at the two-hour a week drills for three months and complete one subcourse of the Army 10 series, a military correspondence course, within that three months period.

A summer training camp which is held annually at Camp Irwin offers the Guardsmen a chance to use combat weapons in practice. Enlisted men will be instructed on the operation of machine gun calibre .50, submachine gun calibre .45, and launcher rockets. Practice in throwing hand grenades will also be part of the training.

Field maneuvers and evening parades complete the drills at the Southern California camp. One and a half days free time will be granted the enlisted men. Also, leisure time of two and a half hours for swimming, baseball or softball, are taken out every afternoon. Pay for this period will be based on regular army wages plus allowances, according to rank.

Meanwhile, openings for specialist in Headquarters Company Third Battalion, 159th Infantry, has been announced.

A need for buglers, cooks, radiomen, intelligence, men interested in explosive and demolition. Many other such positions are open to qualified men.

Camp Cooke, a new camp for National Guard members, will be opened June 16, and any man, up until the time he is actually inducted by the Army, is eligible for the Guards unit.

Anyone interested may contact Sergeant Mansfield at UN 1-7796. The 159th Infantry meets at the Armory, 1800 Mission.

Bob Segrin Named Award Key Winner

Bob Segrin was named the winner of the Student Council key award for his service to the college during the semester by both the cabinet and the Student Council in secret session last week.

The council key award, initiated in Spring, 1950, was awarded to Arnold Dunn that Spring, and to Shirley Maritzen in Fall, 1950.

After careful consideration of several candidates for the honor, the two bodies decided by vote on Segrin. His activities for the college were termed by President Ralph Vetterlein as "largely behind the scenes help which aided the college very much on numerous occasions."

Segrin has been at the college for four semesters and will graduate at the end of the present semester. Among his many activities during the past semesters are work on the rallies (he is a member of the Rally committee), stage manager for several college productions including the recent Opera Workshop shows, Amelia Goes to the Ball and Christopher Smith, and he is presently the production assistant for the college television show, Camera Comments.

Students Able To Work For Marine Corps Commission, Degree

The United States Marine Corps announced a Platoon Leaders Class last week especially designed for college freshmen, sophomores and juniors, wherein they could work toward a commission in the Corps while still working for a degree in college.

Two training periods are included in the Platoon Leaders Class. Of six week duration each they would not interfere with regular college work. After completion of the second Senior course the enrollees are returned to inactive duty to complete the remainder of the college work for their four-year degree after which they are commissioned as second lieutenants in the U. S. Marine Corps or Reserve. Then the enrollees attend a Basic Officers school at Quantico, Virginia, for five months.

In the Junior Course the pay is $95 per month and in the Senior Course the pay is increased to $117. The Basic Officers School pay for Second Lieutenant is dependent on marital status ranging from $315.75 if single to $330.75 if married.

Requirements for the Platoon Leaders class with regard to age and physical health are listed for prospective applicants and may be obtained plus any further information on the class by contacting Major J. G. Juett in Room 32, Federal Office Building on Fulton and Market Streets in San Francisco.

Faculty Members At Fort Ord

Two faculty members are called to duty in the Army Officers' Reserve Corps for this summer's regular reserve tralning program at Fort Ord, California.

Michael J. Griffin, English instructor, and Fred McFarland, hygiene instructor, will spend the summer at Fort Ord and will return to the campus for the Fall semester.

Col. McFarland is in command of the reserve training program, and Capt. Griffin is his assistant executive officer. Their duties include the administrative work necessary for the training, billiting, feeding and other functions needed in caring for the reserve officers on duty, Snepp said.

During World War II Col. McFarland was the Post Commander at the San Luis Obispo army camp.

Donald Snepp, English instructor, also expects to be called into service with the Officers' Reserve Corps this summer.

Pay Waits For Ushers

Students who ushered at the Shrine Circus can pick up their pay from Donald Atherton in his office, Building 5, Room B, before June 8.

Although payments will be made after that date, Atherton urged students to contact him immediately so that they may be made more conveniently before the semester ends.

"The members of the student body must be shown why they should take an active part in student activities. As it is now . . . a small segment of the student body is doing all the work.

"It is up to the elected officials of the student body that now exists. They can do this by building up an interest in sports, student affairs, class activities and most of all, in the student elections."

"The only way to accomplish this is to show the student what he is missing by not taking an active part in his student body. As it is now, he isn't losing a thing.

"The talent is there, it just has to be brought out from behind the curtain."

Since the college is "a melting pot of many races which is representative of San Francisco," one student suggested organization of a miniature United Nations committee to "bring to the student a better understanding of problems of the free nations of the world."

"At City College we have a superior faculty, whereas I don't believe we, the students, have taken enough scholastic interest. We want to slip through, and don't have much pride about it," K. Morrisey said, urging that government be "completely open to everybody . . . everything in the open."

Wesley Colbert expressed the idea that "It is, indeed, a shame that a few students in this college possess a feeling of indifference and unconcern. These few people cause this school to become unpopular to newcomers."

Colbert headed his opinion with the slogan-like statements, "Initiative begets knowledge" and "Apathy begets ignorance."

"More of the good boys in sports and other activities" are urged by Alec Brugnasa, "to help make this college gayer and more active."

Still another student said:

"To this writer, thinking that apathy on the part of the students who constitute this institution even exists is appalling. However apathetic the situation appears, I believe that in actuality a good portion of reverence is held by us toward our institution."

Vets To Apply For Housing August 1

Veterans and non-veterans who are currently residing in dormitories interested in campus housing during the fall semester are expected to file applications with Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, immediately after Wednesday, August 1, 1951.

Dormitories now confined to utilizing space in Building 7 and the upper half of Building 8, will remain closed, however, for the summer session classes.

Those married veterans interested in seeking residence in Hurley Village should apply at the village administration office.

West campus parking permits for the Fall semester will be issued to Associated Student card holders only, Browne said.

Culver Donates Music Library To College

An extensive collection of classical music was donated to the college music library last week by faculty member William E. Culver in memory of pianist-composer Pierre Douillet.

Included in the collection are vocal albums of sheet music with both duets and quartets, operatic scores, piano concertos, more than 300 songs on sheet music, and text books on theory.

The nucleus of the rare collection once belonged to Pierre Douillet, pianist-composer. The entire collection has been amassed over a 20 year period.

Draft Status Determined By Grade Points

...ou eligible for the draft under the Selective Service Act can still postpone induction until the end of the college year if a C average is maintained, Dr. E. Grant Hersh, coordinator of student welfare, announced yesterday.

After that, however, a student may be called into the service at the discretion of the draft board.

Petitions for deferment may be obtained from Hersh, whose office is located in Building B.

To assist the student in the selection of courses, and to aid him in various problems that may arise, the college maintains a counseling staff, located in Building A.

...he annual Christmas Concert, under the direction of Elsesita Badger, will feature Handel's messiah oratorio in its first performance by a City College group.

The college choir and soloists will render the popular Christmas poem, Miss Badger said. Sponsored by the Opera Workshop, the Concert, scheduled for ...ecember, will include numbers by the A Cappella Choir, Men's Glee Club, Treble Clef, Little Symphony Orchestra, the ...rchestra, and several soloists.

Sopranos are needed by the choir, Miss Badger announced. Women interested are asked to contact her in Building 1. In addition, faculty members and students wishing to appear in the Messiah chorus are invited to see Miss Badger.

October 4 'Day' Plans Up For Settlement In College Hour

As a preliminary to next week's Club Day, college clubs and organizations are scheduled to meet today, Friday, at 10:40 during college hour in the club rooms assigned to them for this semester, R.L. Dunn, faculty advisor of student activities, announced today.

The Club Day is scheduled Wednesday, October 3, in the student lounge on the west campus. Club Day is held in order that new students may become acquainted with the club activities on the campus, Dunn said.

The days on which the clubs are scheduled to meet during college hour are as follows:

September 28; October 5; October 12; November 9; November 30; January 4; and January 25.

Luckmann Heads Instruction

Lloyd P. Luckmann was appointed this summer to the post of coordinator of the division of instruction. He will also continue as dean of university parallel courses while acting in the new post.

Other administrative changes included the appointment of Louis Battale as acting dean of men in the place of Edwin C. Proctor, who is on a sabbatical leave. Robin Dunn has been appointed to assist Battale as adviser to the college Rally Committee and the Club Advisory Board.

Roy Burkhead, instructor in the physical education department, has assumed the post of head coach of the college football team upon the assignment of former coach Grover Klemmer to the school superintendent's office.

Edward E. Sandys has been named to head the college's evening division in addition to his other duties.

Night Rally Slated October 4

A night rally is planned for Thursday, October 4, in the auditorium at 7:30, Robin Dunn, faculty advisor to the Rally Committee, announced this week.

The rally will consist of songs, yells by students and selections by the choir and band. President Louis G. Conlan is expected to be present. A dance will round out the evening's entertainment.

Admittance to the rally, a pre-Santa Rosa football fete, is restricted to Associated Student Card Holders.

This is the first in a series of rallies planned for the semester.

Editorial

The Times

The first editorial of each new semester consists traditionally of a statement of The Guardsman policy. Briefly, this consists of the presentation of news in an impartial and unbiased manner; the expression of opinions through columns and letters to the editor; and the presentation of new entertainment through features and cartoons, always bearing in mind the matter of good taste.

As a departure from the usual detailed explanation of The Guardsman editorial policy, we believe that an explanation of the purpose of a college newspaper, excluding it in matters unrelated to editorial content would be more in keeping with the tempo of the times.

In most cases the college newspaper is the only regular and reliable medium of communication on a campus--certainly this is true at City College. As such, a college newspaper must, in order to remain effective in its job, have regular and scheduled publication dates.

Secondly, a college newspaper, again acting in the role of the medium of communication on a campus, should be made available to all students. This not only aids the individual students, but also is of immeasurable aid to the college in publicizing events which make up its activity program.

Thus, in order to do a satisfactory job, a college newspaper should be available at regular intervals--preferably twice a week--to each student and faculty member.

With economic problems besetting a college it is better to have some means of publication than none at all. As these difficulties become more fully understood, it is The Guardsman's belief that the entire effectiveness of the newspaper, and subsequently the medium of communication within the college, is seriously and dangerously impaired.

Further, it is the belief of The Guardsman that a "newspaper" such as this would be more effective and useful to the college as a whole than any printed type of paperprinted at spasmodic intervals.

News To Nobody

Rally Commissioner John LoCoco has lined up an array of talented acts to highlight the night rally next Thursday. The Four Freshmen, musical combo seen recently in MGM's Rich, Young and Pretty, will be featured. The Three Sharps, winners on the Horace Heidt Youth Opportunity Program, Rennatta Clay vocalist, and Meyer Cahn, instructor and pianist from the music department, complete the bill.

President Louis G. Conlan is also scheduled for an appearance.

ENROLLMENT GROWTH...

While most colleges across the Nation are concerned over enrollment, it is encouraging to note that an education class here has figured there will be 12,000 students enrolled at the college by 1962.

"ART'S SAKE"...

That item in one of the downtown dailies this summer about Kit Sornberger, former college student who joined the chorus at the El Rey Theatre in Oakland for "art's sake," overlooked an important angle: Miss Sornberger was president of the college Forum Club last semester. The club, incidentally, is currently on the lookout for new members. Dorthy Mercer in Building 19 is faculty adviser.

CONFUSING BUT AMUSING...

Pennants currently for sale in the Ramporium bear the legend "San Francisco City College." We have always labored under the impression that the official title for the college was "City College of San Francisco". But this is understandable in light of the fact that for a couple of years now, people have persisted in referring to the college as "Oh, the Junior College!"

Kind Lady Cast Tryouts Start For Play

Casting for the drama department's production of "Kind Lady" by Michael Chodorov now is being conducted by Michael Griffin in his office Building 19, Room 17, Griffin announced this week.

All students interested in acting or production aspects of drama are requested to see Griffin on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9 to 10 a.m., 11 a.m. to 12 and after 2 p.m. He also will test on Tuesday and Thursday from 8 to 10 a.m. and after 1 p.m.

Griffin emphasized that no experience is necessary. The three-act mystery will be produced in November, he said.

The extra-curricula Drama Club will sponsor the production because Drama 42 A-B and Speech 16, the regular college courses, were cancelled early this semester because of class conflicts.

Last semester, "Rain" written by Somerset Maugham, was produced and presented to the students and faculty.

Homecoming Festival Plans Include Night Rally, Dance

A bonfire rally and dance Thursday, October 18, will climax Homecoming Week, the Associated Men Students-sponsored event schedules for Wednesday, October 15, through Friday, October 19, Jim Cress, AMS president announced this week.

Cress will crown and award a trophy to the Homecoming Queen at the dance. Cathy Garner, president of the Associated Women Students, who are sponsoring the queen contest, said that petitions will be available Monday, October 8, from Dean Margaret Dougherty in Building 2.

All petitions, accompanied by a picture of the candidate, must be returned to Dean Dougherty by Thursday, October 11, Miss Garner said.

The pictures will be exhibited in the Student Lounge Monday, October 15, through Wednesday, October 17. Voting will take place October 17.

Homecoming Week will celebrate the return of the football team from its clash in Richmond with Contra Costa Junior College, and its departure for the East Los Angeles City College game at Los Angeles Friday, October 19.

Professional and campus entertainment and a name band will be featured at the rally and dance, which are free to Associated Student members, Cress said. All students interested in working with the Homecoming committee are asked to contact Cress.

New Loan Fund Offered Women

A revolving loan fund for women students has been established in honor of Emma Kahman by the California Club of 1750 Clay St.

The loan fund, to be administered by Dean Margaret Dougherty, will charge no interest. Loans are made for a thirty day period.

BANK STAFF ANNOUNCES BUSINESS OPERATION HOURS

Hours when the college bank, located in Room 138 of the main building, will be open for business this semester are 9:45 to 11:10 a.m., and 12 noon to 1:15 daily, Carl Anderson, member of the bank staff, said yesterday.

Faculty Loses 5

Five members of last semester's resigned during the summer, while three instructors have been added to the college instructional staff, Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, announced yesterday.

Those instructors who have resigned are John Downey, Donald Smith, Irving Witt, Paul Ellison and Ernest Michelsen.

Biology and chemistry departments have added Marilyn Nessier to their staffs while last semester's substitue instructor, Valerie Phillips has been placed on the permanent chemistry staff. Arthur "Dutch" Elston has replaced Grover Klemmer, who is on special assignment from the physical education staff.

Press Lensmen Snap Ram Team

Another first was added last Thursday when Camera Day was originated for the benefit of downtown sports-writers and photographers to publicize the 1951 version of the Ram football team.

Photographers from the San Francisco, Chronicle, Call-Bulletin and Examiner photographed individual Ram stars and team pictures of what Coach Roy Burkhead considers the tentative first team.

From the college's photographer department came lensmen who snaped a series of shots featuring the Russ twins, Dot and Doris, and end Dick Galliani from Sacred Heart.

Rams Face Foe Under Arcs

New Coach Leads 'Untried' Locals Against Santa Rosa

Facing talent-laden Santa Rosa Junior College, two time NCJ6C champions, The Ram gridders hope to make head Coach Roy Burkhead's debut a success when they tangle with the Bear Cubs on Friday, October 5, (night) at Kezar Stadium.

Going into the game, the Bear Cubs will have a two-game advantage over the locals who have only a practice game with the UC Fresh team prior to the Friday night grid inaugural.

However, the college eleven will have the advantage of scouting the Cubs, who, "despite their 13-7 loss to Orange College of Los Angeles last Friday, show they are a powerful ground team. A team comprised of no really outstanding individuals, but just eleven men playing together."

Withthe starting lineup still in a tentative stage, Coach Burkhead may come up with a couple of sleepers, who may show improvement by game time.

Men like 165 pound Bern Kelly, "a man who makes a coach happy," has the staff in a quandary because the coaches don't know where to place him.

An avid follower of the platoon system, Burkhead plans to use as many as ten men who will be defensive and offensive specialists. Of course, as the season progresses, the limit may be cut to five or six.

Admission to the game is by Associated Student card, $1.00 general admission.

Limited Squad Face Tough Go

Not all of those who bump heads in the fall are members of the football team, Coach Roy Diederichsen's soccer squad learned when with the start of college classes the team started practice.

Bolstering the team, which Diederichsensaid has many open positions, are lettermen Ed Echevarry and Dave Milkier.

The schdule for this season's league play is as follows:

October 10, UC at CCSF; October 17, CCSF at USF; October 20, CCSF at UC; October 31, CCSF at SF State; November 3, CCSF at Stanford; November 7, USF at CCSF; November 10, Stanford; at CCSF (tentative); November 14, Santa Clara at CCSF; November 21, SF State at CCSF; November 24, CCSF at Santa Clara.

The Rams will host visiting teams at neighboring Cox Field of San Francisco State College.

In 14 years of conference competition, the Rams have won two championships, and shared two. The 1948 team won the first Gold Dust tilt.

Intramural Signups Due Next Friday

Despite the obvious drop attendance here this Fall, (to approximately 5000), Intramural Sports Director Tom Wilson recently announced he expects a large turnout for the intramural basketball sign-ups, deadline Friday, October 5.

Director Wilson declared that City College students will be eligible to participate in the program in any sport except for those who have previously won a block letter here in that sport.

"Groups of students who wish to play may elect a manager and sign up as a team," Wilson added, "with each team consisting of not more than eight players and not fewer than five."

The program is designed so that the teams will be divided into three leagues, Wilson said. The winners of these leagues, as determined by won-lost round-robin competition, will then compete in playoffs to determine the college championship.

Preparation for an extramural tournament between the college and San Francisco State is under way, according to Wilson. The three best intramural teams from each college will play each other; the winning college receiving a gold trophy.

Gold belt buckles and silver medals are also awards.

RAMblings

By Don Stephens

IN AN AMBITIOUS and pioneering undertaking, the local athletic department has introduced a physical education program that will prepare young men for recognition of the importance of physical fitness in times of war or of preparation for war.

This program, which was approved by the administration, will be divided into two sections.

FUNDAMENTALS FIRST

In the first section, beginning with the present fall semester, will be stressed the fundamental steps of boxing, wrestling, and basketball, while in the following spring semester such courses as judo, tumbling, trampoline procedure, calisthenics, and basketball will be offered.

Now a reality, this pet avocation of the physical education department is necessary, since the present national emergency places on the citizen, and the student citizen particularly, a personal obligation to achieve a maximum degree of fitness both for himself and for his country.

"LEISURE" OUT

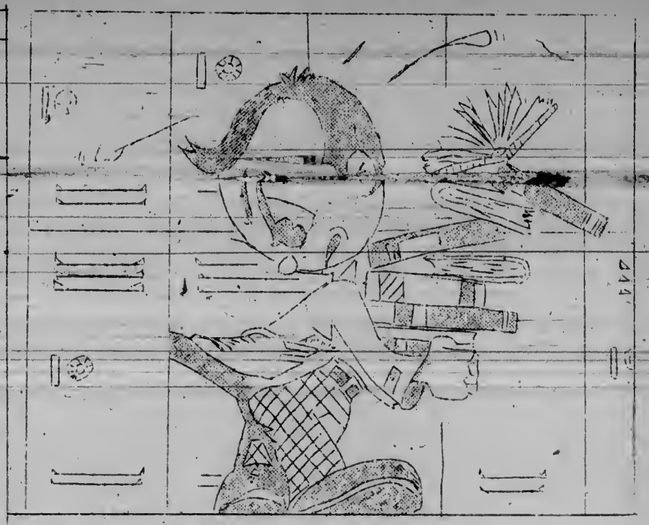
With the proper attitude in mind, students will no longer be inclined to "dummy their way through the physical education hours.

Their time will be taken up with intense drilling by the coaching staff, who have taken upon themselves a task that will leave little margin for leisure.

To provide the participants with expert instruction in at least one activity, the instructors will change from one class to another at the end of each five week period to permit students the advantage of "specialist" work with those who are more proficient in some activities than in others.

A PIONEER EFFORT

Although a pioneering, as fas as it is known, this program, if successful, should pave the way for the other colleges in the Bay Area to adopt these activities to their own physical education departments.



If they do, the idea may spread throughout the nation's colleges and, perhaps, even be undertaken by civil groups for citizen defense preparation.

GRADUATION PETITIONS MUST BE FILED WITH REGISTRAR BY OCTOBER 15.

Graduation petitions must be filed with the resistrars office in Building 3 by Monday, October 15, according to Assistant Registrar Gertrude Somerville.

As soon as the returned petitions have been checked by the resistrar's office, prospective graduates will be notified of their tentative acceptance for graduation on Friday, June 20, 1952.

Final notices will be distributed to graduation candidates at the end of the semester. Last wednesday was the final day for adding or dropping classes.

On-Campus Housing Held To Dormitories

For those vets desiring to live on the campus, Building 7 is the one dormitory available, Louis Batmale, acting Dean of Men, announced yesterday. The dormitory is runn by two proctors, Everett Hartly and Art Williams.

The cost is $12.50 in advance for one month, or else $75.00 per semester. Students checking out before their time is up may be given a refund. Each room is furnished and has utilities.

At the present time there are no dormitories available for women. However, Margaret Dougherty, Dean of Women, will assist women students in finding suitable living quarters.

For married veterans, there is Hurley Village, a housing project made up of Quonset huts. Here, over 250 couples are provided with facilitie, utilities, and furnished apartments. The cost ranged from $32.50 to $41.50 per month.

Hurley Village was named in memory of Major John J. Hurley, former faculty member who was killed in action in Italy during the last war, Batmale concluded.

Hurley Village was newly rennovated. Carpenters, painters, plumbers, electricians and landscape experts gave the project a complete, thorough going over. Quonset huts and wooden structures are the abodes in use.

SPECIAL NEWS LETTER

Guardsman Set Up On Campus!

Administration Gives Green Light To Lithograph Process

Confirmation of the reports of rumors concerning campus production of The Guardsman was issued by President Louis G. Conlan yesterday.

Decision to utilize campus facilities to the litho-graph press was made at an administrative meeting last week, President Conlan said, with the main objective that of developing the graphic arts, photography and business departments in their relation to the journalism department's already established and 16 year history of newspaper production.

The first paper scheduled for campus distribution is expected Wednesday, October 17, Guardsman Editor Jon Johnson said, "Providing everything (and everybody) sticks to the schedule."

Previously, The Guardsman was printed by linotype and letterpress.

Campus method of production selected is the multilith, or off set, which involves body type composition by electromatic typewriter instead of linotype; headline composition set by hand by students in the graphic arts-journalism-typography class; pasteup of proofs of this material in page form by graphic art students; making of aluminum plates for commercial completion by a downtown offset press.

Organization, campus news coverage, all copy editing, makeup, head writing, and editorial management continue as the established journalism curriculum. Size of the paper will remain the same as last semester.

Night Rally, Dance Herald Grid Opening

A night rally to herald the opening of the football season will be held in the auditorium tonight at 8 p. m., John LoCoco rally commissioner announced this week.

Entertainment includes president Louis G. Conlan as a guest speaker. Music will be provided by Forrest Elledge, drummer of the Woody Herman Band and Tomorrow the Three Chords, a musical group composed of City College students who won honors in the Horace Heidt talent contest; Ronnette Kay, popular vocalist; the Varsity Vocalette Choir, under the direction of Flossie Bodge, and the college band.

The college mascot, Sammy the Lion, will be introduced and a dance will follow.

Admittance to the rally and dance will be restricted to associated Students.

Close to 1400 of the students here have purchased A. S. membership cards, coordinator Dr. Cesar Anderson announced recently.

CAE Petitions Due Tomorrow

Deadline for filing of petitions for membership in the Ohio Activities Board has been set for Friday, October 5, Robin Lynn, member of the C. A. B. announced today.

Any organization that has not turned in its petition to the CAB committee by the deadline shall be officially declared "off campus."

College clubs and organizations are scheduled to meet tomorrow, Friday, during college hour, in the rooms assigned to them for this semester.

The days on which the clubs will meet during college hour are as follows: October 5; November 2; November 9; November 30; January 4; and January 25.

A list of all club meeting rooms as assigned by Dean Louis Batmale, may be found on page 4.

Drama Club Meets October 8

First meeting of the Drama Club will be held Monday, October 8 at 3:30 [illegible] Ellen Street, Mildred Griffin, sponsor, announced yesterday.

Plans for a one act play, skits, rally, and radio work will be discussed at the meeting. Officers will also be elected. Interested students are invited to attend this meeting.

Because of a drop in enrollment, drama classes have been discontinued; therefore, the Drama Club will organize and plan the semester, Griffin said.

Grades Determine Draft Status

Men eligible for the draft under the Selective Service Act can still postpone induction until the end of the college year if a "C" average is maintained, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare announced yesterday.

After that, however, a student may be called into the service at the discretion of his draft board.

Petitions for deferment may be obtained from Marsh, whose office is located in Building 3.

To assist the student in the selection of courses, and to aid him in various problems that may arise, the college maintains a counseling staff, located in Building 2.

Administrative Post Changes

Lloyd D. Luckmann was appointed this summer to the post of coordinator of the division of instruction. He will also continue as dean of university parallel courses while acting in the new post.

Other administrative changes included the appointment of Louis Batmale as acting dean of men in the place of Edwin C. Browne, who is on a sabbatical leave. Robin Dunn has been appointed to assist Batmale as adviser to the college Rally Committee and the Club Advisory Board.

Roy Burkhead, instructor in the physical education department, has assumed the post of head coach of the college football team upon the assignment of former coach Grover Klemmer to the school superintendent's office.

Edward E. Sandys has been named to head the colleges evening division in addition to his other duties.

Annual Holiday Concert Set

The annual Christmas Concert, under the direction of Flossita Badger, will feature Handel's Messiah oratorio in its first performance by a City College group.

The college choir and soloists will render the popular Christmas poem, Miss Badger said. Sponsored by the Opera Workshop, the Concert, scheduled for early December, will include numbers by the A Cappella Choir, Men's Glee Club, Treble Clef, Little Symphony Orchestra, the Workshop, and several soloists.

Sopranos are needed by the choir, Miss Badger announced. Women interested are asked to contact her in Building 1. In addition, faculty members and students wishing to appear in the Messiah chorus are invited to see Miss Badger.

New Loan Fund Offered Women

A revolving loan fund for women students has been established in honor of Emma Kahman by the California Club of 1750 Clay St.

The loan fund, to be administered by Dean Margaret Dougherty, will charge no interest. Loans are made for a thirty day period.

Block SF Votes Tomorrow For New Officers

Block SF Society members will meet tomorrow during college hour in Room 10D on the west campus for the purpose of electing officers for the coming semester, according to sponsor Bill Fischer.

Any athlete who has won a block letter in any sport here is invited to attend, Fischer said.

Fischer announced that the society has made an Honor Roll plaque, which will have the names of former Block SF members now in the service engraved on it. The plaque will be presented to the school as soon as it is completed.

Rams Face First Test

New Coach Unveils Platoon System Against Santa Rosa

An avid follower of the platoon system, newly appointed Coach Roy Burkhead's untried gridders will unveil a few new wrinkles as they tangle with the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs this Friday night at Kezar, 8 p. m., in college inaugural.

Two time Northern California Junior College Champions, Santa Rosa has a two game experience advantage over the local team. The Bears, in their first outing, suffered their initial defeat against Orange Junior College from Southern California, losing 13-7. And in a conference game last week they were tied by Stockton, 0-0.

While the Rams have only a 20-0 game scrimmage loss with the California Frosh as the only semblence of "outside" opponents, the team still have an advantage over Santa Rosa. In their two winless settoes, Santa Rosa was scouted and with the ensuing reports as a guide, the Rams are in a position to dictate terms.

The Bears in their first effort, were not playing a conference foe in Orange Junior College, so naturally, their best offensive thrusts were never revealed. But, against Stockton, who is a conference foe, the Bears again had little opportunity to show their offense in a game featuring fine defensive play. "But, according to the coaching staff, they showed us enough to prepare ourselves against their attack."

In a move unprecedented in small colleges, Coach Burkhead plans to utilize the squad into platoons. He plans to use ten men on defense and offense, with Bob Oliver, a 6' 1" 185 pounder, playing end on offense and safety on defense.

Tackle Ed Hayes, a 44'11" shotputter in the spring, suffered a shoulder separation during the Frosh game, and will be discounted from the defensive platoon and possibly from competion during the remainder of the season. Either 210 pounder Bob Chapell or Bill McCandlish, a 202 husky, are expected to replace Hayes.

Col And Stanford Favored; Consensus Picks Bear Cubs

With the start of football season, the Guardsman will present the prognostications of football scores of Bay Area grid elevens as guessed by its own staff of "esperts."

Homecoming Festival Plans Includes Night Rally, Dance

A bonfire rally and dance Thursday, October 18, will climax Homecoming Week, the Associated Men Students-sponsored event scheduled for Monday, October 15, through Friday, October 19, Jim Cress, AMS president announced this week.

Cress will crown and award a trophy to the Homecoming Queen at the dance. Betty Barker, president of the Associated Women Students, who are sponsoring the queen contest, said that petitions will be available Monday, October 8, from Miss Margaret Dougherty in building 2.

All petitions, accompanied by a picture of the candidate, must be returned to Miss Dougherty by Thursday, October 11, Miss Barker said.

The pictures will be exhibited in the student lounge, October 15, through next Monday, October 17. Voting will take place October 18.

Climaxing the week will be the return of the football team from its clash with Santa Rosa Junior College, and its return to San Francisco. The last game will be played at the City College game at Kezar Stadium Friday, October 19.

A dance for all campus students will be held in the Gymnasium and a dance contest featured at the dance, which are scheduled to start at 9 p.m. Admission to the dance will be free to all students presenting their AS cards.

Student participation in the Homecoming activities, Miss Barker said, will be stressed by the student lounge committee, headed by Norman Lundeberg, and bridges for during the afternoon on Thursday and Friday and work is started.

In order to insure a parking area for Homecoming, Devlin Field, for all applicants will be reserved for the Homecoming.

Alumni Ranks Now Open For Membership

Prospective graduates who join the Alumni Association within 30 days will have their names appear in the latest list of Association members to be printed and distributed with the by-laws booklet which goes to press soon, Trev Burrow, pres. of the association, announced recently.

The Board of Directors of the association now consists of 14 members; Trev Burrow, president; Gloria Dunn, secretary; Edwin A. Frediani, attorney; Joseph A. Amori, Don J. Barger, Max M. Call, Ralph Hillsman, Elmer Hubacher, Don Jensen, Dr. Richard Kelly, Hon. Charles V. Meyers, Don Mix, George Mullany, and Bob Winegarden.

Council Gains Officers And Plans Budget

Vacancies in the Student Council were filled at the last council meeting with Paul Bixell and Dean Hafferman being elected unanimously to the Freshman Council, and Booker Anderson being elected unanimously to the Sophmore Council.

Four other aspirants for the one remaining seat on the Sophmore Council were Stan Fletcher, Dora Mims, Bill McCormick and Ken Druss. Only the two elected were running for Freshman Council.

Don Swihart began a report on the fall semester budget and reported the following cuts and increases: A Capella Choir was cut from $460 to $300; Alpha Gamma Sigma was given its requested $130; The Band budget was cut from $812.40 to $370; the Dramatics budget was dismissed entirely pending a decision from Michael Griffin, the acting director of Drama; the Rally Committee received a raise from $264.40 to $300; Social Committee dropped from $490 to $240.00; Freshman Council received its $312.50; CAA received its $20; Circus fellas cut its budget from $552 to $100; and Phi Rho Phi was cut from $357.50 to $250.

Gala Week Scheduled

First Major Homecoming Since '49 Will Feature Bonfire Rally, Dance; Queen Contest Voting Starts

In its first major homecoming celebration since 1949, the college is expected to explode into a fervor of excitement, Friday, October 19, Jim Cress, Associated Men Student president, announced this week.

He also outlined a full program of activities for Thursday, October 25. Homecoming Day--the climax to a week of festivities which starts Friday night October 19, with the Ram-Los Angeles game at Kezar Stadium.

A bonfire rally, a queen contest, and a dance with a "big name" orchestra are all highlights of the Homecoming celebration, Cress added.

Voting for the queen begins today, October 17, in Building 2, Cress said, and will continue until Wednesday, October 24.

Queen contestants have their pictures displayed on posters about the campus.

Cress will crown the winner at the Homecoming dance here Thursday, October 25. The queen will also receive a trophy as part of coronation ceremonies.

Admission to the dance is free to Associated Student members.

A host of entertainers will appear at the bonfire rally preceding the October 25 dance, Beverly Bowling, of the drama club, announced. The rally, scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. with the dance following at 9 p.m., will feature vocalist Vera Bdjomin, who will sing not only in English but also in Russian.

A dance routine by John Carothers and Beverly Bowling and a pantomine skit with Jerry O'Conner also are in the program.

One of the main attractions of the rally will be a "surprised" skit with Stanley Rublowsky, Dawn Kidd, Art Fonseca, O'Conner, and Anna Ostrim.

Homecoming Day also celebrates the football team's departure for its clash with San Mateo, Saturday, October 27.

—Frank Bayol, Alumni Liason officer, stated that all alumni showing their alumni cards will be admitted to Friday night's game free. Past City College students are expected to appear on the campus during the week.

Not since 1949 has the college had any Homecoming activities. At that time, the celebration was claimed as one of the biggest in the college's history.

VIOLET ZIMMER, drum majorette in 1948-49, helped celebrate the last major Homecoming festivities here. That event will be recalled by many City College alumni who are expected to be in attendance when Homecoming gets under way this week.

Clerical Jobs Office Help, On Upswing

Demand for students in clerical and secretarial fields continues, according to Joseph Amori, student placement adviser.

Jobs open at the present time are for typists, stenographers, office machine operators and bookkeepers. There is also a demand for draftsmen, mechanical and aeronautical degree men for overseas assignments. In the defense industry, only trained craftsmen are being hired, Amori said.

Department stores have commenced to develope and train Christmas workers for stock clerks, sales clerks, wrapping and cashier positions. The prediction is for a tremendous holiday season, Amori declared, but the market is sluggish at the moment. Sears and Roebuck is opening its Geary Street store in November and is in the market for building up a strong and competent personnel force.

The hourly rate remains the same for department store workers--$1.03 per hour and up depending upon the department. There is still a demand for stock and sales clerks--1 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. daily in some department stores.

The Post Office, Amori said, has commenced to draw plans for employment during the Christmas rush. Salaries will range from $1.26 per hour and up depending upon the type of work.

Council Okehs $16,700 Budget

The Student Council this month started approval of a budget for the fall semester 1951, with a working amount of $16,700.

This amount includes revenue received from various campus concessions.

As this issue went to press it was too early to obtain the complete allotments of the budget. They will appear in the next issue.

The following figures will show where the money for the budget has been obtained: Associated Student card sales, $8,500; student store, $2,000; campus vending machines, $400; reserve from last year, $500; anticipated from football games at home, $4,000; away, $800; sophmore formal, $300; and basketball, $200 for a total of $16,700.

Building Plans To Go To City Architect

Plans for a new academic building on the east side of the present main building have been completed and now are in the office of the city architect for review, according to President Louis G. Conlan.

"Unless shortages bring about a delay, it is hoped that construction will begin soon after the first of the year," President Conlan declared.

San Francisco's Board of Education will ask for bids after review by the State Department of Architecture of the plans.

If all goes well, President Conlan expects to have the new addition to the college opening in the Fall, 1953 semester.

C Average, 60 Unit First Aid Course Needed to Graduate

Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced today that all students planning to graduate from the college must have at least a C average and a total of 60 units in order to have their graduation petitions accepted.

Graduation from the college is voluntary, and all students planning to do so should fill out graduation petitions when they register at the beginning of their sophomore year, she declared.

Candidates wishing to graduate with the degree of Associate in Arts must also complete the last 12 of the 60 required units with at least a C average, a new requirement this year.

Hygiene 14, a course on first aid, has been added to the list of required courses for graduation and joins physical education, United States History and American Institutions plus another hygiene course in the college's prerequisites for graduation.

Last Monday was the last day to remove incompletes to avoid a grade of D for the first midterm which ends Friday, October 26.

Cafe Resumes Dinner Schedule

Fifteen members of the military Sea and Transport Service have made it possible for the cafeteria to resume its dinner schedule for 5 p.m. to 6.30 p.m. by cooking the meals, Hotel Division Director, Hilda Watson, announced recently.

The men attend the college and will be here approximately eight weeks, in which time they will be trained as butchers, bakers, and cooks.

Instructors for the group include Jean Rowe, who will teach cooking, and George Muller who will teach baking.

It is hoped that after their training here they will receive higher ratings in the navy.

Mrs. Watson also stated that the hours for the snack bar, which is located on the west campus in Building 12 are from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily.

Air Raid Drill Rules Announced

Five long blasts, repeated several times, from the siren on the main building, is the air raid signal students should quickly recognize, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, stated recently.

The posters placed in each room give the directions to the best shelter, while the campus posters give the directions to the nearest shelter.

For those in the west campus, the auditorium, the lower floor of Building 3, and the upper floor of Building 4, offer the best security.

In both gymnasiums, the drying rooms are excellent shelters while Rooms 100 and 136 afford good shelter in the basement corridors of the main building, Anderson declared.

Scholarships For Women Offered

Applicants for the four scholarships available to women students this semester must apply in writing to Dean Margaret Dougherty, Building 2, by Monday October 22.

Two Denman Scholarships of $125 will be awarded to two women graduates of San Francisco Public High Schools who are in their second semester or higher at the college.

They must also have a C average and plan to attend the college for one year after receiving the scholarship.

Theta Tau Alumnae Sorority will give an Associated Student card and $25 to a woman student who has completed at least 15 units of work with a C average or better.

Florence Louis, a graduate of the college, is also awarding an Associated Student card and $25 to a woman student of the college who has completed 15 units with a C average or better.

All applicants will have a personal interview with the Dean of Women.

Women students with the requirements stipulated by Dean Dougherty are advised to meet with her prior to the deadline, October 22, to learn the application letter form.

Citations To Be Issued To Traffic Violators

According to acting Dean of Men, Louis Batmale, citations are now being given out by the Law Enforcement classes to all students breaking driving or parking regulations.

Campus policemen hold the responsibility of keeping law and order on the campus and around the main building, Batmale said.

Students committing various misdemeanors will be issued citations. Some of these include illegal parking, undue conduct, reckless driving, running arterials or breaking the speed limit.

Widening of Phelan Avenue Brings End To Long Standing Death Trap

The work now being undertaken on Phelan Avenue will soon bring to an end an editorial practice which had gone a long way towards becoming a Guardsman tradition; namely editorials pointing up the necessity of widening Phelan Avenue and reducing its potentialities as a death trap.

Plans for the widening of Phelan were initiated in 1947. Following a year of inaction, a Guardsman editorial (see below) pointed out the immediate need for putting the plans into effect. Each semester thereafter The Guardsman has editorially called attention to the avenue's serious threat to the safety of City College students.

Now--after more than four years--plans are moving toward reality. We're glad to see the job underway. It's about time!

(Reprinted from The Guardsman of January 16, 1948)

In response to the Faculty Association's request, City Administrator Thomas Brooks has revealed tentative plans for the widening of Phelan Avenue.

However, it seems that it will take at least a year for the plans to be put into operation. We have been lucky thus far in that there have been no deaths or crippling injuries as a result of the inadequacy of the present street, but no one can predict what might happen within a year.

With the present flow of traffic, the street now stands as a potential death trap. It is estimated that more than 2,000 students cross the street in the ten minute period between classes. Obviously, with vision obstructed by parked cars and with the relatively heavy incidence of traffic, a serious accident is almost inevitable.

A few students have already been slightly injured, and many more have had narrow escapes.

Brooks' plan calls for a four lane artery with parking space on each side, which, if supplemented with crosswalks and stop signs, should greatly increase the safety factor in going from one campus to the other.

That will be a fine thing for those students in attendance here in the future, but what about the ones here now?

Surely the citizens of San Francisco and their representatives do not need the tragic impact of a student death to start rectifying this traffic situation.

We hope not. Let's join forces with those who have been pleading for a remedy to this menace to student safety. Now is the time for action--before it's too late!

Seeking, Gaining Knowledge Is Main Objective of College

By Associated Collegiate Press Association

Some 90 cadets at the United States Military Academy should feel rather lucky, because dismissal from school is not the worst penalty exacted from cheaters.

Death is too often the result of cheating on the streets or highways; thousands of persons yearly suffer a lesser penalty of serious injury. Another type of cheater, popularized in the song Frankie and Johnny, gets his name carved on a stone.

But cheating in college is different from other types of cheating. Like a contagious disease, it spreads until it has touched every campus in the nation. It's wrong wherever it occurs.

But if the Atomic Energy Commission can spend millions, even billions, of dollars to find an easier way to conduct a war, why can't the college student take a few peeks over his shoulder to make his examination easier?

In other words, why not take the easiest way out? If it's easier to use A-bombs instead of block-busters and foot soldiers and accomplish the same end, then use the A-bombs. On the other hand, if it's easier to cheat on an examination than it is to prepare oneself properly for it, why not cheat?

The primary objective of attending college should be seeking and gaining knowledge. This objective cannot be reached dishonestly.

Students should examine themselves to find out whether or not they have the proper objective in mind. If they are not in college to gain knowledge, they should go elsewhere to find whatever it is they are seeking: cheating is a convincing expression that the student has not reached the correct objective.

RAM'S HORN - - -
Pulse of the Campus

Editor, The Guardsman:

Have you by any chance noticed the extremely friendly relationships prevalent among the students of our campus? I certainly have, and many of my friends on the campus have made mention of this fact at one time or another. On several occasions I have been the recipient of small, but nevertheless, gracious favors from fellow students. Generally these favors were from perfect strangers and could have been easily denied me with a polite excuse or perhaps a rude refusal.

I cannot be certain of how our college compares with others in amity tolerance, but it must rank exceedingly high. In view of the recent bad publicity heaped upon colleges by the press and the motion picture industry, we should take pride in the fact that such conditions of snobbery and intolerance do not exist on our campus.

We could, with little added effort, make ours the friendliest college in the country.

Among individuals, social groups, and nations at present, such a genial atmosphere is not only desirable but almost a necessity.

(Signed) Leon F. Smith

'Me and My Shadow'

LYIN' THAT IS, (LION) atop his precarious perch, Guardsman Photographer Bob Jacobs needed a brave heart to get this study of hunger and apprehension. Feeling (er-feline) somewhat kittenish, Jacobs wafted a spare weiner down to suppress said hunger but could not himself, in the mane (hmm-main), alleviate visions of being caught down there. The editor assigned a cub to write eight li-ons on pussy-footed Jacobs and his beady-eyed acquaintance but the cub finds that this tail (no-tale!) will have to end right meow.

Whatsa' Matter?

Deep In The Heart of Texas Gals Insist on Courtesy

Speaking as the collective female voice of Texas College of Arts and Industries, columnist Betty Barber for the South Texan gives the men some advice:

"Girls don't expect you to read Emily Post, but they hate to stand in front of a door waiting for a fellow to open it, when he comes along and asks, 'Whatsa' matter, you weak or something?'

"There are common courtesies that girls appreciate, such as opening of car doors, help in being seated, rising when she enters the room and letting her go ahead of you."

Other hints: When you are telling your life story, don't be conceited about it. Be subtle about implying that you are a superman. Don't brag about your previous conquests. The girls aren't particularly interested.

"Then," continues Miss Barber, "there is the coupe casanova. He takes a girl out for a coke, then parks somewhere and tries to talk it out of her. When a girl says no when asked for a goodnight kiss, the fellow should accept her answer."

And furthermore, "After a first date, the fellow shouldn't assume that the girl is his personal property."

In reply to all this, one male student replied; "I don't like girls who squeeze a tooth paste tube in the middle."

Balloon Track' To Cut Out Rough Riding In S.F.

The future will hold no more rough riding for City College students.

A new "balloon track" or "turn-around" will be constructed just west of Phelan Avenue on which a new type of street car will be operating.

The work is expected to be included in the same contract of retracking Ocean Avenue, which is now in effect according to Robert Smith of the Eaton and Smith Construction Company.

The new street cars are such that they can only be operated from one end. The 'balloon track" is needed to turn them around.

The contract on which Eaton and Smith is working includes the retracking of Ocean Avenue, beginning 150 feet east of Phelan Avenue and extending down to Junipero Serra Boulevard. The tracks on top of the hill east of Phelan Avenue will be straightened by cutting slightly into college property.

The same "K" streetcar will be coming out to the college.

More Than 1300 Students Use Cafe Service Daily

The college's cafeteria is one of the busiest places on the campus.

More than 1300 students enter its portals between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. to taste the delicacies prepared by students of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

The cafeteria operates on a full time restaurant basis, serving breakfast, lunch, dinner. Breakfast is served from 7:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., lunch 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., dinner 5 p.m. to 6 p.m. It is under the supervision of the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

On entering the cafeteria there is a rack for books. There are two counters: counter A is open at all times, but counter B is open only at rush hours. The faculty has a special section in back of the cafeteria.

In the dining room are large windows with drapes to accentuate them. There is also modern lighting.

The chairs are round and hooked on to square tables.

Menus are made up by the nutrition class.

RAMblings . .

Now that most of the hysteria from the previous year has settled down to a forced calm, we can look back and reiterate about the many war-caused events that were to befall us.

It was predicted that our whole economy would be geared to the emergency. It was, but, as it stands today, only partially. Predictions concerning our food, clothing, transportation, and prices were offered. But as it turned out, little has changed from the previous year.

The experts said that college football teams would suffer greatly from the manpower shortage caused by the draft. They claimed the smaller schools, namely of the junior college variety, would have to drop the sport or would be greatly weakened. Even here in the surrounding Bay Area, with its population density, the situation would be felt. Naturally, the experts were right, but only partially, because many promising players were called into the service.

But, nevertheless, and despite the experts' predictions, Northern California's junior colleges are looking forward to one of their most successful seasons in years.

Going back a bit, a little before the Korean situation, many junior college districts were in leagues where they were competing over their heads. As a result they suffered poor gate receipts attendance, and lack of potential athletic material.

To solve this situation and to keep athletics alive, the conference fathers last year decided to coordinate the bigger and stronger colleges into one league with the subsequent potentialities of the other colleges graded and formed into two other leagues.

The administrators formed these alignments: Big Seven--Modesto, San Francisco, Stockton, Contra Costa West, Sacramento Santa Rosa and San Mateo. Coast Conference--Hartnell, Marin, Contra Costa East, Menlo, and Monterey. Golden Valley--Placer, Grant Tech, Napa, Shasta, Yuba, and Vallejo.

With the teams now formed into leagues where they can hold their own, the question arises whether or not the two-year colleges will succeed. The league play should be consistent and athletic material should be up to regional standards.

Now, all that is needed is good gate receipts, brought about by good attendance and the problem predicted by the experts should be solved.

WAA Picks Officers, Plans New Activities

The officers elected to hold positions in the Women's Athletic Association are Jean Gomes, president; Elaine Plok, vice-president; and Norma Diaz, secretary, Nancy Sparks, adviser announced yesterday.

Sports which are to be offered to the members this semester are co-ed badminton, swimming, softball, and volleyball.

Hockey and softball may be offered at noon, but the rest of the sports will be played during college hours on Fridays.

Co-ed badminton under the direction of Miss Sparks will meet Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. in the women's gymnasium.

The Women's Athletic Association is asking all women who are interested in any type of sport to sign up now. Playdays, social activities and entertainment of various types will be held.

Also awards will be given to the members for athletic achievement, Miss Sparks said. Other association activities include a horse show and Tourney Week banquet.

PRACTICING UP for their coming encounter with the Los Angeles City College eleven this Friday night at Kezar, a few of the starting Ram squad go through the motions of a sure touchdown play. Dave Tivio (No.39) hands the ball off to Marvin Ussary who will start an intended power play through the line; to stop him is Henry Marshall the right halfback of the Rams who is being capably blocked by Wallace "Hurricane" Jackson. Rams Surprise Santa Rosa 26 to 13, Face Los Angeles City College Next Showing great potential in their 26-13 conquest over Santa Rosa Junior College, the Rams will face the perennially strong Los Angeles City College in what may determine the Junior College Championship of California, this Friday night at 8 p.m. at Kezar Stadium.

Defeating the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs for the first time in 12 conference games, Coach Roy Burkhead's men put on a display of defense and offense against the cubs, that reminded Ram followers of the great Matson, Toler era of '48.

With Dave Tivio loosening up the Bear's defense with his passing, (he completed 6 out of 12 for 160 yards) the locals' running game followed with resounding effects.

Backs, who ran as though they were shot out of a gun, like Henry Marshall, Wallace Jackson, and Al Wycoff, consistently poured through the Santa Rosa defense for 208 yards and four touchdowns.

On defense, the gridders from Apple Land were allowed only four completed passes and were forced to punt seven times to the locals' three.

Culminating a 43 yard march after a recovered Bear fumble, Wycoff plunged over from the two-yard line, and Vern Chambers kicked the extra point.

Starting where they left off City College went on to score in the second quarter, with Jackson squirming into the end zone. Chambers failed in his second extra-point attempt.

Coming back from a 13-0 intermission advantage, the locals went on to score in the third quarter on a sensational play. When Santa Rosa started to put up a stubborn defense, Tivio again took to the air, and as a result produced a 73 yard scoring play.

On his own 28, Tivio reared back and threw a 22 yard pass to Dick Galliani, who ran 20 more and when surrounded by tacklers, lateralled to Marshall for 40 yards more and the third touchdown. Chambers' kick was good.

In the fourth canto, with the score standing 20-7, Walter Bremend snagged a Cub aerial on the 50 and carried it ten more to the forty. From there on the Rams scored on a fifteen yard pass to Galliani from Tivio.

Santa Rosa then scored after a blocked punt by Joe Negri, who scored the teams' third quarter first T. D. in the same manner.

Hating to lose their consecutive conference win record, the Cubs continued to threat even in the fourth quarter.

The Rams, after an exchange of punts, were starting a drive from their own 10, when they fumbled on the 22 and Santa Rosa recovered. But on the ensuing play the Bears fumbled and City College hung onto the ball during the remaining three minutes.

Pugilists Sign For Intramural Program

With the intramural basketball program successfully getting under way last week, director Tom Wilson, looking toward future intramural events, announced recently that plans for a boxing program are being completed and will go into effect sometime next month.

Wilson said the records of previous intramural seasons show boxing to be one of the most popular sports in the after-college program.

Competition in the bruising battles of brawn will be divided into eleven different weights, ranging from 120 pound bantamweights to 180 pound (or over) heavyweights. The winners of each of these divisions will receive gold and silver awards for placing first and second, respectively.

Wilson has asked that those aspiring to take part in these pugilistic activities who have not won a varsity block in boxing at the college, to look for the sign-up announcement expected soon.

Other sports on the intramural agenda that are pertinent at this time are ping pong and volley ball. Sign-up for these sports will soon be under way.

Three Sports Listed For Athletic Work

In an ambitious and pioneering undertaking, the local athletic department has introduced a physical education program that will prepare young men for recognition of the importance of physical fitness in times of war or of preparation for war.

This program which was approved by the administration, will be divided into two sections.

In the first section, beginning with the present fall semester, the fundamental steps of boxing, wrestling, and basketball will be stressed, while in the following spring semester such courses as judo, tumbling, trampoline procedure, calisthenics and basketball will be offered.

Now a reality, this pet avocation of the physical education department is necessary, since the present national emergency places on the citizen and the student citizen particularly a personal obligation to achieve a maximum decree of fitness both for himself and for his country.

With the proper attitude in mind, students will no longer be inclined to "dummy" their way through the physical education hours.

Their time will be taken up with intense drilling by the coaching staff, who have taken upon themselves a task that will leave little margin for leisure.

To provide the participants with expert instruction in at least one activity, the instructors will change from one class to another at the end of each five week period to permit students the advantage of "specialist" work with those who are more proficient in some activities than in others.

Although a pioneering effort, as far as it is known, this program, if successful, should pave the way for the other colleges in the Bay Area to adopt these activities to their own physical education departments.

If they do, the idea may spread throughout the nation's colleges and, perhaps even undertaken by civil groups for citizen defense preparation.

At this time, the physical education classes are divided among the different courses offered. With the exception of tennis, boxing and co-educational courses, each man taking physical education will be rotated among the three activities.

Burkhead, Elston Get New Position

Grover Klemmer Gets Special Assignment

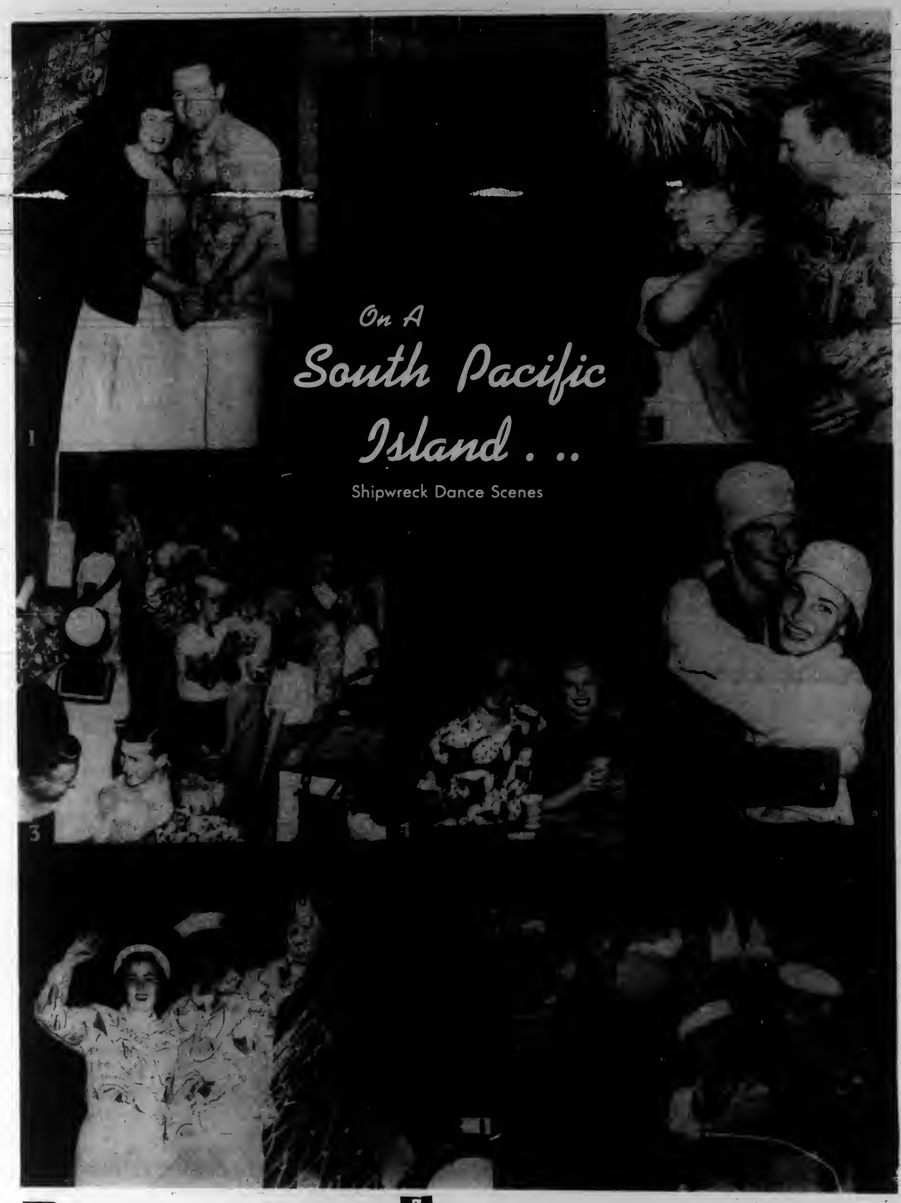
On September 18, 1951, Roy Burkhead was named head coach of the City College football team succeeding Grover Klemmer who was called to a special assignment by Dr. Herbert C. Clish.

Burkhead will continue to use Paul Brown's power packed T-formation offense at City College this year, making only minor changes in order to utilize his full potential of manpower.

Burkhead's Ram team lost its scrimmage to the talent-laden University of California Junior Varsity Ramblers, but came back in fine fashion to defeat the Santa Rosa Bear Cats in their first Big Seven conference game, 26-13.

Burkhead stated that the fortunes of the Rams will depend on the arm of Dave Tivio who also pitched for the Locals and is the starting quarterback.

"They are a harder running team than last year, but time will tell," Burkhead stated.



New Line Coach Star

New to the campus here along with many students is Arthur "Dutch" Elston, who became an assistant coach for the Rams, taking over Assistant Roy Burkhead's job when he became head coach. Elston will coach the line for the locals.

Elston's experiences and achievments in football are many and illustrious.

To cite a few: Played quarterback for the University of Southern Carolina 1939-1941, where he was picked for Honorable Mention on the All-American teams for those years; played professional ball with the Cleveland Rams of the old National Football Conference during the war years and for the San Francisco 49ers where he was T formation center in 1947 and 1948.

He was formerly employed as head coach of the Treasure Island Naval Team in 1950 and 1951. His home town was Toledo, Ohio, before he moved to San Francisco, is married and has two sons, Michael, age 4, and Patrick, age 1.

The most elaborate dance of the season was staged in West Campus Auditorium on last Thursday Night when members of the Phi Beta Delta Frat transformed the hall into a South Pacific Isle that would have made Enzio Pinza homesick. Led by President Dick Silveria, the frat boys borrowed discarded piling from San Francisco's waterfront, a wrecked pilot house from Fishermans wharf and worn out fish nets which were all artistically put together by Lou Walts, a young student interior decorator. The scenes were photographed by Ken Malino and feature: 1.-Marilyn Jacobs, vice president of ASB and Ray Sullivan; 2. - that's Jean Pope and Doug Smith; 3.-That gent in the center of everything is Murray Hart, vice president of the Associated Men Students; 4. - Ralph Marinelly and Joyce Edwards; 5.-Ted Worral and Marian Fontaine; 6. -Janet Gleason with Charley Roberston, author of the new City College song; 7. -Dexter Gordon, the pro band leader, seranading Joan Norman and Gene Short.

Smirle Lists Cabinet Appointees

Cress Finance Chairman; Vocke, Bixel In Key Posts

First official act performed by Associated Student President Bob Smirle was selection of the president's cabinet for the spring semester.

Approval was made at the first Student Council meeting held last month.

The cabinet includes the following officers:

Jim Cress, finance chairman; Carol Vocke, secretary; Paul Bixel, rally commissioner; Bob Rezak, publications board chairman; Don Montelone, parliamentarian; Larry Alizardi, Associated Student membership chairman; Len Lundgren, alumni liason officer; Marv Ussery, men's athletic commissioner and Bart Dempster, publicity chairman.

Meanwhile, final tabulations on the Associated Student elections, held last semester, were posted.

Smirle, fraternity party candidate, who defeated Ronald Zimmerman, independent candidate, for the presidential post, declared his only disappointment in the election was the small turn out of voters.

(Only 33 per cent of the Associated Students, final figures indicated, voted in the elections, which were held for two days.)

With the exception of Charlotte Lee, independent party candidate, who was elected to the freshman council, all other executive positions were won by the fraternity party.

Elected to key Associated Student positions were the following:

Members of the freshman council include Barbara Duhr, Shirley Lembeck, Terry Carroll, Pat James, Roger Jones, Lou Walts and Miss Lee.

The sophomore council is composed of Anne Chevrier, Marilyn Jacobs, Lou Shepard, Norman McNamara, Frank Loughran, James Jacobs and Mel Watson.

Three of the ten proposed amendments to the AS constitution passed by the required two-thirds majority vote. Two concerned the posting of election and amendment notices in a public place two weeks prior to the elections, rather than publishing them in The Guardsman.

College President

An official greeting to new students of the college was extended last week by President Louis G. Conlan (above) in the following statement issued to The Guardsman:

"May I take this opportunity to extend greetings to the students entering City College this semester. Let me assure you that the members of the faculty stand ready to do everything possible to assist you in your educational program."

President Conlan urged new students to take part in the activity program to be continued in the Spring semester.

"In addition to a complete academic program you will find at City College a well-rounded activity program sponsored jointly by faculty and students.

"I trust that all will become identified with some form of student activity. As a first step in that direction may I urge you to become members of the Associated Students immediately."

Ramporium Is Open For Business

The Associated Student Store, the Ramporium, opens for business today for the spring semester, Richard Main, store manager, announced last week.

Since all profit from the sales of books and other class supplies goes straight to the Associated Students, Main recommended that all students purchase their supplies at the Ramporium.

Through the cooperation of the students, he said, $2,000 was transferred to the Associated Student budget last semester.

According to Main, the average amount of cash spent for the new texts and supplies per student is $22.50. Of course, this figure varies, depending upon the course of study chosen.

The store has been operating on the west campus since Fall 1950, and has been growing steadily in size and volume of business. The store was originally started to give students the best possible price in the text book and supply area.

Draft Boards Give Men Students 1-S Classifications

Last year's amendments to Selective Service Law provide that students will be given a deferred classification of 1-S instead of having their induction postponed, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, said yesterday. They also will be given ample opportunity to enlist in the service of their choice, the law now provides.

Marsh said that a student may be considered for a deferred classification of 2-S by his local draft board at the end of the college year if he is in the upper portion of this class or if he takes the Selective Service qualification test and makes a score of 70 or better.

"All those registrants who have not previously taken the test should make applications immediately," Marsh said, "as the deadline for applying is midnight, Monday, March 10."

Applications may be obtained from any draft board, he added.

Every student in the draft classifications 1-A, 1-S, or 2-S, who is completing his first or second year at the end of this semester should report to Marsh, whose office is located in Building 3, second floor, to make an application to have a college certificate sent to his local draft board.

Rally Group Urges Cage Game Attendance

Rally Committee members issued an invitation to all new students yesterday to join with returning students in attending the City College-Modesto basketball game here this Friday night, February 15.

The game is scheduled for the men's gymnasium, Robin Dunn, faculty adviser to the Rally Commission, announced.

The spring semester Rally Commission is led by Paul Bixel, commissioner, and Bud Donaldson, yell leader.

Guardsman For All —At Registration

This first issue of The Guardsman, Volume XXXIV, will be distributed to all students during the three-day registration period which ends Friday, February 15.

Next issue is scheduled Wednesday, March 5, Editor Robert Rezak announced late last week. Distribution points had not been named as The Guardsman went to press.

Publication of The Guardsman is part of the journalism curriculum and courses concerned with its publication are listed in the college catalog.

Three Class—'51 Scholarships Available Now

Three "Class of '51" scholarships of $50 each are available for one woman and two men students this semester, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced yesterday.

Completion of one semester with satisfactory grades and intention of continuing higher education are the requirements for application, Marsh explained. Date and place of application will be set after registration, he added.

Nini Algeltinger, a graduate of Lowell High School, and Marlene Cook, Balboa graduate, were awarded the James Denman Scholarships of $125 each for the 1951-1952 academic year, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced speaking for the award committee. Both women are fourth semester students at the college.

Claire De Backer, graduate of Fremont High School in Oakland, received the Theta Tau Alumnae scholarship of $30, Dean Dougherty said. The Florence Lewis scholarship, also of $30, was granted to Margaret Harms, graduate of St. Paul's High School.

Student President

ASSOCIATED STUDENT President Bob Smirle named oppointees to cabinet posts in the first council session of the spring semester.

Luckmann Heads New TV Show

A 13-week extension course in parliamentary procedure produced by faculty members of the college will be presented on television station KPIX starting Thursday, February 28, according to Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of the division of instruction.

Luckmann will act as instructor on the program, which will be televised at 1 p. m. on Thursday. Assisting him will be Bev Pasqualetti of the photography department. Henry Leff of the college radio department will be the program's producer.

Art director for the program will be Emmett Smith of the photography department. Ken Molino, student photographer, will assist. Also assisting in the production will be James S. Hughes of the college speech department, Luckmann declared.

No Classes Feb. 22 —A Legal Holiday

Because George Washington was born 220 years ago, and grew up to be the first President some 50 years later, students of the college will attend no classes Friday, February 22.

Friday, February 29, has been set as the last day to add a course or change sections according to Registrar Mary Jane Learnard. Students desiring to change their programs should see their counsellors before then.

Any student planning to leave the college after registration must obtain a leave of absence petition from his counsellor and file it with the registrar, or he will receive a final grade of F in each course in which he is enrolled, Miss Learnard declared.

Hello Dance This Friday Heads Social Calendar

The Spring semester gets off to an active start Friday night with the annual Hello Day Dance as the first major Associated Student activity of the semester, according to Violet Litras, AS vice-president.

The dance, which will officially welcome new students to the college, follows the Ram-Modesto basketball game in the men's gymnasium here that same night.

Miss Litras said the dance would be held in the auditorium with no admission charge in effect.

Other activities have already been listed on the Spring social calendar, Miss Litras added, and include the following events:

Chinese Sweethearts Ball, Saturday, February 23; Freshman Week, Monday, February 25, climaxed by the Freshman Dance Friday, February 29, at a downtown hotel.

The Inter-Fraternity Barn Dance is scheduled for Friday, March 15, while Gamma Phi Ypsilon holds its Spring Fever Dance April 14, and Alpha Phi Epsilon presents its Easter Dance April 8.

Downtown hotel dances are in preparation by Alpha Sigma Delta and the Inter-Sorority Council, to be held April 25 and May 10 respectively.

The Associated Men Students take on their annual sponsorship of the Mardi Gras, planned for May 16. Sophomore Week starts June 2 and will be topped off with the Sophomore Ball, June 7, at a downtown hotel, and the semester's activities come to a halt June 14 with the AS Farewell Dance.

Associated Student Membership Expected To Hit 92 Per Cent

Associated Student membership cards go on sale today at the end of the registration line and will continue to be sold throughout the registration period, according to plans drawn by Larry Alizardi, as membership committee chairman.

Based on Fall 1951 figures which indicated a rise in membership, experienced observers have predicted an overall total of from 90 to 92 per cent of students who will become members in the Spring semester.

This semester's student card introduces an innovation in appearance over the card of last semester, according to Alizardi.

Because of difficulties involved in their production, pictures of the students will not be included on this semester's card, Alizardi said.

Associated Students will be admitted on presentation of their cards to athletic contests, most social events, rallies. Commencement invitations and caps and gowns are provided without added charge to AS members who also receive each issue of The Guardsman, official newspaper.

Student membership also entitles students to participate in club, fraternity, sorority activities on the campus. Such organizations as the Forum Club, Pick & Hammer Society, Newman Club, Masonic Society, Hotel and Restaurant Society are only a few of the opportunities offered.

College Preps For City Air Drill

A city-wide "dry run" air alert drill will be staged Wednesday morning, February 20, Civil Defense officials recently announced here.

Oscar E. Anderson, college controller, declared that all alerts at the college will be sounded by the siren on the roof of the main building or by five rings on the class bell system.

During an alert students in the main building will follow specific instructions posted in their classrooms. West campus students will proceed to covered areas containing a minimum amount of glass. Students should stay away from the glass-enclosed corridors between west campus buildings, Anderson warned.

The program of the city-wide drill on February 20, is to test the mobilization of Civil Defense personnel in case of an attack, to determine the effectiveness of the city siren system, and to gauge public response to the alert instruction program, according to Civil Defense authorities.

Fire alarms at the college are sounded by fire gongs, and during a fire drill everyone should clear all buildings immediately, Anderson declared.

Ram Grads Hit Academic High At UC

City College has the highest academic rating of any group of California two-year college graduates attending the University of California in recent years, according to information released early this year.

From 1948, scholastic averages attained at the university since their transferal also showed that the students indicated tittle differential from their achievement at City College.

Less than three tenths of one per cent was the slight difference, and the average for all other junior and four year colleges was one half of one per cent differential.

Service Key Award Winner

MARY LOUISE CARL, who has been studying in this country for three years, is "half-a-globe" away from her home in Denmark.

Miss Carl was director of the blood donor drive here last semester, and as a result was awarded the council service key last month.

A graduate of George Washington High School, Miss Carl attended there one year following her arrival from Denmark. She is now in her last semester at the college, and was elected recently to the office of vice-president of the Club Activities Board—Photo by Scammon.

Mary Louise Carl, Blood Drive Director Here, Wins Award

By Nini Aigelinger

A pretty, green-eyed blonde student from Denmark was named by the Student Council to receive the council's key award for services, at the council's award banquet.

Mary Louise Carl was acclaimed for her fine job of co-ordinating the Blood Bank Day last semester.

The success of the drive was attributed to her unflagging behind-the-scenes efforts.

The award was a complete surprise to her. That her unselfish services should bring such gratitude and recognition amazed her. She expressed the wish that all foreign students could receive such heart-warming welcomes to this country.

In Junior Red Cross

She was drawn into plans for the Blood Bank Day through her work with the Junior Red Cross. Active in the organization for three years, last year she was sent to its European convention.

Miss Carl came to America in December, 1947, from Europe, where she attended schools in both Denmark and Germany. "Though I have attended schools in three countries, I have never before felt such a strong feeling for my school, as I have for City College. It just opens its heart to you," she said.

She had special praise for the instructors. She finds them all excellent, lenient and sincerely interested in their work.

Her coed garb of green sweater, gray skirt and brown loafers belied the fact that she had had no contact with "teenagers" until she came to this country. "There are," she explained, "no clubs like you have here at City College." Social life in European schools is not so much emphasized because the schools are smaller.

Study Load Lighter

The subject load of 16½ units (maximum) and the five-day school week were pleasant changes from her native Denmark's system, under which 22 to 28 weekly subjects and Saturday classes are the accepted mode of education. But she's used to three midterms and a final; American students, then, aren't the only ones who have to suffer through these examinations.

Now in her second semester at the college, the energetic 18-year-old has plans for a career in child psychology, preferably in the international field. A graduate of George Washington High School, she intends to receive her degree from the University of California.

Following close on the heels of the first recognition of her services to the college came her election to vice-president of the Club Activities Board and to the Rally Committee.

Phelan Award Deadline March 31

The 1952 James D. Phelan awards competition was announced today by the Trustees of the Estate of the late Senator James D. Phelan.

Awards are made available annually under the terms of a bequest to bring about further development of native talent in California in the fields of literature and art.

City College students are invited to apply. Applicants for the fellowship, both men and women, must be native Californians and between the ages of 20 and 40.

Special application forms plus further information may be obtained from the office of the James D. Phelan Award in Literature and Art, 820 Phelan Building, San Francisco 2.

All Roads Lead To City College Station

New Transit Routes Ready In April

By Bob Reilly

City College becomes a transportation focal point soon after April 1, with the opening of City College Station, presently under construction.

The new station promises to offer students an immediate choice of two modes of Municipal Railway transit according to the Public Utilities Commission.

New-type street cars, officially known as President's Conference Cars, currently in use on the N line, will be employed on the present K line and will follow the K route out [illegible] Sn Peaks Tunnel [illegible] college.

Once there, the K car will swing around a proposed circular track at City College Station in front of the west campus and make a U-turn.

It will, in turn, connect with a planned No. 12 Mission Bus line which is to turn right to Ocean Avenue and proceeding west, will meet the K-line at City College Station. The No. 12 will also make a U-turn and proceed back to Mission Street.

At City College Station there is planned a shelter for passengers complete with waiting room and rest rooms to accommodate their transferal to either of the two lines.

Ocean Avenue merchants will participate in the dedication of the new station upon its completion.

College President Louis G. Conlan declared, "City College Station is a step forward and promises to be a great convenience for students in their daily travel."

With the completion of the new system student commuters will find their journey somewhat eased and of all the means of reaching the college the following routes would seem most desirable:

1. The K-car and No. 12 Mission Bus Line.

2. The 28 bus with a transfer to the K-line.

3. The 36 Miraloma line to the K-line.

For East Bay students the situation is unchanged. The MacArthur N line and K bus line still funnel college students into San Francisco to board a Mission bus or K-car at or near the terminal.

For those driving to the college from Oakland and its environs, the preferred route seems to be to go over Bryant Street to Army and K out to San Jose (Avenue, that is) to descend upon the college. San Francisco students are quite adept at finding easy ways to get to the college, a spot check revealed.

To accommodate those driving, the newly proposed drive on Phelan Avenue leading into the west campus seems to be a good replacement in lieu of the old Ocean-avenue entrance which will be swallowed up by the circular track. The new roadway will lead directly to the west campus.

With even heavier traffic promised on Phelan Avenue, the long-delayed widening of the street seems to be quite essential. Long regarded as "Suicide Track," despite the efforts of campus police, the possible widening of the avenue would considerably expedite matters.

In the final analysis, the transportation situation regarding commuting [illegible] the college has [illegible] much brightened by the Utility Commission's plans and by the gradually improving highway system for auto travel, namely the Bayshore freeway now under construction. One may soon be able to say "All roads lead to City College."

Evening Classes Start Next Monday

Evening classes in semi-professional, university, general college and college preparatory courses will begin Monday, February 18, under the supervision of Edward E. Sandys, dean of general college courses.

High school graduates and non-graduates are eligible for admission as regular students in the evening division. Registration will be conducted by each instructor during the first two meetings of his course.

Evening division students receive full college credit for completed courses. Students who do not wish credit may be exempted from written assignments and examinations by arranging to audit classes.

A folder of courses offered during the evenings and additional information may be obtained from the registrar's office, building 3.

Courses will be given every week-day night except Friday.

Courses offered in the evening are various phases of art, business administration, chemistry, communications, economics, engineering, English, floriculture, French, geography, history, mathematics, music, paint technology, philosophy, photography, physical education (folk dancing), political science, psychology, Russian, sociology and speech.

The evening division was reinaugurated at the college a year ago. Night classes were first offered here between 1943 and 1945.

News To Nobody

A Pot Pourri Of What's Doing Here, There And Everywhere

By The Spectator

Two faculty names will be missing from this semester's time schedule, according to Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of the division of instruction. Ubaldo Magetti, of the language department, begins his Sabbatical leave, while Rose Kraft, home economics instructor, goes off for a vacation.

Pest Under Control . . .

Pest control is one of the many semi-professional courses offered here in conjunction with floriculture. (Editor's note: This may not be news, but the last time this item ran it came out: "Rest control is . . . etc.)

Alumni Report . . .

John Selig, political science instructor, reports two recent graduates of the college have passed the Junior Management Assistant Examinations conducted by the Federal Civil Service. Lloyd Grable and John Spaulding, both '50 graduates, were among the few who passed out of a trifle 20,000 who competed in the exams.

Final Exam? . . .

Add campaigns: A campaign to supply Doc Jones with window shades or drapes for his office in Building 5 is seriously being considered by students who had classes in the adjacent Building 4 last semester at the same hour the doc held office hours. They complained they kept flunking examinations when they "just happened" to glance across the way to Building 5 to discover the good Doc conducting a different kind of examination (and it wasn't blue book, either).

Hold Your Breath . . .

The writers of those TV commercials heralding the arrival of new chlorophyll gum for sweeter breath have a lot of viewers breathing down their necks lately. "A definite must for ALL those who breathe," says the announcer breathlessly.

So what about those who don't breathe?

Landslide . . .

Associated Collegiate Press reports the president and vice president of the sophomore class at Sacramento JC were elected by a landslide.

Total vote: 11.

Radio-TV Note . . .

Pretty Beverly Bowling of the drama dept. is still convinced radio is here to stay causing one student to quip, "She ain't never heard of television?"

Miss Bowling is working on a project to establish a daily radio station on campus this semester to broadcast news of daily interest, but (and this should come as a shock to those one out of every nine voters, according to a recent survey, in this country who own TV sets) NO commercials!

Songbirds . . .

Campus songbirds Jim Bogue and Garl Eliopoulos are much in demand here as a song team (their Desert Song medley is a must-hear). They've made quite a few public appearances and have just finished making the rounds on local TV shows.

Miss Eliopoulos won a watch as first prize on Del Courtney's Sunday afternoon KPIX talent show January 27. Courtney offered Bogue a job singing with his new band at the St. Francis, but Bogue turned it down. Wants to finish college first.

Shutter (Bed) Bug . . .

Photographer Ken Molino did a quick about face when he was strolling by the housekeeping department at the St. Francis Hotel during the college hotel division's Operation—Hotel Day there January 29.

"When I have the girls strip," Molino heard a voice saying, "I have them do it differently."

Not wanting to pass up any good picture possibilities, that dog of a cameraman Molino pecked into the doorway and found the chambermaid giving a demonstration on making beds.

"Anyway," says Molino, "I learned the St. Francis is the only hotel in the city that uses three sheets on the bed."

Club Cavalcade: CAB Elects Officers, Plans March Club Day

CLUB DAY, traditional welcome to new students, is tentatively planned for the early part of March, Robin Dunn, faculty advisor to the Club Activities Board, announced yesterday.

Officers for the CAB are Bart Dempster, president; Mary Louise Carl, vice-president and Janice Smith, secretary.

Club Day is held in the student lounge on the west campus, Building 2, and its purpose is to acquaint students with the activities of the various campus clubs and organizations, Dunn said.

Representatives of the club will be able to answer questions concerning the activities of their particular groups, and therefore present a clearer picture of such campus activities for the students.

All students interested in this part of college life are invited to attend.

Among the special interest groups are the Forum Club, Hotel and Restaurant Society, Masonic Club, Engineering Society, Le Circle Francis (French Club), Merchandising Club, Pick and Hammer, Horticulture Club, Lutheran Society, Chinese Christian Club, Newman Club, Block S.F, Latin American Club, Hillel Foundation and the Canterbury Club.

Production groups include the Music Guild and the Drama Club. The Music Guild is composed of representatives of the A Cappella Choir, Band Association, Music Majors, Treble Clef, Men's Glee, Opera Workshop, Orchestra, and Lambda Alpha.

Honorary scholastic societies are Alpha Gamma Sigma, state two-year-college scholastic honor group; Phi Rho Pi, debate club; and Omicron Phi Pi, economic honor society.

Included in these active organizations on the campus are invitational organizations. Fraternity groups are Beta Tau, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, Kappa Rho, Phi Beta Delta, Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega and Tri Epsilon.

Sororities include Delta Sigma Tau, Kappa Phi, Phi Beta Rho, Delta Psi, Theta Tau, Alpha Lambda Chi, and Zeta Chi.

National Newman Club Day is slated Sunday, February 17 and the Newman Club of the college with clubs of other colleges will be feted at a Communion-breakfast at Saint Mary's Cathedral.

Tickets for the breakfast which are $1.25 a piece will be sold in the cafeteria during registration. San Jose State, California, Stanford, Stockton College, Cal Poly, San Francisco State, and Cal Medical Center will have representatives at the Mass which starts at 9 a.m.

Newman Club members are preparing for the big day under the leadership of Charles Elliott, president; Eileen Glyan, vice-president; Ed Healy, treasurer; Joyce Cereghino, corresponding secretary, Gus Chofle, sergeant-at-arms; Pat James, Club Activity Board representative.

Several fraternities on campus have recently elected their officers for the coming semester. Beta Tau officers are Ray Sullivan, president; Joe Scafidi, vice-president; Lou Sheppard, secretary; Norm Hiese, corresponding secretary; Murray Hart, historian; and Bob Hare, custodian.

The installation dinner of Phi Beta Delta was held yesterday at Pete's Rendezvous, Oakland. The Phi Delta's also announced new officers: Ralph Marinelli, president; Carl Greenly, recording secretary; Al Canestre, corresponding secretary; Dennis Hull, sergeant-at-arms; and Don Law, historian.

The semi-annual Sophomore King and Queen contest was held last semester in conjunction with the blood drive. The candidates who received the greatest number of blood pledges, reigned as King and Queen. Marilyn Jacobs of Theta Tau won the Queen title, and Sullivan received the king title.

Rams Out To Avenge Stockton Loss

Track Team Slates Eleven Dual Meets As Practice Starts

Meets with Stanford and California Junior Varsities plus the University of San Francisco and the Big Seven Conference teams will be part of the track schedule for the coming season, as released by Coach Roy Burkhead.

Along with the schedule announcement, Coach Burkhead said that all students interested in track should apply to him during registration in the auditorium prior to signups Monday, February 18, at 3 p.m. in Room 107 in the men's gymnasium.

The track schedule:

March 8—U. S. F., San Mateo at U. S. F.
March 9—Stockton—there.
March 17—Santa Rosa—there.
March 22—Cal J. V. at Cal.
March 30—Contra Costa—here.
April 7—Modesto—there.
April 21—Sacramento and U. C. Frosh at Berkeley.
April 28—San Mateo and Stanford Frosh at Stanford.
May 5 — "Big Seven" conference meet at Stockton.
May 12 — West Coast Relays at Fresno.
May 19—California Relays at Modesto.

Basketball Heads Intra Program

Despite the drop in student attendance, the athletic department is offering a continuous intramural sports program to City College men students during the spring semester, according to a recent announcement made by Director Tom Wilson.

Sports that will be available in the program are basketball, touch-football, soccer, volleyball, softball, tennis, badminton, and ping pong, he added.

The first activity will be basketball, Wilson said. The deadline for sign-ups is Friday, February 15. All college organizations, fraternities, social clubs, and independent teams are invited to sign up in teams of five to eight players. These teams will compete in a round robin competition

"In order to facilitate team participation, each group should appoint a manager for the players as a group," Wilson advised.

The only restriction on students, Fischer said, is that no student may participate in any sport in which he has previously earned a varsity block letter at City College.

Concerning individual sports, he added, first-place winners will be awarded gold belt buckles, while second place winners will receive silver belt buckles.

Mustangs vs. Locals In Clash To Cinch First Place Tonight

Out to make it two wins in a row over the local five, the visiting Stockton Junior College Mustangs will tangle with the revenge-bound Rams in a tilt that may decide the Big Seven Championship, tonight at 8 p. m., in the men's gymnasium.

In their last encounter, playing a slower, ball control game, the Mustangs literally "walked" to their 42-36 win over the locals, who were then currently sharing first place with San Mateo.

Aside from obtaining revenge, the Rams (who have suffered two conference losses at this writing) must win to remain in the running for the title.

Following the Stockton defeat, Coach Ralph Hillsman's team resorted to the ball-control game employed by Stockton to whip Modesto, 45-35, at the valley city.

With Stockton and San Mateo then deadlocked for the conference lead, City College needed a win over the Mateans for a crack at the title. And before a packed house in the men's gymnasium, all-conference forward, Dick Greenberg, who has been scoring inconsistently all season, meshed 16 to lead his teammates to a 50-46 win over the Bulldogs and a tie for the conference lead.

When Al Magnin of San Mateo put his team ahead, 33-32, on a push shot, near the end of the third quarter, Ram Dick Greenberg, stealing the ball twice, scored three baskets in a row before Erv Bonner scored for the Bulldogs.

But the damage had been done. Fred Nieman and Bob Bondanza, who scored most of their 14 and 11 points, respectively, in the final quarter, along with the rebounding of the "new" Ike Walker, maintained game control until the buzzer.

However, the locals, on the road, met a very determined Contra Costa team in their next outing and lost 52-58, to place the Rams in second place.

Behind, 26-21, at the intermission, the Comets drove back and tied up the score at 39-all near the close of third quarter.

Racket Men Play 16 Game Slate; Cal Frosh First

With the team limited to a fourteen-man squad, tennis aspirants are advised to sign up with Coach Roy Diedrichsen during registration this week, in the auditorium, in preparation for the 16 tennis matches on the season's schedule.

Starting off the season, Thursday, February 28, with the Cal Frosh, the Rams on succeeding dates will play the San Jose and Stanford Frosh, along with San Francisco State.

Monroe Kaplan, number four, seeded in 1951, is the only returning veteran.

Following the practice matches the team will be cut to 14 members and will then embark into conference and tourney competition.

The schedule:

March 7—Sacramento—here
March 14—San Mateo—there

Eligibility

Student Loses Year Competing Or Not

All students planning to waive partiepating in inter-collegiate athletics in order to save a year of eligibility are misinformed, football and track Coach Roy Burkhead announced recently.

Athletes should participate in their respective sports, Coach Burkhead said, in order to acquire all the experience and competition possible.

According to conference rules any student who registers in ANY college will lose a year of eligibility whether he participates in athletics or not.

Any student who has any problem concerning his eligibility status should see any of the coaching staff during registration in the auditorium or, after registration, the men's gymnasium, Burkhead added.

Frosh And Vets Provide Nucleus For Mound Corp; Rams vs. State Feb. 22

Spearheaded by a quintet of potential winning pitchers, the City College baseball team embarks on its initial outing against the perennially strong San Francisco State varsity, next Friday, February 22, at 3:30 on the State diamond.

Complemented with an influx of freshmen to the mound corps, last season's veterans, Dave Tivio and Jerry Pandolfi will find their starting berths difficult to retain. All of them outstanding preps and sandlot players, Rich Murphy, Sacred Heart; Ron Colburn, Mission, and Tom Hoffman, combined with the Tivio-Pandolfi trust, should provide one of the formidable hurling staffs in the conference.

Only returning veteran from last year's infield, George Zucca, Mission, will handle shortstop; Dick Kalar, all-city from Commerce, Art Ersepke, Washington, and Dick Greenberg, Mission, will provide the infield nucleus.

The 1952 baseball schedule, (subject to change) as released by Coach Bill Fischer:

Feb. 22—S.F. State—at State—3:30
Feb. 29—Santa Clara—at SC—3:30
March 3—Sacred Heart—Funston—3:30
March 8—Stanford Braves—there—10 a.m.
March 11—California J.V.—there—3:15, Hilgard Field
March 14—Alameda Air—here*
March 22—Sacramento—here—double header*
March 25—Contra Costa—here—3:30*

April 10—Hamilton Air—there—2:30
April 26—Modesto—there—3.30
May 3—Stockton—here*
May 6—San Mateo—there—2:30

(* Playing site and times indefinite; however, a notice will be issued. San Mateo, Stockton, Modesto, Contra Costa, Santa Rosa and Sacramento are all Big Seven games.)

In the absence of the President and the Vice-President, the chairmanship of the Student Council shall be taken over according to the cabinet precedence as listed in Article III of the Associated Student constitution.

Boxing Tryouts Open; May Try Olympics

With one state junior college championship under his belt, and a few good prospects in view, Coach Roy Diedericksen will again try to "mold a team of winning pugilists.

Of the aspirants who have already signed up, the most promising prospects are Ted Flood, 175, who has already won the novice tournament, and Charges How[illegible] a 165 pounder.

Plans are [illegible] for way to enter those qual[illegible] Olympic tryouts this Spring.

Colleges Rate Grid Over-Emphasized

SINCE the close of one of the most turbulent seasons in gridiron history, there has been a wave of protest concerning the overemphasis on college football.

These grievances, concerning unnecessary roughness, bowl games, platoon systems, athletic scholarship grants, and the seemingly complacent attitude toward losing coaches, according to a group of college presidents representing their respective institutions at a recent NCAA meeting, are the result of emphasis on winning.

WILL IT RECUR?

Each of these grievances can be aired and solved individually, but what's to prevent overemphasis from occurring again? True, a few colleges have abandoned or retrenched football to a secondary level because of the financial strain.

However, any action of this sort must be done on a national scale to be effective. And it appears, as a result of the NCAA meet, the problem will exist indefinitely.

Can we honestly say that football is a vital part of our college life? It's a great spectator sport and surely essential in teaching students and participants, alike, the value of competition, but aside from these facts, where does college football fit into the picture? Well, believe it or not, this is one problem that has been, at least, approached.

POLL INDICATIVE

In a recent poll, taken within 63 colleges and universities in all parts of the country, more than 3,000 students were asked: Do you feel that football at most colleges is overemphasized, underemphasized or just about right? The results:

1. Over-emphasized ..... 53 per cent
2. Under-emphasized ..... 5 per cent
3. Just about right ..... 38 per cent
4. No opinion ..... 4 per cent

The poll also pointed out that the further along a student was in college, the more he tended to feel that football was overemphasized.

Seventy-three per cent of the graduate students interviewed said there was too much stress put on football, while 43 per cent of the freshmen voiced this opinion. The figures went up according to classes in a steady progression: Sophomores, 53 per cent; juniors, 57 per cent; seniors, 61 per cent.

Continuing with the poll, some students were also asked: Do you feel that organized football is (1) as necessary to a college as a history department; (2) less necessary; (3) more necessary?

RAMblings . . National De-emphasis Necessary for Cure

By Don Stephens

1. As necessary ..... 36 per cent
2. Less necessary ..... 53 per cent
3. More necessary ..... 6 per cent
4. No opinion ..... 5 per cent

A follow-up question asked students to rate football with a zoology department. The results differ only slightly from those of preceding questions.

GRADS DIFFER

As in the original question, the two preceding questions showed the attitude of graduate students differed markedly from the opinion pattern. Only 12 per cent of the graduate students considered football "as necessary" as a history department, while, 77 per cent thought it is "less necessary." Figures for the zoology question were almost identical.

The majority of the students who commented seemed to express either one or both of the following attitudes: (1) There is a place at college for a sound athletic program, one which "develops sportsmanship and fair play." (2) College football, in many instances, has "gone commercial."

The evils of overemphasis have been exposed through every medium, and students have expressed their inclination toward de-emphasis, but so far only words have been expressed. Obviously what is needed is definite action to bring football out of "commercialism."

Block SF To Decide Officers

The Block SF Society will meet during college hour Friday, February 29, in Room 10D to elect officers for the spring semester, according to Sponsor Bill Fischer. All block letter winners are invited to attend.

Fischer said he had high hopes of a large turnout at the meeting considering the success of the society's activities during the past fall semester. Among these were the Block SF Awards Banquet which had as its guests of honor the high school coaches of the men who were awarded block letters for the first time.

Plans for future Block SF activities are already under way, Fischer continued. Among these is the club-sponsored dance which will be held sometime next spring.

Also, the society intends to install a bulletin board next to the student fountain. The board was built by the '50, '51 and '52 members and will serve the purpose of notifying the students of coming sports events.

S. F. Chosen Site For College Government Confab April 17

The Fairmont and Mark Hopkins Hotels in downtown San Francisco were recently selected as sites for the California Junior College Student Government Conference, scheduled April 17 through 19.

More than 45 California junior colleges will send delegates to the conference, according to Marilyn Jacobs, who was appointed general chairman of the conference by Associated Student President Bob Smirle.

The college will act as official hosts for the delegations from each college, Miss Jacobs said.

She said announcements have been mailed to the colleges expecting to attend, and replies should be forthcoming soon.

This college will send six delegates to the conference, two of whom will be voting delegates and the other four representatives.

No definite agenda has been drawn up as yet, Miss Jacobs commented, but, she said, the conference most likely will meet to discuss current student government business.

Students interested in participating in the conference are invited to ask Miss Jacobs for further information as plans are formulated.

A meeting was held at the close of last semester with President Louis G. Conlan and the following faculty members to discuss conference arrangements:

Robin Dunn, club and rally sponsor; George Mullany, graphic arts and publicity; William Eckert, art department; F. Grant Marsh, coordinator, Division of Student Welfare; Louis Batmale, acting dean of men; and Margaret Flournoy, business department.

They gave their support and aid in coordinating phases of planning for the conference yet to be completed, according to Miss Jacobs.

A similar statewide government conference was held at the college in 1947.

Music, Drama Departments Set Full Work Slate

An active Spring semester is promised for the music and drama departments with several activities on the agenda.

Opera Workshop classes have been scheduled for Monday and Thursday nights this semester, according to Flossita Badger, workshop director.

The first production is to be a light opera, the title of which will be soon released. This and other music department activities will give aspiring musicians opportunities to display their talents, Miss Badger declared.

During April and May the A Cappella choir will perform on two occasions in downtown San Francisco. One occasion will be an appearance at the Parent-Teacher Association's national convention to be held at the Palace Hotel.

Weekly one-act plays are the hope of the Drama department with several drama courses offered this semester, according to Beverly Bowling, drama club president.

Miss Bowling issued hopes that combined talents of both the music and drama departments can result in a variety production which would feature talent from both groups.

The college music department will host San Francisco's high school students at the annual choral festival to be held on campus in April.

Both college and high school students will participate in a musical program followed by a dinner and evening entertainment, Miss Badger declared.

The Music Guild here contains all performing groups and clubs and includes the following groups: Opera Workshop, Lambda Alpha, A Cappella Choir, Band, Orchestra, Treble Clef Glee Club and music majors who contribute to musical productions.

There is currently a need for students who can play the piano for some of the music course students. College credit will be given these accompanists.

Students who are interested may contact one of the members of the music department faculty for information regarding participation in this work.

Students interested in any of the music and drama courses may find a complete listing of them contained in the college catalogue with credit and content in the listing.

Film Series To Start March 14

The college film series begins Friday, March 14, during college hour and the 12 o'clock hour in room 136, with the showing of San Francisco At Play, a film issued by the San Francisco Recreation department, Madison Devlin, director of audi-visual aids, announced recently.

Student projectionists are needed in the department, Devlin declared. Reliable men students, preferably first and second semester students, who are willing to work during their free hours are needed.

Previous experience at operating a projector is not necessary, Devlin added. All applicants will be taught to run the machines.

Because the job is a civil service position, it is necessary that all applicants be American citizens and residents of the city and county of San Francisco, Devlin said.

The pay is 75 cents for each hour's work. Students applying for the positions are requested to see Devlin in Room 155.

Clish Urges Care In Auto Driving

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish issued an appeal last week to all students who are drivers asking them to observe motor vehicle laws and regulations.

The superintendent's announcement came as a follow up to the recent Great Highway accident, involving teen-age drivers, which took two lives.

He warned that "unless there is an immediate and continued decrease" in traffic violations, "restrictive legislation is bound to be enacted.

"Already," he pointed out, "many citizens are urging that the age at which a driver's license shall be permitted should be greatly increased."

Dr. Clish said he thought this would be "unfortunate for the majority of our youth who are observing the law very strictly.

"Perhaps social pressure upon the part of these law abiding students might bring home forcefully to those who break the law the importance of observing it," he added.

The superintendent said he is wholeheartedly in accord with a city-wide campaign being conducted by the police department to remove from the highways un-safe motor vehicles.

The campaign is under supervision of Police Chief Michael Gaffey.

New Building Job May Start July 1

Bids for a proposed classroom-library building to be erected on the East side of Phelan Avenue will be sent out in early May and actual construction is expected to begin July 1, according to President Louis G. Conlan.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, recently returned from Washington, D. C., where he was assured that critical materials needed for the building would be forthcoming, Conlan declared.

Since 1940 the present main building was regarded as the most modern school building of its type, and several educators from the Bay Area used it as a model for post-war building programs.

A fine arts unit, including an auditorium theater, is also in the planning stages.

Ushering Jobs Ready

Ushering jobs for forthcoming performances to be given at the War Memorial Opera House and Civic Auditorium now are available from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

Operation-Hotel: Students 'Run' St. Francis

38 From College Hotel Division Assigned Key Positions For A Day

"Operation—Hotel" became a reality for 38 students from the college's Hotel and Restaurant Division last month when they were assigned to operate a major California hotel.

At the invitation of Dan E. London, General Manager of the City's St. Francis Hotel, students enrolled in the hotel division put into practice their two years of college training in hotel management.

They were offered the hotel's facilities for a full day as a plausible working ground which would enable them to get first-hand professional experience.

They were assigned to their various positions by London and Hilda Watson, hotel division director.

Gains Insight

To Gordon Carroll, 26-year-old hotel division student, who was assigned London's job for the day, the experience gave him what he called "insight into management's policy, including how to handle problems that arise throughout the day."

Carroll, whose reaction was typical to those of the other 37 students, actually performed the job of general manager, under London's guidance. He began the day in routine work of reading the daily mail, checking reports on orchestra and food costs, daily profit and loss statements and guest arrival lists.

Key Positions Filled

Key hotel departments and managerial positions were, in addition to Carroll, assigned to the following students:

William Ramirez, Phil Jones, Donald Foss, Jim Hontalas, Walter Taggert, Richard Mahoric, John Valdez, David Bittel, Roy Kaderli, Karl Hommerstad, William Nierdazik.

The journalism department was represented by Bob Rezak, Bob Reilly, Joan Bayerle who worked with Al Vipiana, Kenneth Molino, Brad Casoly and Matt Howells of the photography department on publicity for the affair.

First Experiment

London declared it was probably the first time any Western hotel had offered its facilities to students who some day will be employed in similar occupations.

He said the day was both successful "and profitable to both students and hotel staff.

"And," he commented, "we of the hotel staff have likewise learned a great many new ideas from the students which we plan to incorporate eventually in our own operations."

London enthusiastically supported plans to make the program an annual affair with further possibilities of expanding opportunities for experience in hotel management.

Building 7 Houses Veteran Students

For those veterans desiring to live on the campus, Building 7 is the one dormitory available, Louis Batmale, Acting dean of men, announced recently.

The dormitory will be run by procter, Everett Heartly.

The cost is $12.50 in advance for one month, or else $75 per semester. Students checking out before their time is up may be given a refund. Each room is furnished and has utilities.

At the present time there are no dormitories available for women. However, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, will assist women students in finding suitable living quarters.

For married veterans, Hurley Village, a housing project made up of quonset huts, is available. Here, over 250 couples are provided with facilities, utilities, and furnished apartments. The cost ranges from $32.50 to $41.50 per month.

Hurley Village was named in memory of Major John J. Hurley, former faculty member who was killed in action in Italy during the last war.

Hurley Village was newly renovated last year. Carpenters, painters, plumbers, electricians and landscape experts gave the project a complete and thorough going over. Quonset huts and wooden structures are the abodes in use.

College Library Open 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Daily; Night Hours To Be Set Later

Hours during which students may use the facilities of the campus libraries were announced recently by Clement Skrabak, college librarian.

The main library, on the third floor of the main building, will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

The library in the west campus lounge, Building 2, will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. daily.

Evening hours for the main library have not as yet been released, but will be announced at a later date.

The main library's estimated 40,000 volumes, plus innumerable pamphlets, more than 300 different magazines and periodicals received each month, are at the disposal of the students.

Books are easily accessible in that they are arranged on open stacks which allows the students to browse through them and to use them at their leisure.

Books may be borrowed for a two-week period. Reserve books may be borrowed for two hours or may be taken out over night.

The west campus library has an extensive collection of books on the social sciences, plus books on the subjects taught on the west campus. Valuable material on vocations and careers is to be found there also.

"We want the library to be a part of the college life of the students. We want them to feel at home in the library, and to feel that they are free to use the library anytime during college sessions," Skrabak said.

Units may be earned by students who are interested in working in the library here.

Individuals who are willing to donate their free time to work in the library are invited to see Katharine Pedley in the library, to arrange work.

Cafe Open From 8-1 This Week

To accommodate those students living on the campus and others wishing to eat their meals at the college, dining room facilities are maintained on the west campus by the Hotel and Restaurant Division.

During registration, however, it will only be open from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m., Larry Wong, cafeteria manager, said.

The cafeteria is open every Monday through Friday—breakfast from 7:30 to 10.15 a.m., luncheon from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., and dinner from 5 to 6:15 p.m.

All food preparation is under the supervision of instructors, each of whom has a background of many years experience in the industry.

A fountain is located in the south end of Building 12 where students may obtain refreshments, and is conducted under the supervision of the hotel division.

It is open daily from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Smoking Rules Listed

Smoking is prohibited in all classroom buildings on the west campus and above the basement floor of the main building.

Students may smoke in the basement of the main building but not on the stairs or landings. Smoking is also permitted in the student lounge, and cafeteria on the west campus.

These regulations were established by the fire department.

Special College Hour Program Highlights Club Day Activities In Student Lounge 9-3 Today

Club Day, sponsored today from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the student lounge by the Club Activities Board, will receive its impetus during a special college hour, Dan Bledsoe, vice-president of CAB, said last week.

Speeches by President Louis G. Conlan, Associated Student President Bob Smirle, and Faculty-Student Relations Committee Chairman John French are the core of the special college hour program designed to acquaint students and faculty with the activities of the various clubs, sorotities and fraternities on campus, Bledsoe declared.

Free refreshments will be provided visitors to the student lounge both during the special college hour and throughout the day, Bledsoe added.

Representatives from each of the organizations on campus will staff booths throughout the day in order to inform interested students and faculty members of their activities, general objectives, and membership requirements. Thirty-five clubs and organizations are participating in Club Day.

With the resignation of Bart Dempster, who is now Publicity Chairman, CAB vice-president Mary Louise Carl stepped into the post of president. During her present hospitalization at St. Joseph's Hospital, the Student Council Service Key winner has been replaced by Bledsoe, who was elected vice-president of CAB at last week's meeting. Joanne Smith continues as the group's secretary.

Clubs Scheduled For Six College Hour Meetings

Regular college hour this Friday has been cancelled by the special Club Day college hour today, President Louis G. Conlan announced Friday. Club meetings scheduled for this Friday, March 7, will be postponed until Friday, March 14, in the rooms assigned by Dean Louis Batmale.

The full schedule is as follows:

March 14, clubs; March 21, rally; April 14, clubs; April 18, clubs; April 25, rally; May 2, clubs; May 23, election rally; June 6, Sophomore-Faculty Baseball; June 13, clubs.

The rooms assigned for the college hour club meetings are as follows: Newman Club, 4M; Drama, 28; Pick and Hammer, 45; Tri Epsilon, 111; Zeta Chi, 133; Alpha Phi Omega, 140; Canterbury Club, 141; Theta Tau, 193; Collegiate Christian Fellowship, 200; Engineering Society, 204; Kappa Phi, 205; Pi Mu Gamma, 211; Delta Psi, 215; Gamma Phi Ypsilon, 242; Tau Chi Sigma, 254; Lutheran Club, 256; Women's Athletic Association, 257; Merchandising Club, 258.

Alpha Lambda Chi, 303; Latin American Club, 310; Cercle Francais, 311; Band Association, Building 1; Men's Glee Club, 1A; Music Guild Council, 1C; Kappa Rho, 2B; Chinese Students Club, 4A; Phi Beta Rho, 4R; Alpha Sigma Delta, 5A; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 5K; Collegians, 5L; Phi Beta Delta, 5M; Alpha Phi Epsilon, 6J; Ram Cam, 9D; Masonic Club, 10A; Block S. F., 10D; Hillel Foundation, 11A.

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
11 o'clock class—10:40 to 11:20

Spring Cinema Series Listed

Thirteen choice films will be featured this semester in the college film series on successive Fridays in Room 136, Madison Devlin, visual aid instructor, announced yesterday.

The films will be shown during each Friday college hour of this semester and at 12 noon and 1 p.m. the same day, Devlin said.

The list: March 14, San Francisco at Play; March 21, Fishing in Alaska; March 28, Hunting in Alaska; April 4, Mystery of The Incas; April 18, Magazine Magic; April 25, Realm of The Wild; May 2, Skyway to Mexico and Acapulco, Riviera of Mexico; May 9, In Partnership with Nature; May 16, The Real Discovery of California; May 23, Wheels Across The Andes; June 6, Pheasants Galore; June 13, Then There Were Four.

Prospective Grads To File Petitions Before March 14

Students expecting to graduate in June must file their petitions on or before Friday, March 14, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced yesterday.

Petitions may be obtained from the registrar's office, Building 3.

March 14, also marks the deadline for removal of incompletes from the previous semester with grades higher than a "D."

Students who received an incomplete last semester because of illness or other unavoidable circumstances and who meet the requirements of the course before March 14 are entitled to receive the grade which would have been given had the work not been delayed.

A grade no higher than "D" will be given if the incomplete is not removed by this date, the rules provide.

Wednesday, April 16, is the last day for filing petitions for dropping courses, and Wednesday, May 21, has been set as the final date of filing petitions for leave of absence.

Other dates of interest to students, Miss Learnard said, are Friday, March 28, marking the close of the first midterm period, and Friday, May 9, end of the second midterm period.

"THERE'S PLENTY of space to park besides the already overcrowded west campus," those who fail to get parking permits are advised. Here a student, Brad Casoly, surveys one such oreo, a vacant lot facing Ocean Avenue. Though it is not included as a part of the college campus proper, students have been permitted to park there if they cored to bottle weeds, rocks, mud puddles, foot-wide chuckholes and construction work going on nearby. An unprecedented influx of automobiles on the campus this semester has necessitated strict enforcement of traffic regulations. —Photo by Vipiana

Crackdown On Violators Of Campus Traffic Regulations

There may be parking space aplenty this week for City College motorists—but at least not on the choked-up west campus or its overflowing extremities.

Enforcement of parking regulations on the campus grounds and issuance of a limited number of parking permits were expected, on one hand, to bring restraint to a major traffic problem which has grown consistently worse here during the last two weeks.

These were principal developments on the traffic problem reported to The Guardsman yesterday:

1. Campus police, assisted by the San Francisco Police department, Monday began strict enforcement of parking regulations as decided by the college administration (see page 2).

2. The race was on for parking permits, which Acting Dean of Men Louis F. Batmale began issuing last Friday to Associated Student members on a first-come first-served basis. They will continue to be issued this week until the supply is depleted.

3. Phelan Avenue, long proclaimed as a menace to safety, will be widened "sometime this year" into a four-lane thoroughfare.

Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement adviser here, in conjunction with administrative heads, took immediate steps last week to help straighten out the traffic snarl.

Three gateways to the west campus, were designated as follows:

1. Gate number one, just off San Ramon Street, for entrance only.

2. Gate number two, south gate on Phelan Avenue adjacent to Building One, entrance only.

3. Gate number three, north gate on Phelan Avenue, exit only.

Campus police will be stationed at all three gates, Fitzgerald said, and will cite drivers for any violation of traffic regulations.

Meantime, San Francisco Police Chief Michael Gaffey was to swear in seven new campus police to help supervise traffic, raising the total to 15 campus police now on duty.

"It's only a matter of time that should see this daily problem cleared," Fitzgerald somewhat hopefully told The Guardsman. "I think that the

Clancey Approved For Soph Office

Bob Clancey was recently named sophomore class vice-president by Ralph Marinelli, class president.

In his new capacity Clancey will aid Marinelli in setting up various activities planned for the second year students including the annual Sophomore Week scheduled from June 2-6.

A brief outline submitted by Marinelli shows that a king-queen contest, the traditional soph-faculty softball game set for June 6 and the Sophomore ball at a downtown hotel with a name band supplying the music on Saturday evening, June 7, will highlight the week's affairs.

"Guest" Is Due In Little Theater

Spring production gets under way for the Drama Club with three performances, beginning next Wednesday night, March 12, at 8 p.m., when Guest In The House, a contemporary psychological drama, will be presented in the Little Theater, according to Director Michael Griffin.

Casting for major roles was completed last week and Griffin announced that the following students would assume major roles:

Ed Magland as Illustrator Douglas Proctor; Noreen Duryea as Evelyn Heath, the "guest"; Dawn Kidd as Ann Proctor, the wife; Connie Connor as Aunt Martha; Beverly Bowling as Lee Proctor; Stan Rublowsky as Dan Proctor; Beverly Naditz and Anne Morrow will alternate as Miriam Blake, the model; Ausma Ozols as Hilda, the maid; Jerry O'Connor as Reverend Doctor Shaw; Anne Ostrom as Mrs. Dow, and Barbara Murdock as Miss Rhodes.

Guest In The House was written by Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunson and is being presented by arrangement with Samuel French of New York.

The play deals with the demoralizing influence of Evelyn Heath, a supposedly helpless guest, upon the household of Douglas Proctor, a well-known illustrator and his long-suffering wife, Ann.

By accusing Doug of deserting his wife for a model, Miriam Blake, the shrewish Evelyn manages to throw the peace and contentment of the successful illustrator's household into an existence of anguish and horror.

Before the action is finally resolved, playgoers are assured that more than once they will be forced to control an impulse to rush up and wring the neck of the malicious Evelyn, according to Griffin.

Griffin declared that an actual full length portrait of the model, Miriam Blake, is being prepared for use in the play's action by students in the art department of the college.

Curtain time for all performances will be 8 p.m., and regular admission will be $1. Associated Students will admitted for 50 cents.

Tickets are on sale at the college bank.

Meanwhile, through application to Griffin, talented students of the college are given an opportunity to appear on a local television show.

Interested students are invited to obtain further information and make arrangements for auditions with Griffin in Building 19.

Contributions To Forum Magazine Due By April 18

Deadline of Friday, April 18, was set last week for contributions to Forum, the college literary magazine, by Duane Belcher, editor.

Students are encouraged to turn in short stories, essays, dramas, or articles up to a limit of 1,500 words.

Contributions of any variety are welcomed, according to Belcher. Such material as satirical, humorous or narrative sketches may be submitted as well as scientific, historical, economic or literary articles.

The editors of Forum are also interested in photography or art work which can be readily reproduced.

All registered students at the college are eligible to contribute.

Manuscripts must be typewritten and double spaced on 8½x11 inch paper.

Students may hand in their work to instructors John Gerstung, in Building 4, Dorothy Mercer, in Building 19, or to Belcher before the deadline date.

Contributions are accepted from all students in an effort to collect the most representative student writing during the academic year.

The magazine, which first appeared in 1937, is now in its 15th year of continuous publication and will be distributed in either May or June of this year.

Deadline For Draft Tests Next Monday

Deadline for applying for the next Selective Service qualification test is midnight, March 10. F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, declared last week.

The tests will be given throughout the nation on Thursday, April 24.

Applicants are allowed to state their preference for the testing place.

A score of 70 or more, Marsh said, will probably place the student in a deferred classification.

Otherwise, he said, the student is subject to the draft. Cases in doubt are decided by the student's draft board.

To be eligible for the test, Marsh added, a student must be registered for the draft, carry a full time course of not less than 15 units, and must not have taken the test before.

Any student who has questions regarding the Selective Service should see Marsh in Building 3.

Applications for proof of college attendance, sent to the student's local board, are also obtained there. Test applications are also available at the draft board.

When the college year ends, a student may be considered for a deferred classification of 2-S by his draft board if he is in the top half of his class or if he passes the Selective Service qualification examination.

Total Enrollment Tops 3,000 Mark

Estimated figures show a total of approximately 3,100 students registered here for the Spring semester of 1952, according to Mary Jane Learnard, registrar. This is a drop of approximately 200 students from the Fall, 1951, semester Miss Learnard said.

"There were reports of a heavy enrollment in the college evening classes. Actual figures, however, have not been completed.

Enrollments in these classes closed last Friday.

Editorial

Major Traffic Problem Here Up For Consideration, Action

THE GUARDSMAN today devotes considerable space to an analysis of a major traffic problem here—a problem in which no one person attending this college stands alone. Such extensive coverage, we emphasize strongly, is not intended to force action or place responsibility on any single individual or group, for the problem apparently "just grew" in the wake of a sudden influx in automobile traffic as evidenced here during the past few weeks.

Rather, it is this newspaper's aim simply to present the facts objectively and as clearly as it can to its readers who share some degree of responsibility for the problem's solution. We hope readers gain insight and a more meaningful appraisal of the extent and nature of the problem as presented here, in picture and story.

A step toward solution has already been made by college leaders who have instituted a set of traffic regulations which we believe to be none too stringent under present conditions. We commend these leaders for their quick action in the emergency.

Meanwhile, The Guardsman believes that while traffic regulation enforcement and control—and above all, safety—is a large part of the present problem, correction of the impending conditions that prevail must also be weighed carefully.

We cite, as an example, the roadway leading from gate number two, adjacent to Building One, which this week became one of two main entrances to the west campus. The roadway itself is unpaved, muddy, and full of chuckholes and loose gravel.

As a result, many motorists knowingly violate the law at the first chance they get and enter gateways specifically designated as exit ways only, rather than attempt to cope with these obstacles. The immediate solution, here, therefore, well might be to pave the road, thereby eliminating a significant part of the overall problem.

One college official, however, indicates the roadway will remain in its present condition until the college moves into its proposed new quarters sometime in 1954; that is, unless the Associated Students can provide about a thousand dollars necessary to complete the job.

We know little else about this condition, singled out for illustrative purposes, and we do not pretend to have the answers as to what can be done about it. A few weeks ago, however, the Student Council appointed a committee to make recommendations on parking permits. The members, and other campus organizations, signified a willingness to go a step further and paint boundary lines in the parking area.

We hope the committee enlarges upon its original idea, enlists the aid and support of more organizations and students, and prepares to take on some of these more immediate problems. The spirit and cooperation is there, we believe, and we remain confident that problems like this, if given the time, careful review and consideration necessary, can be worked out successfully on the social level.

Official Parking Rules Listed

Parking regulations on the campus went into effect this week, according to announcement from Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, college controller. The following traffic regulations, adopted by the administrative staff of the college, will be strictly enforced by campus police, Anderson warned.

Regulations for entering the west campus are as follows:

Gate # 1: San Ramon Street, West Campus: Enter and drive to the right to the parking area.

Gate # 2: South gate on Phelan Avenue adjacent to Building 1, to be used for entry only.

Gate # 3: North gate on Phelan Avenue, to be used for exit only.

Other regulations in effect include the following:

1. No parking on narrow roads of West Campus.
2. No parking on unpaved areas of main campus or on north and south ends of the main building or behind the chains of the north and south ramps.
3. Parking privileges on West Campus are subject to display of a parking permit in the left hand corner of automobile windshield.
4. Vehicles should not be driven in excess of 15 miles per hour on any of the roads of the campus or on Phelan Avenue.
5. Vehicles must stop for pedestrians in cross-walks. Pedestrians have the right-of-way. When a police officer is on duty at a cross-walk, he will control the traffic.

Spot Survey Reveals Abuse Of Campus, State Vehicle Code

A Guardsman reporter-photographer team made a spot survey of the west campus last week during peak of Operation Desperation—reported to be the college's most serious traffic problem.

By early Monday, drivers were warned by campus police to obey new parking regulations, listed in columns one and two.

PANEL ONE shows clearly that drivers failed to heed the "No Parking" sign clearly visible in front of them. This scene shows autos parked in back of Building 9.

Last week these violators were given a week-long warning by campus police that parking in this and similar areas is restricted as of this week.

A general view of section of west campus parking lot is shown in PICTURE TWO. Grey areas in back and in front of autos are passage ways—not parking spaces.

The second row of autos shows evidences of poor parking on part of some drivers who carelessly parked their cars on an angle, thereby occupying two parking spaces and, at the same time, leaving some frustrated motorists with no place to leave their cars.

Circled area indicates unpaved roadway (Gate # 2) which this week became the only entrance to west campus from Phelan Avenue. Dr. Oscar E. Anderson, controller, said the road would probably remain unpaved until the college moves into its new buildings sometime in 1954.

Until then, drivers were faced with driving down the dirt road, which is often muddy and full of chuckholes.

In THIRD PHOTO, note how bus, in turning into west campus, must make sharp swirve to get through Gate # 3, which this week became an exit only. Before this regulation was made, the bus added further hazard to parking and driving when autos attempting to exit and enter the gate at same time were forced to pull to curb to allow bus to enter.

The width of gateway is approximately 20 feet and bus often ran its wheels over the curb while entering campus.

Sign on bus advertises local auto race show and in no way emphasizes acute traffic conditions here.

There'll be no more illegal parking near fireplugs this week. Citations, according to campus police who warned offenders last week, are in store for violators from now on.

PICTURE FOUR was snapped near auditorium during peak traffic period last week before restrictions took full effect. Some of those who parked near plugs and alongside painted curbs knew they violated the law, but simply parked there as last resort.

Arrow points to student who stopped car for friendly chat, thereby causing lineup of cars behind. Two ton truck had to pull to curb to allow cars to leave without causing further congestion.

This week, the gateway (Gate # 3) became exit point only and police were stationed there to enforce the regulation.

Six cars (PICTURE 6) were parked on the west side of Building 9 last week—smack in back of a threatening "No Parking On This Street" sign. White tags on windshields were warnings to drivers, issued by police, who said the warnings would be replaced by official traffic citations this week for future similar violations.

A few yards up this narrow street is Gate # 1, just off San Ramon Street. The street is for entering the campus only and autoists must drive to right to parking area hereafter.

The Big Search

Drivers Waste Gas, Time, Energy In Fruitless Hunt For Parking

When parking conditions hit a new low, students about the campus had a lot to grumble about.

Harrison Anixter explained that when he arrives on the campus after 9 a.m., it's almost an impossibility to park. "I waste time, gas, and energy," he declared.

Ken Freige, a daily driver from Oakland, thinks it is a wonder there haven't been more accidents. Instead of driving to the men's gymnasium in order to save time, he walks over the hill. He explains "you can't park in the west campus once you lose your space."

Arnold Levy offered several parking recommendations: Certain sections on the hill leading to the main building are red, and are valuable spots where students should be allowed to park.

Students should be allowed to park on one side of the one-way roads circling the west campus. There are large areas of open space that could be cleared for parking purposes, Levy concluded.

Ted Worral suggested that pedestrians should walk on one side of the west campus entrance because they hold up traffic.

Ernest Michels, former City College student, pointed out that on the day he visited the campus, the driving was terrible for his car, rough on his nerves, and "just plain bad."

Meanwhile, campus police have begun citing drivers whose cars are illegally parked in red zones and one-way streets.

When the campus police were interviewed they said they had experienced no real increase in violations on the part of driving students, but noticed a large amount of new vehicles coming onto the campus.

With parking permits going into effect this week, they expect the situation to brighten somewhat.

No recent check has been made by the campus police to determine the volume of automobiles parked on the west campus each day, but the police believed that any new survey would affirm the fact that after 10 a.m. parking spaces are at a premium on the parking lot.

They stated that campus police would be stationed at all entrances to direct the flow of traffic.

The student officers, majoring in the college semi-professional law enforcement program have long been present to preserve decorum in campus parking.

They serve as regular police officers and have the right to issue citations by order of the San Francisco Police Department.

• "Confusion Reigns . . ."

Editor, The Guardsman

For four semesters I have driven my car to this college and I must admit that finding a parking place here on the campus has always been quite a problem, but this semester the parking situation can be summed up in three words, "confusion reigns supreme."

Every morning when I arrive, it is a toss-up as to what gate I may drive in, and to where I may park my car.

If this parking problem gets any worse on this campus I see that I will have to give up the comfort of my own car, and start to commute on the Key System and the Municipal Railway.

It is really a pathetic situation when a student drives his or her car to the campus from across the Bay and cannot find a decent place to park it once they have arrived. Students do not like to park their cars in mudflats or on busy streets that the buses are now using.

This parking problem is a critical problem and something should be done about it immediately. Students are already resorting to the use of the Municipal Railway and, what with higher prices to be charged for a ride in the future, students who own cars should have the right to be able to park them somewhere on this campus.

Rams Leave Today For State Tournament

Rams Overcome Early San Mateo Lead For Big Seven Conference Crown And Visalia Tournament

By virtue of their victory over San Mateo in the Big Seven Conference championship game, the Rams will be en route to Visalia today to participate in the California State Junior College Basketball Tournament, and, thus become the second team during Coach Ralph Hillsman's reign to be invited to such an event.

The California Tournament, which is slated to begin tomorrow and conclude Saturday, is taking the place of the National Junior College Championship annually held at Hutchinson, Kansas, as far as the California colleges are concerned.

Perhaps it was the distance or the expense involved but invariably the teams that ended up in the semi-finals and finals at the Kansas Tourney were from California. So, starting this year, a state-wide tourney is inaugurated to be held at Visalia.

State Creates Tourney

This may be regarded as a brash move, but so far this practical innovation has received little hostility. In fact, it has been regarded as a success by the coaches, faculty, students and players of the California colleges.

They contend it cuts down on expenses, gives players less cause to fall behind in their studies and it gives more time, for most teams, between regular season games and the tourney.

By having well-rested and conditioned teams the tourney can present a true representation of the participating colleges.

Their previous venture in such a tourney, where so much is at stake, was at the conclusion of the '49-'50 season, when they were eliminated from the quarter finals by Grant Tech in the National championship.

Championship Game

When the Rams defeated San Mateo for the Big Seven Conference basketball crown, they not only gained the right to represent the league at the State Tourney at Visalia, but the win established them as one of the most courageous and successful teams in the history of City College.

The victory gave them a seasonal record of 19 wins and 4 defeats and a league record of 9 wins and 3 defeats. But that climaxing win wasn't achieved with ease.

Going into the second quarter, the locals were on the short end of a 16-6 score, and it appeared as though the home court jinx was going to work again. (City College defeated San Mateo, 50-46 in the local gymnasium, and had previously lost three of their four games away from home.)

However, Dick Greenberg, who took team scoring honors with 18 points, hit for 11 points in the second quarter to bring his team up to within six points of San Mateo's 28 point half-time score.

Following the intermission, the locals began from where they left off and outscored the Mateans 14 to 9 in the third period. But it wasn't the scoring or the rebounding of the Rams nor the Matean's inability to score that had them 37-38 going into the fourth quarter.

Marshall Stops Bonner

With San Mateo's league leading scorer, Erv Bonner, having 20 points to his credit midway in the third quarter, Coach Hillsman sent in Hank Marshall to put the clamps on Bonner.

Marshall did the job by holding the scoring ace to two free throws, and thus pave the way for the local's Mario Lombardi to sink 11 of his 13 points in the tie-breaking, game-winning fourth quarter.

During that final period when Fred Nieman and Ike Walker completely picked both offensive and defensive boards clean, and Lombardi and Bob Bondanza, a splendid floorman that night, held the game down to a time-consuming pace and stalled most of the remaining five minutes, the host team was only able to score seven points.

Nine Veterans To Pace Rams In Opener Today

Old man weather has played a leading role in limiting the Ram baseball team to only two days of practice so far this season and as the weather continues to hold the upper hand, Coach Bill Fischer's nine hopes for the best when they start conference play against Sacramento in a double-header at Big Rec.

The games against arch rival San Francisco State, and Mission High School last week were rained out, and the next game coming up will be today against the Galileo High aggregation, 3:30 p.m., at Funston Field.

Following this the locals will play the Oakland Rookies under the tutelage of Oak's Coach, George Kelly, at Big Rec. Seventh and Lincoln Way.

The first major test for the Ram nine will come this Saturday at 10 a.m. when they journey down to the farm to tangle bats with the Stanford Braves.

Returning lettermen are George Zucca, who was shifted from second base to shortstop; pitchers Dave Tivio, Ron Coburn, and Jerry Pandolfi; catcher John Ballestrasse; outfielders Charles Shyler, Ron Krueger, and Fred Dueming; first baseman Fred Greenberg, who also was one of the mainstays on the Ram's championship basketball team.

Breaking in on the Ram nine for the first season and eagerly awaiting the chance to remove the veterans from their starting positions are second basemen Ron Dito, Steve Maxoutopolous, Lou Jacobs and Fred Quinn, first basemen Ron Ersepkl and Rich Kalor; catchers Tom James and Henry Drews; and outfielders Les Grimes, Bernie Kelly, Bob Bayles and Charly Clausen.

The 1952 Conference schedule appears below:

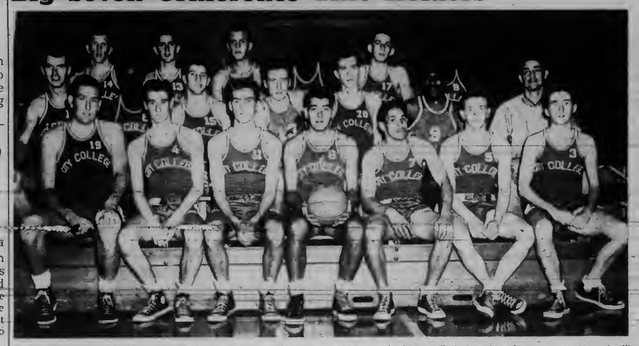
Team Points For Boxing Title

Boxing Coach Roy Diederichsen was talking in the men's gymnasium and if those on the floor had quieteed down a little, you could have heard him talk about his perennial Big Seven champs.

"Of course we don't have the depth that we've had in the past, but in four remaining lettermen, we have the nucleus of a good squad," the coach said. "With a few breaks in the right directions and a little help from the students, we could have a good year."



Diederichsen indicated that he would probably build the Ram team around Elmo Ellis, .145; Ted Floyd, 170; George Perry, 160; and Bill Ninnis, 125.

Ellis, a newcomer from Commerce High, is the 1951 unbeaten A.A.U. Welterweight Golden Gloves champ who could prove to be the Rams' leading point getter. Ellis hits very well with both hands and might come along fast enough to make a big noise come the Olympic Game tryouts next month in Sacramento.

Floyd, Perry and Ninnis are all 1951 intramurals champs trying again in a higher bracket. In the past Diederichsen has had a string of 20 fighters working for the Rams, but this year only 12 would-be champions have stated their respective interest in boxing.

The Rams, NCJCC champs for three years running and the National Junior College runner-up to Pasadena two years ago, will feature bouts with two-year college and university freshmen squads throughout the Bay area.

Big Seven Conference Title Holders

OFF TO VJSALIA TODAY, and possibly the California Junior College Basketball crown, are the conference chops pictured above. They take to Visalia a 19-4 season record and a 118-26 five year showing compiled under Coach Ralph Hillsmon. A troveling squad of ten will depart this afternoon at 1:30 and will play the winner in the Metropolitan League of Los Angeles. In all probability, the Rams will meet Long Beach, whom the Rams beat, 55-43, at Modesto.—Photo by Vipiona.

Eligibility

Student Loses Year Competing Or Not

All students planning to waive participating in inter-collegiate athletics in order to save a year of eligibility are misinformed, football and track Coach Roy Burkhead announced recently.

Athletes should participate in their respective sports, Coach Burkhead said, in order to acquire all experience and competition possible.

According to two-year college conference rules, any student who registers in ANY college will lose a year of eligibility whether or not he participates in athletics.

Any student who has a problem concerning his eligibility status should see any of the coaching staff at the men's gymnasium, Burkhead added.

Greenberg And Nieman Lead In Team Scoring

According to statistics, compiled by The Guardsman, Dick Greenberg led the '51-'52 basketball team in conference and season scoring.

The all-conference candidate scored 322 points with 134 field goals and 54 free throws. The two totals combined lead over Fred Nieman, who scored 248 points on 107 field goals and 34 free throws. The two totals combined almost equaled half of the team's 1227 points scored this season.

In conference play, the locals posted a 9-3 record.

Three Rams Nab Berths On 1952 All—Conference Selections

Continuing an annual affair, The Guardsmen sports Staff polled the Big Seven Conference's sports editors and came up with an all-conference team.

The team is a selection of outstanding players rather than positions. This allowed for a freedom of selection and made the balloting more accurate.

The selections placed Dick Greenberg, the Ram's leading scorer with 322 points, on first string. Fred Niemann and Mario Lombardi landed on the second team. Greenberg won his second year on the conference first place team, and Lombardi improved his honorable mention selection of last year.

Erv Bonner of San Mateo was chosen as the league's outstanding all-around player. Nieman was selected as the outstanding defensive player and, Nat Bates, who led the scoring with a 19 point average, was the outstanding offensive player.

Intramural Basketball Program Next Week; Signups Due In Today

The deadline for signing up for basketball, the first sport on the Spring intramural program is today, March 5, and applications can be procured down at the men's gymnasium for the signup in the annual Intramural Basketball Tournament.

Today is also the deadline for entering names of teams and their members, Tom Wilson, director of intramural sports, announced.

The tournament will start within the next week and the teams will be paired off against one another and will play from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. every day except Fridays.

Everyone is eligible to participate in the tournament except those players who have won a letter in basketball either with the varsity or junior varsity here. A trophy will be presented to the winning team and medals will be presented to each of the players from the winning team. The runners-up to the champions will receive belt buckles made of gold.

Golf Squad Opens Against Gators

Led by four returning veterans, the City College golf team will swing into action for its final match on Friday, March 21, against San Francisco State at the Harding Links.

Coach Ralph Hillsman will depend on last year's veterans, Dick Kucich, Stan Reinfeld, Andy Barbera, and Ken Keep, to give the Gators a busy afternoon while newcomers Chuck Payne, Howard Wynn and Barry Clare will bolster the Ram cause.

At the present time the golfers are practicing at the Olympic Club green and at Harding, and, according to Coach Hillsman, "We'll have a good squad this season, and with a little more practice we will be tough to beat."

Track Team Faces U.S.F. Saturday

What promises to be the Rams' best track and field season in the past decade got underway last week and for all intents and purposes it could turn into a complete City College romp for a bunch of determined hilltoppers, as they start their season this Saturday, March 8, against San Mateo and the U. S. F. varsity.

Coach Roy Burkhead, the transplanted football coach making like Jess Hill of U. S. C. with a two-sport job, looks as though he might have Ron Bauer, San Francisco's big 1950 Mile high school ace, and C. C. S. F.'s 1951 disappointment, in shape and ready to run his best races.

With Bauer in shape, there isn't a two year college trackman in the state who can beat the former Washington High speedster. Along with Bauer, Burkhead is depending upon Vern Chambers, the low and high hurdler, who was beaten by a yard and finished third in last year's State Junior College finals.

Tennis Team Faces Sacramento In Opener

City College's racket men will open their season this Friday against Sacramento in a Big Seven Conference game at Golden Gate Park.

With only one returning veteran from last year's squad, fourth-seeded Monroe Kaplan, Coach Roy Diederichsen places his hopes on four promising new-comers.

While they have not yet been seeded, the Mays brothers, Bob and Don from Oakland Tech, Sandy Behrman from Lowell, and John Conanich from Balboa are expected to pace the 14 man squad.

Along with the Big Seven Conference matches, Diederichsen is trying to get matches slated with the Junior Varsity Squads of U. C., Stanford, and San Jose State.

Two Students Win Prizes In Merchandising Convention

City College students won two out of three prizes awarded at the statewide convention of the Distributive Education Clubs of California last month.

First prize in a speech contest went to Beverly Gracia. Her topic was Selling Is A Heavenly Career. She was presented with a watch by the San Francisco Sales Executives Association.

Joyce Holbrook also received a first prize watch from the Bank of America for her merchandising manual concerning fabrics which was on display during the convention. Both are students in Virginia Gohn's merchandising class here.

The convention began with registration in the lobby of the Bellevue Hotel. The opening meeting was held in the auditorium of The Emporium.

At the meeting, a message from Distributive Education Alumnus was given by former City College student, Walter Salmon, now a buyer for Macy's Men's Shop. The meeting was followed by committee meetings.

The General Session began Saturday morning in the auditorium of The Emporium. It was headed by Norman Bendinger, of Long Beach City College. A report of the DEC convention in Tulsa, Oklahoma in 1951 was given by Hilde Lange, Historian of the DEC, and a City College student.

A business meeting included election of officers, and an executive meeting for new officers, followed by tours conducted through 13 of San Francisco's leading retail stores. That evening a banquet was held at the Mark Hopkins Hotel and the awards were given.

Entertainment for the banquet was provided for by John B. Leith, Mission High School instructor, in the form of 20 variety acts. The convention ended with a dance at the Mark Hopkins with music by Art Taylor's Orchestra.

During the convention a photographic display of successful graduate students of City College was presented. Helping in the organization of this display were Dick McCarthy, Patt Farrah, and Benita White.

Miss Gohn reported that the total number of students registered at the convention was 140. Sponsors were also present.

Council Votes On Estimated $18,800 AS Spring Budget

The Student Council last week began the difficult task of whittling down the $18,810 estimated Spring, '51 budget to $12,750 covered by anticipated income.

Co-educational activities as a whole were voted $4,020, a cut of over $700 from its budget request.

Only two activities received more than their estimates: the sophomore class and the campus police.

Discussion was opened also on the second budget group, miscellaneous, which embraces chiefly administrative operations.

Anticipated income, as outlined by Finance Chairman Norm Heiss, includes the Ramporium, Student Store, $3,500; AS membership dues, $6,500; reserve fund, $650; vending machines, $400; drama, $300; Mardi Gras, $150; Forum, $300; Sophomore Formal, $300; basketball, $170; California Junior College Student Government Conference, $650; and baseball, $30.

Finance committee members working on the budget requests include, in addition to Heiss, Joe Scafidi, John Boragno, Mike Franzone, Don Motenl, Ann Steward, Wilma Wright, Lou Shepard, and AS President Bob Smirle.

In addition to considering budget requests, the council also confirmed cabinet appointments for the Associated Women Students, Associated Men Students, Freshman class and Sophomore class.

Jim Cress, who resigned his position as finance chairman earlier in the semester, was appointed Information Service Chairman by Smirle. Bart Dempster resigned as President of the Club Activities Board to become publicity chairman.

Marilyn Jacobs and Roger Jones were appointed to the agenda committee.

Students who have business to present before the council are urged by Smirle to notify the agenda committee in the student office between 11 a.m. and 12 noon each Tuesday and Thursday so that they may be placed on the council agenda in time for its 12 o'clock meeting.

Fraternities, Sororities Elect Officers For Spring Semester

By Helen Tsingarris

Campus clubs, organizations, fraternities and sororities lost no time in electing officers and scheduling a full social program as the Spring semester moved into its third week.

Kappa Rho announced its new officers: Paul Bixel, president; Frank Loughlan, vice-president, and Gil Wright, secretary-treasurer. They plan a general get-together March 10.

Theta Tau's new officers: Marilyn Jacobs, president; Jana Neill, recording secretary; Diane Bates, treasurer; and Marlene Vilas, sergeant-at-arms are working on a full social calendar.

Miss Jacobs is also named as president of the Inter-Sorority Council.

Phi Beta Rho announced that their first affair will be held at the Western Women's Club, March 16. New officers elected are Loretta Tighe, president; Nancy Provance, vice-president; June Hilson, corresponding secretary; Nancy Nagle, treasurer; Barbara Kelley, recording secretary, and Pat Farrah, historian.

The Hillel Foundation's plans activities in conjunction with the Hillel groups at Stanford, San Jose State and University of California. The new officers are Andy Schneider, president; Lee Bart, vice-president; Barbara Siegal, secretary, and Ron Zimmerman, publicity chairman.

Alpha Lambda Chi's first affair will be a tea for the rushees at the home of Shirlee Metcalf, Friday night. Their officers include Carol Rosenblatt, president; Marge Pedersen, vice-president; Marty Pezner, treasurer, and Barbara Scott, recording secretary.

In addition to social events, fraternities and sororities have offered to perform services for the college.

Kappa Rho has offered to paint white lines on the parking lot as well as red zones.

Alpha Phi Epsilon and Delta Sigma Tau will supervise cleanliness of the student lounge. Delta Psi, which in the past has offered services to the library, will continue to do so, and will also serve refreshments for college productions.

New officers of the Newman Club include Chas. Elliot, president; Jack McCartney, vice-president; Ted Kast, treasurer; Ed Gzide, recording secretary; Joyce Cereghino, corresponding secretary; Gus Chofre, sergeant-at-arms, and Bert Kenny, publicity chairman. The second meeting will be held tonight at Saint Emydius' Hall.

Jim Cress, Alpha Sigma Delta, and Ann Markum, a Chi Omega at the University of Colorado, are planning a September wedding. Cress is this semester's Information Service chairman.

The first Delta Psi affair was held last Sunday at the Mark Hopkins Hotel. New officers were also announced by the sorority: Eleanor Lange, president; Joan Spencer, vice-president; Joelle Ramonte and Nina Turcich, secretaries; Diane Clark and Josephine Grannucci, treasurers; Gloria Rotando, pledge mistress; Marilyn Powell, sergeant-at-arms, and Joanne Middleton, historian.

News for this column may be left in The Guardsman office in Building 4.

Guardsman Schedules 13 More Issues

Scheduled publication dates for The Guardsman during the spring semester as announced last week by Editor Robert Rezak are as follows: March 12, 19, and 26; April 2, 16, 23, and 30; May 7, 14, 21, and 28; June 4, and 11.

Publication of The Guardsman, which is the official newspaper of the Associated Students of City College, is part of the journalism curriculum and courses concerned with its publication are listed in the college catalog.

New Scholarship Applications Due By March 17

Applications for the three class-of-'51 scholarships of $50 each should be submitted before Monday, March 17, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, declared last week.

Applications for men students should be submitted to Louis Batmale, acting dean of men. Women students submit their applications to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

The scholarships, first of their type offered at the college, were collected by popular subscription from members of the 1951 graduating class.

A student must have completed at least 15 units of work and be planning to further his education, to be eligible for the scholarship, Marsh said.

Each applicant has a personal interview with the scholarship committee. Members of the committee are Marsh, who is chairman, Miss Dougherty, Batmale, and Maurice Power of the English department.

Results of the applications should be known a week or 10 days after the interviews are completed, Marsh declared.

Information regarding other scholarships given at the college can be obtained from Dean Dougherty in Building 2.

AS Membership Near 1000 Mark

Associated Student membership totaled 920 last week, according to figures released by AS Membership Chairman, Larry Elizarde.

Dues from the sales of membership cards up to last week totaled $4,600, where as the final total for the Spring semester of 1951 was $6,127. Elizarde declared that he had "high hopes to surpass the record set in the sale of 1951 cards."

More than 600 students joined the Association during the registration for this semester as compared to but 437 during the same period in 1951.

Students may purchase the $5 membership card at the Ramporium, Student Store, or in the bank in the main building, Elizarde added.

In order to become a member of any campus organization students must be members of the Associated Students, according to the AS constitution.

Parade Up Ocean Avenue Opens May Mardi Gras Celebration

New Orleans was reported recovering from its annual Mardi Gras last week. But here, the Associated Men Student-sponsored celebration when the campus takes on a carnival atmosphere is currently in the planning stages.

AMS President Stan Fletcher said last week that the celebration, scheduled May 16, would be preceded by a float parade up Ocean Avenue, with trophies to be awarded for the best float.

Competition in this line, Fletcher added, will be afforded by the Armed Forces who have already signified a desire to participate.

Sandy Spillman, KPIX special events director, has arranged to televise movies of the affair which will be filmed by the college photography department.

Len Lundgren, Cathy Garner, Don Mollner, Don Armbruster, Yee Young, Andy Schneider, Loretta Tighe, Nancy Stelling, George Stockton, Jim Cress, Mario Lombardi, Larry Elizarde, and Virgil Cowart will work with Fletcher on the event.

Shall We Dance?

Some students wonder if there is any significance in the theme and site of last Friday night's faculty dance. The theme: Leap Year. The place: Hunters Point.

Of Human Interest . . .

Honor scrolls listing names of donors in last semester's blood drive will be posted on campus this week according to Mary Louise Carl, director of the drive.

Miss Carl, who received a service key award as the spirit behind the campaign, and one who won't let illness prevent her from completing the job, sends this announcement from a hospital bed where she reportedly will be convalescing for the next four weeks.

Street Scene

Ingenious means of transportation found widespread use during the brief, but crippling Muni Railway strike. Seen vigorously peddling an English racing bike was a young coed garbed in red plaid pedal pushers.

Benefit Show

Rally commissioners Paul Bixel and Stokely Wilson hope their plans materialize for a gigantic star-studded benefiet show featuring top professional entertainment. If so, tickets would be sold at the college, USF, and S. F. State, with all proceeds going to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund.

Dual Control

"So you think you've had a bad time parking your car in the parking lot," asks a student. "You should see the students in the adult driver training safety course trying to park during one of the night sessions."

The west campus parking lot, it seems, is used as a driver training area.

Safety Pin

Quote of the week comes from an instructor here who advised his students during the recent air alert drill that "the safest place on the west campus is the middle of the lawn. These paper mache huts would collapse at the drop of a pin."

Star-Gazing

Sure signs of spring: Since January 3 a total of 1,315 persons have attended lectures on the moon and stars in the college planetarium where Dr. Louis Berman lectures on the heavenly bodies (in the celestial universe, it says here).

Crackdown Waged On Campus Traffic

new seven men that Chief Gaffey has assigned should help us quite a lot.

"Once we can get these parking regulations into effect," he continued, "and only students with permits coming into the parking grounds, we should be set for the remainder of the semester."

Construction work currently taking place on Ocean and on Phelan Avenues, together with last month's Municipal Railway strike had a profound effect upon the normal campus traffic flow and many drivers have violated parking regulations, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, declared.

But henceforth, he said, all regulations will be strictly enforced.

"A state law allows the colleges to make their own rules concerning parking," Anderson observed, "and the drivers who use the campus parking facilities are expected to follow the regulations set up by this college.

"Drivers must remember that the narrow roads are to be used as pedestrian walkways as well as driveways," he said.

Anderson said that in the future a strict 10 miles per hour speed limit (which the Municipal Railway No. 36 Miraloma bus now observes when driving about the campus) may be enforced.

Associated Student members who present both AS membership card and automobile registration certificates may receive parking permits, entitling them to park on the west campus, from Batmale in Building 2 as long as the supply lasts.

Beginning March 10, all cars on the west campus without a parking permit (signified by a green sticker on the lower left-hand corner of windshields) will receive traffic citations from campus police, Batmale said.

Anderson said that construction work on Phelan Avenue would begin "sometime this year."

The street is expected to be widened from Ocean Avenue to Flood Street. Possibly some of the smaller streets in the same vicinity will be widened to accommodate the increase in traffic as evidenced here last week, Anderson said.

Library Course Now Offers Clerical Work

Applications are still being accepted for students interested in a new clerical library experience course being offered for the first time at the college.

This two unit course is designed for students who are interested in praetical experience and feel they are suited for the work, Katharine Pedley of the college library staff said.

The four hours a week are by arrangement and the course it not limited to business majors.

Rising Opera Star, 18, Wins Six Awards

By Nini Algettinger

Eighteen-year-old Ronald Dutro of Oakland, though a serious voice student for only one year and a half, already has to his credit three vocal scholarships and three first place awards in television talent shows.

The three scholarships, won in city-wide competition, were three-month grants for summer session work at the University of California, where Dutro studied under Maurice Dean and Mrs. Slyvia Garrison.

Television, a medium which Dutro feels lends itself so easily to vocal expression that he is considering a career in the field, has singled him out for three honors. Budda Show awarded him a watch and $200. The Del Courtney Show honored him twice—both times with a watch. He has also appeared on "Your Show."

Dutro has become used to singing for an audience. He can recall a time when the cold impersonal steel of a microphone was more reassuring to him than a live audience with its varying moods.

Now enrolled in Opera Workshop under Flossita Badger, Dutro received impetus for his musical career way back when he was a student at Durant Grammar School in Oakland. A sensitive ten-year-old, he received a rebuff from the director of the school glee club. "You'll never be able to sing a note," she told him. From that day, he has been determined to "show her."

Since he first became interested in a vocal career, Dutro has studied with Nino Comel, who coached such famous stars as Lauritz Melchior, Nelson Eddy and Claramae Turner. At the present time, in addition to his work with the Opera Workshop on Monday and Thursday evenings, he takes lessons from Edna Fisher, popular television star, and from maestro Gastione Usigli. He also sings with the Pacific Civic Opera Company in Berkeley.

Dutro has mastered German, French and Italian and can sing equally well in all three languages. He now is concentrating on Cavalleria Rusticana by Masengni.

With his husky build, black hair and brown eyes, Dutro looks much like a youthful Mario Lanza.

He recalls one time that he was mistaken for the well-known singing star. It occurred at a local movie house showing The Great Caruso with Lanza in the title role. In the course of the movie a woman came up to him to ask if he were Lanza. She was disappointed, however, to find that, though he greatly resembles the vocalist, he was not even distantly related.

Come To Order Bows Over KPIX

COME TO ORDER, a free credit course, produced by the college and KPIX, made its initial debut last Thursday over Channel 5 at 1:30 p. m. Left to right are Bev Pasquoletti, technicol director; Henry Leff, producer; Lloyd Luckman, moderator, and Emmet Smith, art director.—S.F. Shopping News.

Come to Order, a 15-week television series on parliamentary procedure prepared specifically for home consumption, made its bow last Thursday over Channel 5, KPIX.

Produced by the college as a free correspondence course for community organizations and satisfy a need for better understanding of the mechapics of democracy in action, the initial program was termed a "success" by both participants and viewers.

Lloyd Luckmann, college coordinator, division of instruction, serves as the show's moderator. The production staff includes Henry Leff, producer; Bev Pasqualetti, technical director; Ken Molino, student assistant director; and Emmet Smith, art director.

Actual college credit of one unit is given to those who apply for enrollment in the course and meet its requirements, according to F. Grant Marsh, college coordinator of student welfare.

A post card to the college marked "Attention Radio TV" and including name and address are only requirements for enrollment, Marsh said.

At the end of the series, he said, a grade will be mailed to the viewer who completes assignments which are comparable to those of a regular correspondence course.

Police Check Campus Traffic, Warn On Excessive Speeding

By Sam Blythe

Full control over the tangled campus parking situation is now in effect, Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement adviser here, declared last week.

The full force of 15 campus policemen is now at work, Fitzgerald said. For the first part of the semester, the campus police force was at less than half strength. Last week, Fitzgerald continued, eight new officers were sworn in.

The officers work on staggered shifts. They control traffic at the entrance and exit gates and patrol the campus parking places in order to check for violations, Fitzgerald explained.

The campus police, he said, have been given full right by the San Francisco Police Department to issue traffic and parking citations to violators of the law.

Students without parking permits will not be admitted to the parking area, Fitzgerald warned, and those students who habitually disregard the parking rules will be apt to have their permits revoked.

"We are going to have to crack down on the excessive speeding that takes place on the campus," Fitzgerald said. "The present speed limit is 15 miles per hour. Officers will be instructed to issue citations to offenders of this limit."

These offenders, Fitzgerald declared, will pay their fines in the Hall of Justice.

It is quite possible, Fitzgerald said, that the speed limit will be reduced to 10 miles per hour. If this is the case, speed limit signs will be posted throughout the campus grounds.

"The consideration of everyone concerned has brought attention to this problem," Fitzgerald said. "The faculty, the Student Council, and The Guardsman have worked together to bring the situation to a near-satisfactory end."

Bay Area Colleges To Debate Welfare Legislation Here

The college debating team and seven Bay Area colleges participate tomorrow night in a debate here, Michael Griffin, director, announced last week.

The subject of the debate is Welfare legislation in California and its administration at a state or a county level.

The debate is the fourth in a series that is being held in colleges throughout the Bay Area, and the next is slated for St. Mary's College, Griffin declared.

Colleges that will be represented here include the University of California, Stanford University, San Jose State College, Santa Clara, St. Mary's, and San Francisco State.

Students from the college who will participate in the debate tomorrow night are Bart Dempster, Duane Belcher, Bill Radcliff, Jon Bledsoe, Jean Short, Al Gorwitz, Paul Bixel and Boh Smirle.

Program Change Is Still Permitted

Program changes may still be made if there is a good reason for doing so, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

The actual deadline for changing programs was February 29, Marsh said, but in instances where a student finds he must be elsewhere at the time of his class, such as a standing appointment or a change in working hours, changes will be made.

A change of program is obtained at the counselor's office. This must be signed by the department chairman of the class that the student is planning to drop, and by the chairman of the class that the student is planning to add.

The student should then present his card to Marsh, who will judge the worthiness of the reason for the last change.

Marsh emphasized that only vital changes will be made.

Desert Song On Workshop Schedule

Two major Opera Workshop productions this semester, an Opera Showcase program, and Sigmund Romberg's light opera, The Desert Song, were announced yesterday by Flossita Badger, workshop director.

Tryouts are scheduled for Thursday, March 20 from 2 to 4 p.m. in the auditorium. Singers are asked to bring a song of the light opera type, Miss Badger said. Readings for speaking parts will be provided.

"We are most anxious to open tryouts to all students," Miss Badger commented, "and there are some excellent comedy roles in addition to openings for dance and chorus parts as well as for students who would like to participate in a college-wide production."

Dates for both productions have not been officially scheduled, but Miss Badger believes the showcase program will be held the latter part of April, and the light opera the early part of June.

Opera Showcase was first presented in the Spring of 1950 and admission was by invitation only, as will be the case this year.

Clubs To Meet In Friday College Hour

Clubs will meet this Friday in the regularly assigned rooms for that purpose which were published in The Guardsman last week, Louis Batmale, acting dean of men, announced recently.

A scheduled Inter Fraternity danee that had been originally listed for Saturday, March 15, has been postponed until Friday, April 4.

A rally to highlight the Ram basketball team will be held Friday, March 21, during regular college hour.

Authorization For Roadway Requested

Authorization for the paving of gate number two, the roadway off Phelan Avenue adjacent to Building 1, has been requested by college authorities, President Louis G. Conlan announced yesterday.

The roadway, which was opened to accommodate increased traffic and which is now one of the two entrances to the west campus, has become a dangerous and unpleasant driveway.

Weather permitting, the road will be filled in, widened and eventually paved, President Conlan added. The city would pay all the construction costs.

Six Semester Curb Put On Sports, Activities

By Nini Algettinger

Eligibility for participation in student activities will be denied after six semesters of attendance at the college, according to a special announcement from President Louis G. Conlan.

The context of the announcement, sent to Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, was as follows:

"Just recently the California State Junior College Association adopted a regulation that terminates eligibility for athletic competition after six semesters of attendance.

"In the future that regulation will apply not only to athletes at City College of San Francisco but will be extended to all other activities sponsored by the College.

"A student who takes a leave of absence after six weeks of attendance will be considered to have attended during that semester."

President Conlan pointed out that it was "not practical" to have students continue at the college for seven and eight semesters. The eligibility rule has been applied to athletes in the past, he said, and has been found quite "reasonable." However, it will not be applied to those currently holding offices this semester.

Students who attend the college for the regular four semesters are often excluded from the opportunity of running for office and participating in many student activities, President Conlan explained.

The six semester limit was adopted because junior colleges offer an Associate in Arts degree after four semesters.

The fifth semester was allowed for students who are satisfying junior standing requirements for higher institutions. The sixth semester was added to provide leeway for students who were making up work.

The new ruling will be enforced as of the coming semester, Dean Batmale said, in advising all students who intend to run for offices in student government for the fall semester to keep this ruling in mind.

Student Council members were stunned when the announcement was read by Associated Student President Bob Smirle. Some grumbling arose from students who have attended the college for more than four semesters, but the general opinion was one of agreement.

Noreen Duryea 'Guest' In Play Opening Tonight

An 8:30 curtain rises on the Drama Club's first production of the semester, Guest In the House, tonight in the Little Theater with Noreen Duryea in the title role.

Admission is one dollar. Associated Student members will be admitted for fifty cents.

Two additional performances are slated for tomorrow, March 13, and Friday, March 14, he declared.

Tickets may be obtained at the bank or at the Ramporium, student store.

Major roles will be assumed by Ed Magland, who plays the part of the illustrator Douglas Proctor; Dawn Kidd as Ann Proctor, the wife; Connie Connor as Aunt Martha; Beverly Bowling as Lee Proctor; Stan Rublowsky as Dan Proctor.

Beverly Nadltz and Anne Morrow will alternate as Miriam Blake, the model.

Ausma Ozols as Hilda, the maid; Jerry O'Connor as the Reverend Dr. Shaw; Anne Ostrom as Mrs. Dow, and Barbara Murdock as Miss Rhodes complete the cast.

The play was written by Hagar Wilde and Dale Eunson and deals with the undermining influence exerted by Evelyn Heath while visiting the Proctors.

Her accusation of Douglas Proctor of deserting his wife for the model usurps the smooth-running household into a state of confusion. Evelyn's terror of birds, her heart trouble, and her incessant playing of Liszt's Liebestraum prompts the rest of the household to desperate action, according to Michael Griffin, who directs the production.

"A full length portrait of the model, Miriam Blake, was done for use in the play by an art student here at the college," William Eckert, of the art department, revealed.

To add to the realism of the play, wind effects will be supplied by means of a recording to be played over a loud-speaker setup during the play, according to Miss Bowling.

Materials Approved For New Building

Allocation of materials for the construction of the new college classroom building on the east side of Phelan Avenue near Ocean Avenue has been approved, President Louis G. Conlan revealed last week.

Bids will be sent out within two or three weeks, and actual construction of the proposed classroom-library building is expected to begin following the excavation sometime in June, President Conlan declared.

The building is expected to be completed before the 1954 deadline when the college must relinquish its west campus property to the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission for the construction of a city reservoir.

'Harry' Loses Head In Campus 'Invasion'

By Claire Anderson

The west campus was "invaded" by "Harry," a 14-foot-tall monster last week, which at the time was missing one (1) head. Lying on his back, the monster made no comment when kicked by a couple of curious students.

A Guardsman reporter, assigned to investigate reports of the unidentified freak, entered the Flower Shop in Building 5 (where the monster had chosen to (?) lie), to consult a reliable source. She finally was given this explanation:

The creature, a plaster of Paris replica of King Football, is the property of the Associated Students, modeled for a float which would have been in a football parade last semester, but which was never finished because of lack of student help.

He is made of a wooden frame which was placed papier mache and a thick wire cast. Then it was covered with a mixture of plaster of Paris and vermiculite to make it hard, strong and relatively light (headed?).

The job of creating "Headless Harry," as one curious spectator called him, was given to the personnel in the Flower Shop because of past experience in working with similar projects for floral decorations in flower shops, John Lawrence, instructor, said.

Headless Harry was moved from his storage spot in the back room of the Flower Shop to his present resting place by Lawrence, who decided he needed the room which Harry was occupying for purposes of his own.

He had previously asked where Harry could be stored until he was needed again. Lawrence was told then that Building 8 would be the most favorable spot.

The days and months whisked by. No one did anything to move Harry from the Flower Shop.

Lawrence finally proceeded to take matters into his own hands to create action to get Harry moved. Bright and early one morning last week, Harry was lifted from his cozy houdoir and was dumped on the cold, green grass of the west campus.

Whether Lawrence succeeded in creating action for his purpose, he created plenty of curiosity and a minimum of commotion in and about the west campus.

College Library Doesn't Exist For 97 Per Cent Of Students

A SPOKESMAN for the college library has revealed a startling fact.

At least 97 per cent of students attending this college do not know where the campus library is located, much less that one actually does exist here for their use as a valuable and convenient source of information. This announcement most likely will not come as a surprise to instructors who come in contact with a diverse assortment of assignments turned in by students, some of which is exceptional in quality. Oftentimes, however, such work shows ... an evident lack of sound preparation which the college library can and does provide with minimum effort on the part of students if they arrange their time to take advantage of this service.

Realization of this service provided by a college library, or by any library for that matter, is of especial significance this week as libraries throughout the State join in observance of California Library Week, March 10-16. Purpose of the week is to draw attention to the value of libraries as the vast storehouses of information and to stimulate their use.

Students here have unrestricted access to book stacks, an unusual privilege in a large college library, and one that is of utmost advantage to students intent on getting the most out of a free college education.

To this group the library facilities are limitless in fulfilling those ends. The other 97 per cent likewise has something to gain even if its familiarity with the library is merely by spending a few free hours there investigating and probing through its extensive supply of literature. These would be hours well spent.

Drama Production Merits Support

THE college's drama department opens a three-night stand tonight with the performance of Wilde and Eunson's Guest In The House, psychological thriller of some note. Performance of a major production this early in the semester, we believe, is indeed an ambitious undertaking for any group and it justly merits the widespread support of the campus.

Drama department productions have always been well received here both in attendance and by critical evaluation. The group is a hard working organization which spends considerable time and effort in providing entertainment of high artistic caliber at popular admission prices.

Its only real reward, unmistakably, would be in the generous response it deserves at the box office.

Shortage of Associated Student funds necessitates curtailment of several regularly planned issues of this newspaper this semester. The edition scheduled for distribution next Wednesday is one of four issues that has been cut. Publication will be resumed the following week, March 26.

Student Waitresses Now Wear Leis From Hawaiian Gardens

STUDENTS enjoying mid-morning snacks at the cafeteria last week were surprised to find the waitresses wearing fragrant carnation leis over their crisp red and white check uniforms.

The leis had been flown to San Francisco from the Hawaiian Islands and brought to the home of Hotel and Restaurant Division instructor Nina Tucker by a friend. Miss Tucker, finding the beautiful leis much too numerous to be preserved, thoughtfully gave them to her waitress students.

Cafeteria Style . . .

Modern colleges are being run according to the "cafeteria system," one instructor told his class recently. Under the present custom of electives, he said, students merely "take a little bit of this and little bit of that" and wind up educated on what they choose.

Horses and 'Copters . . .

Horses of the leisurely nineteenth century feared the "horseless carriage." But their descendants—in this modern age of more rapid transportation—have a new problem to cope with, or so it is related by Carol Dawson, a student here.

She was riding along the ocean beach while soldiers from a nearby training camp were carrying on maneuvers. Suddenly her usually calm horse reared and wheeled — at the sight of a modern helicopter slowly landing near him.

He may have become adjusted to the gradual streamlining of his forefathers' "horseless carriage," but this glass-walled, bug-like vehicle with its long tapered tail and revolving propeller was decidedly more than he could handle.

He has never forgotten this meeting with the strange airborne creature, for now, so the story goes, he even trembles at the distant buzz of an airliner high in the atmosphere.

Romance — An Activity?

A student asked one of the communications instructors here if romance languages were languages of love. The instructor replied that this had to be classified with extra-curricular activities.

Roofs Over No-one . . .

With the west campus arcade reroofed, the weather is beautiful until after everyone has left—then it rains. How will the students ever find out if the new roof is better than the old if this keeps up?

Woman Hater . . .

And then there was the college student who took part in a discussion concerning the misogonist without finding out that a misogonist is a woman-hater!

Pipe Dream . . .

Somebody's face is red, but really red. Last October a "reliable source" told The Guardsman that construction work then underway on Phelan Avenue meant finally that the busy thoroughfare would be widened to accommodate the heavy traffic load expected with the completion of City College Station.

After years of campaigning for a wider, safer Phelan Avenue, The Guardsman editorially shouted for joy at the announcement.

As it turned out, however, the construction work merely involved a pipe installation.

Forum Editor Appeals For More Student Writing

By Nini Algeltinger

Forum, the annual college literary magazine, issued yesterday a campus-wide request for material of all types —dramatic, historical and humorous articles, and poetry. Art—cartoons, drawings and photographs—also are needed.

Editor Duane Belcher, in a special interview, placed special emphasis on humor, explaining that for most college students this type of writing usually comes only with difficulty, and consequently Forum quite frequently lacks good, humorous material.

After reflecting on the content of past issues, Belcher pointed out that many contributions of college students are based on childhood experience, while the experienced veterans have produced a more mature form of fiction which "rings true" as a mirror of everyday life.

Forum often in the past has published political satires, Belcher recollected, adding that with 1952 being an election year, more material of this sort is to be expected.

Contributions to Forum are screened by an editorial staff which is composed, on the whole, of members of Forum Club. Manuscripts, which should be typewritten and double-spaced on 8½x11 inch paper, are not acknowledged nor returned, Belcher said.

The names are cut off, and numbers substituted so that the staff will be impartial in its judgment. Numerical values from one to five are assigned each contribution, and final selection is made on this basis, he explained.

Forum, since its first appearance in 1937, has been published each semester, and is now financially underwritten by the Associated Students.

Show Termed A Hit, Outdoes Kate And Cardini

By Al Guthertz

Through a maze of cameras, floodlights, booms and other paraphernalia peculiar to television, Come to Order, the new City College-KPIX co-produced education series, did just that last week.

Without benefit of plunging necklines or thundering horses' hoofs, and in direct competition with Kate Smith and Chef Cardini on opposition networks, the show was termed a "hit."

It made television history, too, in a way, as the first serious attempt on the Pacific Coast to unite the new medium and education, bringing free college study directly into the homes of a vast Bay Area audience.

As a course specifically designed to appeal to parent-teacher organizations, labor unions, religious groups and other self-governing community groups, who have expressed a desire for such knowledge, Come to Order deals primarily with parliamentary procedure.

The show's production staff, representing this college, is a relatively small, but enthusiastic and potent team which seems to have captured the real "feel" of television as an educational medium.

Lloyd Luckmann is the show's moderator-instructor, while production work is carried out by Henry Leff, producer; Bev Pasqualetti, technical director; and Ken Molino, student assistant producer.

An hour before last week's initial program, the first in the 15-week series of half-hour television correspondence courses offering free college credit, representatives from a host of local organizations assembled in KPIX's studios for a briefing.

Their job was to act as students and to give actual demonstrations, corresponding to lectures, for the home audience.

To those who viewed the telecast at home, the group resembled an ordinary class—much like a City College class, in fact — but behind the scenes cameras moved about the studio, figuring key positions.

Heavy lights and microphones were given a final check.

Voices shouted directions and equipment was adjusted for maximum effect.

Leff attempted to put the somewhat bewildered group at ease, while Luckmann hushed over his lecture.

The minute hand on the clock of the studio wall spun around quickly, and to the production staff, it appeared for a moment as though time was finally going to run out on the "rehearsal."

A nervous voice yelled out at last minute warning:

"You're not looking at the instructor, and you're not . . . Smile."

This was followed by a ripple of laughter from the class.

By this time, perspiration trickled down Luckmann's brow and another voice announced:

"Stand by . . . one minute."

There was a tense silence. A small red light on camera number one flashed on, and the show was on the air.

To Ezera Hunter, Roy Anderson, Larry McNally, Paul Priolo, Diane Perrine, Marilyn Vogel, and Matt Mirabello—City College students who are regular members of the TV class —attending a class in the calm and peace of the west campus, will just never be quite the same again.

LLOYD LUCKMAN, moderator on Come to Order, the college's new television program which made its debut over KPIX last week.

Rusted Cannon Stand Alone, Forgotten

By Bert Kenny

Along side the winding road leading to the rear of the college cafeteria stand two ancient cannon—erect but virtually forgotten in the maze of campus activity.

A shadow of mystery hangs over their origin, although it has been reported that the weapons were fired during the Civil War.

Late in 1947, those "war veterans" were sent to the college by San Francisco school authorities and were later mounted and placed at their present site. Well-rusted now, they symbolize an age almost as forgotten as they seem to be.

If resurrected to a more noticeable position, such as guardians of the college entrance on Ocean Avenue, when the new transit station is constructed, the pair could possibly "loom" a message of resistance to those enemies who threaten educational freedom.

• "It . . ."

Editor, The Guardsman:

Just a line to say that just the other day I happened to trot between Buildings 4 and 5 and saw "it!" What on earth it that monstrosity at rest on the lawn (?) there?

"IT" befuddles me. "IT" has set my nerves on edge. "IT" is a monster.

Every time I pass said "IT," my mind (?) snaps, crackles, and pops.

Have someone remove the thing, or the men in the white jackets will remove me.

Please, pretty please relieve my subconscious mind and tell me what it is.

Club Cavalcade: Sorority Sets Party Date

By Helen Tsingarris

The main event on the agenda for this week seems to be rushing by both sororities and fraternities.

Theta Tau's traditional luau follows its first affair which was held at the home of Marilyn Jacobs. The date is Thursday, April 3. Theta's are also holding their first joint meeting with the Phi Beta Deltas Sunday, April 27.

The second affair of Phi Beta Rho will be held at the Fox Hostess House, the date to be announced.

A black and white paddle which stands about six feet high was presented to the Phi Beta Deltas by their pledge class of Fall '51.

The first affair of the Zeta Chis will be held at the home of Odette Trouillet, Sunday, March 16. A joint meeting with the Phi Beta Deltas will be held tonight at Louise Gerber's home. Zeta Chi also announced new officers: Joanna Smith, president; Barbara McAuley, vice-president; Odette Trouillet, corresponding secretary; Nancy Boblitt, recording secretary; Miss Gerber, treasurer; and Lois English, pledge mistress.

The first smoker of Alpha Sigma Delta was held last Sunday for the purpose of obtaining new members. New officers include Dick Gummeringer, president; Don Monteleone, vice-president; Jim Jurik, treasurer; and Al Smirthwaite, pledge master.

A Chinese dinner will be the second affair to be held by Kappa Phi at the home of Helen Cassimus, Thursday, March 20.

Forum Club will hold its first discussion this Friday, March 14. The subject will be, 'The Small Colleges versus the Large University. Speakers include Charles Osbourne and Don Powell.

A field trip to Pescadero Beach is being planned by the Pick and Hammer Society for Sunday, March 16. Meetings are held on the first Saturday of every month.

The Christian Fellowship Club will hold their first meeting Friday, March 14, in Room 200 of the main building to discuss future plans.

The Lutheran Club announced their first meeting was held March 5 during college hour. The club which is part of the international Gamma Delta Society, had Reverend Donald Deffner from the Chaple at the University of California presiding.

Officers of Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity were recently announced as follows: Don Anderson, president; George Korhay, vice-president; Terry Carroll, secretary; Frank Terranova, treasurer; Joe Herren, historian; Len Lundgren, sergeant-at-arms; and last, but not least, Norm McNamara, pledge master. A joint meeting with the Kappa Phi was held on March 5 at the home of Len Lundgren.

Le Cercle Francais also announced new officers: Lee Romashko, president; Luz Sanz, secretary-treasurer; and Camilla Slack, Club Activities Board representative. The first meeting will be held tonight at the Chez Cam Slack in Park Merced.

A very active club on the campus is the Chinese Students Club. Already they have had their very successful Freshmen Reception, February 29, at the New Recreation Center.

New officers include Wilbur Lai, president; Charlotte Lee, vice-president; Edison Chan, treasurer; Tina Young, recording secretary; Lola Lee and Larry Young, social chairmen; Willie Lee, publicity chairman; and Bertha Lum, reporter.

Cagers Place Third In Visalia Tourney

By Don Stephens

VISALIA, CALIF., March 8—Refusing to wither under a heartbreaking loss on the preceeding evening, Coach Ralph Hillman's Rams, tonight led from the tip-off to the final buzzer to post a 67-60 victory over Fullerton Junior College and, thus, gain third place in the California Junior College Championships.

After defeating Long Beach City College, 58-45, Thursday night, the locals fell off their shooting mark to lose to the host team, College of Sequoia, 51-49, who lost to Ventura Junior College, 81-74, in the finals tonight.

A crowd pleaser, because of their smooth, hustling style of play, Hillman's team bounced back with a 60 per cent shooting performance against Fullerton.

Behind 13-5 in the first quarter of the Sequoia game, the Rams, led by unanimous all-tourney choice, Dick Greenberg, erased the deficit to tie the score 22-22 at the half.

In the succeeding two periods the lead changed hands eight times, and with eight minutes to go, City College pulled ahead on field goals by Bob Bondanza, Mario Lombardi, and Fred Nieman, to lead 47-41.

But guard Buster Burges along with all-tourney forward Lyn Tucker, potted six consecutive points to tie the score with five minutes remaining.

However, Ike Walker put the locals ahead on a foul shot. Then with four minutes left Tony Nunes sank a 25 footer and Don Bolino took one of two charity tosses to put the Giants ahead, 51-49. On Bolino's remaining charity shot, Sequoia elected to take it out of bounds and freeze the ball.

With Niemann and Greenberg already out of the game on fouls, Lombardi stole the ball from Nunes and raced toward the basket.

As Lombardi went up to the basket, his knee gave out and he crashed into the padded wall. Lombardi, stunned from the fall, was removed from the game, and Sequoia maintained ball control to the end of the game, 51-49.

Hitting on their first three shots, City College flew into a 22-13, first quarter lead over Fullerton.

FORMER PLAYER, now Coach Ralph Hillman has once again led the Ram basketball team to a tournament, this time at Visalia, California.

Hillsman Wins Eight Tourneys in Six Years Span As Coach

By Jack Baird

Genial Ralph Hillsman, coach of the Ram basketball team which recently participated in the Visalia tournament, has compiled a phenomenal record with the Rams since he took over the reins in 1947.

In amassing a record of 118 wins andand 26 losses, Hillsman has won three conference championships and ended in a three way tie for a fourth; won the state finals held at Sacramento in 1950; annexed the Modesto Invitational tourney title twice in 1947 and 1948; and for the next two years won the consolation championship.

In 1950, his team went to Kansas City for the national finals only to lose in the second round and to be eliminated in the third.

Stars like Mike O'Neill, Bob and Don Payne, Kevin Duggan, Bob Matheny, George McLaughlin, Harvey Cranow, and many others have passed under Hillman's magic touch to go on to greater heights in the basketball world both in the Pro and amateur ranks.

Among the greatest of Hillsman's achievements was the Rams' trip to Hutchinson, Kansas, for the National championships in 1950.

The Rams won the Northern Division title of the split conference and went on to beat Placer Junior College two games out of three to earn the right to play in Sacramento.

They went through that tourney without a loss, edging College of the Sequoias 54-52, trouncing Santa Rosa 55-40, and beating a weary San Mateo team 64-49 to be off for Kansas.

At the National Championships they beat Flint, Michigan, in the first round to advance to the second, but they then dropped a game to the Garden City quintet and were eliminated by Tyler, Texas, 66-60.

Their best season was in 1948-9, when the Rams went through all but one opponent at will for a 26-1 record for the season. Their only loss came at the hands of San Mateo, the locals' perennial nemesis.

Coach Hillsman played with the Ram varsity in 1937-38 and was captain of the first championship team that the college turned out. The team was coached by President (then Coach) Louis G. Conlan.

THE SHOOTING of Kevin Duggan, former Rami star, pulled many games out of the fire.

Alumni Raps Varsity In Benefit Game

The college alumni basketball team, bristling with championship talent, downed the present champions of the Rams 59-56 last Tuesday night in the men's gymnasium.

Bob und Don Payne led the attack for the alumni by scoring 15 and 12 points respectively, while Harvy Cranow, Kevin Duggan, and Bob Matheny played well for them, hottling up such Ram stalwarts as Fred Greenberg, Mario Lombardi and Fred Niemann. The score was 28-23 in favor of the grandmates at half time. Ike Walker was high for the Big Seven—champs with 13 points.

The game was for the purpose of gaining money to send the Rams to Visalia for the championship tourney.

Clubmen Play In Stanford Tourney

At least four City College golfers will trek to Stanford on Thursday, March 27, to compete in the Intercollegiate Tournament there, along with many Universities and two-year college squads, including San Jose State, California, Stanford, San Mateo, Modesto, and Santa Rosa.

Expected to tee off against the pick of Northern California's top golfers are Dick Rucich, Stan Rainfield, Ken Keep, and rookie Barry Clare.

Also entered in the tourney is Ken Venturi, from San Jose State, who has been a nemesis in the tourney for the last couple of years and will be out to capture the Medalist championship of the tourney.

Although the Rams haven't as yet had either a practice or a league encounter, the men are keeping themselves in shape by daily practice on Harding and Olympic Club links.

Last year the Rams finished in second place behind San Mateo, losing the championship with the final match to San Mateo.

Members of the Big Seven Conference are San Francisco, Sacramento, San Mateo, Santa Rosa, Stockton, Modesto, and West Contra Costa.

The teams play a round robin schedule with each team meeting the other once. Thee Rams play three conference games at Harding Golf Course and four games away from home, Coach Ralph Hillsman declared.

WAA Playday To Be Held At Santa Rosa This Saturday

Santa Rosa will play host to City College's Women's Athletic Association basketball team in a playday, Saturday, March 15, Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser, announced recently.

The group will be accompanied by Laurine Bergin and Gloria Dunn, women's physial education instructors.

Plans for future sports program are being made by newly elected officers Pat Wellman, president; Edith Stern, vice-president; Anna Bounchristiani, secretary; and Nancy Farrel, treasurer.

Sign-up sheets have been posted in the women's gymnasium for participation in women's or coed sports.

This semester most of the sports offered are co-educational and include bowling... tennis... advanced archery, riding, folk dancing, and badminton. Women's sports are softball, modern dance, swimming and basketball.

Definite plans for other playdays, social activities, and various types of entertainment have not yet been disclosed.

Students wishing to participate in women's athletics should apply to the coaches in the women's gymnasium immediately, Miss Sparks said.

Intra Slates Tennis, Pingpong And Badminton

With Spring just around the corner, Intramural Sports Director Tom Wilson announced the start of a tennis, badminton, and ping pong tournament before the end of March.

Wilson has designated Friday, March 21, as the deadline date for entering the tournament. Men students are eligible with the exception of varsity tennis players. Those interested can submit their names to any of the coaches in the men's physical education department.

All matches will be arranged for the convenience of participants, and will be played wherever facilities are available. Doubles matches will also be scheduled if enough students enter the competition, Wilson said.

The tournament will be played on an elimination basis with the two finalists battling it out for the championship. Two of three sets will be required to win a match.

The champions of these three sports will receive belt buckles, and second place winners to be awarded silver medals.

The next intramural "team" sport will be volleyball, Wilson is now making arrangements and will announce plans for the tournament shortly.

Ram Boxing and Track Teams Play This Week

Boxing coach Roy Diederichsen will lead his charges into a match against a not yet named opponent this week, probably against the "B" team of a prominent Bay Area college.

The Ram track team, coached by Roy Burkhead, will be after their second meet when they tangle with two junior colleges at an undetermined site, which most likely will be the Kezar oval.

Racketmen Meet San Mateo Friday In Conference Tilt

The City College tennis team dropped its opening match to San Francisco State varsity last Tuesday by the score of 7 to 1. The Rams' lone point came as the result of Bob Elies win over Gator Jim White.

The netters will resume their schedule Friday when they invade San Mateo for a match with the arch rival peninsula college. Although he doesn't know much of the San Mateans' ability, Ram Coach Roy Diedrichsen is confident his squad will fare well in the match.

Following are the complete results of the state matches:

Singles:

Alex Swetka (SF); d. Don' Mays (CC); 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Tony Stratta (SF); d. Bob Mays (CC); 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Tick Axtell (SF); d. Sandy Behrman (CC); 6-0, 6-1.

Art Malley (SF); d. John Lew (CC); 6-3, 6-1.

Bob Elies (CC); d. Jim White (SF); 6-2, 6-3.

Roy Turner (SF); d. Don Alter (CC); 6-0, 6-1.

Doubles:

Axtell and Malley (SF); d. Behrman and Elies (CC); 6-3, 6-1.

White and Turner (SF); d. Lew and Alter (CC); 7-5, 6-3.

Following the San Mateo encounter, the Rams prepare for the Northern California Tournament to be held at Berkeley, March 20-23 inclusive. The tourney will pit Northern California's college and junior college players in singles, doubles and championship matches.

The Rams' second conference match will be played against Sacramento and as yet this is the only match they will have had under their belts beside the aforementioned San Francisco State game when they tangle rackets with San Mateo for their second conference match.

Baseball Squad To Play Gators Next Tuesday

The City College baseball team, under the tutelage of Coach Bill Fischer, opposes Balboa High School today, Alameda Naval Air Station Friday, and will then be looking ahead to Tuesday, March 18, when they meet their arch rivals San Francisco State at State field.

So far this season with the "beautiful San Francisco weather" playing an important part in the stepping of practice so far, the Rams have only three games under their belts. They were a 10-6 loss to the Santa Clara brones last Saturday down at Ryan Field in the Santa Clara Valley; a 6-0 win over Commerce, and an 11-6 loss to Balboa.

The Santa Clara game was featured by wildness on the part of the three Ram pitchers and was a loosely played game, mostly because the locals had gotten in only two days of practice playing together as a unit.

The game this week against the Alameda Naval Air Station will be one in which the Rams will be looking for revenge, having been beaten by the Hellcats twice last season.

San Francisco State will be the next important foe on the Rams' list of intended victims. The first game with the Gater nine was rained out so this will be the all-important one for the Rams.

The remaining schedule for non-conference games is listed below:

March 20, Lincoln—There.
March 26, Lincoln—Here.
March 27, Hamilton Field—There.
April 9, Alameda NAS—There.
April 10, Hamilton Field—Here.
April 16, Alameda C. G.—There.

Nieman Selected On All-Conference Team

Fred Nieman, a member of the 1952 Big Seven champs, was the only member of the champion City College team to be selected on the all-Conference team, it was announced last Thursday by Conference Commissioner, H. Taggert.

San Mateo, runner up to the Rams, landed both Erv Banner and Al Mangin. Nat Bates of Contra Costa West and Gary Wride of Stockton filled out the first five positions.

The second team was composed of Dick Greenberg and Mario Lombardi of City College, Nick Romanoff from Stockton, Dick Ridgeway from Sacramento, and Charlie Russell from Santa Rosa.

Visalia Citizens Avid Supporters of Sports

RAMblings . .

By Don Stephens

WHEN the visiting sportswriters walk into the College of Sequoia's gymnasium, they get their first impression of how basketball is received in Visalia.

There were already 700 people in the stands for CCSF's game with Long Beach, slated for 6 p.m., and we walked in at 4:45 p.m. By game time there was standing room only.

Another example of how avid the fans are for basketball occurred one evening while the team was eating in a local restaurant.

It seems some of the patrons' curiosity, including our own, was aroused when into the eatery stepped a group of people, who obviously were not from Visalia because of the "hostile" reception they received.

They were wearing badges decorated in the colors of the visiting tourney favorites, the Ventura Pirates. Normally just a 200 mile drive away, these fans had to take a longer route, which was 85 miles out of the way because of slide conditions in the Mt. Whitney range.

Greenberg Unanimous All-Tourney Selection

Dick Greenberg, San Francisco, Jim Crockem and Bill Gilke, Ventura; Roy Irvin, Fullerton; and Lynn Tucker, College of Sequoia, were unanimously selected on the all-tourney five. Tucker was awarded the Most Valuable Player award in a split decision with Crockem.

The two victories including the Sequoia and alumni defeat gave the Rams 21-6 record for the 51-52 season.

Sky, Star Show Gains In Interest

2000 Expected To See The Heavens This Semester

By Barry Clare

The number of persons who have attended the weekly sky shows now being presented by Louis Berman of the college Astronomy department, is expected to reach the 2,000 mark by the end of the semester.

The planetarium, which is housed in the large dome on top of the main building, is a remarkable device for bringing the heavens indoors.

It contains a large projector and some auxiliary ones which are capable of revealing on the ceiling of the dome some 1,500 stars in addition to the five naked-eye planets, the sun, and the moon in its different phases, up to a latitude of 20 degrees South of the equator and up to a latitude of 90 degrees north at the north pole.

Twelve different lectures concerning the heavenly bodies are available to interested student groups in the public and private schools and to outside youth and adult groups in the Bay Area.

They are as follows: The Stars of Summer, The Stars of Autumn, The Stars of Winter, The Stars of Spring, Reasons for the Seasons, The Midnight Sun—A Visit to the North Pole, The Southern Cross—A Visit to South America, Morning and Evening Stars—The Planets, Life on Other Planets, A Trip to the Moon, Some Famous Stars and Constellations, and Mythology of the Heavens.

Since January 3, students from the San Francisco elementary and high schools have been coming regularly to these lectures presented by Berman, and many more are expected.

Any one of the 12 lectures may be arranged by telephoning Ruth Hoburg here at the college. The number to call is JU 7-7272.

The schedule of the lectures are as follows:

Monday 3-3:55 p.m. and 4-4:55 p.m.
Tuesday 1-1:55 p.m. and 2-2:55 p.m.
Thursday 1-1:55 p.m. and 2-2:55 p.m.

LOUIS BERMAN explains the function of the planetarium and its use in gaining knowledge of the constellations and the planets to a "full house" of prospective astronomers during his recent lecture series.

Astronomy Lectures Begin Next Tuesday

A lecture series sponsored by Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society, under the auspices of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, gets under way Tuesday night, March 18, at 8 p.m., here.

Louis Berman, a member of the ASP lecture board, and instructor here, will present a discourse entitled Exploration of Space.

According to Don Jensen, the honor society's adviser, this lecture by Berman is in conjunction with a series of meetings of astronomers from all over the world.

The lectures will be given in Room 100, in the main building on the third Tuesday of the month.

Men Students See Service Films In Gym Classes Today

The first two films of a new series entitled Are You Ready For Service? will be shown in all men's physical education classes today and tomorrow, March 12 and 13, according to Madison Devlin, audio visual aids instructor.

"The whole idea of the film is to give the prospective serviceman an idea of what is before him in the military services," Devlin added.

What's It All About and Your Plans will be the titles of the initial films shown this week. Devlin declared that the remaining 12 films will be shown in succeeding weeks in the hours from 10 a.m. to noon in room 5D on the west campus and from 12 noon to 3 p.m. in room 200 in the main building.

Interested men students are invited by Devlin to see the films, Starting Now and Service And Citizenship shown next Wednesday and Thursday, March 20-20 at the above locations and hours.

He stated that the following films will be presented to interested students in the following weeks on Wednesdays and Thursdays:

April 2-3—The Nation To Defend and What Are The Military Services.

April 16-17—Getting Ready Physically, Getting Ready Emotionally, Getting Ready Morally.

April 30 and May 1—Communism and Your Investment In The Future.

May 14-15—When You Enter The Services; Military Life And You; Why You?.

The films are not necessarily restricted to men students, and Devlin declared "every student is welcome to see them and we hope to relieve some of the uncertainty of the future by the showing of these films."

The films are of 11 minutes duration and were produced by Coronet Films. A reprinted article from the October 1951 Coronet Magazine states "If the problems encountered in adjusting to military duty can be met successfully—the goal of these films will be achieved."

AGS Elects Its Officers Friday

The college's Alpha Gamma Sigma, scholastic honor society, holds its first meeting of the Spring semester Friday, during which time, election of new officers will be held.

This announcement was made by Don Jensen, the society's adviser, when he disclosed, yesterday, that the coming election will represent a radical change from the usual procedure of choosing officers at the last meeting of each semester.

Last semester's officers were Sandra Stull, president; Napoleon Argüeta, vice-president; Pat Couto, secretary, and Claire De Baker, CAB representative. All of these former officers are now attending San Francisco State or the University of California.

Alpha Gamma Sigma is chartered in 46 of California's junior colleges. The City College chapter contained the fourth largest group of permanent members during 1950 and 1951.

Fire College Men Get Driver Tests

Driver safety courses are being given to Fire College students this semester.

Michael Lo Presti, director of training, declared that regular, relief and new firemen make up a group of 800 students taking the course with lectures by guest speaker Sergeant Gremminger of the Police Traffic Department.

The safety program is co-sponsored by the San Francisco Police Department and the American Automobile Association.

The new staff artist, Charles Shaw, draws posters and diagrams for the course.

The Fire College also gives lectures on automobile fire hazards at the Mission Adult School. Recent activities of the department have included a program in Atomic Defense for the Presidio and the use of the college as a dispersal post during the recent air alert drill.

Ushering Jobs Now Available For Students

Ushering opportunities are now available for interested college students, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced today.

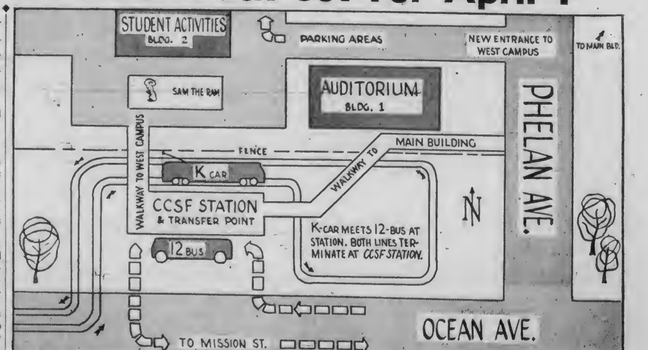
Both the Opera House and the Civic Auditorium are calling for volunteers willing to exchange ushering services for free admission to performances.

Students may sign up for individual assignments or for the entire theater season with Dean Dougherty in Building 2.

The Pacific Opera Company, in its current season, brings to San Francisco, Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci, March 14; Rigoletto, March 18; and Madame Butterfly concluding the series on March 21.

Dedication Of New Track Set For April 1

By Bert Kenny



Work on the new circular track and the college transit station is expected to terminate within this month with the dedication date set for April 1, President Louis Conlan announced yesterday.

Representatives of the college and Ocean Avenue merchants will participate in the ceremonies yet to be outlined.

When the track is completed, the 35 (Miraloma) Municipal Railway bus will resume its regular scheduled route, moving along Phelan Avenue, then turning into Ocean Avenue, instead of cutting into the college's west campus as it does now.

Coming from the direction of Twin Peaks, the K-car will swing around the circular track, discharge its passengers and then retrace its run toward Market Street. The newly inaugurated 12 bus line will connect with the K-car enabling passengers to continue down Ocean Avenue to Mission Street and points within the route. The station will, therefore, serve as a terminal for two muni lines.

The college station will be opened at both sides with the K-car line terminating on one end and the 12 bus on the other.

STAFF ARTIST Werner Heil drew this map of City College Station, the new Municipal Railway transit point, due for dedication April 1. The illustration shows how the project will look, as far as entrances to the campus are concerned, when it is completed, as well as the routes of streetcars and buses which will service the area. The college station will be opened at both sides with the K-car line terminating on one end and the 12 bus on the other. Ocean Avenue merchants will participate in the opening.

New Theft Regulations Issued To Prevent Sale of Stolen Books, Insure Protection Of Student Property

An agreement with the managers of the three local bookstores to curb the sale of stolen books launched a campaign last week to restore the college to a "healthy community," according to Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities.

After meeting with Dick Main, Ed Sarver, and Bob Weingarden, all bookstore managers, Batmale released the following regulations, applicable to this semester until the last day for filing petitions for leaves of absence, Wednesday, May 21.

To sell books to any of the three stores, a student must show a blue official change of program form or a pink leave of absence slip. Refund in full will be given during the first two weeks, provided that the book is in an "unblemished" state.

The new regulations are designed to make it difficult for students to sell books without proper identification, and were adopted for the "protection of all students," Dean Batmale said.

Recent instances of theft in the gymnasium, cafeteria, cars, the fountain and neighborhood stores, though not evidence of an epidemic, point to a "demoralized condition at the college, in which the students aid the thieves by not reporting thefts nor suspicions promptly," Batmale declared.

In an attempt to rectify this situation, Batmale has drawn up several general regulations regarding thefts. Students should report thefts of books to the office of the dean of men in Building 2 and other thefts to campus police in Building 13, he said. Some identification should be placed on all property, especially books.

1200 Enroll In Night Courses

With an enrollment topping the 1200 mark, the college adult evening section marks its third semester as a campus institution keyed to community as well as scholastic interests, Dean of General College Courses Edward E. Sandys declared last week.

Thirty-five different courses are offered, ranging from semi-professional photography classes which explain fundamental principles, to an opera workshop which fosters musical talents, while people with "green thumb" trouble find the flower shop consoling.

Council Seat Vacated

With the resignation of Pat James last week, a seat on the Freshman Council was vacated, according to Associated Student President Bob Smirle.

Nominations will be held during the Student Council meeting tomorrow, March 13, with elections to take place Thursday, March 20. Requirements for candidacy are specified in the AS Constitution, Smirle said. Petitions should be left at the AS office or at the office of the dean of men.

Council Rejects $150 Women's Activity Budget

Student Council members last week rejected the women's activity budget by a vote of nine to four, after it had passed the rest of the $13,000 Associated Student budget with comparatively little revision.

Disagreement on the women's activity budget was generated by the finance committee's recommendation of $75 on the Associated Women Student estimate of $151.50, to be used for the semi-annual AWS tea and for a proposed Easter egg hunt for the children of Hurley Village.

Further cuts in the budget, which has already been passed by the council, may become necessary by drops in the anticipated income, Louis F. Batmale, dean of student activities, warned the group.

Budget requests already passed by the Council are as follows:

Co-educational Activities:
A Cappella Choir	$ 240
Alpha Gamma Sigma	130
Band and Orchestra	125
Drama	450
Commencement	400

PUC Hears College Plea To Reverse Ban On Sale Of Street Car Tickets

Sale and the use of car tickets came to an abrupt halt here this week for City College students who regularly ride the Municipal Railway at reduced half-fare rates.

In a letter to Oscar E. Anderson, college controller, the Public Utilities Commission said that by resolution "the school fare privilege shall only be extended to pupils who are under 18 years of age, enrolled and attending full time classes of accredited schools of grade not higher than public schools."

A representative group from the college, led by Louis G. Conlan, president, Trev A. Burrow, alumni president, and Anderson, met with the PUC Monday night to offer proposals which would permit any full time student here the use of the 10 rides-for-fifty-cents privilege.

The commission took the proposals under advisement, Anderson said, and will announce its decision at a later date.

Anderson said the commission was "very receptive" and "should act quickly."

The college based its proposals on the fact that it is part of the San Francisco Unified School District and that car tickets have been sold here since 1935.

"We presented a case for all full time students," Anderson pointed out.

Although the college is termed a secondary school and is as such part of the high school system in San Francisco, students here "will not be permitted to use car tickets," the commission announced in its letter to Anderson.

"To students enrolled in your school not being eligible for this privilege," the PUC continued, "we respectfully request that you discontinue, on March 24, 1952, the sale of school tickets, and arrange at your earliest convenience to close your ticket account with us."

Lux College also presented a parallel proposal to that submitted by this college, Anderson said, which the utilities commission will likewise consider.

Fall Semester Pre-Registration Starts April 1

Counselling appointments for planning programs for the Fall 1952 semester may be made commencing April 1, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

Students, in order to make an appointment, should go to the counselling office located in Building 3, Marsh said. There they will receive the date and time for their interview.

A student, Marsh emphasized, is expected to have some idea of the courses he wishes to take next semester, before seeing his counsellor.

After the appointment, the student will receive a registration card and number which determines the day and the time he will register.

Appointments will probably take place after the Easter vacation, Marsh added.

Registration for the college summer session will take place on Monday, June 23, Marsh also announced. The college will be in session from Tuesday, June 24, to Tuesday, August 5.

A general college program, much the same as is offered in the regular session will be offered, but not more than six units of work may be taken at the summer session.

Students having any questions relating to the summer session should consult Marsh.

Student Council Raises AWS Budget For Easter Egg Hunt

After devoting three council sessions to stormy debate and numerous votes on the Associated Women Student budget, the Student Council last week decided to raise the budget from the $75 proposed by the finance committee to $125.

The additional $50 was transferred from the publicity budget ($10) and from the sophomore class ($40). The legality of the transfers from budgets already approved by the council led to a lengthy debate, during which opponents of the proposal argued that surpluses should revert to the reserve fund, not be transferred to another budget.

AWS President Cathy Sheehan defended her budget increase on the grounds that it would permit the AWS to sponsor an Easter Egg Hunt for the children of Hurley Village, in addition to its regular function of a semi-annual tea.

A referendum was threatened when the transfer proposal was passed, but the opposition was silenced when the council rejected a reseinding motion at the following session by a vote of 6 to 5.

At the same session, the council approved the Women's Activities' budget of $302, bringing the total spring budget voted to date to $11,711. The spring budget a year ago was $15,536.

Although the budget has been approved, further cuts may be necessary, according to Finance Chairman Norm Heise, who pointed out that the $12,750 anticipated income may not materialize. To date, $300 from the Rainpodium and $1,000 from Associated Student Card sales will not be obtained.

In addition, the drama production, Guest in the House dropped $100, making realization of its anticipated income of $300 dim.

The council session scheduled for Thursday, March 20, was cancelled because the Northern Sectional California Student Government Conference was being held at Hartnell College in Salinas.

Deans Louis F. Batmale and Robin Dunn, and delegates Bob Smirle, Violet Litras, Marylin Jacobs, Stan Fletcher, Cathy Sheehan, Carol Voeke, Bart Dempster and Jim Cress attended.

Dick Clarke, Associated Student President of the University of California; Bob Kersey, assistant dean of student activities; Lou Morgan, AS vice-president, and former AS president here, Ralph Vetterlein, were present at the council session of March 13.

The council voted yesterday on candidates for the Freshman Council seat vacated by Pat James. Although Joan Norman, Don Baker, Pete Manthos, and Shelly White had been nominated at press time, the outcome was not available.

The resignation of Parliamentarian Don Monteleone left a cabinet vacancy to be filled, according to Associated Student President Bob Smirle.

Enforcement Of AS 100 Per Cent Rule Starts This Week

Enforcement of the 100 per cent rule, affecting the release of Associated Student funds to the various organizations begins this week, according to Finance Chairman Norman Heise.

Although the total spring budget of $11,711 has been approved by the Student Council, Heise warned that none of the money will be released to the organizations until they attain full Associated Student membership.

Requests for names of card holders were sent out to the organizations which receive their support from the AS fund several weeks ago, with last week the deadline for final submission to Heise. The rule will take effect this week, he said.

The 100 per cent ruling was adopted in the spring of 1950, and declared valid a year ago, after a controversy led to a referendum vote in which the Associated Students accepted it by a vote of 136 to 32.

Need For Campus-Wide Production In Fall Moves Opera To October

Desert Song Slated For Major Downtown San Francisco Theater

Four major developments in college planning outlined by Lloyd Luckmann, director of curriculum, led last week to the selection of October dates for production of The Desert Song, rather than the tentatively scheduled May dates of this semester.

1—There is widespread belief in the need for an all-out campus-wide production in the early part of the fall semester. The Desert Song could fulfill this need.

2—The Opera Workshop as well as other music and drama programs will be extended into the summer session with the prospect of assigning additional faculty and student credit-time for staging the musical. The extension of time would also afford an opportunity to open negotiations for contracting a large, downtown theatre to house the production, in October.

3—An invitation received by the workshop to produce two operas for the Campion Music Festival in August is being considered.

4—The financial risk involved in a production like the Romberg light opera could not safely justify its presentation at the current time.

In announcements to the workshop, and to a group of students who turned out for auditions for the opera last week, Luckmann reiterated hopes of utilizing facilites of a major downtown theatre for the production. (Luckmann told The Guardsman he had either the Curran or the Geary theatres in mind.)

"There is a great deal to do in setting up a light opera production," Luckmann emphasized, "With the exceptional quality and quantity of talent currently enrolled in the workshop, it would not be fair to slam together a production in less than two months."

He said he felt it is "best to take the longer approach and consider the October dates.

"We want the best possible production under the present budget," he continued. Since the workshop productions are supported mainly by funds donated by a citizen's opera guild, "we must take steps to insure the constant replenishment of the basic 'nut' for production," he said.

Extending music and drama classes through the summer session would present additional opportunity to train students in production work, Luckmann explained, and there is a "very good chance" that faculty and student credit-time could be enlisted also.

All these developments, Luckmann pointed out, led him to become "very optimistic" about the "best possible execution of an opera in October."

Players Complete April Play Casting

Casting has been completed for the next production by the City College Players.

Dust of the Road will be presented for three performances beginning Thursday, April 24, according to Michael Griffin, director.

Names of students of the drama group participating in the production were not released by press time, but Griffin revealed that the play would have three lead parts.

He expressed appreciation to students and faculty members who supported the drama players production of Guest In The House, which was also presented in the Little Theater March 12-14.

Prison Authority To Give Lecture In AGS Series

Julian Arco, nationally known prison authority, will speak here Tuesday, April 1, discussing Inside Yugoslavia's Prisons, in the current Alpha Gamma Sigma lecture series.

The lecture will be heard at 8 p.m. in Room 100, according to Don Jensen, AGS sponsor.

A capacity attendance is expected, Jensen said, "for Mr. Arco has recently returned from Yugoslavia where he conducted an extensive survey of prison conditions there and his lecture should prove highly interesting."

Last week's lecture, Exploration of Space, which was scheduled to be presented by Louis Berman, member of the Astronomical Society lecture board and instructor at the college, was cancelled because of Berman's illness. Jensen declared Dr. Earle Linsley, member of the S. F. Academy of Science, substituted with a lecture entitled, A Trip Through the Universe.

The first Alpha Gamma Sigma meeting of the semester was held on Friday, March 14, and new officers were appointed by Jensen.

New officers are Bob Luehr, president, and James Christensen, vice-president. A secretary for the chapter will be appointed at the next meeting.

There are many students at the college who have the necessary requirements for AGS membership and do not realize it, Jensen reported. To inform these students, the newly appointed officers checked the grades of every student attending the college that semester and found over 300 eligible prospects.

These students will be sent postcards informing them of the advantages of membership in the society, according to Jensen.

Students who received a total of at least 30 grade points and a 2.0 average last semester are definitely eligible for membership in the honor society, he said.

Midterms Cancel College Hour

There will be no college hour this Friday, according to Louis Batmale, acting dean of men, because of midterm examinations.

Regular college hour schedule will be resumed on Friday, April 4, when a rally, postponed from last Friday, is slated.

A technicolor film highlighting big game hunting in the Alaskan territories, titled Hunting in Alaska, will be shown in Room 136, Friday at 12 noon and 1 p.m., Madison Devlin, audio visual aids director, announced recently.

The film will feature camera shots of the Alaskan moose and other big game animals as photographed from an airplane.

According to Devlin, there will be only two showings of the film because college hour has been dropped this week.

The series on preparation for service in the armed forces will continue April 2 in Room 5D at 10 a.m. and 12 noon and on April 3 in Room 200 at 12 and 3 p.m., with movies entitled, The Nation To Defend and What Are The Military Services.

Soph Ball Site Set

The site for the Sophomore Ball, set for June 7, has been chosen but will be kept secret until a few weeks before the event because of its originality, Ralph Marinelli, class president, announced yesterday.

The orchestra to play at the ball will be chosen within the next week by Marinelli and vice-president Bob Clancey.

King-queen petitions will be available soon.

U. S. College Weekly News Roundup

Modesto Junior College: MJC's enrolment for the spring semester has shown what was termed a "surprising increase" over that of the fall semester. Total fall enrollment: 904 Total spring enrollment: 915.

Santa Monica Junior College: A request for a television-radio-phonograph combination for the faculty lounge was turned down by the Santa Monica Board of Education.

Sacramento Junior College: This college recently reported that a baby alligator (30 inches long) was discovered wandering around the campus grounds. (Apparently he thought an education would make him an alligator of distinction?)

Humbolt State College: This college will soon have several new buildings added to its campus. Construction on the new library, science and maintenance buildings is in full swing.

New York University: NYU recently reported that a major increase in tuition would go into effect because of an expected drop in future enrollment.

San Jose State College: Starting this fall, all students at San Jose State who are taking instruction in law enforcement will be required to take a course in ballet dancing.

Long Beach City College: A public opening of the new art gallery at LBCC will take place some time near the end of March. An exhibit of art objects with examples from all ages will be shown.

Chico State College: A proposed operating budget for the year for this Northern California college has been set at $1,011,241. This sum does not include a proposed $427,830 for new buildings.

Mount Union College (Ohio): In an effort to initiate a "be kind to professors week," the Mount Union college newspaper suggested the following don'ts to the students: (1) Don't sleep during exams. The chairs are awfully hard and might give you a stiff back; (2) Don't take off your shoes in class unless your mother has darned your socks recently; (3) Don't hold hands with your "true love" in class. It makes life difficult for the seven people sitting between you; (4) Don't take notes on a typewriter. This is terribly distracting to the students trying to sleep; and (5) Above all, remember: Professors are just like people.

University of Alabama: Cases of cheating at this university became so acute last year that next semester they may be tried at a student court.

Michigan State University: A women's football team was organized at Michigan State to put an end to the talk about the weaker sex. One of their first acts was to challenge last year's intra-mural champions. The score: Men—13, Women—13.

Rider College (New Jersey): Chances for having a football team at Rider College appear slight. Reason: No home field.

University of Oklahoma: A professor at the University of Oklahoma has come up with an idea on how to test student boredom. Wires would be strung along the backs of the chairs. Every time a student yawns, stretches or wiggles, the impulse is recorded on a graph. He calls it, appropriately enough, the "wiggle meter."

Fall Opera Production—A Step Forward For Workshop, College

THE Opera Workshop's decision to extend dates for its scheduled May production of Romberg's The Desert Song to an obviously more convenient October date entails several values to be weighed. The Guardsman would like to point out such advantages, as it sees them, so that those who have long awaited a campus-wide musical production and those who have already auditioned for the show may be fully informed of the conditions as they exist.

Production and the successful execution, entertainment-wise, of a light opera as broad and demanding as is The Desert Song undoubtedly requires the concerted effort of a large and unified college production staff. Extension of music, drama, and Opera Workshop programs into the summer session, together with the prospect of assignment of additional faculty and student credit-time for production, in the fall semester, led to selection of October dates when there would be the need for an all-out, campus-wide production early in the semester.

The extra time that can be devoted to this project should come as a welcome relief to the opera's directors who frequently are faced with molding a show under hectic, makeshift conditions.

Through adequate rehearsal, careful planning, and excellent direction, the opera can easily become a smooth, steady production —one that comes up to professional standards, both financially and artistically—and one that may well follow such past workshop offerings as Friml's Vagabond King, Herbert's Naughty Marietta, and Mozart's Marriage of Figaro.

The possibility of presenting The Desert Song in a major downtown legitimate theatre should come as good news to those who have long felt that the workshop has come of age and deserves facilities conducive to matchless staging, lighting, and seating—conditions under which its talent could flourish and prosper without undue sacrifice.

In the meantime, music lovers of all ages may well direct their attention to several other Opera Workshop performances scheduled during the remainder of the semester. These include a Public Schools Week concert, April 24; an Opera Showcase concert with a repertoire of music from light and grand opera as well as a complete one-act opera; and possible participation in the distinguished and noted Campion Music Festival in August for which the workshop has been invited to produce two operas.

In retrospect, we feel the Opera Workshop, the Associated Students and the college as a whole have everything to gain and nothing to lose by these developments.

Club Cavalcade

Meetings, Conventions, Rushing, Smokers Spotlight Activities

By Helen Tsingaris

Business meetings, joint meetings and still more rush affairs hold the spotlight in this week's club activities.

The second affair for Delta Psi will be a spaghetti dinner to be held at the Fox Hostess House Tuesday, April 1. A joint meeting was held with Beta Tau last Wednesday night.

Kappa Phi held a joint meeting at the home of Annette Johnson to discuss future activities.

Zeta Chi is planning its second affair, a smorgasbord dinner, on Sunday, April 6, to be held at the home of Alumna Bev Fowler.

The Newman Club announced that members will meet Wednesday, April 2, at the Saint Emydius Center. New officers were appointed to the position of Club Activities Board representatives and social chairman, Bob Hass and Betty Jo Cotten, respectively.

A smoker was held March 9 by the Alpha Sigma Delta at the home of Stan Fletcher.

Coming events for the Hillel Foundation include a conference at Asilomar on the weekend of April 4. All Hillel Foundations of the Western States will be represented.

A leadership meeting will also be held at the Conference the date has not yet been announced. It will be attended by the following City College delegates: Andy Scheider, Ron Zimmerman, Lee Bart, Lore Mendies, Donna Leeson and Eli Bergert.

The Collegian Club announced that application blanks to enter the club are now available, and all students are invited to apply for membership. Future plans include social, cultural, and political events.

A new organization being formed on campus is the Marine's Club, which held its first meeting during college hour, March 21. Presiding were Bob Knighton and Bob Vasques. There are 44 prospective club members enrolled at the college this semester. The organization is a follow-up of the Serviceman's Club which was active previously.

Students interested may phone Earl Taylor, JUniper 4-6157. The next meeting is scheduled Friday, April 4, during college hour.

The Masonic Club held its first meeting during college hour on March 21 to discuss future club activities. New officers were elected but have not yet been announced.

Ex-Sea Captain Circles Globe; Lands On Campus

By Nini Algeltinger

The "Cap'n," a mild-mannered, white-haired man with twinkling, bespectacled blue eyes, has become a familiar sight to students on the campus during his six semesters here. But few realize that "cap'n" is not a nickname.

For Leo Raymond Morrissey, a genial 63-year-old, is a retired sea captain who has seen 42 years of service with the Merchant Marine.

He first went to sea in his early teens as a crew member of a small steamer, the Islander, which made a daily "circuit" of the San Juan Islands in the Puget Sound. His duty then, he recalls, consisted solely of polishing door treads, hand rails and ladders.

During his stint on the Islander, Cap'n Morrissey toured the USS Wisconsin, then the most modern United States battleship on the high seas. He was so thrilled that he immediately enlisted for duty in the Navy—only to be rejected for being underweight.

In 1907 he was accepted and embarked on a series of fascinating adventures that led him to the seat of many an international hotspot. The Cap'n went with the US fleet to bombard Vera Cruz during the Mexican insurrection in 1910. And the following year found him in Pacific waters when Dr. Sun Yet Sen was leading the Chinese rebellion to overthrow the Manchu Dynasty.

Then the war came. The Cap'n, by this time an experienced petty officer, was given command of a troop ship, part of an army convoy to France and the Mediterranean Theatre.

After the Armistice was signed, international affairs were relatively quiet. The Cap'n hided his time in the reserves, later on inactive duty, and finally in the years just before the

'Barrell Of Fun'

Noodles-Cider, Record-Pantomine Team, Are Well-Seasoned Troupers

By Claire Anderson

Noodles and Cider, two former Mission High School entertainers now enrolled here, might very well bill themselves as "A Barrel of Fun."

That's what the audience at a campus rally seemed to think, anyway. For theirs is a clean, new, fresh brand of humor.

Ron Mumbower and John "Jersey" Lonacker, who compose the record-pantomime team, pattern their act much like that of Doodles and Spider, similar comedy duo who have appeared in San Francisco.

The two are actually seasoned entertainers, having run the gamut of a long list of personal and television appearances throughout the Bay Area.

These include entertaining for veterans in local hospitals.

In many of their pantomime routines, Lonacker impersonates the female voice while Mumbower takes the male voice, usually to the tune of a novelty like Tennessee Waltz or How Could You Believe Me? The net result is usually sheer bedlam and hilarity.

The duo attributes its success to John B. Leith, instructor at Mission, who encouraged them to continue public performances.

Mumbower takes an active part in the A Cappella Choir and is a prelegal major while Lonacker plays in the college band and is a law enforcement major.

They both remember that it was on this campus that one of their more amusing experiences occurred.

"It was last year when we were appearing before a big crowd in the auditorium," Mumbower recalled. "The public address system suddenly went out and there was no sound from our record. 'Jersey' and I just continued as if there was still sound. The audience must have thought we were nuts!"

P.S.—They did.

Life With Reilly . . . . . It's Full Of Surprises

WHEN Cain put the slug on Abel, we'll bet he didn't think that a few million years from that moment when his brother withered under his angry blows, a whole nation of individuals would be trying to defend itself against the possibility of the very thing he was doing. Americans are steeling themselves for another sneak attack.

The old element of surprise in any kind of warfare is diminishing along with the other opportunities for surprise in our day.

No doubt the Trojans would have been horrified if some inquisitive Greek had looked that gift horse in the mouth. Such practices of distrust were not only unimaginable but absolutely frowned upon.

When the Spanish galleons of the Caribbean watched the ominous portent of the skull and cross bones flutter up the mast of a nearby frigate their usual reaction was one of stiffened horror. If the Spaniards had known about it beforehand, all the fun would have been taken out of the raid for the jolly privateers. Such a possibility was unspeakable!

FINAL EXAMS TOO

And nowadays when a college student spots a question on the final examination that he never dreamed his mild-appearing instructor would introduce for his scrutiny, he seldom glances up to see the expression written on said instructor's face.

But sad to say, surprise on a large scale is disappearing. Perhaps people are finally getting wise and laying counter-plans. The caught-unawares individuals at Pearl Harbor didn't expect an aerial visit on a certain Sunday morning a decade ago; now a radar-set up is planned to blunt the edge of future attacks on that port.

PREPAREDNESS!

Everywhere one sees preparations against the horrible effects of surprise.

Automobiles run on puncture-proof tires; college students anticipate the craft of their instructors by writing answers off-the-cuffs instead of mentally-impaling them on their intellects.

A DULL ROUTINE

Life will soon be a dull routine. We've seen so many westerns that we expect Randolph Scott to drill Dirty Sam in the last reel; we expect a low grade in English because we didn't bother to study prepositional phrases.

It would be nice if Dirty Sam were only winged and actually scragged Randolph, or our instructors decided that we knew our clauses and let us out of our fourth semester in Communications.

But the fact is too realistic to ignore. Things ain't just what they used to be. Long ago a guy couldn't anticipate which way a woman driver was going to turn. She might be drying her fingernails, but now they got them-there new-fangled turn-signals to interpret the lady's motives.

But we haven't considered human nature. We realize that most of our arguments are faulty.

YOU CAN'T PREDICT

The woman driver may push the lever for a left turn and then turn right and cause a ten car collision.

College students might tear up "Greetings" and catch a banana boat to Sao Paulo, Brazil. As the psychologist says, the stimulus may not always produce the same response—you just can't predict human behavior and that is what makes the human animal so interesting.

This treatise may be considered quite dull by non-students of human nature, but it appeals to us—as just one phase of the complex life in which we live—and that's been said before!

News To Nobody . . . by The Spectator

Success Of Campus Blood Drive Here Stirs U. C. To Similar Effort

THE recent campus-wide Blood Bank Day has generated a response from visiting college students. Dick Clarke, Associated Student president of the University of California, was so impressed at the results of the college blood drive that he and the UC student body have formulated plans to hold a drive of their own. The spirit of competition which is so intense in sports between colleges of the various conferences has carried over into the plea for blood as figures of college drives from all over the country attest.

Wrong Foot Forward . . .

Ron Zimmerman, well-known college figure and leader of the Collegian Club, is hobbling painfully about the campus as a result of a freak accident while he was dyeing a sport shirt. He accidentally stepped into a bucket of dye he was using, suffering third-degree burns and requiring hospitalization. However, he came to class wearing the newly dyed shirt last week.

Beethoven a la Nickel . . .

Students with an ear for music other than the type offered in copius quantities at the fountain may find hope in the proposed plan of Meyer Cahn, music instructor at the college. He suggests a "classical juke box" for the aid of students required to turn in listening reports for music appreciation classes. An ideal arrangement, according to Cahn would be for students to deposit a nickel for each long-playing side of the record.

Lullaby . . .

Still in a musical frame of reference, The Spectator hears that Cahn asked a student last week to . . . "Identify Brahms." Reply of dozing student: "What are Brahms?"

Sound Effect-ations . . .

The current rage of students majoring in Radio Broadcasting is sounding the chimes before each Activities Radio Service broadcast. Several interesting variations have been introduced by the student-engineers as preludes and sign-offs for the news cast.

Rendezvous . . .

Political Science Instructor "Doc" Sewell amused a class last week with the story of two fleas on Robinson Crusoe's chest. Says one to the other: "I'll see you on Friday."

Perish the Thought! . . .

Law Enforcement student Lawrence Franks rallied last week against the sugary-voiced suggestion of the narrator on a series of Military Service Films. Prospective draftees were advised to exercise and do calisthenics preparatory to induction.

Education by Proxy . . .

Painters who have been freshening up several west campus buildings in past weeks took advantage of some free instruction. Elements of philosophy, history and political science drifted out from open windows and doors. One painter is alleged to have fallen from his ladder in sheer excitement over the exploits of a certain South American conquistador as vividly described by History 8b Instructor Russell Posner. This method of learning is unique in that these "auditors" don't have to recall the names of obscure historical figures on midterm or final examinations.

Assignment Unseen . . .

Students on this campus are not the only ones who fail to hear class assignments. One TViewer telephoned KPIX and informed the operator that she was enrolled in the college series Come To Order conducted on a weekly basis to inform students on parliamentary procedure.

It seems that just as Lloyd Lindmann, college moderator for the program, was about to give the first assignment, her front door bell rang. She "wondered" if perhaps the KPIX personnel might have the assignment handy so she could complete it in time for the following Thursday

All in a Day's Work (He Says)

Day in and night out Arron Hirsch gets paid for having doors slammed in his face.

What's more, people curse at him he says, and occasionally try to give him a poke in the nose.

But Hirsch, who works as a collector for a collection agency when he's not attending classes here, revealed the job had its brighter moments, too.

One recent occasion brought him into contact with a student of the esthetic dance at a local playhouse where eyes often pop faster than corn kernels.

She had neglected to pay her bills, Hirsch said, and "I had to make my way backstage and try to find her out of a group of her companions."

Once singled out, Hirsch said, she apparently thought he wanted her autograph so she sauntered over to him.

When he conveniently handed her the bill she owed, the dancer changed her tone considerably, Hirsch revealed.

Like the dancer, he just took off

"If it hadn't been for the birthmark on her neck, I might never have recognized her," Hirsch said unequivocally.

Inter-College Boxing Slate Dropped; Intramural Program, Bouts Scheduled To Continue

By Harry Del Grande

City College's unbeaten, untied and untried boxing team, with a minor sport rating and major league ambitions, watched the string run out last week as inter-collegiate boxing came to a rather abrupt ending on the hilltop.

Athletic Head Jack Gaddy announced in a brief statement that although boxing had come through with flying colors in the past, and the Rams were looking forward to another winning year, the dis-interest of other junior colleges involved in Big Seven competition had forced the dropping of the sport. The fact that a two-year college is not allowed to meet a four-year college was another major factor in the college's sudden change in athletic policy.

Boxing Coach Roy Diederichsen announced that the annual intra-mural boxing program would continue on the same grounds as it has in the past.

The sudden cancellation will force welterweight Elmo Ellis, the Rams' main two fisted National Junior College title contender, to go on his own when the Olympic Games tryouts come up next month in Sacramento.

Ellis started his drive for his PAA 147 pound crown last week with an impressive win. Ted Floyd, George Perry and Bill Ninnis, all first stringers on the now defunct Ram boxing club, will probably join Ellis in the Olympic trials.

Although the Rams have been National title contenders since 1946, boxing has seen better days on the hilltop.

Perhaps the biggest boxing light in Ram history, was Jerry Stern, 135 pound punching freshman, who won the 1949 National Junior College lightweight title in Pasadena. Stern was awarded the Outstanding Boxer Trophy in the all college tourney that year.

The Fightin'est Fighter award went to welterweight Roy Damus, a Ram who went to the finals before he was upset in a donnybrook that will be remembered as long as junior college boxers get together.

Gaddy declared that boxing can go back on an interscholastic basis as soon as this national emergency is over and many of the men have returned to college.

The trend west toward boxing right after the last World War and for all intents and purposes, the same trend should occur again.

RAMblings . .

By Don Stephens

DOCTOR George Gallup, that woeful prognosticator, has come up with another of his "brilliant" statistical findings.

Asking a representative cross-section of the American public, "What sport requires the greatest amount of courage?" the American Institute of Public Opinion, directed by Dr. Gallup, found that football and then boxing were rated the top two sports requiring the most courage.

"You can sprain an ankle or break a leg on every play," those who named football say.

"Look at the bruised and battered faces after a prize-fight—what a way to make a living!" those who pick boxing as the sport requiring the most nerve point out.

Because of its persistent crop of injuries and the never-ending battle between the pitcher and batter, baseball ranks third as the sport requiring the greatest courage.

Ski-jumping, so often seen in the newsreels, with all the daringness and grace necessary for proper execution, was rated only fourth.

Here is the top ten sports requiring the greatest amount of courage: 1. Football; 2. Boxing; 3. Baseball; 4. Ski-jumping; 5. Hockey; 6. Wrestling; 7. Auto Racing; 8. Swimming; 9. Polo; 10. Bull Fighting.

Dr. Gallup's purpose, undoubtedly, was to constructively present the average American's opinion on courage in relation to sports. But, the public's selection, obviously, is based merely on the brutality the participants display and not on skill and persistence.

This attitude toward brutality has prevailed since the days of the Roman Gladiators when men fought to the death with their bare hands and Christians were persecuted in great arenas.

Even today, especially at boxing matches, spectators lustily cry for "blood" when their favorite has the opponent set for the kill.

The public seems incapable of envisioning courage as necessary in all athletics. An athlete can have all the skill in the world, but he won't win unless he can combine his abilities with a little moxie.

Sports like tennis, golf, bowling, and even pingpong and billiards are condemned by the average sports fan into the "sissy" class, but if you observe these sports in action you will find the antagonists striving to overcome the other with their native skill and—courage.

All sports take courage. And it is an individual matter whether an athlete is a great competitor and not just brutal machine. But it is up to Joe Fan to recognize all forms of competition as necessary to win and not to judge a sport by the brutality displayed.

Block SF to Decide Officers Friday

Election of officers and a possible valuable player award will be the topics discussed in the next meeting of the Block SF Society, during college hour, Friday, April 4, in Building 10, Room D.

Also to be taken up will be the posting of Block SF news on the Society's new bulletin board, next to the fountain on the west campus.

All block members interested in joining should apply to Lloyd Frietas, who is head of the membership committee, Bill Fischer, sponsor of the club, said.

Not The Weather, It's The Water!

Rains Forced Rams To Cancel Athletic Events

By Jack Baird

Those dark, rain-filled clouds that have been covering the Bay Area skys in recent weeks have not only affected the general populace and the transportation systems but have drowned out almost every college game scheduled during this period as well.

However, with the coming of spring, last week, it seems that the college athletics will finally get underway after harmful delays caused by the inclement weather.

Hardest hit has been Coach Bill Fischer's varsity baseball team, which have had to cancel eight out of twelve practice games, including two games against the Rams' arch rival, San Francisco State.

The squad has had little chance to practice as a unit, and Fischer is undecided about his starting nine lineup when they play their third Big Seven Conference game this Saturday at Graham Field, Big Ree, which is located at Seventh and Lincoln Way.

The field, which has a grass outfield and no boundaries in the outfield, will provide the Rams with ready opportunity to demonstrate their talents.

Present standout is workmanlike, Charlie Clausen, who has been playing the outfield, first base and has even taken a fling at catching.

At the present time there are 24 members on the squad and another cut is expected next week. This will leave the Rams with 18 players. "The small number," Fischer said, "is so no player will slow up or let down, but keep working for his position all through the season."

Rain Hits Track

The Rams are not the only ones who have been hit by the stormy weather of late, but their opponents in the Big Seven have also had an abbreviated practice session. The weather has even gone so far as to force the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast league to move in to the Cow Palace for practice sessions.

Also hit have been their transbay rivals, the Oakland Oaks. Rain cancelled the locals' game with the Oaks "B" team so there is a connection between the majors and the minors, so to speak.

Roy Burkhead's track team has had only two outings for team practice and these have been on a wet track. The scheduled meet with USF and San Mateo was cancelled along with the Stockton meet down at the Port city.

If the old Sol will shine benevolently on the cindermen, they will have a meet with the boys from West Contra Costa, Sunday, March 30, at Riordan High School field, adjacent to the college on Phelan Avenue.

Meets scheduled with Modesto April 7 and with Sacramento and the UC frosh April 21 will follow.

If Burkhead thinks he's having troubles, let him take, for example, the Long Beach Relay. The meet has been postponed three times because of rain.

Golf, Tennis Hit

The golf team, under the tutelage of Ralph Hillsman, has also felt the wetness of Bay Area weather. They have had only limited practice and because the team can only practice when the greens are dry, wet weather will cut practice for two or three days.

The tennis team, under Coach Roy Diederichsen, also postponed a match with San Mateo last week.

Golfers Enter Stanford Tourney

Coach Ralph Hillsman's golf team goes after the big one today when they compete against all major colleges in California, in the Stanford Intercollegiate Tournament at Palo Alto.

The Rams already have two meets under their belts, having teed-off against San Francisco State and University of San Francisco. (These meets were played after press time; final results will be published later.)

The weather has been a major handicap, so that Hillsman has had only a brief look at his aspiring golfers so far this year.

Dick Kuelch, Stan Reinfeld, and Howard Wynn have shown promise in practice, Hillsman said, and one of them will end up as top man with the other two following him. Number four position looks to be in the hands of Andy Barbera, Hillsman added.

Position Number five is a tossup between Jerry Clare and Chuck Feyne, but Hillsman dropped a hint to "keep an eye" on Stan Keep, darkhorse who could develop into a valuable man if he plays up to his capabilities.

Tennis And Golf Teams Win Tilts

While the Ram golf and tennis teams were winning decisive matches, last weekend, the track and baseball teams were trounced in their first serious undertakings of the season.

Over at Contra Costa, in Richmond, the local tennis team, coached by Roy Diedrichsen, trounced the host team, 6-1. The first five seeded players, Don and Bob Mays, Bob Elles, John Lew and Doug Alter, achieved victories over their respective opponents.

Defeating San Francisco State, 24½-2, at Harding, Saturday, was City College's most overwhelming significant victory of the weekend.

Coach Ralph Hillsman's golfers, playing near par, overwhelmed the Gators with their accurate putting and driving.

Up at Sacramento, Coach William Fischer's baseballers, were defeated by a hard-hitting, tight-fielding, local nine, 13-0 and 15-3. In the two contests the Rams garnered only 12 hits. Prior to the Sacramento defeats, Lincoln High of San Francisco, was defeated 13-1 by local nine.

Despite Bob Wade's victories in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, in times of 10.1 and 22.2, respectively, Coach Roy Burkhead's track team accumulated only 32 points in a triangular meet against the University of California Frosh and Junior Varsity over at Berkeley.

Jack-Of-All-Trades, Bill Fischer, Heads Baseball Team, Was St. Mary's All-American Grid Great

One of the most outstanding personages on the campus, William Fischer, has compiled, in his years in sports, one of the most interesting and diversified records in the college's athletic department.

He truly can be called an "Ambassador of good will" and with this title being in mind, he was given the post of director of publicity for the college athletic department. It fits into his genial manner as appropriately as baseballs into the pocket of a glove.

Fischer's pet, the Ram baseball team has brought prominence to the college in the past years and is always considered a dark horse in the conference race.

When the Bells of St. Mary's rang out their loud song for him back in 1932, it was because of his selection to the All-American squad of that year. An additional honor came when he was asked to participate in the Shrine East-West game on the following January 1. But fate was against him and he incurred an injury in the practice scrimmages forcing him to watch the game from the sidelines.

Fischer's extra-curricular activities include: engagements as a guest speaker at various fraternal and social organizations; presiding as the guiding light over the Block SF society here; president of the Northern California Intercollegiate Football Association; President and chief power in the organizing and formulation of the San Francisco Coach's Association; Freshman Football Coach at St. Mary's under the brilliant Red Strader; and Commerce High School coach and counselor in 1936.

After the Commerce job, he came to the college and has since been the light behind many an aspiring athlete in the sports world.

His baseball teams, especially, have yielded abundant material into the professional and semi-pro ranks of baseball.

Some of them, such as J. W. Porter, have gone from the college directly into the professional ranks, of baseball.

Fischer has brought the college four baseball championships in his years as head mentor of the Ram baseball team, and, in addition, he was line coach under Grover Klemmer during the '47 season when they annexed the crown in Northern California conference play.—By Jack Baird.

Intra-Volleyball Deadline Is April 4

With the intramural basketball in full swing, Tom Wilson, intramural director, announced the start of a volleyball tournament after the deadline date, Friday, April 4.

Games will be played on a round robin schedule, with each team consisting of six players, playing each other once. Games will be played Mondays through Thursdays at the men's gymnasium and women's gymnasium.

The basketball tourney is composed of eight teams. They are as follows: The Stompers, Mission Monsters, Tigers, Rockets, Novelties, Newman Club, Fireballs, and Tau Chi Sigma.

Former Ram Baseball Stars Land Jobs With Professional Teams

By Joe Callas

Baseball season is quickly making its entrance onto the sport scene. The professional baseball scouts are signing high school graduates and luring men from college campuses by offering them bonus contracts.

This college is no exception, as Coach Bill Fischer will testify. One of these men is J. W. Porter, a catcher from Oakland who enrolled here. Before he had a chance to show his prowess to Fischer, Porter inked his name to a Chicago White Sox contract for a bonus in the neighborhood of $50,000.

Although being given a thorough tryout by the White Sox this season, observers report that Porter is one year away from major league baseball. He is now in his second year of professional baseball training with the parent club at Palm Springs.

Another athlete who was lured into the big time is Pitcher Willie Franco, who attended this college. Willie was signed by the late Joe Devine, New York Yankee talent scout, for a sum reported to be $10,000.

And as one observer put it: "Who can blame him?"

Keystone guardian Bob Nard is still another Yankee find. Nard played under Fischer here and has also played for Santa Clara in the second base position.

Two other men who have turned their talents toward professional ranks are Doyle Akins and Tom Buffman, a pair of flychasers signed by the San Francisco Seals and Pittsburgh Pirates, respectively, following a brief stay here.

One former Ram who has already proven himself in organized baseball is Gil McDougall, second baseman for the New York Yankees.

He distinguished himself in three ways last year. As the only Yankee regular to bat 300 or over last year, McDougall was voted Rookie of the Year by East and Mid-West Sports-writers. He was the only rookie to ever hit a bases-loaded home-run in world series play.

Two Chicago Awards Offered Students Here

The School of Business of the University of Chicago plans to award scholarships to outstanding graduates of junior colleges throughout the country, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, declared last week. Candidates are to be selected from nominations by the deans of the colleges.

For qualifying students, scholarships of full tuition for a one year period will be given. Several scholarships granting half tuition will also be awarded, he added.

Marsh declared that students nominated must submit the following papers to receive consideration of the scholarships:

1—Form a-1 application (printed forms will be supplied upon request), 2—Official transcript of junior college work. 3—A recent photograph of the applicant, 4—Letters of recommendation from several teachers who are acquainted with the student's work, and 5—A brief biographical letter stating the student's plans and aims.

He emphasized that it is not necessary that students have majored in business to be eligible for the awards.

Spring Fashion Show Highlights April AWS Tea

A spring fashion show, sponsored by a local apparel store with student models participating will highlight the Associated Women Student tea Thursday, April 24, Cathy Sheehan, AWS president, announced this week.

Serving the dual purpose of acquainting graduating Bay Area high school seniors with the college, its traditions and opportunities, the tea marks the opening program for the AWS season, according to Miss Sheehan.

Associate cabinet members who will assist Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, and Miss Sheehan will be vice-president, Pat King; recording secretary, Eleanor Long; treasurer, Marilyn Schroder; and corresponding secretary, Carol Dawson.

Models for the affair will be chosen from names submitted by the associate cabinet, Miss Sheehan explained.

Student singers will also take part in the tea, Miss Sheehan added.

More About The College-Going Sea Captain

last war, as a retired captain. But the lull was broken in the hectic years after Pearl Harbor.

The Cap'n then returned to active duty. In the years of 1941 and 1942 he witnessed the use of many innovations in naval warfare. One was "a new thing called mine warfare." Another was employing landing craft in the Pacific Theatre from the Ellice Islands to Tokyo.

The war years were trying, but the Cap'n got his recompense in 1945—the command of a merchant marine vessel supplying electricity to the city of Manila. This command, according to Cap'n Morrissey, was "the best vacation I had had in four years." And probably the fitting and quiet conclusion to a turbulent career on the seas.

Building 2 Serves As Haven For Lost Goods

The lost and found department, the temporary home for wayward articles, is found in Building 2. The most unusual objects there now are an inner tube, a slide rule, and a ping pong paddle.

A special service offered by the department is circulation of information through the book stores to prevent the sale of stolen books and supplies, Louis Batmale, acting dean of men, announced last week.

Complaints of theft or loss of books should be registered as soon as possible with Batmale's office.

Floriculture Classes Enter April Flower Show In Oakland

All of the five college flower shop classes are pooling their talents in preparation for the annual California Spring Garden and Flower show, which will be held in the Oakland Auditorium this April.

According to John Lawrence, floriculture instructor, the show's theme is based upon modern Brazilian Architecture, and all exhibits in the show must be designed in that motif.

The construction of the floriculture department's exhibition booth is in progress and its design, which was created by Lawrence, employs clear, sweeping lines that are in accordance with the modern theme.

Tall plaster columns and a large wire framed bowl, 36 inches in diameter, are being built by a number of the 95 student enrollment, while the rest of the students are busy weaving bamboo trees, palm ferns and floral arrangements, which they plan to enter in the exhibit.

The college horticulture department, under the supervision of Harry Nelson, has announced its plans for entering the Spring Garden and Flower Show. According to Nelson, a number of Japanese morning glories have reached maturity and represent the club's chances of winning another first prize in the show's ornamental plant exhibition.

The seed for the rare plants was shipped from Japan more than a year ago, but the plants were not mature enough to compete in last year's show. However, the horticulture department still won first prize in its division at last year's show with a variety of Pansies, Nelson said.

Although the club received second prize for their work in outdoor gardening last year, Nelson believes that it will be omitted from the April show because of the continuously poor weather conditions.

Contributions Mount For Forum Magazine

Humorous short stories, expository articles and poetry are among some 40 contributions submitted to Forum Magazine, Duane Belcher, magazine editor, declared last week.

Deadline for Forum contributions is Friday, April 18. Belcher said students may deliver their finished work to him or to Instructors John Gerstung or Dorothy Mercer.

Manuscripts should be typewritten on regulation typing paper and, according to Belcher, they will be judged objectively with the author remaining anonymous until selections are decided upon.

Eight Colleges To Meet Here In Debate Parlay

A student congress which will resemble in form that of the United States will be held on campus Saturday, May 3, according to Michael Griffin, college debate coach.

Colleges who will send representatives to the student meeting, include the following:

University of California, San Francisco State, Stanford University, Santa Clara, St. Mary's, University of Nevada, University of San Francisco, University of Southern California and this college.

Griffin declared that the college would be represented by Bart Dempster, who will act as chairman of the event, and Bob Smirle, Associated Student president, who will act as president of the senate.

Alumni representatives will be Pete Chevrier, parliamentarian, and Jack Mix who will act as chairman of the house.

The University of California will be represented by Carrey McWilliams and Grace Kiztitzen.

The college debating team will also play host to Texas Southern University of Houston, Texas in debate on the question of wage and price controls at the college this Friday, March 28, according to Griffin.

Men Outnumber Women In Spring Enrollment, 3-1

Complete enrollment figures show an attendance of 4,690 students for the Spring '52 semester, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, disclosed last week.

A breakdown of this figure would show a total of 3,016 men and 1,674 women students registered at the college.

Miss Learnard estimated that some 1,000 students not included in the registration figures, are registered in special classes throughout the semester.

JOSEPH A. AMORI, placement director, has summer jobs available.

Summer Counseling Jobs Offered To College Students

Summer counselling jobs throughout the West now are being offered to students at the college through the faculties of the student placement bureau on the west campus.

"Excellent opportunities for students connected with social welfare, teaching, physical education, recreational leadership, and those interested in group work are presented to City College students," Joseph A Amori, placement director, said.

Jobs are available with non-profit and private camps and in most cases, where small budgets do not provide for large salaries in employing counsellors. However, this is balanced by the invaluable experience so necessary in full-time work.

Amori warned that this is not the type of work which pays large wages, and he advises anyone seeking higher pay not to apply for these jobs.

Among the non-profit organizations sponsoring camps are the Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls. Enchanted Hills Camp is operated by Recreation for the Blind, Inc.

Positions are available at the Coffee Creek Ranch, 60 miles northwest of Redding.

General qualifications include interest in recreation and skills in such things as swimming, horsemanship, hiking, nature, athletics or crafts. For more details students should apply to Building 2 in the placement office.

Recreation Majors Eligible For April Civil Service Exam

The Civil Service examinations for entrance into the San Francisco Recreational Department will be given on Monday, April 7, the recreational leadership department here announced recently.

Jules Fraden, recreational leadership instructor, explained the requirements for the examinations are as follows: two years at the college with a recreational leadership major; completion of 60 units; qualification for an Associate in Art Degree; and 20 years old.

Two years at a college with one year additional actual recreational working experience also satisfy requirements.

Fraden announced that individuals interested in water safety work can take an examination with the San Francisco Recreational Department to begin a limited 10 year position as a life guard. Requirement for these jobs is a Red Cross life-saving certificate.

Interested applicants should apply to Room 154 at the City Hall.

Hotel Students To Hear Safety Lectures

Special lectures on fire safety will be given to Hotel and Restaurant Division students in May by the Fire Training College, Battalion Chief William Gilmore said yesterday.

The four days for the lectures, which will be a required part of the Restaurant Operation 65 course, are May 2, 9, 16, and 23.

Parking Eased, Fitzgerald Says

Parking and speeding problems on campus are "much improved," Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor, observed last week.

"The campus police force has been held down somewhat by the rain," Fitzgerald said, "but progress is being made."

As of last week, Fitzgerald declared slips were placed on all cars parked on the campus without parking permits. These slips list campus parking regulations and warn the student to obtain a parking permit immediately.

"Within a reasonable time," Fitzgerald added, "parking citations will be issued to those who do not have parking permits on their cars."

Several speeding citations have been issued during the past two weeks to students who have not observed the 15-mile-an-hour speed limit.

Fitzgerald said that while the speeding situation has eased up, there is still room for additional improvement.

College To Host Conference April 17

San Francisco and the college will be host to the 1952 California Junior College Student Government Conference beginning April 17.

More than 60 colleges will meet in sessions in the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins hotels, according to Bob Smirle, associated student president.

Because of his current presidential campaign, Governor Earl Warren probably will be unable to attend the three-day college meet as principal speaker, Smirle said.

However, Robert Sproul, president of the University of California, Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco schools, and Joseph L. Alioto, president of the Board of Education, are listed as possible speakers.

Lecture Series For Engineers Continues Friday

In order to orientate all beginning students in engineering and technical engineering a new lecture series has been inaugurated at the college under the direction of Cecil Aggeler, member of the engineering faculty.

The next speaker in the series is William J. O'Connell, consulting chemical engineer, who will deliver a speech on topics related to his specific field. Following O'Connell will be Robert Bromser, sales engineer of the General Electric Co.

Lectures will be delivered Friday, March 28 and the following Friday, April 4, in Room 136 at the regular college hour time, Aggeler said.

Already having given lectures are George McKee, structural engineer and A. L. Eisberg, chief engineer, station KRON.

Engineering 48 also deals with the history and development of the fields of engineering and technology, educational requirements, employment opportunities and the modern ideas in the various fields, according to the college catalog. It is a required subject for entering engineering students and has mathematics "C" as a prerequisite, or the consent of the instructor.

Aggeler also has classes in surveying and drafting. He is a member of the American Congress on Surveying and Mapping and has had ten years experience in this field with the Pacific Gas and Electric Company. He has been teaching at the college since 1939.

Art Display Held In Schools Week

Several promising student artists are now preparing for the annual ceramics display during Public Schools Week, April 24, Roy Walker, instructor, announced recently.

The theme of the display will be Art in Action and will include articles made in ceramics courses, such as large outdoor jardinieres, bird-baths, coffee sets and molded pottery, Walker declared.

During the college's open house festivities, students of Walker's classes will be present in their classrooms to demonstrate to visitors how the items on display were made. The ceramics display will be in Building 10, he added.

Invitations have been sent to private parties whom Walker thinks may be interested in seeing this "unusual display of talent."

More About Need For Campus-Wide Opera

expressed agreement with conditions outlined by Luckmann.

"The Desert Song is going to be a tremendous production," she said, "and we need the time to grow so that it will be a smoother and steadier show."

No definite committments have been made, she added, to accept the invitation to appear in the Campion Music Festival in August. But if there is general agreement among workshop students to do so, she said, "there is a very good chance we will produce the two operas requested."

Meanwhile, the workshop is planning for a concert during Public Schools Week, April 24 and an Opera Showcase concert featuring a light and grand opera repertoire some time in May.

Midterm Fever Grips Students And IBM Machines

Ramporium, Instructors Caught In Rush

With "midterm fever" gripping the campus, students are not the only ones who are working overtime. The Ramporium this week is doing a rushing business in blue books, pencils, erasers, ink, paper and other materials essential for undergoing midterms, according to manager Dick Main.

Instructors who give the objective type tests that are scored by the IBM machines are saved much effort in grading individual papers. Thomas Nesbitt, Juanita O'Brien and a student helper feed the tests into the machines, which grade the papers by means of a master sheet.

More than 185 tests have been scored in this manner to date, with between 3,000 and 5,000 papers the average for a midterm period, Nesbitt said. An average stack of 30 papers takes only eight minutes to score, but multiple scoring takes longer.

Courses using the IBM system of scoring include communications, history, political science, physchology, economics, art history and appreciation, home economics, English, and hygiene.

After the examinations have been scored, they are returned to the instructors who give students their midterm grades.

Each instructor receives a pack of IBM cards on which the name of the student and the course have been printed, and squares for grades.

The instructor marks the grade with the same type of soft graphite pencil that is used by students in objective examinations. The graphite is picked up by the IBM machine, and the grade is registered.

The cards are then run through an accounting machine which sorts the cards, grouping each student's grades together. These results are gathered into a master copy, looking much like a telephone directory, to be used by the registrar's office and by the individual counsellors. Students may obtain their grades from their counsellors after Thursday, April 3.

Student Conference Opens Tomorrow

Delegates From 65 Two-Year Colleges Due At Fairmont For Three-Day Group Sessions

By Charles Lane

Representatives of 65 California two-year colleges will meet tomorrow at the Fairmont Hotel to open the thirteenth California Junior College Student Government Conference.

More than 300 delegates from the colleges are expected to attend the three-day conference with this college acting as official host, Marilyn Jacobs, conference coordinator, said yesterday.

VOLUME XXXIV SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA—WEDNESDAY, APRIL 16, 1952 NUMBER 5

About the Map

THE 65 TWO-YEAR COLLEGES represented in tomorrow's CJCSG conference at the Fairmont Hotel are pinpointed above on a map drawn by Staff Artist Werner Heil.

State counties, in which the colleges are located, are designated by stars and are printed in italics.

Terrace Room Dance Friday To Honor Delegates

Delegates to the California Junior College Student Government Conference will be honored Friday at this college's April Showers dance in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Violet Litras, Associated Student vice-president announced yesterday.

The dance is also open to all AS members here. There will be no admission charge and attire will be street dress.

Music will be provided by Bob Stephens and his orchestra, Miss Litras added.

"This is an opportunity for the students at the college to meet delegates from all over California," Miss Litras declared.

The dance will be part of the entertainment for delegates attending the conference which opens tomorrow.

Humor Entries Light As Forum Deadline Nears

Deadline for contributions to Forum magazine is this Friday, April 18, according to Dorothy Mercer, faculty sponsor. She stressed the need for humorous material which has been "notably lacking" in the more than 75 contributions handed in by last week.

Publication date for the magazine has been set for Monday, June 2, Miss Mercer declared, and the price will be 50 cents to Associated Students. She encouraged those students who have been putting off submitting their work to get it in before the Friday deadline. Work may be turned in to Miss Mercer in building 19, room 19 or to John Gertsung, building 4, room K.

Miss Mercer emphasized that contributors should take special care to edit their work for punctuation and spelling errors in order to make the work of the Forum committee easier.

She declared that the following students comprise the committee: Duane Belcher, editor; Allen J. Bostick, Anna Buoncristiani, Wray Jacobs, and Charles H. Osborne. The magazine will be printed by Henry Louie.

Forum contributions should be typewritten on regulation paper and double spaced.

Following the registration of delegates in the lobby of the Fairmont Hotel, a welcome banquet and dance will be held in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont with Bob Emerson and his band supplying the music.

College President Louis G. Conlan will give the welcoming address and the principal speech to the delegates at tomorrow night's banquet.

Other dignitaries including Elmer E. Robinson, mayor of San Francisco, and Earl Warren, governor of California have been invited to attend, Miss Jacobs said. But, she added, the recent illness of the mayor may prevent his appearance.

Similarly, she said, the governor, because of other commitments, may be forced to cancel his invitation.

Sectional meetings will convene on Friday at which time topics pertaining to all California junior colleges will be discussed.

Major topics of discussion include student government, publications, publicity, college activities, and men's and women's student organizations.

Under student government, college spirit, elections, finances — including student card sales and appropriations of funds — will be discussed, Miss Jacobs said.

Publicity and publications will include discussions on the part of the college in the community, with reference to its public relations, and student publications, including handbooks and yearbooks. The publication of a state-wide newspaper will also be discussed, Miss Jacobs added.

Finances, athletic insurance, proselyting, awards, representation of Northern California in the Little Rose Bowl, and intramural participation, will be discussed in the athletic section of the conference.

The activities section will include discussions of the types and financing of rallies, clubs, awards, social activities and student unions.

A general parley will be held that night, Friday, April 17, from 9 to 12 p.m. in the Terrace Room of the Fairmont Hotel, Miss Jacobs said.

The agenda for the concluding session includes the final sectional meetings with the reports to be made to the general session following which the installation of the new state president will take place.

A tentative list of delegates representing the college includes Bob Smirle, Associated Student president; Violet Litras, AS vice-president; Stan Fletcher, Associated Men Students president, and Miss Jacobs. Members of the President's Cabinet and Stu-

Last Time To Drop Courses Today

Students expecting to drop a course must do so by today, April 16, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, said.

To drop a course, Miss Learnard said, the student must obtain his counsellor's permission and a blue change of program card. This card must be signed by the department head of the class the student wishes to drop and must be filed in the registrar's office by 5 p.m. today.

There will be no exceptions to this rule, Miss Learnard continued.

The student is advised to check his change of program card carefully before he files it to be sure there are no mistakes.

Miss Learnard also noted that Wednesday, May 21, is the last day to file an application for a leave of absence, which officially constitutes voluntary withdrawal from the college.

To obtain a leave of absence, Miss Learnard explained, the student must obtain a petition from his counsellor.

Veteran students, she said, are cleared by the veterans office. All other students are cleared by F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare.

Congress May Pass GI Korea Bill

A bill proposing financial aid to veterans of the Korean war in their studies is now before Congress, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

To be eligible for the aid provided by the hill, Marsh said, a veteran must have served for at least 90 days on or after June 27, 1950. The veteran must be taking at least 15 units of college work and have received an honorable discharge from the branch of the armed forces with which he served.

School Group Tours Campus

Approximately 90 San Francisco junior and senior high school counselors will visit the college tomorrow, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

After a luncheon in the faculty dining room, the counsellors will be taken on a tour of the campus. They will be shown typical classes in both the semi-professional and college level courses, Marsh added.

Prime purpose of the event, he said, is to acquaint the counsellors with the college so they will be able to provide high school graduates with full information about it.

This is the first time, Marsh said, that representatives of all the San Francisco secondary schools will visit the college.

Clubs Will Incur Fine For Cancellation Of Activities

On-campus clubs and organizations that cancel dates on the social calendar will be fined $5 if they fail to give notice or $2.50 if they give a month's notice, according to a recent ruling by the Student Council.

The ruling followed an epidemic of cancellations that left the month of March virtually eventless.

Chuck White, Don Baker and Arlene Black have been elected to fill the three seats on the Freshman Council that were left vacant by the resignations of Roger Jones, Pat James and Lou Walts.

Cabinet offices of Parliamentarian and Election Commissioner are vacant, Associated Student President Bob Smirle announced.

A proposal by Larry Elizarde, AS card sales chairman, to present certificates to clubs and organizations that are 100 per cent in Associated Student membership was approved by the council at a recent meeting.

Among the several dates Elizarde suggested for presentation of the certificates were Club Day, a Club Activities Board meeting, or the semi-annual student government banquet.

After it had been reported that Ramporium Manager Dick Main has had to pay the $1 fine for book and stationery salesmen not having parking permits visible on the winshields of their cars, the council adopted a resolution to the college administration that signs be placed at entrances to the west campus to announce that permits are mandatory for parking in that area.

Counsellors Start Fall Programing

Appointments with counsellors for planning programs for next semester may be made now, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week. The appointments began Monday.

Students should make appointments at the counselling offices located in Building 3, where they will receive notice of the day and time of their interview.

A Cappella Choir Schedules Hotel Appearance

The A Cappella Choir gives its first program of the spring semester today for the American Legion Convention at the Fairmont Hotel, director Flossita Badger announced yesterday.

Four numbers will be presented—the college's Alma Mater, Oklahomn, Oh Light Divine, and the group's theme song, The Lord Bless You.

A special performance of selections from Bizet's Carmen was given yesterday for the Parent-Teacher Association Convention at the Palace Hotel by a group of singers including Jim Bogue, Betty McNamara, Arnetta Jackson, Christine Politis, John Land, Elmer Delany, and accompanist Betty Wicklund of the Opera Workshop.

Two April appearances of singers are scheduled, Miss Badger said. The first will be at the Associated Women Students semi-annual tea on Thursday, April 24, in the Student Lounge. A Public Schools Week Concert is slated for Monday, April 28, at 7 p.m. in the auditorium.

The A Cappella Choir, Men's Glee, and Treble Clef will perform Monday, May 5, at the Northern California Junior College Festival at the College of Pacific, Miss Badger announced.

The main event of the Opera Workshop schedule this semester will be two Opera Showcase programs on Thursday, May 22, and

World Challenge To Freedom Gives Impetus To Conference

AT A TIME when democracy is being challenged the world over and there is daily evidence of rapid governmental change, tomorrow's opening of the thirteenth semi-annual California Junior College Student Government Conference at the Fairmont Hotel promises to take on new meaning and importance.

Training and development of students for active participation in their society has long been avowed as the responsibility of the college. How well this task has been fulfilled will be demonstrated to some degree during the next three days in San Francisco when [illegible] student government delegates representing junior colleges from nearly every county in the state, will assemble in panel discussions to discuss openly problems common to them all.

Student government has been described as the basic step leading students to the path of greater understanding of broader political and social problems when they assume their role as responsible citizens in their society. The coming conference indicates clearly that our college generation is not unmindful of the need for understanding and logic applicable not only to their college problems but to more complex, international wrangles. The problems of organization encountered in their colleges are no less complex, however, and they will be sitting down to compare methods of handling such matters as athletics, finances, extra-curricular activities and functions of student publications. Such problems, of course, may not be as dramatically intense as national or international disputes, for example. Nevertheless, they are very real problems of major concern — for today's student government participant is tomorrow's leader.

The significance of the work of these student government participants in the next three days will, we believe, lie in the outcome of these comparative discussions: how will the college leaders solve their common problems? Particularly impressing to us is the signal fact that students with varied backgrounds will have the valuable opportunity to hear opinions of others and to voice their own.

San Francisco Leaders Extend Greetings

Greetings to the California college delegates were extended through The Guardsman by President Louis G. Conlan, Dean Louis Batmale, and Associated Student President Robert Smirle as follows:

"IT IS a distinct pleasure to welcome the representatives of the junior colleges of California to the thirteenth semi-annual Junior College Student Government Conference. City College is privileged to have this opportunity to serve as host for this important conference.

"Through the interchange of ideas and consideration of important mutual problems at past conferences, much progress has been made in the important field of student government in California junior colleges. As a result, students have been delegated wide latitude and discretion in the management of their affairs and have been able to conduct them in a most satisfactory manner.

"I trust the Conference this year will be highly successful and that all the delegates will enjoy this brief visit to San Francisco."

Louis G. Conlan, President

"ON behalf of the faculty and administrative staffs of the City College of San Francisco, I would like to welcome the CJCSGC delegates and advisers to San Francisco.

"This thirteenth semi-annual conference marks another milestone in the growth of the junior college movement in California. The last time the conference was held in San Francisco, there were close to 30 colleges represented; this year there are close to 60. This growth not only reflects an increase in number, but, I am sure, will be reflected in the maturity and poise with which you will handle your business and conduct yourselves."

Louis Batmale, Dean of Student Activities

"ON behalf of the Associated Students of City College of San Francisco I wish to extend to you a hearty welcome. We sincerely hope that your stay in San Francisco will be both enjoyable and profitable.

"We feel that the agenda for the conference has been prepared in such a way that each delegation and, as an end result, each college shall benefit from it.

"If each delegate enters into the spirit of the conference, as I am sure they will, the conference should be a resounding success."

Robert Smirle, President Associated Students

Jacobs Plans Convention Here

Coordinator Has Active Student Government Record

By Nini Algeltinger

The co-ordinator of the California Junior College Student Government Conference that opens here tomorrow has long been active in student government.

Vivacious Marilyn Jacobs who last fall was Associated Student vice-president this semester holds a seat on the Sophomore Council. In addition, she is the president of Theta Tau sorority, the Inter-Sorority Council and is Sophomore Queen.

Her activity record extends far back into her high school career, when she was vice-president of the student body at Bates private high school, vice-president of both her low and high senior classes, and treasurer of the Junior Statesmen.

She first became acquainted with student government conferences when she served as delegate to the Fresno conference last fall. In preparation for the conference which opens tomorrow, she has attended both the Southern Regional and Northern Regional conferences.

At Hartnell College, as panel chairman for the session on student government conferences, she led discussions on the improvement of such conferences, the application to junior colleges of a state ruling pertaining to state college mandatory student body cards, and other similar questions.

Preparations for the current conference were started in the Spring of 1951, when AS President Ralph Vetterlein was successful in his bid for City College to be host college this year, Miss Jacobs said.

Following the Fresno conference in the middle of November, the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins Hotels were booked. Miss Jacobs and AS President Bob Smirle have been working with the San Francisco Convention and Tourist Bureau in making final plans for the conference.

Miss Jacobs pointed out that student government conferences provide an opportunity for junior colleges from all over the state to pool their imaginations and abilities to attack common problems.

College News Roundup

San Mateo Expands Radio Guild; USC Hosts Model United Nations

San Mateo: The San Mateo college radio guild, started in September, 1948, has now expanded into the Peninsula Radio Guild, giving all on the Peninsula a chance to work in a new radio station. The radio guild was started by Richard P. Marsh for the day students and adult center of San Mateo Junior College.

Contra Costa: A permanent campus is in sight for West Contra Costa Junior College because of the recent action of the Board of Trustees, which authorized District Superintendent Drummond McCunn to apply for 4363 acres of El Portal Park, near San Pablo, from the United States government.

Modesto: Rifle instruction, judo, weight lifting, minor sports and women's sports-officiating are on the new list of physical education classes being offered next semester at Modesto Junior College.

Placed: Placer Union High School and Placer College will hold an Open House on May 2.

Santa Monica: The Santa Monica Police force will begin strict law enforcement on this campus immediately following Easter vacation. At a public meeting last Monday evening the Board of Education approved such a resolution invoking Section 603 of the California Vehicle Code after hearing a report on traffic and parking violations.

In effect, this law forbids driving a car, parking it, or leaving it stand on property where schools, colleges, or any educational institutions are located, except with the permission of the governing board of such institutions.

Los Angeles: Students representing 60 western colleges heard Eleanor Roosevelt address the opening session of the Model United Nations. The University of Southern California was the home of the Model U. N. Conference April 3 through 5.

Santa Rosa: A student will be placed on probation at any time during the semester if: his unexcused absences reach 15 hours; if at the end of a semester, he has failed to maintain a "D" average; if when he takes out a leave of absence during any semester, his scholastic and attendance records are unsatisfactory; if he is a transfer student who was on probation at another college.

A student shall be subject to dismissal when at any time during the semester his unexcused absences reach 20 hours, and if while on probation he shall commit any offense which would again place him on probation, and if while on probation, his unexcused absences reach 10 hours.

Contra Costa: Members of the student association have received a suggestion on how to raise money from Time Magazine. Time has offered a four-month subscription for $1.00. Half of the price, 50 cents, will be returned to the student association.

Santa Monica: The sales tax was eliminated from food stuffs at the fountain here.

Long Beach: Students who have not purchased Associated Student cards will be ineligible for any activity including clubs. This affects nearly 50 persons who belong to one of the 60 organized clubs.

Humor Annual On New Book List

Variety seems best to describe the most recently arrived shipment of books at the college library that Clement Skrahak, librarian, has currently released.

Among the new books are The Best Humor Annual, U. S. Camera 1952, The Perpn Era, The Language of Handwriting, Judo: The Art of Defense and Attack, Teen Talk and The Ape in Our House.

Albert Einstein's newest publication, The Meaning of Relativity, includes the scientist's latest works on the generalized Theory of Gravitation. Two copies of this book have been obtained for the library.

The list of travel books that have been added to the shelves is numerous. Newest travel books include editions on the following places: Denmark, Middle East, Southeast Asia, The Voice of Asia, Indo China, New Mexico, Virgin Islands, Honduras, Britain, Soviet Russia, Mexico, Ecuador, Brazil and Italy.

Life With Reilly . . . . . .

ONE fragrant Spring morning at the University of Paris in the year 1218 A.D., a professor of philosophy asked his students a question. "Where is my pay for this month, fellows? If you don't kick in I'll be ejected from my garret."

Whereupon the assembled scholars dug into their threadbare pockets, and each placed a few gold coins on the podium as they filed out of the classroom.

Startling? Of course! But this was the recognized procedure in early medieval universities. Professors were hired by the students and paid by them directly. Administrations were also selected through this arrangement.

The term faculty was first applied to teachers of a university in 1219 and later, in 1231, Pope Gregory IX recognized separate facilities for different subjects and called them colleges. Originally the word university referred only to the students, but eventually its meaning was extended to include both professors and students alike.

The chief pride of a medieval university was not an ivy covered campus or an immense football stadium, but rather its great professors. Bidding for the intellectual prowess of great instructors was hot and heavy.

One might think that clever student organizations employed scouting systems to keep track of promising young teachers and then offer them fabulous inducements to come to their colleges and spread knowledge.

For, students in early universities often journeyed from one great institution to another to listen to great scholars.

It is surprising to learn that according to some authorities early universities had from 20,000 to 40,000 students in attendance. In its heyday Oxford had 30,000 students.

Bring Back The Good (G)Old Days

All instruction was conducted in Latin, and courses consisted of grammar, rhetoric, logic, geometry, astronomy, and philosophy.

Bachelor's degrees were considered the lowest on the scholarly achievement ratings. They carried with them the right to teach. The ultimate honor was a doctorate, which could not be granted to anyone below the age of 35.

The candidate for a doctorate had to carry on a lengthy disputation with learned professors. In some cases these "final exams" lasted from dawn to dusk with only a brief break for lunch. When the victim of these ordeals staggered out of the exmination room, his colleagues were on hand with roisterous congratulations and barrels of good cheer.

Universities were divided into colleges. The University of Paris had more than 60 colleges; Oxford had 11 colleges, and Cambridge 13.

Another interesting fact is that in early universities women were barred. This was evidently a shrewd move to keep students' minds on geometric problems only.

It was in this period that someone rediscovered Aristotle, the great philosopher of the ancient Greeks. The scholastics of the age found in his works a doorway to logical analysis.

Medieval students pursued learning throughout all Europe. In Italy the universities of Bologna and Salerno were great temples of enlightenment. Others were in Lisbon, Siena, Rome, and several were on the Emerald Isle of Ireland.

To this writer the scope of university life in medieval times is quite surprising. The desire for education in those years is comparable to the move current in the United States today.—By Bob Reilly.

Two-Year College Athletics Put To Test At State Student Government Conference Here

By Don Stephens

All phases of athletics, from proselyting and finances to Northern California's representation in the Little Rose Bowl, will receive prime consideration when representatives from 65 two-year colleges convene for the California Junior College Student Government Conference, Friday at 8:30 a.m. in the Hunt Room of the Fairmont Hotel.

The conference will actually begin tomorrow evening with a banquet and discussions through committees will not start until Friday, officials said.

Since the aftermath of the previous athletic year when the Northern California Athletic Association released a two-fisted attack against present day conditions in athletics, the student conference leaders, realizing the importance of a properly conducted sports program, placed athletics prominently on their agenda.

Colleges in Northern California are expected to present a case against the "cold shoulder" treatment they have been receiving from the Little Rose Bowl selection committee.

Granted the Northern California football teams haven't established an overwhelming superiority over the southern schools, their recent performances against southern opponents prove they warrant proper consideration.

The bowl selection committee contends the northern teams are lacking in sufficient support; however, the experts observe, if the northern schools achieve an appointment to the bowl game, support and interest are only natural to follow.

Also on the Athletic Committee agenda is the matter concerning referees. Whether in basketball or football, committee members contend, referees representing northern and southern California should be on hand to athletate in important inter-state contests in order to prevent unnecessary friction in a dispute.

Although it is not quite so prominent in the two year schools, proselyting is still considered a problem and just how it should be conducted most likely will be brought out in the conference.

Along these lines, the committee will exchange and criticize methods of athletic financing.

It is hoped by local educators that the format of an intramural association consisting of two-year and four-year colleges can be organized into a working body. This will be interesting to observe, because last year a successful effort was made by this college and San Francisco State, a four year institution, to coordinate their two programs into a playoff system.

Awards, both in varsity sports and intramural activities, and their proper distribution and qualifications also will be discussed by the committee.

Cindermen Whip Matson, USF, Tie Comets, 61-61

Bob Wade, Ram track star, broke a City College record when he roared to a victory in the 220 as the local track team tied Contra Costa West, 61-61, in a Big Seven Conference track meet at Richmond last Saturday. Wade's record shattering time was 21.4.

The Big Seven Conference cindermen ended the meet in a tie, something of an oddity in track and field competition.

The Ram thinclads have improved their timing with Wade showing the way. Two other men who have shown much improvement are Ron Bauer, former Washington High "Magnificent Miller," and Vern Chambers, fancy-stepping high-hurdler.

Both men contributed heavily in the Contra Costa event, and in the April 3 meet against University of San Francisco and San Mateo.

In the latter contest, the Dons' All-American, Ollie Matson, preparing for a berth on the U. S. Olympic Games team, copped three events. Matson ran a :9.9 hundred, won the furlong in :22.6, and took the broad-jump with a leap of 20' 9". However, his "troubles" were in vain as the college captured the meet with a total of 69½ points to USF's 47, and San Mateo's 33½.

Following is a list of the winners of each event of the Contra Costa meet:

100—Thomas (CC), :09.8. 220—Wade (SF), :21.4. 440—Moss (SF), :52.5. 880—Charles (CC), 2:37. 120 High Hurdles—Chambers (SF), :14.5. 180 Low Hurdles—Thomas (CC), :19.4. Mile—Bauer (SF), 4:36.7. Two-Mile—Charles (CC), 11:39. Discus—Jackson (SF), 122 feet 4 inches. Shot Put—Billiel (SF), 43 feet 1¾ inches. Broad Jump—Stewart (CC), 20 feet 3 inches. High Jump—Denny (CC), and Gilbert (CC), 6 feet 2 inches. Pole Vault—Wheelock (SF), and Jauregue (SF), 9 feet 6 inches. Mile Relay — SFSF (Moss, Wade, Bauer, Chambers), 3:35.

Intra Softball Deadline April 23

The Novelties, led by the sparkling Isaac "Ike" Walker, stormed through the 1952 intramural basketball tournament undefeated, and were crowned the new intramural basketball champions of the college.

There is a strong possibility that the team will play the San Francisco State champions in a series to decide San Francisco's intramural basketball champions.

This year's competition was considered the best in the tournament since it was started, Tom Wilson, intramural sports director, said. This makes the champions' unblemished record look even more spectacular, along with the fact that this year's runner-up, the Rockets, were more than an average group.

With the conclusion of basketball, Wilson announced a softball tournament to be started soon after the deadline date of Wednesday, April 23.

All students will be eligible with the exception of students who have won letters in varsity basebnll. Ten men will be playing instead of the usual nine, and all games will be played at Balboa Park and the football practice field, Wilson declared.

Wilson also announced that the ping, pong, tennis, and volley ball tournament will get under way soon.

Rams Split With Santa Rosa, Meet Modesto Next

By Jack Baird

With a week's rest between conference games the college baseball team turns to practice games in preparation for its double-header against the Modesto Pirates, Saturday, April 26 at Modesto.

The Rams have a league record of one win and five losses. They won a nightcap from Santa Rosa, 6-5, for their first league win, after dropping the opener, 11-4.

Jerry Pandolfi won his first game in two years for the Rams by allowing seven hits, eight walks and striking out two of the opposition. He also contributed to the victors by garnering one hit in two times at bat. "Pandolfi never gave up and put his heart out in the clutches and really came through," stated Baseball Coach, Bill Fischer.

Another thrilling play that almost overshadowed Pandolfi's pitching effort took place in the Santa Rosa half of the seventh inning. With two out and the winning run on second, Bob Read, Santa Rosa pitcher, hit a long fly deep into center. Les Grimes, Ram center fielder took off at the crack of the bat and made a running backhanded catch to give the Rams their first victory.

After downing Santa Rosa, the Rams met the Alameda Naval Air Station Hellcats at Alameda and lost a heartbreaker to the talent-laden Hellcat nine, 6-5. Most of the Navy boys are former semi-pro and professional players. With this in mind the Rams are looking forward to their encounter with Modesto, Fischer declared.

The next home game for the locals will be against Stockton at Big Rec, Saturday, May 3. The Big Rec diamond was obtained by Fischer in 1948 for the college's home games.

It has concrete stands that seat 2,000 people and has an excellent playing field, Fischer said.

Following are composite box scores:

	AB	H	R	RBI	2B	3B	HR	Pct.
Grimes	11	5	2	3	1	0	0	.454
Quinn	11	5	2	0	0	0	0	.451

Women's Spring Sports Slate Now Underway

Definite hours have been arranged for the Women's Athletic Association sports program, Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser, recently announced.

The basketball team meets on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12:45 p.m. and 1 p.m. with their newly elected manager, Betty Jo Cotton.

Modern dance meets Fridays at 10 a.m., folk dancing during college hour, tennis 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., and advanced fencing at 9 a.m.

Badminton is the only sport that meets three times during the week, Monday and Wednesday at 2 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday at 4 p.m. and Wednesday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Famous Sports Figure Embarks on New Career

AS was predicted by political observers, Joe Verducci was elected councilman in a close race against an incumbent opponent last week. From this somewhat small start, there may begin a new career and a new outlook as far as education is concerned.

The job isn't one that will bring riches, but for just meeting twice a month for a few hours it is well worth Verducci's effort.

It will be interesting to see how Verducci does in this precedent-setting undertaking, and, who knows, maybe after a few years, when he becomes familiar with the mechanics of politics, his reaction toward his college job may differ.

It might be possible to see him running around the campus shaking hands, patting people on the back and handing out cigars. He may even take to kissing the mature "babies" in order to get the "adult" vote. In any case, his ability to coordinate his instructing and council job will be closely followed by educators, politicians, and sports fans.

RAMblings . .

By Don Stephens

Prior to the beginning of the present baseball season, when the Rams were rounding into shape, two baseball scouts were carefully scrutinizing a promising pitcher on the local team, Tom Huffman.

He was mowing down the batters in no-hit fashion—the players couldn't even get a hard foul.

Then in the final frame with two outs, a batter stepped up and sent one of Huffman's offerings sizzling down third base. However, the blow went foul. This prompted one of the scouts, who was from the Yankees, to say "Hey, with the pitcher, I want to sign that batter."

Meanwhile, the other scout, from the Pittsburgh club, signed Huffman with a $5,000 bonus.

What about the batter? He was never signed and was dropped from the squad the following day.

Hampered by poor weather in the early season and scholastic ineligibilities, Track Coach Roy Burkhead has come up with a team that will show surprisingly well near the close of the season.

Men like Bob Wade, who has posted a 9.9 in the 100 and a 21.4 in the 220 for a school record and miler Ron Bauer, who ran the distance in 4.25 as a prep, has been winning most of his races around the 4.30 mark. They headline a few of the team who have posted spectacular early season records.

Big Seven hurdles champion, Vern Chambers, is already near his college record mark of 14.9 for the low hurdles, while Bob Rillet in the shot put, is hovering near the 44 foot mark.

City College boxing aspirants received a severe blow when the college reluctantly decided to discontinue all inter-collegiate boxing activities. This was necessitated by the complacent "attention" City College has received from neighboring four-year colleges and the lack of competition afforded by the Big Seven Conference teams.

The conference schools can hardly be at fault, for they haven't the multitude of talent the San Francisco area can offer.

Local Track Squad Expected To Improve

Anyone For Tennis?

THE VENUS LIKE FIGURE to the right belongs to Beverly Nodits of the college, a contestant for the title of Miss San Francisco. Sponsored by a local firm, Miss Noditz, after going through a whirlwind of television and personal appearances, has now reached the finals in the annual contest sponsored by the local chamber of commerce. She has a chance of receiving a $250 diamond ring and a complete "head to toe" outfit as a result of the semi-finals.

Miss Noditz is the second student from the college to vie for the title.

Barbara Huffman, last year's title winner, is a former student of the college. Results of the contest will be made known May 1.—Photo by Vipiono.

Coed Beverly Naditz Vies For Title In 1952 Miss San Francisco Contest

By Al Guthertz

Beverly Naditz, pretty City College coed, was on the brink of bringing fame to her college and honor to her city when she reached the finals in the current Miss San Francisco contest.

Miss Naditz was taking a course in modeling last March, when she was asked to become a contestant under the sponsorship of a local firm. She accepted the opportunity without delay, and was swiftly ushered into a whirl of television and personal appearances.

Candidates for the title of Miss San Francisco have a strenuous time. Miss Naditz revealed. Recently the contestants were required to take a trip to Angel Island for publicity pictures.

"It was early in the morning, the fog had hardly risen, and the girls were clad in bathing suits," she said, "and one photographer had the nerve to cry: smile pretty, girls."

"Because the requirements call for intelligence and talent, this selection cannot be called a beauty contest," Miss Naditz explained. In three of the four points of judging, no consideration is given to physical conformity, she said.

Charm and poise are, however, considered in all phases of judging. Because of her dramatic training, Miss Naditz chose to appear in a dramatic monologue.

Prizes for the Miss San Francisco contest, which is being sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and the local Optimist Club, consist of a $250 diamond ring and a "head-to-toe" wardrobe. Contest winners will be announced May 1.

Miss Naditz, like Barbara Huffman, last year's Miss San Francisco and a former City College student, mentioned the fact that merely being able to enter the contest has been a "world of wonderful experience."

No beauty contest story is ever complete without "statistics."

Height: 5 feet and 5¼ inches.

Tennis Team To Compete At Ojai

Getting off to a fast and unexpected start, the college tennis squad has garnered three wins in four Big Seven Conference starts.

Only mark on the otherwise clean Ram slate, was made by Modesto, who crushed the Rams by a 7-0 score on Friday, April 4. The locals have handed setbacks to West Contra Costa, Stockton, and highly-touted San Mateo.

In downing San Mateo, the Rams were considered to have scored an impressive upset although they were without the aid of their number three and four men, Bob Ellies and John Lew, who were out of the lineup with injuries.

Two of the Ram netters, Don and Bob Mays, are putting their shoulders to the grindstone in preparation for the forthcoming Ojai Regional Tournament to be held in that city April 24 to 26.

Marshall Elected To Top Block SF Post

In electing Hank Marshall president the Block SF Society, last Friday opened proceedings for the new semester, and discussed plans for a coming dance and athletic awards.

Elected to the vice-presidential post was Steve Newland. Corresponding and recording secretary is Lloyd Freitas. Representing the society in the Club Activities Board will be Agastin Shofre.

Cottons Will Be Modeled At Semi-Annual AWS Tea Honoring Bay Area Seniors

By Edwina Killoren

With the theme Parade of Cotton, the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show, Thursday, April 24, offers a welcome to all high school seniors, according to Cathy Sheehan, AWS president.

Models have been chosen from names of AWS members submitted by the associate cabinet.

They are Margaret Shiek, Shirlee Metcalf, Nancy Provance, Dory Novo, Elaine Tragitt, Louise Gerber, Sylvia Henderson, Carole Goldstein, Bonnie Butcher, Elaine Pandell, Marilyn Powell, and Patricia Rundle. Alternates include Audrey Herald, Margaret Leveck, and Joan Norman.

Consultant in modeling techniques for the occasion is Jacquie Jeffries, former student at the college and now in the advertising department of a local department store.

The semi-annual event will also include the choice of a Miss Cotton Blossom by the cabinet from the models appearing in the fashion show, she added.

Jim Bogue and Nancy Harp will provide musical entertainment with two solos each and duets selected from The Vagabond King.

All sororities on campus will have a hand in the event, for they will send their pledges over to serve, Miss Sheehan said. Other women students interested in helping are asked to apply to Miss Sheehan or Dean Margaret Dougherty in building 2.

Associate AWS cabinet members participating include Marilyn Schroder, in charge of public address system; Pat King, musical arrangements; Carol Dawson, poster publicity; and Eleanor Lang, flowers.

An Easter egg hunt party for the children of student-veterans of Hurley Village, April 3, keynoted the first AWS project of the semester, Miss Sheehan said.

A four foot, ten inch white Easter bunny (Beverly Garcia, a student at the college), hosted at the party along with Dean Dougherty, Miss Sheehan and her cabinet members.

Entertainment was provided by dancers from the O'Neil Sisters' School. Twelve children ranging in age from 5 to 8 filled the afternoon with their dance interpretations of an Easter Parade number and Peter Rabbit theme, she added.

Children's idol, Jolly Bill of the Jolly Bill Television program, paid a visit to the student lounge and later hosted eight youngsters on his afternoon program. Riders in on the "Good Ship Windy," Jolly Bill's prop ship for his program included Alice Hammons, Miss Sheehan, Miss Garcia, and the eight children.

Floriculturalists Plan Exhibits For Oakland Showing

Floriculture and horticulture departments are preparing exhibits for the California Spring Garden and Flower Show to be held in the Oakland Auditorium beginning Wednesday, April 23.

Harry Nelson, floriculture instructor said the combined forces of the two departments have won the college five first prizes in the past five years.

Currently, horticulture instruction at the college is being given to a large number of Balboa High School students and Nelson said many facilities of the college horticulture department are open to all interested persons.

The three Balboa High School Horticulture classes, which meet during the week, are under the supervision of a Balboa instructor. These students are developing an open garden, which is located next to the department's hot house near the men's gymnasium. According to Nelson, their work is "very good" for high school students.

Students who are interested in any of these organizations should see the instructors in the horticulture building, 23, Nelson said.

Scholarships Will Be Awarded At Rally

At a rally to be held on Friday, April 25, the three classes of '51 scholarships for two men and one woman student, will be presented by Ralph Marinelli, president of the sophomore class, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, said last week.

The scholarships, collected through popular subscription by members of the class of '51, are for $50 each, Marsh declared.

Names of the scholarship winners, Marsh said, will not be revealed until the rally.

Club Cavalcade: Organizations Plan Spring Social Functions

By Louanne Morford

Joint meetings and "second" affairs dominate this week's club news, but plans and interest are swinging from pledging to the big social event of the season, Mardi Gras, Friday, May 16.

The Phi Beta Rhos are busy planning a booth for Mardi Gras and are sponsoring member Diane Georgatos for Mardi Gras queen. They will hold a joint meeting with the Block S. F. Society on Friday, April 25.

The Lutheran Club will hold a dinner and meeting on Friday, April 18 at 6:30 p.m. at the St. Paulus Lutheran Church. Thee group will hold all future meetings on the third Friday of each month.

The Drama Club presented Dust on the Road and The Valiant on April 13 at the Congregational Church at the request of church officials. Recently elected drama co-ordinating committee members are Jerry O'Connor, Anna Ostrom, Noreen Duryea, Stan Rublowsky and Dawn Kidd.

The honor society, Alpha Gamma Sigma, recently elected its officers for the spring semester. They are Bob Luehr, president; James Christensen, vice-president; Julia Crauliotto, secretary; Bea Lundgen, C.A.B. An installation dinner is being planned.

Mardi Gras plans of the Alpha Sigma Deltas include sponsoring member Mike Hernin for king and operation of a booth. On April 2, new Alpha Sigma Deltas met with other members, past and present at a get acquainted meeting.

The Phi Beta Deltas, who boasted 15 pledges, hold a regular meeting tonight.

The Zeta Chis and the Gamma Phis will hold a joint meeting on Wednesday, April 23, at the home of Marina Skoblin. Zeta Chis held an Easter Party, April 12, for the underprivileged children of the Cannon Kip Community Center.

Gamma Phi Ypsilons are working on plans for a Hoop-n-Win booth and possibly a float for Mardi Gras. They will hold a business meeting tonight, April 16.

The Delta Pals held their second affair on April 1 with an Italian theme and menu. The Fox Hostess House was scene of the festivities, and pledges from Alpha Sigma Delta served as waiters and provided the entertainment.

Ray Sullivan, Sophomore King and Beta Tau president and Marilyn Jacobs, Sophomore Queen and Theta Tau president exchanged pins at a small party on March 22.

Kappa Phis held a joint meeting with the Gamma Phis on April 2 at the home of Jeanette Roach.

A roller skating party will be held at Skateland at the beach by the Newman Club. The party will start at 8:30 p.m. sharp. The regular meeting is scheduled for tonight at 7:45 p.m. at St. Emydius' Hall.

The Forum Club will hold its second April meeting Friday, April 18, at the home of co-sponsor Dorothy Mercer, 2251 Jackson Street. All students are invited to join in a discussion of student manuscripts for inclusion in Forum magazine.

College Station Dedication, Mardi Gras May Combine

With the dedication of the circular track and City College station now set tentatively for Friday, May 16, new plans for the celebration, including the possibility of combining the event with the Mardi Gras to be held the same day, are in preparation.

In recognition of the celebration ceremonies, Ocean Avenue merchants plan a three day "value day" with a free raffle of a $3,500 mink coat to store patrons, according to Edward King, president of the Ocean Avenue Merchants Association.

Celebration ceremonies are planned for the official dedication with city officials, Ocean Avenue merchants, and college representatives ready to participate, President Louis G. Conlan announced recently.

A cavalcade of cars led by Mayor Elmer Robinson and city dignitaries, the municipal, and the official beribboned K-car will converge on the college. The mayor will make the major dedication address. A banquet at the college will follow the dedication, President Conlan declared.

New-cars, officially known as President's Conference Cars, will be used on the present K-line and will follow the route out through the Twin Peaks to the college. Circling the termination stop, the car will discharge passengers and continue back to Market Street. Connecting bus lines will facilitate transfering.

Business Education Program Stresses Fundamental Unity

By Bert Kenny, Sam Blythe, and Gloria Lorenzo

Close partnership between industry and education was the theme of President Louis G. Conlan's opening address to an audience of business leaders attending the second annual Business Education day here April 2.

According to President Conlan, "teamwork supplies the spark for mutual co-operation." Guests, representing many fields of business and industry in the Bay Area, heard President Conlan approve of "fundamental unity between industry and education."

He emphasized the fact that the junior college has truly taken its place in the field of education.

Following President Conlan's address, a movie of the college showing its activities was shown to the representatives prior to an extensive tour of the campus.

Every phase of the college's educational system was covered by the group. The operations of such semi-professional courses as drafting and paint technology and merchandising were shown. In some of these courses the students work under industrial environment, using the same tools found in industry.

In the tour of the science department, the visitors familiarized themselves with an arrangement between the college and seven local hospitals, in which nurses are enrolled in bacteriology courses here as part of their training.

Arlin Timberlake of the astronomy department, gave a preview of "look at the stars" in the planetarium.

Turning to the west campus, the group visited photography, art, graphic art, flower shop, and ceramics classes.

The visitors were also shown some of the student work in the art classes. The student's progress was traced, showing the rapid development made during the semester.

Guests were treated to a display of floral arrangements, created by students in the flower shop.

After the lunch, sponsored by the Faculty Association, several speakers were introduced by President Conlan. Howard Benninghoff, president of the Association, said that "the interest of this day lies in the fact that the students at the college will be industry's employees of the future."

Hilda Watson, hotel and restaurant division head, described accomplishments of the hotel and restaurant division. Business leaders should inform the college what they want so the college can in turn prepare the student to suit their needs, she said.

Open House Here Set For Public Schools Week

An all-out college open house will mark the opening of Public Schools Week, April 28-May 4 here Monday evening, April 28, according to Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of the division of instruction.

The Public Schools and American Heritage has been selected as the theme for the week and the public has been invited to attend an inclusive college program which will begin with dinner in the cafeteria at 6 p.m.

Luckmann declared that the guests will then be entertained by the Opera Workshop, A Cappella Choir, and college orchestra in a varied musical program from 7:30 to 8 p.m. in the Auditorium.

A tour of the west campus, and main buildings will follow, Luckmann continued, and the public will see college art exhibits, engineering classes, the photography laboratory and the flower shop.

Heading the arrangement committee for the annual display of the college ceramics display will be Marjorie Close, a student of the department, and one of several working on a display of finished wares, modeling, glazing and firing works.

Among students participating in the ceramics display will he George Yokoi, Jacqueline Steiner, Marcia Zacharias, Helen Peeke, Herbert Smith and Bill and Fred Horstmeyer.

Service Films Cover Three Topics This Week

Are You Ready For Service? the film series which aids students in preparation for their possible careers in the armed forces, continues this week with three films, Getting Ready Physically, Getting Ready Emotionally, Getting Ready Morally, Madison Devlin, visual aid instructor announced yesterday.

Showings will be in room 5D on the west campus at 10 a.m. and 12 noon today and in room 200 in the main building tomorrow at 12 and 3 p.m.

Correct physical fitness will be explained in Getting Ready Physically.

Getting Ready Emotionally visualizes the many problems the student may encounter during military service.

Getting Ready Morally describes the high moral standards necessary for a successful stay in the service.

Moss-Hart Play To Be Presented By Drama Club

George Washington Slept Here, a three-act comedy, will be presented by the drama department Thursday, Friday and Saturday, April 24, 25, 26, in the Little Theater as the second presentation of the season, Dawn Kidd, student producer, said yesterday.

The cast set for the comedy is as follows: Jerry O'Connor as Mr. Kimber, hired hand; Elmer Cox as Newton Fuller; Connie Connor as Annabelle Fuller; Barbara Gingher as Madge Fuller, the daughter; Claire Zovelas as Katie, the unsatisfied maid; Dion Wright as Steve Eldridge, Madge's boyfriend; Anna Jean Ostrom as Mrs. Douglas, a friendly neighbor; Bill Ratcliffe and Barbara Burdock as Clayton Evans and Rena Leslie, respectively, would-be actors.

Joyce Cody is Hester, another maid; Dennis Olswang as Raymond, mischievous neighbor child; Stanley Ruhlowski as rich Uncle Stanley; Edward Nagland as Mr. Prescott, eccentric farmer.

The college presentation will be produced by Miss Kidd and Michael Griffin, drama instructor, will direct.

Tickets for each evening performance are now on sale at the Rampodium and student bank. Prices are $1 general admission and 50 cents for Associated Student members.

More About Choir's Legion Program

Friday, May 23, she said. The one-act opera, Gianni Schichi by Puccini, and selections from both light and grand opera by individual soloists will complete the program. Opera Showcase was first presented in Spring 1950.

An invitation to participate in the Campion Festival, to be held October 29, 30 and 31 is being considered by the Opera Workshop, The general director of the festival is the distinguished American composer, John Edmunds.

The festival is designed to bring rarely heard, unusual music to its audience, and will this year include both 18th century music and modern music.

Baritone Jim Bogue of the Opera Workshop was the guest soloist on a KRON-TV Public School program for Easter recently, Miss Badger added.

The April 9 performance was under the direction of Mission High School.

More About Student Conference Opening

dent Council will attend the sectional meetings, Miss Jacobs indicated.

Smirle, by virtue of his position as the president of the host college, is the current state president of the CJCSGC.

During their stay in San Francisco, delegates will reside at the Fairmont and Mark Hopkins Hotels, Miss Jacobs said.

The conference will end at 2 p.m. Saturday.

College Open House Marks School Week Fete

IF "PROOF OF THE PUDDING IS IN THE EATING," citizens of San Francisco can have plenty of proof in large size samples when they visit the campus next Monday night at the college's Open House in observance of Public Schools Week. Some of the "proof" is pictured above. In the entertainment field, Jim Bogue (left), Gari Eliopoulos (center), and Nancy Harp (right) are among featured singers who will join with the college's choir and orchestra in a special program in the auditorium. George Washington Slept Here Opens Three Day Run Tomorrow In Campus Little Theater

By Bert Kenny

The comedy, George Washington Slept Here, presented by the drama society, will make its premiere appearance here tomorrow night at 8:30 p.m., followed by performances on Friday and Saturday, Michael Griffin, director, announced yesterday.

Tickets for all performances may still be purchased at the Rampodium and student bank in the main building. The Little Theatre has a seating capacity of approximately 150 persons, Dawn Kidd, producer, said; therefore only 450 ducats can be sold.

Assisting Griffin in the directing of the performers is Roger Levit, student director.

The action of the play, written by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, centers around the dilemma of a city family that moves into a dilapidated country house with an historical background on the inspiration of the husband, a nature lover. To the dismay of the wife, domestic inconveniences crop up throughout the production.

Several peculiar incidents involve the family in disturbing but comical mixups which are neatly ironed out before it's time for the final curtain.

Leads in the production are taken by Jerry O'Connor, who portrays the comical hired man, certain to be a favorite with the audience, and by Elmer Cox as the enthusiastic husband, and Connie Connor as his sarcastic mate.

Other main roles are played by Anna Jean Ostrom, Barbara Gingher, Dion Wright, Bob Dearinger, Joyce Cody, Barbara Burdock, Dennis Olswang, Stanley Rublowsky, Edward Magland, Ronald Cohn, Bertha Lum, and Beverly Nadlitz.

Working behind the scenes are Chuck Huntley, in charge of lighting; Miss Cody and Wright, property; Miss Burdock as wardrobe mistress; Bill Bullis and Olswang, stage hands; Blanee Terracello and Corn, in charge of sound effects. Marlene Vilas did all the designing work on the sets.

Scholarships To Be Presented At Rally On Friday

Long scheduled and finally appearing, is the Spring sports rally which will be held in the Auditorium during college hour this Friday, and will feature the campus-bred entertainment of "Noodles and Spider," Paul Bixel, rally commissioner, said yesterday.

Also at the rally, the three Class of '51 scholarships, two for men students and one for a woman student, will be presented by Ralph Marinelli, president of the sophomore class, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of Student Welfare, announced.

The scholarships, first of their type offered at the college, were collected through popular subscription from members of the class of 1951. They are of $50 each. Names of the winners will be announced during Friday's rally.

Each applicant has had a personal interview with the scholarship committee.

A rally also featuring all-campus entertainment is being planned for Friday evening, May 2. According to Bixel, a dance will be given immediately following the rally. Admission is free on the presentation of an Associated Student card.

Meet Ends With Installation Of New Officers

By Nini Algeltinger

The 13th Semi-annual California Junior College Student Government conference wound up its three-day sessions at the Fairmont Hotel with an installation luncheon in the Venetian Room Saturday, April 19.

Keith Childers of Los Angeles City College received the president's gavel from outgoing president Bob Smirle of this college. In accepting the post, Childers congratulated Smirle "on his fine job of conducting the conference," and pointed out that City College had hosted "one of the most outstanding student government conferences in his experience of attending them."

On behalf of his college, Childers presented Smirle with the silver perpetual football trophy, the symbol of traditional rivalry between the two colleges, which this college won in conference play last fall.

Co-captain of the defeated team, Childers explained that each team has now lost seven games apiece.

Smirle and out-going vice presidents Don Simonic, George Jackson and Henry Aguilera were cited by Sigma Tau Sigma, the national social science honorary society, for "outstanding service in the field of social science."

All four officers were given inscribed certificates by Jerry Goldberg of Los Angeles City College, Earl Warren, governor of California, was the national recipient of the honor award this year, Goldberg said.

The new officers were introduced by their predecessor, who summarized the accomplishments of their sections. Phil Whitener of Fullerton Junior College took over the post of first vice-president and president of the southern section from Henry Aguilera of Orange Coast College.

Gene Diaz of College of the Sequoias is the new second vice-president and president of the central section, following Don Simonic of Porterville Junior College. Ed Sugars of Modesto Junior College replaced George Jackson of Hartnell College as third vice-president and president of the northern section.

Parliamentarian, the post held now by Ed Wachsman of the College of Marin, will be filled by a southern sectional election. Secretary Nancy Nuhn of John Muir College will be replaced by an appointee from the same college, which handles this permanent post. Norm Heise of this college is acting Information Service Chairman in place of Jim Cress, also of the college, who is on a leave of absence.

Childers extended a formal invitation to all delegates at the luncheon to attend the 14th semi-annual CJC SGC conference in Los Angeles November 20, 21 and 22. Four hotels—the Hollywood Roosevelt, Knickerbocker, Plaza and Drake—have accommodations already reserved for the conference. Total cost for the three days is $24.50. Deadline for res-

Sales At Student Store Reach $5000

So far this year, the Associated Students here have received $5,000 from sales at the campus bookstore Dick Main, Ramporium manager, announced last week.

Main declared that the peak has been reached in volume of sales and that the student-supported bookstore is now doing average business.

New supplies have been added to the store's stock and white tee shirts and tennis balls are now available, Main added. Also on hand is a new series of large colorful wall pennants, while a junior size is being sold for use on envelopes.

Open House April 28 Features Dinner, Music Program, Tour Of Campus, Ceramics Display

Parents, friends and relatives of the college's students were invited yesterday by Louis G. Conlan, president, to tour the campus Monday night, April 28, as part of the college's observance of Public Schools Week, April 28-May 4.

A dinner prepared by Hotel and Restaurant students, will be held in the college cafeteria at 6 p.m., after which the visitors will be entertained by a special program in the auditorium from 7:15 to 8 p.m.

The program, under the direction of faculty member Flossita Badger, features the college A Cappella Choir, soloists from the Opera Workshop, and the College Orchestra, conducted by Meyer M. Cahn.

Workshop soloists include Jim Bogue and Nancy Harp, who will sing duets from Friml's The Vagabond King; Richard Mossel singing Water Boy; Doris Spencer and Irene Hallekl in Offenbach's Tales of Hoffman; Gari Eliopoulos in a group of Greek Folk songs; Beverly Keaton and John Downing in a Spanish medley; and Ronald Dutra in The Riff Song from The Desert Song.

The choir will sing selections from Oklahoma and America The Beautiful, and the orchestra will play selections from Handel and feature a trumpet quartet.

Of the many persons invited, there will be a special group of Masonic lodge members who will be hosted by the college that night.

Following the program the visitors will visit the late-day classes and see a selection of slide-pictures of the college at work as well as a ceramics display.

Heading the arrangement committee for the annual ceramics display during Public Schools Week, is Marjorie Close. Miss Close is one of the many ceramics students who is participating in preparations for this annual affair.

The arrangements committee is working with faculty member Roy Walker on a display of finished wares, modeling, glazing, and firing works.

Added to the program will be demonstration work, performed by George Yokoi, Marscia Zacharias, Jacqueline Stiener, Helen Peeke, and Grace King.

Summer Session To Begin June 23

A large enrollment is expected at the college during the 1952 summer session, President Louis G. Conlan declared recently.

The session is to last for six weeks, from June 23 to August 5, with a varied number of courses to be presented, he said.

A preliminary list of classes offered is as follows: Bacteriology 12; Business Administration 1A; Business 50, 61, 63, 69A and B, 74, 80A and B, 80X, 119 and 87-167; Chemistry 1A and B, 5, 8, and 17; Communication 5A and 6A; Economics 1A and B; Engineering A, 1A, 22, and 41; English 1A and B; French 1; History 4A and B, and 8A; Hygiene 21 (Men) and 22 (Women); Mathematics A, B, C, D-1, D-2, 3A and B, and 51; Music 30A; Physical Education 21 (Men) and 23 (Women); Political Science 36; Psychology 1A and B, and 33; Sociology 1A and B, and G12; Spanish 1; and Zoology 1A.

A more complete schedule will be available by May 15, President Conlan said.

Police Inspector Begins Lectures

Inspector Edward Comber, of the San Francisco Police Department, will begin a series of lectures to law enforcement students here on the organization and administration of the police department, Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement instructor, declared last week.

The lectures began last Friday and will continue on each succeeding Friday.

Fitzgerald announced that the law enforcement field class met at the San Francisco Police range on April 16, 17, and 18 to receive instruction under the auspices of the S. F. Police Department.

Another event planned, he said, is a trip by the criminology class to San Quentin prison on Tuesday, May 13.

Applications Due For Alumnae Scholarship

The Theta Tau Society Alumnae Association offers semi-annually a purse of 30 dollars to a woman student, according to Margaret Dougherty, dean of women.

Interested women students may compete for the scholarship if they fulfill certain requirements.

Meeting Highlights

Rose Bowl Issue Stirs Athletic Group In Debate

By Nini Algeltinger

The most heated debates of the California Junior College Student Government Conference during its three-day sessions here last week in the athletic section, where bitter rivalry between north and south was accented by the Little Rose Bowl and ineligibility of out-of-state students controversies.

Most of the resolutions were passed by a northern and central sectional coalition against the south. Where other sections tended to wander from the prescribed agendas, athletics stuck to its program with a tenacity that was shown in lengthy, often violent, debates on a single point.

Although north-south differences could not be reconciled in the athletic section, there were other areas in which cooperation manifested itself.

One was the proposed state-wide junior college bookstore. Another was the adoption of a resolution favoring mandatory student body cards for junior colleges throughout the state.

All the conference delegates, however, forgot their provincialism in their overwhelming tribute to success of the conference. From all sides came comments of approval.

Testifying to this was the six-minute ovation given outgoing president Bob Smirle of this college by the delegates assembled at the installation banquet on Saturday.

He was acclaimed for his job as moderator of heated debates in the general assemblies, planner, coordinator, leader and guide to cooperative and beneficial action at the conference.

He also was awarded the Sigma Tau Sigma award for outstanding service in the field of social service.

AWS Removed From Agenda

By Edwina Killoren

For the second time in CJCSG conference history the resolution to include a workshop for women's activities met with resistance and finally rejection by a majority of the member colleges.

A nearly unanimous vote by the general assembly defeated the Associated Women Students resolution for an official place on the conference agenda.

Earlier, 35 women delegates held an unofficial session under the chairmanship of this college's AWS president, Cathy Sheehan, to discuss the college woman's part in student government, social and academic organizations.

Highlight of the morning session was the discussion of budget appropriations to the AWS of various colleges. A wide discrepancy in Associated Student loan allocations was seen through the examples of Sally Smoot of Long Beach City College which gives its women students a budget of from $500-600 a semester.

Peggy Murphy of Citrus Junior College said her group received no funds from the AS. All other colleges received budget appropriations midway between these two extremes.

Voting power of women students was also brought up as Miss Sheehan explained she had no vote in this college's Student Council. A majority of delegates agreed they needed more voting power in student government.

War Emergency

Voluntary Junior College ROTC Program Urged

By Sam Blythe

A resolution calling for a voluntary ROTC training program in junior colleges was adopted by the CJCSG conference last week.

The group went on record in favoring a House Armed Service Committee bill providing for ROTC units on junior college campuses because the passage of such a bill would "strengthen the junior college program in the advent of the proposed Universal Military Training."

Passage of the bill would be of "infinite value and benefit to junior college students in securing draft deferment," the resolution reads.

Copies of the conference's action will be sent to representatives in Washington.

The resolution was drawn by the war emergency workshop which also adopted a resolution calling for "cooperation between city and college programs in civilian defense practice air raid drills."

This would not be mandatory, according to the resolution, but carefully considered by all State junior colleges.

Role Of Publicity Discussed In Meet

By Bert Kenny

The publicity and publications workshop sent to the general session two resolutions bent on improving the reputation of junior colleges in this state. Of the resolutions presented for voting, one was overwhelmingly passed and the other surprisingly defeated.

The resolution passed by the general session urged the California Junior College Association to "investigate and take action on the advisability and possibility of establishing an intermediate school system rather than a secondary school system."

Most of the delegates felt that by pulling away from the secondary school system handle, the junior colleges would be making a "concrete step" toward their disassociation with high schools in the minds of the public.

The second resolution, which proposed "the establishing of public relations representatives in various groups of schools" because of the seeming overshadowing of publicity by four year colleges over junior colleges, was convincingly defeated.

Keynote Conference Address To Delegates

Today's Youth Will Determine Preservation Of Liberty, Freedom In Future, Conlan Tells 400

By Bob Rezak, Editor

"THE manner in which the youth of our country take hold and manage the affairs of this nation in the future will determine whether or not the liberty and freedom that was purchased for us by the blood and sweat of our forefathers will be enjoyed by those now living, and preserved for generations yet unborn."

Thus more than 400 delegates and their advisers heard President Louis G. Conlan set the stage for the thirteenth semi-annual California Junior College Student Government at the Fairmont Hotel last week.

"You are traveling on the right road by participating in the activities of your college," President Conlan reminded student government leaders representing some 172,000 two-year college students in the State.

"And," he continued, "may I exhort you to take seriously the responsibility of carrying over your participation into the wider and more important realms of local, state, national and international affairs when your college days are behind you."

Attentive Audience

President Conlan delivered his near forty-minute address—the keynote speech of the conference—to an attentive audience which crowded into the Terrace Room for a $4.50-a-plate dinner followed by a dance.

It was a forceful, timely speech that captured attention, interest, and perhaps, the theme and spirit that prevailed thoughout the entire conference.

And it was a message—a broad, inspiring message—to "future citizens and leaders" outlining the objectives of the three-day sessions.

"THE immediate aim," President Conlan said, "is to discuss problems associated with the student activity program in our California junior colleges and to exchange ideas with the expectation that further progress in this important field will result."

Another "long range and most important aim," he added, was to "develop citizens here and now who will assume leadership in the wider and more important community activities in the future."

While the activity program itself has been accepted, he said, "we have fallen short of the accomplishments hoped for. That is why we are faced at the present with the responsibility of developing methods and techniques of administration that will insure the greatest possible educational returns."

Important Problems

This is the "reason for student government conferences" he declared as he listed some of the more important problems he suggested for consideration.

"Too often," he said, "participation (in activities) has been limited to too few students through regulations denying opportunity to students scholastically unsuccessful."

Faculty advisers similarly received President Conlan's consideration. "In the past," he said, "sponsorship of activities has not received adequate recognition in considering the instructor's load.

"The appropriate teaching load should be determined in the light of realistic consideration of the instructor's total contribution to the school. Intelligent leadership in the student government program is more and not less difficult than traditional classroom teaching.

"Only through appropriate recognition by boards of education of the teacher's varied duties are we likely to to realize the maximum educational contribution of the activity program," he emphasized.

President Conlan, looking up momentarily from his prepared text, said another problem was "the lack of faith on the part of administrators in the ability of students to plan, to make intelligent decisions and to accept responsibility.

"Camouflaged Agencies"

"Too frequently student councils have been only thinly camouflaged agencies of administrative domination. Too often have administrators given only lip service to democratic participation. For fear that students might make mistakes, they have not been allowed to make decisions.

"Both pedagogical theory and practical experience," he said, "demonstrate that it is only by having the opportunity to make wrong decisions that students learn to make right ones.

"In a world where democracy is on the defensive and whole nations are schooled in servile obedience to a self-appointed leader, the schools of America have no more important obligations than giving students actual experience of the shared responsibility for plans and decisions in the democratic way of life."

PRESIDENT CONLAN ended his speech with a message that well may serve as a reminder to the future of all mankind.

"In our eagerness for material gain," he observed, "we have failed to put first things first. We have forgotten the fundamental moral and spiritual principles that were in the minds and hearts of our founding fathers when they established this democracy.

"Fundamental Philosophy"

"Our young men and women must realize that our difficulties will never be resolved until we return to this fundamental philosophy of our forefathers. We shall never win the world with guns and money. The only way we will lead this world is by being morally sound at home, by living so that people of the world want to be like us, want to like us for what we are instead of for what we have.

"Your greatest responsibility," he told the group, "as future citizens is to reestablish in our way of life the sound, moral and ethical principles upon which our country was founded.

"Then, and only then, will this nation—yes, this world —have a new birth of freedom."

Sidelights . . . . . Queen Adds Her Part To The Conference

The arrival of Queen Juliana of the Netherlands excited much interest among the more than 350 delegates to the California Junior College Student Government Conference. Thrilled exclamations of "I saw the Queen!" echoed through the Fairmont Hotel.

She was seen as she alighted from the car on Thursday evening, hurrying through the lobby the following day, and eating a "Gosh Awful Gooey" in Blum's that afternoon.

But from Norm Heise, acting information service chairman, comes the most unusual tale. Shortly after the queen's arrival, the story goes, Heise glimpsed Queen Juliana propped up against the wall outside her suite sipping a glass of orange juice. She was surrounded by a bevy of secret service agents and policemen.

* * *

Guardsman Photographer Al Vipiana, who was covering the opening banquet of the conference, slipped out of the Terrace Room when he heard the wail of a siren heralding her approach. Just as he was about to snap the biggest picture of his career—a queen—a secret service agent grabbed his arm. "No more pictures in here tonight, buddy," the agent said, as he dashed a photographer's dream.

On the menu for the opening banquet were shrimp cocktail, cream of chicken soup, veal scallopini, peas and rice; strawberry parfait and coffee.

At the final installation luncheon on Saturday, the delegates were treated to tossed salad, baked ham, string beans and mashed potatoes; and lemon meringue pie and coffee.

Archibald J. Cloud, president emeritus of this college, is the author of a forthcoming book on the history of the rivalry between the University of California and Stanford University on the theft of the Stanford axe.

Dr. Cloud was introduced to the delegates at the opening banquet as the first student to steal the Stanford axe and author of the new book, which is to have limited distribution by the Stanford University Press.—By Nini Algeltinger.

Hot Row In Athletic Meet!

By Jack Baird

Northern California Junior College representation in the Little Rose Bowl received a shot in the arm last week, when the California Student Government Conference passed two resolutions dealing with just such representation.

The resolutions, each dealing with the lack of consideration in the matter by the Pasadena Junior Chamber of Commerce and the State Athletic Commission to the whole State, were approved in the General Assembly without much opposition.

On the other hand, a resolution introduced from Long Beach met with violent sectional opposition. It dealt with the proselyting of athletes from out of state.

The resolution stated that a player from out of state must be a resident in a college in California for one year before he is able to engage in any form of athletics.

Opposition to this measure came mostly from the northern and central colleges. As the central colleges are small and as some lie close to the border, at times they get athletes from out of state. This was their main opposition to the resolution.

The northern colleges, on the other hand, have little or no inducing power over out of state players, and if they come to a northern college to engage in athletics, it is considered their prerogative.

After violent debate, that lasted almost an hour, the delegate from Long Beach called for a roll call vote of the college's present in the general assembly. This motion was defeated.

Then a delegate from Taft Junior College spoke against the bill. He said "I am an out of State student and came to Taft because back hope at my college I could not obtain the proper education."

He went on to say that when he came to Taft he looked at three things: educational programs, cost and athletic facilities.

"If I am stopped from playing in junior college," he said "I might as well go back home where I came from."

After his speech the delegate from Long Beach again called for a roll call vote and this time the motion was carried. The vote was split almost solidly north and south and was defeated 60-40.

Colleges voting against the bill said they thought it was an infringement of students' constitutional rights.

The first Little Rose Bowl resolution recommended the conference send a letter to the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce urging them to give more consideration to Northern Colleges unless it is going to be all southern participation.

This letter will be directed to the Board of Management which rules on the California team. It consists of five members from the State Athletic Commission and four from the Chamber of Commerce.

The other resolution introduced by Modesto provides for a playoff between the best college in the north and south to determine the Little Rose Bowl participants.

The playoff will revolve around the North and South every year.

Local Nine Battles Modesto In Doubleheader For Fifth Place; Hope Strong For Late Season Surge

Hoping to start their late season surge in successful fashion, the Ram nine tangles bats Saturday with the Modesto Pirates at Modesto, at 1:30 p.m., with the first game slated for nine innings.

If the Rams come up with a twin win, they will move into a tie with the Pirates for fifth place; each will then have a three-five record.

In the second game with Alameda Naval Air Station last week, the Rams lost, 7-0. The game was frequented by five miscues on the part of the locals, which was instrumental in contributing to the loss.

Bob Slait and Rich Kalar pitched for the Rams, giving up seven hits and seven runs, while Pete Carrasco, Hellcat pitcher, whitewashed the Rams over nine innings and gave them only four hits while striking out ten.

This gives the Hellcats the sweep of the two game series as they won the first game, 6-5.

Having six conference games left the Rams are in an ideal position to roar through the home stretch in the important contests. They play the Stockton Mustangs the week following the Modesto encounter and this may prove crucial for both teams. Stockton is currently leading the league by virtue of their twin win over Sacramento.

Coach Bill Fischer's men have found in their last few games a new incentive and spark, centering around Steve Maxtapopolous, Les Grimes, and Chanley Clausen, who are providing the hitting power, and Jerry Pandolfi, Dave Tivio, and Ron Coburn, who are twirling sound games.

With the hitting and pitching on the upswing, the Rams are due for their share of good luck in the coming games, and the future is looking good for Ram victories.

Maxtapopolous is currently leading Ram batters in hitting in league games with a hefty .354 average, in the pitching department, Pandolfi is leading the Rams with a 1-2 record.

Top Notch Dancer Instructs WAA Members May 3

Another program of modern dance, which all students may attend, will be given on Saturday, May 3, at 1:30 p.m. in the women's gymnasium. Eleven Bay Area schools will participate in the event.

This modern dance symposium will feature a master lesson and demonstration by Georgianna Wiebensen.

The first lecture on Modern Dance was given last Thursday in the woman's gymnasium by Emily Frankel and Mark Ryder, leading authorities on the modern dance innovations and performance. Many students attended this interesting and profitable lecture.

Playdays coming up for the WAA members are scheduled early in May with San Mateo and Marin Badminton teams here at the college. A swimming playday has been tentatively scheduled for the latter part of May. Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser, announced recently.

The college badminton team was in Napa last Saturday for a playday with Napa Junior College. About eight players participated in two events each, and also there were some archers in the City College group.

The college also played host to the Balboa and Mission High School girls basketball teams yesterday.

RAMblings . . Athletes Put To Test In Mays Draft Case

By Don Stephens

WHEN the Rams edged Santa Rosa Junior College, 6-5, recently, it was the first conference win pitcher Jerry Pandolfi chalked up in his two years at City College.

Pandolfi, who has been plagued with an abundance of bad luck, pitched and batted his mates to victory despite the club's inability to hit with men on base.

This win, the first conference win of the current season, may be the incentive the club has needed all season. Behind 5-1, late in the contest, Pandolfi put his club back in contention by hitting a line-drive single to score two runs. As the score indicates, it wasn't a pitching or hitting gem, but it did give the team a sampling of what their abilities should be after this come-from-behind performance.

An assist to the club's grittiness, is Coach Bill Fischer's display of confidence in his young aspirants. Fischer, in a few instances, if he played his usual percentage baseball, would have yanked Pandolfi in favor of a reliefer when the Bear Cubs started to hit the pitcher viciously, but instead left him in the game.

Again, only this time with the bags jammed with Rams and Pandolfi at bat, Fischer had every right to send in a pinch hitter to bat for the pitcher, but left him in, and set the scene for Pandolfi's come-through two-run single. From this point the locals were invincible.

Rookie outfielder for the New York Giants last year, promising Willy Mays, despite his claim that he is the chief support of 11 brothers and sisters and an unemployed father, was accepted for military service, recently.

Following this induction notice came a wave of protest from irate fans and fair-minded citizens concerning the treatment accorded Mays' petition as a hardship case. Mays offered the petition in good faith, realizing his family's living condition was at stake along with his own career in baseball.

Normally this petition would have been accepted and the potential inductee released from military service. However, in an attempt to please a fragment of public sentiment by showing no favoritism, especially toward professional athletes who are constantly in the lime-light, the draft board sent Willie the usual "greetings."

We grant there are athletes with few or no dependents who rate no favoritism and should be inducted along with the rest of us, but when you consider Mays' case you stop and wonder about the situation.

Stockton Takes Lead; Rams Fifth

Stockton Junior College took over leadership of the Big Seven Conference last week by trouncing Sacramento's Panthers, 6-1, and 5-0, in a double header at Stockton. Contra Costa and Modesto split their twin bill, moving the Pirates down a notch into fifth place.

The Rams, meanwhile, after breaking even with Santa Rosa, play Modesto next Saturday and, can, by achieving a twin win, move into a tie with the Pirates. Stockton meanwhile puts a perfect slate on the line, meeting San Mateo for two games at at San Mateo.

Grid, Basketball Titles Added To Trophy Showcase

With the Big Seven Conference football and Visalia basketball trophies lying in the showcase in the men's gymnasium to be engraved, the Rams have concluded another year in these sports and have added two more trophies to their already overcrowded showcase.

Always a perennial power in football and basketball, they have not only amassed a number of football and basketball trophies, but have added many more from other sports.

In basketball alone, the Rams have come up with ten trophies, some of them coming in the pre-war years when the Big Seven Conference was known as the Northern California Junior College Conference with a Southern and Northern Division. The perpetual basketball trophy has been won by City College six times: in 1951, 1949, 1948, 1947, 1938, 1936.

The Rams have two trophies for placing second in the Region 2 Junior College Basketball finals and one for winning the tourney in 1948, which was the year they went back to Kansas for the nationals.

Basketball isn't the only sport in which the Rams have won awards. They boast a huge trophy from the sponsors of the Gold Dust Bowl in which they beat Chaffey Junior College, 20-7, in 1948, at Vallejo.

Also in the showcase are many trophies won by the track and especially, the boxing teams. There is also an extra-mural trophy which the Rams acquired when they beat San Francisco State's intramural teams last

Chambers Wins Both Hurdles As Cindermen Are Crushed By Stanford Braves, Modesto

By Bob Snow

Despite Vern Chambers' dual victory in the hurdle events, the Ram cindermen were unable to cope with the combined efforts of the Stanford Braves and Modesto Pirates and went down to defeat on the Braves' home field. Final scores were Stanford, 70; Modesto, 50½, and this college, 30½.

Chambers was the only Ram to take a first in any of the events, as he outclassed the field in the high hurdles in :15.6, and took the low hurdles in :25.7.

The Rams were outdone by much slower times than they have won in during the season. To cite one example: Harry Wade, who has broken the tape in :21.4 for the 220, was only able to take third place in the sprint behind Stanford's Brownsberger who won in a comparatively slower :22.3.

Ron Bauer also was bested in the mile. The winning time was 4:31.3, and another slower time than Bauer has done and is able to do.

On a whole the Rams fared poorly against their opponents, but Coach Roy Burkhead is hoping they will improve when they go up against Stanford's Frosh and San Mateo next Monday at Palo Alto.

The locals now have a 2-1-1 record in Big Seven competition, having taken the measure of Stockton and Santa Rosa, losing to Modesto, and being tied by Contra Costa.

With a heavy slate yet to come, the Rams will have to be on the move.

Coming up is the Big Seven Conference met at Stockton, May 5; the West Coast Relays at Fresno, May 9; and the California Relays at Modesto, May 10.

With such a lineup in store, Burkhead, it was observed, will have to put his charges through their paces a little extra in order to make a good showing in the future.

Softball Signups Due Today; Boxing Tourney Slated

With softball signups due today, loaded lists of intramural sports activities are slated tentatively for the near future.

Signup slips for the softball tourney which can be secured in the men's gymnasium, must be filled out and handed in immediately. Everyone is eligible except letter winners in varsity baseball. The tournament will commence as soon as a schedule can be drawn up.

Games will be played in professional fashion with umpires and scorekeepers. Locations for the games will be Bolton Park and the football practice field.

The deadline for the ping pong, volley ball, and tennis tournaments has not been set, but Tom Wilson, director of intramural sports, announced that signups are now being taken for these three sports.

The boxing tournament is scheduled to get under way, tentatively, in the third week of May after the Wednesday, May 7, deadline. The tourney will be run in advanced and novice competition, the advanced being for those who have had previous experience in ring competition. Novice competition will consist of inexperienced but aspiring boxers.

There will be 11 weight divisions ranging from the fly-weights to the heavy-weights. Further information concerning this tourney can be secured from either Wilson or Roy Diederichsen in the men's gymnasium.

A wealth of talent is expected to compete in the tournament, including members of the now disbanded Ram boxing team. The local pugilistic competition had to be discontinued because of lack of "opposition" given them by their own Big Seven Conference, and the "shying away" by the major institutions in the bay area.

Tennis Twins Head For Ojai Matches

With a three week layoff in store, the Ram tennis squad will sharpen up for its next conference match with Santa Rosa's Bear Cubs May 3, to be followed by the Big Seven Conference Championships, May 8 to 10.

However, preceding these contests, top seeded players Don and Bob Mays, will journey to Ojai to battle with the west coast's top amateur netters in the Ojai Nationals.

Jerry De Witts and Norm Peterson, both of Modesto, will probably take the top seeded positions in the April 24-26 event. The May's, while they are both good and experienced players, will have to fight for top positions.

As far as the coming Santa Rosa match is concerned, local mentor Roy Diederichsen hopes to enter it a slight favorite, and take a strengthening hold on second place in Big Seven standings. The Rams are now tied for second place with a 3-1 record.

Diederichsen has not been able to get any advance information on the Cubs, but he is fairly confident his Ram netters will emerge with their fourth conference triumph.

In their last outing, the Rams suffered their first conference loss to Modesto's Mustangs by a lopsided, 7-0 margin.

Linksmen Defeat Stockton 14-12

Led by hard-hitting Dick Kucich, the Ram golf team chalked up its first conference victory in its first league start by defeating Stockton Junior College, 14-2, last Friday, at Harding Park course.

Following the Stockton win, the locals take on title-favorite San Mateo this Friday on the home links at Harding. Teeoff time is at 1 p.m.

Low man was Kucich with a 78, followed by Stan Flenfeld who carded a 79.

Coach Ralph Hillsman revealed that with a little more practice, the team should be able to defeat San Mateo, which is considered the team to beat in the league.

Hillsman said "in a practice match we lost by two points and if we defeat San Mateo this Friday, we have a good chance of going to the championships."

In practice matches the team has lost two and won two; losing to Stanford and San Mateo and defeating U. S. F. and S. F. State.

After San Mateo, the next match will be with Modesto Junior College at the Modesto homee course on May 2. On May 4 the Rams met Contra Costa at Richmond.

Conference finals are scheduled for May 16 and 17, State finals are set for May 19.

The Rams are currently practicing at Harding Park which features a six hole practice course.

If they are successful in their coming matches they have a good chance of going to Los Angeles to compete in the state finals, Hillsman said.

Meantime, in the recent Northern California Intercollegiate Golf Tournament held at the Stanford Golf Club, Stan Rienfell, who plays number three position, was runner up in the third flight.

Others who represented the college in the tournament were Dick Kucich, Barry Clare, Howard Winn and Ken Keep.

High School Grads To Be Honored At Engineering Meet

Graduates of San Francisco high schools, planning to continue their education in the fields of engineering will be honored tomorrow at an Enginering career conference, which begins at 9 a.m. with a welcome address by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare here.

Dr. Marsh is acting conference president, an annual event of the college engineering department.

Following Dr. Marsh, Clyde E. Bently will make the introductory address to the assembled students on Engineering as a career. The keynote address will be given by Monroe Spatz, president of the Shell Developing Company in the San Francisco bay area.

Students will separate into groups for two panel discussions at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. Presided over by men who have special talents in the field to be discussed, they include:

Chemistry in connection with engineering, Robert Patterson, who is on the staff of California Research Company; Chemical Engineering, John F. McGarry, superintendent of the Pechtal Corporation; Civil Engineering, T. J. Corwin, Jr., who is a civil engineer with the P. G. & E.; Electrical Engineering, Homer Keesling, also with the P. G. & E.; Mechanical Engineering, H. W. Iverson, Professor at the University of California.

Military Engineering, Lt. Colonel J. D. Strong, teaching civil engineering at the University of California; Mining and Meteorology, Lawrence B. Wright, consulting mine geologist; Radio Engineering, R. A. Elsberg, electronical engineer at Cal Research and Development Company; Structural Engineering, William B. Brewer, structural engineer with Haynter Davis and Moore.

After the panel discussions, a luncheon will be given in honor of the students. Later members of the engineering faculty at the college will describe the curriculum offered here in the various engineering fields.

Conlan At Annual Business Meet

President Louis G. Conlan left yesterday to attend the Annual State Meeting of the School Business Leaders at Coronado, California. Each California Unified School district will be represented.

The purpose of the meeting, President Conlan said, is to discuss the business side of school operation. Particular emphasis will be placed on new construction in the schools.

F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of Student Welfare, will serve as acting president during President Conlan's absence.

AWS Tea Moved —To May Day

Postponement of the Associated Women Student tea and fashion show to Thursday, May 1, was announced yesterday because the April 24 date conflicted with high school career day, AWS President Cathy Sheehan said.

Fashions for the day will be shown by student models Margaret Shick, Shirlee Metcalf, Nancy Proyanec, Elaine Tragitt, Sylvia Henderson, Carole Goldstein, Bonnie Butcher, Elaine Pandell, Marilyn Powell, Patricia Rundle, Audrey Herald, and Margaret Leveck, leaving Joan Norman as the one alternate, Miss Sheehan declared.

From among the models the cabinet will choose Miss Cotton Blossom to preside over the day.

Duets from The Vagabond King by Jim Bogue and Nancy Harp will highlight the musical entertainment.

All women students are invited to participate in the serving of the tea, and welcoming of the high school students. Interested parties are asked to apply to Miss Sheehan or Dean Margaret Dougherty in building 2.

More About Conference

Club Cavalcade: Social Events Headed By Mardi Gras Festival

By Louanne Morford

Regular meetings, the usual whirl of social activities, and extensive programs of Mardi Gras planning fill the college's fraternity, sorority and club calendar this week.

The Delta Psis hold a joint meeting tonight with the Phi Beta Deltas. The sorority held its last regular meeting at the home of Robina Deepenbrook on April 16.

Kitten on the Keys is the tentative name of the Mardi Gras float the Delta Psis are planning. Joan Spenser will represent the group in the Mardi Gras queen contest.

The Phi Beta Rhos are still working on ideas for Mardi Gras but haven't decided on anything definite as yet. They held their last regular meeting on April 17. Coming events include a joint meeting with the Block S. F. Society on Friday, April 25.

Joan Favorman will be the Alpha Lambda Chi candidate for Mardi Gras queen, but other Mardi Gras plans are still in the planning stage. The group held a regular meeting at the home of Nan Kellerman on April 15.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon will enter Frank Terranova as their contender for Mardi Gras king. Other Mardi Gras plans and projects are being worked on.

The Gamma Phis held their last meeting on April 16 at the home of king candidate Frank Terranova. A joint meeting with Zeta Chi is scheduled for tonight.

Alpha Phi Omega is attempting to secure a marching unit from one of the armed forces to perform in the Mardi Gras parade. The group have been keeping new members busy contacting possible participants.

Saturday, April 26, the Tau Chi Sigmas will hold their formal initiation in the Room of Dons at the Mark Hopkins Hotel at 8 p.m., dancing to follow.

New Inter-Fraternity Council officers for the spring semester are Len Lundgren, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, president; Jo Scafidi, Beta Tau, vice-president; Ralph Marinelli, Phi Beta Delta, secretary; Ray Sullivan, Beta Tau, treasurer.

A regional convention of all western college and university chapters of Alpha Phi Omega was held recently on the San Diego State College campus. George Yokoi, Jerry Mooney, Tom Lieux, Larry Elizarde, Don Millard, Tom Odell and Bob Jacobsen represented this college at the convention.

The group is making plans for an armed services display at the Mardi Gras Celebration. The display would serve the dual purpose of providing the college with extra electrical equipment for the Mardi Gras and aiding the armed services in their recruiting programs.

The Iota Pi chapter of Alpha Phi Omega has released a list of newly elected officers, they are Gene Bunch, president; Bill Geddea, vice-president; Bob Jacobsen, recording secretary; Ralph Luce, corresponding secretary; Don Millard, treasurer; and Larry Elizarde, pledge master and Club Advisory Board representative.

Recently elected as officers of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship were Marilyn Strayer, president; Helen Tom, vice-president; and Louis Young, secretary. New members are invited to join. The Fellowship held an Easter Conference the week end of April 4 in Mt. Hermon in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Speakers were Rev. Ralph Kraft and Herbert Butt.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship will hold their monthly Inter-varsity night Friday, April 25, at the California Club in downtown San Francisco. The group has invited students from the University of California, San Francisco State College, San Jose State College, Santa Rosa, and others.

The Theta Taus will hold a joint meeting with the Phi Beta Deltas to honor pledges on Wednesday, April 23.

The Newman Club has rescheduled its skating party at Skateland at the Beach. It will be held tonight at 8:30 p.m. The group will hold its next regular meeting on April 30 at 7:45 p.m.

Hilda Watson Named To Hotel Institute Advisory Board

Hilda Watson, director of the Hotel and Restaurant Division, achieved a unique honor when she was named one of the advisers of the American Hotel Institute, at a recent convention in Chicago.

The American Hotel Institute, formulated by the American Hotel Association, will offer correspondence courses for personnel already employed in the hotel field.

These courses, Mrs. Watson said, "Will offer to hotel personnel, courses in different phases of procedure in a variety of fields," and, she added, "All applicants for the courses must be already employed by a member hotel of the American Hotel Association, of which City College is a member."

The advisory board, composed of 18 members possessing knowledge in many phases of the hotel field, in the first instructional undertaking known to the industry, have organized into a working body to cover fields in which they are particularly adapted.

When their work has been completed and compiled, board members in the Mississippi State region, using the college as their headquarters, will start missionary work in making the institute a reality.

Aside from working on the advisory board, Mrs. Watson visited City College's counterpart, Kellogg Hall, at Michigan State College, to get information concerning its newly constructed building and its curriculum arrangement.

Already noted in the Hotel Association house organ, Mrs. Watson said interviews, concerning this college's facilities, were given to reporters representing educational and sectional hotel magazines.

During her six day stay in Chicago, she attended the Midwest Hotel show which exhibited new and helpful methods for the hotel industry.

HILDA WATSON, Hotel Division director, was named an adviser to the American Hotel Institute recently.

Big Game 'Hunted' In Friday Film

The college film series continues this Friday at 12 noon, 1 p.m., and college hour, focusing its attention on big game animals of Central America in the film Realm of the Wild, Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids instructor announced yesterday.

Are You Ready for Service series goes ahead on Wednesday, April 30, and Thursday, May 1, with two films: Communism, and Your Investment In The Future. The films will be shown at 10 a.m. and 12 noon in Room 5D, and at 12 noon and 3 p.m. in Room 200, Devlin said.

Communism doctrines are explored in the film Communism, pointing out its evils and powers in the modern world. Your Investment In The Future reveals the aid that military service presents in developing good citizens.

The service preparatory series comes to a climax on Wednesday, May 14 and Thursday, May 15.

Election Rally Slated May 23

An Associated Student election rally date has been set for Friday, May 23, with the elections slated for the week of May 26, according to acting Dean of Men Louis Batmale.

Batmale, in an attempt to arouse student interest in the approaching election, urged that students examine a copy of the constitution to help determine their own eligibility for office.

He pointed out that the third part of article five will receive a different interpretation in the coming election than it has in the past.

The law, which was formerly interpreted to mean that a student need only to have received a "C" average in work undertaken the previous semester, will now be understood to mean that a student must have maintained a "C" average in all work undertaken during his period of enrollment at City College.

The election itself will be handled by the Election Committee, and a deadline date for filing petitions to run for office is expected soon.

AGS, Choir, Sophs Activities Listed

Coming events on the activity calendar are the Alpha Gamma Sigma semi-annual installation dinner on Monday, May 5.

Other events include the participation of the A Cappella Choir in the Northern California Junior College Music Festival at College of the Pacific, also on May 5.

Bob Emerson and his band will be featured at the Sophomore ball Saturday, June 7. In addition, Emerson's group will put on a 25 minute floor show, with three singers supplying vocal renditions of popular ballads which are currently on the hit parade.

Forensic Society To Hold Student Congress May 3

The Northern California Forensic Association will hold its third Student Congress at the college on Saturday, May 3, Michael Griffin, debating society sponsor, revealed yesterday.

Under consideration by the student congress will be bills proposing legislation on The Role of the United States in Economic Foreign Aid, Griffin said.

This Congress will be divided into the two uniform houses; the senate and house of representatives with copies of bills passed by both houses to be submitted to California senators and representatives in the United States Congress.

Representatives from Stanford, California, University of San Francisco, Santa Clara, Nevada, Chico State, Modesto, S. F. College for Women, College of Marin, Mills College, San Mateo, and Monterey Peninsula College, have been invited to attend and participate in the proceedings.

Last year's NCFA Student Congress was held at Stanford University.

Forum Manuscripts Up For Judging

Judging of Forum Magazine contributions began immediately after the deadline last Friday, according to Dorothy Mercer, adviser. The publication date has been set for June 2.

She said the magazine will be available to Associated Students for 50 cents.

The committee judging manuscripts are as follows: Duane Belcher, editor, Allen J. Bostick, Anna Buonocristiani, Wray Jacobs, and Charles H. Osborne. The magazine will be printed by Henry Louie.

As of last week, a final check of contributions disclosed that a lack of humorous material was evident, according to Miss Mercer.

Students Pass Civil Service Ex

The Limited Tenure Civil Service Examinations, given on Monday, April 7, at the City Hall, were passed by two City College students, Barbara Arjo and Mary Campo, a spokesman for the Recreational Leadership Department announced recently.

Miss Arjo was appointed to a job as substitute for the Department of Education in school playgrounds in San Francisco. She went before the board and asked for a postponement of the acceptance until May, so that she might finish her field work at the Community Center, part of her major in recreational leadership.

Miss Campo has been notified that she passed the test, but has not yet received appointment to a job, the spokesman said.

Coed Here Tells Of Red Threat

Priest Aids Cynthia Chiang In Escape

By Nini Aigeltinger

When the Communists neared Shanghai early in May, 1949, Cynthia Chiang was a senior at Aurora High School. It was a tense atmosphere that spring in China. All the communication lines around Shanghai were cut.

Her parents had always wanted her to go abroad to study. The alarming proximity of the Communists hastened their decision to send her to the United States for a college education.

In August she fled to Hong Kong, where she obtained a passport to this country. Before she left her native country, a Catholic priest helped her obtain a scholarship from the Chinese Catholic Central Bureau to Benedictine Heights College in Guthrie, Oklahoma.

She arrived in the United States in December 1949, and after one semester (the length of her scholarship grant) in Oklahoma, she came to San Francisco. Miss Chiang entered this college in the fall of 1950. After her graduation this June, her goal is the University of California, where she will undertake a journalism major.

CYNTHIA CHIANG . . . "it was a tense atmosphere that Spring in China." —Photo by Al Vipiano.

English, which she speaks with remarkable smoothness despite her short two year stay here, was learned in high school "as a foreign language."

Congress Act Makes U. S. Study Possible

"It wasn't a difficult language to learn," Miss Chiang commented, "but American slang took me a while to get on to."

Although the colloquialisms in the language stymied her for a short time, she has caught on to American college styles rapidly, for she wears typical coed garb — a blue sweater, grey skirt and saddle shoes.

Just 19 years old, Miss Chiang is attractive with her long black curly hair and flashing smile. She is impressed with the college, and speaks favorably of its faculty and students.

Studying in the United States under a student visa, she must renew the visa each year at the U. S. Immigration office in San Francisco. According to the provisions of a recent Congressional act, she explained, it will be possible for her to stay in this country for three years after her graduation from college.

She hasn't decided whether she'll take advantage of those extra three years or return to China. "After all," she said with a smile, "that's quite a long time off."

Construction Work To Widen Phelan Avenue Starts In June

By Charles Lane

Long-awaited construction to widen Phelan Avenue will begin in early June, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

The street will be widened from Ocean Avenue to Judson Avenue and, when completed, will allow for four lanes of traffic with diagonal parking permitted on either side of the street, President Conlan said.

During the period of construction, which will be done through the San Francisco Public Works Department, two lanes of traffic will be open at all times, but no parking on the street will be permitted.

Recently workmen have begun removing part of the lawn area in front of the main building to facilitate the increase in width of the street.

Added to the necessity of cutting into the lawn area, it will also be necessary to remove four of the quonset huts in Hurley Village used by the families of the veterans attending the college.

Although actual construction is set to begin next month, past history shows that the plans for the widening of the street are by no means new.

In 1948 the faculty association led by Thomas R. Porter, Science instructor, cognizant of the extreme need for widening of the street, wrote a letter to Thomas Brooks, chief city administration officer, pointing out the necessity for some sort of improvement in the street.

Porter declared at the time that the plans offered were still in the formulative stage.

Brooks described the difficulties in carrying out such a broad plan and said that no work could be done for at least a year; however, nothing more was done, and no future action to carry out the plans was undertaken.

Guardsman editorials for the next two and a half years urged that immediate action on the widening of the street be taken because "The street was and still is a virtual death trap for the students crossing between classes."

Traffic regulations for the use of the parking areas on the west campus and behind the main building, both of which are entered from Phelan Avenue, will be issued before construction begins in June, administration sources said.

Petitions To Run For AS Offices Due May 20

With elections for student government offices scheduled for Tuesday, May 27, and Wednesday, May 28, petitions became available Monday, May 12, according to Election Commissioner Jim Bouick.

The deadline for submission of petitions to run for office is Tuesday, May 20. Full election requirements will be released this week, Bouick said. The election rally is scheduled for Friday, May 23, in building 1.

Petitions can be obtained in the student government office or from the Dean of Men in building 2, Bouick said. The petitions must be signed by Registrar Mary Jane Learnard, Dean of Women Margaret Dougherty or Dean of Men Louis G. Batmale, a bank official in the main building, the student's counsellor and 10 Associated Student members, Bouick explained.

The offices to be filled by the elections include president, vice-president, Associated Men Student president, Associated Women Student president, sophomore president, freshman president, yell leader, seven sophomore council seats, and seven freshman council seats.

Constitutional requirements for candidates include completion of 30 units with a "C" average for freshman president; completion of 30 units or more with a "C" average for sophomore or freshman council seats; and completion of 45 units with a "C" average for president, vice-president and sophomore president. AMS and AWS president also must have completed 30 units or more with a "C" average.

The "C" average applies to all semesters of the candidate's enrollment here.

The fraternity party held its nominating convention last night in the student lounge.

Dean Lists Book Sale Regulations

Regulations for the sale of used text books were listed last week by Acting Dean of Men Louis Batmale. The regulations were formulated and agreed upon by the three local book stores in the campus area.

They are as follows:

Books will be re-purchased up to and including the last day for filing for leave of absence only if accompanied by an official blue change of program form or an official pink leave of absence form. Refunds in full will be made during the first two weeks of the semester on "unblemished" books; Batmale said.

Students should report loss of books immediately to the office of the Dean of Men.

Books that are found should be returned to the office of the Dean of Men or to the telephone operator in the main building.

College, City Officials Join Forces To Dedicate Track, Open Mardi Gras

Ocean Avenue Merchants To Ride New Car

By Edwina Kilroen

Pageantry and progress team up as the dedication of the circular track and City College station combines with the Mardi Gras, Friday, May 16.

Mayor Elmer Robinson heads the list of city officials, Ocean Avenue merchants, and college representatives to be feted at a pre-celebration banquet on campus, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week.

Next stop for the dedication officials will be the station where they will board the new K-car and ride out to West Portal. Reversing their run at the tunnel they will return and join with the Mardi Gras floats and cars at Junipero Serra Boulevard to proceed down Ocean Avenue to the college.

Following official ceremonies conducted by the mayor, the new K-car will be opened for inspection by the public, and Mardi Gras festivities will complete the evening.

Concluding their three day valine day the Ocean Avenue merchants will raffle off a $3,000 insured mink coat to store patrons, Saturday, May 16, in the Homewood Terrace playground, according to Edward King, Ocean Avenue Merchant Association president.

Concurrently the K-line will receive 12 streamlined President Conference cars for the Market Street-Phelan Avenue route.

Parade, Carnival Friday Night Feature Floats, Concessions

By Gary Wormser

Led by city leaders and college officials, a float parade down Ocean Avenue opens the college's annual Mardi Gras celebration this Friday night with a carnival spirit prevailing over the entire campus and community.

Stan Fletcher, Associated Men Students president, whose group sponsors the event said last last week the parade would start at Junipero Serra and Ocean Avenues.

Elmer E. Robinson, mayor; Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools; Louis G. Conlan, college president; and Ed "Horsetrader Ed" Sapiro are expected to ride in lead cars which are convertibles loaned by Sapiro.

Some 18 decorated floats built by Ocean Avenue merchants, who this year are co-sponsoring the event, will follow the lead cars in a procession down Ocean Avenue to the college entrance where official dedication of the City College Station will take place.

Following the dedication, actual celebration begins on the west campus when concession booths, sponsored by college clubs and organizations, will be opened.

Of approximately 24 possible concessions sponsored by campus organizations, 13 were released for publication as follows: Comic Photography, sponsored by the Hillel Foundation; Marry'n Sani, Alpha Sigma Delta; White Mouse Race, Kappa Phi; Ye Old Spinnin' Wheel, Gamma Phi Ypsilon; Darts and Cards, Newman Club; Down Yonder, Theta Tau; Wheel of Fortune, Tri Epsilon; Win a Fishbowl, Filipino Club, Zeta Toot, Zeta Chi; Basketball Throw, Block S. F.; Pool Shot, Phi Beta Delta; Dunking Booth, Beta Tau; Ring the Bell, Alpha Kappa Rho.

The college drama club, under the direction of Michael Griffin, will present as their part in the Mardi Gras celebration, a number of skits with western themes in Build nu 2.

The events will come to a climax with a dance in the auditorium at 10 p.m.

According to Fletcher, the dance is sponsored by the college band association.

During the dance, a perpetual trophy will be presented for the best booth and float, and loving cups will be given to the Mardi Gras King and Queen.

Kent Reno and Betty Jo Cotton were selected as King and Queen by students of Marin Junior College, Fletcher said.

Other candidates were Dawn Kidd

Leave of Absence Deadline May 21

Students expecting to obtain a leave of absence must do so by Wednesday, May 21, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced last week.

To obtain a leave of absence, Miss Learnard explained, the student must have his counsellor's permission and an official petition blank. Men students, she added, must receive approval from F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare.

Veteran students are cleared through the Veterans office. The purpose of this clearance, Miss Learnard declared, is to inform the student's draft board that he is no longer attending the college.

Bank To Refund Cost Of Unused Car Tickets

All students who have Municipal Railway car tickets which still have unused rides on them are urged to redeem them at the college bank, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator of educational management, announced last week.

Recent restrictions placed on use of the cards by college students, the foreseen invalidation of the orange cards, and the subsequent issuance of new, gray cards, make it wise for the students to turn in their unused cards as soon as possible, and receive the money due them, Anderson added.

The recent request made to the Public Utilities Commission by the college administration to permit college students to use the cards is still under consideration.

Reply to the college request was delayed pending the outcome of a request by the Public Utilities Commission for an increase in transit fares, effective June 1.

Since action on this request has subsequently been taken by the Board of Supervisors, a reply to the college's request is expected, Anderson said.

Deadline For Soph King-Queen Contest May 21

The Sophomore Week committee has its program in full swing with deadline for petitions for king-queen contest entrants set for Wednesday, May 21.

The sophomore ball site will be the Berkeley Women's City Club, Ralph Marinelli, class president, said yesterday.

Voting for the royal sophomore couple will be conducted at the entrance to the dance, Saturday, June 7, Martinelli declared.

The winners of the contest, who will be named during the ball, will receive gifts and trophies, obtained through donations, plus an evening of dinner and dancing tentatively scheduled for the following Sunday, June 8.

Petitions for the contest were passed out to representatives of on-campus organizations at a recent Club Activities Board meeting.

A poll is now being taken by the committee polling student opinion as to whether the dance should be formal or semi-formal. Bids will be sold at $2 per couple.

Bob Emerson's eight-piece band will supply music and entertainment for the affair.

Besides Marinelli, the sophomore committee includes Bob Clancey, class vice-president; Elli Lange, secretary; Ken Anderson, George Corby, and Ken Dunwiddie, managers. Unofficial committee members are Mel Watson, manager, and Violet Litras, secretary.

Three Win Class Of '51 Scholarships

Three class of '51 scholarships of $50 each were awarded to Joan Gock, Paul Mansfield, and William Paterson, at a rally held April 25, during college hour.

The scholarships, collected through donations by members of the class of '51, were presented to the winners by Sophomore president Ralph Marinelli.

Miss Gock, a second semester student at the college and a graduate of Lincoln High School, is planning a secretarial career. She has maintained almost a straight "A" average while attending the college, according to F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare and chairman of the '51 scholarship committee.

Mansfield, a graduate of Huntington Park High School, and a fourth semester student at the college, is a letters and science major.

Paterson, a 20-year old graduate of George Washington High School, has followed a pre-dental course at the college and has made application to enter the University of California this Fall.

Phelan Avenue Widening Job May End A College Tradition

THE work soon to be undertaken on Phelan Avenue may bring to a possible end an editorial practice which has gone a long way towards becoming a college tradition; namely, editorials pointing up the necessity of widening Phelan Avenue and reducing its frightening potentialities as a death trap.

Plans for the widening of Phelan Avenue were initiated in 1947. Following a year of inaction, Guardsman editorials pointed out the immediate need for putting the plans into effect with such reminders as:

"We have been lucky thus far in that there have been no deaths or crippling injuries as a result of the inadequacy of the present street, but no one can predict what will happen within a year. . . . Now is the time for action before it is too late!"

Each semester thereafter, The Guardsman has editorially called attention to the avenue's serious threat to the safety of students and citizens in the community.

This semester, through pictures and an objective account of the increase in traffic in the college vicinity, The Guardsman again related the inevitable dangers that could result.

Now, after more than four years, plans are moving toward reality with the announcement from college officials that widening of the thoroughfare would begin in June. We are glad.

It is about time!

Mardi Gras . . . A Sure Spring Tonic

THE Associated Men Students-sponsored Mardi Gras this Friday night should come as a welcomed Spring tonic to cure the after effects of something as un-Spring-like as midterm examinations which the large number of students here seemed to have survived last week.

The Mardi Gras, one of the traditional events of the college year, strikes us as a worthwhile project. All of San Francisco will be given the opportunity to see the results of college-community planning in full effect with the dedication of City College Station, and the value days sponsored by neighboring Ocean Avenue merchants. These events, highlighted by college and civic luminaries, will serve as a prelude to the actual celebration on the west campus.

This college's Mardi Gras celebrations have always been supported enthusiastically by a large segment of students and the public. And, too, usually favorable San Francisco Spring weather adds to the gay carnival spirit which overtakes the west campus for a night.

We anticipate this same—if not greater—response to the event this year since, with the added support of the loyal Ocean Avenue merchants, a good deal of time and effort has gone into sponsorship of the festivities.

And for those who consistently bemoan the fact that "nothing ever happens around here," let Friday night's colorful entertainment-filled Mardi Gras show them otherwise.

Student Problems Interest Visitor In Bay Area Survey Tour

JOSE LUIS REYES, former resident of Mexico and instructor of Spanish at the University of Mexico, is presently conducting a personal survey of Bay Area colleges in order "to understand student problems and the motivation of American students to college life," and thus visited the college recently.

Mainly interested in individual students, Reyes will visit campuses at San Francisco State, University of San Francisco, and the University of California. He declared he will settle down in San Francisco and seek a teaching position.

Senor Reyes has had a wide background of teaching in U. S. colleges. He taught Spanish at the University of Maryland and at Southern Illinois University and has done graduate work at the University of Minnesota.

His opinion of American educational methods is both "pro and con." He feels that the teaching method employed in this country is excellent and "provides an opportunity to learn by doing."

"I am in favor of U. S. education," he said. "It gives the student enormous opportunities even though the average student does not realize the fact."

He was especially complimentary of the counselling and guidance programs offered in United States education but recognized on the other hand, that "juvenile delinquency problems are still great."

Figure Eights . . .

Rally commissioner Paul Bixel will be on the roster of the Ice Follies when it opens in San Francisco this coming July. He has performed with the skating troupe before and is concentrating heavily on figure skating this summer.

Fingers To Hands . . .

Burtis Bridges, college law enforcement instructor, has recently seen published a volume of poems he wrote while convalescing in the hospital. Among his other contributions to the literary world are an article concerning fingerprinting in ancient times and a book he is now completing entitled The Tree of Red Hands which concerns life among primitive Indian tribes.

The Memory Lingers . . .

Exactly five years, two months and two days ago the 3,000 pound Ram, now the mascot of the college, was placed in its present position of vigilance. The oft-traveled, oft-spattered with paint, redwood symbol's anniversary almost was ignored, so here, better late than never, his anniversary is marked.

Combined Forces . . .

Three active members of the Newman club are veterans of the Korean campaign. They are Jack McCartney, Marine Corp.; Carl Lawson, Army; and Ed Jerpe, Navy.

Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star

Daylight Saving's Gone Too Far

By Barry Clare

The switch to daylight saving time is cheating the college's astronomy students out of a "live" view of the stars.

An extra hour of sunlight, obtained when the clocks were set back recently, has made it impossible for students to study the stars during class, according to Louis Berman, astronomy instructor.

Since the sky does not darken until late in the evening, Berman revealed, the class, which was formerly held on Monday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. is now conducted on Tuesdays at 12 noon.

On clear nights, which were few and far between anyway, the class studied the various constellations from the roof of the main building, but now the best they can do is to view the stars by means of a machine which projects their image upon the planetarium wall.

All hope is not lost, however, for all that is needed is a rocket ship capable of reaching the moon. At this vantage point, the star-gazers would have a field day. In that location there would be no fear of daylight savings time.

Since the moon's sky would appear black instead of blue, students could see the stars at any time during the day. Also the twinkling appearance would not be visible and observers could get a clear look at the stars.

Until intrepid astronomy students "blast off" (according to the newly accepted vernacular of space heroes) toward the stars they will have to be content with the present circumstances.

And—until rocket ships are built, students in Astronomy 2A must be content to see the stars in the college planetarium—not the "night" sky.

Symposium Points Way To Judge The Tool Of A Student's Trade

HOW do you appraise a textbook? Perhaps the most constructive result of a recent symposium titled The Textbook In America, which appeared in the April 19 Saturday Review, was a valuable method of judging this tool of a student's trade.

First step in judging is a check of the copyright date of the text—because opinions shift with the sands of time. Ideas which were valid in 1920 assume quite a different complexion 30 years later. In short, look first at the publication date before you criticize.

As a second point, the method asks, is the author's evaluation of material objective?

Wanderings from fact are usually easily spotted. Writing in the Saturday Review, an educator, Professor J. D. Hicks of the University of California, admits that in end the textbook author emerges "in due time with his own personal synthesis of the whole, or at least part, of the field to which he has devoted his life."

It is up to the student then to judge the opinion of the author when and if it does appear separately from the material.

The presentation of a section of history, for example, may suffer if the author has not presented a full roster of facts. Isolated material may be misleading and harmful. This was another consideration listed as a guide for analyzing a textbook.

The end feeling experienced by the reader is a fourth important factor. Has the textbook allowed him room for discrimination and evaluation or has he been taught to accept "unthinkingly everything he reads?"

Finally, when the book is set down, does the reader get the impression that the book, as a whole, was deliberately swayed to one side?

In our free society, textbooks assume an impressive significance. In other nations, totalitarian in form, the school book has been recognized as a weapon.

Here in the United States we must guard the minds of school children by evaluating the kind of material they are absorbing in their classrooms.—By Bob Reilly.

Campus Symbols

Science, Art Are Mural Themes

By Charles Lane

Even the most passive, academic minded student in his journeying about the campus can but be amazed by the varied, somewhat unusual, and rather modernistic architectural design to be found in the college, especially in the main college building, or officially, the science building.

Through the main entrance of the building, the first objects to catch the eye are two large murals on either side of the wall.

Fred Olmsted, the sculptor, chose the theme of Theory and Science for his creation.

It represents youth at work in the various branches of technology, such as the study of animals and organisms, the study of the atom, the study of space, geology, and the study of the earth and of evolution.

The two mosaics to be found on the north and south ends of the building were done by sculptor Hermann Voltz.

Voltz chose as his theme the Interaction of Science and Interaction of Mechanisms. The mosaics represent the influence of youth and education, and youth's relation to science and mechanical devices.

Those two impressive and somewhat large sculptured heads placed at the back of the building have posed many interesting questions, mainly concerning their origin and exactly whom they are supposed to represent.

The heads were sculptured by Olmsted to represent two famous leaders in science.

One of them is of the famous American scientist, who is accredited with the invention of the electric light, Thomas Edison. The second of the two was sculptured to represent the world famous Italian artist and scientist, Leonardo de Vinci.

Thus even today, these imposing figures are a continuous reminder to students of two of the greatest men in the fields of art and science, and of the great advancements they helped to accomplish in the continuing progress of mankind.

Dictionary Tops Best Seller List

Students here apparently are becoming more discriminating in their choice and use of words—that is, if best-seller lists are any indication.

This fact was brought to light, when it was reported recently that the pocket book edition of the dictionary has become the best seller at the Ramporium, campus bookstore, according to Dick Main, manager.

He said in comparison that any single novel is outsold at the ratio of 10 to one by the dictionary.

Night Hike

. . . Or How NOT To Go Camping

By Gloria Lorenzo

Where there's smoke, there's fire.

Walter Finn, Muir Woods park commissioner, believed this to be correct one Saturday evening in the not-so-distant past when Larry Conmey, a student here, and a friend, decided to hike to Muir Woods.

They visited a friend on the way, they said, and started later than they had planned. They entered the dark woods, "saw" not a single prohibitive sign, and built a campfire.

"There we were . . . enjoying the nice fire when out of the dark stalks the Park Commissioner," Conmey related.

Finn took him gently by the arm and flashed a light on the nearby and numerous signs prohibiting various activities, camping among them.

Out went the fire, and up to the Commissioner's office went the three.

The following Monday, Louis F. Batmale, acting dean of men here, received a telephone call from Finn. The punishment was made to fit the crime. (See Ram's horn, this page.)

• Enjoy the park, but . . .

(The writer of the following letter went on a camping trip in Muir Woods one night last month. At the time he unknowingly violated Park Commission regulations strictly prohibiting such adventure. As a result, Park Commission authorities gave him his choice of two penalties he must pay for violating the regulations, one of which was less severe than the other. The writer chose the latter penalty which involved writing a letter to this newspaper for the express purpose of informing his fellow students of the existing rules. The Guardsman is happy to comply with this request.—The Editor.)

To Whom It May Concern:

The following rules are to be observed when at Muir Woods National Park Monument:

1—No one allowed in park after dark.
2—No fires at any time.
3—Do not pick or trample foliage.
4—Use refuse cans for garbage.
5—Clean up the picnic area when you are finished.

• Politics

Editor, The Guardsman:

A change is pending in the conduct of campus politics, and I feel that the students should know why. For the past several semesters a few of us have tried to maintain interest in student government by keeping alive a second party on campus to give the independent students a chance to participate in student elections. (By independent, we mean those who do not belong to fraternities and sororities, and not fraternity men running independently.)

Our repeated efforts to get students to vote have failed, for apathy is rampant. If the independent students ever did get out and vote, the fraternities would be overwhelmed, but otherwise, a handful of energetic fraternity people are the main body of voters.

Few people are willing to run independently, for they must face not only open hostility by fraternities and sororities, but apathy by their fellow students which makes them wonder whether or not people want student government. There has never been a semester when even a quarter of the students have voted. . . . This, then, may be called the epitath of the second party: Smothered by apathy.

Sincerely,
Ron Zimmerman, A.S. No. 880

Boxing Hopefuls May 28 In Intramural Tournament; Signup Deadline This Friday

By Joe Callas

Although the Ram boxing team disbanded this year, the annual intramural boxing tournament will be held on Wednesday night, May 28. Deadline to enter the tournament is Friday, May 16.

The tournament will be split up into two divisions, with the advanced group consisting of those who have had previous experience in boxing, and the novice group is made up of boxers who have no organized ring experience.

The age-old excuse of being too small will not be accepted since there will be eleven weight divisions, ranging from the flyweights to the heavyweights.

Director of intramural sports, Tom Wilson, advises all participants to contact Roy Diedrichsen in the men's gymnasium and start getting into shape as soon as possible. Workouts will be held two days a week, after the daily gym schedule is concluded.

Expected to head the list of boxers in the tournament are members of this year's now defunct Ram boxing team, namely Elmo Ellis, recently out of Commerce High School, Ted Floyd, George Perry, and Bill Ninnis. Others who have entered the senior division are Ashbury Butler, 125, Pasqual Sanchez, 135, and Charles Howell, 165. In the novice division, Ray Adams, 125, Bob Bukowatz, 135, and a pair of heavyweights, Richard Schultz and Frank Walters.

Ellis a welterweight, has a rich amateur boxing background. His biggest ring achievement was participating in the 1951 Golden Gloves championship. However, he was beaten in the semi-finals of the PAA tourney held earlier this year.

Ted Floyd, Ninnis, and Perry will be favorites to repeat their intramural boxing championships of 1951. Winners of the bouts will receive gold miniature boxing gloves, while the losers will receive silver gloves.

Ellis could conceivably be the winner of the trophy that will be awarded to the best all-around pugilist in the tournament, however, he must face stiff competition from the rest of the field.

The bouts which will be held in the men's gymnasium on Wednesday night, May 28, will prove as exciting and entertaining as in the years past.

The softball tournament deadline was extended from April 23 to May 6, in order to have more teams entered in the competition.

Netters Off To LA For Finals

Having completed their regular season with a 4-2 record, the Ram tennis team leaves for the State Championships at Los Angeles next Thursday, May 22-24.

Coach Roy Deiderichsen has high hopes that his group will be able to capture a few State tourney matches with top seeded Rams, Bob and Don Mays expected to carry the heavy part of the attack in the three-day event.

The Mays, who have improved their play consistently, shared the spotlight in the 7-0 trouncing of Santa Rosa, May 3.

The locals will be at full strength for the championships, since Bob Elies and John Lew have recovered from recent injuries.

Although the Rams are hopeful of victory, they have to encounter the Modesto Pirates, led by Jerry De Witts and Norm Peterson, who have shut-out the locals already this year, and are rated as heavy favorites to walk off with the junior college division championships.

Last week the Rams competed in the Big Seven Conference Championships at Modesto, May 8-10.

Diederichsen has tentatively named the Mays brothers and possibly other Rams, including Bob Elies, to carry this college's colors into the tourney.

With Modesto and the Rams rated the number one and two junior college teams in northern California, the two squads are expected to give the southern teams a vicious battle for state supremacy.

The locals finished second in regular conference play behind Modesto, who closed out the season with an impressive, 6-0, record.

Bauer, Wade Win, Power Tracksters Into Fourth Place

By Bob Snow

Ron Bauer, the college's classiest miler, showed his heels to all opponents as he roared home with a 30 yard victory in the Big Seven Championships at Santa Rosa, Saturday night, May 3. His time was 4:27.

Bauer, who has been off top form lately, celebrated his 20th birthday in high style, with lap times of :61, 2:09, and 3:19.2, and could have walked the last 100 yards and won. His nearest rival to appear over the horizon was Modesto's Allen Dunn, who literally choked from the clouds of dust that Bauer left behind.

Only other Ram victor was reliable Vern Chambers, who outclassed the field in the high hurdles in :15.7 seconds. Chambers outlasted Jim Thomas of Contra Costa.

Thomas ran three trial heats in the afternoon, and came back to compete in the finals at night. He won the hundred and low hurdles, lost the high sticks to Chambers.

Harry Wade, who has shattered the winning times in the 100 and 220 yard dashes of 10.2 and 21.8, respectively, got off to bad starts and had to drive to place second and third in the two events.

Contra Costa's Bob Denny won the high-jump with a mediocre leap of 5' 9". Ram Track Coach, Roy Burkhead stated his own Ted Worral has been hovering around the six feet mark during practice, but has been unable to produce in the meets.

With a 25.1 in the 220 low hurdles, Vandolf Parrish edged out teammate for second place while Thomas captured the event in 25 seconds flat.

Although the conference championships concludes the regular season, Coach Burkhead will send Bauer, Chambers, Wade and Parrish to the California Relays at Modesto.

Oddity of the night was the mysterious and unexplained failure of the Stockton Mustang squad to show up for the conference championships.

Final scores were:

1—Sacramento, 39 1-6; 2—Modesto, 30 5-6; 3 — West Contra Costa, 30 2-3; 4— City College, 23½; 5—Santa Rosa, 21 1-6; and San Mateo, 6 2-3.

Following results are for Ram participants only: Mile—Bauer (SFCC), Dunn (M), Bacta (S), Little (M) — 4:27. 100 — Thomas (WCC), Wade (SFCC), Cruikshank (WCC)—10.2. 220 — Cruikshank (WCC), Jacobs (SR), Wade (SFCC) — 21.8. 120 High Hurdles—Chambers (SFCC), Thomas (WCC), Hills (SR)—:15.7. 220 Low Hurdles — Thomas (WCC), Parrish (SFCC), Chambers (SFCC)—:25 flat. Discus—Ankeny (SR), Witham (SR), Reno (M), Jackson (SFCC) — 127 feet 1 inch.

WAA Folk Dance Group Schedules Open House Soon

Women's Athletic Association members yesterday invited all students to their folk dancing party on Friday, May 23, in the women's gymnasium, Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser, announced yesterday.

The folk dancing will begin at 7:30 p.m., and the 50 cents admission includes refreshments. Women should wear cotton dresses or folk dance costumes.

Mirium Gevertz will be in charge; Barhara Lang, is program and food chairman; Ed Dellaha is handling the publicity; Frank Mera is the decorator and Christina Hansen will be the entertainer.

The Emporium at Stonestown, grand opening, scheduled for the latter part of May, will include a variety show featuring some of the college's folk dancing members in a series of western square dances. The partners who will dance are Joanna Smith and Howard Webb, Christina Hansen and Bob Anderson, Lois Hadson and Ed Dellaha, and Claire Lippi and Dave Wenzlaff.

Last Monday, 14 folk dancers gave an exhibition and later instructed the young peoples' group of a near-by Episcopalian church.

The college will send two representatives to Washington High's Sports Banquet, Catalina Capers and Luau, on Wednesday, May 21.

Recently the college played host to Washington's badminton team and to Balboa's basketball group.

Last week the college played host to San Mateo, and Marin Junior college's badminton teams. San Mateo was the victor and the meet was followed by a buffet dinner.

At Napa's Junior college's badminton and archery playday, Don Geraldi placed third in archery and Al Roberts placed fourth out of 25 participants. Angela Ring and her badminton partner, Larry Dolgin, were in the semi-finals of the mixed doubles and Tom Reid and Dolgin placed second in the men's doubles.

Hoberg, Clausen Star As Ram Baseball Team Ends Season; Doubleheader On Tap This Week

By Jack Baird

Closing out the regular season play with a 3-7 record, Coach Bill Fischer's baseball team will have one more doubleheader on tap, when they cross bats with Modesto this week.

The Modesto game was originally scheduled for mid-season, but was postponed due to rainy weather in the valley city. The game will be important because sixth place in the conference and possibly fifth will go to the locals, if they sweep both ends of the twin bill, on the fence observers believe.

Last week, after winning the first game from San Mateo, 5-1, the Rams dropped the second one, last Saturday at Big Rec, by a 9-8 score in ten innings.

In the first game, Dave Tivio started but was relieved in the ninth by Jerry Pandolfi, who successfully staved off a San Mateo rally to give Tivio his second win of the season in conference play. He now has a 1-1 record.

Six extra base blows accounted for most of the Ram runs. There were two triples and four doubles. George Hoberg led the hitting with a triple, double and a single and batted in one run and scored two.

The second game was highlighted by a rally in the ninth to tie the game at eight runs apiece, but was lost to the locals when the Bulldogs rallied for the tie breaker in the tenth.

Also splitting with Stockton in two games, by scores of 2-1, and 7-5, the Rams came up with another hitting start. Charlie Clausen, who got four for four in the second game and led the Rams to victory by batting in four of the seven Ram runs.

Winning pitcher was Jim McNeill, who gave up 5 runs, 8 hits, struck out 2 and walked 3.

The first game, in which San Francisco led until the seventh 1-0, was pitched by Rich Kaler. Kaler began to tire in the seventh and was hit by Stockton for two runs. Jim McNeill relieved in the ninth and was tagged for two more runs.

The Rams scored one in the second as Greenberg singled George Zucca across, and one in the ninth on a double by Art Ensegbe and a single by Catcher Tom James.

The Rams also pulled two double plays.

Golfers Leave For State Conference Finals Friday

After winding up its season in fourth place the Ram golf team will trek to Stockton, Friday for the first half of the state conference finals. On Saturday they will play at Modesto on the Del Rio Golf and Country Club layout.

Modesto, the favorite expected to cop the title, should be a hard team to beat, but with a little more practice on the part of other teams they can be licked, according to observers.

Although the team lost to them in a recent match, Dick Kucich, playing the number one spot for the college, scored two points as he medaled a 73 to down Ruben Solario.

The Del Rio layout, a comparatively new course, was in excellent condition when the Rams played. They scored well considering it was the first time they played it.

Colleges that will be represented at the finals include: Stockton J. C., Contra Costa, San Mateo, and Modesto. Sacramento and Santa Rosa failed to field a team.

Coach Ralph Hillsman revealed "that there is a possibility of sending some of our top men to Los Angeles to compete in the state championship on May 19 if they make a good showing at Modesto and Stockton."

Hillsman added that a trophy will be given to one member of the team voted by his fellow golfers as the most valuable player at the annual Block S. F. banquet.

Other teams finished their league matches last week with Modesto coming out on top, San Mateo was second, Contra Costa is third, the Rams are fourth, and Stockton is last.

The team is currently practicing at Harding Park where they are ironing out the kinks in their game.

Those that will represent the college at the conference finals include Dick Kucich, Andy Barbera, Stan Rienfeld, Barry Clare, Ken Keep and Chuck Pabe.

Soph-Prof Tilt Slated For June 6

Out to make it four wins in a row, the professors take on the lowly sophomores in their annual grudge softball match, to be held during college hour, Friday, June 6.

Athlete Commissioner, Marvin Ussery, announced that spokesmen for the respective groups have been notified concerning the date and the playing site.

Members of the teams will be announced shortly and practice for the coming tilt will begin immediately.

According to Ussery, Jack Brady, dean of semi-professional courses, will captain the professors, while the sophomore's leader is undetermined. (However, in all possibility, Ussery will be the sophomore captain.)

TIRED of being whipped by four-year colleges here on the mainland, the hospitable Hawaiian basketball teams will change their policy and adopt west coast junior college clubs to their schedules.

This bit of news, reported by a reliable source, was followed by a report that Big Seven Conference Champion and Northern California's top junior college basketball team, City College of San Francisco, will be one of the first schools selected to participate in a week-long game-tour of the islands. The tour is slated to take place during December—probably during the Christmas vacation layoff.

Aside from the contests against the island's college, service and industrial teams, a stay at the famous Waikiki Beach will probably be on the itinerary along with an excursion to the many tourist attractions.

With this inception of an island tour, west cage experts feel the caliber of junior college basketball, which has developed players further along in two years than many four year institutions, will even increase when the coast teams meet teams boasting of four year veterans and teams deserving a near professional status.

Heretofore, four-year colleges have cashed in on the publicity and interest accorded to island-bound clubs, but with the advent of new playing sites for junior college teams, more interest is expected to follow.

Within three years, through a series of fund-raising promotions, neighboring Riordan High School will have an athletic plant that will be the envy of any school in the Bay Area.

Led by the Riordan Club and Riordan Guild, parent organizations of the school, a concrete bleacher seating 11,000 spectators, will be erected to house the football, baseball and track teams.

The first fund-raising event, a carnival held on the school grounds recently was termed a success by Edwin J. Duggan, chairman of the special committee to help raise funds for the needed facility. "But," he went on to say, "in order to complete the project in the specified period, a lot more money-raising projects are being planned."

"Although over-all costs have not yet been determined by the committee," Mr. Duggan stated, "bids from various contractors are being considered."

Chivalry is still alive! Well in the sports world, anyway. When Arizona State college met Phoenix college on the basketball floor, they arrived with only seven men. Four of them fouled out before the end of the game.

The Phoenix college coach promptly yanked two of his men off the floor and played Arizona State on even terms, three against three. Final score: Phoenix College 60, Arizona State 52.

Council Adjusts Band, Phi Rho Pi Activity Funds

Student Council last week considered two budget adjustments, Associated Student membership majorities in on-campus clubs, and preparations for the semi-annual student government banquet.

The band and orchestra, which had been granted $125 in the original AS budget, was granted only $100, because less than one-half of its members were AS members. This grant was more than the 50 per-cent usually released in such cases.

The other budget adjustment transferred $40 from the executive council budget to Phi Rho Pi to make up the deficit incurred during the recent student congress held on the campus.

Larry Elizardi, card sales chairman, revealed that many clubs that have been declared on-campus by the Club Activities Board do not have the Associated Student membership majority required by the CAB constitution. After a number of resolutions had been proposed to correct this situation, a committee was appointed to investigate the matter.

The resolution, passed by a vote of 10 to 2, appointed Associated Men Student President Stan Fletcher, Associated Women Student President Cathy Sheehan, and Finance Chairman Norm Heise as the three-member committee.

The council selected Thursday, June 5, as the date for the semi-annual student government banquet, although the place has not yet been selected.

Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, has accepted an invitation to attend.

Cafeteria Blaze Extinguished By College Firemen

Practical experience in fire control and college departmental cooperation was demonstrated here at 9:26 a.m. on April 30 when a small flame broke out in the cafeteria kitchen.

The grease-caused fire, which was completely accidental, was put out in three minutes by a Fire College class using a C02 extinguisher. No serious damage to the kitchen equipment resulted, Michael LoPresti, director of training, reported.

Hotel and Restaurant Division students are now hearing a series of lectures given by the Fire College staff, but LoPresti stressed the fact that the lecture series was planned well in advance of the fire.

The third lecture will be on the various aspects of fire prevention including building inspections with Chief William Gilmore in charge this Friday. Next week the final lecture will be complemented by actual field experience.

The new sign above the Fire College in Building 4 was designed by staff artist Charles Shaw. A new member has been added to the training staff with the arrival of Russell Morris, Chief in Residence.

Flower Group Win Prizes At Garden Show

Both divisions of the floriculture department placed first in their respective exhibits at the annual California Spring Garden Show, held at the Oakland Municipal Auditorium from April 25 to May 2.

For the sixth consecutive time, the college Flower Shop won the blue ribbon for its entry in the Scientific and Educational Exhibits classification. The entry was constructed to fit the theme of the show, Modern Brazilian Style of Architecture.

It consisted of a replica of the huge, massive, but simplified structures which are typical of Brazilian architecture. The concrete buildings and towers were represented by pedestals and islands made to seem like poured concrete and reinforced steel, according to John Lawrence, flower shop instructor.

The Brazilian theme was carried out still further with a typical jungle background for the structures. Because of the size of the display, it had to be made in 15 separate pieces and pre-fabricated here at the college.

The hard work which some 50-odd students did on the project was not to be wasted, Lawrence added, because the exhibit was designed to fit the purposes of providing equipment for future use in the flower shop.

The flowers displayed in the exhibit were plants familiar to Brazil and were donated by the Golden Gate Conservatory.

Also winner of a blue ribbon for an entry of potted Japanese Morning Glories, and Coleus, was the horticulture division. The arrangement, made by all members of the division, won first prize in the main exhibit.

Students were in attendance at all times, to demonstrate how to start a potted plant of these species growing and to show to the in culture of these plants.

Both divisions were awarded blue ribbons and enough cash prizes to cover expenses.

Student Artists Exhibit Work

The newly renovated art laboratories in Building 10 include sparkling walls and tables and a gray partition which separates the labs and exhibit gallery into two work areas, as pointed out by Fanchon Gary, art instructor.

All the art classes in basic courses, Art 1A and B, 1A-and B and 5, have 18 oil paintings on display in the art laboratories in Building 10.

Six members of the advanced design art course have designed models for Tradefair at the Sausalito bridge way.

Students first made a complete study of the building and then planned an interior floor plan, color schemes, and furniture and storage arrangements.

The designers, Don Bean, Bruce Hood, Ralph Hubtter, George Masamori, John O'Brien, and Al Kleinen then submitted scale models to sponsors of Tradefair.

These models have been on display at the shop.

Photographers To Film Mardi Gras

The photography classes of the college will photograph the scenes of the Mardi Gras parade Friday night, and after a few days, the films may be shown on station KPIX, Bev Pasqualetti, photography instructor, said last week.

The motion pictures will be developed off the campus, although most of the developing that is necessary for class assignments is done in the photography class. The equipment necessary for the developing of the movies would be too expensive to procure, Pasqualetti added.

News pictures will be taken by the journalism photography class of all other concessions and the dance. The motion pictures will be taken with a Cine Special and a Bolex Camera.

A display of work done by the photography classes is now being shown at the downtown Hales Department store. The display will be changed every three weeks. Other displays were requested by the Eastman, Brooks, and Livingston Bros. stores during Public School Week.

Pasqualetti also said that at the present time, there are more photography assignments than there are students to fill them.

Various types of photographs made by photography students are on display now in Building 9.

A part of this display is a photogram, which is made without a negative, of obsolete objects placed so as to make a shadow effect. Many shades of black and white are in the unusual design.

Forensic Society Picks Top College Debaters Here

Results of the seventh annual Northern California forensic society's student congress hosted by the college last week and attended by 100 delegates were released by Michael Griffin, debate sponsor, last week.

In the senate portion of the congress, Walt Kintz, San Francisco State College competitor, took top honors as speaker while David Jacobsen of Stanford University was judged the best parliamentarian.

Carey McWilliams, of the University of California, was named the best speaker while the winner of the parliamentarian post was Arnold Gold in the house session. The awards were presented by Bart Dempster, of this college.

An opening address was given by Dr. Norbert N. Eienstein, noted economist, and member of the speakers bureau of the World Affairs Council.

President Louis G. Conlan welcomed the members on behalf of the college, and Reverend Ralph Roberts gave the invocation.

All members participating in the congress received certificates and scrolls. Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of education here, closed the proceedings with a short address.

Local Actors In Mountain Play

Beverly Bowling, Connie Connor, and Ed Magland, former student here, are playing an active part in the Land of Oz, to be presented as the annual mountain play Sunday, May 18, at the Mountain Theater on Mt. Tamalpais in Marin County.

Mrs. Bowling, a drama student, was appointed as publicity director for the play by the board of directors, on which Drama Instructor Michael Griffin is serving this year.

This year's leading role is to be played by Miss Connor.

Magland will play the Scarecrow. The Cowardly Lion, the Tin Woodsman, Jack Pumpkinhead, and Tip will be heard over the new amplifying system, installed for the first time in the natural amphitheater.

College students here have often had roles in the production of the annual mountain plays, Griffin said.

Film on California Next in Series

Real Discovery of California, technicolor film which follows the development of the golden state through hydroelectric power, will be shown during college hour, at 12 noon, and at 1 p.m., Friday in Room 136.

The film, produced by the Western Steel Corporation, traces the history of the state back to the early pioneering days when the gold rush forced the developing of hydraulic mining, according to Madison Devlin, audio-visual aid head.

Next film scheduled for the college hour series will be shown Friday, May 23 with Wheels Across The Andes as the title.

May 20 Luncheon For High School Students

In order to acquaint San Francisco high school students with the college's Hotel and Restaurant curriculum, the division's second semester students have invited them to a luncheon to be held Tuesday, May 20, in the cafeteria.

Following the luncheon at 11 a.m., and a tour through the department, an informal discussion will follow between division students and guests, Hilda Watson, director, said.

Second semester students in charge of the luncheon include the following: Jim Roberts, Frank Blankenship, Chuck Gee, William Cowart, and Bob Slaits.

Club Cavalcade: Ex-Marines Organize Globe And Anchor Club

By Lonanne Morford

NEWS of the week includes joint meetings, regular business get togethers and the acceptance last week of a new club constitution by the Club Activities Board.

The newly formed Globe and Anchor Club is attempting to reach all ex-marines or former service men who were at one time attached to the Marine Corp, according to Walter McCloud, the club sponsor.

The group, which will be a service club to the college, will also make hospital visits to wounded Korean veterans and participate in campus activities.

The following have been elected officers: Clarence England, president; Donald Douglas, vice president; and Bob Vasquez, secretary-treasurer.

Any veteran interested in finding out more about the club and its requirements may contact McCloud in Building 3.

Gloria Rotando, pledge mistress of Delta Psi announced that her group presented its pledges at the Fox Hostess House on April 29. The affair followed a dinner given by the pledges for their sorority sisters on April 27.

Pat Couto, Theta Tau and Frank Bayol, former Beta Tau member announced their engagement on April 12.

Masonic Club held its last meeting on May 10 at the home of Diane Perrine, president. Dancing and films of Hawaii were entertainment for the evening.

Officers for the group are Diane Perrine, president; Larry McNally, vice president, and Ernest Jauregui, secretary.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon held a joint meeting with the Delta Phis on April 19.

The group announced that the following have been accepted as new members: Pete Barulich, John Biggia, Al Coppin, Irving Cox, Ken Dunwoody, Jack Ellingson, Ray Fagerstrom, Lee Trimmersdorb, Bob Mancuso, Dick Mahorie, Earl Makela, John Mauldin, Brooks Price, Dick Schute, Bernie Stephens, Ron Fornek, Steve Vida, Pete Wiesick, and Walter Yakovleff.

Alpha Lambda Chi held a business meeting at the home of Betty Solarno on May 6.

The group held a joint meeting with the Kappa Rhos on April 22 at the home of Connie Webb and another with the Tri Es at the home of Carol Rosenblatt on April 23.

Next Newman Club meeting will be held on Wednesday, May 21, at St. Emydius Hall, beginning promptly at 7:45 p.m. Dancing and refreshments will follow.

Zeta Chi pledges who survived Hell Week were Claire Anderson, Carol Bernt, Margaret Chase, Miriam Galvez, Patricia Gibson, Margie Hicks, Beatrice Lundgren, Lorraine Lundgren, Rosally Podgorny, Nntnlie Watts, Tohi Young, and Sally Galvin.

The sorority will hold a joint meeting with the Alpha Kappa Rhos tonight.

Phi Beta Rho pledges are Bobbie Blair, Bobbie Deas, Carole Goldstein, Sally Gray, Helen Haynie, Barbara Hassis, Faye Hirsch, Peggy Jones, Bunny Kenter, Elaine Klang, Beverly Naditz, Elaine Pandell, Jane Servantes and Diane Slater.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship announces its next meeting on May 24.

Deadline for all club news is now Mondays at 1 p.m. Information should be submitted to the Guardsman, Building 4.

25 Students To Prepare Annual Spring Luncheon

The college's Hotel and Restaurant Division's fourth semester students are currently making preparations for their 13th annual California Northern Hotel Association spring luncheon, scheduled for Monday, May 19, in the cafeteria.

Held in honor of the Hotel Operators of Northern California, members of the division's advisory committees, and members of local restaurant associations, the luncheon will be the final work for the division's graduating students, according to Hilda Watson, division director.

With a group of 25 students planning and running the affair, a theme of Early California was chosen for souvenir menus, which will be presented to the guests.

"Spotlighting this traditional high point in the department's year," Mrs. Watson declared, "will be speeches by Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, College President Louis G. Conlan, and President Emeritus Archibald Cloud."

Craig Smith, president of the Hotel Operators of Northern California will host the guests as master of ceremonies.

The following is a list of personnel assignments for the luncheon as released by Mrs. Watson:

George Savo, general manager; Ray Longo, assistant manager; Norman Johnson, catering manager; Edward Grigsby, banquet steward; John Mallicote, cashier; Robert Calais, publicity; Richard Mahorie, chef; Ross Aliotti, sous chef; David Bittel, garde manger; Richard Ingraham and William Cattanco, assistants to garde manger; William Starz, pastry chef, and Mike Gajeski, purchasing agent.

Fred Plate, kitchen steward; Robert Stookey, storeroom manager; Dorothy Havlish, decorations and promotion; Phil Jones, assistant decorations and promotion; William Nieradzik, chief accountant; Rich Grimwood, cost accountant; Spencer Sargent, printing and reservations; James Longo, beverage service and control; Ken Murphy, assistant beverage service and control; Norman Null and Robert Metzdorf, hosts, and Robert Schlewitz, junior assistant manager.

Villagers 'Moved' By Phelan Widening

Eight Hurley Families Find Progress Bothersome

By Bob Reilly

Sometimes progress can be bothersome.

Eight families located on the Phelan Avenue outer fringe of Hurley Village discovered this last week when they learned that narrow Phelan Avenue, long decried as a safety menace, will finally be widened to four lanes.

The troublesome aspect is that the wheels of progress will soon be passing over the area on which is located four double-section village housing units.

The proposed widening will knife through the present living quarters of eight previously comfortable families.

Deadline for moving was set for June 15 by officials, they said, to give them ample time for relocation. For most it was a problem of carting their belongings to a new residence elsewhere in Hurley Village.

Notice of eviction was received by the residents of the condemned area with mixed feelings.

Berna Katuna, home economics student at the college, has lived in the village with her husband, Irving, since January. She had considered moving previously but the arrival of the eviction notice decided the question. Her husband, Irving, psychology major at San Francisco State, declared, "It will cause some discomfort to us since we received the news rather suddenly."

Also affected was Jane Byerly who had just finished putting in a front lawn with the aid of her husband, William, who attends the University of California.

"We even had the front room walls newly papered." A widened Phelan Avenue, she felt, "might turn into a bigger speedway than it is already!" —Although proper safety controls are expected.

The moving problem for the Byerly family, including one-year-old William and Robert, 3, will take in only a short distance since they plan to move to another cottage in the Village.

Their next-door neighbors, John and Letha Trainert, will also move to another spot in the village area. Trainert is a law student at the University of California and Mrs. Trainert declared, "John will take this bar examination next summer and we feel kind of bad about all this since you can't concentrate on law books while moving."

Ramona Butler said the eviction news was rather undisturbing to her husband, Charles, who is a dentistry student at the University of California. "He got the news while he was up at the manager's office to tell them we were moving anyway."

Two families had already packed up and moved by last week and it looks like such will be the case with the remainder.

However, the general safety of college students and residents of the community seems to outweigh the discomforts of moving.

LITTLE ROBERT BYERLY, 3, let his hair down and just cried when flashbulbs popped as he emerged from his Hurley Village home, one of four units soon to be dismantled for the widening of Phelan Avenue this summer. Brother, William, who is one year old, looks on uncancerned from the arms of neighbor Letha Trainert, who was acting as baby sitter and will be one of those affected by the widening.—Guardsman Staff Photo.

Election Rally To Be Held Friday During College Hour; Voting Slated For May 27-28

All petitions for Associated Student offices were due yesterday with Election Commissioner Jim Bouick in Building 2. Candidates will be presented to the electorate Friday, May 23, during a special college hour rally, Bouick said.

Voting will take place Tuesday, May 27, and Wednesday, May 28, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in both the student lounge and the study hall in the main building, he said.

Posters to be used in the election campaign will be approved today by the election committee in Building 2 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon. According to the regulations issued for the elections, posters must be no larger than 22 by 24 inches. Each candidate is allowed five posters on campus, one in each of five neighboring stores, and one in main building.

The candidates are responsible for the posting and removal of all election posters with the exception of those in the main building, which will be posted by the election committee.

Each candidate will be allowed a maximum of 500 handbills which are not to be posted on campus, the election rules state. They cannot be distributed within 500 feet of polling places on election days. Campaigning in the vicinity of the polling places is prohibited. Publicity stunts will be permitted with the approval of either Dean Louis F. Batmale or Dean Robin Dunn.

Campaign expenditures for or by a candidate are limited to $21 in terms of marketable value. The value will be determined by the elections committee. An itemized list of all past, present, and proposed expenditures must be submitted to the election committee by 12 noon Monday, May 26. Receipted statements are required.

The final day of the elections, May 28, will not be marked by a rally and dance following tabulation of results, because of the boxing matches previously scheduled. Ballots will be hand tabulated this year, because voting machines were unavailable, Bouick said.

Procedure for elections requires the punching of Associated Student cards by the election committeman in charge.

The election committee, with Bouick as head, includes Dean Haferman, Bill Anderson, Don Anderson, Bob Moore, Bob Adams, Wilma Cohen, Mary Louise Carl, Marilyn Slosberg, Norm Heise, and Marilyn Strayer.

Five Amendments Up For Approval On Spring Ballot

Student Council last week approved five amendments to the Associated Student Constitution to be placed on the ballot for elections Tuesday, May 27, and Wednesday, May 28, in both the student lounge and the main building.

1—Delete the office of yell leader and make it an appointive office.

2—Add the election commissioner as a member of the President's Cabinet.

3—Restate section of the constitution dealing with championship awards to read: suitable awards will be awarded only to members winning recognized conference championships and fulfilling requirements for block letter awards, excepting sports with less than four conference games and also to provide suitable second year awards for qualified athletes.

4—Add the office of historian to

318 Students To Graduate June 20

A total of 318 students have had their graduation petitions tentatively accepted, Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced last week. Approximately 450 sophomores were graduated in June, 1951, she added.

Miss Learnard and her staff, in checking the petitions, which were filed on or before Friday, March 14, made sure that all required subjects were taken and that the student's grade average was at least 1.0 (C).

Grades of the second mid-term period will be checked and those students who are in danger of having their petitions refused will be notified, Miss Learnard said.

A few weeks before commencement, Miss Learnard declared, Instructors will be asked to estimate the final grade of all high sophomores in their classes.

Soph Royalty To Win Trip To Los Angeles

As an additional incentive to the sophomore king-queen contest, an all-expense paid trip to Los Angeles has been added to the list of awards the winners of the royal positions will receive, Ralph Marinelli, class president, announced yesterday.

Petitions to run for the offices must be filed today, he warned.

The royal couple will fly courtesy of a local airline to the Southern California metropolis during the month of July where they and two companions will spend a week or more in the city.

Other awards to be given to the sophomore king and queen include loving cups donated by Van Wormer and Rodriguez Jewelry Store, prizes donated by other local merchants, and dinner dancing at a local night spot.

Photographs of the candidates will soon be posted around the campus, while the actual voting will take place at the entrance to the Berkeley Women's City Club on Saturday, June 7, when the formal Sophomore Ball will be held.

Bob Emerson's orchestra and vocalist will entertain from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. As an added attraction this group will put on a 25-minute floor show.

Bids for the ball are on sale for $2. Corsages may be worn.

Marinelli and his committee have invited presidents and vice-presidents of 31 bay area high schools to be guests at the ball.

Andes Film Is Next

Wheels Across The Andes, a film produced by Dodge Corporation has been chosen to be shown Friday, May 23, during college hour, 12 noon, and 1 p.m., in Room 136, Madison Devlin, audio visual instructor, said yesterday.

Commencement Ceremonies Scheduled For June 20 At War Memorial Opera House

Approximately 350 Summer, Fall and Spring semester students will receive Associate in Arts degrees at commencement exercises to be held Friday, June 20 at 8 p.m., in the War Memorial Opera House, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator, in charge of commencement, announced last week.

Cards are being sent to all prospective graduates to determine the number who will be present at the ceremonies, Anderson said. These cards must be sent to the college by return mail to facilitate preparations being made for the ceremonies.

Among the graduates will be honor students who are permanent members of Alpha Gamma Sigma, college honor society.

Also among the graduates will be the winners of several awards and scholarships, including the Scholastic Cup Award, the President's Award Plaque, the Alice Eastwood Scholarship, the Harlan Award, the Nuodex Award, and the Wall Street Journal Award.

The Alice Eastwood Scholarship of $100 is presented to the outstanding student or students majoring in floriculture.

The Harlan and Nuodex Awards consist of a set of five volumes of Protective and Decorative Coating, by J. J. Mattiello which are presented to the student maintaining the best record during the two years in two of the paint technology courses—the Harlan Award going to the best student in the day classes, while the Nuodex Award is presented to the best student in the evening classes.

The Wall Street Journal Award consists of a silver medal and a year's subscription to The Wall Street Journal, which are presented to the student achieving the highest scholastic standing and potential promise in the field of finance and investment.

Anderson, Nine Others Leave On Year Sabbatical

Oscar E. Anderson, Coordinator, Division of Business Management, heads a list of 15 faculty members who will be on Sabbatical, or general leave at the close of the present semester, Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator, division of instruction, announced last week.

Others who will go on Sabbatical leave are Rose Avina, language instructor; Madison Devlin, audio-visual aids department; Margaret Flournoy, business instructor; George L. Green, geology instructor; Ubaldo Maggetti, language instructor; Fred McFarland, hygiene instructor; Mary Perry, counsellor; Henry D. Soule, language instructor; and Nelson Wells, science department.

On general leave are Grover Klemmer, physical education instructor and Helene Mayer, social science instructor. On military leave are John Carlson, mathematics instructor; Joseph Jacobson, counsellor; and Harold W. Leuenberger.

Retiring faculty members are Mozelle Milliken, and Jean Rome of the Hotel and Restaurant department.

Faculty members who are returning to the college after leaves are Edwin C. Browne, dean of men;

Brides Make News . . 'Sew' Does A Dress

By Anna Buoneristani

When wedding bells ring for Edna Irene Pomeroy, she will be wearing the first wedding dress ever to be fashioned and sewed here on the campus.

Miss Pomeroy, a home economics major, started working on her wedding dress last week in the home economics clothing clinic course.

The dress will be fashioned under the direction of Frances Lloyd, home economics instructor.

It will be cut from 6½ yards of white slipper satin. The wedding gown features a stand-up collar, a pointed waistline with matching, pointed sleeves, a plainly cut front with full gathers in the back, and an eight-foot train.

The finishing touches, such as the covered buttons which will extend from the collar to the pointed waistline and the button holes, will be handmade by Miss Pomeroy.

Her four attendants and two candle girls will be dressed in light green dresses and her maid of honor will be dressed in gold.

The only store-bought part of the wedding gown will be the veil, and the dress should cost a very reasonable $15, she said.

The big day when Miss Pomeroy will wear her bridal gown she is busily fashioning in Room 158, is December 12.

That's the day she will be married to Air Force Staff Sergeant Edwin Carter at the Free Methodist Church, 3811 Mission Street here in San Francisco.

Staff Sergeant Carter is now stationed in Louisiana and will return to the Bay Area early in August.

Some Comments On The Upcoming Associated Student Elections

BY their decision at the ballot box next week, the Associated Student members will again pass judgment on candidates and issues and chart the course that student government on this campus is to take in the ensuing semester.

It will be put squarely to the voters themselves to determine by their ballots and their genuine interest the kind of student leadership they want to represent them. How well the electorate responds to the "get out and vote" plea issued by candidates remains still to be seen.

In the past we have seen plantitively that voters have not done too well in terms of the large number of students who fail, as citizens, either by their own inability or inattention, to exercise the right to vote. On this matter, it is agreed, this college does not stand alone.

Each semester has experienced a clamoring for more widespread support in student politics; each semester, moreover, has seen interest in politics wane. It has reached the point now where any commentary on the apparent inadequacies in student politics has become trite and hackneyed.

Paradoxical in a sense, too, is the fact that those who have the least to do with student politics are the very ones who seem to criticize it the most. Observations along this line further allow for a restating, with slightly different emphasis, the frequently voiced criticism of student government for its allegedly oligarchical tendencies.

To be sure, policies, platforms and nominations of candidates in student government are drawn and determined by leading minorities. However cliquish such minorities may be and however great their desire to manipulate student government, it must be remembered that students may always receive maximum opportunities for self-expression by voting. In a democracy the voter is called out as a citizen and not as a member of any particular group or class.

As the official spokesman for the Associated Students of this college, we can only echo and re-sound the messages expressed—perhaps more adequately—in former editorials, again with the genuine and fervent hope that a more popular interest in politics, or group action, will result.

What Made Sammy Run?

SAMMY the Ram, the college mascot, seems to be conspicuously absent around these parts lately. A number of folks wonder if he got wind of the following story released last week:

"A little ram was reported to have committed suicide when he heard the song, There'll Never Be Another You."

Sammy—wherever you are—remember, it's ONLY a song!

Life With Reilly

Distaff Side Invades Politics, Makes It Fair Game For Ladies

The aroma of Chanel No. 5 in the smoke-filled rooms of politics is becoming an accepted, though controversial, occurrence in the United States today.

Displaying a willingness to roll up their lace sleeves and plunge into the male domain, women politicians have done a good job.

Years ago the prospect of women in politics was unthinkable. Yet today they are campaigning in large numbers for various governmental positions.

On a local point of view, there are not many individuals about the campus who recall an instance in this college's student government when a member of "the opposite sex" actually moved up from the vice-presidency to the post of Associated Student President.

It happened in Spring (of course) 1941, George Meyer, Associated Student president, was drafted into the army and vacated his office to his next in command.

In a letter to the Student Council Meyer declared, "one thought that makes my task a lighter one is that I am able to leave this office in the capable hands of Mary Frances Malone, who at every point has proved herself a capable worker and a born leader."

Miss Malone (now Mrs. Burton Wines) assumed the presidential office and did a bang-up job. She was graduated from the college with high scholastic honors and later married Wines, the man she had appointed as head of the Club Activities Board.

Here was proof that a woman could perform brilliantly as Associated Student President.

Next week, the semesterly student elections come up once again for student action. An interesting development of last week's Inter-Fraternity nominating convention was the reaction of one candidate after the tedious balloting was done.

Alice Hammond, who was soapboxing for the post of Associated Women Student President, provided a sensational conclusion to her unsuccessful bid for the nomination when she fainted dead away as she was walking out of the college auditorium. Startled male politicians revived her.

That the distaff side should take such an interest in student governmental goings-on is a laudable phenomenon; but it leads one to speculate as to the future of college politics.

Bob Smirle, the present chief executive of the Associated Students, was almost drafted early this spring before he had even put his administration in low gear.

Happily he was permitted a postponement until this coming summer and went on to perform his official duties, including presiding at the California Junior College Student Government Conference, with much prowess.

But with the world in such a tither and a gentleman named Hershey eyeing college men with undisguised interest, the place of women in student government takes on new meaning.

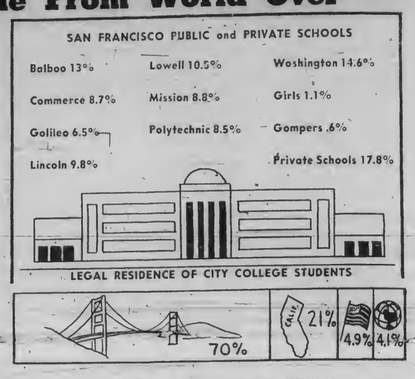
It is not entirely foolish to forecast that coeds will soon have a heavier hand in guiding the college ship of state.—By Bob Reilly.

Students Come From World Over

Seventy Per Cent Of Students Here Are SF Residents

The registrar's office under the direction of Mary Jane Learnard, recently completed a study in conjunction with the Cooperative Committee on Study of Source of Students of the California State Junior College Association and Office of Relations with Schools of the University of California, Miss Learnard announced last week.

A check of the registration files, Miss Learnard said, shows that 44.5 per cent of the students attending this college come from public schools in San Francisco county.



Those who attend private schools in San Francisco county, she said, number 9.1 per cent of the college's total enrollment. Students who graduated from schools in other California counties total 27 per cent while 12 per cent of the students were graduated from high schools in states outside of California.

Miss Learnard added that results of the check showed that 6.5 per cent of the students were graduated from schools outside the United States, while .9 per cent of the student body is registered as "specials."

A check of the files also showed that 70 per cent of the student body have their legal residence in S. F. county while 21 per cent of the students have their legal residence in California, Miss Learnard added that the survey showed a total of 4.9 per cent of the student body have legal residence in states other than California, with 4.1 per cent having legal residence out of the United States.

The college, Miss Learnard said, has graduates of high schools from all 48 states, save Delaware, New Hampshire, and West Virginia.

Among City College students are graduates of high schools in Japan, Iran, Brazil, Peru, China, Canada, Yugoslavia, Rumania, Costa Rica, Chile, Scotland, Malaya, England, Holland, Venezuela, Argentina, Jordon, India, Palestine, Panama, Nicaragua, the Fiji Islands, Iraq, Mexico, Italy, the Philippine Islands, El Salvador, Egypt, Spain, Honduras, Germany, and Ireland, Miss Learnard said.

MAJOR TREND revealed by the above chart shows that students who enter City College from outside San Francisco, tend to establish their legal residence in this area: actually the increase is 16.4 per cent. The lowest bar shows high schools attended in this city, in other parts of the state, in other parts of the United States, in other countries of the United Nations. The middle bar shows the legal residence (according to the same categories), and the upper chart shows where the 53.6 per cent of students here—those from San Francisco public and private high schools—attended high school. All figures are based on Fall 1951 enrollment figures.—Charts by Heil.

CCNY Survey Shows Veteran Grades Improve After Stay In Service

New York City College: A survey at this New England college resulted in the conclusion that veterans who returned to college after a period of time spent in the armed forces got better grades than they did before going into the service. Veteran students were found to be "better behaved, more serious, more self-reliant and more determined to succeed."

Orange Coast College (Costa Mesa, Calif.): Plans are under way at this southern California college for the Annual Spring Musical by the music department. This year admission will be charged with all returns going to a memorial hospital fund.

Drake University (Des Moines, Iowa): It is now possible for junior college transfers to Drake to take the normal four-year Air ROTC training program in their junior and senior years. It would be necessary to take twice as much military training in each year, but graduates will receive commissions as 2nd lieutenants in the Air Force Reserve.

American University (Washington, D. C.): Aware that many of the world's leaders in politics have ghost-writers, this university has opened a course for students who wish to study for this generally frowned-upon profession. It has been stated that the need for ghostwriters arises from the fact that American leaders—business and political—are too busy to write their own speeches, so they employ ghostwriters. (Perhaps to be a good ghostwriter one must be under the influence of the spirits?)

Hastings College (Nebraska): The college newspaper at Hastings recently asked coeds to tell what they considered to be the ideal date. Some of the answers, which show the inconsistencies of the female mind, are listed as follows: (1) "The ideal date doesn't have to be good looking or have a lot of money to rate high with me. I think that it is loads of fun to sit home and pop corn or listen to records. I think that this certain fellow should by all means be friendly to both young people and old . . . Consideration and good manners are also important;" (2) "One who is a good mixer (oh?), a good dancer, a good looker, and preferably a good athlete;" (3) ". . . I like the fellow who has big ideas about what he wants to do in life and works hard to reach those goals. I like a fellow to be changeable, that is to say, one who switches from one mood to another;" (4) ". . . One who can make you have a good time and at the same time show you that he is having fun."—By Charles Lane.

Alumni Meet As Profs At U. C.

Two former City College students, separated by an 11 year span, are linked together occupationally, according to John Selig, political science instructor.

Both are instructors at the University of California. Douglas Doud, '38, who received his Ph.D. at UC in December, is now lecturing in economics and business administration at Berkeley, while David Sullivan, '49, is a teaching assistant in political science.

Not Yet At Least . . .

Pete Manthos, student of law enforcement, trailed behind his fellow students during a conducted tour of San Quentin recently. As he trotted tardily toward the prison gates, two inmates sidled up to him and one asked gleefully, "Hey man, you gettin' out on parole?"

Bon Voyage . . .

Taking a cue from the thousands of Europe-bound summer travelers Donald Atherton, of the mathematics department, will leave for a summer tour of Europe with his wife on June 12.

This will be Atherton's second trip to Europe but he will probably find it more enjoyable than his first which, courtesy of Uncle Sam and a World War, was not conducive to leisuerly sightseeing.

Versatile Coed . . .

A change of countenance, dress, or coiffure, and Lorraine Sullivan, pet shutterbug subject, is ready to be photographed.

More than 15 prints of Miss Sullivan border the photography building interiors. These photos prove puzzling to visitors who can't quite believe that they aren't seeing double, or triple exposures. Miss Sullivan, a business major, will graduate this semester, leaving the photography department minus one versatile model.

'Come To Order'

Many Return To College Via TV

Housewives, and husband and wife teams make up the largest percentage of the approximately 180 persons registered by mail in the TV class, Come to Order, on parliamentary procedure, Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator of divisional instruction and moderator of the show, declared last week.

Also registered in the class are service men, doctors, and club women, one of whom is the President of the Jefferson Chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Of the 180 registered in the class, 35 are taking the course for credit, Dr. Luckmann said. Those registered in the course for credit turn in homework papers after each weekly show. A grade, Dr. Luckmann said, will be sent out to the students after the completion of the series, and one unit of credit is allotted.

This is the college's first experience in a television correspondence course, Dr. Luckmann said.

Boxers Train For Intra Tourney

Top Amateurs To Fight In Annual Bouts On May 28

With a small but talented array of fighters entered in the coming Intramural Boxing Tournament, Ram boxing Coach Roy Diederichsen predicts a punch-packed night of entertainment that would make the International Boxing Corporation officers bow their head in shame for not being the promoter of this tournament.

Fight night is, Wednesday, May 28, at 8 p.m. Entered in the tournament are noted boxers who have won pugilistic fame in amateur ranks.

One of them, Charley Howell, was the Golden Gloves winner at Denver in 1951. A 165-pounder, Howell will be a strong favorite in his weight division.

With Howell flashing his '51 form, onlookers will be in for an unforgettable night with men like Elmo Ellis, Ashbury Butler, George Perry, and a host of other crowd pleasers on hand to exhibit their boxing prowess.

Butler was a 120-pound finalist in the 1952 Golden Gloves tournament. Perry was beaten in the welterweight division of the '52 Golden Gloves, but the boy who defeated him went on to win the Golden Gloves tournament finals in Boston.

Add to this list of talented glove tossers the names of novices Larry Young, 135 pounder, and Don Brady, 155, who looms as the dark-horse of the tourney to take home the trophy given to the best all-around boxer.

Middleweights Bill Breece and Frank Kalafate are entered along with light-heavies, Joe Gaspar and Howard Keykendall.

The location for the fights will be the men's gymnasium. The price is 60 cents for adults, 40 cents for students without Associated Student card, and free for those possessing AS cards.

The tennis tournament under the direction of Tom Wilson is now under way in Wilson's tennis classes. Bob Ilium advanced to the finals, and will be meeting the winner of the Whitney Donaldson - Gene Worthington match in the novice bracket.

Coaches Conference To Decide Fate Of Little Rose Bowl

By Jack Baird

The proselyting of athletes and full state representation in the Little Rose Bowl are the two hot issues which will come to a head next month when the California Junior College coaches hold their annual meeting.

When the California Junior College Student Government Conference met last month, it was decided that the junior colleges should send letters to the coaches and to the Pasadena Junior Chamber of Commerce to give all of California more representation in the Little Rose Bowl game.

This game supposedly matches the best team from California with the best out-of-state two year college team, but in the past four years, strong Northern California teams have been overlooked in favor of the southern squads.

The problem which faces the northern colleges is not an easy one. Southern California has the drawing power to compensate for the $30,000 that the Pasadena Junior Chamber of Commerce must guarantee. If the northern colleges must play in the bowl, they will either have to play in the north and get some local organization to foot the bill, or they must supply the crowd down south to make ends meet. This will be difficult because it is easier for the southern colleges to band together and go to Pasadena than for the Northern ones to travel the long distance to the classic.

It was brought before the conference convention that it was entirely possible to have a playoff between the best team in the north and south to determine the college which will represent all of California at Pasadena. This would be the most feasible, because it would solve both problems; otherwise, they will get nowhere with disunity among the California colleges.

This disunity was evidenced in the proselyting of athletes, which harms the southern colleges more than those in the northern and central sections. The northern members of the conference along with the central group blocked a southern proposal for a state law dealing with this problem.

This showed a stubborn attitude on the part of these two sections because in order to prevent proselyting from gaining headway, a universal or state-wide law must be set up.

Ram Trio Snares Win, Fourth Spot At Modesto

Vern Chambers, Harry Wade and Wally Jackson led the Rams to fourth place in the junior college class of the Modesto relays last Saturday, by taking three first places.

Chambers won the 120 high hurdles, breaking the tape in 15:5; Jackson won the discus with a heave of 126 feet 3 inches, which was 3 inches better than his nearest rival.

Wade won the 100 yard dash with a sprint time of 10.0. Also scoring points was San Francisco's 880 relay team which finished third to Modesto and West Contra Costa.

Big Turnout Due At WAA Dance

Fifty couples are expected to attend this Friday's folk dancing party at 7:30 p.m., in the women's gymnasium.

The event will be under the sponsorship of the Women's Athletic Association, adviser Nancy Sparks announced.

There will be a 50 cents admission charge which includes refreshments. Women should wear cotton dresses or folk dancing costumes, Miriam Gevertz, dancing arrangements chairman, stated.

Barbara Lang is program and food chairman, Frank Mena is the decorator, and Christina Hansen will be the entertainer.

Today the college is sending two representatives to Washington High school's sports banquet, Catalina Capers, and Luau.

The WAA basketball team will play host to the Lincoln High school and San Mateo College basketball teams tomorrow.

Last Wednesday, WAA tennis team competed in a playday with Balboa High's tennis group.

Solario Paces Modesto To Conference Title As Rams Take Fourth Spot

Modesto led by Ruben Solario's 76 and 72 over the Stockton and Modesto courses, won the Big Seven Junior College Conference Championship last week. The Rams placed fourth.

Although the team didn't play up to their capabilities they made a good showing, according to Coach Ralph Hillsman. After a bad round at Stockton on the first day of the tournament Andy Barbera, number two man, came back with an 81 at Modesto.

Stan Reinfeld number three man had an 80-81 and Barry Clare had an 84-83 over the courses.

"The boys did well, considering two of the men were unable to make it to the links," said Hillsman. "Next year," he said, "they should do better if we get some new material."

Dick Kneich, top man for the Rams has been voted by his team mates to receive the most valuable player trophy to be awarded at the Block S. F. banquet at the end of the semester.

The best round of the second day of the tournament was shot by Roland Baliegh as he carded a one under par 71 at Modesto to win low medal for the number four position against the other men playing the same spot on their respective teams.

Clare, playing for the Rams, was second. Stan Rienfeld, was also second in his division with an 81.

Three Rams Post Top League Mark

With the regular Big Seven Conference track season under wraps for another year, the best conference performances show that the Rams came up with three of the best times

Vern Chambers captured the top spot in the high hurdles with a time of :15.1. While Chambers was holding his own for the Rams, Ron Bauer came up with a classy 4:27 in the mile, and Harry Wade posted a :21.4 in the 220.

Following is a complete list of the stars in this year's competition:

100 yard dash—Jim Thomas, West Contra Costa, 0:9.8. 220 yard dash—Harry Wade, City College, :21.4. 440 yard run—Fred Jacobs, Santa Rosa, :50.9. 880 yard run—Ed Wilson, Sacramento, 2:00.3. Mile run — Ron Bauer, City College, 4:27.0. Two mile run—Bert Cooper, Modesto, 10:08.6. 120 yard high hurdles—Vern Chambers, City College, :15.1.

220 yard low hurdles—Jim Thomas, West Contra Costa, :24.5. Shot put—Clyde Welter, Modesto, 50' 7¼". Discus—Lewis Ankeny, Santa Rosa, 134' 7". High jump — Jim Denny, West Contra Costa, 6' 3". Broad jump — Don Stewart, West Contra Costa, 22' 10¾". Pole vault—Roy Carter, Sacramento, 13'. Mile relay — Wilson, Watts, Baeta, and Gladden, Sacramento, 3:28.8.

Clausen, Grimes And Hoberg Lead Rams In Hitting; Tivio And Pandolfi Win First Games

By Jack Baird

Good hitting and clutch pitching have provided the Ram baseballers with the inspiration needed to produce a winning team, as they have been on the upswing since mid season.

Losing to non-conference teams by scores of, 9-1, to the Alameda Coast Guard and, 6-5, in ten innings against San Francisco prep champions, Sacred Heart, the locals played well as a unit even though the score was against them in both encounters.

Leading the Rams to victory in recent Big Seven games have been Charlie Clausen, Les Grimes, and George Hoberg. This trio has won games on their long ball hitting. Among them they have scored 11 runs, batted in 12 runs and have clouted 5 doubles and two triples. They have also led the Rams with 25 hits. These figures are based on the first eight conference tilts only.

The pitchers also have improved with Jim McNeill and Jerry Pandolfi going the distance for their first conference games. Dave Tivio also has improved; pitching strong for 8 innings against San Mateo before retiring to a reliefer.

Awards Banquet Fetes Ram Sports Stars

Block SF awards will be presented at the annual Spring banquet Tuesday, May 27, in the cafeteria, with several representatives from bay area colleges as guest speakers.

On the list of possible speakers are Clint Evans and Brutus Hamilton, baseball and track coaches, respectively at the University of California

Scoring Of Track And Field Events Bewilders Fans

By Bob Snow

Since investigations of sports are the topics of lengthy discussion lately, what with the congressional probes into baseball, basketball, and boxing, let's switch from these hearings and take up the matter of track and field scoring.

Because of the many different methods of scoring track competition, Mr. John Q. Trackfan has become a highly confused follower of the cinder sport.

Take, for example, a recent track meet John Q. attended which pitted all the high schools of his town in one big meet. Now John is a man who understands and appreciates the value of seeing someone run a 9.9 hundred in high school, but he can't figure out why the team which won the meet ended up with a total of 64½ points.

John went home with the same confused expression of many other fans, and mused over the idea of going out to the local stadium the next weekend to see how the collegiates operated.

This time he was astonished to find the winning college team garner a total of only 67 points. At this point John gave up track.

The standard scoring procedure through the nation is based on the 5-3-1 system.

Some persons want a 3-2-1 system, others want to use 10 points for the winner and work all the way down to 1 point for a man coming in 14th.

Somehow, somewhere, someone will come up with a new and more positive method of scoring track meets, and, who knows, it may be Russia. She's claimed the invention of everything else that has helped the world.

Track team ends best season in five years

By Don Stephens

ALTHOUGH Coach Roy Burkhead's track team didn't cop a Big Seven Championship, the Ram's fourth place gave City College the best cinder performance in the last five years.

Despite injuries, bad luck and a few ineligibilities, the previous track season could have been the best ever. As it was the locals almost garnered second place, but Mr. Hard Luck stepped in and shoved the team into fourth place.

In the 220 yard dash, Burkhead figured Harry Wade to win, but when Wade's starting blocks slipped because of inadequate support, the sprinter lost precious time and had to come from 20 yards behind the pack to finish third — three yards behind the winner, Ralph Thomas of Contra Costa.

Wade was a heavy favorite to win the 100 yard crown, also, but another faulty start was attributed to the starting blocks. This time Wade, who had won both qualifying heats for the sprints, and had been shunted into a lane marred with slight pits and rocks, had a teammate holding the starting blocks in place — but again, they slipped.

Having regained himself, Wade ran one of the grittiest races of the day.

Apparently disregarding the poor condition of the lane, he made up a 15 yard deficit and propelled himself forward to second place — a gnat's whisker from the winner, Ralph Thomas.

Incidentally, in the qualifying heats, Wade beat Thomas every time.

In the shotput, hard luck again prevailed when Wally Jackson heaved the discus 134' 7"—the best toss of his career—only to have it called foul by an official.

The intercollegiate rules on the discus stipulate that the MAIN part of the body is not to protrude over the circle; however, in calling the foul, the official declared that Jackson's heel went over the chalk mark. (Even if it did, it wasn't in violation of the rule just stated.)

But following an investigation, the heel revealed no traces of chalk. Despite a rightful complaint, the official, naturally, stood by his decision.

City College's mile relay team, leading after three laps, faded in the final 440 when Vern Chambers, who ran the two hurdles and all the qualifying heats, gave way to a fresher Bud Dowell of Sacramento, who had to break a 25 yard Ram lead to win.

Celebrating his 20th birthday in fine style, Ron Bauer upset the experts, who figured him for second place, by running his best collegiate mile. The winning time of 4:27.5, however, is not Bauer's all-time best. As a prep at Washington, the former all-city ace ran the distance in 4:25.4.

Music Students Turn Professional

Nancy Harp Signs Contract For Two Weekly TV Programs

Three music students here signed contracts last week which started them on professional careers in television, grand opera, and light opera respectively.

Nancy Harp, a first semester student in the Opera Workshop, is now appearing on Lee Giroux's TV shows on station KPIX.

Miss Harp, a graduate from Lincoln High, is under contract as a regular member of the program's staff and appears in two shows every week on Tuesdays from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., and on Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. on channel 5.

Another Opera Workshop student, Lizzet Scott, who has been singing with the Pacific Opera Company, is appearing this season with the San Francisco Opera Company.

Of the seven Opera Workshop students auditioned by Edwin Lester, director of the Civic Light Opera Company, four have been tentatively engaged. Tenor Slater Smith, a second semester student, is appearing in the company's production of the Song of Norway at Los Angeles. Lester stated, "I haven't heard so many good singers since 1946." About four other former Opera Workshop students have appeared with the company.

Gari Eliopoulos, a second semester Opera Workshop student, will be the featured soloist at the first artist's recital at the Peninsula Conservatory of Music at Burlingame. The executive director of the conservatory, which opened last Fall is the former City College student Adele Adler.

Robert Morton, music instructor, has just completed his Symphony for Band and it will be given its first performance July 6 at Sigmund Stern Grove. Morton has been instructing Theory at the Presidio for three semesters and his symphony was especially written for the Sixth Army Symphonic Band. The complete concert will be given under the leadership of Band Master Nathan A. Cammack.

Mardi Gras Films Scheduled For TV

Films of the Mardi Gras are scheduled to be shown on television station KPIX, Friday, May 23 at 10:15 p.m., immediately following the William Wirt ... at, according to Stan Fletcher, Associated Men Students president.

The Mardi Gras was filmed by the college photography department with script written by Roy Anderson, under the supervision of Bev Pasqualetti, photography instructor.

Larry McNally, of the college, will narrate the show.

The films will show the preparations made for the celebration, the dedication of the City College Station by Mayor Elmer E. Robinson, and most events of the evening.

Fletcher said that perpetual trophies were presented to the Filipino Club for the best float, and to Kappa Phi sorority for the best booth.

A fur coat, valued at $3,000, was presented to Jo Ann Dunkel of 239A Wright Street by the Ocean Avenue merchants, who this year co-sponsored the event.

Fire Control Lecture Extended One Week

A one-week extension of the fire control lecture series now being given to the Hotel and Restaurant Division students by the Fire College staff was announced last week by Michael LoPresti, director of training.

This final lecture will be on the practical aspects of fire control, complemented by a tour of the Hotel Division.

LoPresti revealed that the Fire College would operate throughout the summer session.

Superintendent Clish Lists Requisites For Career In Public Relations

By Bob Reilly

Prerequisites to a career in public relations were described by Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of public schools, in an address to students of the college in public relations and journalism classes last week.

"The basic necessity is a genuine liking for people with an accompanying belief in the value of the product you are selling," Dr. Clish pointed out.

With this attitude in mind, the beginning public relations man cannot help but achieve the main purpose of his profession which is to win friends, he added.

Dr. Clish went on to describe five basic qualities of a successful public relations executive.

"A thorough command of the English language is needed for any degree of accomplishment; not only must he be able to stand on his two feet and talk but he must be able to put this faculty in practice with the writing of pamphlets, reports, or form letters."

Understanding of the "media of reaching the public" is also important to an efficient public relations man, according to Dr. Clish. "Newspaper experience is valuable, no matter what kind of work a person is going into," he declared.

Often neglected in the public relations operation is the importance of research for the worker who wants to achieve an objective. He believed this to be another facet of the expanding field of public relations.

"The economics of our free enterprise should be thoroughly understood with a background of political science, ethics, and philosophy as an added foundation," said Dr. Clish.

The public schools, notably colleges, should provide this opportunity, he added.

"Anybody who is going into public service has to be conscious of public relations," he said.

NSA Group Votes For ROTC Training Program

Two resolutions concerning junior colleges were passed recently by the regional assembly of the California-Nevada-Hawaii region of the National Student Association.

One offered support of the NSA colleges to California junior colleges in urging the setting up of a separate junior college code.

The other asked for establishment of a regular ROTC program on junior college campuses. The latter resolution was one favored by the recent student government conference here in San Francisco.

Leave of Absence Forms Due Today

Petitions for leaves of absence must be in the hands of the registrar's office today by 5 p.m., Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, announced last week.

To obtain a leave of absence, Miss Learnard explained, students must first obtain the petition from his counsellor. Then he must sign out of any laboratory or physical education class where he may have borrowed equipment from the college.

Men students must be cleared by F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare.

Veteran students are cleared through the Veteran's Office.

Fall Semester Programs May Still Be Made

More than 1100 counselling appointments to plan programs for the Fall semester have taken place since early last month, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

From 250 to 300 appointments have been held a week, Marsh said. Each appointment lasts at least half an hour.

Marsh noted that counselling appointments may still be made. To make an appointment, he said, students should go to the counselling office located in Building 3. There the date and time of the appointment will be arranged.

Since April, Marsh said, counselors have visited San Francisco high schools with results of the entrance tests taken here April 19 and 26, and May 10, by prospective students. There, prospective students have had their programs tentatively arranged. New students residing outside of San Francisco county will have their programs planned here at the college later in the semester.

Marsh said registrations for returning students for the Fall semester will take place on Wednesday, September 10. New students will register on Thursday, September 11.

Classes will begin on September 12.

Law Students To Visit Bureau Of Identification

The law enforcement 62 and 63 classes of Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement adviser here, will visit the Bureau of Identification and Investigation in Sacramento, Friday, May 23, Fitzgerald declared last week.

George Brereton, head of the bureau, will speak on its operation and conduct a tour through the bureau's new office buildings.

Also scheduled in the future, Fitzgerald said, is a talk by John Meehan of the Police Juvenile Bureau. The date for this lecture has not as yet been decided upon.

Also later in the semester, the campus police force will receive training at the San Francisco police rifle range. The students have practiced at the range once before this semester and have continued practicing there on their own time, Fitzgerald concluded.

'Fresh Outlook-Original Twist' Feature 32-Page Literary Magazine; Forum Due Here June 2

When the sixteenth edition of the Forum comes out in June there will be many stories with "fresh outlook" and an "original twist," Dorothy Mercer, sponsor, declared last week.

The college's student literary magazine contains 32 pages, and is the result of contributions by students.

Many more humor stories and epics were received from the students than were expected, Miss Mercer commented.

Included in the material selected for publication will be poems, stories and sketches. The two stories which received the most important placing in the magazine are both humorous in content, Miss Mercer said.

Several original poems, one Chaucerette, sonnets, short stories, art work, and humorous stories will be included in the magazine. The Chaucerette, a story written in the Chaucer style designed for the "capturing of a mood," was created by Allen Bostick, Dan Bledsoe of the editorial board disclosed. Also in the magazine is Anna Buoncristiani's story on the Orient.

Not more than three contributions will be printed for each person who submitted material, Miss Mercer said.

Members of the magazine's staff include: Duane Blecher, editor; Charles Osborne, business manager; Kenn Davis and John Ferguson, art editors.

Members of the editorial board include: Blecher, Bledsoe, Bostick, June Fairbanks, Wray Jacobs, Carlos Nolte, Georgina Swank, and Miss Buoncristiani.

Forum is underwritten by the Associated Students for the publishing and printing costs. As soon as the magazine is distributed, the money received in sales is returned to the AS fund.

Roadway Near Gym Cited As Unsafe Traffic Area

With the plans for the widening of Phelan Avenue underway, attention was turned to another unsafe area on campus last week.

The roadway near the two gymnasia and the horticulture center was cited as being a potentially dangerous area. Automobiles passing by boxers often obstruct vision of drivers.

It was pointed out that a further improvement of the area was needed. As a result of an appeal two years ago, dangerous chuckholes were filled, but the problem of bad conditions still exists.

During the winter months, according to all reports, the area becomes quite muddy and increases the probability of accidents. And an increase in automobile traffic of students who park their cars near the gymnasia has caused further congestion.

Students who must proceed up the inclined roadway to the parking area by the gymnasia often become snagged by the narrow approach. The situation becomes worse when physical education classes let out.

Council Will Award Service Key At Banquet

Student Council the President's Cabinet last week joined to name the service key award winner for the spring semester 1952. Their choice will be announced at the student government banquet Thursday, June 5, at Rickey's, when the council key will be awarded.

Among the candidates for the semi-annual award are Elinor Lang, Diane Bates, Wilma Cohen, Stokes Wilson, Dan Bledsoe, Ronald Zimmerman, and Nini Aigeltinger.

Mary Louise Carl was the service winner for fall semester 1951. She was chosen for her work on the Blood Bank Day held last semester. She now is President of Club Activities Board and a member of the election committee.

Bob Segrin was selected in spring 1951 for his work on the stage crew.

Charles Osborne was sworn in as parliamentarian in other council business. The resignation of Chuck White, effective May 15, leaves a vacancy for the freshman council.

A representative of the tennis team appeared before the student council to plea for consideration for a larger budget in the fall semester. He explained that team members had been forced to finance games out of their own pocket and that many vital practice games had to be cancelled for lack of money. This hampered the success of the tennis team this semester, he said.

The tennis team requested $476.10, but was granted only $250.

Job Prospects On Increase With Summer Season

Ample jobs for college graduates in the secretarial, engineering, communications, merchandising, and construction fields are available, according to Joseph A. Amori, placement director. Summer jobs increase the listings day by day.

He added that positions with such firms as Armour Co., United Airlines, Pacific Telephone and Telegraph, Ford Motors, and Goodrich Tire and Rubber Co., achieve premium salaries, even for trainees. There exists too, a heavy demand for secretaries and stenographers. Salesmen, trainees and experienced, are needed, he said.

Summer counsellors, both men and women, are offered $100 per month plus expenses. Resort jobs for men over 21 are open.

Part time work available at the present time include: billing clerks, shoe salesmen, gas station attendant, news stand operator, and a cashier's job.

Further information is available in the placement office located in Building 2.

Forum Circulation Set For June 2; Copies Go On Sale For 50 Cents Each

Forum magazine will be distributed throughout the campus on Monday morning, June 2, and will remain on sale until the limited edition of 500 copies is exhausted.

The magazine can be bought by any student on campus for 50 cents, according to the sponsor, Dorothy Mercer.

Salesmen will be stationed at the following places on campus: in front of the Ramporium, and in the lobby of the main building.

In addition, individual salesmen will have copies with them during the day, and students may purchase these from them.

A preview of the Forum reveals a cover which is in keeping with the recent trend in modern art work. It is largely designed in a geometric pattern.

Miss Mercer stated that "a cute story about death which has no sadness, is typically humorous, and very funny" is included. She added "I don't see how anyone can face death with equanimity, (balance) delight, and humor, as the author of this story does."

The story Miss Mercer was referring to is Bob Reilly's The Grim Reaper. With the story is Ken Davis' illustration in cartoon form.

A story which is more on the serious side, Miss Mercer pointed out, is one on a very current problem, alcohol. It is written in good style and is very realistic, she continued.

Still another, and different type of writing, is June Fairbanks' poem on the modern poets attitude toward "fun."

Other contributions include many love lyrics, as usual. These are "what modern generations think about love," Miss Mercer smiled.

Law Students To Hear Deputy DA

Deputy District Attorney William Acton will lecture to the Law Enforcement classes of Fred Fitzgerald, law enforcement adviser here, on Wednesday, June 4, Fitzgerald announced last week.

Acton shall discuss the prosecution's role in trials and court procedure.

Also scheduled in the future, Fitzgerald said, is a lecture by Captain John Meehan of the Police Juvenile Bureau. Meehan's subject will be The Problem of Juvenile Delinquency And Its Control. His talk has been tentatively scheduled for June 11.

Last Friday, May 23, Fitzgerald's Law Enforcement 62 and 63 classes visited the Bureau of Identification and Investigation in Sacramento. There they were taken on a tour of the bureau's new office building by George Brereton, head of the bureau. Brereton spoke to the visiting students on the bureau's operations.

Fitzgerald said that the law enforcement students hope to get time for practice at the police rifle range at Lake Merced before the semester's end. The students have been to the range earlier in the year, Fitzgerald said, and have been practicing on their own time.

Election Polls Close Today

Concern Voiced Over Lack Of AS Candidates

By Nini Aigeltinger

Concern was expressed by student leaders and faculty members over Associated Student elections yesterday and today.

The reasons:

1—Only one of the 21 AS offices—that of president—is contested.
2—Similarly, it is the only office for which an independent candidate, as such, is running.
3—All other offices will be filled, presumably, by the unopposed candidates nominated by the Inter-Fraternity Council.
4—The two-party system, in operation for the past four years, has collapsed.

Bob Smirle, Associated Student president, said he agrees that "the IFC should not monopolize college politics. But," he added, "at least they have the competitive spirit and the gumption to place a slate of candidates on the ballot."

Smirle said he had evidence leading him to believe that a campaign specifically designed to convince contestants "to back out of the race" has been waged by "a certain AS member," thereby adding to the intensity of the problem.

"Now we face a situation in which candidates equal the number of offices open," Smirle continued. "With only one office contested, one wonders where the competitors are."

Louis F. Batmale, dean of men, told the Student Council last week that the fact there are uncontested offices is an "indictment of you and student government. You have failed in your responsibility," he declared, "to get people interested."

College Hour Today For Army Band Concert

The 70-piece Sixth Army Band from the Presidio will appear here in concert today during a special college hour, Robin Dunn, assistant dean of student activities, reported yesterday.

Because of the size of the organization, the band will play on the steps leading to the auditorium, making it necessary to restrict parking in the immediate vicinity until after the concert, Dunn said.

There will be no college hour Memorial Day, Friday, May 30, a legal holiday.

Four Students To Speak At June Commencement

By Charles Lane

Student speakers for commencement exercises to be held Friday, June 20 have been chosen, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator, in charge of commencement, announced recently.

Students who will speak include Nini Aigeltinger, assistant managing editor of The Guardsman and a journalism major; William G. Combs, a merchandising management major; Francis G. Nerney, a pre-legal major, and George Savo, a hotel and restaurant major.

A committee led by William C. Culver as chairman, and including Lucille Meredith, Anthony Pacoitti, Michael Griffen, Claude Shull, and James S. Hughes, chose the speakers on the basis of scholarship and ability to best represent their particular fields of study at the college.

The exercises will be held at either the War Memorial Opera House or the Veterans Memorial Building, Anderson said. The fact that a light opera is scheduled for a similar date at the Opera House may necessitate use of the Veterans Auditorium for the exercises, he added.

Additional speakers for commencement ceremonies will include Louis G. Conlan, president of the college; Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools, and Joseph L. Alioto, president of the Board of Education.

President Conlan will preside over the ceremonies and will confer the Associate in Arts degree on the prospective 350 graduates, Anderson said.

A definite date for rehearsal has as yet not been set, but it is usually held the afternoon of the day of graduation, Anderson added.

Musical entertainment will be provided by the A Cappella Choir, under the direction of Flossita Badger, and by the college band led by Meyer M. Cahn.

Caps, gowns, and invitations are free to those graduates who are members of the Associated Students, Anderson indicated. However, he said, those graduates who are not AS members may rent the caps and gowns for four dollars.

Cost of the invitations is included in the over-all four dollar charge, he added.

To facilitate the varied preparations being undertaken for the ceremonies, prospective graduates are being sent cards to give them an opportunity to state if they plan to attend the ceremonies.

Graduating students are requested to return these cards to the college as soon as they are filled out.

Those graduates who do not plan to attend the ceremonies may receive

Six Top Posts, Council Seats Are Uncontested

Associated Students today select their student government officials for the fall semester and decide the fate of five amendments on the spring ballot as voting moved into its second and last day.

Polling places in both the student lounge and the main building close at 2:30 p.m. today for tabulation of votes, according to Election Commissioner Jim Bouick.

Two students are running for the office of Associated Student President, the only contested office on the ballot.

Stan Fletcher, current Associated Men Student president and member of Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity, is running on the Inter-Fraternity ticket opposite Edward Tomasello, independent candidate and member of Beta Tau.

Ann Chevrier, former member of Student Council and a Theta Tau, is uncontested for AS vice-president.

AMS President also is an uncontested office with Paul Bixel, current Rally Commissioner and member of Kappa Rho, as sole candidate.

Odette Trouillet, Zeta Chi, is running for Associated Women Student President, unopposed.

Candidates for both sophomore and freshman president are unopposed. Dale Strickelin, Alpha Sigma Delta, has been placed on ballot for sophomore president and has been unopposed since this semester's sophomore class vice-president Bob Clancey withdrew from the race. Gene Beaudet, Alpha Sigma Delta, is running for freshman president.

Seven candidates are running for the seven Sophomore Council seats. They are Gale Wright, Suzi Danceman, Louis Fabbri, Beatrice Lundgren, Ken Felge, Al Lithgow, and Mel Watson.

Freshman Council candidates are Fay Hirsch, Sally Hayden, Roy Bidwell, Philip Thompson, Julie Hanan, Betty Jo Cotton, and Carlton Diaz.

Beverly Moon is the candidate for yell leader.

The five amendments on the current ballot are:

1—Delete the office of yell leader and make it an appointive office.

2—Add the election commissioner as a member of the President's Cabinet.

3—Restate section of the constitution dealing with championship awards to read: "suitable awards will be given only to members winning recognized conference championships and fulfilling requirements for block letter awards, excepting sports with less than four conference games and also to provide suitable second year awards for qualified athletes."

4—Add the office of historian to the President's Cabinet as an appointive office.

5—All candidates for Associated Student offices and appointive posts are required to attend a class in parliamentary procedure and pass a test before their name is accepted by the election commissioner.

Housing Areas Now Open To Non-Vets

Beginning this summer non-veteran married students may move into Hurley Village and Balboa Park housing facilities, limited previously to the exclusive use of veterans, according to Oscar E. Anderson, controller.

Dr. Anderson pointed out that housing will be open only to family units—that is, married students or students living with their families.

Interested students should notify the Dean of Men's office of their intention to live in either of the two areas.

"A large turnover is expected in the college's housing area at the end of this semester and adequate facilities for married students will be made available," Dr. Anderson declared.

Former Coed Captures 1952 Miss SF Title

By Al Guthertz

Former City College coed Mildred Mersich was crowned Miss San Francisco last month. Like her predecessor, Barbara Huffman, and her co-finalist this year, Beverly Naditz — both City College coeds — she put in a good word for the college.

Although a member of Kappa Phi sorority on campus, she did not have an opportunity to participate in many activities, but she said that a great deal of her early training in poise and understanding can be attributed to many of the courses she took here.

"I loved every minute of my stay," Miss San Francisco said, "and still think highly of the college."

It was with regret, she said, that she had to refuse a chance to revisit her alma mater through participation in the recent Mardi Gras because of previous commitments.

Miss Mersich, five feet-eight, with dark hair and a winning smile, climaxed her long experience with beauty contests by taking the Miss San Francisco title.

With the title goes a $250 diamond ring, several hats from one of San Francisco's leading stores, and a number of television and personal appearances.

Her first entry in a beauty contest came last summer at Adobe Creek. Following this contest, she became a weekly winner, finally named a finalist — runner-up on the Beauty on Parade television program.

The most memorable event of the Miss San Francisco contest came on the final night of judging, which Miss Mersich described as "hectic, to say the least."

Miss Mersich leaves Friday, June 6, for Santa Cruz where the Miss California contest is to be held.

Two College Alumni Scholarships Awarded

Two alumnae scholarships have been awarded to Hilda Sweeney and Ruth Wildes, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced this week.

The alumnae of the Theta Tau Sorority awarded a purse of $30 to Miss Sweeney, while Florence Louis, a graduate of the college in June '51, presented a purse of $30 to Miss Wildes, a fourth semester law enforcement major.

Life With Reilly . . . . . : It Could Happen Here!

By Bob Reilly

The threat of commercialism intruding upon education is a possible result of planned educational television programs. What with prominent educators frothing at the mouth about the prospect of using TV to instruct in the future, one may yet see incidents such as the followin,:

* * *

In this studio we hold our daily educational telecasts. At left is Professor John Smith preparing for his Zoology 1A lecture. Note the cute boa constrictor embracing his waist.

Through the glass you can see the program director. Quiet now. "Go ahead Dr. Smith."

"Good evening students, I trust you have all had a nice weekend. Before launching into tonight's discussion of reptiles I would like to remind all of you that you are expected to assemble at the university next week for the final examination."

* * *

The professor is looking at the wrong camera again! When will he learn?

Well he's comparatively new in the game. You take Professor Brown for instance — why his educato-rating shot up to 19.8 last week. That's only because he's so telegenic.

I hear the New York students of Dr. King's psychology class from Los Angeles complained bitterly when the microwave went off on Monday. Yes, just when King was getting around to Freud too. Modern day students are so lost without Sigmund's guiding hand.

Have you heard that Johnson is collecting final exam fees now? No! My goodness, he's sunk pretty low. Ever since he put his Astronomy classes on kinescope; the students were outraged.

By the way, Jones has got a new sponsor. Who? A meatball company, and how uproarious when he eats the stuff. He's a vegetarian, you know.

Sometimes I think they're carrying this business a bit too far. My younger son has been trading five Hopalong Cassidy pictures for one of mine.

Oh, but you're quite good, you know. If you mind yourself you might make the higtime like Harold Zilch; he's doing a guest spot in New York on Saturday.

Here comes Harold now. Pompous fellow since he had his picture in Time Magazine. Did you see the curt nod he gave us? Simple because he received the Chauncey Award last year for being the best instructor in television he's high-batting us.

Well I must run George, I have an 11 o'clock class and I have to report to makeup before going on.

"This is Horace Snodgrass again students, your friendly counsellor. If you have any study problems such as wavy lines or flip-flops, simply address a letter to Horace, care of Education in Motion, San Francisco, and I will send a repair man right over. Remember, such service is covered in your tuition fee.

"The habits of Madagascan Armadillos are quite entertaining. Equally at Mother Murphy's Pet Home. Not all of us can have Armadillos around but we CAN have the patter of four feet across the linoleum. Call Mother Murphy now!"

* * *

The spectacle of television instructors going into a spiel about the merits of poodle dogs, or foreign automobiles or chlorophyll-doused mechanics soap is not too far fetched to contemplate.

However, the matter of cutting classes will be a painless operation. A simple flick of the channel selector can switch the TViewer from Early Greek Architecture to Meet The Girls. Such fun!

It will probably intrude on the educators . . .

College Roundup

LA Wants More Than Panties!

• Los Angeles City College: The Westminster Club at LACC made a door to door campaign in Los Angeles county to collect used clothing for the people in war-torn Korea.

• Transylvania College (Kentucky): A psychology professor at Transylvania has come up with a new innovation in personality tests. Unlike most psychologists before him, this professor uses mirrors in his tests. The subject taking the test is given time to draw specified lines on a piece of paper while he is looking in a mirror.

Of course, what this test is to prove and what the psychologist thinks he can learn from such a test were not stated.

• Amherst College (Massachusetts): In an attempt to end what was called a "serious lack" of honor, the student council of Amherst has proposed the honor system on an academic basis. The council also plans to install senior proctors in freshman dormitories to stop damage and theft. (But who will watch the seniors?)

• University of Wyoming: Forgetting that boys will be boys, the buildings and grounds department at this university requested that students refrain from sending sailboats down the irrigation ditches.

• San Jose State College: An $8850 grant was recently made to SJS by the Surgeon General of the United States for the purpose of holding a workshop in vocational counselling for rehabilitation of persons discharged from mental institutions.

• Michigan State College: A campaign by a women's clothing manufacturing company to choose the "Lovable Girl of the Month" seems to have come up with some not too surprising facts. It seems that about 50 per cent of the photos submitted were sent in by the coeds themselves.

Student Government... Beginning Or The End?

THE future and the integrity of student government was a question of major concern here last week. Throughout the campus those who have observed student government in operation (sometimes with tongue-in-cheek) sized up the current elections as a farce.

All offices with the exception of president are uncontested—not just one office, but all offices. Interest is practically nil. Enthusiasm . . . none.

Lack of interest and participation in student government is not confined to this college alone. Across the nation college newspapers are calling attention to similar incidents, as witness, for example, an editorial entitled Un-Needed Lightbulbs, appearing in last week's Los Angeles City College Collegian:

"Elections have been pulled out of moth balls again. Bad participation shows they should have remained where they were. As proven in previous political battles the students are not interested in how the student government functions.

"Another ridiculous election is about to be held. Those applying for offices are far below the number needed. This goes to prove that little value is placed on governing groups. There will be only four contested offices when students vote.

"The governing groups never seem to accomplish anything concerning the average student. They are aimed at all the students but do not direct their fire in that direction. Maybe Joe College feels a little neglected. He may figure that his mere presence in the thing would be of no value. So back on his haunches he goes and remains the ever non-interested student."

The comments expressed by the Collegian are not new. They have long been expounded by cynics and critics in their evaluation of student government. And there are many here who feel these comments are completely justified as they relate to this college.

Thre is and has been something wrong with student government and there is evidence right here to prove it. Some say students have too much freedom and power; others say they are not given enough.

Then, too, participation in the activities of student government has been limited.

Whatever the issue, obviously student government must now take account of its own self with constructive and sound thinking.

Dean Louis Batmale, in his appraisal of the situation, views it with a note of optimism. "Perhaps something will come of this," he said. We hope so.

Now is the time to face the situation with strong determination and a firm will to consider what needs to be done.

The Guardsman believes some changes in student government are certainly in order. These changes should not impair the basic foundations of the organization of student government, but they should be changes which would put student government back on its feet again and make it live up to its original function of integrating the life of the whole campus . .

The Spectator

Here's News To Nobody

A book giving for the first time the full and complete account of the famous Stanford Axe, written by former president and founder of City College, Dr. Archibald J. Cloud, is now off the press. The book, appropriately enough, is called The Axe, and is the latest of several books written by Dr. Cloud, the others of which concern American history, government, and institutions.

The fog came in . . .

Neither sleet nor snow, nor in this case a fog bank, keeps a campus policeman from fulfilling his duty.

Wayne Stapp, was complaining about his duty at the Mardi Gras, May 16. His "frigid" post of guiding individuals into the west campus parking lot was fraught with difficulty because, "I couldn't see a thing with the fog rolling in sheets five inches above the ground."

Brother, can you spare a . . .

The nickel, like the buffalo and Indian whose countenance it bears, is gradually becoming extinct. In fact, it is being rubbed out.

Once a nickel would bring a student to the college, or buy him a cup of coffee, or provide him with musical relaxation.

Now liquid refreshment and juke box money cost a dime to the tune of ten cents, and Sunday, June 1, the municipal railway will require fifteen cents tribute for its services.

it floats . . .

Although it received no award in the Mardi Gras parade May 16 the Newman Club float, still found a use after the end of the festival when most floats collapse into kindling wood.

The float, which featured an old west theme, was used by the hotel and restaurant division in conjunction with their 13th annual luncheon.

humidity here . . .

A near "fatality" occurred the other day in a Spanish class. Window washers had finally made their way up to the third floor of the main building and as the humidity was rising faster than the air conditioner, the instructor started to open the windows, which in turn, almost knocked over a window washer and his various implements.

Both the men quickly resumed their occupations of washing and teaching, still quite a bit shaken.

Good, better, best . . .

Politicians, it seems, are always anxious to help their colleagues. So it is with Associated Student President, Bob Smirle, who was seen posting election posters for the various candidates who hope to win, place, or show in the June California primaries.

Boxing Hopefuls Battle Tonight In Tourney

HOPING TO REPLACE the now defunct varsity pugilistic team, the intramural boxing tournament, starting tonight at 8 p.m., will present an array of boxing talent that is the equal of any former boxing varsity. Clockwise, starting with Coach Roy Diederichsen, are Pasquale Sanchez, 135 pounder, Ted Floyd, 175 pounder, George Perry, 150 pounder, Bill Ninnis, 135 pounder, and Dick Schulte, heavyweight. The tourney will now become an annual affair because of the demand for boxing competition. Photo arrangement by Werner Heil, photos by Bob Hox.

Ellis, Perry Bout Tops Fight Card; 13 Events On Tap

With the curtailment of boxing as a varsity sport, City College's annual intramural Boxing Tournament gets under way tonight at the men's gymnasium. The first bout of the tournament begins at 8 p.m.

The senior division offers a schedule of bouts that will bring together boxers who are well known throughout the Bay Area.

Feature bouts place Pasqual Sanchez and Bill Ninnis in the 135 division. Charles Howell and Ted Floyd are matched together in the 175 pound division.

The fight of the night could possibly be the hookup between Elmo Ellis and George Perry, a pair of former Ram teammates who will square off against each other in the 150-pound division.

This bout has all the earmarks of a Pier 6 brawl, and will be three rounds of power packed entertainment.

Following the tourney, awards will be given to the participants. Gold medals will be awarded to the victors and silver medals will be given to the runnerup. An outstanding boxer trophy will be awarded also.

The schedule of the bouts are:

SENIORS
125— Ashbury Butler
Dave Boogins
Willie Murray
135— Pasqual Sanchez vs. Bill Ninnis
150— Elmo Ellis vs. George Perry
175— Charles Howell vs. Ted Floyd
Heavy—George Darrah vs. Walt Rilliet

NOVICE
120— Ray Adams vs. Bob Bukowski
130— Larry Young vs. Peter Wiesiek
145— Don Brady vs. Leslay Darden
165— Bill Breece vs. Frank Kalaftos
175— Olaf Overgaard
Frank Whiters
Joe Gasper
Howard Kuykendall
Richard Schultz

The above mentioned pugilists have been working out under the tutelage of Roy Diederichsen, and all will be pointing toward the trophy that will be presented to the man showing the best all around boxing ability for the night.

Price of admission for the tournament will be 60 cents for adults, 40 cents for students who are not Associated Student members, and free for Associated Student members.

Sophs-Profs Prep For Annual Grudge Game During Soph Week; Sports Stars Head Roster

By The Sports Editor

Hearing resemblance to a nine-act comedy, the annual Soph-Prof softball contest, known for some of the most spectacular "bone-head" plays of the year, is reaching its climax with the announcement of the sophomore's tentative team roster.

With the contest slated for next Friday, June 6, on the football field, Athletic Commissioner Marvin Ussery issued a tentative roster of 12 players, who will be placing their final grades in jeopardy when they tangle with the "ancients."

Known for their viciousness during finals week, the "learned ones" will probably release their usual lineup of liniment users.

Headlining the prof "lineup," according to bat boy Handsome John Brady, will be the usual group of profs who refuse to give up their youth, despite the strain of competition against the revengeful sophs.

The profs' starting lineup will be issued next week. It seems the old-timers have made arrangements for physical examinations, but according to usually reliable sources, the examination will include the revitalizing of decadent bones with Rybutal.

The announcement delay is necessary because many of the "boys" may take longer than necessary to profit from the vitamins and some of the profs may have gone overboard and will be suffering from an overdose.

Back to the lowly sophomores, who have been waiting two years to even up the wrathless rule of the so-called "intellects"—an array of power and speed has been assembled to cope with the "sehiles" and their supposed battle-tested advantage.

Led by a group of college sport stars, the roster is as follows: Fred Nieman, Bob Wilson, Bob Bondanza, Doug Green, Bill Cary, Don Dupin, Warren Hagberg, Don Stephens, Ussery, Ray Sells, Hank Marshall, and Bill Jacobs.

The grads will be out to avenge three previous losses at the hands of the profs, who have won five out of four in the modern series. (Editor's Note: Must be higher mathematics.)

Following the contest, Phi Beta Delta fraternity will award the winner with the Soph-Prof trophy.

Golfers Finish In Fourth Place

The local golf team, coached by Ralph Hillsman, after a seige of bad breaks wound up in fourth place in the Big Seven Conference standings last week.

Chuck Paine, number five man for the college, was unable to play for the Rams because of a bad cold, and Ken Keep couldn't play because of injuries. Both these men were expected to win.

Hillsman said that he is looking forward to a better season next year with possibly a few returning veterans. Paul Walters, of St. Ignatius High School, is planning to attend the college and should boost the Ram cause with his close to par golf.

Dick Kucich, who played the number one spot on the team this season, was honored by his team mates last night when he was awarded a trophy for being the most valuable player on the team. He thoroughly deserved this award as he has been an inspiration to the squad with his come-through performances when points are needed.

Andy Barbera played well throughout the season, although he had a little trouble on the tough Stockton course during the finals.

Stan Reinfeld, playing number three for the college, came in second in the individual medal competition with other men playing the same spot on their respective teams. He was two strokes behind Henry Rios of Modesto.

Barry Clare, number four man on the team, also took a second place, five strokes behind Roland Raleigh who got a blazing one under par 71 in the final round at Modesto.

Bauer, Wade Set Records As Rams End Dual Meet Season

By Bob Snow

Having coached his charges to their best season record in four years, track mentor Roy Burkhead is looking forward to an even bigger 1953 season.

The Rams, who finished their regular season with four wins, three losses, and one tie, left behind some imposing marks for next year's thinclads to better.

The best mark was Ron Bauer's 4:22.9 mile, which he established in the California Relays at Modesto, on May 17. Bauer placed sixth in the mile, but he was up against the state's best distance men, 17 in all, in the event which was classified as a special feature of the afternoon.

The college took three firsts in the junior college division of the relays. Vern Chambers romped to a :15.5 win in the high hurdles, Harry Wade took the hundred in 10 flat, and Wally Jackson outclassed his rivals in the discus with a heave of 126' 7¾".

The relay team, composed of Chambers, Wade, Jackson, and Vandolf Parrish, placed third in 3:34.5 effort. Bauer was not able to run in the relay for the college because he was not entered in any event other than the special mile.

The Rams were able to garner 19 points as a result of their three wins, which is exceptional for a team entering only four men.

Burkhead was tentatively planning to send the same five men into action in the state championships held last Saturday at U. C.

Getting back to the times which have been set by this year's squad, Wade leads the Rams with two best marks.

One is the 10 flat hundred, the other, a :21.4 220, which he set in the Contra Costa meet. However, it must be pointed out that he had a better than nine mile an hour tail wind behind him when he set the new City College record.

Following are the individual top times for each event:

100: Harry Wade, :10.0
220: Harry Wade, :21.4
440: Cole Moss, :52.2
880: Ron Bauer, 2:03.5
Low hurdles: Vandolf Parrish, :25.2
High hurdles: Vern Chambers, :15.1
Mile relay: Wade, Bauer, Chambers, and Moss, 3:33.4
Broad jump: Charles Elmore, 20' 11¾"
High jump: Ted Worrall, 5' 11"
Pole vault: Vendy Viragh, 10' 9"
Discus throw: Wally Jackson, 126' 7¼"
Shot put: Walt Rilliet, 44' 2"

Wade, Bauer, and Chambers led the locals in scoring also during the season, with each man amassing a total of more than 40 points.

James 1952 Batting Champ; Rams Finish In Sixth Spot

By Jack Baird

A triple play by Modesto in the second game of a twin bill, highlighted the close of the 1952 baseball season at Modesto last weekend.

Showing tremendous slugging power, the Rams won the first game 11 to 4, as Jerry Pandolfi won his second game of the season going the distance and giving up four runs, eight hits and walking four. He whiffed six batters to keep Modesto in check throughout the whole game.

Three triples and two doubles led the Rams' 14 hit attack on a succession of five Pirate pitchers. Les Grimes and Tom James led the hitting attack by garnering four for four and three for five respectively. James also got a double and drove in two runs. Other than that, almost all the Rams got into the act by hitting extra base blows or driving in runs. Pandolfi also got a triple and drove in a run.

In the second game the tables were turned on the Rams as the Pirates, smarting under the blistering attack in the first game, came back with one of their own, clubbing Rich Kaler, Jim McNelli, and Charles Shuyler with 13 runs on 13 hits, driving both Kaler and McNelli to the showers, Modesto powered its way to victory.

The Rams got five runs on seven hits and bunched four of these in the fourth as they combined four hits and three walks to knock starter Harold Reed out of the box.

Singles by Grimes, Dick Greenberg, and Ben Dito, coupled with walks to Charlie Clausen, John Ballestrasse and Fred Dueming, gave the Rams their one big scoring punch.

In another Big Seven encounter, the Rams narrowly lost to the San Mateo Bulldogs in the tenth inning 9 to 8.

Pandolfi and McNelli were tagged for 13 hits by San Mateo. Ben Dito collected four for five including a triple to lead the Ram attack. This triple highlighted a ninth inning rally in which the Rams scored five runs to tie the game up.

RAMblings . .

By Don Stephens

EVEN though tennis is one of the few inter-collegiate sports here at City College that can compete against four-year institutions, the tennis team has had to revise its schedule and cancel upper-division matches because of the lack of funds.

After cancelling practice matches with Stanford, California, San Jose State, St. Mary's, and Santa Clara because of the lack of expense and transportation allotments, a team spokesman, speaking before the Student Council, proposed an increase in appropriations for the '53 net season.

"Excusive of cleaning bills," the spokesman stated, "we have spent the full budget of $231.72. With our exhausted funds," he went on to say, "we had to pass up an opportunity to send our best men to the Ojai and state championships."

Aside from the curtailment of these important "prestige" matches against the four-year colleges, the team roster, at the end of the season, numbered only five as compared with a squad of 15 at the season's initial match.

As one player stated: "I don't mind giving up my afternoons in practice, but when I have to pay for incidentals like tennis balls and laundry and, sometimes, gas and my own meals, it becomes rather disheartening. I don't blame some of the fellows for dropping."

Prior to losing an important conference meet with a powerful Sacramento squad, the local team had only competed in three practice matches. "With a few more matches under their belts," according to Coach Roy Diederichsen, "they could have defeated that Sacramento team."

The players realize the lack of funds for a top-flight schedule, but when they come up with an exceptional team, the naturally feel they should compete in extra tourneys.

In order to send players who have produced a winning or championship team to tourneys scheduled beyond the regular season, a reserve athletic fund should be set aside to handle such emergencies.

Football Signups Due Next Week

Hoping to equal last year's excellent record, the signups for spring football practice will be due, Monday, June 2, at 3 p.m., in Room 127 in the men's gymnasium, Coach Roy Burkhead announced recently.

A large turnout will be expected because of last year's championship team. The Rams won the Big Seven crown then with a 6-0 record in conference play and a 8-1 record for the season. The local's excellent showing last year will provide the impetus for building up this year's squad with new blood.

Coaching the football team is Burkhead with assistants Dutch Elston and Ralph Hillsman. All home games are played in Kezar stadium.

The Rams last year amassed a great record with such stars as Dave Tivio, QB; Marvin Ussary, fullback; Henry Marshall and Al Wycoff, halfbacks. This backfield proved to be one of the best in two year college football.

semester, he began to study French. It was the French language that contributed to the crystallization of his plans to study in France.

His ability to speak the language fluently will be no barrier to study, he explained, for the Sorbonne offers special courses in English for the non-French speaking student.

When he embarks in July, three possible routes are open to him. He could drive his $2000 car to New York, sell it there, and take a boat to France. Or he could sell his car here and hitchhike to New York. The third choice is to board a ship here and reach France by way of the Panama Canal.

"Whether I study at the Sorbonne or travel in Europe and the Near East, the result will be a fabulous experience," he concluded in expectation.

Wong Wins Wall Street Award

Business Department Grad Has 2.9 Average

By Sam Blythe

Henry M. Wong, 28 year old student here, has been chosen as the winner of the Wall Street Journal Award in Finance, it was disclosed last week by Edward Larson, business education instructor and chairman of the award committee.

At commencement ceremonies in June, Wong will receive the award, which is presented annually to outstanding graduates, majoring in business in more than 250 two and four year colleges.

The award consists of a year's subscription to the Wall Stret Journal and a silver medal. The medal is the size of a silver dollar and is encased in plastic.

Wong, who is married and has a three year old child, has had a varied and interesting life before attending the college. He had to leave Galileo High School after two years of attendance.

He then journeyed to New Mexico where he worked as a cook in a relative's restaurant. From there he drifted into jobs ranging from automobile mechanic to farming in California.

"I realized that I needed more training if I wanted to get a better job," Wong said. "I was interested in business and I came to the college because it seemed to have a very comprehensive course in this subject."

Wong said that his grades in high school were rather mediocre. One reason for his excellent grades here (he has a 2.91 average) is his maturity and his realization that he must study if he plans to get ahead.

Also instrumental in his success, Wong said, was the help of Larson and Samuel Ziegler, his adviser here.

Wong's plans for the future, he said, are at the present, undetermined.

Alumni Association Offers Life Memberships To Grads

Alumni Association officers yesterday urged members of the graduating class to join the membership which now numbers in the hundreds, according to Alumni President Trev Burrow.

As a springboard to a career, the association offers many benefits to those who are leaving the college, Len Lundgren, alumni liaison officer, said.

As part of the association program selective placement services, assistance and counsel, contacts, and activities are offered to new members.

According to the Alumni Association, any person who has attended the college for one or more semesters and left here in good standing is an alumnus, and eligible to join the Alumi Association.

Charter membership for life is $10. Other memberships in the Association are Active, $3 dues, and Subscriber, $5 dues.

Information concerning the alumni and its benefits are sent to graduating students who check their own graduation petitions for information.

Started four years ago under the auspices of Joseph Amori, Burrow, Edward Frediani, and Donald Jensen, the association is "a growing infant," according to Gloria Dunn, alumni secretary.

As liaison officer, Len Lundgren's duties include communication between the Student Council and the Alumni Association.

Ramporium Open During Summer Session, Finals

The Ramporium will remain open during finals this week at its regular hours from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Richard Main, store manager, announced recently.

During summer session it will be open from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and on August 5 the store will close until September 2.

Main added that used textbooks should be sold at the end of the semester as only a certain number of them can be taken and students shouldn't wait until after summer.

Books that aren't going to be used next semester can be sold, but only a small percentage of their original price can be given.

"The store is planning to sell a new silver ring which compares to the college ring but which will be sold at a price that everyone can afford," Main said.

New pennants with the college emblem on them have arrived recently and the store expects to sell quite a few of them.

New Littlefield Outlines, which compares to The College Outline series are now on sale at the store. Among the books that the store has are Retail Merchandising by Doubman, Advertising, by Dygert, Business Organization by McNaughton. Various other books which deal with history and chemistry, are also available.

Mission High Group To Tour Campus

Forty students enrolled in the cooperative merchandising course at Mission High School will visit the college today to learn what is offered here in the merchandising field, Virginia Gohn, instructor, announced yesterday.

Hilde Lang, president of the Merchandising Club, will explain the courses that are offered and Beverly Garcia is going to give a talk entitled Selling is a Heavenly Career, which won her a prize at the state convention of Distributive Education Clubs of California that was held last February.

The students will be taken on a tour of the campus accompanied by John Leith, their instructor.

Connie Maravelias and Jerry Simpson, both former Mission High students now attending the college and enrolled in the merchandising courses, will act as official hosts for the group.

Soph Ball Bids Go On Sale Today

Location of ticket sales for the Sophomore Ball, Saturday, June 7, and a partial list of the candidates for the king-queen contest were revealed by Violet Litras, Associated Student vice-president, yesterday.

Bids for the ball have been placed on sale today and may be purchased at the student store, the Ramporium, and at the Student Bank, in the Main Building for $2, Miss Litras said.

Eight sophomore students have filed petitions for running in the contest. The list includes: for king, Paul Bixel, Len Lundgren, Mel Watson and Ron Zimmerman; for queen, Cathy Garner, Miss Litras, Barbara McAuley, and Marlene Vilas.

Voting for the king-queen contest will be done at the door of the Berkeley Women's City Club on the evening of the dance with the winners announced before the festivities end.

Patrons and patronesses for the evening will be President and Mrs. Louis G. Conlan, Dr. and Mrs. Oscar Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Bergin, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Porter, Dean Margaret Dougherty, Dean and Mrs. F. Grant Marsh, Barbara Braekett and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Paciotti.

Part-Time College, Plus Work Is Successful Plan

One of the most successful plans in the semi-professional education is a combination of college class-room work and on-the-job experience.

Marlene Vilas, a student under this plan, is now working at the Carlysle Lithograph Company about four hours a day and attends the college to complete her requirements for graduation.

Edward Delaha, a third semester student, is another example of part time on the job training. Because it is necessary to reach into the third semester bracket for placement, Delaha will complete his academic training here at the college in the evening extension classes. He is now employed at the Samuels Jewelry Company in the Art Department.

William Eckert, advertising art instructor, pointed out that "if we can get students started in the fields of their choice, we have accomplished much for them, the college and the community."

their degrees at the registrar's office, Building 3, the week following the ceremonies, Anderson said.

A total of 60 units with at least a "C" or 1.0 point grade average maintained in all work completed at the college, plus the fulfillment of specific requirements set by the California State Board of Education and the college are requisites to graduation.

Requirements also include maintaining at least a "C" average in the last 12 of the 60 units required at the college for graduation.

WAA Officers To Be Announced At Banquet

Names of the newly elected officers of the Women's Athletic Association will be announced tomorrow at the WAA Banquet, Sigmund Stern Grove, Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser, said yesterday.

The banquet will be from 3 to 7 p.m., and there will be a barbecue with fireside singing afterwards. The new officers, elected from those nominated last Thursday, will be announced at this time.

Registration For Six Week Summer Session To Start June 23; List Of Courses Available Now

A full listing of courses to be offered in summer session was announced yesterday with instruction to last during the six week period from June 23 to August 5, Dr. Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator, Division of Instruction, said recently.

President Louis G. Conlan will direct the summer session, Dr. Luckmann indicated.

Registration for summer session will begin at 8 a.m. Monday, June 23, with instruction beginning on Tuesday, June 24. Registration closes on Wednesday, June 25.

A maximum of six units, plus physical education, is permitted. Veterans must carry a minimum of four units, and regular students include 12 class sessions.

Unit credit for social science courses, with the exception of economics, will be two units per course.

In explaining this unit evaluation, Dr. Luckmann pointed out that, "as at the University of California at Berkeley, when these social science courses are taken in summer session the two units earned meet all departmental and college requirements in computing credit for majors, minors, and for prerequisites."

A complete list of courses, description, code numbers, units, days, hours, rooms and instructors, plus a listing of the registration procedure may be obtained from the counselling office, Building 3.

Summer classes will be offered in the Flower Shop with two classes of instruction planned, one beginning at 3:30 and lasting until 6 p.m., and the other beginning at 7 p.m. and running until 9:30 p.m.

John Lawrence, instructor, plans to cover every phase of the instruction including decorations for weddings and corsage making. He hopes to limit enrollment to 20 students in each class, but so far 47 applications have been received. The number of the courses will be Floriculture 83A.

Home Econ Students Eat What They Cook

The cooking students of the Home Economics Department are currently learning to prepare various cuts of meat, Mrs. Rose Kraft, home economics instructor, said yesterday.

This week their menu is barbecued spare ribs, and Indian Curry.

Last week they baked banana cake, chiffon, and white pineapple cakes. As an unofficial test, students must eat what they have prepared. This is done in groups of four.

Though there are no men students enrolled this semester, Mrs. Kraft reported that when there are men in the course, they often get the best grades.

Club Activity Plans Due Now For Fall

Any club, fraternity or sorority expecting to sponsor a social activity next semester must reserve a date on the social calendar now being planned by the Social Committee, Violet Litras, chairman of the Social Committee, announced recently. All such arrangements will be made in the student office, Building 2.

The election dance originally scheduled for Wednesday, May 28 was cancelled because of the conflicting boxing event also scheduled for that date.

Marsh Leaves For Boston Convention

F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, announced that he will attend the annual convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges to be held in Boston, Massachusetts, June 24-28.

Dr. Marsh, who is representing the college at the convention, is also representing the western states on a committee held at the convention which is studying student personal services. Purpose of the committee, he said, is to find ways and means to better services for student personnel.

Dr. Marsh will also serve as chairman of a discussion group on this subject.

Dr. Marsh, who will return to California immediately after the convention, said that delegates from most of country's junior colleges are expected to attend the gathering.

Club Cavalcade

Pledge Events Top Activities

By Louanna Morford

Clubs, fraternities, and sororities are busy climaxing the semester's activities and holding last meetings. Final pledge events cause the only stir in the week's social whirl.

Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity held its pledge dinner and presented fraternity pins to new members on May 20.

The Drama Club was represented by Joyce Cody, Connie Connor, and Beverly Bowling at a program presented for the Foresters on May 20. The group presented several skits.

Members of the group who took part in the Mardi Gras program were honored at a picnic held on May 25.

Phi Beta Rho and Phi Beta Delta held a joint meeting on May 21.

Phi Beta Delta will hold a business meeting tonight at the college.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship will close the semester's activities with two regular meetings, one scheduled for Friday, June 6, and the other for Friday, June 13. Both meetings will be held in Room 200 during college hour.

Pledges of Zeta Chi sorority honored their sorority sisters at a dinner held at the home of Peggy Chase on May 18. The pledge hostesses served a Chinese dinner amid Chinese decorations and added additional atmosphere by donning Chinese costumes.

Wednesday, June 4, the Newman Club will hold its last business meeting at St. Emydius Hall. The meeting is scheduled to begin promptly at 7:45 p.m.

Delta Psis will hold a regular business meeting tonight.

The Lutheran Club held its last meeting May 16 at St. Paulus Church. Speaker of the evening was Reverend Donald Duffner.

Theta Tau held its formal initiation of pledges on May 24 at the home of Diane Bates.

The group held a regular business meeting on May 20 at the home of Jean Mertes.

The Hotel and Restaurant Society held its annual spring dinner dance at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito on Friday, May 23. William C. Williams president of the society, and a committee of representatives, students selected from each semester group were in charge of the arrangements.

Milton Polissar, science instructor now on leave, lectured on the Birth and Death of the Sun on May 20 in the Alpha Gamma Sigma lecture series. According to Donald Jensen, AGS sponsor, the lectures are presented in hope that the students of the college will take advantage of the opportunity to broaden their concept of education.

Emotion Plays Tricks On Observation

By Roger Levit

The sly tricks that emotion plays on observation were graphically demonstrated recently to a class here under instruction of Howard Schoon.

Schoon set the stage for his class by recounting a story of threatening telephone calls from a mysterious woman. Suddenly, to the surprise of everyone—almost everyone, that is—a woman entered the classroom and asked in a haughty manner: "Is this Mr. SPOON'S psychology class?"

Schoon acknowledged the introduction with the necessary corrections. Then strange things began to happen. The woman flounced to the front of the roomand abruptly sat down. Apparently surprised, Schoon began his lecture.

"Students of City College of San Francisco prefer machine scored tests," he said, "over essay type because they are easier to study for."

Whereupon the woman jumped to her feet and shouted indignantly: "Are you calling City College students stupid?"

Schoon assured her this was not his intention. He attempted to continue, but was constantly interrupted by the intruder, who asserted her "constitutional rights as a taxpayer," and finally left in a huff after threatening dire retaliation from high authorities.

In an understandable effort to have witnesses, Schoon appealed to the class. He asked them to write down exactly what had occurred while the event was still fresh in their minds. The students willingly and feverishly complied.

Was she blond, black, gray, brunette, or red-headed? By reading the papers handed in, Schoon found support for any color scheme preferred.

Some said she was tall, some said short. Indeed, with few exceptions, no two students agreed on any detail of her appearance or her actions.

Quite a few "saw" her throw books on the floor and slap Schoon, which of course a faculty member would not (and did not) do. On only one point were the papers in unison: that the "intruder was definitely psycho-neurotic." And only on one point was Schoon in agreement: she was a good actress.

The "furious woman" was a "plant" or, as Schoon explained later—a test for the power of observation. She was, in fact, none other than Helen Huffman, member of the college faculty.

Saturday Formal Closes Soph Week

Nine Enter Royalty Contest; Elections Slated For Ball

By Bert Kenny

The sophomore formal, climaxing this semester's social activities, will be held Saturday evening from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Berkeley Women's City Club, with Bob Emerson and his orchestra supplying the music.

Voting for the sophomore king and queen will take place at the entrance to the club with persons casting their votes individually. Men will vote for their choice as queen, while women will pick their favorite king contestants, Ralph Marinelli, sophomore class president, said yesterday.

Photographs of the contestants have been placed around the campus, in the main building, fountain and student lounge. Candidates' pictures will also be on display at the Berkeley Club Saturday night.

Through cooperation of two local florists, corsages may be purchased at lower prices, Marinelli declared. Chain of Flowers Florists, 1805 Ocean Avenue, will sell all corsages to students attending the formal at a 15 per cent cut, and Podesta and Baldocchi, Fairmont Hotel, has agreed to give a 10 per cent discount plus specials on orchid varieties.

Tickets for the formal may be purchased from the student bank, the Ramporium, the sophomore week committee, and the candidates for the royal honors. Tickets are being sold at $2 per couple.

The winning contestants will be announced during the evening, crowned sophomore king and queen, and presented with loving-cup trophies.

Running for queen are Cathy Garner, Violet Litras, Barbara McAuley, Nancy Provance, and Marlene Vilas, while Paul Bixel, Len Lundgren, Mel Watson, and Ron Zimmerman are the king candidates.

The Berkeley Women's City Club is located at 2315 Durant Avenue. Persons coming from San Francisco may reach the club by taking the MacArthur Boulevard cut off, turning left on Telegraph Avenue and continuing up Telegraph to Durant Avenue.

A double college hour is scheduled Friday to enable the soph-prof softball game to be played. (See page 3.)

Police To Check Auto Violations

Seventeen city motorcycle police will conduct a campus-wide checkup of student automobiles in the near future, according to Sergeant Robert Gremminger of the San Francisco Police Traffic Department.

Loud mufflers, blue tail lights, missing license plates, faulty brakes and defective windshield wipers will be among the objects noted by the police as part of their safe driving program.

The college checkup follows a recent San Francisco high school traffic survey.

Offenders here will be fined for their violations, but the high school violators under 18 were referred to the Youth Guidance Center, Gremminger revealed.

Locker Cleanup Due

Lockers must be cleared by Wednesday, June 18, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, announced last week.

Contents left in the lockers after the June date will not be considered safe.

The lockers must be cleared for the use of students during the summer session, which begins on Monday, June 23, he pointed out.

Community College Theme Of Commencement Ceremony

Our Community College will be the theme of the 17th commencement ceremonies to be held at the War Memorial Opera House Friday, June 20, at 8 p.m., Oscar E. Anderson, in charge of the commencement, announced officially last week.

President Louis G. Conlan, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of San Francisco Public Schools, and Joseph L. Alioto, president of the City Board of Education, will give short talks on the same general subject.

Associated Student President Robert Smirle will give the welcoming address, and will act as master of ceremonies for the commencement, Dr. Anderson said.

President Conlan will confer the Associate in Arts degree on the graduating sophomores.

Rehearsal Slated

Rehearsal for the ceremonies is scheduled for the afternoon of commencement at the Opera House from 2 to 4 p.m., Dr. Anderson declared, adding that if graduates are to attend the ceremonies, they should attend the rehearsal also.

On the night of the ceremonies, the time for the guests to arrive is set for 8 p.m., but the graduating students must be at the Opera House no later than 7 p.m.

If they are not there at the set time and in position for the ceremonies, then they will not be allowed to graduate from the stage, Dr. Anderson indicated.

Those students who do not plan to participate in the ceremonies will be given the opportunity to so state when they receive the special cards being sent them by mail. These cards are to be forwarded to the college by return mail if possible.

Those graduates who do not plan to attend the ceremonies may obtain their degrees from the registrar's office, Building 3, any time after July 1.

If they choose, they may leave a request at the registrar's office to have their degrees mailed to them.

Bids Available June 11

Invitations to the ceremonies may be obtained by the graduates after June 11, at the college bank during bank hours.

Invitations are free to the graduating students who are members of the Associated Students.

To non-members of the Associated Students, the price for invitations is included in the four-dollar charge made for the rental of the cap and gown. Those students who rent their caps and gowns are requested to bring their receipt to the bank to obtain their invitations.

Presentation of the several awards will be made by Dr. Clish, and Dr. Anderson announced that the winners of the President's Award plaque will not be named until the actual night of the ceremonies.

Phelan Widening Underway; Care In Driving Urged

A request that careful driving regulations be observed during the period of construction on Phelan Avenue was issued last week by Oscar E. Anderson, college controller.

The period of construction, during which the street will be widened from Ocean Avenue to Phelan Avenue, will last for several months, he said.

During the period of construction no lanes of traffic must be open at all times. This is stipulated in the contract, Dr. Anderson added.

Because of this stipulation, it is probable that entrance to the west campus via the Phelan Avenue entrances will be possible at all times.

However, during construction no parking will be permitted on the street.

Construction began recently when the removal of a portion of the lawn area in front of the main building was undertaken.

When completed, the street will allow four lanes of traffic with diagonal parking permitted on either side of the street.

Workshop To Present Sunday Afternoon Opera Showcase Concert

By Anna Baonerisiani

The third annual Opera Showcase, featuring Opera Workshop students, will be presented in the college's auditorium on Sunday, June 15, at 2:15 p.m., Flossita Badger, Opera Workshop directot, and Gloria Rotaudo, student manager, announced last week.

The students will participate in a program of operatic scenes, and in Puccini's one-act comedy, Gianni Schicchi.

The first part of the performance includes selections from Puccini's Madame Butterfly and La Boheme, and from Sigmund Romberg's The Desert Song. Soprano Claudia Orsborne and mezzo-soprano Barbara Warren will sing the Flower Duet from Puccini's Madame Butterfly.

Sopranos Beverly Keaton and Nancy Harp and tenor Donato Alvini will sing selections from Puccini's La Boheme. Soprano Gary Eliopoulos, bass John Catron, and baritone James Bogue will each sing an aria from Romberg's The Desert Song.

The second part of the program is the one-act comedy by Puccini, Gianni Schicchi. Baritone Ronald Dutro is featured in the lead role with Betty McNamara as his daughter Lauretta.

Thirteen other Opera Workshop students appearing in the opera are baritones Johnny Land, Richard Massei, Bogue, and Elmer Delaney, sopranos Doris Spencer and Miss Harp, mezzo-soprano Peggy Lawford, contralto Irene Halicki, tenor John Downing, and Catron.

The program's accompanist is Betty Wicklund. Refreshments will be served after the performance in the west campus auditorium.

Admission to the program is by invitation. Invitations are available to Associated Students at the bank and Ramporium.

Fletcher Captures Presidency By 12 Votes In AS Elections; Two Of Five Amendments Pass

By Nini Algeltinger

Inter-Fraternity Party candidate Stan Fletcher last week was elected Associated Student President over independent candidate Edward Tomasello by a vote of 180 to 160, in the only battle of an election in which 20 of the 21 offices went uncontested.

Two of the five amendments on the ballot were approved by the voters. The election commissioner will be given the status of a member of the AS president's cabinet. The second approved amendment dealt with championship awards for the major sports.

The defeated amendments concerned changing the office of yell leader from an elective to an appointive office, adding the position of historiar to the AS president's cabinet as an appointive office, and requiring candidates for AS elective and appointive offices to attend classes in parliamentary procedure prior to filing petitions.

In one of the smallest turnouts on record, only 348 ballots were cast out of a potential electorate of over 1200 AS cardholders, election officials said.

In addition to Fletcher as AS president, 20 student officials for the fall semester were confirmed by the voters in last week's elections.

Ann Chevrier, sister of former AS president Pete Chevrier and a former Student Council member, is the new vice-president. Paul Bixel is Associated Men Student president; Odette Trouillet is AWS president.

The new sophomore president is Dale Stricklin. Gene Beaudet succeeds Louis Fabbri as freshman president.

Sophomore Council seats for the fall have been filled by Gale Wright, Suzi Daneman, Louis Fabbri, Beatrice Lundgren, Ken Feige, Al Lithgow, and Mel Watson.

Completing Student Council are Freshman Members Fay Hirsch, Sally Hayden, Roy Bidwell, Philip Thompson, Julie Hanan, Betty Jo Cotton, and Carlton Diaz.

As polling places in the main building and student lounge closed last Wednesday, May 28, at 2 p.m., student leaders met in Building 2 to map strategy for the reactivation of student government here in the fall.

Disappointed by the lack of student interest shown in the election, AS president Bob Smirle called together Deans Louis F. Batmale and Robin Dunn, Bart Dempster, Dan Bledsoe, Ron Zimmerman, Lou Shepard, Paul Bixel, and other student leaders to discuss the situation.

Plans were made for daily conferences for the remainder of the semester.

Outgoing student government leaders and newly elected officers will be feted at an annual student government dinner tomorrow night at Rickey's. Individual awards for service will be given.

Council Drafts Resolutions For Fall Budget

Two resolutions designed to facilitate Student Council action on the Associated Student budgets in the fall semester were passed by the council last week.

Introduced by the current finance commissioner, Norm Heise, the two resolutions concern the submission of budget requests and membership lists required by the 100 per cent ruling for release of funds.

The first, passed by a vote of 9-1-3, reads:

"Whereas each organization or activity that desires full or partial support from the Associated Students must submit a budget request to the finance committee.

"Be it therefore resolved that these budget requests must be returned to the finance committee eight school days from the date they were issued, or the organization failing to do so will forfeit any appropriations which would have been granted by the Associated Students.

"Be it further resolved that the finance committee, with the approval of the Student Council, shall act as judge in the legality of the excuses for delinquency."

The second resolution concerns the 100 per cent ruling. Passed by a vote of 10-4-1, it reads:

"Be it resolved that any organization failing to turn in the 100 per cent list one week before the end of the first midterm will forfeit their appropriations to the general fund unless they appear before the finance committee and state their reasons for not submitting said lists.

"Be it further resolved that the finance committee, with the approval the the Student Council, shall act as judge in such cases."

Spring Budget Bills Due By June 13

Deadline for the request to use money allocated in the Spring Associated Student budget has been set at Friday, June 6, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, announced last week.

All bills to be paid for by the budget funds must be in by the following Friday, June 13, Dr. Anderson added.

The spring budget totalled $11,711.

Long Range Building Plan To Expand Library

Modern Three Story Classroom-Library Goes To Blue Print Stage

By Bert Kenny

Always a core of knowledge for both the students and faculty members, the college library will expand even further in its service to education-seekers when the long-range building plans of the college are completed, according to Dean Edwin Sandys, the library's administrator.

Blueprint plans for a new three-story classroom-library building includes a further development of the library which will occupy most of the third floor, according to Clement Skrabak, of the library staff.

Seating capacity for the library will be approximately 700, while stack space will be made for 100,000 volumes.

Sharing the floor with laboratories and faculty offices, the library will cover four large rooms. Separate rooms for periodicals, reserve reading, stacks, general reading plus offices for staff members, and possible conference rooms where student groups may meet, will emphasize the central importance of the college library.

Supplying the all-important substances of an educational plant, books, magazines and reference materials, the college library goes further by offering individual attention to students.

Irene Mensing, the reference librarian, aids troubled students by suggesting methods to write term papers and plan speeches.

Leisure time may also be well spent in the third floor library by browsing through current periodicals such as late newspapers and magazines. Many books written purely for pleasure are found in the stacks. The science-fiction tales are now popular, Eleanor Blinn, of the library staff, said. Miss Blinn is in charge of the pamphlets which sometimes contain more up-to-date material than the bonded books.

Behind the circulation desk, where Miss Blinn and Betty Lundgren check books in and out, is the reserved book section for material that faculty members ask to be put aside for their students to use for outside reading and term papers. The instructors fill out forms to place certain books on two hour use.

The technical position of cataloguing, selecting, and ordering books is held by Katharine Pedley. A student seeking a book or pamphlet not on stock may fill out an order card, and if the written material is known to the library staff, it will be ordered.

On the west campus, a branch library has been set up in Building 2 to specifically enable students to obtain vocational materials and to look into various employment fields. B. F. Dryden is in charge of the branch.

An Editorial

Open Discussion Of AS Problems Is Step In The Right Direction

THE Student Council meeting room upstairs in Building 2 last week was the scene of a momentous and serious conference held to examine the problems of student government—the first of a series of meetings that will continue throughout the semester.

A group of tireless student leaders and faculty members had gathered together in close harmony not to bury student government or to mourn it, but to revive and rebuild it and to make it a strong, potent force in student life on the campus.

Student government, they said in effect, is not dead. Rather, they agreed, with the right changes, new ideas, creativeness and above all, hard work and serious thought, it can be given a new lease on life.

How to get more students interested in the activities of student government and how to increase participation effectively seemed to be major areas of concern. The leaders in their first session worked together toward solutions with determined spirit. Each made significant, constructive contributions to the discussions as they listed some of the problems as they saw them. They were in accord with various proposals to increase membership and to invite a wider representation of students to seek positions of responsibility in the AS.

Before this informal committee lies a gigantic task that scarcely can be completed in the short time left in the semester. But they have, we believe, made imporant and commendable steps in the right direction.

We should like to see other students get in on the groundwork and planning stages of the new student government that seems apparent. We feel there are a number of students who are interested in student government, although last week's light vote in AS elections did not offer too clear an indication. We urge all students to express their ideas and beliefs in this matter whether it be through the columns of this newspaper, in Student Council meetings, or in club and organization discussions.

With that kind of determination, action, and spirit—the democratic kind—student government and the activity program of the college once more is sure to spring into life fullborn.

A Reputation Endangered . . .

BECAUSE of the actions of a few irresponsible and thoughtless individuals, a student's graduation is destined to be an unhappy one.

His watch and a wallet containing personal, irreplaceable papers, were stolen recently. His mother had worked six months to pay for the watch—her gift to a son completing two years of college.

Both the son and the mother made written appeals to this newspaper in hopes that whoever took the valuable will return them.

". . . our reputation is being endangered because of a few deplorable students of this college who have not yet learned the meaning of honesty and integrity," the letter puts it so aptly.

We hope that the person or persons who took the valuables will reconsider their actions and return them to either of the following places:

The lost and found department, Building 2; The Guardsman office, Building 4; or by mail to the owner, Don R. Davis, 676 Ninth Avenue, San Francisco.

Only then will a mother who "did without so much so I could make my son happy" have her faith restored in the honesty of college students and a student's graduation will be that much more memorable and happy.

College Roundup

Faculty At NSTC Proficient In Art Of Writing

By Charles Lane

● North State Texas College (Denton, Texas): A recent survey at North State revealed the rather wide writing proficiency of the faculty at this Texas college. A list was compiled showing the published works of 100 of the faculty members whose subjects range from electricity to sociology. The titles of the books and articles are as interesting and as wide as the range in subjects; for example: The Opinion Survey on Electricity; X-Ray Determination of Thermal Expansion of Co-Efficients of Crystals; and The Diet of the Short-Eared Owl.

● Santa Monica City College: Hedda Hopper, well-known newspaper and radio reporter, is sponsoring the education of a Japanese boy at SMCC. The student, born in Japan, is a business major and will return to Japan after his education is completed. In explaining her action, Miss Hopper said, "Our only real hope for peace is to familiarize the Japanese people with the significance of what democracy is."

● San Jose State College: Graduating seniors at SJS wer given recently an examination in California government. However, the students were cautioned not to worry, because, they were told, the test is of "eighth grade level."

● Long Beach City College: A parking problem at this college has been the cause of a rather foreboding announcement by the college dean. The parking lot assigned to the faculty and to paraplegic students is being upset by students unauthorized to do so. In the future, the announcement by the college dean stressed, any unauthorized person who persists in parking in that lot will be suspended from college.

News To Nobody . . . by The Spectator

And Absent Minded Moment— Smirle Misplaces Automobile

PARODYING the absent-minded professor, Associated Student President Bob Smirle was the perfect example of dismay last week. On his way home, Smirle found that his car was not in the usual parking place.

Thinking that he could have misplaced it on the campus, he hoofed around the parking area in search of his auto. Meeting with no success, he surmised that his car was stolen and that the "thieves were probably stripping the car now."

After meeting Dean Louis Batmale during his search and seeking his advic, Smirle telephoned the Ingleside police station that his car was stolen. Returning to his office, Smirle then realized what had become of his car—it was in a neighboring gas station being serviced.

Lyrical Lawman . . .

Aside from his Law Enforcement studies at the college and a daily stint as a patrolman for the San Francisco Police department, John Mackey finds time to pursue his singing vocation. Recently he appeared on Armand Girard's weekly television variety program and sang an Italian selection.

Alumni Honors . . .

Fields of law and government call two 1950 graduates of the college. Donald Peters, who will be graduated from the University of California this semester, has been accepted for the Bolt School of Law on the U. C. campus.

Lloyd Grable, who will be graduated from U. C. this semester, has been elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He has already been accepted for public administration, and now is taking a competitive examination for the foreign service.

Summer "Vacation" . . .

Vacation job hunting presents no problem for four Guardsman staff members who have parlayed their college experience into summer newspaper positions.

Editor Bob Rezak continues with his job at the San Francisco Chronicle; Bob Reilly, managing editor, goes to Oakland to work on the Tribune; Nini Aigeltinger, assistant managing editor, to the Jewish Community Bulletin; and Al Guthertz, feature editor, will begin work on the Lafayette Sun.

Round Table . . .

Adding to his duties on the college Come To Order program, Lloyd Luckmann has assumed the role of a moderator on the new KPIX Wednesday evening show, Round Table, which will give weekly results of straw ballots taken throughout San Francisco on candidates. Prominent party leaders will appear on the program for the verbal scrutiny of voters.

Contributor Voices Opinion On Student Government Elections

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, but the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

Editor, The Guardsman:

The recent election, or should I say pseudo-election, here at the college idicates clearly the tacit indictment of the electorate at this institution toward the Inter-Fraternity Council.

Far removed from the idea of an indomitable combination of the minority is the insolence of the would-be independent candidate and/or the voter in the majority ranks. It seems to this observer that it must be self-gratifying for those candidates who have been mollycoddled and spared the efforts of strain or hardships in winning their seats in student government. This minority has become obsessed with the feeling of security in small numbers and likewise the majority of large numbers has become the stumbling block of organization and resistance toward the tactics of this "machine" which not only threatens the very essence of a democratic student government, but which has in fact already stifled the initiative of competitive elections.

It is the indubitable fact that since the "machine" has succeeded in crushing all opposition, the affairs of the majority will not be heard without bias and with little debate in council.

The right of the minority to be heard as well as the right of the majority seems to be contrary to confirmed cases but it is one of the idiosyncrasies of the present state of affairs at this college.

The initiative necessary to correct these inequalities rests in the hands of the electorate. Your indignation can be felt and inevitably rests with you.

Life With Reilly . . . Poor Spell Of Whether

ALWAYS an insult to sophisticated college students is the infrence that they are poor spellers.

Take for example an instence that was brought to attention last week. A peculierly sharp-eyed individual showed us a Guardsman news story dealing with a bridal dress. He the word sargeant. Well any fool pointed gleafully that we'd mispelled knows it is spelled that way.

Equally, when instructors stand up and cast snide remarks upon the spelling achelvements of the class, it is a galling thing.

The other morning a friend of ours, who is in Comunications 5A complained about the vocabulary tests. the instructor was continualy assigning. He doesn't understand that such tests are constructive.

After all, how far can a person get in his complicated wurld unless he knows how to spell?

More Spelling Bees

We think we should reintroduce the spelling bees which were all the rage when we were in grammer school. We can see it now: From swallowing goldfish in the twenties, raiding sorority houses in the fifties, to holding mass spelling bees in the sixties.

We advocate further the use of such helpful, ordinary words as disestablishmentarianism, farraginous, vitameatavegimine and hypervitaminosis. Always amusing to us is the fable of the schoolboy who spelled the word, wagc, yowzitch. How ignorent!

Of course, all this casts a reflection upon the incredible trade names we get in commercial advertising these days. Such as a certain lotion known as Dri-Blu. Why can't it be Dry Blue? The younger generashun can't help making spelling mistakes when they read things like that there.

Provincial People

Also some provincial people object to such funnetic words as thru, altho and fotograf. It saves a heap of time for those who don't like to spell out words like although all the time.

Our head's made up. It is the same with grammer; just a little bit of practice and you can mastermind it. It doesn't take no genious. There is no deference between good spelling, good grammer, and succesful writing.

Us college scholars don't need no help, because aside from being well up on current topics we can also write illirate accounts of them.

The Higher Echelon

Actually we're quite lucky at being able to spell so good. It was only after long hours of intense study of prefixes, vowels, and consonants that we reached this present — well you might say—higher echelon of ability.

More's the pity that everybody can't be so bodacious excelent.

Just take a little time to analize your spelling. Or is it analyze? Or is it analyse?—By Bob Reily. Or is it Reilley? Or Reilly?

Floyd Smashes Way To Top In Intra Tourney

By Joe Callas

Boxing with the speed and agility of a seasoned performer, Ted Floyd, 175 pound husky, emerged as the best boxer of the annual intramural boxing tournament, last Wednesday evening.

Floyd, the type of fighter that boxing promoters dream about, was awarded the trophy as the outstanding boxer of the tourney.

Fighting a preliminary bout to qualify for the finals, Floyd apparently preserved his energy during his first bout with cagy Dick Greenberg and gained a three round split decision. In his second bout of the evening, Floyd swarmed all over Charley Howell to gain an unquestionable unanimous victory.

Howell was dropped midway in the second stanza by a hard right cross to the jaw after moving Floyd against the ropes.

A mild upset was pulled in the 150-pound senior division when George Perry pounded out a split decision over Elmo Ellis. The bout could have gone either way, but Perry finished with a flurry in the last round to assure his victory in the best fight of the evening.

In the novice heavyweight division, George Darrah scored a second round technical knockout over shotputter Walt Rilliet.

Results of the bouts were:

NOVICE

130—Bob Bukowatz dec. Ray Adams.
135—Peter Wieslick dec. Larry Young.
155—Lenny Darden dec. Don Brady.
165—Frank Kalafate dec. Bill Breece.
175—H. Kuykendall dec. F. Whitels.
Hvy—George Darrah tko Walt Rilliet.

SENIOR

135—Pasqual Sanchez dec. Bill Ninnis.
150—George Perry dec. Elmo Ellis.
170—Ted Floyd dec. Chas. Howell.

PRELIMINARIES

135—Larry Young dec. Norm Abernathy.
Fix Alleged

175—Frank Whitels dec. Joe Gaspar.
175—Ted Floyd dec. Dick Greenberg.

Another upset was registered by little Lenny Darden as he scored a three round split decision over his taller opponent, Don Brady, in the 155 novice class.

Hitting Stars Highlight Season

City College's defeat of Santa Rosa earlier in the season stands out now as the highlight of the 1952 baseball season, Coach Bill Fischer declared recently.

For Santa Rosa is the California two-year College champion, by virtue of two out of three wins over Santa Ana.

Winning half of their final conference games, the Rams showed definite improvement over early season form.

"The most gratifying thing was the way many of the lesser players on the team made rapid improvement and became regulars on the team," Fischer added.

Many of these men, such as Tom James, catcher, who ended the season hitting .400, were instrumental in giving the team the impetus to play as a unit.

Others were George Hoberg, who became regular third baseman after a late season start and finished the season as a long ball hitter and a great defensive player.

Fred Dueming finished with a .351 batting average, only to be beaten out by his teammate, Ben Dito, who, as the steadiest Ram hitter, finished with a .388 average. Dito, who was the regular second baseman, had sparked many a rally with his clutch hitting.

Pitcher Jerry Pandolfi, who won two games in the latter part of the season, made up for not winning a game last year. He also had the highest hitting percentage with a .463 average.

"As the prospect of some of the boys entering the pro ranks," Fischer said, "many of them will end up in the pro ranks, but need a few years' experience."

Wade Puts Ram In Third Place In State Finals

By Bob Snow

The City College track squad, led by Harry Wade, powered into third place in the State Junior College Championships at Santa Rosa, Saturday, May 24.

"Hurricane" Harry roared to victories in the hundred and 220, as the Rams ran up a total of 38 points, finishing behind Los Angeles City College and Los Angeles Valley College.

Wade tied the meet record for the century by scampering to a six-inch victory over Joe Graffio of Compton, who had previously set the mark in a trial heat with a :10.0 dash.

The championships saw six meet records wiped off the slates, and one national mark erased by Clyde Wetter, Modesto's south-paw shotputter, who flung the 16 pound ball to a new high of 51' 4¾". Wetter bettered the mark of USC's Lew Davis, 51' 2½", set in 1948 when the latter was at Menlo.

Ron Bauer, the Ram mile ace, was unable to hold the pace he set throughout the distance event, and was beaten by three feet in a thrilling stretch sprint by Bruce Wood of Orange Coast College who went on to establish a new meet standard of 4:23.6 for the mile.

Incidentally, Wade was the day's only double winner, coupling a :22.45 win in the 220 with his record tying coup in the hundred.

The Ram sprint star has proved to be one of the most consistent workers during the year, coming up with win after win when the squad needed points most.

Wade, along with Bauer and Vern Chambers, will go down in the college's track annals as the three most outstanding cindermen of 1952, and they can surely be classified with ex-Ram Ollie Matson, who never failed to give the fans a thrill while in competition for the college.

Matson is now warming up for a berth on the U. S. Olympic squad.

WAA Group To Perform At Big "E" Opening

Eight members of the Women's Athletic Association folk dancing group will participate in a variety show planned for the Emporium-at-Stonestown's grand opening, Laurine Bergin, folk dancing instructor, announced recently.

The opening is scheduled for the early part of June, and the group will appear in a series of western square dances. The partners who will dance are Joanna Smith and Ed Dallaha, and Claire Lippi and Dave Wenzlaff.

On May 29, the WAA held its annual banquet at Sigmund Stern Grove. The barbecue was followed by fireside singing and the announcing of the newly elected officers of the WAA. The candidates for President were Betty Jo Cotton and Mildren Stoll; for Vice-President, Miss Hansen and Anna Buonaristiani; and for Secretary-Treasurer, Betty Orton and Barbara Sieget. Election results will be announced publicly next week.

Seventeen women were presented with blocks and awards for their participation in this semester's sports program.

Revenge Sought By Win-Thirsty Sophs In Annual Melee

By A Soph

Hoping to win in the classic series against the faculty, the sophomores of the college are fired up and ready to match bats with the "ancients" in the annual soph-prof baseball game on the practice football field this Friday in an extended college hour.

With revenge in their hearts and blood in their eyes, the sophs will be ready. If they win this game, they will bring the modern series up to 4-2 in favor of the profs.

Newsmen Barred!

Practicing with a frenzy equal to that of the New York Yankees, they have barred all local newsmen from their practice site, because of the suspicious nature of the "learned ones."

Marvin Ussery, manager of the great soph team, hopes to shove the "weaklings" right out on to Ocean Avenue with his team's tremendous slugging ability. They will be superior to the instructors on the hill, because they get more sunshine than do the "brains."

These haggard individuals who sit and correct tests in their cubicles, have never seen the sunlight and air on the other side of "Pneumonia Hill."

On the other hand, the "boys" from the gymnasium located on the other side of the hill benefit from a great amount of sunshine and are not "lily-white" like the profs.

Revenge will be the most important factor for the sophs, because it is their only chance to get even with their rivals for the "unfair" grades they have received and also to "persuade" the profs to give them good grades on their finals.

Practice games have been held with small time clubs like the Oakland Oaks and San Francisco Seals, and after a few innings the score keeper had to throw away the scorebook, because he ran out of space to mark down the runs as they continuously swept across the plate.

Fix Alleged

The profs, who have allegedly tried to fix past games, will be surprised to learn that at a recent meeting of the Kefauver (who's he?) committee they are being investigated and had better watch their step.

Playing in this momentous affair will be the cream of the sophomore class: Warren "Killer" Hagberg, Fred "Slider" Nelman, Marvin "Spike" Ussary, Don "Butterball" Stephens, Mario "Fats" Lombardi, Bob "Slippery" Bondanza, Ashbury "Champ" Butler, Bob "Old-timer" Wilson, Doug "Grassy" Green, Bill "Casanova" Cary, Don "Bones" Dupin, Ray "Ozark" Sells, Hank "Moose" Marshall, and Bill "King" Jacobs.

Starting Berths Open For '53 Casaba Season; Three Prep Stars Due

With some outstanding preps expected to attend the College next semester and a few returning veterans, the basketball team has a good chance to again capture the Big Seven championship, believes Coach Ralph Hillsman.

Although it is not official yet, Tom Hess from Lowell High, John Forbes from Polytechnic, and Jerry Stack, all-city from Balboa, are expected to boost the Ram cause.

Hillsman added that although he hasn't the full schedule for next season, 25 games are expected to be played. Besides the teams in the conference, the Rams will play the U.S.F. frosh, the U.C. frosh and will engage in two pre-season tournaments.

When asked whether the team would leave the country next season, Hillsman said that, "there is a possibility that we may go to Hawaii, but this is not official yet."

Hillsman stressed that a ball player on a two year college team has many advantages:

"He starts by playing on the varsity squad which plays against other good teams. He gets to travel around the country, playing different teams, and if he goes on to a university he will have experience which will help him make the varsity."

Double College Hour Slated for Contest

Because of the Soph-Prof annual softball game, a double college hour has been scheduled this Friday, June 6, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., with 11 o'clock class meetings cancelled.

The tilt will be played on the college football field and will feature the graduating sophomores against their ageless opponents, the profs.

Following the contest, Phi Beta Delta fraternity will present the winners with their perpetual Soph-Prof softball trophy.

Suffering four setbacks in a row, the sophs will be out to gain their first win since 1948.

Ram Stars Feted At Annual Block SF Award Dinner

City College athletes were honored at the annual Block S. F. award banquet, held May 27, at the college cafeteria.

Nearly 50 members of local teams were awarded blocks which were presented by the respective coaches.

Outstanding player trophies were presented to baseballer, George Zuceca; basketballer, Mario Lombardi, who was named on All Conference and All State teams; Vern Chambers and Ron Bauer, trackmen; and golfer, Dick Kucich.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Clarence "Nibs" Price, basketball curtailment the wisemen wanted to battle the coeds in order to "perpetuate the game."

Price stressed the importance "of athletics in the college and that many college presidents are trying to de-emphasize sports, and are trying to de-emphasize things that are not good for sports." He also remarked that "sports help to build up the prestige of the college."

President Emeritus Archibald J. Cloud was present at the banquet along with college officials and coaches from the several high schools.

Sut Chalios, sports writer for the San Francisco Call-Bulletin, was also present.

Athletic director Jack Gaddy said that "although some teams didn't win championships, they did a swell job."

Henry Marshall, president of the Block S. F., acted as master of ceremonies, introducing the speakers and concluded the dinner by reminding the new Block S. F. members of the coming meeting at which time new officers for the fall semester will be elected.

All five trophy winners were well known in San Francisco during their high school days. Zuceca was an all-city shortstop for two years at Mission High School, while Lombardi was burning up hardwood floors for Galileo High School. Chambers and Bauer were cindermen for Washington, while Kucich was a Mission graduate along with Zuceca.

"Nine Old Men" Train For Head-On With Youngsters

By A Prof

When Abner P. Doubleday introduced baseball to a group of collegians back in 1839, he little realized that his new innovation would mark time and take on the ridiculous proportions that the annual Soph-Prof softball fray has produced.

Plays defying all the unwritten laws of the diamond have occurred and will occur no matter who are the participants in this hotly contested battle on Friday.

It has been recorded that on one occasion when a ball was thrown plate-ward from the outfield to cut off the winning run, a prof pitcher "relayed" the ball with his head to the catcher who tagged the sliding runner.

The game has also had its share of pre-game pranks. It is not uncommon to find the opponents' bats split, drinking water salted, softballs water-logged, or the bench laden with tacks.

These poor-man Clifton Webbs have created an advantage by threats of failures in the final exams.

It is with this edge that the learned ones have walked off with three consecutives during the modern series. The last time the grads won was back in '48, 7-4.

(During the war, when man power was at a premium, the administration, siding with the profs, curtailed the annual game for a limited period. However, it was learned, prior to the curtailment the wisemen wanted to battle the coeds in order to "perpetuate the game."

This move by the professors was abandoned when they learned of a soph scheme to place on the team professional women softball players who were stationed in the Wave barracks—now the west campus.

During the past weekends, prior to the contest, the profs have been training at the famous mineral resort, Boyes Springs. And the report that the "boys" have had to spend most of their time taking spring baths to relieve the aches and pains they incurred in practice is only idle rumor and wishful thinking.

According to team captain Jack Brady, the team will be in fine shape for the "soft-ball" contest; however, since their 4-3 series wins over a pickup team of ex-h scouts, the men have been confined to rigid training rules and must live in the campus dorms. They can't even go home to their families, Brady has ordered.

The prof roster, despite the many years of competition, still remains almost intact. Here is the lineup: Ed "Tarzan" Sandys, Louis "Casey" Batmale, Egbert "Cement" Brix, Mike "Pro" Cahn, Robin "Ima" Dunn, Lee "Bulldog" Elsan, Don "Zoe Ann" Jensen, Roy "Palooka" Burkhead, Roy "Dutch" Diederichsen, Art "The Arms" Elston, Joe "Hurryin' " Amori, Bill "No Hit" Fischer, and Jack "Smilin' " Gaddy.

HANDSOME JACK BRADY AND MARIO LOMBARDI match fists in choosing sides for the annual "brall" game. Brady won, but short-patcher Lombardi and his group of revengeful sophomores will be out to halt the profs' four-game winning streak. —Photo by Lipke.

AGS Members To Entertain Honor Graduates At Dinner

Plans are being tentatively made for a dinner to honor this semester's Alpha Gamma Sigma honor graduates and life members of the honor society, Donald Jensen, sponsor, announced recently.

The group held another in its present series of lectures last night in Room 100 of the main building. The discourse was entitled Red Tides in Asia, and the speaker was Mervin Slosberg, political science instructor here.

A complete list of all Alpha Gamma Sigma members here has recently been released by Jensen. The names of all 97 members are as follows:

Alelard Aldecoa, Carrel Anderson, Margot Arlom, Bentley Adair, Con Bean, Farrington Blaisdell, Philip Bray, Kenneth Bryan, Anna Buoncristiani, Iran Biorch.

James Christensen, Joyce Cody, William Combs, Esperanza Couto, Julia Cravotto, Nemecio Cruz, June Davis, John Davis, Anthony DeMattei, Deane Denberry, William Duzet, Lois English, Alice Ferraris, Chuck Gee, Joanie Gock, Douglas Green, Robert Haas, Elizabeth Hall, Peggy Hammer, Fred Hampton, Lou Harder, Louis Harrison, June Hilson, Una Holm, Francis Hom, Bruce Hood, Peter Hudson, Reane Hunter, Renae Hunter, Edward MacDonald, John Mackey, John Madden, Bob Mancuso, Alice McLaughlin, Lore Menders, Kenneth Molino, Hercules Morphopoulos, Pearl Morphopoulos, James Mullen, Harold Osborne, Diane Perrine, Leonard Potts, Willi a Piercy, Richard Piess.

Robert Richard, Leona Romashko, David Ruegs, Martha Sanders, Joelle Sandkulla, Jake Sasser, Marjorie Schnittger, Helene Shields, Nancy Stelling, Milton Sue, Hild Sweeney, Sabelin Trene, Albert Watanabe, Ruth Wildes, Robert Wharton, John Wilson, Henry Wong, C. J. Woodruff, Verna Young, Yee Young.

Poetry, Humor Highlight 1952 Forum Magazine

The annual student literary magazine, Forum, has been in circulation for two days and may still be obtained at the Ramporium for 50 cents.

This year's issue of Forum has more poetry than prose, which was described as unusual for a mag of its type by Dorothy Mercer, sponsor.

Included in the magazine is some very good experimental verse. There are no serious articles except short stories, which is also an unusual feature. Another item of interest is that for the first time there were very few stories submitted about World War II. The lyric poetry is excellent in content, Miss Mercer declared.

The following students contributed to Forum and have had their manuscripts accepted: Bob Reilly, June Fairbanks, Carlos Nolte, Alan J. Bostick, Anna Buoncristiani, A. H. Shields, Arthur Fonseca, Duane M. Belcher, Donald Osier, Chester Pennington, James Moran, Georgina Swank, Edward Mayland, Robert H. Glenn, Sakai Komatsu, E. H. Soules.

Art contributions were from Ken Davis, John Ferguson, P. C. Wann, and James McNeill. Also accepted for publication was John Lincoln Wilson's aphorism.

Miss Mercer said that all contributors who wish their manuscripts returned may pick them up in Building 19, Room 19 during the remaining part of this week.

Hotel Students Leave Today For Summer Positions

As part of their curriculum, non-graduating hotel and restaurant division students will be leaving today for various summer positions in local and resort restaurants, Wendell Muntz, division placement director, declared.

The students, who must compile weekly progress reports, along with their employer for the division as part of their course of study, will be employed for a minimum of ten weeks, Muntz added.

Meanwhile, Hilda Watson, division spokesman, pointed out that there is an abundance of jobs available in the hotel and restaurant field, but the number of trained personnel is smaller than the demand.

The recent 13th Annual California Northern Hotel Association spring luncheon, given here by graduating fourth semester students, was highlighted by speeches by President Louis G. Conlan and President Emeritus A. J. Cloud.

Given in honor of the hotel operators of Northern California, members of the division's advisory committees and members of local restaurant associations, guests were entertained by strolling musicians attired in costumes representative of early California.

In conjunction with the report that special operating hours will be established during finals week, Mrs. Watson added, cafeteria facilities will be curtailed for the summer session.

The cafeteria and fountain schedule will be published next week.

Ushering Jobs Now Available

Summer ushering positions at the Civic Auditorium and Opera House are now available for interested students, Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, announced this week.

Applications for ushering services, which entitle students to free admission to the performances, should be made on or before Friday, June 20, to Dean Dougherty in Building 2.

Opening season highlights include musical productions, guest star appearances, opera and light opera works.

Dean Dougherty asked that students be informed that no ushering assignments had been scheduled for the Civic Light Opera Series set for the Curran Theater. Assignments only cover performances held at the Opera House and Civic Auditorium.

Club Cavalcade

Organizations Induct Members

By Louanne Morford

Formal initiations dominate the news scene this week with several large affairs scheduled.

Lambda Alpha, music honor society, after an inactive semester, plan a formal initiation tomorrow night at the home of Katherine Kerrigan, past president of the group.

Six new members will be initiated. They are Jim Bogue, John Land, Frank Mena, Lionel Samuels, Vincent Ruocco, and Bob Berthiume. Members who have completed a year of membership will also be honored and will receive membership pins. Those who will receive pins are George Morrison, Gloria Rotando, and Barbara Morris.

Refreshments will follow the ceremony and all members, past and present, are invited to attend.

Members of Phi Beta Rho sorority held a picnic with the Phi Beta Delta fraternity on June 1.

Alpha Lambda Chi sorority held a business meeting and formal initiation on May 27 at the home of Barbara Scott.

One member, Betty Solerno, received her pin at the ceremony.

Delta Psi sorority held a joint meeting with Kappa Rho fraternity on May 28.

Delta Psis will hold their pledge dinner on Saturday, June 14. Nine will receive their pins. Those to be honored are Connie Marvilias, Dot Psieser, Sue Bergarin, Julie Hannan, Mary Lou Balas, Meg Schiek, Greta Dal, Angela Ring, and Jean Baramwell.

Lording it over the Alpha Sigma Delta these days are the Phi Beta Deltas. Seems that after holding the Perpetual Trophy for two semesters, the Alpha Sigs bowed to the superior Phi Delts in a pre season football game held at the Marin Town and Country Club on May 25.

Election of officers for the fall '52 semester will be held tonight by the Newman Club. This important meeting will be held at St. Emydius Hall, Jules and De Montford Streets, at 7:45 o'clock.

Washington Again Leads Enrollment

George Washington High School, for the sixth consecutive year, leads all other San Francisco high schools in the number of graduates now attending the college. This fact was released last week by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar.

Washington, with a total of 261 graduates attending the college, is well ahead of second place Balboa, which has an enrollment of 211.

Lowell High is third in the list with 187 students, followed by Lincoln with 172, and Mission with 163. In sixth place is Commerce, a scant 9 students behind Mission, with 154.

Following Mission are Polytechnic and Galileo with 128 and 103 respectively. Then in order come Girl's High with 20, Samuel Gompers with 7, and S. F. Continuation with 1.

San Francisco private school graduates as a group total 294. East Bay schools have sent 452 students to the college, while other California schools account for 334 of the college attendance.

Graduates from high schools outside of California number 355 while there are 268 foreign high school graduates attending the college.

Controller To Study In Europe

Combining a summer vacation trip to Europe with studies of college administration, Oscar E. Anderson, controller and coordinator of business management, goes on Sabbatical leave at the close of the semester.

Canadian-born Dr. Anderson joined the faculty in 1939 as an instructor in mathematics and physics. Terminating his teaching duties in Spring, 1946, he was appointed to his present position of controller and in this office was "responsible for getting the west campus set up."

Dr. Anderson's duties, as coordinator and assistant to the president, include expediting Institutional budgets, supervising bank activities, sale of Associated Student cards, and physical properties of the college, including lockers and equipment.

Social Committee Sets Last Meet Today

Members of the old and newly-elected Social Committee will hold the last meeting of the semester today at 1 p.m. in Building 2B, Violet Litras, chairman, announced.

Miss Litras urged full attendance as the tentative social calendar for next year will be planned. All clubs, activities, sororities, and fraternities, intending to sponsor any event are expected to submit a date to the committee today.

Certificate Forms For Deferment Are Available Now

Students who have had letters sent by the college to their local draft board for deferment and who wish continued deferment, should report to F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, before the end of the present semester, and make application for a student certificate, Dr. Marsh announced last week.

A student certificate informs the student's draft board of his standing in the college in relation to his class. These certificates, Dr. Marsh said, are very useful to the draft board in determining future deferments.

The certificates will be sent to the student's local board after the finnl grades have been tabulated, Dr. Marsh said.

Amori Heads California Vocational Association

Joseph A. Amori, placement director here, was elected president of the Council of California Vocational Associations at that group's Spring conference held at San Jose recently.

Under discussion at the Council were administrative changes in vocational education, work experience in public education, financial support, and professional advancement.

Amori represented the National Vocational Guidance Association. Other members of the delegation were from the California Home Economics, Business Education, and Industrial Education Associations.

The groups' objective is the improvement of teacher quality in vocational education, promotion of broad public relations programs, and other general improvements in these fields, Amori said.

CAB To Elect Fall Semester Officers

Election of Club Activities Board officers for Fall 1952, will be held on Tuesday, June 10, when the bi-weekly meeting is in session.

Officers are chosen from this semester's members and will be expected to attend meeting next semester. The CAB meetings may be taken for credit of one unit, Political Science G36.

Robin Dunn, sponsor of the CAB, urged all clubs to prepare to name a CAB representative for next semester's board meeting.

Conlan Confers AA's June 20

Student Awards To Be Presented At Ceremonies

By Charles Lane

Graduating sophomores will receive Associate in Arts degrees at the 17th annual cap and gown commencement ceremonies to be held Friday, June 20, at 8 p.m. at the War Memorial Opera House.

Presentation of the awards will be made by President Louis G. Conlan. Associated Student President Robert Smirle will act as master of ceremonies for the exercises, according to Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator, in charge of the commencement.

Program for the ceremonies includes speeches by President Conlan, Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of Public Schools, and Joseph L. Alioto, president of the Board of Education.

Students speakers for the ceremonies, who were chosen on basis of scholarship and ability to represent best their majors at the college, are Nini Aigeltinger, journalism major; Frank Nerney, pre-legal major; William Combs, merchandising management major, and George Savo, hotel and restaurant major.

Our Community College, the general theme of the commencement ceremonies, will be the topic of the speakers, Dr. Anderson said.

Musical entertainment for the ceremonies will include solos by sophomore Garifilia Eliopoulos, who will sing Bohm's Calm as the Night, and by sophomore James Bogue, who will sing the Toreador Song from Bizet's opera Carmen.

Miss Eliopoulos and Bogue will sing the duet, Thine Alone, from the operetta Eileen by Victor Herbert.

The A Cappella Choir under the direction of Flossita Badger, will sing Ave Maris Stella, by Grieg, and America the Beautiful, arranged by Olsen.

Ceremonies close with the choir singing the College Alma Mater, under the direction of student dirctor Robert Berthiaume.

Accompanist for the singers and the choir will be Betty Wickland.

Additional musical entertainment will be provided by the college orchestra, under the direction of Meyer M. Cahn.

The processional march will be The War March of the Priests by Mendelssohn, and the recessional will be March from Scipio by Handel. Quentin Anlnao, graduating music student, will conduct the orchestra in the National Anthem.

Those graduates who do not plan to attend the ceremonies may receive their degrees at the registrar's office, Building 3, after July 1, Dr. Anderson said.

If they so choose, they may leave a request at the registrar's office to have their degrees mailed to them.

Included among the graduates will be the students who are permanent members of the college honor society, Alpha Gamma Sigma.

Graduates Due For 2-4 P. M. Rehearsal

Rehearsal for commencement has been set for the day of graduation from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Opera House.

Commencement begins at 8 p.m., but the graduates must be at the Opera House by 7 p.m.

Invitations may be obtained at the college bank during bank hours after today.

Graduates who are members of the Associated Students will receive their invitations with the presentation of their AS cards.

Graduates who have paid the four-dollar rental fee for their cap and gown will receive their invitations with the presentation of their rental receipt.

Registration Date For Summer Session Set For June 23

Registration for the college summer session will take place on Monday, June 23, beginning at 8 a.m., F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of student welfare, declared last week.

Classes will start the following day and will end August 5.

Since the summer session period is brief compared to the Fall and Spring semesters, units of credit for most courses will be reduced. A similar plan is used by the University of California, Dr. Marsh said.

Dr. Marsh also announced that registration for returning students for the Fall '52 semester students will take place on Wednesday, September 10. New students will register on Thursday, September 11, while classes begin on Friday, September 12.

Counselling appointments for planning programs for next semester can still be made, Dr. Marsh noted. To make an appointment, students should go to the counselling office in Building 3 where the time and date of the appointment will be made. A large number of students have yet to make their appointments, Dr. Marsh said.

He added that students wishing to be informed of their final grades may leave a stamped, self-addressed envelope in the registrar's office. Grades will be sent out as soon as they are computed.

Four Selected For Honors

Laivo, Kawaguchi Win Eastwood Prize

Alva Laivo and Kaz Kawaguchi are this year's winners of the annual Alice Eastwood Scholarships for floriculture majors.

Usually the $100 scholaship is awarded to one outstanding student, but these two students were considered of equal merit by the San Francisco Garden Club, which provides the award, and therefore each one will be presented with $100.

Requirements for the award consist of satisfactory grades, interest in the subject, and the student's potentiality in the field.

Kawaguchi, who is graduating this June, is planning to do nursery work in Colma at the Pacific Primrose Garden where he is currently employed. Laivo, an Ornamental Horticultural major, is planning to enter California Polytechnic College next spring.

The scholarship is provided by the San Francisco Garden Club and is in honor of Alice Eastwood of the California Academy of Sciences, distinguished botanist and horticulturist. This is one of the largest scholarships offered to students here.

Paint Awards Go To Carlson, Asbill

The Harlan Award and the Nuodex Award for students majoring in paint technology were won this year by William Carlson and Clifford Asbill.

The awards consist of two sets of five-volumes of J. J. Mattiello's Protective and Decorative Coatings.

Carlson will be presented with the books at the Golden Gate Paint and Varnish Club's dinner in August. Hal R. Harlan, of Harlan Associates, will make the presentation.

Carlson, with a 2.5 grade average, has attained the best record in the day classes during the entire two-year course in paint technology. After his June graduation he plans to enter an occupational field in his major.

Asbill will receive his set of volumes as the member of the extended day classes in paint technology with the best record during the year. The award is presented by the Nuodex Product Company of Elizabeth, New Jersey, nationally known producer.

These books constitute an air encyclopedic coverage of the protive coatings industry.

Scholastic Cup Race Cut To Two Contenders

By Bart Kenny

The winner of the Scholastic Cup, Alpha Gamma Sigma honor award, was undecided early this week, although the number of possible recipients has been narrowed down to two graduating students, Don Jensen, AGS sponsor, announced yesterday.

Tabulation of probable semester grades has been made with the result that Henry Ming Wong, has an average of 2.93, while Jun Iwamoto has an average of 2.92, forcing a tight race for the award, which can go either way, Jensen said. Wong, a graduate of Galileo High School, and Iwamoto, from Lowell High School, are both accounting majors.

Jensen has recommended to the committee in charge of the award that duplicate awards be made to each student if these averages are maintained.

Graduating with high honors are Marjorie Schnittger with a scholastic average of 2.77, a commercial art major and a graduate of Balboa High School, who will start work in the art field immediately after graduating, and Francis Nerney, 2.78, now taking pre-legal courses.

University of California bound Richard Press, 2.75, a pre-legal major, and another Balboa graduate; Hilda Sweeney, 2.70, and Claire De Backer, Fall semester graduate with an average of 2.83, will also graduate with high honors.

Other students who will probably graduate with honors depending upon final semester grades are Nini Aigeltinger, 2.68; Robert Bordner, 2.32; James Christensen, 2.39; William Combs, 2.33; Marlene Cook, 2.58; Marie Henderson, 2.41; James Mullen, 2.33; Martha Sanders, 2.36; George Savo, 2.64; and Masamichi Watanabe, 2.38.

Students who completed their work in the Fall semester to graduate with honors include Lester Cooper, 2.64; Robert Harelson, 2.62; Howard Jaques, 2.51; Walter Hueston, 2.45; Joseph Nicholas, 2.35; William Paterson, 2.48; and Sondra Stull, 2.48.

Ruth Adelson completed her work in last year's summer session with a 2.39 average.

Wong will receive the Wall Street Journal award for the highest grades in business administration.

Commencement Speakers

FOUR FIELDS OF COLLEGE STUDY will be represented in commencement speeches by (left to right above) Francis Nerney, a pre-legal major, Nini Aigeltinger, journalism major and assistant managing editor of The Guardsman, William Combs, merchandising management major, and (below left) George Savo, hotel and restaurant major and student general manager of the division. All were selected on the basis of their scholarship and ability to represent their college majors. Their theme—a keynote of the ceremonies—will be Our Community College.—Photo by Lipke.

Four Honor Graduates Slated To Speak At Commencement

By Edwina Killoren

Following the theme, Our Community College, four graduating honor students are preparing commencement speeches representing their particular fields of study here, Oscar E. Anderson, coordinator, in charge of commencement, announced recently.

Among the four is one woman student, Nini Aigeltinger, assistant managing editor of The Guardsman and a journalism major. A graduate of Lowell High School and an honor student, Miss Aigeltinger has been active in college newspaper work.

During her first semester she worked with radio instructor Henry Leff publicizing "Making Music," the college's first class via FM radio. Editorial positions on The Guardsman and publicizing the evening division occupied her following semester activities.

Future plans include the completion of study at the University of California with particular emphasis on international relations.

A merchandising management major, William G. Combs, Alameda High School graduate, is second speaker of the group.

A member of Alpha Gamma Sigma honor society, Combs expects to return for a fifth semester of merchandising study.

A graduate of Sacred Heart High School, Francis G. Nerney, pre-legal major, is the third scheduled speaker.

Following service in the United States Army, Nerney enrolled in the college. Completion of a law course at the University of San Francisco is future accomplishment for the legal student.

Fourth speaker is George Savo, a hotel and restaurant major and graduate of South Lake High, in St. Clair Shores, Michigan.

A seven year hitch with the United States Navy, preceded his enrollment at the college. Savo intends to enter active hotel and restaurant work after graduation.

Baker Elected To Lead Fall CAB

Don Baker was elected to the post of president of the Club Activities Board for next semester by representatives of on-campus clubs June 3.

Other officers elected were Joanna Smith, vice-president; Gail Pighetti, corresponding, secretary; and Diane [illegible], recording secretary.

Baker represented the freshman class this semester, while Gail Pighetti was representative of Zeta Chi.

Vote On Changes In Constitution Slated For Fall

Open voting and discussion on proposed amendment changes to the Associated Student Constitution will take place in the Fall Semester, the Student Council decided last week.

Because of the limited amount of time to perform such action the council decided to postpone the meeting.

The proposed amendments, which were drawn up by a special committee of student leaders, include the following:

1—Election of class presidents be omitted from the Constitution.

2—Voting privileges for all students.

3—One-third of the Student Council to consist of Freshman Council members, one-third from the Sophomore class and one-third from the Club Activities Board.

4—All petitions for elective offices to be submitted to the Election Commissioner before any party conventions to select delegates.

The convention is planned to be open to all students but only Associated Students may vote. Written ballots will be used with individual AS cards punched to avoid duplicity in voting, according to retiring Associated Student President, Bob Smirle.

He said that a two-thirds majority in voting would constitute a passage or rejection of any proposed amendment.

The council also favored a motion brought up by Bart Dempster to advise the incoming council to study the problem of providing adequate insurance for students in the college athletic program.

Dempster declared that students "should be protected by some kind of insurance."

Meanwhile Beverly Moon, newly elected Yell Leader, issued a call for students to try out for assistant yell leaders for the Fall semester.

Postponement Of Open Hearing On AS Amendments Is Wise Move

FOR the past few weeks, and, perhaps, some time before that, attention has been called to the existing problems confronting the future success of student government here.

The Guardsman has urged immediate consideration of these problems in terms of sound democratic and social planning so that final solution to the problems will meet with maximum approval of all concerned.

We are pleased so far with the results of this planning, and, as we have announced previously, admirable steps in this direction have already been taken and have met with sincere interest and favorable reaction.

Originally scheduled for today was an open conference to be held in the auditorium for the purpose of passing judgment on a list of proposed amendments to the Associated Student constitution. All students—whether they were members of the AS or not—were invited to express their opinions on major issues and to call the shots as they see them.

The proposed amendments that were to be voted upon today are covered in a news story on page one and merit the full consideration of all students before they take a final stand in the matter. This takes time. And a glance at what is left of the semester's calendar shows that there isn't too much time left.

That is why we are glad that student and faculty leaders decided to postpone the conference set for today and to hold it at a more convenient time in the ensuing semester when the more burdensome prospect of final examinations and commencement would not stand in the way of eliciting an effective response.

The proposed amendments, cumulatively speaking, may well decide the future of student government; hence they should not be rushed through too hastily nor haphazardly.

It is important to remember that the ball has been started rolling this semester. It inevitably must fall upon next semester's student leaders to complete the job. With the proper support and interest, and with more adequate time and information, we are confident that they will.

It's 'Thirty' . . .

THE GUARDSMAN makes its final appearance of the semester today.

In elections held last week, the staff elected the following members to editorial staff positions, replacing eight present staff members who are graduating:

In accepting the responsibilities that automatically become part of the job of any newspaper staff, the present staff offers its best wishes for success to the new staff.

Their's will be a hard but fruitful job. May it also be a happy one.

Life With Reilly . . . . Escaping Finals

THE thumb has been withdrawn from the dike, and the flood of worry over final examinations has engulfed students here. Next week they will troop into classrooms looking like Christians entering the lion's dens.

All of this groundless worry over final exams can be easily overcome by following a simple procedure which may be broken down to eight elementary points.

1—Adopt a devil-may-care attitude. So what if I think? Some surprising results may follow. By laughing in the teeth of disaster, one can thereby usurp the defeatist psychology which accompanies studying for finals. Most persons are defeated before they start because of this dangerous philosophy.

2—Outguess the instructor. Put yourself in his place. It is easy. What would you ask if you were giving the examination? If the test is to be of an objective nature, always memorize the insignificant details and ignore the glaring, italicized material. It is obvious that the inquisitor will not ask such elementary questions as "Who is Polonius?" Remember who those soldiers on the battlefronts were. It might come in handy.

3—Don't study too much. Approximately a half hour of study to five hours of television. And also study near the bedtime hour when the body is good and tired so that the information which accidentally sinks into you will be erased during sleep by the subconscious.

It can be highly injurious to study too much. The less you know, the less you worry. Ignorance is bliss. Those who worry about what is going to be asked are the ones who have studied too much and have reduced their nervous systems to spasmodic pulps.

4—Disregard lecture material. Note taking is old fashioned anyway. A more interesting diversion is to study the doodling in the notebook you made while listening to discussions on economics. One can discover the most interesting psychoses from idle pencilings. However, always remember the funny stories the instructor tells; they might be useful at parties.

5—Go to a good western movie the night before the examination. In fact go to a good western every night. It helps the popcorn sales. Also, it will relax you and be a welcome change from television.

6—Above all, if you are afraid of textbooks stay away from them. Of course it will be a calculated risk, but better you should have your sanity than worry yourself into a frazzle over such meaningless things as final examinations.

7—Try bluffing in an essay exam. It works wonders. Pretend you know all about the material but that it would insult the instructor's intelligence to discuss perfectly obvious points. Use big words and vague cliches. If it sounds smooth, you'll get a good grade. In fact, why not act outraged at the very thought of the instructor giving you an examination.

8—Laugh hideously at anyone who worries over exams. It will irritate them and do you a world of good.

9—Listen to a Haydn symphony on the morning of the examination. It will perk you up. There's nothing so invigorating as a bunch of guys sawing away on violins.

10—Don't show up for the exam at all.

The foregoing suggestions are obviously whimsical and escapist in nature, but it is surprising to learn that many students operate under such principles. There's really only one way to beat finals—Study like mad.
—By Bob Reilly.

President's Plaque, Scholastic Cup Head Awards List

• The President's Award plaque (1) is presented to the man and woman, graduating students, who have performed the greatest service to the college. The recipients this year will not be announced until commencement.

• The Wall Street Journal Award (2) includes a silver medal and a year's subscription to The Wall Street Journal, presented to the student in business who achieved the highest scholastic standing and indicated potential promise in the field of finance and investment. The winner of the award for 1952 is Henry Wong.

• The Alpha Gamma Sigma certificate (3) and pin (4) are presented to those students who are elected to life membership in the college scholastic society—three out of four, or four out of five semesters of AGS membership and a 2.3 or better grade point average.

• The Harlan Award and the Nuodex Awards (5) each consist of a five-volume set, Protective and Decorative Coatings by J. J. Mattiello, presented to the students who maintained the best scholastic record in paint technology courses. This year the Harlan Award goes to William Carlson, and the Nuodex Award to Clifford Asbill.

• The Associate in Arts Degrees (6) are presented to all graduates.

• The Alice Eastwood Honor Award (7) consists of a check for $100 which is presented to the outstanding graduating student or students who major in Floriculture. This year the award will be presented to Alvin Alivo and Kaz Kawaguchi.

College Round-Up

Yuba Finds No Athlete Of Year

By Charles Lane

• Yuba College (Marysville, California): A stormy 45 minute executive council meeting called at Yuba College to determine the outstanding athlete of the year at that college ended with a rather surprising decision.

The argument began when a decision on one of the two candidates for the award could not be reached.

Final conclusion of the council after the executive session provided no compromise: Yuba College has no outstanding athlete for this year!

• Sacramento Junior College: Those three double deck London buses that were in San Francisco recently were taken to Sacramento junior college for the inspection of the students at that capital city college.

The buses were brought to the United States to advertise Great Britain and the jolly time one might have there at vacation time.

Accompanying the buses was a crew of nine, plus several British girls. (What, no tea?).

• Long Beach City College: In an effort to determine to what extent the students of this southern California college dabble in the delicate art of cheating in tests, a group of 81 students were asked whether they had ever cheated on any tests given at LBCC.

The results: 29 per cent of those asked said they had never cheated; 57 per cent said that they cheated very seldom, and 14 per cent reported that they cheated all the time.

A psychology instructor at the college, in attempting to explain the high rate of cheating, mused that, "It's probably a general resistance to learning."

Nurse Training Program Here Prepares 200 Students For Careers

Approximately 200 students are enrolled in six nursing courses and attend the college for one year while training at various hospitals throughout the city, according to Kenneth Hobbs, director of nurse training here.

Seven hospitals are affiliated with the college and work cooperatively to furnish these young women with the proper requirements for a nursing career.

The hospitals are Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children, Mt. Zion, Franklin, Mary's Help, St. Luke's, St. Francis, and French Hospitals.

The requirements for a nurse training course are a high school diploma and one year of chemistry in high school. Hobbs declared, and students must keep in training for 1,095 days, which is approximately three years with vacations.

Student nurses live at the hospitals and have special duties there. Some classes are given right at the hospitals, while others are given at the college itself. Some of the hospitals have agreements with each other to have a group of student nurses go from one hospital to another and attend certain special classes.

Lost Found-Lings

Unclaimed Articles Go To Charity, Store

By Louanne Morford

Crammed in a small room on the second floor of Building 2 are six large boxes and shelves filled with articles that have been found and turned in to be reclaimed by their proper owners.

Acting Dean of Men Louis Batmale recently urged that all lost goods be claimed as soon as possible as all unclaimed articles will be disposed of to charity or sold for the benefit of the college at the end of the semester.

At the present time a wide variety of lost articles, incinding text books, coats, and spectacles are in the custody of Secretary Connie Martin, who is in Room 2 of Building 2 on the west campus.

Dean Batmale explained that articles of clothing and items of a like nature will be turned over to a charitable institution, and books will be sold to the student store and the money placed in the student loan fund.

Further, he suggested that any person who has lost an item attempt to recover it by checking with the lost and found department in Building 2, the attendance office, Room 2, or Room 5 after 12 noon.

Mrs. Martin suggested that all persons who have previously checked the lost and found for a lost item attempt to locate it through that medium again, as more things are turned in each day.

Stricken All-Time Prep Great Faces Future Bravely, Still Plans Collegiate Career

By Bob Snow

Several coaches sat around the hotel lobby following the recent state junior college track championships at Santa Rosa, listening, some serious and intent, others fidgeting nervously with their hands, as Mel Patton spoke with sadness of a great young athlete.

"He's planning a full college career just as though nothing serious faces him, as though he were going to lead a normal life . . . He's a great boy and has all the courage in the world."

Patton, world record holder for the hundred yard dash, and now track coach at Long Beach College, was describing Leon Patterson, who had just broken the National interscholastic record in the shot put with a toss of 60' 9¾".

The small gathering seemed stunned to learn that Patterson, a handsome physical specimen, is threatened with death by the time he reaches his 25th birthday. Physicians have diagnosed a severe kidney ailment which will shorten a potentially momentous athletic career.

Although visibly saddened by the news, the mentors hope that a cure could be found to save the brilliant lad from Taft High School. Trying to forget the grim details, the gentlemen talked over Patterson's ability to heave the heavier 16 pound shot used in college competition.

Once again Patton broke the silence:

"Leon has perfect technique now. I was talking to his high school coach and he told me that Leon's improvement this year was principally due to improved techniques and not to any gain in physical strength. It is questionable as to what Patterson will do when he is called upon to throw a four pound heavier shot in college, particularly if his illness causes any loss of strength."

The talk shifted to the rumors that Patterson was heading to Notre Dame in the fall, but Hilmer Lodge, Mt. San Antonio coach, hinted that he would preferably take up his studies at U.S.C.

It is a tribute to the courage of the young star that he should be willing to undertake the strenuous tasks which lie ahead of him.

As the years drift by, and the time of hope begins to dwindle, those associated with track will pray all the harder that somewhere, somehow, a cure will be found that will enable Patterson to live a normal life, to compete without fear of impending death, and to give every track fan the thrill of watching him.

Spring Sports Finish Strong; Outlook Bright For '53 Season

By Jack Baird

With the spring sports program now under wraps for another year, the two most important factors arising from the season were the individual performances of participants and the late season surge of teams to achieve prominent positions in their respective conference race.

Led by Vern Chambers, Harry Wade, Wally Jackson, Ron Bauer, and the combined efforts of the 880 medley relay team, the cindermen won three, tied one, and lost two, finished third in the state meet (with only a four man team), fourth in the Big Seven Championships, and knocked over University of San Francisco in an early season dual meet.

In the best conference times of the season, the Rams came up with three of the tops: Wade posting a :21.4 in the 220 yard dash, Bauer with a 4:27.4, and Chambers skipping to a :15.1 in the high hurdles.

Baseball had its shortcomings in early season, but as the players, under Coach Bill Fischer, began to realize their potential, they played with a fighting spirit and won over 50 per cent of their final games and finished in fifth place.

The only other team to beat Santa Rosa, besides City College, was Sacramento which won in the same manner as the Rams, only in this case losing the first game to give Santa Rosa the championship.

Tennis suffered from a shortage of funds or they would have sent their two best men Bob and Don Mays to the state finals at Los Angeles.

Coach Roy Dalderichson's men finished the season with a four won, two lost record and deserve a lot of praise, for they played against some stiff competition, especially in late season when they played their best tennis.

Modesto, finishing first in the conference with a 6-0 record, and the Rams, in second place, were rated the two top tennis teams in Northern California.

Under the expert coaching of Ralph Hillsman, the Ram golf team completed a heetic season finishing fourth in the conference and taking fourth in the Big Seven tourney at Stockton.

Highlight of the spring sports program was the intramural boxing tourney held in the men's gymnasium. This was organized because league competition folded up.

However, with excellent boxers like Elmo Ellis, Asbury Butler, Ted Floyd, Charles Howell, and George Perry, something had to be done and out of this came one of the best boxing tourneys ever held on campus with the outstanding boxer award going to Ted Floyd.

So, the spring sports turned out—some new stars being made, others fading, but the participation was good with many of the personnel competing in these sports on the verge of being called into the armed services.

Next Spring could even provide a hetter record. Who knows?

Fall Officers Elected For WAA

The newly elected officers of the Women's Athletic Association for the coming Fall semester are President Mildred Stoll, Vice-President Anna Buoncristiani, and Secreary-Treasurer Betty Orton.

Names of the new officers were announced by this semester's President Pat Wellman, at the WAA's annual banquet at Sigmund Stern Grove, on May 29.

The following 14 women received awards for their participation in swimming, badminton, tennis, or basketball: Barbara Siegel, Betty Orton, Nancy Farrel, Eldora Jenkins, Adell Woods, Mildred Stoll, Betty Jo Cotton, Anna Buoncristiani, Mildred Perkins, Loraine Jagow, Margie Harms, Jean Gomez, Stella Smith, and Edith Stern.

During summer vacation, some of the college's folk daneing members will do a series of western square dances at the grand opening of the Emporium at Stonestown, scheduled for the latter part of June. The partners who will dance are Christina Hansen and Bob Anderson, Lois Hadson and Ed Dellaha, Clnrie Lippi and Dave Wenzlaff, and Joanna Smith and Howard Webb.

The sports to be offered in the Fall will be according to demand. Nancy Sparks, WAA adviser announced. They will probably include co-educational bowling, tennis, advanced archery, riding, folk daneing, and badminton. Women's sports will be softball, modern dance, swimming and basketball.

Block SF Society Gives 54 Awards At Recent Banquet

Keynoting the culmination of spring athletics here at the college, 54 athletes received Block S.F. awards at the annual awards banquet held recently in the college cafeteria.

Following a speech by Clarence "Nibs" Price, University of California basketball coach, who has won more than ten championships since 1925, George Mullany, faculty adviser for the Publicity Committee, presented the athletes with their coveted awards.

Henry Marshall, president of the Block SF Society, who acted as master of ceremonies, concluded the dinner by reminding the new society members of the impending election for fall semester officers.

Ram Outfielder Les Grimes Lands On Big Seven All-Conference Team

Lester Grimes, Rams outfielder, during the recent baseball season, was named to the second string of the All-Conference teams as released Friday by H. E. Taggert, Big Seven conference commissioner.

Grimes hit .359, drove in seven runs during the conference season, and was instrumental in many a City College victory.

On the first team, champion Santa Rosa garnered four places; runnerup, Sacramento, placed one, along with San Mateo, Stockton, and Contra Costa. Stockton filled the remaining two positions.

Heads-Up Sophs Delay Annual Tilt Until Friday 13th; Bad Luck Ahead For Profs

By Joe Callas

Anticipating the onslaught that was to occur in the seven innings that were upcoming, the beloved baseball playing sophomores and professors were forced to postpone their annual tilt to Friday, June 13, in college hour.

Another reason for the postponement of the game was the dew on the grass and the murky weather surrounding the football practice field, which is the piece of realty that the game was to be played on.

There will be no double college hour this Friday, according to acting Dean Louis F. Batmale, but the lost class time last Friday that will have to be compensated for. Even though there will be no lengthened college hour, the game will start at 10:30 a.m. this Friday.

After gawking at the muscled bodies of Sophs, the men with the educational background called a short meeting and decided that it would be to their advantage to postpone the tussle.

Although they were urged a little by the weatherman in calling the tilt, the Profs, not bothering to peek at their calendars, rescheduled the "Battle of The Brain and The Brawn" for the unlucky day of Friday the 13th.

After learning their great and fatal mistake, the Profs tried to reschedule the game for June 20, knowing all the while that the Sophs would be playing in uniforms of black caps and gowns, thus making it all the easier for the Profs to win their fourth consecutive tilt.

However, the Sophs, led by Marv "The Marvel" Ussery, would not tolerate such action, and had it not been for the campus police there would have been nine fewer faculty members roaming the grounds of the college.

The Profs very unsuspectingly decided to inspect the equipment used by Sophs, and found, to their astonishment, hats that had been filled with lead, and baseball spikes that had been sharpened enough to give old Rip Van Winkle a close shave.

After trying to fit one of the hats usgd by the second year muscle men, Joseph "Arms" Amori sustained a severe muscle pull in his arms.

After this very unfortunate happening, the week long postponement of the tilt may prove profitable to the Profs, as it will give them time to shake off the woes of their close win over some boy scouts in a seven game series they played against the troop last week — and also give Amori a chance to heal his grievous injury.

Conference Champs Announce Grid Slate

Nearly 80 men are expected to try out for the football team next season, and with a few new men plus returning veterans, the Rams have a good chance to capture The Big Seven Conference title for the second consecutive year.

Some of the city's outstanding preps are expected to land in starting berths.

The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 26—Menlo College—here.
Oct. 3—Santa Rosa—there.
Oct. 10—Contra Costa—here.
Oct. 17—LACC—there.
Oct. 24—San Mateo Col.—there
Oct. 31—East Los Angeles—here.
Nov. 7—Sacramento Col.—here.
Nov. 14—Stockton—there.
Nov. 21—Modesto—there.

RAMblings . .

By Don Stephens

FOLLOWING a nation-wide trend among small colleges, the recent Big Seven Conference Coaches' meeting at Santa Rosa, found the mentors deciding on the limitation of athletic contests for the following year.

Laying the limitation of games to the lack of interest and funds, the coaches' convention, in their most drastic decision of the afternoon, cut the usual 32 game basketball schedule down to 20 contests.

And, instead of the usual doubleheaders against each conference team, a six game league slate has been introduced.

Basketball and football, to the amazement of most observers who predicted some limitations, were the only sports to escape the chopping block. However, these two sports provided some of the liveliest controversy for an otherwise dull afternoon.

When the grid coaches found their usual August practice date delayed until September, they formed a block that tried to cut down on the basketball training date. The football coaches contended that basketball practice continued after the regular season until the summer recess; so, why couldn't the football players enjoy the same privileges.

Soon realizing they were overstepping into the realm of over-emphasis, the coaches rescinded their futile "flock" and "settled down to business.

Because of its durability, the Voit rubber football was optionally accepted for use in conference and inter-conference games. The question of what ball to use will be left to the opposing teams. On this question, Coach Roy Burkhead announced the Ram eleven will use the standard leather Spaulding.

Heretofore, a league rule stipulated that all injuries were to be handled through athletic insurance funds, but a new ruling provided that any conference college can handle their injury problems, individually.

Surprising as it may seem, tennis, golf, and soccer escaped with only two minor limitations and will compete in their usual capacity.

While limiting for a few fill-ins for this column, an item of interest in a news release aroused our curiosity.

The release stated that recently a new strikeout record for organized baseball was established when Ron Neecial, 19, pitching for the Bristol Twins of the Class D Appalachian league, struck out 27 batters in nine innings.

Now, according to reliable sources, there are 27 outs in an average nine inning baseball game.

Well, at the end of the release was the following: "In only one inning did Neeciai fail to strike out the side—the second when a batter grounded out to the shortstop."

That extra out is beyond us. Maybe they follow different rules in the faraway Appalachian country. Mebbe so.

Waikiki Looms On Cage Schedule

By Barry Clare

Next season's basketball team is tentatively scheduled to participate in a week long game tour of the Hawaiian Islands during December, Coach Ralph Hillsman, revealed recently.

The team will probably stay at famous Waikiki Beach during their tour and will visit the many tourist attractions.

Many cage experts feel that the calibre of two year college basketball, which has developed players further along than many four year colleges, will increase when coast college teams meet clubs having four year veterans. They will gain more experience by playing these squads and will spread good will, thereby, building up the reputation of the two year colleges.

With a few returning veterans and, possibly, some star preps playing for the Rams next season, they should win the conference championship as they did last year and make an excellent showing against the Hawaiian teams, who are considered tough competition.

The team ended the season last year losing 6 and winning 21; one of these was to the alumni.

"Two post season tournaments are scheduled," Hillsman said, "and the Rams play the U.S.F. Frosh and the U.C. Frosh teams in practice games."

He added that "these post-season games will help prepare us for the Hawaiian tour, and when we arrive there the team should be playing good ball."

Opera Showcase Features Cast Of 20 Next Sunday

By Anna Buonerlstiani

Opera Workshop students will be featured in the third annual Opera Showcase, which will be presented in the college's auditorium on Sunday, June 15, at 2:15 p.m., Flossita Badger, Opera Workshop director, and Gloria Rotando, student manager, announced last week.

The students will participate in a program of opera scenes, and in Puccini's one-act comedy, Gianni Schicchi.

Sopranos Claudia Orsborne, Beverly Keaton, Nancy Harp and Gary Eliopoulos will be featured in the scenes along with mezzo-soprano Barbara Warren, tenor Donato Alvini, bass John Catron, and baritone James Bogue.

Those appearing in the one-act comedy will be baritones Ronald Dutro, Johnny Land, Richard Massei, Bogue, Elmer Delancy, sopranos Doris Spencer, Betty McNamara, Miss Harp mezzo-soprano Peggy Lawford, tenor John Downing, Catron and contralto Irene Halicki.

The group's faculty business manager is Robin Dunn, the student manager is Gloria Rotando, publicity manager is Robert Rezak, and the stage managers are Jerry Barnes and Barbara Morris. The stage committee includes Bill Bullis, Chuck Huntly, and Marvin Kurtz.

William Eckert, art instructor, and Werner Heil are in charge of the art; Miss Warren is handling the costumes; Miss Rotando and Albert Ting are in charge of the programs, and the Hotel and Restaurant Division students will prepare the refreshments.

The ushering committee chairman is Christina Politis and the committee includes Caroline Cirimele, Diane Clark, Violet Litras, Josephine Granucci, Shirley Lembeek, Beverly Moon, Gayle Hamilton, Beverly White, Louanne Morford, Edwina Killorin, and Gloria Lorenzo.

The program's accompanist is Betty Wicklund. Refreshments will be served after the performance in the west campus auditorium.

Admission to the program is by invitation. Invitations are available to Associated Students at the bank and Ramporium.

Hotel And Restaurant Publicity Director To Retire This Year

By Edwina Killoren

Fifteen successful years of publicizing the college's hotel and restaurant division culminates this semester for Mozelle Milliken with her retirement as division publicity director.

A background which included newspaper reporting, fiction writing, and public relations work provided the necessary experience for the important position as the director of the division's publicity department.

Starting her career as a reporter on the Arkansas Gazette, she recalls the advice the editor gave her when he first met her: "Women are always news, young lady, and don't forget it."

While still attending the University of Washington, she turned her talent to writing fiction for the "slick publications" with manuscript acceptances far outweighing rejection slips.

After college she worked on the Seattle Post-Dispatch and following that was for 15 years in publicity work for hotels. During these years she coupled her hotel publicity with the building up of her own publicity agency.

Coming to the college in 1937 she dropped her other accounts to devote full time to the hotel and restaurant division publicity.

When asked for her secret of successful publicity, she said that two things are essential: "truthfulness in dealing with newspapers, and remembering to publicize your client, not yourself."

Part time work includes ghostwriting articles for trade publications. This profession, which is just coming to be generally accepted as legitimate by most writers, proves very lucrative for any interested person, according to Mrs. Milliken. "The key to successful ghostwriting," she said, "is when your client says, 'It sounds just like me.'"

Future plans include going back to her first interest, that of writing for magazines.

Zimmerman Wins Service Key Award

Ronald Zimmerman was named the winner of the Student Council's service key award as the outstanding student of the Spring, 1952, semester at the council's annual banquet last week.

The award was presented to Zimmerman by Associated Student President Bob Smirle who said the award was made on the basis of Zimmerman's "outstanding service" to the college.

"Merely being nominated for the service key award is an honor in itself," Smirle said. The council felt the award should be given to Zimmerman because of his long-time interest in student government.

The award was made following presentation of engraved keys to council and cabinet members and speeches made by Dr. Louis G. Conlan, president; Dr. Herbert C. Clish, superintendent of schools; and Archibald J. Cloud, president-emeritus.

Lockers Available For Summer June 23

Lockers for use during the summer session will be available after Monday, June 23, Oscar E. Anderson, controller, announced recently.

Dr. Anderson explained that the lockers could be obtained from the attendant in the student bank located in the main building.

Lockers now in use must be cleared before Wednesday, June 18, so that they may be ready for reassignment.

Cafeteria Service Curtailed By Finals

In compliance with finals week, the Hotel and Restaurant division has scheduled special hours for cafeteria service, Lawrence Wong, division spokesman, announced recently.

During the finals period of June 15-20, the cafeteria will be open for breakfast, 7:30-10:30 a.m., for lunch, 11 a.m.-1 p.m. There will be no dinner session, however, Wong added.

Because of summer employment for division students, the cafeteria will be closed during summer session.

Ushers Needed For Summer Productions

Applications for summer ushering positions at the Civic Auditorium and Opera House which entitle students to free admission to performances are now being accepted by Dean Margaret Dougherty in Building 2.

Opening Opera House productions of the season include South Pacific, Monday, June 30, and Call Me Madam set for Monday, July 28.

Student ushers are needed for the entire run of these two feature attractions and may sign up for single or season job opportunities.

Other highlights at both the Civic Auditorium and the Opera House include musical productions, guest star appearances, opera and light opera works.

G. I.'s Must Report Change of Address

All veterans who at present are receiving subsistence pay under the G. I. Bill, and who expect a change of residence address during the summer months, must notify the Veterans Affairs Office at the college not later than Friday, June 13, F. Grant Marsh, coordinator of Student Welfare, announced last week.

The veteran's office is located in Building 3.

Club Cavalcade

Spring Semester Activities Wind-Up As Clubs Schedule Final Meetings

By Louanne Morford

Currently scheduled are the last meetings of the semester for the college's fraternities, sororities, clubs, and organizations.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship had as guest speaker at their meeting on June 6, Donald Warner. Warner is a former student here, at present enrolled at San Francisco State College.

Members of Delta Psi have planned a joint meeting with Alpha Sigma Delta fraternity tonight.

A study of three of Thornton Wilder's plays will be presented by the Drama Club during the latter part of the month. The plays will be staged on the campus before an invited audience.

Members of Phi Beta Rho sorority elected officers June 3 for the fall semester at the home of June Hilson.

Phi Beta Delta fraternity held a business meeting on June 4 in Building 2B on the west campus.

A formal initiation at the home of Diane Bates was followed by a dinner dance at the Hunters Point Officers Club as Theta Tau celebrated the admission of the following new members: Priscella Alvardo, Noren Duryea, Gloria Farbar, Sally Hayden, Jean Mertes, Mollie Morris, Joan Terry, and Marilyn Pullum.

Newman Club's officers for the spring semester were elected at the June 4 meeting. Election was held at St. Emydius Hall and members elected are Jack McCartney, president; Renea Martinez, vice-president; Mildred Stoll, corresponding secretary; Noreen Farley, recording secretary; Mike Hurley, treasurer; Bob Rodriguez, sergeant-at-arms.

The Iota Pi Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, held their elections for the Fall 1952 chapter officers last Tuesday. Newly elected officers are Gene Bunch, president; Larry Elizarde, vice-president; Bob Jacobsen, recording secretary; Ralph Luce, corresponding secretary; Don Millard, treasurer; Bob Elliott, Club Activities Board representative.

French Club presented, in conjunction with students from the University of California, four plays at the Alliance-Francois on June 2. Purpose of staging the plays was to raise money for two scholarships to the Maison Francois section of the Mills College summer session.

Alpha Kappa Rho fraternity held elections June 4 at the home of Vic Rubon. Elected as next semester's officers were Gale Wright, president; Al Zanardi, vice-president; Roy Bidwell, secretary-treasurer; Rubon, sergeant-at-arms.

Alpha Kappa Rho will hold a joint meeting tonight with Theta Tau at the home of Paul Bixel.

Zeta Chi held initiation and presentation of pins on Wednesday, June 4. Also on the evening agenda was election of officers for the Fall semester. Nancy Bobblit was elected president; Louise Gerber, vice-president; Gail Pigetti, treasurer.

Football Coach Roy Burkhead will direct Red Cross swimming instruction this summer at Fleishacker Pool.

New Building May Be Named Cloud Hall

When the proposed classroom-library building, now in the planning stages, is finally completed, it may bear the name of Cloud Hall in respect and tribute to Archibald J. Cloud, president-emeritus of the college.

This was the unanimous decision of the Student Council last week at its student government banquet as it paid its respects to the former college president who "played such an important part in the establishment of student activities at the college."

The Student Council passed a resolution that the Board of Education approve plans to dedicate the new building as Cloud Hall, in honor of the former president.

Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish said he would present the resolution for approval to the Board when it re-convenes in August.

From such time as the board would approve the resolution, Dr. Clish said, Dr. Cloud's name will appear on the blueprints and eventually on the building itself.

Summer, Fall Grads Bring Total To 526

A total of 336 Spring '52 sophomores are expected to receive their Associate of Arts degree Friday, June 20. Not included in the list published here are graduates of the 1951 Summer semester and Fall '51 graduates.

This makes a total of 526 students tentatively scheduled to graduate.

Richard Leon Press, prospective graduate and pre-legal major, won a $300 California State Scholarship to study at the University of California.

College Hour Rally Friday To Raise Curtain On Ram Football Season, Freshman Class Dance

According to Rally Commissioner Stokely Wilson, a rally featuring both campus and off-campus talent will be presented in the auditorium during college hour this Friday, September 26.

The rally, which will precede the Freshman dance on Friday evening and the first City College football game of the season on Saturday, will be open to all students, Wilson said. Following rallies will be open only to members of the Associated Students.

Nominees for the AS offices of Vice-President and Yell Leader will be introduced to students at Friday's rally. Nominations for these two positions will be submitted to the Student Council tomorrow, Wilson said.

The Rally Commissioner also added that there are several openings available for positions on the Rally Committee.

According to the official calendar, college hour rallies are slated for September 26, November 7, and January 16.

Club meetings are scheduled for October 3 and 31, November 14, December 12, January 9, and January 23.

The college hour on Friday, October 17, is slated as CAB day. There are no scheduled activities for the college hours on October 24, November 21, and December 5. A double college hour is scheduled for January 30, which is the last Friday of the Fall semester.

College Hour Schedule

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 8:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Fairmont Hotel Site Of Season's First Social Event

The first big Associated Student hotel dance of the semester, under the sponsorship of the Freshman class, will be held at the Fairmont Hotel on Friday, September 26, in the Terrace Room.

September Song, theme of the dance will be free to members of Associated Students, according to class sponsor, Anthony Paciotti. Paciotti added that Associated Student cards will be on sale at the door.

Cost to non-members will be $1.50 per couple. Dancing will be from 9 to 12 p.m. For refreshments, cokes will be sold in the hotel.

Semi-formal attire, business suits for men and street clothes for women, will be appropriate.

Charlie Stern and his band, who played for the collegienne dances at the Hotel Richlieu last semester, will provide the music for the evening.

Freshman officers handling the arrangements are Gene Beandet, president; Mary Lou Balazs, vice-president; Dorothy Pfeiffer, secretary; and Julie Hanna, treasurer.

Publicity is under the direction of Gene Van Duyn, member of the President's Cabinet and Publicity Committee.

New Instructors Added To Faculty

Alex Schwartz, former head football coach at Mission High School, has come to the college as physical education instructor and assistant to head football Coach Grover Klemmer, who has returned to the college after working with the Central School department office for a year, President Louis J. Conlan announced recently.

Other new additions to the faculty, President Conlan said, include Dwight Straub, of the biological science department, and Fritz Gerstacker of the Hotel and Restaurant division. Gerstacker, who replaces Jean Rome who retired last year, came to the college from Galileo High School.

Donald Smith, a former member of the social science department, is now with the business administration department.

President Conlan said that "there are a number of faculty members who have returned to the college after their sabbatical leave." Don Perham has returned to the English department after a long vacation in Europe. Thomas Dutcher of the social science department has returned to the college after serving with the [illegible] Navy in the South Pacific.

Hotel Division Sets Cafe, Fountain Hours

Students of the hotel and restaurant division have gone all out to make this year's cafeteria and fountain service the best yet according to Hilda Watson, hotel and restaurant division head.

The fountain, located in Building 12, is open from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m., while the cafeteria in Building 14 serves breakfast from 7:30 until 10:30 a.m., lunch from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Any group wishing to arrange dinner meetings or reserve cafeteria tables for lunch should apply to Mrs. Watson or Wendell Muntz in Building 19 or see cafeteria manager Larry Wong in the cafeteria.

Dutcher Named New Phi Rho Pi Adviser

The college's debating team, Phi Rho Pi, takes on a new adviser this semester as Thomas A. Dutcher replaces Michael Griffen, Lloyd C. Lockman, coordinator of instruction, announced yesterday.

Dutcher received his A.B. at the University of Southern California where he was a member of his debating team and received his M.A. at the University of Oregon. He has been teaching English here since [illegible].

AUDITIONS LAST SPRING led to production of Puccini's opera comedy Gianni Schicchi, and jobs in television for two members of the cast. The above scene from Gianni Schicchi included, left to right, Peggy Lilienthal, Ronnie Dutro, Johnny Lund, Jim Bague, and Nancy Harp. Dutro and Miss Harp are singers now on the daily television program on KPIX, Ladies Day With Lee. Auditions similar to those of last spring are scheduled for tomorrow and Friday afternoons to determine costing for the college production of Romberg's The Desert Song.—Photo by Blanco.

Fletcher Appoints Fall Cabinet, Calls For Special Election Soon

Norman Heise Heads Finance Committee

Associated Student President Stan Fletcher officially announced his selection of the President's Cabinet for the fall semester last week.

The cabinet includes the following officers:

Norman Heise, Finance chairman; Joelle Ramonte, secretary; Stokley Wilson, Rally commissioner; Sam Blythe, Publications Board chairman; Charles Osborn, Parliamentarian; Jim Bonick, Associated Student membership chairman; Jim Jacobs, Men's Athletic commissioner; Gene Van Duyn, Publicity chairman; Joanna Smith, CAB chairman; Lou Sheppard, Information Service chairman.

Two appointive offices, those of Alumni Liaison Officer and Election commissioner, have not been filled as The Guardsman goes to press.

The President's Cabinet serves as a co-ordinating body between the various departments and the Student Council, and presents all business of those departments to the Council. Members of the Cabinet, except the Vice-President, do not have a vote in the Student Council.

The President's Cabinet meets jointly with the Student Council or at special times set by the Associated Student President.

Nominations To Fill Four Posts Due Tomorrow

Vacancies in Associated Student offices will be filled soon through general election of Vice-President and Yell Leader, and Student Council approval of two appointees to the Council, Stan Fletcher, AS president, said yesterday.

Nominations for the posts of Vice-President, Yell Leader and two Frosh Council posts will be held tomorrow at Student Council. Anyone interested in student government and the posts mentioned above should inform a member of the Council tomorrow, according to Fletcher.

The Student Council, as the highest governing body of the Associated Students, has final authority in the administration of the affairs, policies, properties, and conduct of the association.

Fletcher, who was elected Associated Student President by a margin of 12 votes over independent candidate Edward Tomasello in an election that saw only one out of 21 offices contested, urged that anyone interested in Student Council and who has time to donate to student government, investigate the possibilities offered by these vacancies.

Student Council meets regularly Tuesdays and Thursdays at 12 o'clock in Building 2, Room B.

Program Addition Deadline Is Friday

Students who desire to add a course to their programs should do so before Friday, September 26, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

To change a program, Dr. Marsh said, students should get a change of program card which is obtained in the counselling office which is located in Building 3.

The card must be signed by the department head of the course which the student plans to add. The card is then filed in the registrar's office, also located in Building 3.

Dr. Marsh warned that no program change will be permitted after the September 26 deadline unless there is good reason for doing so.

Desert Song, Orchestra Open To Community

By Lonanne Morford

Auditions, preparatory to casting, for the College-Opera Workshop presentation of The Desert Song, will be held tomorrow and Friday, September 25 and 26, from 2 to 4 o'clock in the auditorium, Building 1, on the west campus, according to Flossita Badger, workshop director.

Various types of talent are required for the production, and Miss Badger stressed the need for persons to take dance, chorus and speaking parts as well as for soloists.

"We are anxious to open tryouts to all students, and everyone is urged to attend," Miss Badger commented, "and I hope that many will come forward to participate in this important college production."

All parts will be double cast, therefore affording additional opportunity to a large number of students. Singers are asked to bring their own music, not necessarily selections from The Desert Song. Readings for speaking parts will be provided during the auditions.

Dates for the production, to be presented in the auditorium of the former Commerce High School, have been officially scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 13, 14 and 15.

An innovation to the Opera Workshop will be the special Desert Song orchestra now being organized by Meyer M. Cahn, director.

The new orchestra will meet for the first time tomorrow evening, September 25, at 7 p.m. in the student lounge, and anyone interested in participating should attend.

Cahn emphasized the fact that interested persons need not be enrolled in the college to be eligible to take part in The Desert Song orchestra, but, that anyone in the community is welcome.

The production will entail many jobs of a non-acting nature, and persons who have artistic talents other than singing and dancing are invited by opera workshop officials to join. Such jobs would be in the fields of decoration and property collection. Anyone interested should apply to Miss Badger.

Ticket sale dates will be officially scheduled later in the semester and will be under the management of Robin Dunn, the workshop's financial manager.

AS Membership Past 1000 Mark

Approximately one thousand Associated Students cards have been sold since the beginning of the Fall semester, according to Loius Batmale, Associated Student controller.

However, at least 700 more cards must be sold to enable the college to carry out the full program of student activities that it desires, Batmale said.

Pointing out the many advantages gained by AS membership, Batmale stated that campus parking permits cannot be obtained without the purchase of an AS card, and that students will not be admitted to the college dances and rallies without one.

Also, Batmale explained, discounts are given to card holders by local theaters and business firms.

The AS cards are now on sale in the Ramporium, Building 12, the AS bank, Room 188, and the Silver Pole, located in the main building.

Students who wish to obtain lockers should report to the AS bank from 9:45 to 11:10 a.m. and 12:10 and 1:15 p.m. However, because of locker shortage, students will be required to double up and share locker space.

Shutter Bugs Can Shoot The Works

Four Departments Participate In Annual Camera Day

The Fourth Annual Camera Day at Sigmund Stern Grove will be held next Sunday, September 28, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. and, for the first time, will be co-sponsored by City College, in conjunction with the Park and Recreation Department.

According to Bev Pasqualetti, director of photography here, tentative plans call for a variety of picture material to be made available for local camera enthusiasts.

Both the ceramics department, represented by Roy Walker, and the prize-winning Flower Shop, represented by John Lawrence, will have work displayed for photographing.

Work will be done on the potter's wheel, and floral arrangements will be made, on the spot, for those photographers who might like to picture art in action.

The men's and women's physical education classes will participate, under the direction of John Gaddy and Laurine Bergin. Exhibitions in archery, trampoline, and fencing will be given for the fast action photographer.

An instructional program from the stage has also been planned and will be handled by Pasqualetti and the staff of the department of photography, including Charles Lamp and Emmett Smith.

As in past years the college will be represented by a display of photographs turned out by students in the department of photography.

Responsible for this phase of the program will be Smith and Ken Molino. The Northern California Council of Camera Clubs will have several like displays spotted about the spacious grounds.

Fashion and portrait models, posed in appropriate settings, photography club competitions, a color slide contest, and a color slide show will round out the day-long program.

There will be no admission charge and, according to Pasqualetti, the day has been planned with the hope that it will become a "family affair" with items of sufficient interest to keep the family busy while the "camera bug" snaps his shutter to his heart's content.

Over-Standardization Scored At Junior College Convention

PERHAPS the one event each year which affects more two-year college students and faculty across the land than any other is the annual convention of the American Association of Junior Colleges. At this conference representatives of most of the country's two-year colleges meet to discuss their problems and the plans for the future.

Held last June, but topical the year round, was this year's annual convention at Boston, Massachusetts.

This college was represented by Dr. F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of Student Welfare, who served as delegate and represented the Western States in a committee designed to find ways and means for better services for student personnel. We were able to see a copy of the seven-page report of the convention Dr. Marsh made to Superintendent of Schools Dr. Herbert C. Clish.

Any accurate summation or comment on seven pages of convention happenings is of course impossible, but it is important to note that some subjects are of prime interest to students and faculty here whether they are attending this college or one in Alabama.

Particularly impressive to us were these words concerning over-standardization in the two-year college by Dorothy Bell, president of the association. Miss Bell said,

"Already enormous institutions are growing larger in numbers, not always in effectiveness of purpose. What we save in costs and duplication we well may be losing in time and consideration for the individual student whose personal developments remain our first concern."

More important than any speech, than any committee, we feel is the idea of the colleges working together to solve their problems. Surely there are some problems that are shared by all two-year colleges. Surely there are educational goals held in common by these colleges across the land.

We feel that there is certainly no better way to face the problems, to attain these goals, than a "meeting of minds" of educational leaders across the country.

The history books tell us that interchange of goods brought wealth to trading nations. Then too can the interchange of ideas bring educational wealth to the two-year college.

We look forward to the next annual conference of the American Association to be held in Dallas, Texas, in March of 1953, feeling that still another forward step will be made in junior college history.

Newspaper Vending Proves A Lucrative Business On Campus

Extra! Dividend!

The San Francisco Call-Bulletin gained unusual popularity at the college this last week. A one day newsstand under the shrewd maneuverings of some top operators, did a lucrative business of peddling the September 15 edition to eager students.

Reason why being that dozens of students "broke into print" by way of this particular issue which featured a full page spread of the colleges.

Covering registration procedures, scale drawing of the future college buildings, and a picture of Sammy the Ram, the spread presented an informative picture of the college community.

Question: Where do photography majors go after graduation?

Answer: Bob Feldman, '49 is with the U. S. Army as a combat photographer, Front Lines, Korea (via Art center in Los Angeles).

Fred Mathes, '50 is with the U. S. Army at Fort Monmouth (via International News Photos).

Bob Richard, '51 is with the U. S. Army (via Moulin Photo Studio, San Francisco).

Herb Weiss and Ken Hilmer are with the U. S. Army civilian photographers, Presidio of San Francisco.

Sales Appeal

Seems you can't turn your back on a fellow politician, according to Odette Trouillet, Associated Women Students president.

Miss Trouillet, charged with getting aid for the faculty during late registration, was nearly frantic when Jim Bonick, Associated Student card sales chairman, "stole" all her help to assist him with Associated Student card sales.

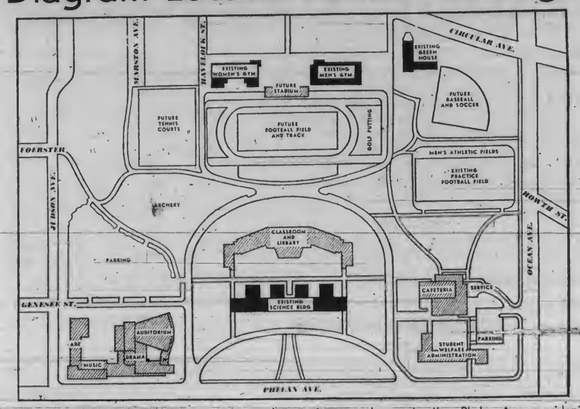
Stone Age?

The construction work on the new buildings has fostered many a bright comment and unusual observation.

Watching the operation of a steam shovel in back of the main building, a couple were commenting on the intricate movements of the huge jaws. The female member of the duo suddenly piped up, "You know, hon, it sort of reminds me of a gorilla eating his supper." Leaving her male companion wondering at her dinner companions, perhaps?

Line-up Time

Hotel and Restaurant Division, operating cafeteria service for students at the college, offers hints for quick service and mutual satisfaction.



Students are asked to "bus their own dishes." The easiest way is simply to leave the dishes on the tray and when finished eating, carry the tray to the soiled dish station. Unnecessary noise and costly breakage can be reduced by setting dishes down quietly, and by not "dumping" them in some convenient spot.

Strategy in the line moving through the cafeteria can be developed by the student if he can tell how he wants his coffee, black or white, if he can choose his selection quickly, and if he has his money ready for the cashier. Equipped with this know-how, cafeteria line-up time can be shortened.

Ram's Horn . . .

Following newspaper tradition, the Ram's Horn offers students and faculty members the opportunity to express their views therein.

Since the college opened in 1935, the Ram's Horn has been the major medium devoted to this purpose. This section of the editorial-feature page is designed, depending on the amount of material received, to give every reader the right to be "heard in print." The Guardsman will make every effort to publish all letters received.

The editor assumes responsibility for publication of material, reserving the right to shorten letters that are submitted, if there is insufficient space to print such letters in their entirety.

Primarily, The Guardsman will endeavor to bring to students and faculty a complete coverage of the news about the campus and of all college activities.

In addition, feature material and columns of various sorts will be presented with their themes generally a running commentary on life around the college. But letters from students reflect student thought best.

The only rule to be followed in submitting letters is that they must be signed. The name of the writer will be withheld upon request, however, the name must be known to the editor.

Letters should be left with the telephone operator in the main building or at The Guardsman office in Building 4, room D. The shorter—the better; the more, the livelier, is the slogan preferred.

Illinois Study Points Importance Of Reading Ability In All Fields

By Anna Buoneristiani

The intriguing and revealing sessions recently held at Illinois Tech on the importance of reading ability to all fields of education should prove interesting to students of every department in the college.

It has been found that the average adult reads about 300 words a minute. The average college freshman reads 275 to 325 words per minute. At Illinois Tech, the average slow reader who enters with a 198 word per minute rate winds up his developmental reading program with 402 words per minute, a substantial gain.

Elizabeth Simpson, Illinois Tech's reading expert, has often stated, "Reading is the one skill that relentlessly cuts through every field of endeavor and good reading habits are essential for all types of jobs in industry, the professions, and so on."

As an illustration for her theme she told of the following case:

A few years ago, a girl from an excellent high school, noted for its high scholastic standards, was graduated with an all A record. She expected no difficulties when she took the preliminary examinations at Smith College.

She ranked high in these examinations, but was rejected by the college because she ranked extremely low in the reading ability test.

There were tears and protests, and finally the girl and her family enlisted the aid of Mrs. Simpson and Illinois Tech's developmental reading program.

By Fall and some 40 special reading sessions later, the student had been brought up to about a 50 percentile reading ability ranking. Smith College relented and took her as a freshman. Nevertheless, this girl is still having difficulties with her college course.

Some 300 American colleges have at last recognized the importance of reading to all fields of education and are now trying to remedy the reading problem which confronts so many college students.

Shots At RAMdom

Horn Rims, A Stack Of Books And Then—Midterm Examinations

By Edwina Killoren

A COMMON romantic wish of students at some time in their social embryonic development is to live and breathe the atmosphere of the "intelligentsia."

To discuss the aesthetic merits of cubism vs formal art or perhaps draw a curving parallel between the surrealistic paintings of Dali and the philosophy of existentialism, this is living!

A feeling to be one with knowledge may arise at any level of mental development. Exposure to practically any college course can bring on the symptoms of a "pseudo-intellectual condition."

The victim acquires horn-rimmed glasses, a stack of psychology books, back copies of The Atlantic Monthly and Harper's, and if male, perhaps a pungent pipe.

Realities, such as homework, are pushed roughly out of the mind's reach. For the true pseudo-intellectual considers the confinements of class assignments something for only the most crude bourgeoisie student. He, in his infinite wisdom, can not be bothered by such time consuming trivia.

At about this point in the student's development a reaction may set in to shock him back to normality. The shock, usually comes in the form of a midterm grade from one or more of his instructors.

When this occurs, the student either leaves college for some little bistro on the Left Bank, or like a prodical returns to the saner types of campus extracurricular activities — such as football games.

WAA Lists Full Sport Program For Semester

The Women's Athletic Association invites all interested students to participate in many of the sports activities scheduled for the Fall semester, Gloria Dunn, new group sponsor, announced this week.

Mrs. Dunn said that almost any sport in which the students show a particular interest will be offered. The sports usually offered include bowling, softball, swimming, tennis, badminton, volleyball, archery, riding, fencing, modern dancing, hockey, and folk dancing. Many of these activities are co-educational.

This semester's new officers are Mildred Stoll, president; Anna Buoneristiani, vice-president; Bette Orton, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Dunn has replaced Nancy Sparks as the group's sponsor.

Some of the regular physical education classes may be taken for WAA participation credit. The inter-collegiate badminton teap meets Mondays and Wednesdays at 12 noon in Miss Sparks' co-ed badminton class.

The folk dancing club meets during the intermediate folk dancing class on Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 p.m.

Any woman student interested in swimming will receive WAA credit for participating on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the YWCA.

The horse back riding group meets on Monday afternoons at 2 and 3 p.m. Mrs. Dunn announced that any student who has taken archery for one semester and can not get into an archery class this semester may practice shooting on Friday mornings.

Friday, September 26, the WAA presidents and sponsors from all Bay Area colleges will meet at East Contra Costa in order to formulate plans for play days and other sports events for the Fall semester.

The managers and assistants for all WAA sports groups will be elected after each sport has been organized and has met at least one time.

Interested students should use the sign-up sheets placed in the women's gymnasium, Mrs. Dunn said.

Champs Meet Champs At Kezar Saturday

THE THREE "BIG SHOTS"—of the Ram coaching staff took time out last week to prove pictorially their claim to the record in height among coaching staffs of the coast. Ram Schedule Has Five Home Games, Four Road Clashes

The Ram football eleven looks forward to the coming season with some degree of anxiety. They will be out to retain the Big Seven Conference title that they won last year.

The Rams will be playing five home games, all at Kezar Stadium, the first one this Saturday afternoon. Three of the five home games will be played at night, with the other two scheduled for day time. Highlight of the home season will be the tilt against East Los Angeles Junior College, to be played Friday night, October 31.

Four road games are scheduled for the Rams this season, including the trip to Los Angeles to meet Los Angeles City College under the lights on Friday night, October 17.

The schedule is as follows:

Sept. 27—Menlo at Kezar, 2 p.m.
Oct. 3—Santa Rosa at Santa Rosa, 8 p.m.
Oct. 10—Richmond at Kezar, 8 p.m.
Oct. 17 — LACC at Los Angeles, 8 p.m.
Oct. 25—San Mateo at Kezar, 2 p.m.
Oct. 31—East Los Angeles at Kezar, 8 p.m.
Nov. 7 — Sacramento at Kezar, 8 p.m.
Nov. 14 — Stockton at Stockton, 8 p.m.
Nov. 21 — Modesto at Modesto, 8 p.m.

Three-Man Coaching Staff Proves Big Enough To Handle A Big Coaching Job

By Al Burgin

As has probably been noticed, this year's coaching staff for the Rams are big enough to handle the job. (If size has anything to do with it.)

Head Coach Grover Klemmer, six feet, two inches, has the overall job, and is primarily concerned with the backfield.

A football player himself, at the "small" University of California records for the bay, he also holds world speed as a cinder-man.

Klemmer is one of the seven men ever to attend U. of Cal. and earn honors in separate sports for any one season, those sports being football, basketball, and track.

Klemmer arrived at this college in 1946, and was assistant coach his first year. In 1947, he was appointed head coach, but was unable to capture the crown.

As head coach in 1948, he piloted the Rams to the conference title, and that was the year that Ollie Matson was a team member.

The two years following were the "off seasons," such as every coach sometimes has. Klemmer was on special assignment in the superintendent's office, last year but that season another tall, talented tutor was named to the position of head coach.

That was none other than Roy Burkhead, six feet, three inches, and you guess how many pounds.

Burkhead, who reported to the Ram coaching staff in 1948, has performed as line coach during most of his season here, and piloted the Ram's last season's championship.

Next and newest of the coaching team is Alex Schwartz. Schwartz is six feet three inches and has a trim build to go along with his height. He was an All-Coast end at the University of San Francisco, and also played in the Shrine East-West game.

Before he joined the faculty here this semester, Schwartz was head football coach at Mission High School. The Mission Bears played in the 1950 and 1951 championship prep football game. The Bears were defeated both years, by Commerce in 1950 by an 18 to 6 score, and by Polytechnic in 1951, 18 to 12.

Schwartz will have ends like Vandolf Parish, Walt Rilliet, Dan Brosnan, and Al Palacio under his wing this season, and it is a good bet that he will develop these men into college caliber before many games are played.

Intra Football Deadline Monday

Intramural activities will begin at the college immediately, Coach Ralph Hillsman, newly appointed intramural director, announced today.

First sport of the tourney will be touch football, and the last day for students to sign up is Monday, September 29.

The intramural schedule includes ping pong, basketball, tennis, soccer, and novice boxing, Hillsman said.

Awards will be given for the best teams and players, and all students interested are expected to sign up at the gymnasium immediately.

Everyone is eligible to participate, Hillsman declared, and games will be held after 3 o'clock each week day. Individual gold belt buckles and medals are among the awards.

Coach Hillsman succeeds Tom Wilson, assigned to other duties.

Meet The Players . . . . . The Tackles

In this issue, and in the following issues of The Guardsman, students may expect to become better acquainted with the men who will be representing the college on the football field this year.

This week we meet the tackles, next week the guards, and so on with each issue until we have introduced players who will be in action for the Rams.

First player to bow in is Joe Davis (middle left above), a 6' 3", 190 pound tackle from Mission High School. Big Joe was an All-Northern California selection at Mission in 1950. He will play right tackle.

Opposite Davis will be Ed Hayes (far right), at left tackle. He is 5' 10" and weighs 215 pounds. A tackle on last year's Ram championship eleven, he hails from Commerce High School where he was an All-City selectee in 1950.

Ed Jerpi (far left), is a 6' 3", 240 pound tackle from Hayward High School, is also a veteran of last year's Ram eleven. Jurpi will probably be used mainly on defense this season.

John Balastrassi (middle right), is 6' 1" and weighs 185 pounds. A former Balboa gridder he was an end on last year's Ram team, and was shifted to tackle this year.

Rams Out To Repeat Last Year's Record, Face Menlo College Oaks In Season's Opening Grid Battle

By Al Burgin

Football season officially opens here this Saturday afternoon as the 1951 Big Seven League Champions meet the talented eleven from Menlo College, also league champions. The league opener will be played at Kezar Stadium, and the kickoff has been set for 2 p. m.

Head Coach Grover Klemmer, who has brought home three league championships in five years as coach of the Rams says, "We will be out to win, and we will use as many of our players as possible."

Assisting Klemmer in the coaching of the club is last year's coach, who guided the Rams to a conference title, Roy Burkhead.

In the Fall of 1948 he arrived at the college and has been line coach during most of the seasons. He attended University of San Francisco, and Redlands. Alec Schwarz, new to the College, is coaching the ends and the defensive team.

Three last year lettermen reported out, and they are Bernie Kelly, halfback, Phil Thompson, guard, and Ed Hayes, tackle. All three are on the starting lineup.

Quarterbacking the standard "T" for the college is Joe Callas, formerly of Polytechnic. Bill Jones, also of Poly, will be working at the right half position, and at lefthalf is Kelly, one of last year's returning vets. Fil Julbarbal, of Galileo, is in the fullback slot.

Doug Hejak, a native of Seattle, will be over the ball at center, and Phil Thompson and John Roy fill in at the guard positions. At tackle will be Hays and Joe Davis. Van Parish and Walt Rillier will play right and left ends, respectively.

Palo Alto's Merle Flattley, who was selected All-Northern California, will be starting left end for the Menlo squad. Bob Burson, of Petaluma, will be the other receiver.

John Sencerbox and Bill Ting, tackles; Suz Norman and Jim McCall, guards; Bill Remensperger, center; make up the Menlo forward wall.

Calling the plays from the quarterback for the Oaks will be Allan Christiansen. Ernie Boston and Ron Engle will start at right and left half, respectively. Another Palo Alto gridster, Jack Butler, will run from the fullback slot.

Menlo's Oaks, champion of their league, will offer many potential Stanford football players, and the Rams have many players picked up by four year colleges in this area.

Other Ram players that will see action are Sam Hiona, who is from Commerce, at the quarterback position. Dan Brosnam will probably see action on one of the flanks.

Block S. F. Society Meets October 3

The Block S. F. will hold its first meeting of the semester on Friday, October 3, club sponsor Bill Fischer announced yesterday. Plans for the semi-annual banquet and the Block S. F. dance will be discussed at the meeting.

The Block S. F. is an organization of letter winners in all varsity sports in this college. The society makes its annual award to the most valuable player in each sport, at the banquet which will be held later on in the semester. The most valuable player awards was started last year.

RAMblings . .

By Joe Callas

IT WAS only a few years back that colleges in the Bay Area and football fans alike were clamoring for the installation of lights in San Francisco's famed Kezar Stadium.

Letters were pouring in by the thousands to San Francisco newspapers, and to the Park and Recreation Commission which owns Kezar. The demands were taken into consideration by the park commissioners. After an okeh was granted the park commissioners by the Board of Supervisors of this city, construction of the lights was begun in early 1949.

Work was finished in September of the same year, only a few weeks before the opening game of the season, which was between St. Mary's and Oregon.

The christening of the new lighting system was witnessed by 45,000 fans as Oregon defeated the once mighty Gaels 24-to 7.

The bitterness of defeat was quickly neutralized that night, as Bay Area fans looked to the future with the thought that these new arc lights would revolutionize football in San Francisco.

Optimists were looking forward to seeing major football powers like Michigan State and Notre Dame playing under the lights against the coast's top independent football teams. Even seeing the San Francisco Forty Niners at night at the stadium would be something new to football fans in this area.

But these dreams were turned into nightmares, because since the installation of the lights, St. Mary's was compelled to abandon football, due to the shortage of manpower caused by the Korean crises, and also lack of funds in the treasury.

Then the University of San Francisco was forced to follow in St. Mary's football steps because of the same reasons. This was a bitter blow to S. F. grid fans, because these two colleges were the only four year institutions who played night football at Kezar. To make things worse, the professional 49ers did not schedule a single night game at Kezar in 1952.

Thus, it left the doors wide open for City College of San Francisco to be among the college teams to play night football in Kezar this season. Three of the five Ram home games will be played under the lights, thus giving S. F. football fans the opportunity to witness night football.

Incidentally, those who say that this year's Ram eleven won't come close in comparison to the 1951 champions had better do some second guessing, because this team is going to give their opponents a rough afternoon, or should be say night.

Anderson Sabbatical Shifts Batmale To Educational Management, Dunn To Assistant In Charge Of Activities

Dean Louis Batmale was recently appointed acting co-ordinator of educational management, replacing Oscar E. Anderson who is on sabbatical leave, President Louis G. Conlan announced last week. Batmale will also retain his position as Assistant Dean of Student Activities. He will be assisted in this position by Robin Dunn who will execute most of the duties of the office.

LOUIS BATMALE, acting co-ordinator of Educational Management.

◆ President Conlan indicated that there may be more administrative changes made. The changes would be made this semester, he said, and probably go into effect next semester.

He also said that there is a possibility that a special department may be created for hygiene. This department also would go into effect as such next semester.

Anderson, who will be on sabbatical for a year, heads a list of many faculty members who are on leave, President Conlan said.

Madison Devlin, of the visual-aids department at the college, is studying new techniques of visual aids. Rose Avina, of the language department, is on leave travelling in South America.

Margaret Flourney of the business administration department is doing research, while George Green of the geology department is studying rock formations in the Rockies.

Fred MacFarland of the hygiene department is travelling in Mexico and South America.

Mary Perry, a member of the counseling staff, is also travelling in South America. Miss Perry will go on to Europe in the late Fall. Science department member Nelson Wells is visiting in South America, while Helene Mayer of the language department is travelling in South America.

Arthur Furst of the chemistry department is at Stanford University, as a temporary member of the faculty at Stanford Medical school, President Conlan noted.

Gov't Residence Forms Requested

Students living on federal government property or whose parents work for the federal government, are requested to fill out a Federal Government Employment-Residence form as soon as possible, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

The form, which may be obtained in Dr. Marsh's office in Building 3, informs the college of the federal residence and employment of the student and his parents.

As financial aid is provided to the college for the education of students qualifying, it is very important that all students who come under the qualifications of the form fill it out and return it, Dr. Marsh declared.

The completed form with signature of the student's parent or guardian, should be returned in a self-addressed envelope (no postage is necessary) to Dr. Marsh's office.

CAB Schedules Club Day Here October 17

A committee under the leadership of Ken Dunwoody, Club Advisory Board representative, was appointed last week to organize the various campus clubs in preparation for CAB Day, which will be held during college hour on Friday, October 17.

According to Robin Dunn, CAB faculty adviser, this year's CAB president-elect, Don Baker, was drafted by the Army, and the vice-president, Joanna Smith, has been appointed to fill his place. A recording and corresponding secretary for the board will be elected at the CAB meeting tomorrow.

30 Korean War Vets Enroll Here

Approximately 30 Korean war veterans are now attending the college under the Korean veterans financial aid bill, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced last week.

The bill, which went into effect August 20 of this year, provides financial aid to veterans who served at least 90 days on or after June 27, 1950. The veteran must be taking at least 14 units of college work and have received an honorable discharge from the branch of the armed forces with which he served.

Many veterans, Dr. Marsh said, who are eligible for the aid under the bill, are attending the college as regular students. This is due to a provision of the bill which says that only one program change will be permitted and that a minimum of 14 units must be taken.

Many students, he continued, who are not taking advantage of the bill, will do so in the Spring '53 semester.

Dr. Marsh said that approximately 200 World War II veterans are attending the college under the G. I. bill.

No Wrestling With Details

Wrestler Bob Hurd Gives Hints To Aspiring Grunt-and-Groaners

By Garry Wormser

Although the course in wrestling given as part of the men's physical education program is considered harmless to a student's life and limb, some unlucky fellow in a 1 o'clock class is due for a backache when he tries his new "holds" on a well built partner by the name of Bob Hurd.

A new student at the college and a graduate of Fremont High School in Oakland, Hurd placed second in the 133 pound division of the Oakland Athletic League wrestling tournament last year, and he sparked the school's wrestling team to two consecutive OAL championships and one Northern California championship.

While most practitioners of the "Grunt and Groan" game are multi-muscled goliaths, Hurd is only 5' 10" tall, with a chest measurement of a mere 39". He not only found time to win his block in athletics at Fremont, but was a sports writer for the school's Green and Gold and an avid "Hot Rod" enthusiast, spending his spare time working as a mechanic's helper.

For the benefit of aspiring "matmashers," Hurd claims that his favorite hold is a "front sitout," his favorite wrestler is "Argentine" Rocca, and his favorite type of girl is just one that is "good looking." He doesn't like to wrestle with details.

Radio, TV Air Two College Programs; Making Music To Start October 5

LLOYD D. LUCKMANN, co-ordinator of Curriculum, and moderator of the television show, Gold Label Round Table.

◆ Dr. Lyold D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, announced yesterday that City College will present Making Music, a radio course designed to enhance enjoyment of music, and "U and the U. S. A.", a television program, which is designed to encourage voting in the November election.

Making Music, first aired a year ago on an FM station, will be presented over KSFO every Sunday evening for 13 weeks, from 9 until 10 p.m., starting October 5, as a regular college course, for college credit, tuition free.

The program will feature Meyer M. Cahn, instructor of instrumental music here.

"U and the U. S. A.", scheduled for KPIX Friday evenings from 7 until 7:15 p.m., is a public service program, expected to feature members of the college's political science faculty.

Another television program, Gold Label Round Table, seen on KPIX on Wednesday evenings at 8:30 p.m., features Dr. Luckmann as moderator and is designed to give the viewer points of both sides of the coming election as debaters from both the Republican and Democrat parties argue for their candidates and answer questions asked by a panel of citizens.

Audio Visual Aids Need Projectionists

Instructors in audio-visual aid issued a call today for students who wish to assist in the operation of projection machines, and all applicants should apply to Room 158.

According to Romeo Smith, audio-visual aids instructor, students applying for these positions should be in their first semester at the college and must be residents of San Francisco. Experience in the operation of the machines is preferred but not required, and students participating will receive pay, Smith said.

Woman Student Manages Choir

Election of the first woman A Cappella choir manager was announced last week by Fiossita Badger, choir director.

Christine Politis, whose last year activites included management of the Opera Showcase tea which was given concurrently with the Opera Showcase spring production, was elected manager of the choir; Jean Bramwell, assistant manager, and Joyce Cody, secretary.

Miss Badger announced that an initiation party was being planned by the officers for new choir members. The date has not yet been set.

The choir will present its traditionally annual Christmas Concert in the college auditorium, Building 1, west campus, some time in December, according to Miss Badger.

Also upon the agenda for the fall semester is a guest performance with Ludwig Altmann, one of the municipal organists. The date for this performance has not yet been set.

Student Parking Permit Rule Now In Effect

A satisfactory climax to the confused parking situation is expected soon, Edwin C. Browne, dean of men, announced recently.

"At present parking space as such is at a premium to all cars entering the campus," Browne said.

However, Browne said, ample, legal parking space should be available to Associated Student members with a parking permit. As of last Monday, only student card holders have been allowed to park their cars on the campus.

"Illegal parking and parking without a permit will be rewarded with a parking ticket," Browne warned.

Browne noted that as bad as the present situation may seem, it could be much worse.

EDWIN C. BROWNE, dean of men.

"At one time we had no restrictions in the number of cars permitted to park on the campus," he said. "The situation," Browne observed, "somewhat resembled Ringling Bros. circus at a very crowded performance."

Browne cited as one of the worst parking areas as the circle behind the main building. Parking on both sides of this road must be parallel except where otherwise indicated. Space must be provided, he explained, for the trucks and bulldozers used in the college building construction.

Browne issued the following parking rules which are now in effect:

1. Parallel parking only will be permitted on Phelan Avenue.
2. Parking is permitted on the unpaved section around Building 13.
3. A maximum speed of 15 miles per hour is allowed on the campus.
4. All cars illegally parked will receive parking tickets.

Browne said that the co-operation of both students and faculty members will bring this situation to satisfactory close.

Forum Club To Meet Tomorrow

Forum Club will hold the first of a series of twice monthly student discussion meetings tomorrow evening, 7 to 9:30 p.m., in the west campus library, Building 2, according to Dorothy Mercer, sponsor.

Taking as discussion topic, issues involved in the November presidential elections, the club hopes to evolve active student response at tomorrow's meeting.

Officers are expected to be elected after the first few meetings.

One unit of college credit per semester is offered students wishing an added incentive for participation, Miss Mercer added, provided attendance is regular. This provision is new this semester.

One purpose of the club is the annual publication of Forum, the college literary magazine.

Several editorial positions for the magazine, now in its 15th year of publication, are vacant and students interested in joining the staff or contributing literary works are urged to come to the group gathering for further information.

Forum contributors and members of its editorial board now include Anna Buoncristiani and Carlos Nolte, with Ken Davis as art editor.

Campus-wide contributions are solicited by the club, and the most wanted material is short stories, poems, essays, and photography.

Club Cavalcade: Campus Organizations Welcome New Members

By Anna Buoncristiani

CLUB DAY for this Fall semester has been tentatively planned for Friday, October 17, when all new students will be particularly welcomed into the college's many clubs and organizations.

Club Day is held in the student lounge on the west campus, Building 2, and its purpose is to acquaint students with the activities of the various campus clubs and organizations.

Questions concerning the groups will be answered by representatives of the clubs for interested students.

Each individual is certain to find the particular club that will best fit his interests and need.

The specinl interest groups include the Hotel and Restaurant Society, Masonic Club, Forum Club, Engineering Society, Le Circle Francis (French Club), Pick and Hammer, Lutheran Society, Chinese Christian Club, Merchandising Club, Horticulture Club, Newman Club, Canterbury Club and the Hillel Foundation.

The college's honorary scholastic societies are Phi Rho Pi, debate club; Omicron Phi Pi, economic honor society; Lambda Alpha, music; Alpha Gamma Sigma, state two-year-college scholastic honor group. Block SF is the lettermen's organization.

Production groups include the Drama Club and the Music Guild which is composed of representatives of the A Cappella Choir, Music majors, Band Association, Opera Workshop, Treble Clef, Men's Glee, Lambda Alpha, and the orchestra.

Among these active organizations are the college's invitational groups. Fraternity organizations include Tau Chi Sigma, Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Beta Delta, Beta Tau, Kappa Rho, Gamma Phi Ypsilon, and Alpha Sigma Delta.

The sororities are Zeta Chi, Kappa Phi, Theta Tau, Delta Psi, Alpha Lambda Chi, Delta Sigma Tau, and Phi Beta Rho.

Several fraternities have recently elected their officers for the Fall semester. Gamma Phi Ypsilon officers are Lou Fabbri, president; Al Coppin, vice-president; Otto Schutt, secretary, Don Andersen, treasurer; Eero Makela, historian; Ken Dunwoody, custodian; George Lehne, sergeant-at-arms; Joe Herren, pledge master; and Lee Frimmersdorf, brother at large. Gamma Phi Ypsilon schedules its meetings on the first and third Wednesdays of each month.

New officers for Alpha Sigma Delta are Ernie Smith, president; Charlie Heart, treasurer; and Robert Murphy, vice-president.

Meetings for Phi Beta Delta are every two weeks on Wednesday evenings. Officers are Mel Watson, president; Dennis Hull, vice-president; Don Guillikson, corresponding secretary; Ab Battate, secretary; and Al Conestro, sergeant-at-arms.

The first Forum meeting will be on Thursday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m., September 25, in the student lounge on the west campus, Building 2. The discussion will center around the current political scene.

Newly elected officers of Delta Psi sorority are Joell Ramonte, president; Robina Deepenbrook, vice-president; Nina Turcich, pledge mistress; Bev Moon, recording secretary; Sue Bergin, corresponding secretary; Carol Blace, treasurer; Dottie Pfeiffer, assistant treasurer; Alice Serrano, historian; and Julie Hanan, sergeant-at-arms. Meetings are scheduled for Tuesdays, and the first joint-meeting with Kappa Rho is planned for today.

The Lutheran Club will hold its meetings on Fridays during college hour in Room 256. The new student chaplain is Ron Gourss, and a dinner is being planned at St. Paulus for late in September.

Meetings for the Newman Club are scheduled for the first and third Wednesdays of every month at 7:45 p.m. A picnic is being planned for October 1 here in the Bay Area.

New officers for the Newman Club include Jack McCartney, president; Reina Martinez, vice-president; Mike Hurley, treasurer; Mildred Stoll, corresponding secretary; Noreen Farley, recording secretary; and Robert Rodriquez, sergeant-at-arms.

Deadline for all club news is now Mondays at 1 p. m. Information should be submitted to The Guardsman, Building 4.

Administrators, City Officials Find Building Program On Schedule

Move From West Campus Expected By Spring, 1954

Steady progress is being made in the construction of the new library and class room building, and President Louis G. Conlan announced last week that the construction of the building which started June 18 of this year, should be completed by the Spring of 1954.

He also said that by 1954 new laboratory classrooms will be added on to the present main building.

After completion of the new building, President Conlan said, the west campus will no longer be used by the college. The west campus land, he explained is owned by the Public Utilities Commission which plans to install two reservoirs on the property.

President Conlan noted that the building progress is being supervised by William Sallelmayer who serves as construction superintendent. Sallelmayer, who said the work was slightly ahead of schedule, supervises the work of 84 men.

Among the men working on the project are 36 carpenters, 25 laborers, 15 plumbers, 6 iron workers and 2 electricians.

Also instrumental in the building progress, President Conlan said, is the work of Robert P. Adams (see photograph) who is city building inspector. Adams, who works under Dodge Riedy, city architect, is the representative of the city, the state, and the architecten in the building progress.

"My job is to see that the building is completed on schedule," Adams said. Adams also serves as co-ordinator between the contractors and the architect of the building who is Milton Phineger of this city.

The three construction firms involved are the Cahill Construction Co., The Hermon Lauror Co., and Emil J. Webber & Co.

Adams, who estimated the cost of the building at two and a half million dollars, said that the structure when completed will be larger than the present main building.

Browne Urges Student Co-operation With Police In Parking Problem

Associated Students who park their cars on the campus are urged by Dean Edwin C. Browne, to use the parking spaces between Building 13 and Phelan Avenue, and the section between Building 19 and Ocean Avenue. If students filled these sections, it would relieve the parking situation greatly, Browne said.

Dean Browne added that he cannot emphasize enough, the importance of parallel parking near the main building. He also stated that the circle around the main building must be entered through the South side. He requested that all Associated Student card-holders, who are intending to obtain parking permits, do so immediately.

Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction, in making this announcement, added that the attache will speak before the 10 o'clock political science 36 class in Room 6J, and the 11 o'clock class in Room 6T.

Ben-Horin assumed his duties as Attache of the Embassy of Israel to the United States effective January 1952. Before that time he was Principal Assistant Director, West European Division, Israel Foreign Ministry, and in June 1951 was appointed Adviser to the Israel Permanent Delegation to the United Nations.

He was born in 1921 in Scenowice, Poland, and was educated and lived in Germany until 1935, when he settled in Palestine. During the Second World War he served with the British Army. After his release from the Army he resumed, and completed his studies at the Government Law School in Jerusalem.

During 1947-1948, he was Regional Director of the Government of Palestine Resettlement Office for ex-servicemen.

According to Lewis, traffic regulations will be even more strictly enforced this semester because of the increase in enrollment.

Air Raid Drill Shelter Areas Listed

Signs containing complete information on action to be taken in case of air raid warnings or drills have been posted in all classrooms and at various spots around the campus, according to Louis Batmale, acting controller.

Five long bells rung on class bells or from the air-raid siren on the main building, and repeated several times is the warning for an air raid.

Immediately upon hearing the alert, students are asked to seek shelter of any kind away from glass.

Buildings on the west campus provide safe protection in the auditorium, lower floor corridors of Buildings 3 and 8, and the upper floor corridors of Buildings 4 and 6.

Main building shelters are in the basement corridor extending into the study halls and Rooms 100 and 136 on the main floor.

In the east campus gymnasium, protected areas are the drying rooms.

One long bell from the class bells indicates the all clear signal, Dean Batmale said.

Posters currently being placed in class rooms give the direction to the best shelters, while the campus posters give the direction to the nearest shelter, he added.

Club Rooms Listed For Friday College Hour Meetings

Campus organizations are scheduled to meet in college hour, 10:40 a.m., this Friday, October 3, according to the official calendar of club rooms assigned by Student Activities Adviser Robin Dunn was released early this week.

Rooms to be used are as follows:

Drama Club, 28; Pick and Hammer, 45; Faculty Association, 109; Tri Epsilon, 111; Filipino Club, 113; Canterbury Club, 132; Zeta Chi, 133; College Movies Series, 136; Alpha Phi Omega, 140; Theta Tau, 193.

Collegiate Christian Fellowship, 200; Engineering Society, 204; Kappa Phi, 205; Pi Mu Gamma, 211; Delta Sigma Tau, 212; Delta Psi, 215; Gamma Phi Ypsilon, 242; Tau Chi Sigma; 254; United Students Association, 51; Lutheran Club, 256.

Women's Athletic Association, 257; Merchandising Club, 258; Alpha Lambda Chi, 303; Latin American Club, 310; Le Cercle Francais, 311; Band Association, Building 1; Men's Glee Club, 1A; Music Guild Council, 1C; Kappa Rho, 2B.

Phi Beta Rho, 4B; Masonic Club, 5A; Alpha Gamma Sigma, 5K; Phi Beta Delta, 5M; Alpha Phi Epsilon, 6J; Globe and Anchor, 9A; Ram Cam, 9D.

Block S. F., 10D; Chinese Students Club, 10M; Hillel Foundation, 11A; Forum, 19A; Phi Rho Pi, 19B; Horticulture Society, Greenhouse.

Friday, October 17 has been set aside as Club Day, and a committee named to handle affairs. Those included on the committee are Ken Dunwoody, Margie Hicks, Joanna Smith, and Mel Watson.

Israel Official To Speak Monday

Eliashiv Ben-Horin, attache of the Embassy of Israel to the United States, will compare the American and Israeli Constitutions when he addresses two political science classes here next Monday, October 6.

Law Student Grads Tell Of Police Force Jobs

Former Law Enforcement students Jerry Tuttleman and Ken Tiers visited the campus recently and told how their education at the college had helped them in their new jobs.

Tuttleman has been with the San Francisco Police Department for three months and is moving up through the ranks rapidly, while Tiers is a Deputy Sheriff of Alameda.

It was announced recently by Jay Robert Lewis, chief of the campus police, that the campus police force now has 20 police officers to enforce campus law.

The campus police officers' duties consist of patroling football games and dances, issuing parking tickets, and citing violators of all traffic laws.

College Hour Film Series Starts Friday

Great Expectations, first of a series of college hour films scheduled for this semester, will be shown in Room 136 during college hour this Friday, October 3, Emmett Smith, instructor in the audio-visual department, announced last week.

Smith noted that Pride and Prejudice will be shown the following college hour Friday, October 10. Final selection of pictures for the rest of the semester has not, as yet, been made, Smith said.

Smith noted that projection machine operators are still urgently needed by the audio visual department. Any interested students are asked to apply to Smith in Room 153.

AWS Fashion Show And Tea Date Set

High school senior women will be honored by the Associated Women Students at a tea and fashion show in the student lounge on Thursday, November 20, according to AWS President, Odette Trouillet.

Assisting Miss Trouillet with the plans is vice-president Barbara Scott, and a committee including Jo Amniati, Mary Louise Carl, Marilee Scholl, Meg Shiek and Millie Pinkus.

The fashion show will feature 15 models, with fashions supplied by Alice de May of Lakeside Village.

"Our plans," Miss Trouillet said, "center mostly around the coming tea and fashion show at present. Further activities will be decided upon and announced at a later date."

Five Top Events Scheduled For Homecoming

Five major events, including a night rally, dance, blood drive, and football game, are scheduled for Homecoming Week on Monday, October 20 through Friday October 24, Paul Bixel, Associated Men Student president announced yesterday.

Highlight of a gala rally on Friday, October 24, will be the crowning of the Homecoming Queen, and the theme of the rally, "We Want Your Blood," is in conjunction with a blood drive which will be held on the campus from Wednesday, October 22, until the following Wednesday.

Co-chairmen of the homecoming committee, Mary Carl, Don Douglass and Bixel, announced the possibility of staging a "sham" battle on the west campus parking area, complete with landing Marines and a helicopter, in order to "illustrate" the drastic need for blood.

According to Bixel, Red Cross Mobile trucks will arrive at the college on Wednesday, November 6, and all students more than 18 years of age are urged to donate blood.

The dance, which will immediately follow the one and a half hour rally on Friday night, is being given in honor of the Ram football players, who are slated to meet San Mateo at Kezar stadium on Saturday, October 25. Only students with AS cards will be admitted to the dance and the rally, Bixel said.

Art Student Awarded Extended Scholarship

Barney Wan, advertising and commercial art student has been awarded and extended fall scholarship at the Academy of Advertising Art, according to William Eckert, instructor, commercial arts department.

Wan, previously of this college, was originally awarded a summer scholarship at the Academy of Advertising Art of San Francisco for his work of exceptional merit.

Eckert announced that the academy is now offering a summer scholarship to one outstanding advertising-commercial art student each summer. The student to be awarded the scholarship will be selected by Eckert from his commercial arts majors.

Highlights Of Political Campaign Featured On Round Table TV Show

By Dorothy Fallon

Is the elimination of corruption in Washington first on the list after election? What is the policy of the Republican Party regarding Red China?

Lloyd D. Luckmann, coordinator of instruction here, and the moderator of this provocative program, gave some interesting sidelights in an interview this week.

He feels that his most difficult problem as moderator is to remember to call time on the participants, because he often becomes so interested in the subject being discussed. He has no advance notice of the questions to be used.

The half hour of the Round Table is divided into three parts, separated by two one-minute commercials. A representative from each of the two major political parties answers questions of four guests.

Each guest is chosen by letters written by them to KPIX, and each may submit six questions. Before the program, these questions are typed on small cards which are given to the participating guests, to be answered by the members of the panel. After a short briefing period, the program begins.

Dr. Luckmann's duties as moderator must at times be quite trying, because it is obvious that tempers are apt to rise during the discussions.

Some persons thinks he spots the commercials to stop the program from getting out of hand, but this is not true, as the commercials are scheduled for certain definite periods.

Some have accused him of political bias. But the fact is that BOTH sides complain of this! Certainly proof positive to the contrary.

Students more than 21, interested in participating in this stimulating program, may send in questions, and may be selected to appear as guests.

The program is scheduled to run to election week.

Associated Student Membership Key To Campus Participation

IT IS SAID that one of the prime objectives of man is to attain a sense of "belonging." In the home this sense is fulfilled by being part of the family. In the school this sense is also fulfilled by active participation in school affairs. But as changes in the home can rise that will shatter this sense, changes too, can rise in the school.

How many students, we wonder, after completing a full program of studies and extracurricular activities in high school feel confused and unsure of themselves when they come to college. These students are confronted with new instructors, new buildings, and new classmates. The problem to adjust to these new surroundings is one shared by all incoming students. For some, the problem is an easy one to solve; for others, it is not so easy.

There is one solution to this problem and a good one. By active participation in and support of the college and its activities, one can truly become a part of the college.

Associated Student members have already had the advantage of attending free of charge the Freshman Class dance held at the Fairmont Hotel last Friday and the City College-Menlo Park football game at Kezar Stadium, last Saturday.

Members of the Associated Students will have unlimited opportunities to join in and attend the rallies, dances, and football games sponsored by the college throughout the semester. New students will be especially welcomed at the semi-annual club day which will be held Friday, October 17.

Purpose of club day is to acquaint students with the activities of all campus organizations. At this event, representatives of all the social and special interest clubs on the campus will answer questions for all.

We believe that there is at least one campus group that would suit the particular interest of any student attending this college. There are only two prerequisites for joining most of these clubs; an interest in the club and active membership.

There is very good reason for the new student to be somewhat confused in his first days here. We see no reason, however, why this feeling should remain after a few weeks of attendance here.

As an Associated Student, with the will and the desire to join an activity, each and every student should find that he too "belongs."

A Rose May Be A Rose—But A Word Can Cause Confusion

By Louanne Morford

Words mean different things to different persons.

The foregoing statement may seem obvious, but the truth of the matter is that the idea that a word might mean something different to others than it did to us had never penetrated our skulls — to any appreciable degree, that is—until recently.

Now that we are "in the know," we are very anxious to inform as many of our recent partners in ignorance as possible.

So let us take for example, the word defined as a tumultuous condition, muddled; perturbation of mind and embarrassment.

According to Noah Webster, the word is confusion. To Mayor Fletcher Bowron, the word might well be Los Angeles.

The reason for the vast difference of opinion in this case would be that Mayor Bowron has the dubious distinction of having gotten himself elected mayor of a city with a name he did not know how to pronounce correctly.

The "Los Angeles" or "confusion" (we'll leave the decision as to which is correct entirely up to our readers) that this situation has caused has been handled about in many an enterprising daily and caused much discussion from coast to coast.

Mayor Bowron finally had to appoint a committee to determine the proper way to pronounce the name of his city. Now, everyone knows that the official pronunciation is Loss Anjuhless.

Getting closer to home, eavesdropping on a streetcar conversation the other day, we heard a sweet young thing say that she had to go "up the hill." We were shocked!

Being a detective story fan we thought this was a new twist to the old saying "up the river."

We got off the street car at Phelps Avenue and headed toward the main building, and there was the "gun moll" trudging along ahead of us, going up City College's own "hill."

There you are, another prime example of our inability to understand one another because of the different meanings different persons attach to words.

This business of not knowing when someone is referring to City College of San Francisco is very common. Some refuse to believe that the name of this institution of higher learning is not San Francisco Junior College or San Francisco City College.

Admittedly, City College was once properly called San Francisco Junior College, and at one time some banners were sold which proclaimed, erroniously, that the name of this col-

Former "Rassler" Now Counsellor

A nationally recognized sports figure, who made a very impressive record in the annals of wrestling from 1937 to 1946 as a performer, and as a coach, is a member of the counselling staff here.

W. Howard Schoon, a graduate of Wheaton College, class of '38, won the Inter-Collegiate wrestling title for the lightweight division and held it for two years.

After finishing his college work at Wheaton, he remained to coach the freshman varsity wrestling team, and in 1941 and '42, he coached the varsity team.

Schoon was called into the service during World War II, and he tutored the All-Navy wrestling squad to a second place berth in the National Amateur Athletic Union title. These events were held in New York City.

"Wrestling develops self-confidence for individuals, because it is an individual sport," said Schoon, when asked of the advantages in wrestling.

He also added that it resembles other contact sports where body contact is involved.

Municide
Editor, The Guardsman:

Because I have private automotive transportation to the college, I am considered a most fortunate fellow by my streetcar-riding classmates.

However, in attempting to drive my car around the campus for the past two weeks, I have been late to six classes and have lost one bumper, two hub caps and an exhaust pipe. I am seriously considering Municide.

Learning by the hit-and-miss method, I have become quite good at driving on the sidewalk at the rear of the main building to avoid being run over by ten-ton cement trucks, and as long as Meyer Cahn the music instructor doesn't mind, I'll continue to park my jalopy in the entrance to his classroom.

However, if you think that I am going to buy an Associated Student card, until next month, you're wrong.

I just spent my last five on a parking ticket. Hope to bump into you soon.

Sincerely,
A Frustrated Motorist.

Campus Police Learn Fast —And Prove It To The Dean

ENFORCEMENT of campus parking regulations was the password Dean Edwin C. Browne gave to eager campus policemen this week.

All offending vehicles violating parking regulations were to be tagged without reservations. No exceptions, according to the dean.

Hastening to carry out this proclamation, student policemen thereby tagged a certain car, shamelessly parked in the green oval at the front of the main building. . . . Dean Browne's only comment, as he removed the parking citation from his own windshield, was "my own boys, they turned on me. Well, it just shows it can happen to anyone."

Retailing at $4.00, the book is available to faculty and students at the special discount price of $3.00. Such purchase must be made directly through author Zarchin.

Sponsor of both the Economic honor society, Omicron Phi Pi and the Hillel Foundation, Jewish student organization which furthers the cultural and social activities of its members, Zarchin has written several books in the fields of religion and world economics.

A partial list includes From Constantine to Hitler, Jews in the Province of Posen, Problems and Tables in Statistical Methods, Introduction to Economic History and Economic Structure of Europe.

Out For the Vote

A pre-election television program, X Marks The Spot, another of the college's series of educational public service events, can be viewed over station KPIX every Friday at 7 p.m.

Designed to "get out the vote," the program is moderated by Mervin Slosberg, political science instructor.

Slosberg and guest authorities explore some of the mysteries of voting and stress the necessity of protecting the vote by turning out at the polls on election day.

Point of Information

Replacing the regular college information bulletin, is a new two-toned, eight-page folder which presents a concise, and informative picture of college opportunities. Adopted because of high cost involved in the printing and mailing of the regular bulletin, the new folder will soon be available for mailing by college-minded individuals.

Photographers Ask For New Model

Acting on a tip from Bev Pasqualetti, director of photography here, a Guardsman reporter was dispatched to Building 9 this week to investigate a reportedly grave loss.

Charles Lamp, instructor of advanced courses, was interviewed. He stated that the closing inventory of the Spring semester did not agree with one taken this week. Missing was one Miss Lorraine Sullivan, probably the most valuable asset to the department of photography.

Foul play was ruled out when it was learned that Miss Sullivan is now a student at the University of California after having served, with valor, for four semesters as portrait model for the photography students.

A void now exists which must be filled, according to Lamp, and anyone interested should apply to him or Pasqualetti at Building 9.

Requisites? A little patience, a little poise, and Tuesdays and Thursdays free. Pay? A nominal amount, plus many fine portraits.

Job Range Includes Even The POOR Poet

"If you are a mathematician or an amateur magician, a ham actor, or a garbage collector, go see Joe Amori, the placement director." (This is poor poetry, written by a jerk, but even a poor poet can now get work.)

The wide scope of part-time jobs now open overlaps the supply of manpower, and as a result, there has been an overall increase in the rates of pay by about 10 per cent over last semester.

Because a large percentage of the man power in the city has been put to work for Uncle Sam, Amori says that there are heavy demands for radio repair men, maintenance workers and service station attendants.

All politicians around the campus had better keep their eyes open. Positions for President and Vice-President of the U. S. will be open in November.

Ram Stands Up Under West Campus Changes

By Garry Wormser

At 6 o'clock the west campus of the college is usually deserted. The fog rolls in and the wind picks up bits of paper in the parking area and whirls them around.

The sound of many students, laughing and talking, seems to echo in the runways and corridors, and the moan of an automobile horn on Ocean Avenue adds the final touch of emptiness to an air of melancholy that should make the Redwood Ram get up off his haunches and bristle with goose-pimples.

However, the west campus was not always a "ghost's haunt" after the last class had adjourned for the day. It was once a community of people; a home for many veterans and their families.

Because of the acute housing shortage immediately following World War II, returning veterans who wished to continue their education at the college were offered accommodations on the campus.

During the latter part of 1946, Building 13 was opened as a dormitory for married veterans and their wives, and Buildings 7 and 8 were used as men's dormitories. By 1950, however, the influx of ex-G.I.'s decreased, and Building 13 was converted into a dormitory for men only; by 1951, Buildings 13 and 8 were closed down altogether. At the end of last semester, Building 7 was also closed down.

One of the last vets to vacate Building 7 is a college student by the name of Darrell Wingard. Wingard, who served for two and a half years in the occupation army in Germany, feels that the college did a great service to returning servicemen and to the country by establishing the campus housing program.

As he put it, "The college sacrificed her buildings to house us and to make us feel at home, by doing this, it set a standard of education that other democratic colleges throughout the world should follow."

ONCE THE REDWOOD RAM WAS HAPPY. Once he looked smilingly upon City College students day and night. Now when evening falls the Ram stands alone. Shown here is a scene from the Ram's happier days as a City College student gives the Ram his first coat of red and white paint.

Menlo Defeats Rams; Santa Rosa Next

Oaks Capitalize On Ram Fumbles To Win 26-12

By Fred Fukuchi

In a game marred by fumbles, Menlo College Oaks unleashed a powerful ground attack to down the City College Rams 26 to 12 before a small group of frigid spectators who braved bleak weather at Kezar Stadium last Saturday.

Although it was their initial game, the Rams were surprisingly strong on offense. Halfback Sam Hiona and fullback Bernie Kelly personally accounted for 131 yards, while Quarterback Sam Hiona was excellent, completing nine of 17 passes.

Fumbles played an important part in the contest which was the first for both outfits. A total of 13 bobbles cut down the efficiency of both teams, especially the Rams.

Coach Grover Klemmer's charges fumbled the pigskin seven times losing it on five occasions, with three of the bobbles later turning into Menlo touchdowns.

Late in the first quarter, Menlo recovered a fumble by Ram quarterback Hiona on the San Francisco 15. After missing on two passes, Menlo quarterback Al Christianson hit end Bob Burson on the six.

A Ram offside penalty placed the ball on the one from where halfback Ron Engel plunged over for the score. Engel converted for the seventh point.

The Oaks tallied again 30 seconds before half on a beautifully executed pass play. Left end Merle Flattley on an end-around play, heaved a tremendous 42 yard toss to Bill McCormick, who made a sensational diving catch over the goal.

The Peninsula team, with a strong running attack, scored again early in the third period culminating a 52-yard drive. Halfback Bill McCormick scored on a pitchout from 10 yards out to make it 19 to 0. Engel's try for point was wide.

Menlo scored their fourth and final touchdown late in the third period after recovering a CCSF fumble on the Ram 34 yard line.

Five plays brought the ball to the six. Quarterback Christianson fired a strike to left end Flattley in the end zone. Engel's conversion was good to complete Menlo's scoring for the afternoon.

City College suddenly came to life in the fourth quarter as they roared back with two six pointers.

Soon after Menlo's kick off, the Ram offense began to chew up yardage. With a first down on the San Francisco 41, halfback Jones shot through the line and rambled 45 yards before he was hauled down on the Oak's 14.

Three plays later, Kelly fought his way into the end zone to finally give the CCSF rooters something to cheer about.

A recovery of a Menlo fumble on the Oak 27 produced a second T. D. for the locals.

Fil Jularbal picked up three to the 24. A Hiona pass to Bob Oliver connected to the Menlo three. Two plays later, Jones crashed into the end zone.

Meet The Players . . . . . The Guards

In this week's Meet-the-Players column, we introduce the guards. Of the five players pictured above, only one of them is a veteran of last year's Ram team. He is Phil Thompson, the player on the left.

Thompson is a 5' 11", 185-pound offensive guard from George Washington High School.

The "mean looking character" on Thompson's left is John Roy. Roy, a 5' 10", 175-pounder, played for Mission last year. The player in the middle is another guard from Mission, Jerry Fletcher, whose height and weight are exactly the same as teammate Roy.

On Fletcher's left is Bob Koeppen, a 6' 1", 180-pounder from Oakland. On the end is little Pete Hontales, a 5' 9", 180-pound defensive guard from Mission.

Roy and Hontales were Alex Schwarz's watch charm guards at Mission High School last season.

Both are all-city nominees as the Bears played in the prep championship tilt in 1950 and 1951.

Both are noted for their defensive ability, and Roy has the right guard nailed down offensively.

Five Basketball Lettermen Return, "Outlook Most Promising"—Hillsman

By Don MacDougall

Preparing to annihilate all opposition for the coming 1952 collegiate basketball season, head Coach Ralph Hillsman will be scouting for the "cream of the crop," to represent the Rams as worthy contenders for Big Seven Conference honors this year.

Considering the possibility of another championship season, Hillsman is definitely counting on the capabilites of five returning lettermen and considerable freshman talent to "lower the boom" on rival varsities.

HEAD BASKETBALL Coach Ralph Hillsman has fine crop of former high school basketball talent on hand.

Currently comprising the nucleus of the Rams, are lettermen Ken Hansen, Art Back, Warren Hagberg, Bob Bondanza, and Chuck Payne. All have had one previous season of varsity competition.

While contemplating a crystal ball prediction, Coach Hillsman considers this year's edition "one of the most promising turnouts we've ever had, which indicates that the caliber of basketball is rapidly improving."

San Francisco's contribution to freshman talent finds five local high schools represented, all of whom rate very high according to California basketball standards.

Names to watch for on the roster may include Frank Hess, Lowell; Dino Mitale, Galileo; Bill Gregg and Jerry Stack, Balboa; Tony Lazzeri, Lincoln, and Stan Blanshei and Jim Kaji both of Poly.

As in previous seasons, the Rams will have a definite limit placed on their traveling squad, that being 15 men, which in turn, after the first practice games, will have to be cut to a maximum of 12.

In order to obtain a general idea of potential talent, the coaching staff has set up an intramural league in basketball open to all men, and starting today. The teams are to be organized by the individuals themselves, and a scheduled game list will follow.

This program is to prepare and observe talent prior to the opening of the 1952 basketball season which will commence November 1.

Intramural Cage Season Begins

Intra-mural basketball season opens today for the college's cage enthusiasts, Ralph Hillsman, college intra-mural director, announced yesterday.

This season the league is made up of three separate and distinct divisions—the Novice, the Advanced, and the Inter-Fraternity.

In the novice league there will be players with no previous basketball training. Students that have played high school or college basketball form the Advanced League, with only one block member or All-City player allowed to participate. Fraternity members will play in the Fraternity League.

Each team will be composed of three men, and "half-court" ball will be played.

Hillsman was quoted as saying that the Intra-Mural League is designed to offer enjoyment and pleasure for the students. Two games a week for each team for approximately six weeks, constitute the playing season.

Individual player awards will be presented at the completion of the season to each team's best player, and the best team of each division will also receive awards, Coach Hillsman said.

Among the awards, gold belt buckles will be awarded for merit in play.

Students of the college are also reminded that novice boxing will soon commence, and those persons interested are requested to apply to Hillsman or Coach Roy Diederichsen at the gymnasium for further information.

Pigskin Urge Hits Lensman

One young man who has seen much football in the past few years is Bob Hax, student of the department of photography.

Official photographer for his high school newspaper and yearbook, Hax covered most of the high school games in Marin County for four years and worked on assignment for a Marin newspaper at these games. For the past two semesters he has been on hand for each and every City College encounter.

The urge finally struck him and this semester found him turning out for the champion Ram team.

First week—two leg lacerations, one infection.

Second week — wrenched back and bruised ribs.

Third week—on the advice of his doctor, Hax was back on his old beat, along the sidelines, with his trusty camera.

Fourth week—After a quick recovery Hax turned out once again.

"T" Formation Battle In Rams League Opener

By Al Burgin

With one win tucked away, Head Coach Grover Klemmer's talented Rams journey to Santa Rosa Friday night for the gridsters' first league contest. Kickoff for the "away" game is 8 p.m.

Admission tickets will be required for this game, and they can be purchased at the Stadium before the game with Associated Student card, the admission price is 50 cents, and without A. S. card, $1.00.

For all league games played away these prices will prevail. Those not having student cards can purchase tickets for any of the contests for $1.00.

Santa Rosa, who drubbed Oregon Tech two weeks ago 19 to 0, operate from a "T" formation, so the game promises to be a battle of the "T". Coach Klemmer remarked that Santa Rosa had a tight defense, and a very effective backfield, with a number of returning lettermen from last year's club.

Two tackles will not see action, and they are Joe Davis and John Ballestrasse. Davis is out because of a pending operation, and Ballestrasse's eligibility is in question.

Two years ago Santa Rosa was considered the best Junior College team on the West Coast, and recommended by local sport writers as the team to play in the "Little Rose Bowl."

Ram tentative starting lineup is as follows:

Bob Oliver, right end; Ed Hayes, right tackle; John Roy, right guard; Doug Hajek, center; Phil Thompson, left guard; Walt Rilliet, left tackle; and Van Parish, left end. In the backfield: Bernie Kelly, left halfback; Bill Jones, right halfback; Joe Callas, quarterback; and Fil Jularbal, fullback.

WAA To Elect Fall Sports Group Officers

Managers and assistants for all Women's Athletic Association sport groups will be elected after this Friday's college hour rally, according to Gloria Dunn, group sponsor.

Participation in some of the regular physical education classes entitles students to regular WAA credit. This decision is left to the discretion of the individual instructors.

Women students interested in swimming will receive WAA credit for participating on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 2 p.m. to 3:30 p.m., at the YWCA.

RAMblings . . .

Ram Coaches Must Face Rebuilding Job

By Joe Callas

THIS year's edition of the CCSF football team has a tough road ahead of itself if it is going to retain its 1951 championship.

A rundown of the personnel finds only four men who saw a good degree of action last year. They are end Bob Oliver, guard Phil Thompson, tackle Ed Hayes, and back Bernie Kelly.

Head Coach Grover Klemmer, and his assistants Roy Burkhead and Alex Schwartz, have a rebuilding job on their hands.

The Rams' strongest position seems to be at end where they have two glue-fingered performers in Vandolf Parish and Bob Oliver. Backing up these two as an offensive flankman is Belvin Gage. The defensive ends are Hurricane Michelle, Dan Brosnan, and Al Palacio. Michelle in our opinion ranks with the best defensive wingmen on the coast.

The tackle position has been weakened by the loss of Joe Davis and John Ballestrasse. Davis was injured, and Ballestrasse's eligibility status is in doubt.

Still the Rams possess Ed Hayes, a great blocker, and Walt Rilliet, a former all-city end from Oakland who has been shifted to tackle. Behind these two are Vic McPhun and Ed Hjerpe.

The offensive guard spots have been nailed down by Phil Thompson, last year's letterman, and John Roy, from Mission. Pete Hontales, a teammate of Roy's at Mission last year, will hold down a guard spot on defense. The Rams have still another guard who joined the migration from Mission, he is Jerry Fletcher.

A glaring weakness in this year's line is the center position. Doug Hajek, the merry Marine from Seattle, Washington, is the attacking center, being backed up by Bob Russell. Paul Papathakis will be one of the linebackers.

Klemmer is still awaiting the eligibility status of Ken Lopolito, all-city pivotman from Long Beach.

There is a fine array of backs led by fast stepping Bill "Jet" Jones, an all-city back at Poly High last year. Jones' running mate at halfback is Bernie Kelly who played defensive halfback on last year's Ram championship eleven.

At fullback is Fil Jularbal, small for a fullback, but fast and hard hitting. Behind these three are halfbacks Clarence Carter, Sandy Malnic, Pat Fracisco, Dick Jones, and fullbacks Jim Baumann and George Pagni.

The defensive backfield will be headed by Elmo Ellis, a deadly tackler from Commerce High School. Sam Hiona another former Commerce gridder has a fine chance of breaking into the starting offensive backfield.

Major Leads Named For Double Cast Desert Song Roles; Tryouts Close As 30-Piece Orchestra Is Filled

Members of the cast, as decided following last week's auditions, for the college production of the Sigmund Romberg operetta, The Desert Song were announced by Flossita Badger, director, late last week.

Major roles are to be double cast, with two roles definitely selected: Ronald Dutro and Jim Bogue carry the Red Shadow role, and Betty McNamara and Gerry Eliopoulos double on the romantic soprano lead of Margo.

Roy Burt, Bob Delaney, Beverly Keaton, Jerry O'Connor, and Joyce Cody also will have leading parts in the production.

The special Desert Song orchestra met for the first time last Thursday under the direction of Meyer M. Cahn. Cahn declared that the orchestra had reached its maximum of 30 pieces and is closed to further tryout.

Both Miss Badger and Cahn expressed satisfaction and appreciation with the number of students who took part in the auditions for the orchestra and Desert Song.

Returning to star in their second workshop presentation are Dutro, Bogue, Miss McNamara, Miss Eliopoulos and Roy Burt.

Dutro, who played the title role in the spring production, Gianni Schicchi, and Miss McNamara who sang the role of the daughter Lauretta, as well as Bogue, Burt, and Miss Eliopoulos are well known about the college for their previous performances in workshop productions.

Dates for the production, to be presented in the auditorium of the former Commerce High School, have been scheduled for Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 13, 14 and 15.

Rehearsals began this week for the leads. Names of members of the chorus will be announced at a latter date.

There are still openings on committees in charge of decoration and property collection and interested persons may participate as active members of such committees by contacting Miss Badger.

Forum Club, Magazine Staff Meet October 9

Offering a combination discussion group and workshop, the Forum Club will hold the second in a series of twice monthly student meetings, Thursday, October 9, in the west campus library, Building 2, Dorothy Mercer, club sponsor, announced today.

Preparations for publication of the college literary magazine, Forum, is the chief project of these meetings. Practical experience in compiling manuscripts, editing, proofreading, advertising, publicity, and selling, offers the interested student creative experience in his particular field.

Students are encouraged to contribute short stories, essays, dramas, poetry, and art work through members of the Forum club, or to Miss Mercer and John Gerstung, sponsors of the group.

Publication is scheduled for the Spring semester of each year.

Informal papers prepared on and discussions of controversial social and fine art problems form the basis for discussion topics at these meetings.

One unit of college credit per semester is offered to participating students.

Signups may be made in either Sociology G14 or English G14 through the counselling office for regular college credit, Miss Mercer said.

Can Religion Be Based on Rational Grounds? is the topic scheduled for October 9, and active student responses are expected on this controversial topic.

2400 SF Firemen In Program Here

Since the start of the fire college here in 1947, approximately 2400 city firemen on active duty have completed courses which keep them informed on the new methods of fire fighting, Michael Lo Presti, fire college coordinator, said last week.

The college's day-to-day tieup with the city fire department is known the nation over, and praised by other cities.

The fire college runs for 52 weeks and accommodates approximately 70 students weekly who attend once every six months, Lo Presti said.

There are several courses offered. The driver training for hosemen and truckmen is two days a week. There is a special one week course for pump operators which includes lectures, fieldwork and tests. The regular courses for officers meet on Mondays, all day. Night classes are also available for wardens.

Batallion Chief William Gilmore is the director of training and instruction. Under him are Lieutenants Joseph Rendy, Gene Pera, and Al Potter.

College Library Open 8 To 4:30 Daily

Library hours have been officially set for 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily, Clement Skrabak, chairman of the library committee, announced last week.

Skrabak stressed that there is a wealth of reading material offered by the library to all registered students of the college. He cited as examples of the variety of literature available, The Sea Around Us, by Rachel L. Carson; Down Over Zero, by William L. Lawrence; and Camera, Take the Stand, by Asa S. Gerzog and A. J. Aziekson.

Skrabak invited students interested in voluntary library work to so inform a member of the library committee.

Making Music Goes On Air Sunday

Appreciation Course Offers Full College Credit To Students

By Ken Molino

As another feature in its expanding program of community educational services under the direction of Henry Leff, director, Radio-TV, the college takes to the air Sunday, October 5, over KSFO, from 9 until 10 p.m., with the program Making Music.

This is the first of a 13 week series designed to help the listener enjoy and understand good music so that his pleasure in it will not be solely instinctive.

Meyer M. Cahn, music instructor here, guides the listener through an entertaining hour of music with the aid of orchestral recordings, instrumental arrangements, and his own wide knowledge of all phases of the field of music.

Melody, syncopation, counterpoint and rhythm are the topics for discussion.

A diversified selection of recordings has been taped, ranging from Turkey in the Straw to Till Eulenspiegel, and from Souza to Tschaikovsky. Cahn's choice of piano arrangements, which will illustrate his discussions, also encompasses a wide range of music types and composers.

A great portion of the summer was devoted to the production of Making Music and, according to Leff, a well rounded show has resulted. Both Leff and Cahn devoted a good many hours to planning, research, and rehearsal, as well as to the final tape recording of the entire series.

Judging from mail which has already been received by the Radio-TV department, acceptance of the program will be extensive. Cooperating in publicizing the series are Bay Area music associations, schools, and music dealers.

One early applicant has suggested a commendable method of gaining the fullest benefit from the show. A small group of friend have been invited to this listener's home and will round out their listening hour by an informal discussion after each program.

As in Come to Order, the college's recent TV series on Parliamentary Procedure, free college credit is available to those who take this course in music appreciation, via their radio sets, and meet certain other requirements.

Council Fills Student Government Vacancies, Notes Upsurge Of Interest

Five student government vacancies were filled, yesterday, by special election held during the regular council meeting.

Results of the election, and the names of late nominees, were unavailable at Guardsman press time.

Incomplete nominations included Diane Bates and Sally Galvin for the office of Associated Student Vice-President.

Yell Leader nominees were listed as Ann Stewart, Julie Hanan and Don Law.

John MacDonald, Lynn Knox, Don Motini, Vic Ruhon, Keith Franks, Jin Griven, Bernie Nevergall, and Mary Louise Carl were nominated to fill three vacanies on the Freshman Council.

Provisions for special elections appear in the Constitution of the Associated Students, Article 4, section 3 and reads as follows:

"Vacancies in the Student Council shall be filled by an election of the Student Council. Nominations for candidates shall be made by the members of the council and the President of the Associated Students. Selection of the winning candidate will be on a majority basis. If no candidate receives a majority of the votes cast on the first ballot, the name of the candidate receiving the least number of votes will be dropped, and balloting will continue until a majority is reached."

Approval was expressed by council members at the apparent up swing of interest in student government as shown by the number of names placed in nomination to fill the vacancies.

Student Council meetings are held every Tuesday and Thursday at 12:10 p.m. in Building 2. Meetings are open to all members of the Associated Students.

Graduation Petitions Due By October 10

All students who are candidates for graduation this semester are urged by Mary Jane Learnard, registrar, to obtain their petitions in the registrar's office.

Deadline for filing these petitions will be Friday, October 10, Miss Learnard said, but she warned students to begin "petitioning" immediately to avoid any last minute complications which might arise.

Final date for removal of incompletes from spring and summer sessions is set for Friday, October 10. Students who received incompletes should be in touch with the instructor of the subject in which the incomplete occurred immediately.

Proper arrangements with the instructor will entitle the student to the grade which would have been assigned had the work been completed on time.

Incompletes not removed by February automatically become F grades.

Club Cavalcade: Teas, Conferences, Joint Meetings Slated

By Betty Wong

AS STUDENTS are getting a foothold into the Fall semester and instruction is well underway, plans are also being formulated by the many campus clubs and organizations for a full schedule of social activites. For the most part, old and new students alike will have opportunities to participate in the various interest groups of their choice. The calendar for this week's doings on the campus and off include teas, conferences, and numerous joint meetings to plan pledge week.

Last week at the meeting of the Club Activities Board, the constitution of a new organization, The United Students Association was presented and accepted into the board. Each new club that is accepted is on probation for a period of one semester, and thereafter it becomes a regular voting member of the CAB.

Some of the functions of The United Students Association will be to foster student interest in campus activities, to encourage membership in the Associated Students and to promote candidates for nominations to AS office.

Alpha Lambda Chi held a business meeting on Tuesday night, September 23, at the home of Betty Salerno.

There will be an Open House this Friday, October 3, for all those interested in joining the Iota Pi chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, which held their first meeting this semester on Friday, September 18. This organization is a national service group. Visitors as well as prospective members are welcome to attend this Open House during college hour in Room 140.

A joint meeting of Alpha Sigma Delta and Phi Beta Rho will be held at the home of Beverley Naditz to plan pledge week.

The annual Fall conference of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship will be at Russian River from October 10 through October 12. There will be a fee of $1.00 registration for this conference.

Each year the club holds both a Spring and a Fall conference in which many colleges around the Bay Area participate. There is also an annual banquet and at that time a foreign student who is studying here in the United States is invited to relate his experiences.

The next meeting will be on Friday, October 3, in Room 200 during college hour, and the sponsor of the group, William Schoen, will be the speaker.

Delta Psi will hold its first function on Sunday, October 5, at the Mark Hopkins hotel for the first rush tea. They had a joint meeting last Wednesday September 24 with Kappa Rho.

The first meeting of the French Club was held on Wednesday, September 24 at the residence of the club sponsor, Doris Herendeen.

Gamma Phi Upsilon held their installation banquet at the Riviera on Saturday night, September 20. Their 5th anniversary was celebrated last May 23 at the St. Francis Hotel. At that time the brothers past and present came and met the new brothers. That evening "Brother of the Year" was awarded to Norm McNamara. Lou Fabbri, president of the fraternity, was recently elected to the office of the first vice-president of the State Board of Directors for the fraternity.

The Hillel Foundation will get underway with elections and activity planning as soon as all names of prospective members are in.

Dancing and refreshments followed the first meeting of the Newman Club which was held on Wednesday, September 17, at St. Emydius Center and was attended by over 100 students. An invitation to attend a barbeque was extended to the members by Jim Lopes, son of Dr. and Mrs. Lopes of Piedmont. Meetings are scheduled for the first and third Wednesdays of each month, and the next will be on Wednesday, October 1.

Phi Beta Delta have announced plans to change the date of their presentation of the "Shipwreck Dance" originally slated for Friday, October 3. This change was deemed advisable because of the conflict of the game against Santa Rosa to be played there that day. The date for both functions was set last semester when the clash was unforeseen, and another date for the "Shipwreck Dance" will be announced shortly.

Elections still seem to be in vogue and the new governing body for Theta Tau will include President, Diane Bates; Vice-President, Pat King; Recording Secretary, Wilma Wright; Corresponding Secretary, Priscilla Alvarado; Treasurer, Pat Guillians; Scribe, Karol Dukelow; Historian, Marilyn Pullem; and Custodian, Noreen Duryea. There was a business meeting last night at the home of Anne Stewart.

Zeta Chi held a tea last Sunday, September 28, from 2-5 p.m. at the Royal Suite of the Palace Hotel. A joint meeting will be held on Friday, October 3, with Phi Beta Delta at the residence of Louise Gerber. The newly-elected officers include President, Nancy Bobbitt; Vice-President, Louise Gerber; Treasurer, Gail Righetti; Recording Secretary, Joanna Smith; and Corresponding Secretary, Sally Galvin.

Deadline for all club news is now Mondays at 1 p.m. Information should be submitted to The Guardsman, Building 4.

Car Owners Without Special Permits Receive Citations For Illegal Campus Parking

Jay Robert Lewis, campus police chief, warned yesterday that starting at 8 a.m. Monday, October 6, citations will be issued to all persons who park their cars on the west campus without a permit. Thirty-five parking citations have been issued this semester; the majority of them are campus violations.

When asked about the parking situation, Lewis said, "From a situation of utter chaos many extra hours have been performed above and beyond the call of duty by members of the campus police force to remedy this snarl."

Lewis declared that "the campus police are having instructions in the use of police equipment, such as handcuffs, batons and Judo. They are fully cognizant of their police powers and duties."

There will be special investigators chosen from the ranks to protect parked cars and gymnasium locker rooms, according to Lewis.

Two former campus police students have decided to continue the role of policemen as a career.

Frank Ruackart passed number one at the San Mateo Police Department. He will be sworn in on Thursday, October 16. He will then be sent to the Santa Rita Police School for 30 days. At the end of the 30 days he will return to the San Mateo Police Department.

Ken Tiers, former chief of the Campus Police, is now serving with the Alameda County Police Department eight hours a night. He is also taking a 15 unit post-graduate course here. He is also a bridegroom of 24 days, and resides in Oakland.

New Officers Named; Budget Cut Reported

Sally Galvin was elected Vice-President of the Associated Students in a special Student Council election held Tuesday, September 30.

Freshmen Council vacancies were filled by Don Moltini, Bernie Nevenzohl, Mary-Louise Carl, and Keith Frank. Julie Hanan was elected head yell leader.

Miss Galvin, who replaces Anne Chevrier as the new vice-president, was elected by the slender margin of one vote over her opponent, Diane Bates.

Preceding the Freshmen council member election, Lynn Knox and Vic Ruhon withdrew, their names from the ballot, and Lottie Pfeiffer was nominated.

Another nominee, John MacDonald, was declared ineligible as he had not completed the 12 units required for eligibility.

Miss Hanan automatically became yell leader when Ann Stewart withdrew from the election and Don Law was declared ineligible as he had not completed his 12 units last semester.

A heated debate began over the eligibility of Frank as he had completed the required number of units, but when he was in attendance at San Francisco State College.

The Parliamentarian, Charles Osborne, ruled that the constitution states that candidacy for freshmen council members requires the completion of not more than 30 or less than 12 units, but nothing is said as to where the units have to be completed.

The council finally accepted the ruling; and Frank was allowed to keep his name on the ballot.

Meanwhile, a total of $6,071.03 had to be cut from the Associated Student budget. Norm Heise, Finance Chairman, announced at the regular meeting held last Thursday.

Heise said that the expected income would be approximately $17,800, but that requested is $23,871.03 leaving a $6,071.03 deficit.

The expected income is as follows:

AS Memberships	$8,200
Student store	3,000
Vending machines	500
Reserve	2,300
Football games	1,800
Basketball games	500

Handbook	200
Football guarantees	850

In 1492 — Columbus Day Holiday Monday

Four hundred and sixty years ago a sailor by the name of Christopher Columbus was worried. His crew was getting tired of floating around in circles trying to prove that the world was going around in circles.

If someone aboard the Santa Maria hadn't cried "land," poor Chris would have been swimming back to Portugal, and City College students would not get a holiday next Monday to commemorate his discovery.

The true date of Columbus Day is October 12, but since that day is a Sunday, the occasion this year will be observed on Monday, October 13.

If some paradox of fate had made Columbus wait until the 13th day of October before sighting land, his crew would probably have mutinied, and the inhabitants of this continent would still be attending classes in wigwams; no doubt the only good "smoke" on the market would still be a "peace pipe" and, considering world affairs, this wouldn't be so bad.

Homecoming Week Plans Listed; Deadline Set For Queen Contest

Dates for the sixth annual Homecoming week have been officially set for the week of October 20 through 24, according to Paul Bixel, president of the Associated Men Students.

All women AS members, regardless of their semester status in the college, are eligible to compete for the honor of Homecoming Queen, announced Bixel. Petitions for candidacy need not be sponsored and may be secured from the office of the Dean of Women, student government offices in Building 2, or any of the AMS Homecoming Committee members—Bixel, Joe Scafidi, AMS vice-president; Gale Wright, and Al Zanardi.

Completed petitions must be in one of the aforementioned offices no later than noon, Friday, October 10, Bixel declared, and candidates must be on hand at that hour in the AS office to be photographed.

The Queen will be crowned in full ceremony at a rally and dance on Friday, October 24. Bixel continued, and will reign supreme during the entire Homecoming week. She will receive the annual AMS trophy and a number of merchandise orders.

Voting, which is this year to be conducted through The Guardsman, will be detailed at a later date.

The rally and dance will be held in the main auditorium, Bixel said, and a number of top-flight entertainers from the Bay Area are lined up for appearance.

An orchestra will be on hand to provide music for the dance which starts an hour after the rally kick-off at 8 p.m. and runs until midnight. As The Guardsman went to press, the final selection of an orchestra had not been made.

Associated Student membership is required for admission to the dance, Bixel pointed out.

Platek, Robertson At LA Conference

Joseph Platek and Jim Robertson, both fourth semester hotel and restaurant division students, elected by their class and faculty, are now in Los Angeles attending the Pacific Coast Restaurant Conference and Exposition, which began yesterday and ends tomorrow.

Platek and Robertson are sponsored by the Spreckels-Russell Dairy Company of San Francisco and are staying at the Hayward Hotel in Los Angeles after being driven down by Hilda Watson, hotel and restaurant division head.

Mrs. Watson, incidentally, will be one of the guest speakers on the program, speaking on the food problems in restaurants.

Both representatives will attend all business meetings and then be the guest of Jimmy McCabe, West Coast manager of the Statler properties, who will take them on a top to bottom tour of the recently opened Los Angeles Statler Hotel.

Senior members of the hotel and restaurant division make an annual tour during Easter vacation visiting certain hotels and resorts throughout Northern California.

Phi Ro Pi Reorganized For Fall; First Debate Set For October 21

Phi Ro Pi, this college's representative in the National Junior College debate fraternity will hold its regular meeting during college hour Friday, October 10, in Room 11, Thomas Dutcher, Phi Ro Pi adviser, announced yesterday.

Anyone interested in speaking in the field of debating, extemporaneous or impromptu speaking, panel discussion, or student conference work, will be welcome into the organization, he said.

City College and Stockton Junior College are the only two year institutions in Northern California with debating teams, which belong to the Northern California Forensic Association, composed of all the major four year colleges such as Stanford, California, St. Mary's, College of Pacific, and Santa Clara.

Phi Ro Pi, which is open to both men and women students, offers them opportunity to discuss and debate the national policy issues and compete with third and fourth year students from the four year institutions.

The organization's first debate will be Tuesday, October 21, with the University of California. City College will be the host and uphold the affirmative side of the question, "Should Compulsory Fair Employment Acts Be Federal?"

Denman Award Applications Due

The James Denman scholarships for the year 1952 are now available, and the final date for filing applications is Friday, October 17.

Students who are interested should apply by writing a letter of application to Dean Margaret Dougherty Building 2, west campus, and are expected to have an interview with her at the same time.

Two awards of $125 will be given to the two women students who best qualify, Dean Dougherty said. Applicants for these awards must have completed at least one semester here with a "B" average. They must also plan to be in attendance at this college for the Fall semester 1953, and it is necessary that they be graduates of a San Francisco public high school, the requirements provide.

The Denman scholarship is awarded annually to the two women who have proved their merit on the basis of scholastic achievements and leadership in college.

The award is offered by Judge James Denman of the Superior Court and his sister, Mrs. Mary Denman Cheatham, in memory of their father who served as Superintendent of Schools and President of the Board of Education of San Francisco.

Top Flight Acts Slated For Friday Football Rally

To inspire enthusiasm for the football game with Richmond's Contra Costa College, a rally will be held in the auditorium during college hour this Friday, October 10, Stokely Wilson, rally commissioner, announced yesterday.

The rally committee hopes that by presenting a big rally the enthusiasm of the students will soar, and result in a much larger attendance at this football game than there has been in the past.

The rally will feature both on and off campus talent, Wilson said. The highlight of the rally will be a record pantomime by Jerry O'Connor. As yet much of the remaining talent is still to be chosen.

At press time the Student Council had not yet voted on rules for admission to the rally. The last rally was open to everyone, and there is no decision yet as to whether this rally will be for everyone or just to members of the Associated Students.

Any student who has some musical talent and would like to perform at a rally is urged to apply to a member of the Rally Committee for an audition.

Remaining rallies scheduled during college hours will be held on November 7 and January 6, according to the official calendar.

There is no college hour scheduled for October 24, and December 5, because of midterm examinations.

Club Day Program Calls For Student Lounge Meeting

Club Day has been scheduled for Friday, October 17, it was announced last week by Dean of Student Activities Robin Dunn. Club representatives will be assigned tables in the student lounge in Building 2 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to meet students interested in their organizations.

Stan Fletcher, president of the Associated Students, urged students to take advantage of this opportunity to join one of the groups.

"College life is not made up of achievement alone. To have a complete and satisfying college career the student should participate in social as well as educational activities," Fletcher declared.

For those who are unfamiliar with the activities of Club Day, its main purpose is to provide students the opportunity to obtain information concerning club activities and decide which would be best suited to their interests.

All campus clubs have been asked to participate in welcoming new students to their organizations.

Students wishing to join a club have a wide variety from which to choose, as the clubs cover such diversified subjects as social activities, education, religion, foreign language, drama, and music.

Examples of the various projects sponsored by the clubs are Forum Magazine published by the Forum Club, Alpha Gamma Sigma coaching service, and the semi-annual athletic award dinner sponsored by the Block S. F. Society.

Club Activities Board, which coordinates all club activities and is sponsoring club day, is composed of one representative from each chartered organization. Meetings are held Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1 o'clock each week in Building 2.

All students are urged to take advantage of this opportunity to meet the club representatives and to obtain information about all club activities.

The Editor Reflects—It's National Newspaper Week

THE week of September 29-October 5 was National Newspaper Week. Editors across the country took notice of this fact and published in their editorial columns their views on the purposes of the American newspaper, the importance of the American newspaper, and the goals of the American newspaper.

This is all well and good. The public should be informed of the duties of the newspaper. We feel, however, that a very important topic concerning the American newspaper was left out.

The public knows the newspaper's goals; they know of its importance, but what do they know of the worries and joys of the newspaper editor?

We feel we are quite expert on this subject. There is, of course, a large difference between a big city daily of two or three million circulation and a college weekly with an as yet undetermined circulation, but both types have their common problems.

SOME persons think that we were born, are living, and will die in The Guardsman office. This is untrue. We were born in Pennsylvania, live in the office only in the day time and certainly hope not to die there.

We do many healthful and useful things each day during our stay in the office.

We drink the required amount of water needed each day because of certain dryness of throat and mouth that comes from talking too much and too much smoking of assorted individual's cigarettes.

We got excellent practice for our math 51 class by working with budgets, alternate budgets, and alternates to alternate budgets.

We get more practice in this field by figuring column widths, column depths, number of lines of type, headline character counts, and what have you.

Often we get in a double practice session when we realize our mistakes and start over again.

We have become expert at telling at a glance the age, weight, and general condition of seven very familiar typewriters.

We grow large muscles and improve our posture by returning said seven typewriters to their closet at the end of the day.

Furthermore, we are becoming adept at diplomatic procedure when we are interrupted four out of every ten minutes spent in the office.

More important still, we have mastered the art of carrying in one trip a day's supply of sandwiches, milkshakes, and coffee from the Snack Bar to Building 4.

Twice this semester we have budgeted our time so well that we have been less than 10 minutes late to all classes we attended during the day.

All of this is making a man of us.

LEST someone think that we are bemoaning the fact we are what we are, or that we think we are great martyrs, we hasten to assure that someone that such is not the case.

For all the little tasks which first cause us grief, then laughter, there are much more important things which make us happy.

There is a sense of pride received by the sight of a hard-working staff working to make the paper a success. There is a sense of accomplishment which comes to the entire staff when "this week's issue is finally wrapped up".

We like our job. We even like putting away those seven typewriters. . . . We wouldn't trade places with anybody.

Fire Department Glad To Oblige—Up Goes The Sign

NO SMOKE or fire, but plenty of excitement was evident when the men from Fire Department Tank Company 10 received a call from Student Activities Advisor Robin Dunn recently. Seems as though the Rally Committee needed some help in getting a "Ram" sign put up on the side of the auditorium in time for a pre-football game rally.

Obligingly, the hook and ladder laddies came clanging over, and in the best tradition of the department extinguished the difficulty.

See-worthy . . .

Students interested in seeing what develops in photography darkrooms have an opportunity this week if they'll visit either Building 9 or the student lounge.

Currently on display in both places are exhibits of the work of former and present photography students.

Photographs to suit every taste, running the gamut from standard, commercial still-lifes, through fashion and portraiture to sometimes startling modern photography, show the results of a creative darkroom "technique."

Anon . . .

Shades of things to come fill the display case of the first floor of the Main Building. Blueprints for the new college library building are now on display there.

The display case will be available for departmental educational exhibits for two week periods during the semester. Those wishing to make use of the display case should inform William Eckert, Room 347, main building.

Korean Vets

New GI Bill Sends A New Crop To College

By Dick Wiltshire

Not a great many persons—and this includes the Korean veteran himself—are aware of the changes in the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952, now popularly mentickered the Korean GI Bill.

Particularly in the educational benefits have the switches from the World War II measure been considerable. Principally, the difference lies in the method of payment for schooling, whether full or part time.

Under the older measure, tuition payments were made to the institution concerned covering up to a maximum amount per semester.

Costs of some supplies were also met, and the veteran was then given a subsistence amount, according to the size of his educational program, but totally independent of whatever the tuition might be.

The new law proscribes a flat rate, again relative to the amount of studies undertaken, to be played directly to the student regardless of what institution he attends.

And out of this comes the works—tuition, subsistence, books, supplies and maybe the price of a Saturday night show.

For example, a single veteran pursuing a full-time program of studies receives $110.00 monthly. He gets this amount whether he is attending a tuition-free college or an almost prohibitively priced university.

The net result of this proviso has been, obviously, to send the Korean vet into the lower tuition educational establishments.

Such institutions have just as fine or finer curricula as the more expensive colleges, but the tendency to restore the latter as "exclusive" campuses was bitterly attacked by many senators and congressmen before the bill's final passage.

Further, the restrictions on the type of schooling the Korean veteran may pursue are much more numerous than under the previous legislation. Proponents of the restrictive features argued that they were necessary to prevent recurrence of the abuse of privilege witnessed under the World War II law.

Another provision of the new measure has been to preclude veterans' enrollment in non-accredited courses below college level in institutions which do not have a minimum 15 per cent non-veteran attendance.

The stipulation seems liberal enough, but closer inspection of its overtones will unfortunately reveal that it has the practical effect of denying to a number of veterans trade school education.

Also concerning studies abroad, the Administrator (which is in the case of one-man measure, a state agency set up for that purpose NOT the Veterans Administration) reserves the right to refuse or cancel the enrollment of any veteran in any place or institution "he (the Administrator) finds that such enrollment is not for the best interest of the veteran or the Government."

While has also caused a considerable raising of eyebrows, as it is as-

Introducing Sammy The Ram

A JUBILANT SAMMY THE RAM as seen at half time of last year's Santa Rosa City College tilt. Peeking over Sammy's shoulder is John La Coca, former Associated Men Student's president.

During a City College football game, rally or dance, there are many interesting persons milling about, but perhaps the most unusual character at these affairs is a young man who, through some unkind act of fate, has a head that resembles a Ram. His name is Sammy.

In the Spring of 1948, Jim Fernhoff, a member of Phi Beta Delta, created Sammy, and ever since, he has become a much loved and irreplacable mascot of the college.

During his long stay at the college, Sammy has ridden to football games in hotrods, on a motorcycle and bicycle, always entering the stadium at full speed in order to make a grand appearance.

Although Sammy hasn't broken his big neck by attempting these daredevil feats, at the end of every football season his head is chopped off, and members of Phi Beta Delta can see which of their brothers has been making a Ram of himself.

Kool Characters Smoke For Treat Instead Of Treatment

By Edwina Killoren

The American college student, it must be admitted, is usually a very tense, highstrung individual particularly susceptible to coffee nerves and nicotine burns.

Pressure of classes, instructors, friends, and work blend together to make the student a combination of the world's worst bunch of nerves.

To relieve this condition, friend student turns to that treat instead of a treatment—the cigarette, since it is one of the few legal pleasures student may enjoy.

A cigarette Kools a student off after running Pall Mall up the hill from a physical education class. Relaxing on his Chesterfield, enjoying the full, ripe flavor of a cylinder of shredded vegetation, a student finds it easier to master the intricacies of math 51.

Daily existence to the average cigarette smoker would be impossible without the soothing satisfaction of a pack or two.

From this basic need arise many variations and interesting possibilities as the convert seeks to spread his fetish and its potentials to the outside world.

Some advocates use the medical approach. They confront a likely victim with the sly poser, "How is your T zone. It is screened with a filter?" Likely victim not only doesn't know how it is; he probably doesn't even know he has one, with or without a filter.

Then there's the social acceptance approach. Since the Countess of Snuffbox smokes Imperials ergo you should also. Why keep up with the Jones' when by exhaling Majesties you can breathe with royalty.

Converts to this sales talk either wind up very upper bracket or sink comfortably with Old Stogie.

Finally, there's the romantic approach. Try Rendezvous for that breathless, exotic, oh so bizarre delicacy. This approach leaves the student wondering whether he should smoke the darn thing or embrace it!

With these thought-provoking ads before the student's mind, one wonders how he can concentrate on the higher educational matter which confronts him in the classroom. Asset or liability, what is King Nicotine?

RAM'S HORN . . .

Pulse of the Campus

(Editor's Note: Letters to the Ram's Horn may be left with the telephone operator in the main building or in The Guardsman office building 4-D. Deadlines are noon each Wednesday. If so desired the author's name will be withheld, btu the identity of the author must be known to the editor.)

Editor, The Guardsman:

Supposedly, to assure a long and healthful life, the average human should eat three meals a day. In the morning my first meal is taken care of. At night I get the third one. But it is a long gap between bacon and french toast and lamb chops and stewed carrots.

Lunch! That is my problem. You see I am a photography major. That means that I have a lab from noon to 5 o'clock each day. Just before noon I sometimes bravely venture forward into the Snack Bar, but I beat a hasty retreat when I see the lines there.

Now what I'm getting to is this. My instructor generally gives us a 15 minute break around 3' o'clock. Last semester that allowed us just enough time to grab the few remaining sandwiches left in the Snack Bar before it closed.

Now I find that the place closes one hour earlier at 2 o'clock! Now I've seen pictures of malnutrition victims before and thought "this couldn't happen to me." Now I wonder, as does my grumbling stomach.

Floriculture Department Landscapes Campus

Flower Shop Top California Garden Show Winner

By Don Earl

Color schemes designed to blend with the surroundings of both gymnasia have been worked out by the floriculture classes, Harry E. Nelson, instructor in horticulture here, announced today.

Offering four major fields for the student, the department includes Greenhouse Management, Garden Maintenance, Nursery Practice, and The Flower Shop, thus giving a diversified knowledge of every phase of plant life.

The greenhouse, located on the east campus and headed by Nelson assisted by Raymond Peterson and John R. Herman, covers completely all stages of nursery practice, soil preparation, pest control, plant breeding and landscaping.

The greenhouse classes have recently planted a large amount of fuchsias in the women's gymnasium area and have worked out a color scheme for both gymnasium areas on the east campus.

Experimenting with various types of seeds is another phase of this training, and there are now seven lawn plots of different seed being grown to ascertain which type is the most advantageous from a standpoint of hardiness and beauty in this climate.

The Flower Shop, conducted by John Lawrence, stresses the actual arrangement of cut flowers and plants for retail marketing such as: center pieces, bouquets, color contrast, and balance.

Located in Building 5 on the west campus, the Flower Shop enjoys an enviable record in local floral shows having captured first awards in the California Spring Garden Show, held in Oakland, six times in a row, also annexing top prize in the San Mateo Fiesta and Floral Exhibit for the last three years.

"Indeed, the fame of this exceptional course is widespread for the students who comprise these classes list their homes as such far-away countries as Hawaii, Peru, Nicaragua, British East Indies, Alaska, and others. This is definitely a deserving tribute to the 'instructors of these classes,' says S. Tashjian, local florist.

The large number of graduates who have become successful in various fields of horticulture include William Maitland, head nurseryman, Jack Spring, director of main nursery, and Frank Pardo, chief propagator, all of whom are employed by the City of San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

Richard Rohrman, '49, Elinor Lange, '51 and six former students are employed by Podesta & Baldocchi.

Lewis Morales and Joseph Sessa class of '47 operate their own shop as do Peggy and Joe Piskur who have The Park Floral Shop, and Jules Pudigou '49, who is with the State Department of Agriculture Nursery Service.

Rams Downed In Last Seconds 13-6

Long Pass, Pass Interception, Lead Bear Cubs To Victory In Friday Night "Heartbreaker"

Roaring back from what appeared to be certain defeat, the Santa Rosa Bear Cubs scored twice in the last minute and 40 seconds of play to down City College Rams 13-6 before 6,000 fans at Bailey Field in Santa Rosa last Friday.

All of the game's three touchdowns were scored or set up in spectacular fashion, as neither team was able to put together a sustained drive to the goal which paid off.

Both teams battled evenly during the first quarter. The Ram defensive forward wall kept the Bear Cub backfield at bay while line plunging by Santa Rosans kept the Rams, for the most part, in their own territory.

Shortly after the first period ended, the Rams scored their only T. D. with sudden and surprising swiftness. Taking over the ball on their own 27 yard line, the Rams scored in one play.

Ram quarterback Sam Hiona tossed a 19 yard pass to veteran end Bob Oliver, who accepted on his own 46 and set sail for the goal closely pursued by Bear Cub defenders Ray Batgs and Ralph Kirkup.

For a moment it looked as if Kirkup would catch the speeding Ramster but Oliver, noticing his danger, cut sharply toward the left sideline and scored standing up. The conversion attempt was a little wide so the score remained 6-0.

Defense overshadowed offense for the rest of the second quarter and through the third as neither team threatened seriously to score.

A few minutes into the fourth heat however, the Rams seemed destined to add to their six point margin, when they recovered a Santa Rosa fumble on the Bear Cub 28 yard line.

Halfback Bill Jones cracked the line for seven yards. Fil Jurabai made it a first down on the 13, and Bernie Kelly gained two more yards to put the ball on the eleven. But here the drive fizzled out as the Rams were penalized five yards and a Hiona pass was fumbled in the backfield.

As the fourth quarter play progressed that one Ram touchdown grew larger and larger.

The Bear Cubs themselves threatened midway in the fourth quarter as they finally got their passing game going, but Pat Francisco's goal line interception of a Santa Rosa pass stopped the threat cold.

Then, in the closing two minutes, disaster struck the Ram camp.

Following a S. F. punt, quarterback Don Frantz tossed a 46 yard pass from midfield to left end Doug Boyd. Boyd was shoved out of bounds on the SF four.

Halfback Harry Hinton ploughed off guard from the four to score with a little more than a minute remaining in the game. The seemingly important conversion attempt was no good.

Playing for a win and not a tie, the Rams attempted to fill the air with passes in the closing seconds. The strategy backfired as Bear Cub defender Bob Bergin picked off a Hiona pass in the flat and raced down the right sidelines to score a 40 yard tie breaker.

The game proved to be a heartbreaking defeat for the Rams, who, much improved over their Menlo game performance of a week ago, out-gained at and out-defended their opponents for most of the contest.

The Ram defensive forward wall and superb quarterbacking by Hiona gave the college fans something to cheer about throughout the game. —S. B.

McCormick Scores—Sideliners Watch

SKIRTING LEFT END FOR A THIRD QUARTER TOUCHDOWN is Menla College Oaks' Bill McCormick, offensive left halfback. Chasing McCormick is Son Froncisca's offensive right halfback, Dick Janes, but ta no avail. McCarmick scored six points on the ten-yard jaunt araund right end. This contest was a 1952 season opener for the twa teams and was played at Kezar Stadium. Menla's Oaks dawned the defending Big Seven Conference champs fram the college, 26 ta 12. On the sidelines during ane of the Rams' "weaker maments," is pictured Fil Julorbal, No. 73, offensive fullback, and Center Daug Hojek, No. 30. Rams Play Host To Contra Costa West Friday Night

By Al Burgin

Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams, who nearly entered the win column last week in their game with Santa Rosa, meet the "highly-tonted" Contra Costa West Comets at Kezar Stadium this Friday night. The Big Seven League contest beglns at 8 p.m.

Contra Costa West of Richmond, better known in these parts as the Comets, has been predicted to share honors in the Big Seven Football Conference's winner-circle this season, with Modesto and Stockton. Jack Danilovich, head coach for the Comets, is serving his third year at the college across the Bay.

Coach Klemmer's boys suffered a non-league loss in their first outing, 26 to 12, at the hands of Menlo College, and made a road trip to Santa Rosa last week for their first league contest.

Last year's championship club from the college walloped the Comets, 38 to 6; so this game will be the Rams' first big test. New to the Ram roster is Center Harry Kuntz, who saw action for the first time last week at Santa Rosa. He is a returning "first-stringer" from last year's eleven, and formerly was center for Polytechnic High.

Contra Costa lost their opening game of the season to Oregon Tech, a four year school of higher learning, 38-25. Last week the Comets played Modesto.

Admission for the Ram-Comet clash, under the lights at Kezar is: with Associated Student card, 50 cents; and without A. S. card, $1.00. Students not having A. S. cards can purchase tickets before game time at the stadium for $1.00. These above mentioned prices prevail for all "home games," (games played at Kezar Stadium).

RAMblings . . Former Rams Shine In Sports World

By Joe Callos

THERE are many former City College athletes who have made their names internationally famous in the world of sports.

One of these is the amazing Ollie Matson, two time All-American from San Francisco University. Matson has achieved in four years what most other athletes would be satisfied to achieve in twice that number of years.

July and August of 1952 will undoubtedly stand out in this athlete's mind for the rest of his life. In July, Matson emplaned to Helsinki, Finland, as a member of the 1952 United States Olympic team, and finished third in the 400 meter race thus winning himself an Olympic gold medal and adding valuable team points to the United States team.

After the Olympic games ended, he cancelled a European tour to return to the U. S. to accept an invitation given him to play for the College All-Stars against the Los Angeles Rams in the annual All-Star Football game in Chicago on August 17.

Ollie joined his former CCSF and USF teammate Burl Toler, also a member of the All-Stars. Matson was assigned to cover the L. A. Rams' great end, Elroy Hirsch.

Not once did Hirsch get behind the mercury gaited Matson to catch a pass, and it wasn't until the final quarter of the game that the Rams came from behind to win. Ollie was fourth in the voting for the most popular player in the game.

Former Rams who have made themselves famous in baseball are Gil McDougald and J. W. Porter.

McDougald has just finished playing in his second consecutive world series for the New York Yankees.

He has had two honors bestowed upon him in the last two years. In 1950 McDougald was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Texas League, and in 1951 he was the American League's Rookie of the Year. He finished the 1952 season batting at a .263 clip.

J. W. Porter was signed by the Chicago White Sox in 1950 and was sold to the St. Louis Browns in 1952 where he broke into the starting line-up and batted .250, not a good average but considering that it was his first year in the major leagues, his average this year has been taken lightly with the expectation that it will undoubtedly leap in years to come.

The athletes we have mentioned are only a handful of the players who have attended here and performed in the athletic program of this college.

Intra Basketball Slate To Begin After Signups End

Participation in the current intra-mural athletic program is now in progression and, according to Coach Ralph Hillsman, proceeding in fine order.

This season, the basketball league will be composed of three separate and distinct divisions, those being novice, advanced and inter-fraternity.

The teams will be composed of three men per squad, and the games will be played according to half court rules in the men's gymnasium, either at the noon hour, or after classes.

One of the main functions in sponsoring this tournament is to observe first hand the capabilities of many men possessing promising potential in basketball, Hillsman declared.

He added that "the intra-mural league was mainly designed for the pleasure and enjoyment of the students participating."

The league schedule provides for approximately two games per week for a total of six weeks.

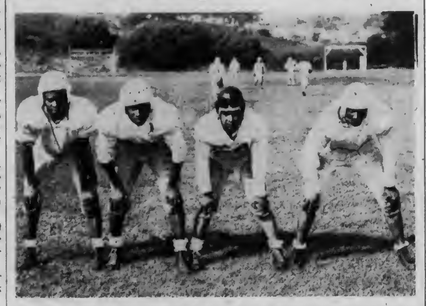
Individual awards will be made at the end of the regular playing season and will be presented to the outstanding member of each team, also to the best team in each division.

In the novice league will be students who have had no previous basketball experience, Hillsman said, while the advanced division includes students who have competed in interscholastic competition, either in high school, or college.

Among the awards, gold belt buckles will be presented for outstanding performances.

On The Sidelines

The Rams might easily run through all future appointments if they play a game on a clear night. The fog rolled in on Kezar Stadium during the Menlo game and the half of the Santa Rosa game was City boys were swamped. The first played under clear skies. As a result, the Rams led at half time 6-0. Then the fog rolled in, and City promptly lost.



* * *

Santa Rosa was well supported by the college. Aside from a cheering, wildly partisan rooting section. The Bear Cubs were urged on by six very cold yell-leaders.

* * *

An unusually large group of Ram rooters journeyed northward for the game. There were perhaps more rooters at this game than at the dismally attended Menlo affair.

Meet The Players . The Ends

In this issue of The Guardsman, the players we meet are the ends.

The player on the left is Valdolf Parish, glue-fingered end from Commerce High School. He was an All-City performer at Commerce in 1951. Parish is 6' 1" tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Next to Parish is Bob Oliver. Oliver was a two-year All-City end at Mission High School in 1949 and 1950. The 6' 2", 185 pound end played on last year's championship Ram eleven.

On his left is little Belvin Gage. Gage is another player from Commerce where he was a starter on the 1949 Commerce eleven. At 5' 10" Gage is small for an end, but his speed and aggressiveness make up for his height and his 165 pounds.

On the end is Hurricane Michelle, huge defensive end. Michelle a 6' 2", 190 pounder, was an end on last year's Ram team. His defensive play can be compared to any defensive end on the coast.

Tutoring these four ends is Coach Alex Schwartz, a former end himself. Under the tutelage of the talented Schwartz, it's no wonder the end position is the strongest point of this year's team. Ends Dan Brosnan and Al Palacio's pictures will be shown at a later date. — Photo by Hempel.

Fred Quinn Heads Block SF Society

The first meeting of the Block SF was held October 3, during college hour.

Election of officers was held, and the results were as follows: President, Fred Quinn; Vice-President, Ben Ditto; Secretary-Treasurer, Art Ersepke; Sergeant-at-Arms, August Chofre.

Preparations for the annual Block SF dinner were discussed during the meeting. The dinner will be held during the month of December. Individual trophy awards will be presented to the winners during the banquet.

Student Leaders Plan To Wage War, Start Campus Clean-up Campaign

PRESIDENT LOUIS G. CONLAN—In service, there is pride.

Mentioned as a possible encouragement, by Conlan, for full organization participation was the offering of a trophy to the organization contributing the most to the improvement of the appearance of the college.

Paul Bixel, Associated Men Students president, referred to the clean-up campaign of Fall 1949 as a possible pattern for success in the current campaign. Commended as leader of the [illegible] was the Alpha [illegible] fraternity. It was this fraternity, according to Bixel, that set the pace for the Dance and thus made the most pleasant, clean [illegible] on the campus.

[illegible] Associated Students' vice-president, spoke at last Friday [illegible] in connection with the clean-up campaign. Miss Gaskin urged campus-wide participation to aid in the rapid and permanent clean-up of the campus.

Details and more complete plans for the clean-up campaign will be made later this week, Stan Fletcher, Associated Student president and chairman of the committee in charge of clean-up, stated.

Enrollment Figures Pass 5000 Mark

Official, but incomplete college enrollment figures for this semester were released last week by President Louis G. Conlan.

The tabulation with several classes not yet reported now stands at 5,113, representing an increase of more than four hundred over last spring's total of 4690.

A breakdown on the number of students from the city's various high schools is expected soon.

Meanwhile, Mary Jane Learnard, college registrar, pointed out that the first midterm period closes Friday, October 24, just nine days distant.

Student-Caused Problems Concern Students Themselves

THE term "school pride" is at best an awkward expression and the difficult to define. "School pride" means one thing to one person, an entirely different thing to another. There are a few things, however, that bring both persons under the same roof.

Certain problems arise each semester that are the concern of each member of the college and its staff. There is only one way to meet these problems — to acknowledge them and to work to solve them as quickly as possible whenever they make themselves evident.

At [illegible] problem of [illegible] faces the college. The problem of untidiness, found throughout the campus [illegible] is particularly evident in the snack bars on the west campus and [illegible] building.

Go into [illegible] snack bars and find a dismal [illegible] coffee cups and table [illegible] requesting [illegible] Look in the counter. One can find on the table [illegible] hour, often with a few feet of [illegible] cups, milk cartons and paper bags.

An [illegible] reason to [illegible] could well wonder at [illegible] is. He might wonder, as do we, if students had [illegible] proper use of the college and what it is doing for them [illegible] how it looked.

Of course, no one person is to blame for this situation. It is the fault of all of us, all of us who use the snack bars, be they in the main building or the west campus. It is a problem to be solved by all of us too.

Whether students use the snack bars or not, whether the snack bar [illegible] or is in the main building or the west campus, it is every one's problem.

THE Guardsman is the [illegible] to be claimed for the first to call attention to [illegible] situation. Administration and student leaders have recognized the problem for what it is and met twice last week in an effort to [illegible] Many suggestions were offered at these meetings.

One of the [illegible] we think, was given by President Louis G Conzelman. President Conzelman believes that the situation could be controlled by active [illegible] of the snack bars by various service organizations on the campus.

A few [illegible] on the student lounge, supposedly a place for relaxation and [illegible] was reduced to a noisy and dirty eating place. A campaign of [illegible] stopped to "clean up the mess." With each and every [illegible] that [illegible] campus organization working to [illegible] various changes took place. As a result the student lounge [illegible] is a far more [illegible] to the student body.

It is to the credit of the college, and its students and faculty alike, to admit a student-caused problem and to solve it by co-operation of all the student body, with the students themselves promoting and executing the co-operation.

Campus [illegible] Preston Cordar said, could also perform a service [illegible] in many other ways. Already this semester, student [illegible] and their faculty advisers have assisted at registration [illegible] that [illegible] the distribution of The Guardsman [illegible] to relieve the [illegible] parking situation.

THERE are [illegible] opportunities for all campus organizations to perform [illegible] the college during the remainder of the semester.

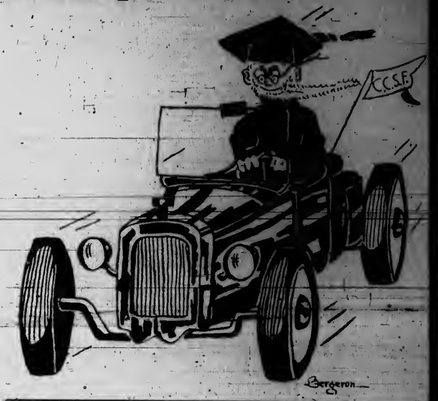
It would of course [illegible] thing if the college could go through a semester [illegible] to [illegible] are no major problems to be faced. It is perhaps [illegible] to the credit of the college, however, to face a problem [illegible] with a realistic approach.

Horses In West Campus Corral

Hot Rod Experts Exhibit Souping Ability In Cars

A throaty roar and the screech of spinning wheels shattered the lazy, noontime atmosphere that prevailed around west campus. "Hot rod" boys in the fountain rushed to the windows just in time to see a sleek, 41 Buick convertible glide into a parking berth. "The Greek is here," someone shouted; "he's come to see Diddi."

Within seconds, the car was surrounded by a score of curious admirers who wanted to know more about the [illegible] import. For [illegible] these persons, both students and instructors, were ardent believers in the hobby of "souping" and they wanted to examine a specimen that could be considered "cherse."



The proud owner, who's real name is Ken Anders, a former business [illegible] at the college, opened up the hood and allowed goggle-eyed "rod [illegible] to gaze upon a ported and [illegible] 51 Cadillac engine, complete with twin Carter carburetors, Chet Herbert tappets, full race cam, headers and smit-bles.

This mill, coupled with a '51 Cad dual range hydromatic and a '51 Olds rear end, is capable of pushing the rapid buggy from 0 to 94 m.p.h. in a standing quarter mile.

The custom work is equally amazing, consisting of a chopped top with Carson overrine, lowered and molded rear deck and taillights that protrude from the sides of the seamless rear fender. The hood and front fenders are also molded and the trunk is electrically operated.

Although the net result of a clever souping job and flawless body work equals an exquisite piece of road machinery, the rest, which Vrionis claims to be in the neighborhood of $5,000, is prohibitive to most college students.

A functional but more conservative but of souping can be seen in a yellow, '47 Ford convertible, owned by Frank Larsen, a civil engineering major at the college. The body of Larsen's car has been lowered and dechromed, and the engine sports a pair of Edmunds heads. The block has been ported and relieved and contains a Harman and Collins full race cam.

Pulse of the Campus

Editor, The Guardsman:

I know that the west campus will gradually be moved back of the main building, but until then, would it be possible for the Eaton and Smith construction company to level the hill that leads up to the main building?

Everytime I go to a class up there, I feel like a mountain climber getting in condition to ascend Everest. Anyway, if Eaton and Smith can't level the hill, ask them if they can install an escalator.

A flatfooted student

The nose has it . . .

The best photographic technician cannot help having a few small flaws in his final print, in the form of minute scratches or specks. For this and other reasons, the accepted viewing distance for a photographic print is a few feet distance.

Consequently, during "Camera Day" at Stern Grove, when Guardsman photographer Howard Blanco saw a matronly lady viewing one of his prized works very closely, scanning every inch of its surface, he was prompted to mutter, "Look at the prints, lady, don't smell them!"

Perhaps she had a point, though—there are prints and then, there are prints!

Old Alumnus Winds Up Tagged, Withdraws Gift And Goes Home

Norman, Oklahoma:—Recently an old alum paid a visit to the library to donate a part of his book collection. While arrangements for the gift were being made, time expired on the man's parking meter and the familiar parking ticket was neatly placed on his windshield.

The alum went to the controller's office to pay his fine but found the office closed for lunch. After a half hour of waiting and fuming he decided that the university parking procedure presented too great a barrier to anyone merely wishing to present a gift to the school.

So he took his books and went home.

New parking meters on the University of Oklahoma campus may make the university some money, but they've already cost the library there a valuable collection of rare books.—Associated Collegiate Press.

Shots At RAMdon: Term Paper Trouble Time

By Louanne Marford

That time is rolling around again!

That time is term paper time, and everyone who has had any experience with those fiendish [illegible] has already begun collecting data for the first midterm effort of the new student this [illegible] be wise, follow the [illegible] listed here and you [illegible] find a term paper very simple.

Usually with the advent of the end of the first midterm the freshman is forced to face the terrifying prospect of writing the first term paper in his college career.

FOR THE INEXPERIENCED

Step one, for the benefit of the inexperienced, is to decide what topic will be in with the subject material and still be fresh and pleasing to the instructor. This is a tricky proposition until you get on to the tricks of the trade. In most classes the student has an opportunity to find out what the instructor's pet hobby or pastime is. Once you have this bit of information carefully tucked away, the next step is to find a way to incorporate it with the course subject matter.

IT COULD HAPPEN

This step is no snap at all and the freshman should allow several weeks to figure out just the right angle with which to approach it.

For example it might take some time to figure out a way to connect comics with Shakespeare's Hamlet without being sarcastic or impertinent, but it is [illegible]

BE CASUAL

The next rule in writing a good paper is to refer casually to your extra-curricular reading. This is very impressive if you handle it correctly. To be on the safe side it is a good idea to refer to something that you are fairly familiar with.

If you're writing on a work of Shakespeare's, read a little Bacon and figure out a way to work a few comparisons and draw on a few quotes, and be sure that the essay you choose to read contains material that you can easily and intelligently weave in with the theme on which you are writing.

If you read the wrong one you may have to read four or five essays to find something that you can use.

NOTHING COULD BE EASIER

Organization is the simplest step of all. Simply outline what you want to say, see if the facts follow one another smoothly and that the paper shows signs of planned continuity. Build up the facts to give the effect of a climax or high point.

Once the student has completed this comprehensive outline he has laid the ground work for his paper and can begin to buckle down to work.

Writing and rewriting and typing should be followed by reading the entire effort in an objective manner. At this stage the student should be prepared for a shock, for chances are he won't be satisfied. Two or three more typing jobs ought to do it, and the paper should be ready to be turned in.

SIMPLE, HUH?

Please don't be discouraged, this is an exaggeration, but to be on the safe side it might be a good idea to start thinking about that paper. It will be due before too long you know.

Rams Defeated By California In Soccer Tilt

By Fred Fukuchi

Playing their first game of the 1952 season, the City College Soccer team fell before a 2 to 0 shut out at the hands of the University of California squad last Wednesday on the local field.

Coach Ray Diederichsen's outfit played an inspired first half holding the Golden Bears to a one to nothing score. However, the Bears possessing a better balanced squad came through in the second half for the victory.

The Bears first score came [illegible] first half when right wing Louis Lorenzo booted one in from 30 yards out. This lead was sufficient but the Bears came back with the convincing short six yard boot by California center full Joe Dajoni.

Diederichsen pointed out three of his Rams with fine performances. Center full Carlos Monge on all around play, left full Ricardo Wassmer on defense and Enrique Mello on a fine hustling game.

According to Diederichsen, the Rams actually outplayed the Bears in the first half, however, intereceptions by the Californians slowed down the City College offense.

This year's team has but three returning players from last year's squad. Diederichsen feels that the club is not championship material but should win some games.

The Rams next encounter will be against the University of San Francisco Dons. The Dons are perennial favorites in the loop and should be favored against the locals.

City College is the only Junior College in the six team league. The other five are California, San Francisco, S. F. State, Stanford, and Santa Clara.

The Rams will play four more home games on the local turf. This will mark the first time that games will be played on the City College campus. Coach Diederichsen states that this move of home games on the campus should draw the interest of more spectators.

The league will be run on a round robin basis, that is that each team will meet each other twice, during the first round and second round of the league. USF, the league favorites, played Temple last year for the intercollegiate soccer championship of the United States.

The schedule is as follows:

FIRST ROUND

Oct. 11 CCSF at Stanford
Oct. 21 CCSF at USF
Oct. 25 State at CCSF
Nov. 1 Santa Clara at CCSF

SECOND ROUND

Nov. 8 CCSF at California
Nov. 15 USF at CCSF
Nov. 22 CCSF at State
Nov. 29 Stanford at CCSF
Dec. 6 CCSF at Santa Clara

AN UNIDENTIFIED SANTA ROSA back is about to be tackled by Ram halfback Bob Jones on the two-year play shown above. Although Santa Rosa was stifled by Jones on this play, the Bear Cubs went on to beat the Rams by a 13-6 score.

Eight Teams Entered In Intra Cage Tourney

Currently combining eight teams into one of the season's most formidable events, the intramural basketball league, under the supervision of Coach Ralph Hillsman, is in its first week of tournament play.

Aside from the fact that competition is only beginning, there is already an indication of considerable incentive apparent in the attitudes shown by the various squads.

Composed of three-man teams, and divided into twice weekly games, Monday and Wednesday, and Tuesday and Thursday, the teams play a scheduled round robin series for the honor of reigning as college champions.

According to Coach Hillsman: "It's a little too early for predictions, but play has been rather good for so early in the season."

In the inter-fraternity league, only three teams comprise the opposition for each other.

Those are Beta Tau, Alpha Sigma Delta, and the Newman Club.

Commenting further upon the observed talent situation, Coach Hillsman concluded that "if desire is any indication, we should have a pretty fair team by the end of this intramural season."

Returning Cagers Hope To Offset Tough Schedule

With the hope that this year's edition of Ram basketball will attain coveted championship laureis, Coach Ralph Hillsman indicated that the 1952 seasonal schedule will be one of the toughest City College ever faced.

Although bypassing many of last year's opponents, the Rams will still maintain the role of defending champions and will battle some of the very best, according to conference opposition.

Built around some six returning lettermen, the Ram's casaba contingent will be driving for another repeat performance with Bob Bourdenza, Ken Hansen, Chuck Payne, Art Back, Warren Hagberg, and Ike Walker, who earlier this year was thought to be out of competition because of the draft, received his draft deferment last week.

The tentative 1952 basketball schedule, with practice commencing November 1, will start December 2 with an open scrimmage. The opposition for that date at the time of this writing, is not known as yet.

Below, is the tentative 1952 Ram basketball schedule:

- Dec. 2—Open Scrimmage, Here.
- Dec. 5—East Contra Costa, Here.
- Dec. 6—Cal Blues, There.

Meet The Players . The Centers

In this issue, we will meet the centers in the fourth of a series of meet the players.

On the left is Paul Papathakis, the big center from George Washington High School. Paul is a 6' 2", 195-pounder who is a tremendous linebacker. He has shown capability in the first three games between Menlo, Santa Rosa, and Contra Costa.

On the right is Matt Russell, who did his prep footballing at Lowell High School. Russell is a 6' 3", 195-pounder, and like Papathakis is a tremendous linebacker.

Russell is the second offensive pivotman behind newly added Harry Kuntz whose picture will be shown at a later date. A veteran of last year's team, Kuntz has strengthend the Rams in the middle of the line.—Photo by Blanco.

Seven Co-ed Courses . . . Now Offered by WAA

Seven co-educational physical education courses are now available to students at the college, according to Gloria Dunn, Women's Athletic Association sponsor.

Archery, badminton, fencing, social, modern, and folk dancing, and bowling are the coed courses now being offered.

Preparations for sectional play days for the coming year were decided at the Contra Costa meet of the WAA. Badminton, tennis, archery, golf, basketball, and swimming are the sports included in these intercollegiate meets.

Information concerning play day events will be posted this week in the women's gymnasium, Mrs. Dunn

Rams To Invade Los Angeles For Game Friday

By Al Burgin

Although Coach Grover Klemmer's Rams have failed to enter the win column as [illegible] it will not slow the tempo of the Rams' encounter with Los Angeles City College this Friday night in the southern city.

The Los Angeles bound Ram squad will leave Friday morning by air, and [illegible] to watch the Stanford Indians and the "Little Bruin" of UCLA battle on Saturday at the Coliseum.

In 1949, Los Angeles trampled the Rams 31-7, to lead in the bitter north-south series that exist between the two colleges. It marked the widest scoring margin during the 16-years of play. Los Angeles also won the 1950 contest from the Rams, 21-6.

Last year the Rams, backed by their championship crew, won the contest to narrow the margin of "wins and losses" between the two colleges.

Los Angeles is sporting a one-game edge over the Rams, but the Rams will be out to even the series when the two teams collide this Friday night at Gilmore Field, in the Southern City.

In the Ram's opener of the '52 season, they lost to Menlo College, 26-12, in a non-league clash. Santa Rosa dropped the Rams, 13-6, in the first Big Seven League game.

This loss was a heart-breaker for the Ram squad, as the Bear Cubs connected for a touchdown pass, and scored on a pass intereception in the last minute and 40 seconds of play.

Students of the college who are planning to attend the Los Angeles game can purchase tickets at the stadium prior to game time. All seats will be $1.00.

Explosive Runs By Jones Pace Ram Offense

By Joe Callas

In a game filled with breakaway runs by both teams, the West Contra Costa Comets defeated the Rams by a score of 26 to 7 at Kezar Stadium last Friday night.

The sparse crowd was treated to an exhibition of running fineness by the Comets' Sam Brown and the Rams' Bill Jones. Making a bid for all-league honors, Brown accounted for all four TDs for Contra Costa, while rushing for 134 yards ground-wise, only 29 more than Jones' 125 yards.

The Rams drew first blood in the opening quarter. After an exchange of fumbles, Bernie Kelly drove into the end zone from one yard out to climax a 30 yard drive. Jim Baumann's kick split the uprights and the Rams were out in front for the first and last time of the game by 7 to 0.

The first Contra Costa score came early in the second quarter, as Brown tallied from two yards out. The conversion attempt was wide, and the Rams still led, 7 to 6.

The Comets started another march late in the second period, but were halted by an interception by Pat Francisco, who played a beautiful game on defense.

City College left the field at halftime on top 7 to 6. The Ram lead was short-lived however, as the Comets took the second half kick-off and went 71 yards in five plays, the last play finding Brown on a 57 yard jaunt into paydirt. It was Brown again on a three yard bolt, after Lewis Marshall intercepted Dick Landucci's pass deep in Comet territory.

It was then in the fourth quarter that the Ram offense began to jell. After taking the kickoff, City College, with Fil Julaibil, Bill Jones, and Bernie Kelly chewing up yardage, the Rams moved down to Contra Costa's 20 yard line where a fumble ended the threat. The longest run of this series was Jones' 45 yarder. Given a beautiful hole by tackle Walt Ralliet and end Belvin Gage, Jones found daylight at the 50 and raced to the Comets 25 yard line before he was brought down by Marshall.

The next time the Rams got the ball they marched down to Contra Costa's 20 yard line, on Jones' 28 yarder, and Julaibil's 20 yard burst up the middle. Landucci's pass was then intercepted on the ten by Brown who set sail up the south sideline and raced 90 yards for his and Contra Costa's fourth and final TD of the game.

Although losing, City College out gained their opponents 320 yards to 291 yards. The Rams, however were outrushed 288 to 256. An interesting fact on the contest was that Contra Costa threw only two passes during the whole game, completing one for a net gain of three yards.

Outstanding for the Rams were Pete Hontales, Bob Alioto, Coleman Moss and Francisco on defense, and Ed Hayes, Harry Kuntz, Gage and Riebler on offense.

RAMblings . .

By Joe Callas

THERE is a strong possibility that the football game in Los Angeles between the Rams and Los Angeles City College may be televised in the LA area Friday night when the two teams meet.

The possibility is due to the fact that most games between two-year colleges in Los Angeles are televised since junior colleges are not members of the NCAA which limits the televising of grid games to four year colleges.

However the NCAA is running on an experimental basis, and TV Game of the Week, which is piped across the nation each Saturday.

In 1950 the University of California and Stanford University televised all of their home games and showed an increase in attendance over 1949 when no games were televised.

In the following two years, both colleges were forced to cut down in the televising of their games to where now the only game that will be televised by these colleges is the Big Game between California and Stanford which is already a sellout.

In the TV Game of the Week at Palo Alto last October 4, between Michigan and Stanford, the actual attendance at the game was 35,000. The expected turnout for this game was 65,000. Thus the arguments pro and con, concerning televising of football games, remains unanswered.

The NCAA is firmly against the unlimited televising of football games, and will probably remain so until actual proof is shown that television does not cut down attendance.

Notre Dame, since it is an independent football team has defied the NCAA, and will televise all of its home games. It is the hope of many sport fans that other independent colleges will follow in Notre Dame footsteps and televise their home games.

Start Of 1949 Campus Clean-up

Scenes like this picture resulted in the successful "clean up" of a littered campus in 1949. Members of Alpha Phi Epsilon fraternity were instrumental in the clean up work that year. Members of the group were also instrumental in improving conditions in the student lounge.

Now, three years later, the danger of an unclean campus faces the college again. It is hoped that service organizations on the campus will follow the example set by the Alpha Phi Epsilons.

Drama Club Casts Comedy Sight Unseen For November

Sight Unseen, a three-act comedy by Rosemary Foster and Warren Law, will be presented by the Drama Club under the direction of Michael Gilrain, Thursday, October 30 through Saturday evening, November 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the college's Little Theater, Room 28.

This play was the winner of the 1949 Etherage Awards of the Stanford Dramatists Alliance, and was first produced in the Tryout Theater, Seattle, Washington.

The action takes place in the Hall of Barnsley, an ancient English manor house, and revolves around the ghosts of the ancestors of the present owner, Lady Judith Elliot, played by Mary Allen.

Lady Elliot, having more house than money, as it were, is more than anxious to dispose of this white elephant. Finding a prospective buyer, in the person of Mrs. Millicent Malone, an American of course, played by Alba James, she tries to produce the ghosts for which the manor is famous. It seems that the condition of sale of the manor is that it shall be equipped with these apparitions.

Lady Elliot's problems in accomplishing this create numerous situations of pure ectoplasmic nonsense, leading to a hilarious climax in the third act.

Others in the cast are Barbara Burdock, Joyce Cody, Bill Bixby, Elmer Cox, and Dennis Olswang. Admission is fifty cents with Associated Student card, or $1 without AS card.

AS Card Sales Near 2000 Mark

Associated Student cards totaling 1450 have been sold, according to Jim Bouick, AS sales chairman, leaving only 550 sales needed to complete the expected goal of 2,000.

AS cards are a practical investment since they pay for themselves in savings on admission prices to various theaters, bowling alleys, and skating rinks, as well as granting discounts at many places of business, according to Boulck.

"Besides the financial gain, AS cards entitle the student to take part in campus activities such as rallies, dances and football games—and the semester has just begun. The Associated Students are planning activities that students will want to be in on, and a season ticket is available with the purchase of an AS card," Bouick added.

The sales chairman also said that rallies will be open only to card holders in the future.

AS cards can be purchased at the Ramporium or at the student bank, Room 188, Main Building, from 9:45 to 11:10 a.m., or from 12:01 to 1:15 p.m. daily from Meg Shick, vice chairman of sales, Mary Louise Carl, Ken Fiege, Gail Wright or Lou Fabbri.

Foreign Students Feted on UN Day

Students from foreign countries are asked to attend a luncheon to be held at the Palace Hotel on the seventh anniversary of the United Nations, Friday, October 24, Walter McCloud, veterans counsellor, said today.

The invitation is extended by the International Institute of Education with the only pre-requisite being that the students come in the costumes of their native country to the guest luncheon.

Any interested students are asked to contact McCloud, in Building 3, west campus.

Phi Ro Pi Meets UC In Prelude To Debate Season

Phi Ro Pi, the college's debating team, will meet rival debaters from the University of California here on Wednesday, October 21. Topic for discussion will be "Should Compulsory Fair Employment Acts Be Federal?", according to Thomas Dutcher club advisor.

As a prelude to the debating season, the team met with the University of California at Berkeley, in a round table discussion yesterday.

Topic of the debate was "To What Extent Should Power Be Vested in the Legislative Branch of Government?" Representing the college were Charles Osborne, Julie Hanan, John McDonald, and George Effenberger.

The debating society meets in Room 121 on Monday and Tuesday afternoons for conferences. Members of this semester's team are Clarence Miller, Bill Consiff, Jim Lopes, Corrine Christianson, Carl Nolte, Ted Caffey, Julie Hanan, John John McDonald, Carl Mariel, Lou Sheppard, Stan Fletcher, Andrew Schneider, George Effenberger, and Charles Osborne.

Symphony Tickets On Sale Here

Tickets for the symphony forum concerts are available for a limited time according to Meyer Cahn, faculty sponsor. Tickets for the November through April presentations may be obtained at the student bank at $22.50 for orchestra season tickets and $17.50 for season balcony reservations.

Concerts will be given Thursday evenings at 8:30 p.m. in the San Francisco Opera House.

City College's representative for the forum meetings are Jim Crow, chairman, and Margot Arlen and Katina Cheveres.

Draft Deferment Tests Given Here Dec. 4; Applications Due

Deadline for applications for the Selective Service College Qualification Test must be post-marked by Saturday, November 1, F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced yesterday. Draft eligible students who have not as yet made application are urged to do so at their earliest opportunity, continued Dr. Marsh.

F. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare urges men students to make application for Selective Service Qualification Tests now.

Students whose academic year will terminate this coming January should take their tests on Thursday, December 4, the first testing date in the third series as announced by the National Headquarters of the Selective Service System in Washington, D. C., said Dr. Marsh.

The December date is underlined for students in the aforementioned category in order that they may have as many scores as possible before the end of the academic year, at which time their local boards will reconsider their cases to determine their status for deferment as students, continued Dr. Marsh.

The second test in the new series will be given April 23, 1953. Applications for both dates may be secured from the student's local draft board.

Eligibility to apply for the college deferment test is continued for men who intend to request deferment as a student, and the pursuit of full-time instruction. Tests cannot be taken more than once.

Present criteria for deferment as an undergraduate is either a score of 70 or higher on the test or ranking in the upper half of the male freshman class or upper two-thirds of the male sophomore class. General Hershey, Selective Service Director, however, has emphasized that the standards are flexible and may be raised at anytime that the manpower situation so demands.

At present 413,395 potential draftees have taken the tests, of which 190,000 have been deferred as students.

AWS Tea Set For November 20

Plans are underway for the tea and fashion show to be held in the student lounge on Thursday, November 20, 1 to 5 p.m., to honor high school senior girls, according to a recent announcement by Associated Women Student President, Odette Trouillet.

Committee members working on the tea include Barbara Scott, Mary Louise Carl, Marillee School, Meg Shick, and Mildred Pinkus.

Alex de May of Lakeside Village will supply the clothes the 15 models will exhibit at the affair. Selection of the models for the day has not as yet been decided.

Israeli Diplomat Speaks Here

"The future of the Middle East depends on providing the Asiatic peoples with an opportunity to earn a living, gain an education and combat disease." This was the theory presented by Eliashiv Ben-Horin, attache to the Israeli Embassy in Washington and an expert on Middle Eastern affairs, when he addressed two political science classes at the college October 6.

The three major causes of trouble in the Middle East, according to Ben-Horin, are inter-regional strife and the lack of perception of social and economic benefits. Ben-Horin considers the last of these causes to be of the utmost importance, and he feels that if the principles of democracy are encouraged in Israel, the country will serve as an example for other neighboring countries to follow.

Ben-Horin believes that the support of the so-called strong man in government is undesirable; he stated that "they can too easily be disposed of and another regime substituted, which may not follow the ideas of its predecessor."

Rally Committee Members Named; Campus Talent For Rallies Sought

Stokely Wilson, Rally commissioner, announced the names of this semester's rally committee at a meeting held last week.

The members include Stan Fletcher, Meg Shick, Sally Galvin, Jim Bouick, Paul Bixel, John McDonald, Bill Bixby, Irene Enstrom, Leroy Downs, Joe Dratkin, Andrew Schneider, Mildred Pinkus, Phil Malnick, Al Zanaidi, Sue Speer, and Gale Wright.

The Rally committee meets every Tuesday and Thursday at 2:10 p.m. in Room 2A. The committee plans the rallies and handles publicity for other student affairs.

Wilson has urged that any student who feels he has some talent and would like to entertain at a future rally should contact one of the committee members or come to the rally commissioners office in Building 2. As yet there has not been enough student response to the call for talent.

Rallies being planned for the future include a homecoming rally on October 24, and a football rally on November 7. Plans are also being discussed for the forthcoming election rally.

Wilson urged all students who have not yet bought Associated Student cards to do so at once as the Student Council has passed a resolution which restricts admission to all future rallies to AS card holders only.

Present matters being voted on by the Rally committee include the use and distribution of hats, the purchase of new megaphones to be used by the cheer leaders, and help with the distribution of The Guardsman.

No rallies are slated for Friday, November 21, because of Business-Education day or for Friday, December 5

Club Cavalcade: Pledging Activities Highlight Social Season

By Betty Wong

WINDING up another week of "social-clubbing" on the campus finds more elections of officers, rushes, preparations of each club for their booth on Club Day, and hearty "boosts" for contestants for Homecoming Queen, open to any woman Associated Student card holder. Plans are moving ahead toward the second affair held by the various organizations.

Kappi Phi had a tea for the rushees on October 5 at the home of Shiela Dubl. The next activity slated is a joint meeting with Phi Beta Delta on Wednesday, October 29.

The newly elected officers include: President, Alice Hammons; Vice President, Betty Jo Cotton; Recording Secretary, Colleen McElroy; Corresponding Secretary, Patty Simmons; Treasurer, Donna Fort; Historian, Judie Lowenberg; and Pledge Mistress, Dee Dee Chiveras.

The Chinese Students Club welcomed the new students at a Freshman reception October 10 from 9 to 12 p.m. at the new Chinese Recreation Center. Dancing and free refreshments were included on the evening's program.

The new officers this semester include: President, Willie Lee; Vice President, Charlotte Lee; Recording Secretary, Lola Lee; Corresponding Secretary, Sarah Chew; Treasurer, Maurice Wong; Social Chairman, Elinor Chin; and Hank Tom and Publicity Chairmen, Ted Wong and Pat Ng. The club is also planning to sponsor an annual scholarship of $50 delegated to the winning boy and girl.

Omicron Phi Pi, Economic Honor Society, held its first meeting of the semester on September 30 at the home of Michael Zarehin, 295 Urbana Drive. New officers are: President, Jim McCarthy; Vice President, Betty Salerno; Secretary, Joe Drabkin; Treasurer, Walter Klock; and Historian, John Wilson.

Alpha Kappa Rho held its first affair last Monday night at a dinner at the California Hotel. The second affair will be a dance social at the home of Frank Loughran, Sunday, October 19. The officers for the Fall semester include: President, Gale Wright; Vice President, Al Zanardi; Treasurer, Rod Adams; Sergeant-at-Arms, Vic Rubon; Master Ritualist, Dave Tolson; and Pledge Master, Connie Webb. A coat-of-arms has recently been adopted which will be on display at their booth on Club Day.

Helping as hostesses and models at the Goodwill Industry fashion show and rummage sale on October 9 and 10 were the girls of Zeta Chi sorority. A joint meeting was held with Phi Beta Delta October 8 at the home of Nancy Boblitt. Sally Galvin, corresponding Secretary of the sorority is now AS Vice President.

Barbara Scott of Alpha Lambda Chi is Associated Women Students Vice President.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon held its initial pledge affair at the home of Jack Ellington, September 28. Plans for future joint meetings will be discussed tonight at the business meeting.

Delta Psi held a business meeting last night at the home of Josephine Granucci. The second affair will be on Tuesday, October 28 at 7:30 p.m. at the Fox Hostess House, and Alpha Sigma Delta will serve.

The Collegiate Christian Fellowship held a meeting last Friday during college hour in the office of W. Howard Schoon to discuss last minute details for the weekend conference. Approximately six members will attend the conference at Russian River.

The French Club held a business meeting last Wednesday, October 8, at the home of Luz Sanz.

The Hillel Foundation held a social meeting last night at the Jewish Community Center at 8 p.m.

The Drama Club will present their comedy, Sight Unseen, Thursday, October 30 through Saturday evening, November 1. The first play of the season, it will be presented here at $1.00 admission for non-members of the Associated Students and fifty cents for AS card holders.

Phi Beta Delta held a business meeting October 1, and will hold another business meeting tonight to further discuss a new date for the presentation of their "Shipwreck Dance," which was recently postponed because of the conflict with the Santa Rosa football game.

Another first rush affair was planned for Theta Tau at a coffee given October 12 at the home of sorority President, Diane Bates. Pat King was general chairman of the social and in charge of refreshments.

Deadline for all club news is now Wednesday at 1 p.m. Information for publication in this column should be submitted to the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 1.

Queen Contest Highlights Week's Events

'Big Time' Entertainment Is Featured In Homecoming Week Rally Friday Night

The Associated Men Student homecoming rally will be held this Friday night, October 24, at 8 o'clock in the west campus auditorium, according to Paul Bixel, AMS president.

Doodles and Spider, of international fame, will be the star attraction, Bixel said. They have just recently returned from a London engagement and are appearing nightly at the Cable Car Village in San Francisco. Previous to their return they made a smash hit with the Judy Garland show in New York. Their act features jokes and record pantomimes.

Lee Giroux, popular Bay Area figure, will serve as master of ceremonies at the rally, Bixel announced late last week.

Giroux is well known for his radio and television appearances, and presides at many charity and civic functions.

Rusty Draper, popular local television and M.G.M. recording star, will also be introduced at the rally, Bixel declared. This will be Draper's first visit to the campus this year.

Bixel added that admission to the rally will be one Associated Student card per couple.

Members of Bixel's AMS committee who are working with him for Homecoming Week activities are Joe Seafidi, Gale Wright, Al Zanardi, and Connie Webb.

The highlight of the rally will be the announcement of the Homecoming Queen, chosen by a student vote today and tomorrow and kept secret until the rally, committee members said. The queen will be crowned and the other contestants will be introduced.

The rally will also feature speeches by Coach Grover Klemmer, the appearance of Sammy the Ram, The Tom-Tom trophy, won last year from San Mateo, will also be displayed.

Bixel urged all students to come to the "really great" homecoming rally. "There will be music, dancing, refreshments, entertainment, and lots of fun for all," he said.

Twenty Co-eds To Vie For Campus Royal Honors

By Dick Wiltshire

With the securing of the annual Associated Men Student trophy for placement on the lucky queen's head at Friday night's dance and rally, arrangements for the coronation of Homecoming Queen have been completed, according to Paul Bixel, AMS president.

Homecoming Week's first lady will reign over the Ram-Bulldog grid clash the following day and will be the recipient of various awards and prizes.

Ballots, which are on this page of The Guardsman, should be submitted early, Bixel advised, the deadline for their collection being 1 p.m. tomorrow afternoon.

Ballot boxes may be found in the first floor foyer of the main building, by the Silver Pole, the corridor leading to The Guardsman office, and in front of the Ramporium.

Ballots must be marked with the voter's Associated Student card number and will be checked for validity, Bixel cautioned. Should the contest end in a tie, he continued, the AMS Homecoming Committee will reserve the right to final decision.

Gala Dance To Climax Week's Social Activities

One Associated Student card per couple will provide the passport to the Homecoming dance this Friday night, October 24, which will be the Homecoming Week according to Paul Bixel, Associated Men Student president.

The dance is in conjunction with the rally where the winning contestant from 20 Homecoming queen entries will be crowned, Bixel added.

The dance following the rally will begin at approximately 9:45 p.m. in the auditorium on the west campus. Dancing will continue until midnight. Bixel said, and informal attire, clothes suited for campus wear, will be appropriate.

Music for the evening will be supplied by Sal Carson who has played at the Bohemia resort in Lake County for the past three years. He has also played at various hotel dances and makes recordings for Capitol, according to information supplied by Bixel.

Support and participation in these Homecoming Week events is advocated by Bixel, who said the activities will owe their success to student enthusiasm.

Exams Cancel College Hour

No college hour will be held this Friday, October 24, because of examinations given during Midterm week, according to Rubin Dunn, student activities adviser.

Dunn also said that the next week's college hour schedule may be changed to Wednesday to make way for the college Blood Drive, but if not, clubs will meet.

The college schedule for next week is as follows:

8 o'clock classes— 8:10 to 9:50
9 o'clock classes— 9:00 to 9:40
10 o'clock classes— 9:50 to 10:30
College Hour—10:40 to 11:20
11 o'clock classes—11:30 to 12:10
12 o'clock classes—12:20 to 1:00

Ten Selected By Fletcher For Saturday's Modesto Confab

City College will send ten representatives to tomorrow's Northern California Junior College Conference at Modesto, Stan Fletcher, Associated Student president, announced at last week's Student Council meeting.

Fletcher stated that besides himself, Paul Bixel, Associated Men Student President; Jim Bouick, Associated Student card sales chairman, Lou Sheppard, Information Service Chairman, Norm Heise, Finance Chairman; Gale Wright, Sophomore Council member; Sally Galvin, Associated Student vice-president; Odette Trouillet, Associated Women Student president; Stokely Wilson, Rally Commissioner; and Joelle Ramonite, Associated Student secretary, will represent the college in the two conferences.

The conference, he declared, is designed to get the two year colleges together in an effort to discuss and solve problems which might confront the various institutions.

The Modesto Conference is a preliminary to the state conference which is scheduled for Los Angeles, November 20.

The representatives were selected by Fletcher and faculty advisor Lou Batmale, who hope to gain information which will be for the betterment of this college and also introduce new ideas, such as the present clean-up campaign, which might also be of value to the other Northern California two-year colleges.

Campus Clean-up Problem Eased; Clubs Offer Aid

A definite trend towards campus tidiness has been shown by the various campus clubs in the last week, Louis Batmale, Associated Student controller, declared yesterday.

Batmale stated that since the campaign got its start last week, the waitresses, bus boys, and janitors have noticed the amount of debris, which usually litters the student lounge and bath fountains, has been on a downgrade.

This, Batmale added, can be attributed to "the excellent efforts" put forth by the various campus clubs to make the campus a more enjoyable place on which to eat.

The clean-up campaign began last week after students, faculty, and administration leaders met with President Louis G. Conlan to discuss the increase in careless disposal of waste material.

A possible solution was found in placing the campus clubs in charge of the improvement service and a trophy was suggested by President Conlan as a possible encouragement to the club which contributes the most to the all-out clean-up drive.

Hurley Village Housing Filled

Applications for obtaining living quarters in Hurley Village must be approved by Dean Edwin C. Browne.

Only families may apply for these houses. Dean Browne said, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur James, who live in Hurley Village, are in charge there.

Dean Browne reported that all living accommodations in Hurley Village are occupied now, and that there are several families waiting for admission.

Japanese Movie, Nikko, Slated Here

Cancellation of the regular college hour movie was announced this week by Emma H. Smith, instructor in audio visual aids. Mid-term examinations necessitated the cancellation of college hour this Friday, October 24.

Slated however, for the following Friday, October 31, is a scenic movie of Japan. This movie will be shown in Room 136 during college hour and again at 12:15 to 1 p.m. for the benefit of those not able to attend the first showing.

The title of the pictorial film is, Nikko, and shows some awe-inspiring landscape scenes and art beauties of Japan, Smith said. The doors are open to everyone there interested in seeing a good movie, he added.

This film should be of particular interest to those studying oriental culture, Smith pointed out.

Newspapers Serve All Readers—Not A Select Few

OF PRIME importance to the Newspaper and the American Newspaper's reading public is the understanding of the reason for the newspapers' existence. Why a newspaper in the first place? What importance does it have? How does it operate? The Guardsman, hereiff, attempts to answer some of these questions.

The first chapter in any story in journalism usually contains a sentence somewhat along the line of "The function of the newspaper is to inform, instruct, and entertain all its readers." If every would-be journalist, and every member of the newspaper reading audience, could grasp this fact, this piece need not be written.

Let's examine that sentence. What does it mean?

It is first said that the newspaper is to INFORM. Here, as in any campus community, this comes under the handling of news coverage and news "beats." Individuals, organizations, and departments which often have information of interest are covered regularly throughout the semester.

Sometimes this information is of interest to the great majority of the student body. More often, the information is of valhe to a small portion only of the college. Logically, the greater the amount of interest in the college as a whole, the greater the amount of information, the greater the amount of space that can be devoted to the story. This is the essence of newspaper makeup.

Analyzing the sentence further, we see that the duty of the newspaper is to inform and INSTRUCT. Often the two are synonymous. It is quite difficult to instruct without informing.

The newspaper does not confine itself to informing and instructing; it also entertains. Almost without exception articles of entertainment are in what is called the "feature" type. Much of newspaper coverage is devoted to straight, strict presentation of the facts. This is of value for information's sake but has little tb offer in the way of entertainment.

Every newspaper, regardless of size or circulation needs some "light" material in its pages. Some persons, unfamiliar with the workings of a newspaper, think that the only type of valuable entertainment material to be found in the newspaper is of the "humor" fashion. This certainly is not the case. While good humor, of course, has its definite place in the newspaper, there are other subjects of equal entertainment value.

FINALLY we read that the newspaper informs, instructs, and entertains ALL ITS READERS. This means that the newspaper must write for all its public. Unfortunately, there are times when a particular group or organization feels that it deserves special privileges. These privileges may include an over-balanced amount of material in a paper concerning the organization and certain influence in newspaper policy.

Sad to say, organizations sometimes disregard the fact that the newspaper is the servant of all the people—not a select few. This dangerous situation can occur with a big city daily, or it can happen here.

Only when a newspaper is true to itself and the community which it serves, can one honestly say that the publication is carrying out the duty expected of it.

Many Unusual "Bookworms" Are Seen Concentrating In Library

By Betty Wong

It has been observed of late that a study of the particular species of individuals who frequent the literary museum of this institution of higher learning, otherwise recognized as the college library, would be a most revealing and informing undertaking.

The type of "bookworms" to be found inside the doors of Room 214 in the main building are as varied as the number of magazines on the racks and just as colorful and worthy of discreet but definite observing.

TO DREAMLAND

There is the delightful student who faithfully occupies his place on one end of the room in a quiet corner where he may, undisturbed, sink into the soft folds of his arms upon the table and drift peacefully to dreamland.

This occurs particularly when he has enjoyed a Hollywood "sneak" preview the night before heedless of the impending disaster of an 8 o'clock class.

There is the one who firmly believes in the virtues of a regular intake of dextrose, the energy building food. Not hindered by their dignified surroundings, they make themselves, known to their neighbors at regular intervals with a determined "crunch" on the brown roll religiously clutched in the hand.

THE TAPPER

The daily paper serves as another attraction, and if you happen to be the fortunate possessor of the document at the moment, you need not be reminded that the character, exists who will sit not far away, in full view, tapping impatiently.

Like a cat, he is poised and ready to pounce, as he glares at the ticking minutes on his watch and at you with equal venom.

The best tormentor for the misguided soul who tries to study is unanimously chosen as the individual who wanders in for want of a better place to spend a free hour, has no studying, food for thought, or other occupation.

He can be cheerfully slain as he turns the pages of a magazine he does not pretend to read, has no interest in, with sharp, accented cracks, and with maddening rhythm.

U.S. College News Roundup

• Yuba: Yuba College was recently the scene of much political activity. First, Senator Richard Nixon spoke to the students on his views for the youth of this country.

He was followed later by President Harry S. Truman, who shook hands with several student leaders and spoke vividly and violently against the Republican platform.

The college band was on hand to greet both speakers.

• Santa Barbara: On September 18, at Santa Barbara College, all sorority, fraternity, and boarding houses refused to serve dinner to any of their members.

The reason for this was the Gaucho Gamble, which is the annual picnic sponsored by the college newspaper, El Gaucho. [illegible] takes a chance on the food.

• Sarramento: Last week, Sacramento Junior College required all the freshmen to wear Levi's, a white shirt with the tails hanging out, an official SJC football pin, and the traditional dink.

Many offenders to the rule were caught and were then rewarded with a pie-in-the-face.

• Modesto: Governor Adlai E. Stevenson paused during his whistle stop tour of the West to talk with some of the students of Modesto College.

Many of the students were given a tour of the governor's campaign train and were introduced to members of the governor's party which included his sons, John and Borden.

• Arcata: An oral vote was taken last month at Humboldt State College to see whether the students wanted to keep the college chimes. The results of the vote determined unanimously that the college should keep the chimes, and the reason most students gave for keeping them was "They wake me up when class is over."

• Contra Costa: A recent editorial in the East Contra Costa Junior College newspaper greeted new freshmen and urged them to get right into activities.

It also stated that the older students were spending too much time on the three R's—resting, reclining, and running off at the mouth.

• Stockton: A Tarantula spider escaped from its cage at Stockton college last week and caused great alarm. All classes in the vicinity of the cage were cancelled, and everyone joined in the hunt to find the deadly spider.

Later that night, however, the janitor saw the spider walk down the hall, under the door and back into his cage.

• Santa Monica: Screams, groans and moans greeted the students who casually entered the Student Union Building at Santa Monica College last Friday. Bits of paper were hurriedly ripped to shreds and then deposited carefully into the receptacles which were provided by someone with a tremendous amount of foresight.

Passers-by wondered what the catastrophe took place. Many might have thought that the Army had finally decided to draft the supposedly weaker sex. Others thought the class programs were all wrong and had to be done all over again.

But no, it's not either one of those things. The answer is very simple to [illegible] pictures were passed out. (Compiled by J. McD.

Ivory Tower Study Crumbles; Students Rebuild In Activities

By Edwina Kilborn

"A child's tale there was of an ivory tower and a nightingale caged within. A sad nightingale whose song echoed out only to the wind and back again." —Anon.

Romantic fantasy perhaps, but bearing a moral to the college student of today, who may sometimes find himself thus trapped in the gilded cage of education, forced to confine his song to a state world.

An ivory tower is a state or place of withdrawal from the world of action into a world of ideas and dreams. Too often colleges and their students have been criticized for locking themselves away from the reality of world affairs. Of hiding behind the test tubes and theories of an academic society.

Through history, the University has been a paradox of advancement and withdrawal. Medieval scholars locked up their minds in the ivory towers of the schools. They accomplished articulation by the pen—and is the modern student any better?

Is he not perhaps tied up in a smug, safe, protected ivory tower of convenience? Involved in a world of fantasy, rationalizations, and tomorrows? Does the world of decision, of action cause him comprehension?

Think now on a solution to a proper balance of academic and worldly living.

Study plus classes plus work plus sleep leave the average student with little time for outside activity. And yet time must be found.

Time for participation in student government, of not allowing any particular faction on campus to monopolize elections. Time for cooperation with and understanding of elected leaders. Time for support of collegian social and sport activities. Time for the joining of clubs and service organizations.

In becoming a definite piece in the scene of college activity, the student prepares himself for future activity in affairs of the world.

By knocking down the ivory tower of know-nothingness with active interest in student government and organizations, the student is building a design for world judgment.

Citizens Of Universe

Planetarium Awaits Arrival Of Star Machine

By John McDonald

"College students are citizens of the universe," declared Louis Berman, astronomy instructor here. With this thought in mind, Berman instructs his students on the wonders of the universe.

The astronomy laboratory is equipped with many slides which Berman has made himself. At the present time he is instructing his classes on space ships, to supplement their learning he is making slides in his laboratory about space ships.

Berman is now anticipating a twilight projector to be installed in his laboratory. When the projector arrives, he will present a sky show in the planetarium for all interested students during a college hour sometime in the future. However, the planetarium has room for only 40 students, and seats will be allotted on a first come basis.

The planetarium, which is located in Room 302 of the main building, was just recently improved by the addition of a small, black paper silhouette outline edstructed last semester to give students a view of the San Francisco skyline.

The silhouette is pasted all along the bottom of a huge circular ceiling which covers the audience. When the lights are switched off, a projector flashes astronomical pictures and forms of various bodies in our solar system.

Stewards, Caterers Feted At Dinner Here

Members of the Stewards and Catering Association meet here Monday, October 20, for a dinner, and their annual Fall meeting.

The dinner will be held in the main dining room at 6 p.m., and will be prepared and served by Hotel division students.

Lawrence Wong, hotel instructor, who was recently re-elected to the post of Education Chairman for the Stewards and Catering Association, is handling all the necessary details for the dinner.

Presiding over the meeting of the association will be a former City College student, Dave Massingham. Massingham is the new owner of The Pie Shop at the beach.

Widening Of Phelan Avenue Near Completion

By Dick Firth

After four and a half years of delay, counter-delays, and subsequent counter-delays, the Phelan Avenue widening project has become a reality.

The project enters its final stage as stop-lights are being erected at the corners of Ocean and Phelan Avenues, and water pipes are being placed below the pavement.

The widening of Phelan Avenue, which has been talked of for [illegible] years, began last spring with the removal of part of the hill leading to the main building.

Approximately four and a half years ago, in April of 1948 A. [illegible] Cloud, then City College President, enclosed a Guardsman editorial clipping along with a letter to Thomas A. Brooks, then City Administrator, asking for a survey to be taken on the narrow, hazardous Phelan Avenue.

Brooks sent out a city engineer to survey the possibility of the proposed widening, and the result showed that the removal of part of the embankment leading up to the main building would supply sufficient room for the widening.

The first plans called for a [illegible] dividing island in the middle of the avenue, but it was brought out [illegible] that the island would occupy too much space that was badly needed for diagonal parking in order to relieve the difficult parking situation on the rest of the campus.

Incidentally, diagonal parking lines will be painted in as soon as the workmen clear away from the parking area.

As this paper goes to press the stoplight on the corner of Ocean and Phelan Avenues was in operation, thus relieving the dangerous Ocean-Phelan corner hazard.

News To Nobody . . . By The Spectator

Faculty Members Don Makeup, Brave Lights, Face TV Camera

THREE faculty members seem to have braved the terrors of television to moderate, direct, or produce programs thereon.

The programs with political overtones comprise the video work of the three, Lloyd Luckmann, coordinator, division of Instruction, directs Gold Label Round Table. X Marks the Spot is coached by Mervin Slosberg, political science instructor, and What's Your Opinion was guest-moderated recently by political science instructor, John Selig.

Cry Author! . . .

John Eagle's novel, Windy City, has been accepted for publication by the Avon Publishers. News to Nobody except that Eagle's real name is George Benet, and his previous work was that of a student at the college, according to John French, English instructor here.

Latter-day Solomon . . .

Candidate for the most envied photographer at the college last week was Bob Hax.

In conjunction with Homecoming Week festivities, Hax was assigned to photograph, in one afternoon, all of the Queen candidates.

After making better than 20 portraits of the lovely ladies, Hax's only comment was, "They all looked like queens to me!"

Prize Instructor . . .

Sixth annual Municipal Art Festival in the Palace of Fine Arts was the scene for the judging of 3,000 art objects.

Winner in the ceramics division was Roy Walker, ceramics instructor at the college. His exhibit is now one of the $2,000 worth of works belonging to the city.

Rams Defeat L. A. 21-6 For First Win

RAMblings . .

By Joe Callas

DEFENSIVE football has come into its own since the beginning of the two platoon system, which was started shortly after World War II.

Coaches are now stressing defense as much if not more than offense, abiding by the famous saying that "a good defense is the best offense," and vice versa.

There have been games so far in this young football season, in both collegiate and professional circles alike, where the defense has actually outscored the offensive team, an example being the pre exhibition tilt between the San Francisco 49'ers and the Los Angeles Rams a month ago, where the 49'er defense picked off two Ram passes and ran them back for touchdowns. San Francisco's only TDs of the game.

Besides doing this, the defensive team held LA, which was the highest scoring team in the history of pro football, to a meager seven points scored in the last minute of play.

Thinking that passing is a sure fire form of advancement, coaches have also become aerial-minded. The only way that this offensive weapon can be stopped is with a good defensive backfield and a hard-charging line that can put pressure on a passer.

Most teams have defensive specialists, and it is not rare to find players who have not played a single minute of offense during the full season.

The University of Southern California has two players on their team who are punting and place kicking specialists. Desmond Koch, their punter, is used only for this purpose and has booted the opposing teams into a hole numerous times this season.

Punting inside the ten yard line gives the defensive team a great advantage since the opposing team is forced to stay on the ground with straight running plays.

Thus a punter can be called a defensive player although he adds value to both platoons.

With the stress being more and more on specialists, the days of the triple threat and the 60 minute men are gone.

'51 Ram Gridders Star For OSC

Last year's Ram championship football team has many of its star players on major four-year college grid teams this fall. Among these are Wally Jackson and Marvin Ussery of Oregon State College.

Jackson and Ussery are the right and left halfbacks respectively in the starting Beaver backfield. Both figured heavily in Oregon State's near upset over Michigan State, the number one grid team in the nation.

A week later, against Stanford at Palo Alto Jackson scored two touchdowns besides being the leading ground gainer for the afternoon for the Beavers even though they went down to defeat to the Indians, 41 to 28.

Another Ram of last year is Dave Tino, the all-conference quarterback who is currently on College of Pacific's grid team.

Four Faculty Members Officiate Pacific Coast Football Events

By Fred Fukuchi

As the opening whistle of a Fall football clash sounds, four men in striped shirts ran out onto the field—the officials.

Among the 60 of the Pacific Coast officials are four City College men, instructors William Fischer, Leland Eisan, Thomas Wilson and President Louis G. Conlan.

President Conlan is a former St. Mary's great of a few years back, and has acted as head judge at some of the big coast conference games so far during this season.

Eisan at present is President of the Northern California Collegiate Officials Association.

This marks Eisan's tenth year as a Pacific Coast football official. He has worked in such top flight games as the 1942 Rose Bowl in Durham, North Carolina. Eisan recalls his most memorable game as the 1950 Notre Dame-Southern California game, in which the underdog Trojans defeated the Irish.

Eisan stated that each official starts up the officiating ladder working high school grid contests. After a few years he may join the select Pacific Coast Officials Association being voted on to the nine Pacific Coast Conference coaches.

City College physical education instructor Fischer began his officiating in 1938 working the famous 1951 Rose Bowl. Fischer claims his most memorable clash was the 1950 Orange Bowl classic in which the underdog Santa Clara Broncos upset the powerful Kentucky Wildcats.

The fourth member of the college's officials, Wilson, is the current secretary of the San Francisco Schoolmans Officials Association. Wilson started his career as an official in 1942 along with Eisan.

Block SF Plans Semester Events

Under the sponsorship of Coach Bill Fischer, the Block SF organization is now preparing its annual series of events for the present 1952 athletic season.

As in previous semesters, the prime objective of the Block SF has been to instill sportsmanship in the minds of the athletes, who have won their respective letters in one or more of the major sports here at the college.

The requirements set down by the awards committee, state that in order to become a recipient of a Block SF, the participating athlete must have completed the definite requirements placed upon a major sport.

At the present time, the major sports are football, track, basketball, tennis, soccer, baseball, boxing, and golf.

Placed in the division forming minor sports are skiing, badminton and swimming. These sports are not governed by the same rules that govern major sports, and they present to outstanding athletes a circle SF.

Semi-annual activities of the society include, besides participation in the Mardi Gras, a Block SF dinner and the presentation of a dance.

Pat Fracisco Intercepts Two Cub Passes To Lead Defensive Unit In Rams' Greatest Effort Of Season

Striking with sudden swiftness in the first half of play, the City College Rams coasted by the Los Angeles City College Cubs 21-6 last Friday night before a scattered handful of spectators at Eagle Rock Stadium in Los Angeles.

The Rams played their finest game of the still young season as they out gained, out defended, and out fought their opponents.

After eight minutes of even play, the Rams capitalized on a break to score. A fine punt by Ram halfback Beenie Kelly put the Cubs on their own six yard line. San Francisco's Wait Rilliet recovered a fumble by Cub fullback Frank Brown on the eight.

J. F. speedster Bill Jones carried the ball to the four on an end sweep and fullback Ed Jularbal rammed over guard to the end zone to put the Rams in front to stay 6-0. Jim Bauman made good the first of three successive conversions to make the score stand 7-0.

The Rams threatened immediately after this score as a Cub pass hurried by left half Roy Espinoza was intercepted by Pat Fracisco on City's 42 yard line.

The Rams came back with a drive that paid off. They traveled 35 yards in eight plays with scooter Kelley going the final five yards around right end to put the Rams two TD's ahead. Bauman converted which made the score 14-0.

The Cubs took the kick off, made one first down, were stymied, and punted.

On the first play following the kick, Hiona passed from his own 46 to his favorite receiver, right end Bob Oliver. Oliver gathered the ball in on the L. A. 36 and raced to the goal to score standing up. Again Bauman converted.

Shortly after the start of third quarter the Cubs made their first serious threat of the game when Ernesto Rodrienes recovered a Hiona fumble on City's 17 yard line. Four plays could only gain the southern squad 9 yards so the threat fell dead.

Again the Cubs threatened at the close of the third canto when a high pass from center on kick formation gave the ball to the Cubs on the San Francisco 28. The threat quickly diminished when Al Placle intercepted an Esponoza pass.

Finally the Cubs made good on their third attempt for pay dirt well into the third quarter.

From the S. F. 20 Esponoza stepped back and tossed to halfback Les Hufford who was downed just short of the goal. Esponoza plunged over from a foot out to give the Cubs their lonely score. The conversion attempt failed and the score remained 21-6.

Perhaps the outstanding player on the field was Los Angeles' Roy Espinosa. Espinosa kept the Ram defense busy all night with his optional pass run plays.

No serious injuries occurred in the game and it appears that the Rams will be at full strength for the annual homecoming game with San Mateo this Friday. S. B.

San Mateo Out To Avenge Ram 1951 Victory

By Al Burgin

Homecoming week, with rallies, dances, Queen coronation, and college activities, draws to a close, and the final chapter will be written this Saturday afternoon when the Rams meet the Bulldogs from San Mateo.

Since 1946, the Rams and the Bulldogs have been battling for the "coveted" traditional trophy awarded the winner between the two colleges—The Tom-Tom Trophy.

This most unconventional tom-tom depicts the nicknames of the colleges. The head of Ram and the head of a Bulldog, on opposite ends, make up the unique structure of the trophy.

After the Rams' airplane ride south to meet Los Angeles City College last week, this will be a deserved rest a home game.

In last year's meeting of the teams, the bulldogs championship squad trounced the Bulldogs, 11 to 6, and walked away with the trophy. This year, Coach Herb Hudson's Bulldogs will be out for "revenge" of the licking registered last year.

Tickets for the fracas at Kezar will be free to students who are members of the Associated Students, and $1.00 for those not members. Kickoff time has been set for 2 p.m.

Stanford Defeats Ram Booters 1-0

The City College soccer team displayed a strong defense and little offense as they dropped their second straight match of the season to Stanford, 1 to 0, preparatory to meeting their cross town rivals the San Francisco State Gators on the home field this coming Saturday.

After 38 minutes of scoreless battling, the Indians finally broke the ice and fired in the game's deciding point. The City College boys almost tallied twice in the last four minutes, but missed on both opportunities.

In reviewing their second league match, Ram Coach Roy Diederichsen praised the work of center half Carlos Monge, and goal tender, Joe Hare. Diderichsen also pointed out that this year's club is composed predominantly of new cobers, yet it has been the best-ever at City College.

Coach Diederichsen stated his probable starting for the Gator game Saturday morning.

The lineup:

Joe Hare	Goal
Paul Dudum	Left Full
Ernie Smith	Right Full
Carlos Monge	Center Half
Jim Patiris	Right Half
Nick Melnik	Left Half
Issa Jadallaha	Left Wing
Larry Aghis	Inside Left
Ricardo Wassmer	Center Forward
Enrique Mello	Inside Right

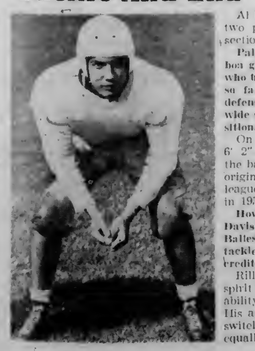
Intra Basketball In Third Week

Now in the third successive week of round-robin tournament play, the college intra-mural basketball league is currently providing a rapid rivalry among the many organized tenns.



The regular playing schedule places the beginning division in the Monday and Wednesday league, and the advanced division in the Tuesday and Thursday competition.

Participation has produced some some rather ingenious names, such as "Anythings," "Pick-ups," "Jesters," "Four Roses," "Snookers," and "Sausalito Sausage Co."

At the present time in the Monday and Wednesday league after the completion of three games, the "Anythings" and the Newman Club are reigning in the first division.

In the Tuesday and Thursday group, the "Four Roses" and WBBC are retaining first division laurels after completing three scheduled games.

Tackle And End . . . . Meet The Players

Photos by Blanco

Al Palacio and Walt Rillet are the two players that Meet the Players section is concerned with this week.

Palacio on the left, a former Balboa gridder is a 6' 1" 175-pound end, who has seen a good amount of action so far this season. Used mainly on defense, Palacio is hard to get by on wide sweeps around his right end position.

On the right, Big Walt Rillet is a 6' 2" 195-pound, tackle from across the bay in Oakland. Rillet came here originally as an end, in fact, an all-league end from Oakland High School in 1950.

However, with the injury to Joe Davis and the ineligibility of John Baltestrasse, Rillet shifted to the left tackle spot where he has performed creditably this year.

Rillet is a true example of college spirit and has the natural football ability to go along with this spirit. His ability has been proven with the switch from a great end into an equally adept tackle.

New Buildings Ready For Use By February 1954; Student Union Building Construction Started

Completion of the new library and class building is expected in February of 1954 with actual classes planned to begin the following September, it was announced yesterday by Louis G. Conlan, president of the college.

President Conlan also added that construction which is being done by the Cahill Construction Company, is far ahead of schedule and that the concrete for the first floor will be laid before the end of the week, weather permitting.

The building, which was originally scheduled to be completed in the spring of 1953, is expected to be completed just before the returning of the west campus to the City for the erection of a reservoir.

The new structure, which will be used for classrooms and laboratories, plus the library proposed for the third floor, is being erected to meet the increasing need for instructional space when the west campus is closed.

President Conlan said that the Board of Education has also approved the erection of a new $500,000 student union building, which will house the college's Hotel and Restaurant division.

Plans for this building have been passed and submitted to the City Architect, according to President Conlan, and the actual date for the construction to begin will be set soon.

The classroom-library building, a three story structure, is being erected to the east of the main science building, while the proposed student union building is scheduled for construction directly in back of it.

Construction on the shell of the building will be speeded up to avert necessary layoffs because of rain. If construction continues at the rapid pace it is now going, completion may be possible at an earlier date than the original one of February, 1954.

Campus Police Chief Picks New Assistant

J. R. Lewis, chief of the campus police, announced yesterday that Phil Gardner has been appointed from student ranks to the position of assistant chief of the campus police.

He is an experienced law enforcement officer and will he of great service in instructing his fellow officers, Lewis said.

Draft Exemption Test December 4

All students wishing to take the Selective Service College Qualification Tests Thursday, December 4 must have their applications postmarked not later than Saturday, November 1, E. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare announced today. Applications are to be secured from the student's local draft board. They are not available through the college, Marsh emphasized.

Marsh underlined the advisability of taking the December examination, as doing so will enable the student to have a test score in before the termination of his academic year. If he waits until the test of Wednesday, April 23, 1953 and should he be unable to keep that date, he will be unable to take the examination at a later date in the current series, Marsh said.

Former Student, Now Wave, Receives Award

Mariam Smith, former City College student, has been awarded the United States Navy American Spirit award for outstanding achievements in the service of the Waves.

Miss Smith, who attended the college in 1951, joined the Waves after her graduation from Placer College last June.

At the Bainbridge, Maryland naval training center, Miss Smith acted as platoon leader, drill master and acting chief petty officer.

She was given the award, which is presented to a few outstanding Waves every year, upon graduation from boot camp.

A journalism major in college, Miss Smith is now attending personnel school at the Navy's San Diego training center. She plans to go into the field of journalism that is in conjunction with the publicity department of the Waves.

Club Cavalcade: Midterm Slump

Organizations on and off campus are going into a semi-eclipse this week in the flow of social events and meetings partly in tribute to Homecoming Week, and, more reluctantly, partly to the impending disasters of midterm headaches.

Alpha Kappa Rho will have their first interrogation this Sunday, October 26 at the home of Stokely Wilson.

On October 11, Alpha Sigma Delta held a going-away party for past president Bob Smirle who is going into the Navy and also for Buzz Chernlovski. The Deltas also had their second affair last Saturday night.

Alpha Lambda Chi held a business meeting last Wednesday.

Larry Elizarde, vice-president of Alpha Phi Omega, has been moved up to the presidency in the absence of former President Gene Bumch who has left for flight training in the Air Force. The officers of this fraternity met with the Gamma Gamma chapter of Alpha Phi Omega of the University of California in a joint meeting during their Hell Week.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon had a business meeting on October 1, at which time Bob Mancuso was elected Athletic chairman, and Al Coppin was appointed as head of the Publicity committee.

Last Friday the Canterbury Club held its weekly meeting at which it announced plans to have a tea, picnic, and a dance during this semester.

The club has speakers at the joint meetings held twice a month with the San Francisco State College Canterbury Club. The speaker at the last meeting was the Reverend Vern Swartsfager who gave a talk on "Problems of Juvenile Delinquency."

Every first Friday of each month there is a joint corporate communion with the State College group at St. Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way. Anyone interested should attend the meetings in Room 132 on Fridays during college hour.

The Masonic Club held a business meeting on October 10, and plan to hold an election of officers this Friday, October 24. DeMolays and Job's Daughters and anyone else who is interested are urged to attend the meetings in Room 5A during college hour, according to Bill Clark and Bill Anderson, acting officers.

The conference at Russian River of the Collegiate Christian Fellowship proved to be highly successful with over a hundred conferees from all over the bay area, Denham, a missionary in China before the communists came, and his son were among the speakers. For recreation there was rowing, shuffle-board, volley ball, swimming, and the conference ended with a Sunday lunch.

The next meeting will be held on Friday, October 31 in Room 200 during college hour.

The French Club was busy with preparations for Club Day last Friday where old members will meet prospective members. Interested students may attend these meetings where French is the spoken language.

The first affair of Phi Beta Delta was held October 12, a get-together at the home of Ken Forester. The second affair will be this Saturday, October 25, 8 o'clock at Mel Watson's.

Zeta Chi held a business meeting last Wednesday at Margie Hick's house. A smorgasbord is being planned for Sunday, October 26 as the second affair.

For their second affair Theta Tau is planning a luau to be held on Thursday, October 30. The place is as yet undecided.

Deadline for all club news is now Wednesdays at 1 p.m. Information for publication in this column should be submitted to the Club News box in The Guardsman office, Building 4.

Scholarship Award Winners

Many Job Openings Now Available In San Francisco And Surrounding Area To Take Care Of Christmas Shoppers

Students interested in Christmas job opportunities should apply now, Joseph Amori, placement director announced this week.

Many different openings are available to the student. Among these are sales, stock, clerking, delivery, floriculture, wrapping, cashiering, and manual labor. Employers have already listed many jobs with the placement office and there are still many openings according to Amori.

AWS Selects Fashion Theme

Campus Casuals is the theme around which the Associated Women Students will center their forthcoming tea and fashion show, Thursday, November 20, honoring high school senior women, it was disclosed yesterday by AWS President, Odette Trouillet.

The 15 models that will be featured in the fashion show are being chosen by AWS committee members Barbara Scott, Meg Shick, Mary-Louise Carl, Mildred Pinkus, Marilee Schu, and Josephine Ammirati. Each campus sorority will be represented by a model, with the remaining number of models to be selected by the committee from various clubs and organizations, according to Miss Trouillet.

Campus fashions will be furnished by Alex de May of Lakeside Village.

Class Attendance Rules Announced

The majority of the students attend classes here regularly, Dean Edwin C. Browne declared yesterday. But he expects the students to attend all of their classes consistently, he said.

Absences are classified in three groups: emergency, absences can not exceed the number of times the class meets each week; officially excused, when a student must be absent to engage in a college activity; illness, absences because of illness may be excused by the student presenting satisfactory evidence to the Dean of Men or Women. Students under 21 years must bring a note from parent or legal guardian.

AS Card Discount Changes Listed

Two changes in the Associated Student card discount allowances were announced by AS card sales chairman, Jim Boulck.

Not listed on the card, Herb's Men's Shop is giving a ten per cent discount on most merchandise.

Listed as granting a 40 per cent price cut, Molkenbuhr's Bros. will grant a 15 to 30 per cent decrease on purchases.

"These discounts are only a few of the many benefits to be had with the purchase of an AS card," Boulck emphasized. "Sales have been good so far and we hope to reach our goal of 2,000 soon. Already 75 per cent of this total has been sold and we hope to finish selling our quota in the near future."

Cards may be purchased at the Ramporium or at the Student Bank, in the main building, Boulck added.

Hotel Students Will Get Lessons In Housekeeping

Today marks the opening of a new phase in the Hotel and Restaurant's Housekeeping Department. Students will begin receiving "first-hand" information on the various techniques of hotel housekeeping programs from distinguished local persons working in the various fields.

A series of 12 different "field trips" have been scheduled for the Housekeeping class, each devised to emphasize certain phases of housekeeping.

This program received the seal of approval of the Hotel Division advisory committee last week, Hugh Watson, division director, said.

Members of the Advisory Committee include George D. Smith, Hotel Mark Hopkins, Joseph N. Donahue, Hotel Constance, Pasadena, Ernest L. Drury, Fairmont Hotel, Samuel P. Fick, Industrial Education, Charles Horrworth, American Hotel Association, William Kilpatrick, Cooks and Pastry Cooks Union, Dan-E. London, Hotel St. Francis, P. Tremaan Lord, Hotel Californian, Henry T. Meschal, Harris, Kerr, Forster and Company, Milton Maxwell, Butchers Union, Ralph Moody, Golden Gate Restaurant Association, Earl E. Nearing, International Stewards' and Caterers Association, George Olsen, Fosters, John B. Quigley, Hotel Drake-Wiltshire, Edmund A. Rieder, Palace Hotel, Anthony Anselmo, Culinary Workers, Malcolm Stewart, California Restaurant Association, George T. Thompson, Resort Hotels, John Toulze, Cooks' Association, Harry Troupe, California Northern Hotel Association, Karl Weber, Hotels Whitcomb and Washington.

Collegiate Press Rates Guardsman First Class

Associated Collegiate Press awarded a first class honor rating to The Guardsman for the spring 1952 semester volume in the semi-annual critical service of nation-wide college newspaper members.

Newspapers are graded upon several divisions and subdivisions thus giving staff members a detailed description of the shortcomings found in their publications by professional newspaper people and experts in the field of college journalism.

The Association grades on the following points: News value and source coverage, balance, vitality, creativeness and treatment, news writing and editing, content, organization, style and leads, features, copyreading and proofreading, headlines, headline schedule typography, front page makeup, inside news page makeup, printing, editorials, columns, sports writing, and display.

Newspapers are graded on the basis of frequency of publication, type of college, and whether or not the paper is published by letter-press or is mimeographed.

Honor ratings include All American, First Class, Second Class, Third Class, and Fourth Class.

Hole In Ground Adds New Word To American Vocabulary—Foxhole Pay

By Dick Wiltshire

One of the more important contributions to American vocabulary to come out of World War II was the term describing a pregious bit of empty air that saved more lives than penicillin.

And once again today, the "foxhole" is in the spotlight as a result of the Korean conflict, and has taken on an almost quasi-legal significance.

The Combat Duty Pay Act of 1952 has set up machinery for retroactive as well as current payments of $45.00 monthly to those who serve or have served in actual combat in Korea, and, of course, the question was immediately raised—what is "actual combat?"

Under the definitions in the new law a person is not necessarily eligible for combat pay simply by dint of being in Korea or adjacent waters at some time since the start of hostilities. In the plain language of the Korean war veteran, "you have to get shot at. You have to get shot at for six consecutive days, either all in one month, or overlaping into another month, in which case you receive payment for the month wherein falls the majority of those half-dozen days."

Thus, has arisen the expression "fox-hole pay." The Navy and Air Force have yet to operate out of liquid or atmospheric pouches, but as the preponderance of the men affected are ground forces, the phrase has stuck.

Only one thing remains to be explained—the "fox" part of the hole. Old slinky-tail is a pretty smart critter. It is frankly doubtful if he'd take the time to dig in when the shooting starts. The GI's themselves have found the opportunity rarely presents itself any more.

U. S. A. Political Debate Set For Next Monday

Party Speakers, Student Panel On Forum Program

With presidential elections set for Tuesday, November 4, the United Students Association is sponsoring a bi-partisan debate and general forum here at 12 noon Monday in Building 1, with speakers from the two major parties, according to Charles Osborne, the association's acting chairman.

Guest speakers from the Central Committee Bureau of the Democratic and Republican parties are scheduled to participate in the forum, Osborne said.

Names of the speakers were not available at press time.

Student speakers who will take opposing sides of the current political issues are, for the Democratic Party, Osborne, John McDonald, and John McCartney; for the Republican Party, Gene Beaudet, Jim Boulck, and Wray Jacobs.

All social science classes have been invited to go as groups to the auditorium to hear and partake in the forum and question-and-answer period. Students who don't have classes during this hour and who are interested in the current political campaign are invited to attend the meeting, Mervin Slosberg, USA faculty sponsor, said.

As moderator for questions from the floor during the open discussion will be Lloyd D. Luckmann, co-ordinator of instruction, with Slosberg acting as chairman.

The debate-forum is the first activity of a new campus organization, USA which holds as its main purpose that of building student interest in the political and social aspects of college life, Osborne declared.

Batmale Reveals Campus Clean-up Campaign Tactics

Three decisive steps were taken last week to solve the campus clean-up campaign, it was learned today from Louis Batmale, Associated Student controller.

Faculty action went to posting of "clean-up" posters designed to appeal to student pride in the appearance of the campus. Posters were designed and executed by students in the graphic arts department and will be distributed throughout the college, Batmale said.

The public address system in the main building is scheduled for use by members of the Rally Committee, Stokely Wilson, Rally commissioner said.

Enlisting the aid of Club Activities Board college hour meetings this Friday, Associated Student Vice-President Sally Galvin has tentative plans in preparation for a "portable pep rally" to present a skit, songs, and student speakers to students at the various congregating points on campus.

Batmale pointed out that the "portable rally" is not replacing the club hour as scheduled for the October 31 college hour.

Participation by student leaders, clubs, and service organizations has been sought about the development of these solutions to an untidy campus problem, Batmale declared.

An added incentive for group action is the service trophy which is awarded at the end of the semester to the service organization which has done most in the interest of the college. Service includes not only "clean-up" operations, but also library duty and similar help to the college, Batmale added.

Hayloft Hop Saturday Climax To Fraternity Hell Week Here

Using the theme Hayloft Hop, the Inter-Fraternity Council will present its annual dance this Saturday, November 1, in the west campus auditorium as a climax to fraternity hell week. Lou Sheppard, IFC chairman, announced yesterday.

The dance will feature the music of Al Trobet's orchestra, Sheppard said. Trober has appeared in the Tonga Room on various occasions.

"Western" dress will be the feature of the dance, he added, with levis, plaid shirts, pretails, expected in the way of costume, and the campus auditorium turned into a Grand Old Opery-house.

The affair brings to a climax men's hell week, which is the semi-annual initiation time for campus fraternities, Sheppard declared.

Admission to the dance, he said, will be $1.50 per couple, with or without Associated Student card.

The dance committee includes Yash Jasinski, chairman, Gene Kerbow, Joe Seidel, Ernie Smith, Mal Watson, Carlton Diaz, Al Zanardi, and Phil Malnick.

Student activities sponsor Robin Dean said, "This dance will climax hell week for the fraternity pledges and will be something unusual for all attending. Come in Western dress and have a good time."

Sheppard concluded by saying that this dance promises to be one of the highlights of the college season.

Pre-Registration For Next Spring To Start Soon

Pre-registration for Spring semester, 1953, starts Wednesday, November 12 Dr. E. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, announced today.

Counselors will begin interviewing students on that date, Dr. Marsh continued, in order to help plan their programs, for the coming semester. Students are requested to make appointments for interviews at the Counselling Office, Building 3, west campus, at their earliest opportunity.

Clarity in registering Dr. Marsh added, is established by the preregistration number stamped on the student's program.

Students were also asked by the counselors to pre-register early to avert the rush which always takes place during registration week.

Marine Band Highlights Blood Drive Rally In Auditorium At 10 Today; Classes Dismissed

The 1952 campus Blood Drive culminates today with a one-hour program, the Blood Drive rally, presented by the Globe and Anchor Society. The program will be held in the auditorium at 10 o'clock.

Regularly scheduled classes for 10 o'clock hour have been cancelled to make the Blood Drive rally possible, Don Douglas, president of the Globe and Anchor Society, announced, and the Marine Corps Band from Headquarters Command, Pacific Fleet, will provide the music for the rally.

Douglas also said that this rally has been planned to stress the need for white blood donations by the college's students.

"The American Red Cross and its mobile Blood Unit will be on campus for donations," Douglas said, and "refreshments will be served to those who donate."

Students who are planning to donate, and are under 21 years of age, will need written permission from their parents or guardians stating that they can donate.

The American Red Cross will have a physician on hand the donating day, and he will check each student prior to donating.

Local downtown theaters have joined the campaign for more blood for the troops in Korea, by offering free movie tickets to blood donors.

"Such movie tickets will be available to students donating," according to Douglas. He also said that these tickets are not offered merely to increase the participation in this drive, but show that the movie houses have a genuine interest in aiding the drive.

Marine veterans of the Korean conflict and of World War II, make up the Globe and Anchor Society here at the college and they spoke last week of the urgent need for this "whole blood" on the battlefronts.

One of the veterans, who preferred to remain anonymous, said,

"I have seen many of my buddies' lives saved because of this blood . . . some have to have as many as 10 transfusions before they can reach the behind-the-line hospitals, and it is the blood that people back here have donated that makes all of this possible.

"Since names are not on each bottle of the plasma, they couldn't thank the people who donated, but many have written letters to the Red Cross Collection Centers, and expressed their sincere thanks for the blood received on the frontlines."

In last year's campaign for blood collections here, student response was in the neighborhood of 150. Douglas expressed his hopes that this years drive will be the best ever, and concluded by stating the questions "Do you care enough — to give enough?"

Guardsman Staff Members Attend Press Conference

Five Guardsman staff members represented the college at the second annual Northern California Junior College Journalism Conference held at Stanford University, last Saturday, October 25.

Purpose of the conference, which was attended by representatives of 19 Northern California Junior Colleges, was to discuss and compare the college newspapers as a group and individually.

On the agenda for the one day conference was a tour of the Stanford journalism department, conference meetings of the students themselves to discuss the problems and aims of college newspapers and a speech by Dr. Chilton Bush, director of the Institute of Journalistic Studies, Stanford University.

Following the conference, the representatives attended the Stanford, Washington football game as guests of the two universities.

Members of The Guardsman staff who attended the meeting were Sam Blythe, Edwina Killoren, Garry Wormser, Louanne Morford, and Kenneth Molino.

Draft Deferment Applications Due

Final warning of the November 1 deadline for filing applications for the December 4 Selective Service College Qualification Tests was issued by Dr. E. Grant Marsh, co-ordinator of student welfare, today.

Applications, available through the individual's local draft board, must be postmarked later than Saturday midnight, Dr. Marsh continued, or the applicant will forfeit his chance to take the December 4 battery.

Missing the December opportunity, Dr. Marsh stressed, means that the student has but one more chance to take the current series. On April 23 of next year.

Childhood Friends Meet Again At Mark Hopkins Hotel, Discuss Old Times

City College Exchange Student, Al Yipmantin, Talks To Yma Sumac

By Ken Molino

Some years ago the government of Peru inaugurated a plan whereby its

YMA SUMAC—The Voice of the Xtaboy.

...ain citizens were encouraged to travel to the United States to acquire technical training. One of the many who came to the college as a direct result of this program was Amelia DAD Yipmantin.

He arrived here in 1947 from Lima and began the study of architecture. After having taken time out for a short visit home, he graduated with an Associate in Arts Degree in 1951.

Yipmantin's father has for 25 years owned Lima's largest record studio, so it followed that after graduation in 1951 Yipmantin became established in phonographic lore.

According to the instructors, Yipmantin is not only a capable photographer but a possessor of surprising energy and ambition. Carrying more than the normal number of units each semester and achieving better than average grades, he has, in addition, held six many as three outside positions simultaneously.

At all of the same time Yipmantin has found time for studies here one of his neighbors and childhood playmates also left at Lima—Yma Sumac.

It was discovered that this young lady's voice was capable of soaring to incredible heights and descending to unbelievable depths in an amazing four octave range.

This novel ability, coupled with her knowledge of Peruvian Indian Music and an imaginative press agent, has in a few short years, brought her wide acclaim.

Yipmantin's desire to study here led to his employment at the Mark Hopkins. Miss Sumac's voice will be brought her to the Mark's, the end of her performances were spellbinding after several years, and across some 5,000 miles these two met once again.

Like all old friends they took the opportunity to renew old acquaintance and to reminisce.

"We talked about my father's portrait studio where Yma had her baby pictures taken," said Yipmantin. ". . . and all our mutual friends whom we haven't seen in several years."

In his capacity as photographer at the hotel, Yipmantin made a series of Lethargic Interest In Voting Affects U. S. And The College

IN A few short days, voters across the land will go to the polls to pass on local and state measures, elect local and state officials, and elect a President of the United States. It is not our place, nor our desire, to devote this space to merits of the voters, the political parties, or the presidential candidates themselves.

Rather, it is The Guardsman's purpose to speak of the value of an election in the first place and of the disregard that the public has for an election—any election—be it on a national, state, local, or college level.

United States history books tell their readers that one underlying reason for the American Revolution was the need to express displeasure against the British king in particular and monarchs in general. We are further told that the great men of the Revolutionary era labored long and hard to assure the newly born nation a Republican form of government. These assurances, we all know, are guaranteed us in the Constitution of the United States.

For the citizens of this far away time, long subject to domination by a "mother country" which bled her colonial inhabitants of their resources and gave them no voice in colonial government, this Republican form of government was a wondrous thing. They reacted by going to the polls and voting. They voted in high percentages because they realized their privilege. They had only to look across the sea to Europe, where virtually every nation was toiling under an absolute form of government, to know their fortune.

NOW American voters are going to the polls to vote for the 41st time in a national election. Registration figures indicate that only 52 per cent of those eligible to vote will take advantage of their opportunity.

Why the low percentage? What apathy grips 48 per cent of the eligible voters in the country that they take no interest, even in these critical times, in who or what leads us?

The poll takers say that two of the most prevalent reasons given by a lethargic citizen for not voting are these: "There's really no difference between any of the major parties," and "It's not going to make any difference to me which of the parties gets into office. I'm going to be the same and live under the same conditions regardless."

Where does the fault lie with these tragic statements?

The fault lies partly with the non-interested public, who have forgotten their great privilege and the history behind it, and partly with the political parties themselves, who have convinced only a scant half of the voting public that their vote will "count."

IT IS, of course, a long jump from elections on a national scale to elections on the college level. Unfortunately however, the problem of lethargic interest in elections is found at this level also.

Very much less than 52 per cent of the Associated Students took the trouble to vote in the last general student elections held here last semester.

Of course, there were problems encountered here that the political parties do not face. The great parties of the nation had little difficulty finding a candidate who would run for office. Sadly enough this was not the case here last semester. Only one office open for election was contested.

If, as student leaders generally hope, all offices open for election here will be contested, the voter has a definite right to ask, "What will my vote for a certain candidate mean to me?" It in turn is the duty of each and every prospective office holder to answer that question and answer it well.

• Diamond Ring Lost

Editor, The Guardsman:

"In every life some rain must fall," but I have had a flood which could rival Noah's experience. My diamond ring, a treasured keepsake in a gold setting, has been lost since October 15, in the girls' washroom, on the third floor of the main building.

I have appealed to the finder through notices, and I am offering a liberal reward with no questions asked. I will take calls in the evening at EXbrook 2-2668.

Gratefully,
Betty Wong

• Queen Contest Praised

Editor, The Guardsman:

In your last issue you ran a story on the Homecoming Queen beauty contest. This is good! I think it is healthy, both spiritually and physically, and I think it gives girls a sportsman-like feeling toward competition. I am quite sure that the entire student body can hardly await the outcome of this worthwhile fight of the "Venuses."

Sincerely,
Nicholas Lothar

• Guardsman Awards

Editor, The Guardsman:

After reading the article concerning the Associated Collegiate Press last week, I am curious to know if this is the first such award The Guardsman has ever received. If it is not I am sure that others would be just as interested as I in finding out how The Guardsman has been rated in the past as well as its current standing.

A Curious Student

Editor's Note: In 22 semesters of membership in the Associated Collegiate Press, The Guardsman has received a rating of "All-American," 19 times and a rating of First Class three times. The All-American Award is the highest given by the A. C. P.

Ghosts, Ghouls Will Trick Or Treat Friday

BOO! "I'm scared of Goblins, Ghosts, and Ghouls, and the siren sound of unearthly moans disturbs my innards and stiffens my bones.

"To heck with Hallowe'en pranks and fun, I'm staying home with my Math 51."

If every student had this attitude, there probably wouldn't be a Hallowe'en on Friday, October 31, and young men who felt like dressing up as Napoleon would be carted away in the "booby wagon" instead of being showered with hand-outs when they scream "trick or treat."

The Spectator

U. S. A. Springs From Interest In Political, Social Activity

A NEW campus organization has arisen from independent student interest in the political and social activities of the college.

This party, the United Students Association, is presenting as a prelude to the November presidential elections, a bi-partisan forum this Monday afternoon, in which speakers from the Democratic and Republican parties will discuss campaign issues and answer student questions.

Following a succession of independent parties which have competed with fraternity parties in college elections, the USA's objective, according to acting chairman Charles Osborne, "is to establish a second party to have fair and equitable elections between opposing candidates," and "to give every independent student a chance to express his opinions."

Student apathy or lack of interest saw no opposition to party organization in 1947, when the fraternity group was organized. The next semester an independent group, the Student League, came on campus. The Fall semester of 1948 saw the SL capture four posts including those of Associated Student Vice President, and Associated Men Student President.

In Spring, 1949, student leaguer Pete Isola and party captured the Associated Student President office, winning a majority vote over both the Inter-Fraternity and Non-Partisan parties besides filling nine council seats.

Three parties, the IF, Independent, and SL placed in the Fall, 1949 semester; the fraternities capitulating with nine posts.

The following semester the Affiliated Students were a weak opposition party to the strong fraternity block, and in the Fall of that year, the fraternities won ten of the 14 seats over an AS party.

Spring 1951 saw a strong SL group winning 14 offices, with a reversal following in Fall 1951.

Reaching the lowest ebb of interest were the student elections of Spring, 1952, where, unchallenged, the fraternity party filled all posts.

After this election and during the summer, eight students of the college grouped together to lay the foundation for the new independent party, USA.

Concerning themselves with promoting student participation in social, cultural, athletic, political and scholastic activities, the charter members, Jim Bonlek, Mary Louise Carl, Bill Conlli, Don Douglas, John McGarney, Charles Osborne, Andrea Schneider, and Charles White, formed the new organization.—L. Photo Shooting Night In Round Robin

As many as 25 photographers attend the college's evening portrait class in photography each Thursday evening, necessitating a "round-robin" technique on shooting nights, where by the students alternate as photographer, model, light handler, "or just plain kibitzer."

Instructor Emmett Smith, who with Lillian Desmond, handles the college's audio-visual aids department, commented on the fact that the students in portraiture come from a variety of fields, from professional photographers to bus drivers.

"I've never seen such a collection of photographic equipment in my life. I think it must represent 90 per cent of all the different cameras on the market," Smith said.

Shots At RAMdom: Students Skid On Slimy Sidewalks—Need Ski Lift

By Lorianne Morford

IN THE good old days, B. O. (before obstacles), is was possible for any student to walk, perhaps not leisurely but at least at a reasonable gait, from the gymnasium to the west campus in ten minutes.

Gone perhaps forever are the days when a student could make the journey in nine minutes flat. In this modern day of advance and improvement, it has become necessary to dodge heavy trucks, workmen, and stacks of two-by-fours to safely navigate between these two remote parts of the campus.

IS IT SAFE?

The problem is really acute to some persons who are afraid that the brisk walks up the rather steep hills involved may result in athlete's heart or cause some other dire malady. The bulk of the college students faced with this problem are worried about something far more imminent, the insignificant matter of late arrivals to class.

The exact number of late arrivals which constitutes one unexcused absence rests on the discretion of the instructor, but the general concensus is that an average student upon average terms with his instructor should see that the number of late arrivals charged to him is very, very few.

CLOAK OF GLOOM

When the fog comes pouring in from the ocean and the college is wrapped in a cloak of moist gloom, the trip from one extreme of the campus to the other can be compared to swimming the English Channel or wading through a sea of mud, just ankle deep. This gives the added handicap of slick sidewalks.

Leather soles are extremely helpful when trying to rush down the perpendicular grade leading to the gymnasiums when the cement is coated with a film of slippery mire.

It may appear to be a funny situation to a bystander when some hurried student starts sliding at a fabulous speed and attempts to regain his balance and keep from dropping text books at the same time, but the experienced person will tell you it is one of the most terrifying positions imaginable.

MINIATURE EVEREST

A mountain climber could find all the hazards of climbing some famous mountain side simulated here at City College, on a smaller scale to be sure, but just as fascinating and challenging none the less. And we even have an added gimmick here—a time limit!

In ten minutes the mountain climber can prove his worth on the up grade, the straight away, and the down grade, he can show his skill at dodging traffic, both normal and that imported for the construction of the new library building, and his talent at getting through crowds completely.

INVALUABLE EXPERIENCE

Still, with all this invaluable and unique experience available there are those who complain about the deplorable and inconvenient state of our campus.

Everyone is sure to agree that the construction of the new buildings is causing some inconvenience, but the end result, the moving from the west campus, is well worth the temporary upset. In the meantime, maybe some one could push for the installation of a ski lift.

Rams Meet East L. A. Huskies In Revenge Tilt At Kezar Friday Night

East Los Angeles City College invades Kezar Stadium this Friday night in an effort to continue their three year supremacy over the Ram football team. The southerners, however, have the problem of inexperienced men, as has the Ram organization.

In last year's game, ELACC gave the Big Seven Conference champions their only loss of the 1951 season, 34 to 7. Thus ELA will assume the favorite role for this contest, since this year's Ram eleven has not followed in the footsteps of last year's champions, and also because the Huskies, although inexperienced as are the Rams, have looked tremendous in their earlier outings this season.

City College's offense has finally begun to jell led by the running of Bill Jones, Bernie Kelly, and Fil Jularbal.

This, coupled with the passing improvement of QB Sammy Hiona and Bob Oliver's receiving, gave the Rams their first season win over Los Angeles City College by a 21 to 6 score.

The running attack has been led by Jones, jet propelled halfback from Polytechnic. He has been the rushing leader so far in the season, while his running mate, halfback Kelly, has been the scoring leader.

Despite his lack of weight, Jularbal, the fullback, has turned into a terrific breakaway threat, and the Huskies will have their eyes on him.

On the ELA side of the ledger, Coach Clyde Johnson brings into San Francisco a formidable running attack paced by halfbacks Gil Pedrozza all-city half from Cathedral High in LA, and Jerry Taylor hard running half from Bell High. Taylor was the Huskies' running leader last season.

Vic Cumarusti, the QB, is another of the few veterans. He is rated as a very capable field general.

The lines can be rated even, the Rams' line being led by tackles Ed Hayes and Walt Rilliet, while Frank Buccola and Willard Huzel form the nucleus of the Husky forward wall.

In four games that have been played between the two since the rivalry started in 1948, ELA has won three out of the last four, the Rams only triumph being a 48 to 6 massacre of the Huskies in 1948. Since then, the southerners have captured the last three by large scores.

Friday night's tussle will be a duel of two sharp running attacks, and a pair of fairly good defensive units. Since the Rams already own one victory over Los Angeles competition, the Huskies will be out to even the score between the two large cities.

Alex Schwartz, Ex-College Star, Tutors Ram Ends

In his first year as coach at City College is six-foot, three-inch, Alex Schwarz. "Schwarz, who is tutoring the ends for the local gridders this fall, bungs with him a great record as a collegiate player and later as a coach.

Schwarz graduated from Mission High in 1933, where he was a highly regarded end.

Schwarz attended the University of San Francisco, where he won honors as a first string All Coast end and an All American honorable mention in 1938. He also performed in the East-West Shrine game in January of 1939.

During his playing days at U. S. F. some of Schwarz' teammates were Jim Barber, Russ Letlow and Larry Siemmetting all of whom later starred in the professional ranks. He also played along side of present Ram line coach Roy Burkhead.

Following his graduation from USF in 1938, he did graduate work at Stanford for two years.

Embarking on his coaching career, Schwarz started at St. Ignatius High in 1940 as football and basketball head man. His 1943 hoopsters won the AAA crown.

In 1945, Schwarz transferred to his old alma mater, Mission, to take charge of the basketball and football outfits.

The Mission basketballers won the AAA title in 1946, and the Bear football team became a potent outfit under Schwarz. The 1948, 50, and 51 teams went to the finals of city league, but were turned back by Poly each year.

Commenting on the 1952 City College team Schwarz thought that the Rams lost too many men by graduation to defend the Big Seven Conference title.

Schwarz is also a staunch backer of two-year college football, contending that these colleges give the men many more opportunities to play than the larger, four-year institutions.

Husky Stalwarts

Pictured above are East Los Angeles City College's two halfbacks Gil Pedrozza (above) and Jerry Taylor (below). These two will lead the Huskies into Kezar Stadium Friday night for a non-league contest which will begin at 8 p.m.

Pedrozza was an all-city performer for Cathedral High School before he came to ELA. He is a 5' 8" 164-pound scatback whose ball carrying ability has been proved in earlier games this season against colleges in the LA area.

Taylor, Pedrozza's running mate at right half is a 6' 190-pound veteran of last year's great Husky eleven. An all-around performer, Taylor kicks conversion punts and also kicks off.

Last year's Husky eleven had a 6 won 4 lost record, its running star was Taylor, who will undoubtedly be trying for all-Southern California honors this season.

Meet The Players . . . Halfbacks

In the Meet-the-Players section this week, we will meet the two halfbacks, Bill Jones (left) and Bernie Kelly (right).

Bill (Jet) Jones is a 5' 10" 155-pounder from Polytechnic High School, where he made all-city halfback on Poly's championship club last year.

Kelly is a 5' 11" 185-pounder from Sacred Heart High School. Kelly was a three sport performer at Sacred Heart. He was also a member of last year's Ram championship eleven.—Photos by Blanco.

Casabans Begin Practice Friday

With the hopes of repeating last year's championship team, Basketball Coach Ralph Hillman yesterday scheduled Friday, October 31, as the opening day of practice here.

Hillman urged all former high school players and others with previous cage experience to sign up immediately in the men's gymnasium. All candidates will be given every chance to prove their ability, he said.

Returning lettermen who will vie for starting berths are Chuck Payne, Ken Hansen, Art Back, Bob Bourdanzi, and Warren Hagberg.

Ike Walker, counted on heavily for this year, has been forced to drop out of college. With Walker gone, Hillman will be searching for a center who can hold his own in college competition.

This year's cage team will be comparatively small as most basketball teams go. The loss of All-Conference casabans Dick Greenberg, Mario Lombardi, and Fred Nieman have punched even larger holes in the Ram's 1952 picture.

Hillman hopes to find cage gems from among former prep stars Tony Lazzeri of Lincoln, Bill Gregg and Jerry Stuck of Balboa, and Stan Blanchet and Jim Kaji of Poly. Blanchet and Kaji were members of the starting five on last year's second place Poly team.

Lesser known cagers can be hoped to emerge during practice sessions to brighten the picture.

Rams Defense, Offense Combine To Triumph In 'Tom Tom' Tilt 33-18

By Fred Fulcield

Paced by a brilliant defense and a consistent offense, the City College Rams racked up their second straight victory of the season 32 to 12 over an outclassed San Mateo Junior College eleven last Saturday at Kezar.

The hard charging Ram forward wall was just too much for the Bulldogs as the brilliant City College defenders stopped San Mateo plays before they were able to materialize.

While the CCSF defense kept the San Mateo attack in check, the Ram offense ran true put on three sustained drives for scores.

The two teams exchanged punts during the scoreless first quarter with neither team making any serious threats.

Early in the second stanzi, the Rams put on a drive that carried them 74 yards in twelve plays to open the afternoon scoring. Bill Jones culminated the drive cracking over from the one. Jim Bauman converted.

The Bulldogs retaliated quickly with a 60 yard offensive of their own with left half Walt Gomez traveling the last thirteen yards. The try for point was missed and the Peninsula eleven trailed 7 to 6.

City College rammed over for their second T. D. just 15 seconds before the half. Recovering a San Mateo fumble on their own 22, the Rams powered their way back to the Bulldog 27 from where quarterback Sam Hiona flipped a six point pass to Bob Oliver, who ran over from the twelve to stretch the lead to 13 to 6.

San Francisco's sparkling defensive platoon tallied the third CCSF touchdown only a minute and 50 seconds in the third period when right end Dan Brosnam intercepted Bulldog quarterback Lou Greenin's flat pass and trotted 15 yards to paydirt. Bauman converted and S. F. led 20-6.

The most beautiful San Francisco touchdown of the afternoon was a long pass play from Hiona to Van Parish late in the third quarter which covered 62 yards for the longest gain of the game.

San Francisco's lead shot up to 32-6 in the final quarter when ace safety man Pat Fraciseo picked off a pass on the San Mateo 25 and raced unmolested into the end zone.

The Bulldogs from San Mateo got their second score of the game after recovering a CCSF fumble deep in Ram territory. Fullback Wally Perry carried it over from the six.

The Rams, who now possess a two and two record for the season without a doubt played their finest game of the season.

The defense was looking sharp with such stalwarts as George Ransom, Pete Hontalas, Norm and Ray DeNardo and Coleman Moss knifing in to stop opposing back.

Statistically speaking City College dominated the figures. The Rams picked up 209 yards rushing to 35 for San Mateo; passing 114 to 72; first downs 10 to eight.

City College's big guns on offense were Bernie Kelly and Bill Jones, who accounted for 91 and 61 yards respectively. Ram field general Sam Hiona enjoyed a good day passing. He connected on six of eight tosses for 111 yards including two touchdowns.

Evidence of San Francisco's defensive power was shown by 78 yards lost rushing by the Bulldog's backs who were held to a miserable 0.8 average.

With this fine victory under their belts, the Rams face mighty East Los Angeles City College under the lights Friday at Kezar.

Four Roses And 'WBBC' Lead In Intra Cage Play

As the fourth consecutive week of intra-mural basketball has been concluded, tension is now beginning to mount in both leagues as the race for the college championship is on.

The team standings as of October 2 show that the Monday and Wednesday league as well as the Tuesday and Thursday league, have played four round-robin scheduled games.

Reigning in the first division in the intermediate group, or the Monday, Wednesday league, the "Anythings" rule the section boasting a 3 win and 1 loss record in the seven team league.

Setting a fast pace in the ten team advanced, or Tuesday and Thursday group, the "Four Roses" and the WBBC" head the opposition by casting out a total of 4 wins and no losses to date.

Council Considers Renovating Main Gate Guard House

A recommendation that Gamma Phi Ypsilon fraternity reactivate the little guard-house at the main gate was placed before the Student Council by Lou Sheppard, Inter-Fraternity Council chairman, at the regular Student Council meeting held last week.

Gamma Phi Ypsilon plans to use the little house to transmit information of student activities over the public address system, which is expected to be installed providing the council passes the recommendation.

Nyle Heise, finance committee chairman asked for volunteers to help clean and get rid of the white paint which now protrude from the former center of campus newspaper distribution.

He also mentioned the fact that posters can be posted on the building, which will add to publicity of events. This was done from 1937 to 1941 when the house was the "grand central station" of the campus.

Meetings in Modesto last Thursday, student body officers members met in the Northern California Junior College Conference.

Those attending were Deans Louis Barnes and Robin Dunn, Stan Hayes, Joe Hanan, Jodie Ross, Irene Lou Sheppard, Jim Bozeck, Stokely Wilson, Norm Heise, Bert Dixel, Gale Wright, Odette Trouillet and Sally Galvin.

A Cappella Choir Lists Activities

A full schedule of social activity is set for the A Cappella Choir according to Christine Politis, choir manager.

The choir and soloists will appear at the Ladies' Guild of St Francis Church, Ocean and San Fernando Way, Tuesday December 5, with the traditional Christmas Concert to be given early in December.

A guest performance with Ludwig Altmann, Municipal organist, is to be held at the Palace of the Legion of Honor on Sunday, January 18.

Following a special choir rehearsal in the auditorium, Building 1, tonight, an initiation ceremony for new choir members will be held with a dance following immediately. Refreshments are to be furnished by students in the Hotel and Restaurant Management Division.

At a meeting of choir officers last week, it was decided that new satin robes would be purchased by the choir to add to the red choir gowns.

College Enrollment Figure Now 5,594

Complete college enrollment figures, now in for the first month of the fall semester, show a total of 5,594 students, according to Mary Grace Learnard, registrar.

Men students comprise the majority of the above figure with a total of 3,345 women students number 2,249.

Breakdowns on the number of students from the city's various high schools and the number of students registered in each major will be available shortly, Miss Learnard added.

Sight Unseen In Debut Here Tomorrow

SIGHT UNSEEN, the prize winning comedy thriller, is scheduled to start its three-day run here on Thursday, October 30, in the college's Little Theater. Among those featured in the cast are (above) Dawn Gallagher as Lady Hortense and Nobel Kissinger as General Sir Thomas Elliot. Tickets are now on sale at the student bank in the main building or the student store.—Photo by Blanco.

Three Day Run Scheduled For First Drama Production Of Fall Season

By Dorothy Fallon

The first play of the season, Sight Unseen, will be presented by the drama students beginning tomorrow night through Saturday, November 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the college Little Theater, Room 28, Michael Griffin, director, said last week.

All seats are reserved, he added, and tickets may be obtained at the student bank, Room 185, in the main building, or at the student store, Building 12 on the west campus. Admission is 50 cents with Associated Student card, or $1 without.

Sight Unseen is particularly appropriate for a Hallowe'en evening's entertainment, as it deals with the metaphysical, Griffen declared.

"Not only are there thrills and chills but laughs in abundance, as the play abounds in amusing situations and will satisfy the desire for hobgoblins and provide a pleasant and relaxing evening as well," he said.

Members of the cast are Bill Bixby as Harry Malone, Mary Allen as Lady Judith Elliot, Alba James as Mrs. Malone, Dawn Gallagher as Lady Hortense, Jerry O'Connor as Archibald Andrews, Nobel Kissinger as General Sir Thomas Elliot, Joyce Cody as Etta, Colleen Lewis as Miss Potter, and Dennis Olsen as Mark.

Lighting is by Pete Wistek, staging by Olsen, and Bill Bullis, Student producers are Miss Cody and O'Connor.

This play won the 1949 Etheredge award of the Stanford Dramatists Alliance. Sir George Etheredge, seventeenth century dramatist, was the creator of the comedy of intrigue.

Concert Ushering Resumes November 13

Next in the ushering opportunities at the War Memorial Opera House will be for the Symphony series starting on Thursday, November 13 and continuing for 18 weeks.

Students desiring to usher in exchange for free admission to symphony performances must obtain admittance passes one week in advance of the scheduled program at which they wish to usher from Margaret Dougherty, dean of women, in Building 2, west campus.

Passes will be available beginning next week to interested students. Both men and women may apply, Dean Dougherty said.

Dachsund Puppy Lost On College Campus

A four-month-old Dachshund puppy was reported lost this week to Donald Moser, Hurley Village resident.

Adolf, the puppy, strayed from his home at 314 Marston Street last Friday and was last seen in back of the college cafeteria.

A description of the wanderer includes a black coat with brown dots above both eyes.

Anyone having information concerning the dog is asked to inform Moser at his earliest convenience. Moser can be reached by phone at JUniper 4-2473.

Laboratory Jobs Available To Capable Students

Scientifically-minded students, or those just interested in earning some extra money, will find an "ideal setup" in becoming laboratory assistants during their spare time at college.
